CHELMSFORD-HUNDRED lies in the heart of the county; and, beſides the convenience of ſituation, has many and great advantages above moſt of the reſt. The land in general is very good; it is well peopled; and abounds with Gentlemens Seats.

I cannot learn that this Hundred hath been granted, by patent or otherwiſe, to any particular perſon; but it is in the diſpoſal of the Sheriff of Eſſex, for the time being.

In Chelmsford-Hundred are thirty pariſhes, which we ſhall treat of in the following order.

CHELMSFORD.

This town gives name both to the Deanery and Hundred, and is a pretty large and populous place, 29 miles from London,

It is ſeated at the confluence of two rivers; the Can, which flows from the ſouth ſouth-weſt; and the Chelmer from the north. Some have imagined, (a) that the right name of the latter is not Chelmer, but Wink; which appears to be without a ſufficient foundation.

However, from a ford here through the river Chelmer, did Celmsford undoubtedly take its name. In Domeſday-book 'tis written Celmeresfort, and Celmeresforda: and in other records, Chelmeresford, Chelmerford, and Chelmesford.

This town is conſiderable upon many accounts. It is a great thorough-fare in the road from London to Colcheſter, Harwich, and Suffolk: And being ſeated almoſt in the middle of the county, is much frequented on account of its conveniency for public buſineſs. Here the Aſſizes, the general Quarter-ſeſſions, Petty-ſeſſions, and County-Courts, are held: Here the Commiſſioners for the land and window-tax ſit as often as is required: Here elections of knights of the ſhire are made; and here is the county gaol. It has a very convenient ſhire-houſe.

A good and plentiful market is kept on Fridays: and two fairs; one on the firſt of May, and the other on the firſt of November annually. It is well ſupplied with excellent water, there being a conduit in the market place, from which runs, every minute, above a hogſhead and a half; conveyed through the town in a limpid ſtream. By means of which, and the commendable care of the inhabitants, it is kept clean and neat; and makes as good an appearance as any town in the kingdom.

By an account taken in 1738, there were found to be 2151 inhabitants; but they have increaſed ſince, as well as the buildings. And, according to the poll for knights of the ſhire printed in 1734, fifty of the voters had their freeholds, as well as reſidence, in Chelmsford and Moulſham; and twenty-eight others, that dwelt in divers parts, had alſo freeholds in this town.

In the reign of Edward the Confeſſor, and at the time of the grand ſurvey, Chelmsford was part of the poſſeſſions of the Biſhops of London. [A] And to them it owes its grandeur, nay almoſt its exiſtence. For it was inconſiderable till the reign of [illegible] Henry I. about the year 1100. when Maurice, Biſhop of London, built a Bridge over the river here: which brought the road, that before lay through Writtle, this way; and gave ſome increaſe to the town, by the reſort and benefit of travellers. About a hundred years after, William de Sancta Maria, Biſhop of London, obtained licenſe for a market from King John, anno reg. 1. and for a fair the year following.

Some of the privileges enjoyed by ſome of their ſucceſſors, were indeed afterwards queſtioned by K. Edward I. in the 13th year of his reign; who iſſued out a quo warranto [B] againſt Bp. Richard de Graveſend, to ſhew what claim he had to View of Frank pledge, Gallows, Tumbrel, Pillory, free Warren, and the Aſſize of bread. But, five years after, that King confirmed to the ſame Biſhop, a view of Frank-pledge in his maners of Orſette, Leyndon, and Chelmesford in this County (b). And K. Richard II. 26 July 1395, granted the return of writs to Biſhop Robert Braybroke (c).

This town returned once members to a council at Weſtminſter, 11 Edw. III. viz. William de Maſcall, John de Thorpe, John le Mareſcal, William Wendover (d).

In this pariſh are two maners. 1. Biſhop's-hall. 2. Moulſham-hall: and alſo Bekeſwell, partly.

The Maner of BISHOP'S-HALL.

The maner which the Biſhops of London poſſeſſed in this pariſh, was named the maner of Chelmsford, alias Biſhop's-hall. The manſion-houſe ſtands on the north-ſide of the town, near the river and the parſonage, about half a mile from the church.

This town and maner continued in the Biſhops of London till Septemb. 3. 1545, when Biſhop Edmund Boner granted the ſame, with the Advowſon of the church, to K. Henry VIII. his heirs and ſucceſſors: which grant was confirmed by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, by their deed dated the 5th of September following.

The premiſſes continued in the Crown till 24 July 1563, when Qu. Elizabeth granted the maner of Chelmsford with the appertenances, alias called Biſhop's-hall in Chelmsford, and the manſion-houſe and capital manſion of the ſaid maner, unto Thomas Mildmay, Eſq; and his heirs for ever. [C]

Sir Thomas, his eldeſt Son, who died 21 Sept. 1566.

Sir Thomas, eldeſt Son of the laſt, who married the Lady Frances, only daughter of Henry Ratcliff, Earl of Suſſex, from whom her deſcendents derived their title and claim to the barony of Fits-walter. He died 21 July 1608. and was ſuceeded in this and his other eſtates, by his eldeſt Son

Sir Thomas, knighted 23 July 1603, created a Baronet 29 June 1611, and who died without ſurviving Iſſue 13 Febr. 1625-6. Whereupon the eſtates came to his next brother

Sir Henry, Kt. who before reſided at Woodham-Walter.

Robert, eldeſt Son of Sir Henry, ſucceeded him. And was ſucceeded by Henry, his eldeſt ſon: who dying without iſſue, they came to his brother

BENJAMIN, that was ſummoned to parliament 10 Febr. 1669, as Baron Fitz-walter; and departed this life 1 June 1679. His two ſons, Charles, and Benjamin, inherited, ſucceſſively one after another. Charles died 16 Feb. 1727-8, without ſurviving iſſue.

Benjamin, departing this life 29th Febr. 1756, alſo without ſurviving iſſue, deviſed by will all his eſtates to his kinſman

William Mildmay, Eſq; as is ſhewn more at large in the ſequel.

The Maner and Hamlet of MOULSHAM.

Adjoining to Chelmsford, and parted from it by the river Can, is the hamlet of Moulſham, or Mulſham, called alſo in old Writings Mulſho.

Before the Conqueſt it was holden by the Abbot and Convent of St. Peter's Weſtminſter, by the name of Moleſham [D]. It remained in their poſſeſſion till the ſuppreſſion of monaſteries, when it came to the Crown.

Mildemay, Kt. 23 June 1591. is the following deſcription of this maner and town, as it then was.

Chelmersforde is one ancient goodly maner, ſcituate in the heart of the county of Eſſex, in good and wholſom air, conveniently and well houſed, and well built for timber and tile. The chief maner houſe was in the time of K. Edw. III. brent and waſted with fire: And before that it ſeemed to have been ſome ancient barony. This maner hath very fair demeſne lands, woods, and waſtes, and alſo a great ſervice, more than 200 tenants, that hold of the ſame maner their lands, tenements and hereditaments, by reaſonable rents, cuſtoms, and ſervices: Of which number above 30 are noblemen, knights, eſquires, and gentlemen of good countenance.—Within this maner, upon parcel of the ſame, upon the common road-way is ſituate the town of Chelmsford, ſometime written the Burrowe of Chelmesford, well ſituated, with more than 300 habitations, divers of them ſeemly for gentlemen, many fair inns, and the reſidue of the ſame habitations for victuallers and artificers of city-like buildings, and are all holden of the ſaid maner of Chelmesford, mediately or immediately, by reaſonable rents, cuſtoms, and ſervices. This town is called the Shire-town, not only by the ſtatute of 11 of King Henry the VII. for the cuſtody of weights and meaſures, but ſo reputed and taken long time before by the keeping of the aſſizes and ſeſſions of the peace, and many other certification of the inquiſitions there. It is alſo a great thorough-fare, and market-town weekly upon the Friday.

In the upper face of which townſhip is ſituate the pariſh-church of the ſame town, a goodly ſeemly and large building of ſtone, covered with lead, meet for the receipt of 2000 people, or more.—And in the ſteeple is a convenient ring of four bells.

Not far diſtant from which pariſh-church is one other fair building, called the Market-croſs, or Seſſion-houſe:——And there was then the common goal.

n the 23d of July 1540, K. Henry VIII.
nted unto Thomas Myldmay, Gent. one of Auditors of the Court of Augmentations, a valuable conſideration, at twenty years pur-ſe [E], the maner of Mulſham with apperte-ces, in the county of Eſſex, belonging to the naſtery of St. Peter's Weſtminſter; and a wa-
-mill called Mulſham-mill; and lands and ds called Mulſham Fryth: And all the meſ-ges, mills, lands, tenements, &c. in the vils and pariſhes of Chelmesford, Mulſham, at Badow, Stocke, Wydford, and Writtle, nging to the ſaid monaſtery: To have and ly known by the name of Moulſham-Hall.

mas Myldmay, Eſq; having obtained it, as ove related, converted it into a ſeat for him-and his poſterity [F]. It was rebuilt in a nificent manner by the late Benjamin Earl
-walter, under the direction of Signor Leoni famous architect.

The Maner of BEKESWELL

h alſo partly in this hamlet of Moulſham, was included in the grant, laſt mentioned,
Thomas Mildmay, Eſq; It was anciently
d Bekeſwell, now Bexfeild. The manſion-ſe ſtands on the right ſide of the road leading Chelmsford to Stock and Billericay, at the nce on Gallow-wood Common.

rancis Bathenne held this eſtate in the reign dw. II. and gave it unto hn de Inſula de Burglee, Kt. who, in the 1334, granted it unto enry de Burgherſh, (f) Biſhop of Lincoln, and heirs [G]. This Biſhop died in 1341; after having been Lord Treaſurer, and Lord Chanlor of England (g); and, in the inquiſition taken after his death, the maner here was deſcribed to be, One carucate of arable land, 40 acr. of wood, 8 of meadow, 2 of paſture, and 100 s. rent in Chelmsford, holden of the Abbot of Weſtminſter, by the ſervice of 4 l. yearly rent. ——Bartholemew Lord Burgherſh was his brother and heir. (h) In 1342, he obtained of K. Edward III. a charter for free-warren in his maner of Bekeſwell: and died in 1355, holding this tenement (as it is called) of Bekeſwell of the Abbot of Weſtminſter, by the ſervice of 66 s. 8 d. yearly rent; which contained a capital meſſuage, 120 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, 12 of paſture, 12 of wood, 168 s. 8 d. rent.—His ſon, Bartholomew Lord Burgherſh, ſucceeded him (i). He was a man of great courage and bravery; attended K. Edward III. in his wars in France; and was by that Prince made one of the firſt Knights of the Garter (k). The 5th of April 1369, he died poſſeſſed of this eſtate, leaving an only daughter and heir—Elizabeth married to Edward le Deſpenſer, or Spencer (l); who ſeems not to have enjoyed it long. For, four years after, it was in

Sir Thomas Tirell Kt. and Alice his wife [H].

It was next granted to Weſtminſter-Abbey. For K. Richard II. in the 16th year of his reign, granted licenſe to John Thurſton, Thomas Aſton, and Simon Barton, Chaplains, to give the maner of Bekeſwell, and 36 s. 5 d. rent in Mulſham and Chelmsford, unto the Abbot and Convent of Weſtminſter, Lords of the maner of Mulſham, by the ſervice of 4 l. yearly rent, and ſuit at the court of the ſaid maner (m).

The ſame King, in the 3d year of his reign, had granted licenſe to Richard Stoke, clerk, and Thomas Aſton, to give to the ſaid Abbot and Convent, a mill in Mulſham, which was holden

] In the aforeſaid ſurvey and admeaſurement, in 1591, following account of this maner:
e maner of Mulſham is one ancient entire maner, lying er within itſelf in ſeveralty, holden of the queen's man chief, and not holden or any way chargeable or conory to any caſtle, honor, or other common or ſpecial
ory. And it hath belonging unto it, in ſoils, demeſnes, waſtes, more than 1300 acres of good ſorts of country both in clay and ſand. And alſo has the rents, cuſtoms, ervices of more than 200 convenient tenancies, holding ſame maner by free deed, and copy of court-roll. And is belonging of common pour vicenage more than 500 called Callewood-Common, ſituate in the pariſhes of Badow, Stock, Ging-Margaret, and Chelmesford afore-but divided from the maner of Chelmesford by one main
---The maner place of Mulſham, commonly called Mul-
-hall, at this day is the ſeat of Sir Thomas Mildmay, Kt.
rmer times had no proprietory dwelling upon the ſame, uſed by fermers and under-fermers, by reaſon whereof it grown into great ruin and decay, until about the 33d or year of K. Henry VIII. Thomas Mildemay, eſq. did d the ſame very beautifully, ſo as it was then accounted greateſt eſquire's building within the ſaid county of Eſſex.
ſince that time it is much bettered, augmented, and tified by the ſame Sir Thomas Mildemay.——This ma-ſeated in a very good wholeſome air, upon the ſand and l, not moated or compaſſed with waters, but hath ſuffici-ore of ponds, and watercourſes. And hath conveyances ht into the houſe into each office of very good wholeſome g water abundantly. And of woods it hath great ſtore.
o the ſaid maner-place are many fair gardens, and orchards belonging, repleniſhed with great ſtore of good, and ſome rare kind of fruits and herbs.

There belong to it, a dove-houſe of brick; a fair game of deer imparked: a great warren; a goodly fiſhing courſe both in private ponds and common river; a very good water-mill and great ſtore of other like neceſſary proviſions.——This maner hath three hamlets within the ſame, viz. the hamlet and ſtreet of Mulſham; the hamlet and ſtreet of Wideforde; and the hamlet of Gavelwood, which do contain many good habitations and tenancies, and are all holden of the ſaid maner, either by free deed, or copy of court roll, or at the will of the lord of the ſaid maner.——In the hamlet of Mulſham there is one grammar-ſchool, with convenient ſtipend for the maſter and uſher; and is in the gift of Sir Thomas Mildemay, Kt. lord of the ſaid maner.——And there is alſo within the ſaid hamlet one hoſpital, or poor-houſe, for the maintenance and relief of divers poor leprous and lazer people; which are put in and out by the ſaid lord.——And within the ſaid hamlet alſo is one ancient croſs, or building, with a priſon for the hamlet. And the croſs ſerveth ſome time as a market-croſs, for ſale of peaſe in the ſeaſon, and for fleſh and other mean victual: The hamlet having no market proper to themſelves, but as they are partakers of the market of Chelmsford for the Friday only, and other times in their own croſs.

[G] Johannes de Inſula de Burgle miles conceſſit Henrico de Burgheſſe Epiſcopo Lincoln et heredibus ſuis totum Manerium ſuum de Bekeſwell cum pertinentiis in hamletto de Mulſham in parochia de Chelmesford; et que nuper habuit ex dono Franciſci Bathenne. Clauſ. 8 Ed. III.

[H] Thomas Barwe Clericus, et Thomas Chamberleyn, relaxaverunt Tho. Tirell militi et Alicie uxori ejus, et heredibus et aſſignatis dicte Alicie, totum jus in manerio de Bekeſwell juxta Chelmsford, et 36 s. 5 d, reddit. in Mulſham. Clauſ. 47 Ed. III.

by the ſervice, or rent, of 20 s. per annum (n).

That monaſtery is, moveover, ſaid to have had lands and tenements in this hamlet, but not ſpecified by name, which were once in the poſſeſſion of Roger Baſſet of Sutton [I]. At the diſſolution of monaſteries, all the premiſſes became veſted in the crown, and K. Henry VIII. granted them unto Thomas Myldmay Eſq; as hath been already mentioned.

Thus having ſhown, that the capital eſtates in this town centered in the Mildmay family; I come to give ſome account of that family, referring the reader for a more particular and minute relation of them, their actions, pedigrees, &c. to Sir William Dugdale's Baronage, and the Peerages often printed; as I deſign to do in other families that have been ennobled: leſt by repeating what hath already been made public, I ſwell this work to too great a bulk.

This ancient and honourable family derive themſelves from Hugo Mildeme, or Mildme, who lived in 1147, the 13th of K. Stephen.——His ſon, Sir Robert, was living in 1235, 19 Henry III. He left two Sons; Herbert, and —Roger, ſeated at Hambleton in Lancaſhire, anno 1283. Roger's ſucceſſors, were ——Henry ——Ralph ——Henry ſeated at Stonehouſe in Glouceſterſhire in 1349——Henry (o)——Robert, living in 1401.—Robert (p), who married .... daughter and heir of .... Le Rous: and had by her —Thomas, that took to wife Margaret, daughter and heir of John Corniſh of Great Waltham, Gent.——His ſon and heir Walter, who came and ſettled at Writtle in this county, married ...... daughter of ...... Everard, Eſq; of Maſhbury, afterwards of Great Waltham; by which he had two ſons Thomas and John.——THOMAS, the eldeſt ſon and heir, raiſed a very conſiderable eſtate. He was one of the Auditors of the Court of Augmentation, at the time of the ſuppreſſion of the monaſteries, and purchaſed of K. Henry VIII. the maner of Moulſham, as aforeſaid. He married Agnes, daughter of ...... Reade of .... by which he had 4 ſons, and 4 daughters. The names of the ſons were, Thomas, William, John, and Walter; which four ſons became the heads of ſo many conſiderable families.—1. Thomas was ſeated at Moulſham-hall:—2. William at Springfield Barnes:—3. John, at Cretingham in Suffolk, and his ſon Robert at Terling in this county:—4. Sir Walter at Apethorp in Northamptonſhire; but having built Danbury-place, he gave it to his ſecond ſon, Sir Humfrey, who fixed his reſidence there [K].

From theſe four ſons the family of Mildmay ſpread itſelf into numerous other branches. Inſomuch, that about the end of K. James the Firſt's reign, theſe Nine ſeveral families were poſſeſſed of very large and conſiderable eſtates in this county.

Carew, alias Hervy Mildmay of Marks, Eſq;

1. Thomas Mildmay, as aboveſaid, of Moulſham-hall, Eſq. married Avicia, daughter of William Gunſon of London, Eſq. by whom he had a numerous offſpring of eight ſons and ſeven daughters.——His eldeſt ſon and heir, Sir Thomas Mildmay, married the Lady Frances, only daughter of Henry Ratcliff Earl of Suſſex, from whom three of her deſcendents inherited and enjoyed the title and claim to the barony of FITS-WALTER, viz.---Benjamin, ſummoned to parliament as Baron Fits-Walter, 10 Febr. 1669, and his two ſons---Charles, and---Benjamin, ſucceſſively one after another. By the death of the latter, 29 Feb. 1756, without iſſue, that firſt branch is become extinct.

2. From the ſecond ſon, William of Springfield-Barnes, is deſcended William Mildmay, Eſq. to whom the ſaid Benjamin late lord Fitz-walter deviſed all his eſtates, and who is now accordingly ſeated at Moulſham-hall.

3. From John, the third ſon, deſcended Robert Mildmay of Terling, which branch is alſo now extinct.

4. The fourth ſon, Sir Walter Mildmay, was Chancellor of the Exchequer, and one of the Privy Council to Q. Elizabeth, and founder of Emmanuel-College in Cambridge. He married the ſiſter of Sir Francis Walſingham, ſecretary of ſtate, and by her had two ſons: To Sir Antony, the eldeſt ſon, embaſſador from Q. Elizabeth to the Court of France, he gave his eſtate at Apethorp in Northamptonſhire; and he left only one daughter, married to Francis Fane Earl of Northumberland: To his ſecond ſon, Sir Humfrey Mildmay, he deviſed his eſtate at Danbury-place, who had iſſue John Mildmay, and Sir Henry Mildmay. John dying without iſſue, gave by will his eſtate at Danbury to his widow, which took to her ſecond huſband Robert Cory, D. D. and had by him an only daughter, married to William Fytche, Eſq; father to the preſent Thomas Fytche, Eſq; Sir Henry Mildmay, the ſecond ſon, was Maſter of the Jewel office to K. Charles I. &c. who marrying the daughter and heir of Alderman Holyday of London, had iſſue Henry Mildmay of Shawford in Hampſhire, father of Holiday Mildmay, that left one only daughter, Lætitia, heir of the male line of that branch of the family. Which Lætitia intermarried with Humfrey Mild-

Ancient Religious Foundations in this Town.

On the ſouth ſide of the river, within the hamlet of Moulſham, ſtood an houſe of Black or Dominican Friers; which might be very antient, but could not be founded by Malcolm King of Scotland (q): for the laſt of that name died long before theſe monks were known in England (r). The ſite of it is now called The Friers, and lyes a little above the gaol. The building was of a mixture of flint and free-ſtone: and the kitchen was curious on account of the roof, it being like that of the theatre at Oxford. But no remains of it now appear.

This houſe, at the ſuppreſſion, was valued at 9 l. 6 s. 5 d. per ann. And K. Henry VIII. in the 35th of his reign, granted it to Antony Bonvixi [L]. Afterwards it came into the Mildmay-family, where it remains.

In the reign of Edward II. about 1320, lived in this houſe Thomas Langford, a Dominican Frier, who wrote an univerſal Chronicle from the beginning of the world to his own time; and other pieces. A further account of him may be ſeen in John Bale's Centuries (s).

A CHAPEL

belonging to the Abbey of St. Oſith, formerly ſtood in a field called Long Stamps, between Moulſham-hall and Gallow-common; built undoubtedly by that abbey, which had part of the tithes of Moulſham. Several ſtones, with Braſſes thereon, have been taken thence. At the diſſolution, this chapel and the tithes, valued at 5 l. per ann. were let to William Aylenoth. K. Henry VIII. in the 31ſt of his reign, granted the ſite of this chapel, with the appertenances, and a moiety of the tithes of Mulſham belonging to the Abbey of St. Oſith, to William Gonſon, Eſq. and his heirs (t). His daughter Haviſia marrying Thomas Mildmay, Eſq. as is is above related, brought theſe into that family.

Abbey-lands.

In 1348, K. Edw. III. granted licenſe to Philip de Aungre, and Alice his wife, to give to the keeper and chaplains of the chantry at the altar of St. Mary de Thele in Hertfordſhire, and to their ſucceſſors, three meſſuages, 26 acres of arable, 1 of meadow, and 5 of paſture, in Chelmsford and Bromfield (u).——Upon transferring over the revenues and poſſeſſions of the college of Thele, to the hoſpital of Elſing-ſpittle in London, in the time of Henry VI. there were ſix meſſuages with their appertenances, lying in Chelmsford, Buers-Gifford, Writtle, and Bromfield, being part of the Poſſeſſions of the ſaid college, then aſſigned over to this hoſpital (w).

The FREE-SCHOOL.

K. Edward VI. by his letters patent dated at Weſtminſter 24 March, the 5th year of his reign, A. D. 1552, did, at the humble requeſt of Sir William Petre, Kt. one of his principal ſecretaries of ſtate, Sir Walter Mildmay, Kt. one of the general ſupervifors of the court of augmentations, Sir Henry Tirrell, Kt. and Thomas Mildmay, Eſq. and the inhabitants of Mulſham and the adjacent parts, found and erect a free grammar-ſchool in the pariſh of Chelmsford for ever; to be called by the name of the Grammar Free-ſchool of King Edward the Sixth, for the inſtruction of youth in grammar-learning, under the care and inſpection of a ſchoolmaſter and an uſher. He conſtituted the four perſons above mentioned, that had been principal inſtruments in the erecting of it, the firſt governours during life, and ſettled the government of it in thoſe four families for ever. And if any of the four governours died, then the ſurviving governours, or the major part of them, were impowered to chooſe another in his room, viz. the heir male of the perſon deceaſed. But if any of the governours ſhould die without heir male, it ſhould then be lawful for the ſurviving governors, or major part of them, to make choice of a fitting perſon bearing the eſtate of a knight, whoſe family lived for the moſt part in this county. And if it ſhould happen all the governours thus to die without iſſue male, then he granted power to the biſhop of the dioceſſe, to nominate and appoint four governours of the order of knights in their room.

He endowed it with Hills's Chantry in Great Badow; Plumborough-Marſh in Southminſter; Barries and Squite crofts in Hatfield-Peverel; and the Marſhe of Wyke or Cortwyke in Weſt-Tilbury; and Stone-houſe Chantry in Eaſt-Tilbury: Paying yearly out of them only forty ſhillings and eight pence to the poor of Much Badow aforeſaid, and ſeven ſhillings and ten pence to the court of Augmentations, for the maintenance of one maſter, and one uſher [M].

The governors formerly hired of the Mildmay-family of Moulſham-hall, a great Room at the Friers near the river, for a ſchool-houſe; paying forty ſhillings a year rent for the ſame. It was the refectorium of the monks. About the year 1633, Mr. Durdwin being maſter, and Mr. Peake uſher, the roof of that room fell in; and providentially in the middle of the day, whilſt all were gone to dinner; otherwiſe they might have been cruſhed to death.

It was then the governours cuſtom, for each of them to take his turn to be expenditor and manager for five years together; and ſo to take the round. But at preſent it is under the joint direction of the truſtees, who are Sir John Tyrell, Sir John Croſſe, William Mildmay, and Carew Hervy Mildmay, Eſqrs.

When a new ſchool-houſe was to be provided, Sir John Tyrell was the manager. He purchaſed part of the George-inn, and of the yard and garden; and built there a new brick ſchool; inlarging, at the ſame time, the old building, to make it fit for a maſter to live in (x).

Since which, it hath been greatly enlarged and improved, by the late Lord Fitz-walter, and the ſubſequent truſtees.

This pariſh enjoys a charitable gift, thus recorded on a table of black marble affixt to the wall of the ſouth iſle of the chancel.

CHARITY-SCHOOLS.

There are two charity-ſchools in this town: One founded 17 Auguſt 1713, for 50 boys; the other, in April 1714, for 20 girls. The children are educated in the doctrine of the church of England, in reading, writing, pſalmody, and arithmetic. The girls are farther taught houſhold-work to fit them for ſervices; they make up the linen, and knit the ſtockings for both ſchools; and are taught to make their own gowns and petticoats. Both ſchools are cloathed once a year; the children are alſo frequently and publicly examined in the Church-catechiſm. And from both ſchools there have been many bound out to proper trades and employments. But of late, the truſtees think it more for the good of ſociety, to procure maſters for them in huſbandry, or to place them out in yearly ſervices. The number of boys is at preſent reduced to 32.

The ſchool-houſe ſtands at the north-eaſt corner of the Churchyard, in a lane leading to the Parſonage, and to Biſhop's-Hall. And a houſe hath been lately purchaſed for the maſter to dwell in, whoſe ſalary is 30 pounds a year.

A little lower, in the ſame lane, was erected, in 1716, a large brick-building, being The WORKHOUSE, for the employment and better maintenance of the poor of this pariſh.

ALMS-HOUSES.

In Mulſham, on the right ſide of the road leading from Chelmsford to London, ſtand alms-houſes for ſix dwellers; founded by Sir Thomas Mildmay, Bart. and his lady Anne, as appears from the inſcription in capitals on a free-ſtone over the door [O].

But, before that time, the ſum they are endowed with, had been granted by his grandfather Thomas Mildmay, Eſq. as appears by the following extract from his will; wherein he gives "twenty marks yearly out of his tythes of Tarling, to the maſters, governors, &c. of the free-ſchool of Chelmsford; to be payable at Lady-day and Michaelmaſs: Whereof two pounds towards finding an Uſher; and ſix pounds to be divided in equal portions, at Eaſter and Michaelmaſs, to and amongſt ſix aged and of the pooreſt people inhabiting in the hamlet of Mulſham, three whereof to be men, and three to be women. And the 5 l. 6 s. 8 d. being the remaining part of the [ſaid 20 marks, or] thirteen pounds ſix ſhillings and eight pence, to be laid out in the following manner, viz. 2 l. to buy an ox or bullock to be diſtributed amongſt the poor people of Mulſham on Chriſtmas-eve; and 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. to buy three barrels of white herrings, and four cades of red herrings, to be diſtributed amongſt the poor people of Moulſham and Chelmsford, the firſt and ſecond week of clean Lent. And it is provided, that the owner of the chief manſion-houſe of Moulſham for the time being ſhall have the nomination for ever of the uſher and almesfolks aforeſaid, and alſo the diſtribution of the ſalary and alms aforeſaid, by the overſight of the ſaid maſters and governors. And he alſo gives ſix tenements within the hamlet of Moulſham, which are ſettled in truſt only on the biſhop of London for the time being; for the uſe of ſix poor people to be call'd Beadsfolks or Almes-people; and the naming of the ſaid ſix poor people to inhabit the tenements to be in the heir of the manſion-houſe of Moulſham-hall for the time being; the Theſe alms-houſes ſtanding too near the road, were taken down in 1758, and rebuilt a little more back, and in a better manner than they were before, at the expence of William Mildmay, Eſq. the preſent worthy owner of Moulſham-hall.

The CHURCH is a ſtately building, ſituated at the further, or weſt, end of the town. Both church and chancel have north and ſouth iſles, leaded. A lofty ſquare tower of ſtone ſtands at the weſt end; with battlements, and pyramids at each corner: On the top is a large lanthorn, with a ſhaft leaded. It has a ring of ſix bells, and a clock.

It was re-edified about the year 1424, as appears by the following inſcription in ſtone-work, in relievo, on the outſide of the wall of the ſouth iſle, juſt under the battlements, in Gothic Characters; each letter being about nine inches long. ‘ Pray for the good eſtate of all the Townſhepe of Chelmysford that hath been liberal willers and procorers of helpers to thys werke and for . . . them that firſt began and longeſt ſhall contenowe . . it . . . In the yere of our Lorde I thouſand IIII hundreth *xx*IIII.’ The intermediate ſpaces are filled with flints, laid in hard mortar [P].

In the roof of this church, there were the following eſcucheons, in 1634 (y); many of them belonging to gentlemen that had contributed to the building.

Warner, or, on a bend engrailed, between 6 roſes proper, 3 gerbes of the field.

Arms of the city of London.

Arms of the company of drapers; azure, 3 clouds radiated proper, each adorned with a triple crown, or.

England and France quarterly on a ſhield.

Mowbray, gules, a lion rampant, argent.

Neville, gules, a ſaltire, argent.

Sable, an eagle diſplayed, argent.

Sable, a bend, gules.

Sable, a mullet, argent.

The eaſt window of the chancel was very fair, and curiouſly painted with the hiſtory of Chriſt from his conception to his aſcenſion; untouched, as ſuppoſed, from the firſt foundation of the church. And, to perpetuate the memory of the benefactors, in the vacant places there were the eſcucheons and arms of the ancient nobility and gentry, who had contributed to the building and beautifying of that fair ſtructure. In Auguſt 1641, an ordinance of parliament being made for taking away all ſcandalous pictures out of churches, the churchwardens took down the pictures of the Virgin Mary, and of Chriſt on the croſs, and ſupplied the place with white glaſs. But the mob not thinking this a thorough reformation enough, a great number of them aſſembled, on the 5th of November, in a riotous manner, and with long poles and ſtones beat down and defaced the whole window; whereby the memory of the pious benefactors is loſt, as Mr. Holman obſerves. Dr. Michaelſon, the rector, was alſo barbarouſly uſed by them (z).

There were in this church, in the time of Popery, four guilds, or chantries, of which the names and yearly value were as follows.

Mountney's Chantry, founded by Sir John Mountney, in Chelmsford churchyard, - - -	11 10 0

In this church there were alſo no leſs than eighteen obits founded: But the lands that belonged to them cannot be now traced out.

On the north ſide of the church, and not far from Biſhop's-Hall, in a field near the way leading from that hall into the town; ſtood a chapel, dedicated to St. Margaret. It was appendant to the maner of Biſhop's-hall; and there are ſome collations to it by the biſhops, regiſtred in the regiſter named Baudake, alias Baldock, in the years 1321, 1336, and 1337.

In a chapel, on the north ſide of this church, which was in all probability erected for one of the chantries, is placed a library; given by John Knightbridge, D. D. a native of this town, and rector of Spofforth in Yorkſhire: for the uſe and benefit of the clergy in this neighbourhood [Q].

On the north ſide of the chancel is a chapel, which ſerves for a burial-place to the noble family of Mildmay. But their epitaphs, and others in this church and churchyard, with the reſt in the county of Eſſex, are to be inſerted at the end of this work, by way of Appendix.

[Q] At the eaſt end of the church, there is a capital meſſuage, named Guy harling, from an ancient Norman poſſeſſor of it, Guy de Harling. In the 15th century, it was in a branch of the Wiſeman-family, who rebuilt it. The late Lord Chief Baron Comyns rebuilt it, as it now ſtands.

2. SPRINGFIELD.

2. SPRINGFIELD.

Adjoyning weſt to Boreham is this pariſh of Springfield, which reaches quite down to Chelmsford-town, being parted from the ſame by the river.

The name denotes a Field full of Springs, or Campus aquaticus, as it is called by Norden.

At the time of the general ſurvey, Ralph Peverell held the greateſt part of this pariſh, by the name of Springafeld: which one Aleſtan did enjoy before [R].

Another part, which had been in the poſſeſſion of Godric, was then holden by Robert Gernon, under the name of Springinghefeld [S].

From them proceeded the three following maners.

1. Springfield-hall, with Dukes.
2. Springfield-Barnes.
3. Kewton, alias Cuton-hall.

The maner of New-hall is alſo partly in this pariſh.

SPRINGFIELD-HALL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about a mile north weſt from the church, on the eaſt ſide of the river, towards Bromfield.

This eſtate came, early after the ſurvey, into the poſſeſſion of a family ſurnamed de Boſevile, which held it of the honor of Peverel of London by the ſervice of two knights-fees. That honour being by Qu. Maud taken from the heirs of William Peverel, and given to William de Mandevil Earl of Eſſex (a); in the ſubſequent inquiſitions, this eſtate came to be ſaid promiſcuouſly to be holden of the honour of Peverel, or of the Earl of Eſſex. For inſtance, in the 32d of Henry II. when a ſcutage of 20 s. was aſſeſſed upon every knight's-fee, the honor of Peverel of London paid; but Ralf de Boſevile and Tho. Bardolf were pardoned or excuſed (b). And, in the ſame reign, William de Boſevill is recorded to hold a fee and a half under Geffrey de Mandevil Earl of Eſſex (c). — The 2d of Richard I. Ralf de Beſevill paid 10 s. for each knight's-fee, called the Scutage of Wales (d).— In 1199 William de Boſevill paid his eſcuage, aſſeſſed at two marks, to the ſheriff, for his lands holden of the honor of Peverel of London. And, in 1211, he is recorded as holding two knights-fees of the fee of Peverel (e).

This ſame year, Peter Picot held two knights fees in Springfield, with the guardianſhip of Ralf de Boſſeville (f).—The 35th of Henry III. Peter Beſeville had a free-warren granted him in Springfeld. This Peter had 2 daughters his coheirs, viz.—Sibill—and Joane: between whom his two knights-fees were divided.

Sibill was married to—Robert Rumbauld, and had by him 2 daughters — Joane, and Alice. He held of the King in capite, of the inheritance of Sibill his wife, the moiety of a meſſuage in Springfield, 120 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, 7 of paſture, 20 of wood, the 3d part of a water-mill, a certain fiſhery, and 27 s. 3 d. ob. rent of aſſize, by the ſervice of 2 parts of a knight's-fee. She was afterwards married again to Geffry de Bello-campo, or Beauchamp. He died the 13th of Edw. I. (g)

Joane, the other daughter of Peter Beſeville, or Boſevill, was wife of John de Twinſted.

Alice the youngeſt daughter and coheir of Robert Rumbauld was married to John Lyddell, and had for her purparty half a knight's-fee in this pariſh, and paid 50 s. to the King for a relief. The like ſum was paid by Joane, the eldeſt daughter (h).

Sibill, above mentioned, by her ſecond huſband Geffrey Beauchamp, had a daughter named Sibill; which died the 27th of Edw. I. poſſeſſed of a moiety of the maner of Springfield. But having no iſſue, it deſcended to her two half-ſiſters Joane and Alice (i).

This maner was next in the Goldington family; which occurs in ſeveral parts of this county, eſpecially at Aldham.

William de Goldington had to his ſon and heir—Sir John de Goldington, Kt. who died the 12th of Edw. II. holding the maner of Springfeild, with half of the advowſon of the church, of the King as of his honor of Peverel (k).——John, his ſon and heir, died in 1338, poſſeſſed of the ſame, jointly with Catharine his wife; who was afterwards married again to—John Fermer, and died in 1358; holding a moiety of the maner of Springfield, of the honour of Peverel, by the gift of Richard Grapynell; and Olivers in this pariſh, of the Earl of Hereford (l).—John de Goldington, her ſon and heir, died in 1419, ſeiz'd of this maner, leaving——Thomas his ſon and heir, 13 years old (m). He died 2 years after; whereupon this inheritance deſcended to field, holden of the Honor of Bologne; with the Advowſon of the Church de Boſworth, as it is there expreſſed (r).—Thomas, his ſon and heir, then aged 40, ſucceeded; and dyed 25 Septemb. 1592, holding the premiſſes (s).—Sir John, his ſon and heir, was then 20 years old. —His ſon, Sir John Kt. dyed in 1675, aged 82, having had iſſue—John, who, 22 Octob. 1666, was created a Baronet, being ſtyled John Tyrel of Springfield Eſq; ſon and heir apparent of Sir John Tyrel of Herons Kt. (t) He dyed in 1673, before his father.——He was ſucceeded by his ſon—Sir Charles, who dyed in 1714, and had for ſucceſſor in this eſtate his ſon—Sir John, who dyed 21 June 1729, leaving two ſons—Sir Charles, that dyed a minor, aged eleven, 27 July 1735. and—Sir John, the preſent poſſeſſor,

.... Henxtworth, his couſin and next heir, ſon of Catharine his aunt, aged 30 years (n).

We find it, next, in the ancient family of Tyrell, ſeated at Herons, in Eaſt-Horndon.

With Springfield-hall there goes an eſtate, called Dukes, or Deuks, from a family of that ſurname. The manſion-houſe ſtands at the ſouth weſt corner of the Green, almoſt oppoſite to the Church.

Wm. de P who dyed the 15th of Edward III, held this, by the name of the 4th part of the maner of Springfield, by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee and ſuit at Peverel court, of the king, as of his Honor of Peverel; leaving Peter Wendover his couſin and next heir. This Peter's wife—Elizabeth, dyed in 1361, 35 Edw. III. holding the ſame: and—Margaret, wife of Richard Deuk, was her daughter and heir.

The next account we find of it, is in 1592, 25 Septemb. when Thomas Tyrell is recorded to have held the maner of Springfeild-hall, and a firme called Dukes, of the Honor of Bologne (u). And in that family it hath continued ever ſince.

The Maner of SPRINGFIELD-BARNES.

The manſion houſe ſtands near the river, as you go from Chelmsford to Little Badow.

Originally this ſeems to have been the part which belonged to Robert de Gernon, as is above mentioned.

In the reigns of Edw. II. and III. it was in Thomas, William, and John Peſe (w). Afterwards it came into the noble families of Bohun, and Bourchier. For, in the 9th of Henry IV, Johanna de Bohun Counteſs of Eſſex and Hereford, Margaret wife of Sir Hugh de Badewe Kt. William Bourgchier, William Marney, Nicolas Hunt, Kts. Robert Rikedon, Edmund Peverel, &c.. or any two of them; had licenſe given them, to grant unto the Abbot and Convent of Coggeſhall, and their ſucceſſors for ever, the yearly Rent of 10 l. out of 2 meſſuages, 1 fulling-mill, 240 acr. of arable, 46 of paſture, 11 of meadow, and 2 acr. of wood in Springfeild, and Sandon, call'd Springfeild-Barnes, and Stanford-Barnes; for the maintenance of one Monk, to pray for the ſouls of the ſaid Margaret, and Thomas Coggeſhall (x).

In the reign of Henry IV, it was in Sir Lodowic John. For he dyed in the 21ſt of that reign, poſſeſs'd of the ſame; together with 4 l. 4 s. 3 d. ob. rent in Sandford, and Springfeild, Chelmesford, Mulſham; and the Advowſon of the moiety of the Church of Springfeild, holden of John Earl of Oxford (y).

The 1ſt of Edw. IV. it was in Robert Chelmesford (z).

In December 1475, Margery, daughter and heir of Richard Lord Berners, dyed poſſeſs'd of this maner. She was the widow and relict of Sir John Bourchier Kt. who was in her right Lord Berners; and had departed this life the 21ſt of May 1474.——John, ſon of Humfrey her grandſon, was her next heir, aged 8 years (a).

Coggeſhall-Abbey ſeems to have holden it afterwards. For it coming to the Crown, upon the ſuppreſſion of the Monaſteries, K. Edw. VI, in 1548, granted to William Mildmay, ſecond ſon of Thomas Mildmay of Moulſham-hall in this county, Eſq; not only the maner of Springfield-Barnes; but alſo Sampford Barnes, with the appertenances, in Springfeild and Great Badow. He dyed, 13 Febr. 1570-1, leaving iſſue, by ..... his wife, daughter of John Paſcall of Great Badow Eſq;—Sir Thomas, his ſon and heir, then aged 28 (b); who dying 15 Decemb. 1612, [T] had iſſue, by Alice his wife daughter of Adam Winthrope of Groton in Suffolk,——William, his eldeſt ſon and heir: Sir Henry of Graces: and Walter of Pontlands in Great Badow. William, the eldeſt ſon juſt now mention'd, dyed in his father's life-time, but had married Margaret, daughter of Geo. Hervy of Marks near Romford Eſq; by whom he left—Thomas, (born 8 Decemb. 1591) afterwards knighted, who had to wife .... daughter of Sir John Ernley of Whetham in Wiltſhire. His ſon and heir—William married .... daughter of John Palmer Eſq; [V] He ſold this eſtate to

Robert Bertie Eſq; ſon to Montagu Earl of Lindſey [W]; who gave it by will to his nephew—Robert, born 28 Febr. 1676, brother to James Earl of Abbingdon, that married Catharine daughter of Richard Lord Viſcount Wenman, who dyed 16 Aug. 1710, without iſſue. Whereupon, in purſuance of the ſaid will, this maner deſcended to—Henry Bertie, brother by the 2d wife to the firſt Robert abovesaid, who married Philadelphia, daughter of Sir Edward Norris of Weſton on the Green in the County of Oxford, Eſq; and had by her two ſons, and three daughters. He dyed 5 Dec. 1734, and was ſucceeded in this maner by his eldeſt ſon—James, who having married Elizabeth daughter of Roger Harris of Wincheſter Eſq; had iſſue

3. The Maner of KEWTON, alias CUTON-HALL: which was reckoned part of New-hall in Boreham.

The manſion-houſe ſtands on the ſouth ſide of the London-road, towards Little Badow.

This maner, by the name of Kyneton-hall, was holden by Thomas de Merk of Henry de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed in 1372 (d).

Afterwards it became part of the poſſeſſions of Coggeſhall Abbey; but when, and by whom given, we cannot learn.

Upon the diſſolution it fell to the Crown; and K. Henry VIII. in the 29th of his reign, granted it, with the whole ſite of the Abbey, to Sir Tho. Seymour, Kt. But getting it again into his hands by way of exchange, his Majeſty granted it, in 1545, to John Paſchall, who had farmed it, before the diſſolution, at 15 l. per annum (e). The 3d and 4th of Philip and Mary, this John had licenſe to alienate the ſame to his brother,——Andrew Paſchall Eſq; younger ſon of John Paſchall of Great Badow that dyed in 1544, by Mary daughter of Edmund Noke. He married Joane daughter of John Pincheon of Writtle; and had one ſon, named Andrew; and three daughters, Mary wife of Tho. Hanſhatt of Braughing in Hertfordſhire, Joane wife of John Hayward, L L. D. and Catharine wife of Zachary Farre. He dyed 30 Decemb. 1603, leaving his ſon and heir——Andrew, then aged 30 years, and a knight (f). He married Mary daughter of William Glaſcock of Dunmow, and had Andrew, Philip, Edward, and Mary.—Andrew, the eldeſt ſon, dyed 12 April 1619. By his wife, Mary, daughter of .... Wilſon, or Williamſon of Welwin in Hertfordſhire, he left—Andrew Paſchall of Springfield Eſq; (g). Who dying 24 Auguſt 1633, without iſſue, this maner deſcended to——Edward, his brother (h): that married, 1ſt, Heſter daughter of Sir John Temple, Kt. by whom he had no iſſue. 2dly, Anne daughter of .... Boles of .... in Shropſhire (i).

Robert Witham, vintner in London, purchaſed this maner, and ſettled it upon his wife, Charlotte, daughter of John Torriano, merchant. He dying without iſſue, ſhe was married again to James Ruck, banker in London; and, after his deceaſe, to John Curzon Eſq;

SOME of theſe Maners were diſmembered, or parcell'd out, as appears by the following inſtances.

A family of note, which took their ſurname from this place, is the firſt we ſhall mention. The 7th of Edw. I. Richard de Springeſend held a moiety of the Church, with other eſtates, and gave name to Richard's Portion. He married Beatrix, eldeſt daughter and coheir of Peter Mareſcall of Badew, by whom he had his ſon John (k).——The 9th of the ſame king, Sewall de Springefeild held 1 fee in Springefeld under Alice le Deſpenſer, daughter and heir of Philip Baſſet that dyed the ſame year (l).

Peter le Mareſchall held 80 acres of arable land, and 4 of meadow, in Spryngefend, of John Lancaſter, by the ſerjeancy of keeping one Horſe forty days in the King's ſtable, at the King's own charge; and John, ſon of Richard de Springefend, Peter Sebryth, Richard de Badew and Iſabell his wife, and John ſon of Genceline wife of Alexander de Munteny, held them afterwards in purparty (m).

Richard de Plaiz, that dyed in 1360, had half a knight's-fee in this pariſh (n).

In the time of Henry VI, John Benyngton and Chriſtian Peſte held a fourth part of a fee here, newly diſmembered.—Thomas Tyrell, clerk, held the like quantity.—As did alſo Lewis John; which laſt was called Phelippes (o).

John Hunt of Springefeild, that dyed in 1349, held of the Honor of Peverel, a quarter of a fee, named Le Huntes; being 1 meſſuage, 60, or 63, acres of arable, 13 of meadow, 6 of paſture, 6 of wood; and 16 pence per annum rent: Alſo 18 acr. of the Earl of Oxford (p).—Abel, his ſon and heir, held the ſame, and dyed in 1365.—Joane was his ſiſter and heir (q).

Hugh le Hunt held one knight's fee in Springfeild, under John de Veer that dyed in 1360; And John de Goldington held a quarter of a knight's-fee of the ſame Earl (r)

Richard Alred Eſq; that dyed 26 Henr. VI, held the 6th part of a fee in Springfeild called Cobbeſwode (s). Alſo, 1 meſſuage, 100 acr. of arable, 20 of meadow, 12 of paſture, 6 of wood; in Springfeild, Little Waltham, Great Leys, Terling, Boreham, and Bromfeild; called Nobatts; jointly with Agnes his wife, Richard Riche, and others; of Sir John Bourgchier, and Thomas Tyrrell, knights.—William was his ſon and heir (t).

John Earl of Oxford, that dyed 10 March 1513-14, held the 4th part of the maner of Springfeild, of William Pyrton Eſq;—So did John Earl of Oxford, that dyed 14 July 1526 (u). But which Maners theſe parcels belonged to, or were taken from, we have no rule to learn.

Other Eſtates of ſome conſequence in this Pariſh.

Springfeild-Place, is a very good Houſe at the Eaſt end of the Church, chiefly rebuilt by the late Robert Witham. The Eſtate appertaining to it, is about 35 l. per ann. It hath belonged to Ruke Church,—— ... Bridges, —Gamaliel Capel, ſon of Sir Gamaliel brother of the firſt Lord Capel,—Samuel Fryar

Abbey-Lands.

The Abbot of Waltham held a tenement in Springfeild, by the ſervice of the 11th part of a knight's-fee, under Philip Burnell that dyed the 22d of Edw. I.

Roger Ketterich, and Adam Cook, had licenſe, 16 Ric. II, to grant 20 s. rent in Springfeild, to the Abbot and Convent of Coggeshall (w).

Lands, called a Maner, in this pariſh, belonging to Thobie Priory, were granted, among others, to Cardinal Wolſey by K. Henry VIII. 17 reg. (x)

Charitable Gifts.

The Poor of Springfield-pariſh are intitled to a Rent-charge of Six pounds thirteen ſhillings and four pence per annum, iſſuing and ariſing out of 3 fields, called Great Perry-field, Little Perryfield, and Millfield in this pariſh. That rent-charge ſeems to have been ſettled by Robert Peaſely, yeoman of this pariſh, in obedience to a decree of Sir Thomas Bromley Lord Chancellor of England Janu. 25. 1586, upon the family of the Mildmays, then inhabitants of this place, now of Marks, and others, as Truſtees for the Poor. But, in 1597, Thomas Mildmay, the ſurviving Truſtee, refuſing to raiſe a new feoffment, Andrew Paſchall, and others the Pariſhioners, obliged him thereunto by virtue of a decree obtained from Sir Tho. Egerton Lord Keeper of the great ſeal; which ſeveral Decrees remain in the Pariſh-cheſt, and authentic Copies of them in the Churchwardens books. Since that time, the payment of this Rent-charge hath not been conteſted: but the Mill-field now contributes nothing thereunto; tho' by what means exempted, is unknown. Great Perry-field, and Little Perry-field, are at preſent the eſtate of John Strutt, Eſq.

It appears from an old Pariſh-book, That, many years ago, ſome Cottage, or Cottages, belonging to the Poor of this pariſh, ſtood in the front of the houſe then belonging to Ruke Church, and now to John Strutt, Eſq; Whereupon, it was agreed, in 1623, by the ſaid Ruke Church, that thoſe cottages ſhould be pulled down, and the ſite of them applied to the enlargement of the court-yard of that manſion-houſe for ever: Upon condition, that the ſaid Ruke Church, his heirs and aſſigns, ſhould pay yearly and every year to the Poor of this Pariſh the ſum of Forty ſhillings.

To this pariſh alſo belongs a Houſe, orchard, and eight acres of land, of the yearly value of ten or twelve pounds; for the repair and ornaments of the church.

And a Dwelling-houſe, now converted into Alms-houſes, and two acres of land behind the ſame.

And two other acres of land.

Likewiſe, a houſe and orchard holden of the Crown, lately rebuilt, and made into a workhouſe; ſtanding in the road leading to Colcheſter.

Over againſt the late New-hall Park, going up to the Duke's Alms-houſes, ſtands a Farm, called the Poors-Farm; belonging to the Alms-houſes at Witham, upon Cheppin-hill.

The CHURCH ſtands on the North ſide of the Green, and is of one pace with the Chancel, all tyled. There is a ſquare Tower at the Weſt end, embattled, having at the top a wooden Turret. In it Five Bells.

Tho' here is but one Church, yet this Pariſh hath conſiſted, from Time immemorial, of two ſeveral Rectories, or Portions, diſtinct from one another, and preſentative by different Patrons, but now belonging both to the Tyrell-family: One named Spring-field Boſvile, or Boſwells, the other Springfield Richard's, from the two families above mentioned.—There are alſo two Parſonage-houſes; that for Springfield Richards at the eaſt end, and that for Springfield Boſvile at the weſt end of the Church: The latter was newly rebuilt with brick by the preſent Rector.

The two Rectories were conſolidated a few years ago by Thomas Biſhop of London, at the requeſt of Sir John Tyrell Bart. the patron, and the two preſent Incumbents.

3. BOREHAM.

THIS Pariſh is ſo denominated from the two Saxon words, Boꞃe, a market, and Ham, a village; from whence it may be concluded, that when it received its name, a market was held here, or that in the Saxons time it was a market Town.

It is pleaſantly ſituated on the great road to Colcheſter, the middle of it being about 32 miles from London, and 4 from Chelmsford.

At the time of the general Survey, it was holden by Euſtace the great Earl of Bologne, Suene of Eſſex, and William of Waren; as appears by Entries in Domeſday-book [X]. But it had belonged, in the Saxons time, to xiv Freemen; and to Turchill; and Anſchill.

John Earl of Oxford, that dyed 10 March 1513-14, held the 4th part of the maner of Springfeild, of William Pyrton Eſq;—So did John Earl of Oxford, that dyed 14 July 1526 (u). But which Maners theſe parcels belonged to, or were taken from, we have no rule to learn.

Abbey-Lands.

The Abbot of Waltham held a tenement in Springfeild, by the ſervice of the 11th part of a knight's-fee, under Philip Burnell that dyed the 22d of Edw. I.

Roger Ketterich, and Adam Cook, had licenſe, 16 Ric. II, to grant 20 s. rent in Springfeild, to the Abbot and Convent of Coggeshall (w).

Lands, called a Maner, in this pariſh, belonging to Thobie Priory, were granted, among others, to Cardinal Wolſey by K. Henry VIII. 17 reg. (x)

Charitable Gifts.

The Poor of Springfield-pariſh are intitled to a Rent-charge of Six pounds thirteen ſhillings and four pence per annum, iſſuing and ariſing out of 3 fields, called Great Perry-field, Little Perryfield, and Millfield in this pariſh. That rent-charge ſeems to have been ſettled by Robert Peaſely, yeoman of this pariſh, in obedience to a decree of Sir Thomas Bromley Lord Chancellor of England Janu. 25. 1586, upon the family of the Mildmays, then inhabitants of this place, now of Marks, and others, as Truſtees for the Poor. But, in 1597, Thomas Mildmay, the ſurviving Truſtee, refuſing to raiſe a new feoffment, Andrew Paſchall, and others the Pariſhioners, obliged him thereunto by virtue of a decree obtained from Sir Tho. Egerton Lord Keeper of the great ſeal; which ſeveral Decrees remain in the Pariſh-cheſt, and authentic Copies of them in the Churchwardens books. Since that time, the payment of this Rent-charge hath not been conteſted: but the Mill-field now contributes nothing thereunto; tho' by what means exempted, is unknown. Great Perry-field, and Little Perry-field, are at preſent the eſtate of John Strutt, Eſq.

It appears from an old Pariſh-book, That, many years ago, ſome Cottage, or Cottages, belonging to the Poor of this pariſh, ſtood in the front of the houſe then belonging to Ruke Church, and now to John Strutt, Eſq; Whereupon, it was agreed, in 1623, by the ſaid Ruke Church, that thoſe cottages ſhould be pulled down, and the ſite of them applied to the enlargement of the court-yard of that manſion-houſe for ever: Upon condition, that the ſaid Ruke Church, his heirs and aſſigns, ſhould pay yearly and every year to the Poor of this Pariſh the ſum of Forty ſhillings.

To this pariſh alſo belongs a Houſe, orchard, and eight acres of land, of the yearly value of ten or twelve pounds; for the repair and ornaments of the church.

And a Dwelling-houſe, now converted into Alms-houſes, and two acres of land behind the ſame.

And two other acres of land.

Likewiſe, a houſe and orchard holden of the Crown, lately rebuilt, and made into a workhouſe; ſtanding in the road leading to Colcheſter.

Over againſt the late New-hall Park, going up to the Duke's Alms-houſes, ſtands a Farm, called the Poors-Farm; belonging to the Alms-houſes at Witham, upon Cheppin-hill.

The CHURCH ſtands on the North ſide of the Green, and is of one pace with the Chancel, all tyled. There is a ſquare Tower at the Weſt end, embattled, having at the top a wooden Turret. In it Five Bells.

Tho' here is but one Church, yet this Pariſh hath conſiſted, from Time immemorial, of two ſeveral Rectories, or Portions, diſtinct from one another, and preſentative by different Patrons, but now belonging both to the Tyrell-family: One named Spring-field Boſvile, or Boſwells, the other Springfield Richard's, from the two families above mentioned.—There are alſo two Parſonage-houſes; that for Springfield Richards at the eaſt end, and that for Springfield Boſvile at the weſt end of the Church: The latter was newly rebuilt with brick by the preſent Rector.

The two Rectories were conſolidated a few years ago by Thomas Biſhop of London, at the requeſt of Sir John Tyrell Bart. the patron, and the two preſent Incumbents.

3. BOREHAM.

THIS Pariſh is ſo denominated from the two Saxon words, Boꞃe, a market, and Ham, a village; from whence it may be concluded, that when it received its name, a market was held here, or that in the Saxons time it was a market Town.

It is pleaſantly ſituated on the great road to Colcheſter, the middle of it being about 32 miles from London, and 4 from Chelmsford.

At the time of the general Survey, it was holden by Euſtace the great Earl of Bologne, Suene of Eſſex, and William of Waren; as appears by Entries in Domeſday-book [X]. But it had belonged, in the Saxons time, to xiv Freemen; and to Turchill; and Anſchill.

From hence aroſe theſe ſeveral maners: 1. Old-hall. 2. Calwattes. 3. Walkefare's. 4. New-hall. 5. Brent-hall. 6. The maner of Porters.

1. OLD-HALL.

The manſion-houſe is ſituate on the ſouth ſide of the ſtreet, almoſt over againſt the Church, in the lane leading from the Church to Little Badow-bridge. 'Tis ſometimes called the maner of Oldham. It was anciently holden by a a Family ſurnamed DE BOREHAM, deſcended unqueſtionably from Lambert, mentioned in Domeſday-book, under-tenant to the Earl of Bologne.

Ann. 1210, and 1211, John de Boreham held 1 Knight's-fee of the Honor of Bologne, in Boreham and Badew (y).——His daughter and heir was married to Baldwin Filloll, without the King's conſent; for which offence Baldwin was brought into trouble, the 4th of Hen. III. [Y] Robert de Boreham, who dyed 49 Hen. III. held the maners of Boreham and Little Badew of the King in capite by the ſervice of 1 knight's fee. He had two ſons,—William, who married Joanna .... and Philip. —The latter, after his brother William's death, diſpoſſeſs'd Joanna, during the wars between K. Henry III. and his Barons. But upon her application to the King ſhe was reinſtated [Z].—The next poſſeſſor, as far as we can find, was Hervey de Boreham, firſt Præcentor, afterwards Dean of St. Paul's; and one of the Judges of the King's bench in 1265. He dyed 5 Edw. I. (about 1276,) poſſeſs'd of 1 meſſuage, 140 acres of arable, 14 acr. of meadow, 10 of paſture, 4 of wood, 1 water-mill, and 23 s. of rent in Boreham.—He had three aunts, that were his next heirs, viz. Hawiſe, Maud, and Sabina. Hawiſe had a daughter called Julian; and ſhe two daughters, Julian, and Aveline, who put in their claim. Maud had one ſon named Roger, who had one ſon named John. Sabina had two daughters, Roeſe and Sibilla.—Which of them ſucceeded, or how long the maner of Old-hall continued in this family, I do not find; only that one John de Borham held the maner of New-hall in this pariſh about the 10th of Henry V.

This maner became afterwards part of the poſſeſſions of the Priory of Lees in this county; tho' when, and by whom, given, I cannot trace out. Some little time before their diſſolution, the Prior and Convent let this eſtate to farm unto Thomas Tendring, at the yearly rent of 16 l.— (a) At the diſſolution, it fell to the Crown: whereupon K. Hen. VIII. anno 1537. granted Old-hall, and a water-mill in Boreham, with eſtates elſewhere, to

Sir Richard Rich Kt. (b) Who, the next year, exchanged them with the King for the entire maner of Bendiſh-hall in Radwinter.— (c) This Lordſhip being thus veſted in the Crown, continued there, till Q. Elizabeth, 31 Decemb. 1574. granted it to Thomas Ratcliffe Earl of Suſſex (d).

It was lately purchaſed by John Olmius Eſq;

2. The maner, or capital meſſuage, called CALWATTES, or CULVERTS.

The manſion houſe ſtands in the fields, oppoſite to Old-Hall. This eſtate is part of the maner of Boreham, and therefore I join them together. I preſume it took its name from Richard de Coleworth Eſq; that held it in the latter part of the reign of K. Henry III. and during the reign of Edw. I. [A].

Next we find it in the Burnel-family, of which an account has been given under Weſt-Ham, and Stanſted-Montfichet.—Robert Burnel, biſhop of Bath and Wells, Lord Chancellor of England, dyed 21 Edw. I. holding, of the Honor of Bologne, in Borham and Little Waltham, 2 meſſuages, 2 carucates, and 1 water-mill, by the ſervice of 2 parts of a knight's-fee (e).—Philip, ſon of Hugh his brother, who was his nephew and heir, deceaſed the year following, poſſeſs'd of a great eſtate in this county. Particularly in this pariſh, he held of the heirs of Richard de Munfitchet, 195 acr. of arable, 28 acres of paſture, 18 acr. of meadow, 8 acr. of wood, 12 s. 5 d. rent. [This is Culverts.]—And of the heirs of William Fitz-warine of Montchenſy, 131 acr. of arable, 8 acr. of meadow, 17 acr. of paſture, 6 acr. of wood, 22 s. 11 d.—And of Stacie de Brunne, 80 acr. of arable.—And in this pariſh and Springfield, of John Filoll, 24 acr. of arable, and 30 acr. of wood.—And laſtly, in Boreham and Little Waltham, of the King in capite, of the Honor of Bologne, 1 meſſuage, 553 acres of arable, 23 acres of meadow, 40 acr. of paſture, 7 of wood, 71 s. 11 d. rent (f).——Edward Lord Burnel, his ſon and heir, dyed 9 Edw. II. ſeiz'd of the premiſſes (g): —leaving Maud his ſiſter, heireſs of his eſtates; which was twice married, 1. to John Lovel of Tichmerſh, who dyed 8 Edw. II. leaving by her

John Lovel, his ſon and heir. 2. to John de Handlo, by whom ſhe had Richard, and Nicolas. This her ſecond huſband dyed 20 Edw. III. His eldeſt ſon Richard was deceaſed before him, (h) leaving iſſue, Edmund, Margaret, and Elizabeth.——Edmund therefore became heir to his grandfather: But this Edmund dying, 1 June 29 Edw. III. a minor, and without iſſue, his uncle——Nicolas de Handlo, ſucceeded; and took the ſurname of Burnel, from his mother, who was ſo great an heireſs. He dyed 6 Ric. II. holding the maner of Borham of the Honor of Bologne, and 200 acr. of arable in Borham, called Coleworth; and 70 acr. of arable called Toppingho in Hatfield-Peverell, and 40 s. rent of aſſize called Colworth-rent and Toppinghorent (i).—Hugh his ſon and heir was then aged 36: He dyed in 1420, 8 Hen. V. leaving only daughters [B]. So that, on failure of the maleline, theſe Lordſhips returned back to the Lovels, deſcended from the aboveſaid Maud Burnel, by her firſt huſband John Lovel; whoſe poſterity ſeemed to be wrong'd of this eſtate all the while (k).——Sir William Lovel Kt. Lord Lovel of this family, dyed 33 Henr. VI. ſeized of the maners of Borham and Walkfare's, and of that of Powers in Little Waltham, holden of Tho. Baſkerville (l).—Sir John Lovel Kt. Lord Lovel, was his ſon and heir: He dyed 9 Edw. IV. 1469, poſſeſs'd of theſe maners; leaving his ſon and heir——Francis Lord Lovel, who, 4 Janu. 1482, was advanced to the dignity of Viſcount Lovel; and, the next year, conſtituted by K. Richard III. Lord Chamberlain of his houſhold and chief Butler of England. Being attach'd to that uſurper [C], he attended him at the battle of Boſworth; and, after his defeat and death, took Sanctuary in St. John's Abbey at Colcheſter. But not thinking himſelf ſafe there, he fled to Margaret Ducheſs of Burgundy. And coming over firſt to Ireland, and then to England, in behalf of Lambert Simnel, was ſlain at the battle of Stoke in Nottinghamſhire, 20 June 1487 (m). Before that, namely in 1485, he had been attainted by act of parliament: and the maner of Boreham, in particular, had been granted by K. Henry VII, to

John de Vere Earl of Oxford, (who had been very inſtrumental in ſetting the crown on his head, and had ſuffered much for the Houſe of Lancaſter,) and to his heirs male (n). This noble Earl dyed 10 March 1512, poſſeſs'd of this maner, without legitimate iſſue (o).—But, on the 6th of September preceding his death, K. Henry VIII. had granted the reverſion of this maner, with the advowſon of the Rectory of Boreham, to which hath been uſually granted, of late, with the two foregoing maners: Tho' we cannot find, upon the beſt enquiry, where the ſite of it was. By the Monaſticon it appears, that it was part of the original Endowment of Waltham-Abbey, in this county; and ſome of the bounds of it are ſaid to be Beadewan water [undoubtedly Badow-river] and Wive-broce [or brook.] According to which deſcription it muſt have lain on the South ſide of the London-road [D].

Sir Tho. Bullen, and his heirs (p). And it paſſed with New-Hall, of which we ſhall treat preſently.

§. In the mean time, we muſt take ſome notice of the maner of

At the time of the general Survey, it belonged to Odo, biſhop of Bayeux, half-brother to William the Conqueror, as appears by the entry below [E].

There was a family ſurnamed from hence de Walafar, or Walkfare.——Robert de Walkfare granted to the Church of the Holy Croſs at Waltham, 5 acres of land with the appertenances in Boreham.

This maner was holden by the Burnel-family, and their deſcendents, as a diſtinct maner from thoſe of Boreham and Culverts under the Montchenſies, of their Barony of Swainſcamp in Kent.—Philip Burnel held, of the inheritance of William ſon of Warin de Montchenſy, 131 acr. of arable, 8 acr. of meadow, 22 s. 11 d. by the ſervice of half a knights-fee, and the yearly rent of 6 s.—And by his poſterity it continued to be holden, firſt under Edmund Earl of Kent, and afterwards under the Earls of Pembroke, as of their maner, or Barony, of Swainſcamp (q); till, by the attainder of Francis Lord Lovel, it fell to the Crown: Whereupon, it was granted, as the laſt, by Henry VII. to John de Vere Earl of Oxford, and the reverſion of it to Sir Thomas Bullen Kt. by K. Henry VIII. [See under Little Waltham.]

It appears to have been moſtly taken into Newhall-park.

4. The maner of NEW-HALL.

This maner ſwallows up the reſt, and is ſo called in contradiſtinction to the maner of Old-Hall. 'Tis ſeated on the right hand of the road leading from Boreham to Chelmsford, in a Park, about a mile from the road, and has one of the fineſt avenues of Lime-trees in the kingdom, about a mile long.

This noble Lordſhip was anciently part of the poſſeſſions of Waltham-Abbey; but by whom given we cannot learn.

(*) 'Tis ſo in the Record, but viſibly a miſtake for, i manerio. Conſidering that the value is ſo ſmall.

About the 24th of Edw. III. the Abbot and convent granted it unto Sir John de Shardelowe Kt. and Joanna his wife, and Thomas his brother; with their maners of Campes and Orſeye in the county of Cambridge; in exchange for the maners of Copped-hall and Shingled-hall in Epping (r).

But in the 47th of the ſame King, Sir Thomas de Shardelowe Kt. granted this maner of New-Hall, with its appertenances in Borham, Springefeld, Little Badewe, Little Waltham, Bromfeld, and Hatfeld Peverel, unto Sir Henry de Coggeſhale Kt. and Thomas brother of the ſaid Henry; in free and perpetual exchange for the maner of Bradeker, in Shropham and Holkham in Norfolk (s). This Sir Henry de Coggeſhale was of an antient family, ſo named from the town of Coggeſhall, where they had conſiderable eſtates. He dyed about the 49th of Edward III. leaving—Sir William, his ſon and heir: in whom the direct male line of the family failed, and a vaſt eſtate was by his 4 daughters and coheirs tranſplanted into other houſes.—However, this Eſtate was ſettled on —Thomas his brother, who had the Lordſhip of Sandon, where I ſuppoſe he lived. He held the maner of New-hall 15 Ric. II. and dyed 10 Hen. V. leaving (t)—Richard his ſon and heir 13 years old.

But at this time New-Hall was holden by John de Boreham, and others, tho' upon what what account is not ſpecified.—And, in the 6th of Henry VI, Robert Darcy of Maldon, and others, granted to Sir Walter Hungerford, &c. two parts of the maner called New-Hall in Boreham (u).

Richard de Coggeſhale above-mention'd dyed 11 Henr. VI. leaving—Elizabeth his ſiſter and heir; this maner being ſtill in the hands of John de Boreham and others (w).

Next we find it in Richard Alred, who probably married the ſaid Elizabeth. He dyed 26 Hen. VI. ſeized of the maner of New-hall, holden of Margaret Queen of England, of her maner of Great Badowe, parcel of the Dutchy of Lancaſter; And 40 acr. of arable in Boreham lying near Cobbiſwode, holden of John Earl of Oxford; And 1 meſſuage, 100 acr. of arable, 20 acr. of meadow, 12 acr. of paſture, and 6 of wood, lying in Springfield, Little Waltham, Great Lyes, Terling, Boreham, and Bromfeld, called Nobatts, which was formerly the eſtate of Robert Nobatt, and others; of Sir John Bourgchier and Thomas Tyrel Kts. leaving—William his ſon and heir 15 years old. To whom, by his will dated 8 March 1446, he bequeathed particularly the maner of New-hall in Boreham with its appertenances (x).

Afterwards this eſtate fell to the Crown; whether by forfeiture during the wars between the Houſes of York and Lancaſter, or otherwiſe, we cannot determine.

We find it next in the noble family of Boteler Earl of Ormond. This family had zealouſly adhered to the houſe of Lancaſter. James Boteler, created Earl of Wiltſhire 27 Hen. VI. and becoming Earl of Ormond upon his father's death in 1451, was with K. Henry at the battle of St. Albans; and on his behalf alſo, at the battles of Wakefield, Mortimer's-croſs, and Towton: at which laſt being taken priſoner, he was beheaded in 1460, and attainted in 1461, 1 Edw. IV. John his next brother was attainted alſo 14 Edw. IV (y).

But Thomas, the third brother, living to ſee K. Henry VII. upon the throne, who favoured moſtly the Lancaſtrian intereſt; that Prince gave this Thomas the maner of New-hall, as a ſort of recompence for the ſervices and ſufferings of himſelf and his relations. And, in the 7th of his reign, granted him licenſe to build there walls and towers (z). He left only two daughters, whereof—Margaret, the eldeſt, was married to

Sir William Bullen of Blickling in Norfolk, Kt. [F] who had by her—Sir Thomas Bullen his ſon and heir; advanced, June 18. 1525, to the title of Viſcount Rochford; ſoon after made Knight of the Garter; and, 8 Decemb. 1529, created Earl of Wiltſhire and Ormond; as alſo, the 24th of January following, conſtituted Lord Privy-Seal. All which Honors were conferred upon him, out of the great regard K. Henry VIII. had for his daughter the Lady Anne Bullen, which he ſoon after married. Whether Sir Thomas immediately ſucceeded his mother in the eſtate of Newhall, cannot eaſily be determined; becauſe we find, that

K. Henry VIII. purchaſed this maner, about the 9th of his reign, an. 1517, of Richard biſhop of London, by virtue of the will of Thomas Earl of Ormond (a). However, we are aſſur'd, on the other hand, that K. Henry VIII. procur'd it of Thomas Bollen Earl of Wiltſhire by exchange. And ſo pleaſed was he with the ſituation, that he named it Beaulieu [i. e. a fair place] tho' this name never prevail'd among the common people (b). He alſo erected it into an Honor; greatly adorned and improved it; and made it a place fit for his royal [G] reſidence. Here he kept the feaſt of St. George in the year 1524 (c). And here alſo dwelt, ſome

[G] It is moſt probable, that the old Houſe was either new built, or repaired, by Thomas Earl of Ormond. But it was greatly adorned and improved by K. Henry VIII. who built in particular the noble Gate-houſe leading into the chief Court: as appears by his Arms over the gate, curiouſly carved in ſtone, and under them this inſcription.

Henricus rex Octavus, rex inclit' armis,
Magnanimus ſtruxit hoc opus egregium.

Some part of the Houſe was added by Qu. Elizabeth herſelf, or elſe by the Suſſex family. For, over the Porch entring into the houſe, are her Majeſty's Arms, with theſe Italian Inſcriptions in honor of her.

ne, his daughter the Lady Mary, afterwards ueen of England (d).—It continued in the own till Q. Elizabeth, 28 May 1573, granted to Thomas Ratcliffe, Earl of Suſſex, All that ca- tal manſion houſe, commonly called the Ho- r and Maner of Biewliew, alias New-Hall, or iewliew-Houſe, and all the buildings and de- eſne lands belonging thereto, with the Old ark (e). And 31 December, in the ſame year, e further granted unto the ſaid Earl, all the aner of Boreham, the maner of Walkfare, the aner of Old-hall, and the Honor of Beauliew lias New-Hall (f). A very large Grant this as, from a Princeſs, otherwiſe very ſparing of er Favors! But Sir Thomas had ſo well de- rved of her, and of his country, for his great rvices in Scotland; and in Ireland, of which e was ſeveral times Lord Deputy, and Lieu- enant; that he very juſtly merited ſuch ample ewards (g). Being thus poſſeſs'd of this con- iderable eſtate, he did, by a feofment bearing ate 20 Dec. 1579, ſettle the maner of Beau- ieu, alias New-hall, with divers other Lord- hips and lands in Eſſex and elſewhere, upon he iſſue male of his own body, unto the tenth on; the remainder to his brother Sir Henry Ratcliffe Kt. for life; and, after his deceaſe, upon Robert Ratcliffe ſon and heir apparent to him the ſaid Henry, and the heirs male of his body; and for lack of ſuch iſſue, upon Thomas Ratcliffe Eſq; ſon and heir to Sir Humphrey Ratcliffe of Elneſtow in Bedfordſhire Kt. de- ceaſed, and the heirs male of his body; the remainder to Edward Ratcliffe ſecond ſon of the ſaid Sir Humphrey, and the heirs male of his body; and for default of ſuch iſſue to the La- dy Frances his ſiſter, then wife of Sir Thomas Mildmay Kt. and the heirs of his body by her (h). This noble Lord dyed 9 June 1583. and was buried in the chapel, adjoyning to the South ſide of the chancel of this church; which chapel was begun by him, but left unfiniſhed. Dying without iſſue, he was ſucceeded in this and other his eſtates, by his brother—Henry, Earl of Suſſex, who dying 10 April 1594, was buried in the chapel abovemention'd: leaving his only ſon and heir—Robert, Earl of Suſſex, who dyed 22 Sept. 1629, without iſſue, and was alſo buried at Boreham.

Before his deceaſe he had ſold this eſtate to George Villiers, the great Duke of Buckingham, for 30,000 l. He being murdered by Felton 23 Aug. 1628. this eſtate deſcended to his ſon —George Villiers Duke of Buckingham, who was then very young. In 1648, he engaged with the Earl of Holland, and others, to riſe on the behalf of K. Charles I. They being defeated and diſpers'd at Kingſton upon Thames, the Parliament voted, that our Duke ſhould be proceeded againſt as a traytor, and that his eſtate ſhould be ſequeſtred (i). Aftewards, Commiſſioners being appointed by Ordinance of Parliament to ſell Traytors eſtates (k), this was purchaſed, 2 April 1651, by the General Oliver Cromwell; the conſideration money being 5 s. and the computed yearly value 1309 l. 12 s. 3 d. ¾. (l) But, in 1653, he exchanged it for Hampton-court, paying the difference (m). And then this eſtate was ſold to three opulent citizens of London for 18,000 l. (n) Undoubtedly the Duke of Buckingham recovered it at the Reſtoration; and then it was purchaſed by, or for,

George Monk, the happy Inſtrument in the Reſtoration of the royal family, and of monarchy: for which important ſervices 7000 l. a year was ſettled upon him and his heirs for ever, out of the royal revenues; and he was created Duke of Albemarle (o). At Newhall he lived in very great ſplendor, to the diminution of his eſtates. For the reſt of his actions we muſt beg leave to refer to the ſeveral Lives written of him (p), and to the Peerages. He dyed 4 Janu. 1669-70. and was ſucceeded in his honors and eſtates by his only ſon—Chriſtopher Duke of Albemarle; who, four days only before his father's deceaſe, had married the Lady Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter to Henry Earl of Ogle, ſon and heir apparent to William Cavendiſh Duke of Newcaſtle. In 1687, he went over Governor of Jamaica, attended by the learned Dr. (afterwards Sir) Hans Sloane, who by that means had an opportunity of compoſing his Hiſtory of that Iſland. His Grace dyed in Jamaica, in 1688. without iſſue.—The Dutcheſs being jointured in this eſtate, was married again, in 1691, to Ralph Duke of Montague: from which time the noble ſeat of New-Hall was neglected, and grew ruinous. Her Grace dyed, near Clerkenwell-church, 28 Auguſt 1734, in the 96th year of her age.

But, before her deceaſe, Benjamin Hoare Eſq; youngeſt ſon of Sir Richard Hoare a rich Banker in Fleet-ſtreet, and Lord Mayor of London in 1713, had bought of her heirs the Reverſion of New-Hall, and other Eſtates appendent thereto. He hath built a very elegant Seat on the other, the South ſide of the London-road; which he adorned with fine marbles, and other valuable materials from New-Hall. He dyed 12 Janu. 1749-50, leaving iſſue—Richard, &c.

In 1737, the foreſaid Benj. Hoare Eſq; ſold New-Hall, with the Gardens, Park behind it, and the fine Auenue, but none of the land on each ſide of the ſame, to John Olmius Eſq; who hath pulled down part of that over-grown Edifice, reſerving enough for a handſom and convenient ſeat for his own uſe.

5. The maner of BRENT-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands on the left ſide of the road leading from the Cock-inn in Boreham to Little Waltham.

This was part of the poſſeſſions of the Priory of Lees in this County, but who the donor was, is not recorded. The Prior and Convent lett it 1 Janu. 1534, to Thomas Tendring, for 40 years, at the rate of 5 l. 6 s. 8 d. per ann. (*) Upon the fall of the Monaſteries, this Eſtate came to the Crown, but did not long ſtay there: For K. Henry VIII, 29 regni, did, with the maner of Old-Hall, grant the maner of Brent-Hall, and a water-mill in this pariſh, to Sir Richard Rich, as has been ſhewn under Old-Hall.—Sir Richard, by licence dated 15 May 1538, ſold this maner and a tenement called Uphouſe, in Boreham, Little Waltham (q), and Terling, to

John Tendring. This family was originally of Boxford in Suffolk, and ſettled here in K. Henry the Eighth's reign (r). John now mention'd, dyed 20 Decemb. 1552 (s), leaving, by Joane his wife daughter of William Crachrood of Toppesfield in this county, Thomas his eldeſt ſon and heir then aged 21, John, William, Valentine, Margaret, Alice, Benetta, and Mary.—Thomas ſucceeding his father, married Cecily daughter and heir of Roger Reynolds of Weſt Thurrock, and had iſſue, Thomas, Anne wife of Thomas Mannock of Giffards-hall in Suffolk Eſq; and Priſcilla wife of Robert Cotton of Barham. He dyed 24 April 1601, and, beſides the premiſſes, held a meſſuage called Boreham's, or the Clock-houſe.—Thomas, born in 1570, ſucceeded his father. He married Joane daughter of ... Browne of Toppesfield, and had two ſons, Thomas and John, and ſeven daughters, Suſan wife of .... Leving, Joane, Anne, Mary, Frances, Priſcilla, and Cecily married to her kinſman Robert Tendring of this pariſh (t). Beſides the premiſſes, the ſaid Thomas held five parcels of arable and paſture, called Highfield, alias Highmer-field-grove, containing by eſtimation 40 acres (u). We do not find the time of his death: But he had for ſucceſſor his eldeſt ſon—Thomas, who married Mary daughter of John Argall of Great Badow Eſq; and had iſſue John, Sarah, and Mary.—— John, born in 1630, lived at Brent-Hall (w), in the reign of K. Charles II. and was a Juſtice of Peace. He married .... and left—William his ſon and heir; who having married Mary daughter of Thomas Smyth of Smyth's Hall in Blackmore, had iſſue

Mary, who became heireſs to her brother Thomas deceaſed, that left her a great eſtate.

But ſhe dying without iſſue, this eſtate was ſold by her heirs to the late Col. Leighton.

It is now in Mr. Curtis, of London.

9. The maner of PORTER's.

The manſion-houſe ſtands beyond the Cock-inn, on the left ſide of the road leading to Little Waltham.... It took its name from one Robert Porter that held it 9 Rich. II. For, then, Richard Hayward releaſes to Robert Porter all his right in a moiety of one meſſuage, 42 acr. of arable, 3 and a half of paſture, with a moiety of one acre of wood, and 4 s. 6 d. rent in the village of Boreham (x).

I cannot find through whoſe hands it has paſs'd, after that; till it came to the Bowles family.

Of Phineas Bowles it was purchas'd by John Hollis cutler in the Minories London. This induſtrious man was third ſon of Thomas Hollis, of Rotherham in Yorkſhire, cutler; who married Mary daughter of ... Whiting of Eaſt Ham in this County, by whom he had Thomas, Nathanael, and John. Thomas followed ſome time his father's buſineſs; was one of the Governors of St. Thomas's Hoſpital; a member of the Society for propagating the Goſpel in America; and a great benefactor to Harvard College in New England (y). He was twice married, but had no children.—Nathanael was married, and had ſeveral children, which all dyed but one ſon named Thomas.—John, the purchaſer of this eſtate, followed his father's buſineſs, which his elder brother had left off; and was alſo one of the Governors of St. Thomas's Hoſpital. He married Hannah daughter of John Sampford of Redrith, and had iſſue, Iſaac, Samuel, Timothy; Mary wife of Edw. Winnock of London, haberdaſher; Hannah wife of Samuel Edwards of London, ware-houſe-keeper; Anne wife of Richard Jolly of London, cutler; and Elizabeth married to William then eldeſt ſon and heir of Robert Aſhurſt of Caſtle-Hedingham Eſq;

June 14. 1735. Thomas Hollis, wholeſale cutler in the Minories, dyed.

It is now in Mr. Hollis.

Charitable Gifts.

Richard Twedy of Boreham Eſq; by his will dated 22 Janu. 1574, gave to the pariſhes of Boreham and Stock, Three pounds ſix ſhillings and three pence a piece, for the reparation of the Churches; and to 20 poor men, ten of Boreham, and ten of Stock, to each a gown, at his funeral. He alſo ordered, in his will, 4 Almshouſes to be built near Stock church, for poor men to live in, 2 out of Boreham, and 2 out of Stock. We ſhall give a further account of them under the pariſh of Stock (z).

April 14. 1652, William Ward of Boreham Gent. gave by will, an Annuity or Rent-charge for ever out of a Farm in Boreham called Culvers amounting to Six pounds per annum, to be paid to the Miniſter, Churchwardens, Overſeers, or the major part of them for the time being; to be laid out for the cloathing four poor widows, viz. to get for them every two years a gown of ruſſet-cloth; and two to have, each of them, a four penny loaf of bread every Sunday. Theſe widows to be choſen by the Miniſter, and Churchwardens, Overſeers, or the major part of them.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Andrew, hath a middle pace and a north and ſouth iſle. A ſquare Tower imbatell'd, with 6 bells, ſtands in the middle between the Church and the Chancel. The Chancel is of one pace, but hath a ſouth iſle built by Sir Thomas Ratcliffe abovemention'd, and called Suſſex Chapel. The whole is tyled, except the north iſle of the Church.

This Church was of old appropriated to the Chancellorſhip of St. Paul's; and did ſpecially belong to the Bake-houſe of that cathedral (a). On the 26th of June 1292, 20th Edw. I. a Vicarage was ordained here, which is endowed with all the Tithes of Old-Hall, and ſeveral other parcels of great tithes: And hath been

4. BADOW, or BADDOW.

THERE are two Pariſhes of this name, contiguous, and diſtinguiſh'd one from the other by the addition of Magna, and Parva; Great and Little. The name is undoubtedly formed from the Engliſh word Bad, and the Saxon Ea, water, or river; of the ſame meaning in effect as Ilford, becauſe the paſſage through the water there was bad or dangerous, before a Bridge was built.

In Domeſday-b. the name is written Badunen and Baduuen; and in other ancient Records Badewan, and Badwan, and Badoen.

GREAT BADOW.

In the Saxons time, this Pariſh was part of the poſſeſſions of Algar, the great Earl of Mercia. He dying in the year 1059, was ſucceeded therein by his eldeſt ſon Earl Eadwine. At the time of the Norman invaſion, he refuſed to join K. Harald, becauſe he had not received his ſhare of the ſpoil gotten at the fight of Stanford-brigg; but, after that King's fall, he ſollicited the citizens of London, to make him, or his brother Morkar, King. They not complying, He ſubmitted to the Conqueror, who promiſed to give him his daughter in marriage. But the King not performing his promiſe, Eadwine flew out into a rebellion, and was ſlain while he was valiantly defending himſelf, in 1071 (c).

K. William thereupon ſeizing his eſtates, gave This Lordſhip, among others, to the Monaſtery of the Holy Trinity in Caen; founded by his Queen: And there it remained at the time of the general Survey [H].

Not long after, it was in the Crown again. It is very probable, that K. Henry I. gave it to his natural child Robert Earl of Glouceſter. For the ſaid Robert's ſon, William Earl of Glouceſter, granted to William de Muleſham and his heirs, all thoſe Lands, which the ſame William de Muleſham held of him at Badowen, when he became firſt poſſeſs'd of that maner (d). And the foreſaid Robert's youngeſt daughter, Maud, wife of Robert de Gernon Earl of Cheſter, founding the Priory of Repingdon in Derbyſhire, anno 1172; endowed it, among other things, with the Advowſon of this church, called there Badewetune (e).

We find it next in the family of the Earls of Cheſter and Huntingdon; for John ſurnamed Le Scot Earl of Huntingdon, having married Helen, daughter of Llewellyn Prince of Wales; after his deceaſe, ſhe became the wife of

Robert de Quincy, who, in her right, had livery, 22 Hen. III, of the maner of Badewe, with other eſtates which were part of the lands of the ſaid John Scot (f). By this maner of Badewe is to be underſtood what is now called

BADOW-HALL.

Helen, had by this Robert three daughters, whereof—Joan was married to Humfrey de Bohun ſon of Humfrey Earl of Hereford and Eſſex: But whether ſhe was his firſt or ſecond wife we cannot exactly learn (g). Moſt probably ſhe brought this Eſtate into that noble family; however it doth not ſeem to have remained long there. For, in the 4th of Edward III, Edmund of Woodſtock, Earl of Kent, was found to have holden the maner of Badewe, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee; which ſervice, Robert de Brus, late Lord of the maner of Badewe, releaſed and quit-claim'd to Hugh le Deſpenſer the elder (h).

K. Edward III. juſt now mention'd, granted, in 1332, this maner with that of Writell, to Humfrey de Bohun, brother to John Earl of Hereford and Eſſex (i).—His nephew, Humfrey de Bohun, Earl alſo of Hereford, &c. dyed poſſeſs'd of the ſame, in 1371 (k). And his younger daughter, and coheir,—Mary, becoming the firſt wife of Henry Earl of Derby, afterwards

K. Henry IV, That brought again this maner into the Crown. For K. Henry IV. incorporated it into his Duchy of Lancaſter, and left it to the Kings of England his ſucceſſors, as part of their royal demeſnes.—The 10th of June 1509, K. Henry VIII. ſettled it upon his Queen, Catharine of Arragon, as part of her dower, and it was confirmed to her by parliament.

About the reign of K. Edward VI, it came, either by grant, or purchaſe, to the Paſchal-family; who alſo bought the impropriate Tithes, and the Advowſon of the Vicarage, to which—John Paſcall Gent. preſented, in 1546, the excellent poet Alexander Barclay (l). This John Paſchal married Margery daughter of John Wiſeman of Canfield, and had iſſue—John; and William. John married Mary daughter of Edmund Noke of King's Hatfield in Hertfordſhire, by which he had, John his eldeſt ſon and heir; William of whom an account may be ſeen under Preſton in South-Hanningfield; Thomas; another John; William; Robert; and Andrew: and two daughters, Agnes or Elizabeth, wife of William Mildmay of Springfield-Barnes Eſq; and Margaret wife of John Sammes. He dyed 27 April 1544, poſſeſs'd of a great eſtate in this county; viz. a meſſuage, and 150 acr. of land called Mopſys in Neuendon, Bottelſden or Baſſildon, and Fange; Sabryts-hall, in this pariſh; a meſſuage, and 50 acr. of land, called Mayes; another meſſ' and 30 acr. called Lepers, both in Sandon; a meſſ' and 58 acr. of land called Sherfields, in Greys-Thurrock; 4 crofts of lands in Bromefield; one meſſ' and 26 acr. of land; and alſo one meſſ' and 50 acr. of land called Forredes, in Neuendon; one marſh in South-Hanningflete; marſhes call'd Wintercote and Cawtecote in the iſle of Canvey; one meſſ' and 50 acr. of land in great and little Burgſted; one meſſ' and 40 acr. of land called Pykerells in Fyfeld, Willingale, and Beauchamp Roding; one meſſ' and 38 acr. of land called Goldſton alias Goldmans in Fange; one meſſ' and 50 acr. of land call'd Scots in Hockley; and lands and tenements containing 40 acr. called Squires land in Southminſter (m). Robert, the youngeſt ſon but one, married Elizabeth daughter of ... Sturgeon of Great Badow, and had Alexander, John, and Robert.—John, the eldeſt ſon and heir, aged upwards of 25 years at the time of his father's deceaſe, held the maner of Great Badow, a Park, and the maner of Sir Hughs, of the Queen, as of her Duchy of Lancaſter. He dyed 21 January, 1580-1, leaving, by Mary his wife daughter of George Keble of Newbottle in the county of Northampton, John then aged 25, Bennet, Robert; and Thomazine (n).—John, the eldeſt ſon, had for his firſt wife Jane daughter of Edward Lewkenor Eſq; relict of William Lark, by whom no iſſue is recorded. His 2d wife was Anne, daughter of Thomas Mildmay Eſq; widow of Roger Appleton Eſq; By her he had—John, aged 7 years at the death of his father, which happened 29 Auguſt 1624 (o). He married Anne, daughter of Sir Tho. Mildmay of Moulſham Kt. relict of Sir Roger Appleton Bart. and had by her (when ſhe was 52, and he 60 years old) an only ſon, named—John: He married, 1. ... daughter of ... Pucks of Kent, which brought him no children. 2. Martha, daughter of Sir Henry Gibbs of Warwickſhire Kt. by whom he had, John that dyed young, Henry, Martha, another John; Anne, Mary; Dorothy wife of William Crofts of Lincolns-inn Eſq; The three other daughters dyed ſingle.—Henry Paſchal Eſq; of Great Badow-hall, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, married Catharine, daughter of Sir Henry Appleton of the ſame place Bart. and had two daughters, his coheireſſes. .. 1. Catharine married to .... Ralph Verney, Baron Belturbet, and Viſcount Fermanagh of the kingdom of Ireland, ſeated at Middle-Claydon in Buckinghamſhire; who hath had by her, Elizabeth, John, Catharine, and Ralph.—2. Mary, the other daughter, was married to John Stone of Brightwell in Oxfordſhire Eſq;—Henry Paſchal Eſq; was buried in this church, 6 April 1727.—His brother John married, 1. .... by which he had no iſſue. 2. .... daughter of Blackborough of London, by whom he had, John, and Mary married to a Gentleman in Ireland.

About 1736. Ralph Lord Viſcount Fermannagh ſold the maner of Great Badow to Jacob Houblon, of Great Hallingbury in this county.

Creſt, a grave perſon, coupé under the waſt; garment, purp. faced, erm. crined, gray.

The maner of Sir HUGH's, and SHENGES.

This maner received the name of Sir Hugh's, from its owner Sir Hugh de Badewe, in K. Edward the Third's reign: and was the ſeat and reſidence of the antient and very conſiderable family of that ſurname.

It ſeems to have been known by three different appellations; viz. 1. Marſhall's, from Robert Marſhall the firſt owner. 2. Sir Hugh's, from Sir Hugh de Badew. 3. And Badew, from that family.

There are now two farms called Sir Hugh's; namely, Great, and Little. They both ſtand about a mile from the town towards Weſt Hanningfield. Great Sir Hugh's is a large brick houſe, with a handſom piazza in the front [I].

Part of this Eſtate was antiently holden in Petit Serjeancy; by the remarkable Service, of keeping the King's palfrey, or ſaddle-horſe, 40 days, at the King's charge, whenever he came into theſe parts; doing ſuit at the Hundred-Court at Chelmsford every three weeks; and paying ſix pence to the Sheriff's aid.

The moſt ancient owner of this Maner upon record, was Robert Marſcall, who, in the year 1211, held one Hide in Badew by the Serjeancy of keeping the King's palfrey (p).—His ſon, or grandſon, Peter Mareſcall dyed the 7th of Edw. I. ſeized of one meſſuage, 140 acr. of arable, 9 acr. of meadow, 13 acr. of paſture, 15*s*. 7*d*. in Great Badow; by the Serjeancy aforeſaid: And 2 acr. of Thomas Fitz-warine, by the ſervice of 10*d*. He left four Daughters, his coheirs, amongſt whom this Eſtate was divided. 1. Beatrix was married to Richard de Springeſend, by whom ſhe had John her ſon and heir. She dyed before her father. 2. Margery was married to Geffrey le Panimer. She dyed the 8th of Edw. I, poſſeſs'd of one meſſu'. 36 acr. of arable, 2 acr. and 1 rood of meadow, 3 acr. and 1 rood of paſture, 3 s. 10 d. rent; charg'd with the whole Serjeancy above-mention'd. Peter was her ſon and heir. 3. Iſabell was married to Richard de Badew. 4. Gentiline to John de Monteney (q).——Iſabell dyed 31 Edw. I. holding in this pariſh 30 acr. of arable, 2 acr. of meadow, 2 acr. of paſture, and 2 s. rent of aſſize, of the King in capite, by ſuch a ſerjeancy, that whoever holds the ſaid land, is, with his three partners, to keep the King's palfrey forty days, &c. (r)—Her children were, William; Edmund; and Richard, the original founder of Univerſity-hall, now Clare-hall, in Cambridge.——William had licenſe, 28 Edw. I, to purchaſe of his couſins John de Springefeld, and John de Monteney, their reſpective ſhares of this Eſtate, 40 acres each (s). But Peter Sabrith, as he is ſtyled in the Inquiſition, ſon of Margery, dyed 13th Edw. II, poſſeſs'd of the fourth part of the ſame (t). The ſaid William had alſo purchaſed of John de Springfeild about 260 acres more in this pariſh (u); and had lands in Little Badew, Springfeild, and Sandon. He dyed the 18th of Edw. II. (w)—Edmund, his brother, ſucceeded him, in the moiety of one meſſuage and one garden, and in 62 acr. of arable, 4 of meadow, 6 of paſture, and 5 s. 6 d. rent in Great Badew; holden by the ſerjeancy aforeſaid; and dyed poſſeſs'd of the ſame in 1331. 5 Edw. III. (x)—Hugh, his only ſon and heir, afterwards Knighted, and from whom this Eſtate took the name of Sir Hugh's, had two wives, 1. Anne, daughter of Sir John Berners of Weſt-Horſeley in Surrey. 2. Margaret .... which dyed in 1419, and held a certain maner called Badewe, late her huſband Sir Hugh's, of the heirs of the Earl of Hereford, as of his maner of Great Badewe; and 1 toft, and 40 acr. of land called Maſcales, by the Serjeancy aforeſaid (y). The time of Sir Hugh's death is not recorded; but he left only one daughter named Catharine, which was married to Thomas, ſon and heir of Thomas de Naylinghurſt of Braintree, where his anceſtors had lived many years, and given name to a part of that pariſh. Upon his coming, by this marriage, into the Badew's Eſtate, he remov'd to this ſeat, and made it the place of his reſidence.—Hugh, his ſon, was one of the Gentry of this county, returned by the Commiſſioners in the 12th of K. Henry VI. (z) Beſides the Eſtates of Sir Hugh de Badew, in Great Badow, Sandon, Weſt-Hanningfeild, Springfeild, Chelmſford, and the hamlet of Moulſham, holden of Elizabeth Queen of K. Henry the Seventh; he had the maner of Naylinghurſt in Great Raine, or Braintree; and a tenement called Favells als. Cobbis, holden of the maner of Totham. He dyed 24 June 1493 (a), leaving—Clement, his ſon, aged 30: Who did not outlive him quite ſeven years; for he departed this life, 20 December 1499 (b).—James was his ſon and heir, then eleven years old. He had iſſue, Ralph, Edward, and Richard.—Ralph, the eldeſt, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Browne of White-Roding Eſq; (c). He had licenſe, 15 April 1553, to alienate one toft, and 4 acres of arable land, with the appertenances, called Maſcalls, in Gr. Badow, to Henry Browne, and others (d).

About the year 1558, Robert Kinge Gent. held the maner of SHENGE's, alias Sir Hugh's (e).

In 1664, the maner of Maſcalls, in Badow magna, was in William Luckyn, who married Margaret daughter of Thomas Genne of Bury St. Edmund's in Suffolk, and had iſſue Sir William Luckyn, of Little Waltham Bart. (f) is a capital Meſſuage in this Pariſh, with lands of good value. It took its name from an ancient Family, that held it as part of the demeſne lands of the maner of Great Badow.

It was afterwards in Mr. Darrel of London.

SEBRIGHT's-HALL,

William Sebright, of Sebrights-hall, lived in the reign of K. Henry II. and married Elizabeth ſole daughter and heir of Sir Henry de Aſhe Kt. by which he had—Stephen, whoſe ſon and heir—Walter was father of—Peter, who dyed 13th of Edw. II. poſſeſs'd of the fourth part of the Eſtate, to which the remarkable Tenure, mentioned above under Sir Hugh's, was annex'd; and alſo held of the Earl of Hereford, in this pariſh, one meſſuage, 100 acr. of arable, 6 of meadow, 2 of paſture, and 3 of wood, in ſocage, by the ſervice of 19 s. 10 d. (g) He had two ſons, Giles, and Mabile. The latter married Catharine, daughter and heir of Ralph Cowper of Blackſhall in Worceſterſhire, on whom he ſettled a meſſuage and lands in this pariſh, antiently call'd Brooke's Place, by deed dated 22 Edw. I. to which Edmund de Badew, William his ſon, and others, were witneſſes. From this Mabile and Catharine deſcended John, who ſold this eſtate, called Brooks, 26 Octob. 1490, to Robert Arthur of Strepley in this county. Humfrey was his ſon and heir, that married Catharine, daughter of ... Ridge, of Ridge in Staffordſhire.—From Giles, eldeſt ſon of Peter aboveſaid, deſcended—John Sebright, of Sebright's-hall, living in the 17th of Henry VIII.—Alice, his daughter and heir, was moſt likely married to Edward Aylnoth Eſq; who dyed 15 March 1543, 35 Hen. VIII, holding a meſſuage, and 60 acr. of arable, meadow, paſture and wood, called Sabrights, in this pariſh, of the Queen of England. Margaret wife of John Spilman, Joane wife of Robert Parmafax, and Elizabeth wife of Robert Terrington, were his couſins and next heirs (h).

After Aylnoth's death, this Eſtate came, either by ſeizure or otherwiſe, into the hands of John Paſchall Lord of the maner of Great Badow: For he dyed in the 36 of Henry VIII. poſſeſs'd of the ſame (i).

We find it next in the Gonſon-family. For Benjamin Gonſon Eſq; dyed 26 Nov. 1577, holding Lands called Seybrights of John Paſchall as of his maner of Great Badow.—Benjamin, his ſon and heir, was then aged 26 (k). The family ended in four ſiſters coheireſſes (l).

Anne, wife of Giles Fleminge was probably one of them. She dyed 28 March 1627, holding this capital meſſuage, called Sabright; and left ——Urſula, her daughter and heir 17 years old (m). That family had alſo the maner of Great Warley (n). Urſula became the wife of John Everard, fourth ſon of Richard Everard of Gr. Waltham Gent. and had iſſue Richard Everard, that married Anne, daughter of Henry Clovile of Weſt-Hanningfield.

This Eſtate was afterwards in—Thomas Wilſhaw Eſq; He gave it to his daughter

Martha, wife of Arthur Wight of Guilford in Surrey, attorney at law; on whoſe deceaſe, it deſcended to his grandſon and heir

Arthur Wight [K]. But was lately ſold.

Pontlands, is an Eſtate in this pariſh, where Walter Mildmay, a younger ſon of Tho. Mildmay of Barnes, was ſeated in the reign of K. James I.

This being a very pleaſant village, it hath been inhabited long by Families of faſhion; particularly thoſe of the ſurname of Hawker, Godalve, and Brograve.

The CHURCH of Great Badow, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, hath a North and South-iſle; and the Chancel hath alſo a South iſle; all leaded: But the Chancel itſelf, and a Veſtry on the North ſide, are tyled. A ſquare Stone-Tower, in which are 5 Bells, is covered with a large Spire, leaded. In this Church there is an organ.

Maud, daughter of Robert Earl of Glouceſter, and wife of Robert de Gernon, as mentioned above, gave the Advowſon of this Church, in 1172, to the Priory of Repingdon in Derbyſhire, of her own foundation. And K. Henry III. confirm'd it to that Priory, 15 Octob. 1252 (o).

Upon that, it came to be appropriated to that Priory; and a Vicarage was ordained and endowed, which continued in the Patronage of that Houſe, till its ſuppreſſion; at leaſt, till Janu. 4. 1537. when John Young, Prior of Repingdon, had licenſe to alienate the Advowſon of this Vicarage to Francis Bryan (p). The great Tithes coming to the Crown, K. Edward VI, did, in 1547, give this Parſonage then valued at 8 l. 1 s. and the Tithes at 16 l. 1 s. ob. per ann. to Sir Walter Henley Kt. (q) Who, by licenſe dated 19 Decemb. the ſame year, jointly with Clement Smyth, alienated this Rectory and Church, and Advowſon of the Vicarage to John Paſcal Eſq; (r) in which family it continued a long time (s).

But, by licenſe dated 12 Octob. 1554, John Paſchal ſold the Parſonage-houſe to John Sammes, and Joane his wife, for life; remainder to their third ſon Robert (t). And, by another licenſe dated 6 April 1563, he ſold one Orchard, with ſeven acres of arable, and the Tithes of Corn and Grain belonging to the Rectory of Great Badew, unto John Brooke (u). Stephen Brooke, who dyed 20 Janu. 1581, held the ſame, and left Sara and Elizabeth, his daughters and heirs (w).

About 1732, the Lord Fermannagh ſold the Advowſon of this Living to Mrs. Anne Percivall of Clatford in Wilts; who granted the ſame to the Rev. Julins Hering. And he ſince conveyed it to other perſons.

In this Church were antiently two very conſiderable Chantries.

One was founded by Margaret, wife of Thomas Coggeſhall Eſq; and others [L], for a Prieſt, to ſing maſs in this Church, and alſo to be aiding and aſſiſting to the Vicar. The yearly value of it, at the time of the ſuppreſſion, amounted to 20 l. 16 s. 8 d. (x) K. Edward VI, in the 2d year of his reign, granted it, with the maner of Springfeild-Barnes, and other lands, to William Mildmay Eſq; (y)

The other Chantry, dedicated to the honor of the holy Trinity, was founded by Thomas Kille; formerly Butler to Thomas of Woodſtock Duke of Glouceſter, then to the Counteſs of Hereford, afterwards to K. Henry V. and laſt of all to Catharine his Queen. He dyed 17 Dec. 1449, and lyeth buried in this Church, with his wife. At the time of the ſuppreſſion, this Chantry was valued at 14 l. 13 s. 4 d. per ann. (z)

In this pariſh, there formerly ſtood a Free Chapel dedicated to St. John the Baptiſt. All the lands, tenements &c. belonging to it, were by patent, dated 4 Sept. 1557, granted to John Drake and others (a). Unqueſtionably, 'tis the ſame as John Lord Petre dyed poſſeſs'd of, 11 Octob. 1613; being deſcribed 'a free Chapel in Great Badoe, and lands called Peirce att Meade, and Le Vynes.' (b)

Charitable Donations.

Mrs. Hellen Sydnor gave to the Poor of this pariſh for ever Two ſhillings, weekly, to be diſtributed in bread every Sunday (c).

Roger Reder, farmer of the Gravel-pit, gave Five pounds a year; to be diſtributed in Bread, every Sunday, to ſuch poor Widows as the Church-wardens ſhall think fit. A farm of 25 l. per ann. is tyed for the payment.

We find alſo mention of a Charitable Gift iſſuing from Sir Hugh's.

There are Alms-houſes for 5 Dwellers, on the left hand of the road from Chelmsford to the Church. No Endowment.

5. LITTLE BADOW.

IN this pariſh are Five Maners, which, at the the time of the general Survey, were held by Ralph Baynard—Euſtace Earl of Bologne—Ralph ſon of Brien—and Robert Gernon.

Theſe five maners, are. 1. The maner of Little Badow-hall. 2. .. of Middle-mead, and .. of Tofts. 3. .. of Baſſet's. 4. .. of Graſs's. 5. .. of Riſeham's.

1. The maner of Little Badew, alias LITTLE BADOW-HALL.

This, in Edward the Confeſſor's time, was enjoyed by one Lewin: But, at the time of the Survey, was in Ralph Baynard, Lord of Dunmowe; and his under-tenant was one Germund [M]. William, grandſon to this Ralph, for taking part with Helias Earl of Maine againſt K. Henry I. loſt his Barony, of which this was a part (d). Whereupon the whole Barony, including this eſtate, was given by that king to Robert, a younger ſon of Richard Fitz-Gilbert, progenitor of the antient Earls of Clare; from which Robert deſcended the noble family of Fitz-Walter.

By feoffment from the ſaid Robert, or Walter his ſon, Richard de Badew, or Badewan, (ſo named from his reſidence at this place,) held, in Henry the Second's reign, of Walter ſon of Robert, five knights fees, moſt of which lay in this pariſh (e); and undoubtedly included this maner.

Afterwards, Richard Filiol, ſon and heir of Baldwin Filiol Lord of the maner of Keldon, held of Robert Fitz-walter one Carucate of land in Badew, as part of the inheritance of Anne his wife, which I ſuppoſe was daughter and heireſs of the foreſaid Richard de Badew (f). He dyed 44 Hen. III. leaving—John his ſon and heir, who dyed 10 Edw. II. poſſeſs'd, among other things, of the maner of Little Badewe, holden of Robert Lord Fitz-walter by the ſervice of one knight's fee, and towards the ward of Caſtle Baynard 18 s. 4 d. at the end of every 24 weeks (g).—His next heir, was his nephew John Filiol the elder, the ſon and heir of Sir Thomas his brother. He was knighted; and dyed in 1332, 6 Edw. III. holding the maner of Little Badew, and the advowſon of the Church, by the ſervice of three Knights fees (h). —John Filiol, his ſon, dyed without iſſue; for —Margery, his mother, departed this life in 1346, poſſeſs'd of this eſtate (i), leaving her only daughter and heir—Cecily, who became the ſecond wife of John de Bohun, of Midhurſt in Suſſex. He attended K. Edw. III. in his wars in France, particularly at the battle of Creſſy; and was ſummon'd to Parliament in the 37, 38, and 39th of that King's reign. The 41ſt of the ſame King he departed this life; as did his Lady the 5th of K. Richard II. (k) They left their ſon and heir—Sir John de Bohun Kt. but who was never ſummon'd to Parliament. He dyed 11 Henry VI. leaving—Humphrey his ſon and heir; born about the year 1418, and father of —Sir John de Bohun; who dyed about the 15th of K. Henry VII. leaving only two daughters his coheireſſes; Mary, married to Sir David Owen, natural ſon of Owen Tudor, grandfather to K. Henry VII, who had with her Filiol's, alias Felix-Hall (l); and—Urſula, wife of Robert Southwell Eſq; afterwards knighted; who, in right of her, had the maner of Little Badow-hall; and alſo that of Filiol's-hall, upon failure of Mary's iſſue. He dyed 31 March 1514. without iſſue (m). And Richard, ſon of his brother Francis, was his next heir.

But, before his deceaſe, he had alienated both theſe eſtates to K. Henry VIII. who, in the 36th of his reign, granted this maner of Little Badow, with the advowſon of the Rectory and a water-mill, to Sir Richard Rich (n); of whom his Majeſty had it again 20 Janu. the next year, in exchange for the maners of Styſtead, Lawling, Middleton, and South-church (o).

It continued in the Crown till 25 June 1572, when Qu. Elizabeth granted it to Sir John Smith, with the Advowſon of the Church (p). This Sir John was well exerciſed in military matters (q), and was ſon of Sir Clement Smith of this pariſh, by Dorothy his wife ſiſter to Edward Seymour Duke of Somerſet. He did not keep it very long, for, 2 March 1595-6, he obtained a licenſe from the Queen (r) to ſell it; which he did 30 April following, with the Advowſon of the Church, and other Eſtates hereafter mention'd, to Antony Pennyng of Kettleberg in Suffolk Eſq; who married Elizabeth daughter of Sir John Crofts Kt. The 13th of Janu. 1625-6, being then of Ipſwich, and poſſeſs'd of the maner of Little Badow-hall with the advowſon of the Church, and of the maners of Tofts, and Baſ-ſet's; he jointured his wife in the maner of Badow-hall, with the advowſon of the Church: ſettling it, after her deceaſe, upon their ſon—Antony: And 27 Decemb. 1626, in conſideration of a marriage between Antony the ſon and Bridget daughter of Sir Henry Mildmay, and in conſideration alſo of 1100 l. paid by Sir Henry; the ſaid Antony ſen. and Elizabeth, ſettled the maners of Baſſet's and Kettleberg on their ſon Antony and the ſaid Bridget, and the heirs of their bodies (s). The marriage was ſolemnized 1 Janu. 1626-7; But Antony the ſon dyed 11th January 1630-1, leaving only——Henry his ſon and heir, aged 2 years 11 months and 20 days (t). This Henry, by his deed dated 20 Octob. 1652, ſold this maner and advowſon, and the maner of Tofts which we ſhall preſently mention, to

Gobert Barrington, of Fitz-walter's in this County Eſq; who was afterwards knighted. He was the third ſon of Sir Thomas Barrington, the ſecond Baronet of that family, [mentioned above under Hatfield Broad-oak,] by Frances his wife daughter and coheir of John Gobert of Coventry Eſq; Sir Gobert married Lucia daughter of Sir Richard Wiſeman of Torrelshall in Willingale Dou; by which he had—Thomas his eldeſt ſon and heir, born in 1648, Francis, Richard, Robert, John, and Theophilus; and five daughters, Anne, Dorothy, Winifred, Suſanna and Lucy. Sir Gobert had a ſecond wife named Eliz. Lorton, that ſurvived him. Thomas the eldeſt ſon being in debt, prevailed on his next brother Francis, to buy of him the reverſion of this eſtate after their Father's deceaſe. This—Francis Barrington Eſq; was originally a Merchant at Tunis, where he acquired a very large fortune. He married Elizabeth Shute, daughter of Samuel, ſecond ſon of Francis, Shute of Upton in Leiceſterſhire Eſq; which Samuel was one of the Sheriffs of London and Middleſex in 1681, at a critical time, when our Religion and Laws were thought to be in great danger; and was ſeverely fined on account of his zeal for the Proteſtant religion (u). Mr. Barrington enjoyed this eſtate but a few years after the death of Sir Gobert, and of his Lady who had the greater part of it in jointure, and he departed this life 17 April 1708. But firſt he reſettled this eſtate on his eldeſt Brother Thomas aforeſaid, and his iſſue male, with a power to make a jointure, and to raiſe conſiderable fortunes for daughters: And, in default of iſſue, he ſettled it on John Shute Eſq; his firſt couſin by his wife, and on his iſſue male. Thomas Barrington lived but three years and a half after Francis; and had no children. Whereupon this eſtate devolved to the ſaid John Shute Eſq; then of the Inner Temple; who took the name and arms of Barrington, purſuant to the injunction of his benefactor.

The Shute family is originally of Normandy, being ſettled there when our Kings of England were in poſſeſſion of that Duchy. They ſerved thoſe Princes with ſucceſs and reputation, both in the field and as governors of fortreſſes committed to their charge, and were poſſeſſed of a caſtle called after their name. Some remains of that caſtle, with the arms of Shute painted on the windows, and monuments of that family in ſeveral towns of Normandy, were to be ſeen in the reign of Qu. Elizabeth (w). It is uncertain when the family came into England: but they have been long ſeated in the counties of Leiceſter and Cambridge; particularly in the latter, at Hockington, where reſided, in Qu. Elizabeth's reign, Chriſtopher Shute Eſq; whoſe ſon Robert being bred to the law, was created Serjeant in Michaelmaſs-term 1577. He was Recorder of Cambridge, and ſerved in Parliament for that Town (x), till the 1ſt of June 1579. when he was made Second Baron of the Exchequer; and afterwards one of the Juſtices of the King's Bench, 8 Febr. 1585. He married Thomaſine daughter to Chriſtopher Burgoine of Long Stanton in Cambridgeſhire Eſq; by whom he had 4 ſons; Francis, John, Chriſtopher, Thomas; and a daughter, Jane, married to John Hatton of Long Stanton Eſq, by whom ſhe had Sir Chriſtopher Hatton, knight of the bath, anceſtor to William Viſcount Hatton. Francis, the eldeſt ſon, had a ſon of his own Name, by his wife Frances daughter of Hercules Meautis of Weſt-Ham in Eſſex Eſq; (remarried to Robert Ratcliffe Earl of Suſſex). This ſecond Francis reſided at Upton in Leiceſterſhire, and had three ſons, James, Samuel, and Benjamin. James had two ſons, James, and Joſeph. Samuel the ſecond ſon was Sheriff of London in 1681, as above related: He had three ſons, Francis, Joſeph, and Caryl, who all dyed without iſſue before their father; and two daughters his co-heirs; 1. Elizabeth married to Francis Barrington of Tofts Eſq; who left no children; and 2. Anne, married firſt to Thomas Andrews Eſq; of Langdon-hills in Eſſex; afterwards to Knightly Chetwood D. D. of Tempsford in Bedfordſhire, Dean of Glouceſter, by whom ſhe had John Chetwood Eſq; who dyed unmarried. Benjamin, the younger ſon of Francis Shute of Upton Eſq; married Elizabeth Caryl, by which he had three ſons, and three daughters. Samuel, Lieutenant-Colonel of horſe, made Governor of New-England in 1716, dyed unmarried 15 April 1742; Benjamin dyed alſo a batchelor in 1714. Mary, the eldeſt daughter, married Henry Yeamans Eſq; Martha, the ſecond, married Henry Bendyſh Eſq; and Anne the youngeſt married firſt Richard Offley of Norton-hall in Derbyſhire Eſq; and ſince Gervaſe Scrope of Cockrington in Lincolnſhire Eſq; John, was the youngeſt ſon, on whom the maner of Badow-hall &c. devolved in 1711. It is remarkable, that before that, viz. in April 1710, he had the good fortune to come into poſſeſſion of a much more conſiderable eſtate, named Becket in the pariſh of Shrivenham in Berkſhire, left him by John Wildman Eſq; in his will dated four years before his death, which happened 14 April 1710. And he gave it Mr. Shute on no other conſideration, than becauſe he thought him a perſon the moſt worthy of being adopted by him. For Mr. Shute was not any way related or allied to Mr. Wildman. In 1708, he was made a Commiſſioner of the Cuſtoms; and, 20 June 1720, created Baron Barrington of Newcaſtle in the county of Dublin, and Viſcount Barrington of Ardglaſs in the county of Downe; at which time he obtained alſo a reverſionary grant of the office of Maſter of the Rolls in Ireland, then in the poſſeſſion of the late Lord Berkeley of Stratton. He was alſo a Repreſentative in the Britiſh parliament for the town of Berwick upon Tweed. To other accompliſhments he added that of conſiderable Learning, being the author of Miſcellanea Sacra, 2 vol. 8vo. of, "An Eſſay on the ſeveral Diſpenſations of God to Mankind &c." and dying 14 Dec. 1734, was buried in Shrivenham church, where a monument is erected to his memory. By his Lady, Anne, eldeſt daughter and co-heireſs of Sir William Daines Kt. he left ſix ſons and three daughters. The ſons were — William-Wildman Barrington, now Lord Viſcount Barrington; Francis, who dyed young; John, a Major-general, and Col. of the 8th regiment of foot; who ſucceeding General Hopſon in his command, reduced the iſland of Guadaloupe to his late Majeſty's obedience in 1759; He hath married Elizabeth, daughter of Florentius Vaſſal Eſq; by whom he hath four ſons and a daughter; Daines, a Welſh Judge; Samuel, captain of a man of war; and Shute, Canon of Chriſt's-church in Oxford, who is married to Lady Diana Beauclerk, daughter of Charles late Duke of St. Albans. The daughters were, Sarah, married to Robert Price Eſq; Anne, to Thomas Clarges Eſq; by whom ſhe had the preſent Sir Tho. Clarges Bart. a minor; Mary dyed young. — William-Wildman, Lord Barrington, who was born in the year 1717, ſucceeded his father in honor and eſtates; and hath been ſeveral times elected a member of the Britiſh Parliament: Firſt, for the town of Berwick, upon a vacancy in 1739, and again at the general Election following. He was rechoſen there in 1746, when he was appointed a Lord of the Admiralty; and alſo at the ſubſequent general Election in 1747. In April 1754, his Lordſhip was conſtituted Maſter of the Great Wardrobe, juſt before the election for Parliament that year, when he was choſen for Plymouth; where he was re-elected in Novemb. 1755, on his being made Secretary at War; and is now again returned for the ſame place. In March 1755, he was made a Privy-Counſellor: And his preſent appointments as Chancellor and Under-Treaſurer of the Exchequer, and Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, bear date 18 March 1761. His Lordſhip married 16 Sept. 1740, Mary daughter of Henry Lovel Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir Salathiel Lovel, Baron of the Exchequer. She was widow of Samuel, eldeſt ſon of William Lord Viſcount Grimſton; but hath no iſſue living at preſent.

2. The maner of MIDDLEMEAD, alias Videlewes, was in Edward the Confeſſor's time poſſeſs'd by Alwin a freeman; but, on making the ſurvey after the Conqueſt, it was holden by Ralph ſon of Brien, of the Biſhop of London, not as of his ſee, but as his own proper eſtate. It is there called Mildemet, and placed under the Hundred of Witbricteſhern, or Dengey [N].

It came afterwards to be known by the names of Videlew's or Videlin's, Toft's, and Baſſet's, from the ſurnames of Families by which it was poſſeſs'd.

We have ſeen that it was but one, at the time of the Survey; but it was ſoon divided into two. For, 6 Edw. I. Jordan Toft was owner of one; and 21 Edw. III. it was in Alan Toft. At which time, Henry Baſſet held the other, as one Roger Baſſet did 24 Hen. VI. (y).

Robert Vedelin, or Videler, was living 7 Edw. II. and dyed 2 Edw. III. holding one fee and a half of Robert Lord Fitz-walter in Little Badew (z).

In K. Richard the IId's reign, it was in one Richard Brenge (a).

¶ Of the maner of TOFTS in particular.

William Toft Gent. dying 30 Nov. 1470, left an only daughter, Iſabella, who was married to Thomas Smith of Rivenhall Eſq; and they had iſſue — Sir Clement Smith of Little Badow Kt. that married Dorothy ſiſter of Edward Seymour Duke of Somerſet; and had by her — Sir John Smyth, as is mention'd above, under Little Badow-hall. In Iſabella's time, 7 and 8 Henry VII, one Thomas Saul laid claim to this eſtate, and ſued for it in Chancery. But, 14 Decemb. 27 Henr. VIII. an Award was made by Sir Tho. Audeley then Lord Chancellor of England, and Tho. Cromwell Eſq; chief Secretary to the King and Maſter of the Rolls, whereby they ordered Tho. Saul and his wife, to aſſure to Iſabell Smyth widow, late wife of Tho. Smyth of Rivenhall, daughter and heir of William Toft, for her life; and, after her deceaſe, to — Clement Smith of London Gent. her ſon and heir; all the maner of Middlemead alias Videluys. In purſuance of which Tho. Saul, or Sall, did aſſure the ſame, and a fine was paſſed in Eaſter-term 28 Henr. VIII, by the ſaid Sall and Agnes his wife to Clement Smyth, who was afterwards knighted (b). He dyed 26 Auguſt 1552, holding, among other things, the maner of Middlemeade, alias Videluys, with the appertenances, and 600 acr. of arable, 70 acr. of meadow, 500 acr. of paſture, 70 acr. of wood, 500 acr. of heath and furze, 6 l. rent; and the common of paſture in all arable lands, in Middle-mead, alias Videluys, Little Badow, Danbury, Hatfield-Peverell, Owltinge, Springfield, Woodham-Walter, Boreham, Great Badow, and Sandon (c). —— John Smith, his ſon and heir, afterwards knighted, did 30 Apr. 1596, ſell this maner of Middlemead, together with Badow-Hall, and the advowſon of the church, to Antony Pennyng Eſq; whoſe grandſon — Henry Pennyng Eſq; conveyed this part of Middlemead, alias Videlewes, alias Tufts, to Gobert

3. The maner of BASSET's, alias Middlemead, or Videlewes.

John de Taylleur, who dyed 33d Edw. I, held in Little Badewe of Richard Baſſett 17 acr. of land by the ſervice of 3 s. per ann.—And a meſſuage and 11 acr. of land of Robert Videle, by the rent of 8 d. per ann.——John was his ſon and heir (d).

Joane Rawſon widow, that dyed 22 of Edw. IV. was ſeized of the maner of Middlemeade in Little Badewe holden of the Biſhop of London.——John was her ſon and heir, aged 14 years (e).

By the daughter and heir of ... Rawſon, it came to Blake. —— John Blake, ſon of John Blake of Little Badow, married Anne, daughter and heir of ... Rawſon, by which he had Humphrey, Francis, Robert, John; and Anne wife of .... Bery then of William Paſchall.—Richard Blake of Baſſett's married Mabilia daughter of .... Covert of Suſſex, and had Giles, (Thomas, and Edmund, which dyed without children;) Vincent 3d ſon, Edward 4th ſon, Chriſtopher 5th ſon; and Mabilia wife of Iſaac Witherington of Northumberland.—Giles married Dorothy daughter of Captain Tweedey, and had — William his eldeſt ſon and heir; Giles, Richard, John, Thomas, and Arthur that had no iſſue: Mary, and Dorothy (f).

It was afterwards enjoyed by the Smyths, and Pennyngs, with other eſtates in this Pariſh mentioned above. — Henry Pennyng Eſq; having, in his deed of ſale of Tofts &c. to Sir Gobert Barrington, excepted this maner, ſold it, by the name of Middlemet, alias Videlews, alias Baſſet's, to (g)

Sir Mondeford Bramſton, third ſon of Sir John Bramſton Kt. Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench, by Bridget his firſt wife, daughter of Thomas Mondeford M. D. younger ſon of Sir Edmund Mondeford of Feltwell in Norfolk Kt. Sir Mondeford being LL. D. was made Maſter in Chancery at the Reſtoration. He married Alice daughter of Sir George Le-Hunt of Suffolk Kt. by whom he had ſix ſons, and four daughters.— George the third ſon, was LL. D. of Doctors Commons, and had the maner of Baſſet's. His daughter and heir Theodoſia, being married to

Sir Robert Abdy of Albins Bart. brought him this maner, which is now in his heirs.

4. The Maner of GRAS's, vulgarly called GRACE's, is ſo denominated from a family of Le Gras, which were anciently owners of it.

'Twas held, in Edward the Confeſſor's time, by one Lewin; and, at the time of the general Survey, by Euſtace Earl of Bologne; as appears by the extract from Domeſday-book [O].

It was afterwards holden by the family of Boreham.—For John de Boreham held, the 13th of K. John, one Knight's fee in Boreham and Badew. — Robert de Boreham held, in Henry the Third's reign, the maners of Boreham and Little Waltham, and one Carucate of land in Little Badew of the Honor of Bologne by the ſervice of one knight's fee; of which lands and tenements

John Rengger bought a meſſuage and lands in Little Badow: And, after this Rengger's death, the right of the ſaid inheritance came to Idonea, and Cecily his ſiſters, and to Joan his niece daughter of M[illegible]rgeria another of his ſiſters, which J[illegible] was married to John de Quoye. The maner of Little Badow was to be divided into three equal parts, of which Nicolas de Gras was to have two parts, and John de Quoye and Joan his wife the third part (h).

Accordingly Nicolas de Graſs dying 22 Edw. I. was found to have poſſeſs'd one Carucate of land in Little Badewe; which he held of Philip Burnel. He left two ſons, Ralph, and Roger. —Ralph le Gras dyed 26 of the ſame reign, and held of the heir of the ſaid Ph. Burnel, one meſſuage, 24 acr. of arable, 9 acr. of meadow, 11 acr. of paſture, 1 mill, and 50 s. rent; leaving—Roger his brother and heir; who dyed the 32d of the ſame reign.—Nicolas was his ſon and heir (i).

It came next into the Darcy family. For—Robert Darcy held the maner of Gracys in Little Badewe, the 10th of Henr. V. and 11th of Hen. VI. (k) This Robert was younger ſon of Sir Robert Darcy of Danbury and Maldon (l).—Roger Darcy that dyed 3 Sept. 1508, (24 Hen. VII.) held the maner of Graces of the Earl of Oxford as of his maner of Boreham (m).——Thomas, his ſon and heir, was then two years old.

We find it afterwards in the Crown, by exchange or otherwiſe. For K. Edward VI. 1mo reg. gave to—

Sir Walter Henley Kt. by way of exchange, the maner of Graces, late parcel of the poſſeſſions of Sir Thomas Darcy; and the parſonage of Much Badowe, valued at 17 l. per ann. and the Tenths 34 s. (n)

Sir Clement Smith, above-mention'd, who dyed 26 Aug. 7 Edw. VI, held, among other things, the maner of Gracys in Little Badowe of the King in capite. It then deſcended to his ſon and heir — John Smith, ſpoken of under Little Badow-hall and Tofts (o).

The next poſſeſſor upon record, was

Sir Henry Mildmay Kt. third ſon of Sir Thomas Mildmay by Alice daughter of Adam Winthorp of Groton in Suffolk; which Sir Thomas was ſon and heir of William Mildmay of Springfield-Barnes, ſecond ſon of Thomas Mildmay may of Moulſham-hall Eſq; one of the Auditors of the Court of Augmentation in the reign of Henry VIII. This Sir Henry was knighted in the field, for his valour in the wars in Ireland; and dying 9 October 1639, aged 61, was buried in the Chancel of Little Badow Church, where a ſumptuous monument is erected to his memory [P]. By his firſt wife, Alice daughter of Sir William Harris of Crickſey Kt. he had 3 daughters, Alice, Mary, and Frances: And by his ſecond wife, Amia, daughter of Brampton Gurdon of Aſſington in Suffolk Eſq; he had—Henry, his eldeſt ſon and heir: Walter, that dyed without iſſue: and Elizabeth, that became wife of Robert Mildmay of Terling Eſq; This laſt named Henry [Q] was alſo twice married. And by .... his firſt wife had 2 daughters, Amia married to Vincent Amcorts of Harrington in Lincolnſhire Eſq; afterwards to Tho. Hall Eſq; and Anne, to Sir Drainer Maſſingberd of Lincolnſhire. Henry Mildmay's ſecond wife, was MARY [R], daughter of Robert Mildmay ſon and heir-apparent of Sir Henry Mildmay of Moulſham Kt. by which he had 4 ſons, Henry, Walter, Henry, and Thomas that dyed young; and 4 daughters, Mary married to Charles Goodwin of Rovant in Suſſex Eſq; Lucy to Thomas Gardiner of Tolleſbury Eſq; Elizabeth to Edmund Waterſon Eſq; Frances to Chriſtopher Fowler of London Merchant, and Catharine to Col. Tho. Townſend.

Elizabeth widow of Edmund Waterſon having bought out her other ſiſters, and having no iſſue; it was expected, that ſhe would have let this eſtate deſcend to Lucy the only ſurviving child of her eldeſt ſiſter Lucy Gardiner, and wife of Sir Richard Bacon of Gillingham Bart. But, inſtead of that, ſhe ſued a fine, and left this, with her other eſtates, to Edmund Fowler of London, eldeſt ſon of her ſiſter Frances. He dyed 25 July 1751. and left an only daughter, named Frances.

To this maner of Le Graces, did belong a Free-chapel; of which the Lord of this maner was patron. It was diſſolved ſoon after the Reformation (p).

5. The maner of RIFEHAMS, is a ſmall maner, on the edge of this pariſh, towards Danbury. It hath now no Tenents.

Godwin held it in Edward the Confeſſor's reign; but, at the time of making the ſurvey, it was in Robert Gernon: for ſo is the entry [S].

Thomas Coggeſhale, who dyed 10 Henr. V, held Reeſhams in Little Badewe.——Richard, who was his ſon and heir, and dyed 11 Henr. VI, held the ſame, under the name of Reſhams, of Robert Darcy, of his maner of Graces——Elizabeth was his ſiſter and heir.

By marriage, or otherwiſe, it came to Sir Thomas Charleton Kt. He deceaſed 5 Edw. IV. holding the maner of Reſhams of the heirs of John Filiol.—Richard, then aged 15 years, was his ſon and heir, and afterwards knighted. He had not only the maner of Ryſehams in Little Badewe, but alſo that of Rukholt's in Low Leyton, and of Chobham's in Weſt-Ham. For taking part with K. Richard III. he was attainted in the 1ſt year of K. Henry VII; and that King gave this, with the two other ſaid maners, 11 March 1488, to

Sir John Ryſley Kt. that dyed 3 March 1511, without iſſue. Whereupon K. Henry VIII, 28 Febr. 1512, granted the maner of Riſehams in Danbury, and the maners of Ruckhold and Chobhams, to

William Compton Eſq; anceſtor to the preſent Earls of Northampton, and to his heirs male. He dyed 30 June 1528. But Qu. Elizabeth, in the 39th of her reign, granted them to Thomas Spencer.

Thomas Emery, who dyed 3 July 1618, held the maner of Ruffehams, and 160 acr. of arable, meadow, paſture, and wood, belonging to it, in Little Badow and Danbury.—Thomas was his ſon and heir, then aged 11 years, one month, and 15 days.

Afterwards it was in ... Perkins of Berkſhire.

And then in Richard Clarke, and afterwards in—Robert Clarke, Eſq; both deſcendents of Sir Robert Clarke, one of the Barons of the Exchequer in Qu. Elizabeth's and K. James the Firſt's reigns; formerly ſeated at Pleſhey.

We meet with Mortimer's fee, ſaid to be in this pariſh.—And Twitty-fee, being a moiety of 200 acres, in Little Badow, Runſell, Danbury, and Woodham-Walter: but we cannot tell where they ſtand.

There is an Alms-houſe by the Church, for two families.— And another at Coldham-gate, reported to have been founded by Sir Gobert Barrington.

Several parcels of Meadow, in this Pariſh, belong to the Poor of Hatfield-Peverell: as will be more particularly mention'd under that Pariſh.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, is of one pace with the Chancel: Both tyled. The Tower is topp'd with ſtone, and contains 3 Bells.

This Church formerly belonged to Repingdon-Priory in the County of Derby.—At preſent it conſiſts of a Rectory, which is a Sine-cure; and of a Vicarage.

The Sine-cure, as well as the Vicarage, is in the gift of the Lord of Little Badow-hall, viz. Lord Viſcount Barrington.

Mr. Charles Gordon, late Vicar, left in his will 100 l. for the improvement of the Vicarage; hoping that ſome well diſpoſed perſon will give another 100 l. and procure Qu. Anne's bounty.

[P] He was High-Sheriff for Eſſex in 1628. and a Member of Oliver and Richard Cromwell's Parliaments in 1654, 1656, and 1659.

[Q] He was five times Knight of the ſhire for Eſſex, viz. the three laſt Parliaments of K. Charles II. and the two firſt of K. William and Q. Mary.

[R] The male-deſcendents of this Mary have a claim to the Barony of Fitz-walter; which is now in abeyance.

6. SANDON.

Sanð-ðun, in Saxon, ſignifies a Sandy-hill; which undoubtedly is the occaſion of the name of this pariſh.

There is no mention of it in Domeſday-book, nor can I find by whom it was then enjoy'd, except it was the King. Not long after the grand Survey, it was in the noble family of Scales; derived from Hardwin de Scalers, who came in with William the Conqueror.

William de Cleydon, who dyed in 1330, held under Robert de Scales, and his heirs, a knight's fee, and certain tenements in this pariſh ——— John, was his ſon and heir. — But we have no further account here of that family. ... The ſaid William held alſo the maner of Sandon, of the heirs of Aymer de Valence Earl of Pembroke, as of his caſtle of Aneſty in Hertfordſhire, by the ſervice of one knight's fee (q). This Aymer was ſon of William de Valence, and Joan daughter of William de Montchenſi by his wife Dionyſia daughter and heir to Nicolas de Aneſty; which William de Monchenſi was ſon of Warin de Monchenſi, by Joane his wife daughter of William le Mareſchall Earl of Pembroke: in whoſe right that Earldom deſcended to the Valence family.—Aymer was thrice married, but left no iſſue. He was murdered 23 June 1323 (r). His next heirs were,

John de Haſtings, Elizabeth Comyn, and Joane Counteſs of Athol; children of his ſiſter Iſabell, which was the wife of John de Haſtings Earl of Pembroke (r). John de Haſtings dying the 18th of Edw. II. 1324, or 1325, ſettled this eſtate on William de Beauchamp, his mother's ſiſter's ſon (t), a younger ſon of Thomas Earl of Warwick: who having alſo of his ſaid uncle's gift the caſtle of Bergavenny, was ſummoned to parliament by the title of William Beauchamp of Bergavenny Kt. (u) He married Joane, one of the daughters of Richard Fitz-alan Earl of Arundel, (w) [T] and had by her — Richard Earl of Worceſter, who dyed the 10th of Henry V. (x) leaving an only daughter and heir — Elizabeth, as may be ſeen under Haningfield.

In the mean time we find, that, about the 16th of Richard II, one Thomas Newenton held the maner of Sandon (y).

And Thomas Cogeſhale, that dyed 10th of Henry V, in the beginning of the year 1422, held the maner of Sandon of the King in ca. of his caſtle of Dover, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee, and a yearly rent of 10 s. for caſtle-guard.—Richard, his ſon and heir, dyed 11 Hen. VI, ſeiz'd of the ſame, leaving his ſiſter —Elizabeth his heir, which was married to Thomas Philip (z).

To return to Elizabeth Beauchamp above-named, ſhe became the wife of Edward Nevill, fourth ſon of Ralph Earl of Weſtmoreland; who in her right was Lord Bergavenny. He dyed 18 Octob. 1476. and had for ſucceſſor in this, and other eſtates, — George, his ſecond ſon, by his firſt Lady; the eldeſt ſon being then dead. ... Cecily Talmaſh is ſaid, to have formerly held this eſtate of him, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee (a).— George, his ſon ſucceeded him. And he was ſucceeded by—George, his eldeſt ſon and heir (b).

This maner was, next, in the Crown. For K. Henry VIII. in the 17th of his reign, granted it to Cardinal Wolſey; on whoſe attainder it reverted to the Crown (c).

Thomas Tamworth, who dyed about the 25th of that King, held the maner of Sandon, of his Majeſty, in ca. as of his caſtle of Dover, by the ſervice of one knight's fee, worth 36 l. 13 s. 4 d. per ann. ... And he alſo had 10 meſſ.' 6 tofts, 500 acr. of arable, 100 acr. of meadow, 200 of paſture, 100 acr. of wood, and 10 l. rent, in Sandon, Great and Little Badewe, Mulſham, Springfeild-Barnes, Purle, and Danbury. (d)—John Tamworth had licenſe, 1 July 1564, to alienate Sandon-hall maner with the appertenances, and other lands and tenements called Birdes, Mayes, Little Chamberleynes, Moltes, and Heigates &c. to (e)

John Goodey of Braintree. — On the 1ſt of May 1579, John Gooday, the elder, releaſes Sandon-hall to his ſon Richard.—The 9th of April 1581, Roger Goodday releaſes the ſame to his brother Richard.—And, on the 26th of April 1583, Robert Goodday ſells the maner of Sandon to

Antony Everard of Great Waltham, Eſq; as doth alſo Richard Goodday, 30 March 1590. And, on the 2d of April, the ſame year, John Goodey had licenſe to alienate to the ſaid Antony, Sandon-hall maner with appertenances, and 3 meſſ.' 3 tofts, 3 gardens, 200 acr. of arable, 70 of meadow, 200 of paſture, 6 of wood, 40 of furze and heath, and 3 l. rent in Sandon (f). He was afterwards knighted; and dying in 1614, was buried in the Church of Great Waltham: [under which pariſh a further Account may be ſeen of him and his family.]

Tho' he had ſeveral children, yet one daughter only ſurvived him, named —Anne, which brought this, and many other fair Lordſhips in marriage to

Sir William Maynard Kt. and Bart. of Little Eaſton in this county: [of which Family ſee an account there.] He was created a Baron 30

Robert Abdy Eſq; created a Baronet 9 June 1660. By his will, dated 28 April 1670, he deviſed this eſtate to his ſon and heir—Sir John Abdy Bart. And the latter ſold it, 28 Janu. 1679, to Edmund Wiſeman of London Eſq; afterwards knighted. Sir Edmund, by deed, dated 24 Septemb. 1687, conveyed it again to Henry Collins of the Middle-Temple Eſq; (g), His father Antony Collins, a younger ſon of an antient family of this name in the iſle of Wight, was of the Middle-Temple, and Treaſurer of that ſociety in 1670. He married three wives; and, beſides his ſon Henry, had a daughter married to .... Trollop Eſq; father of Sir Tho. Trollop; another married to Henry Dawley of Hampſhire, &c. ... Henry married Mary, daughter of Sir Henry Dineley of Charlton in Worceſterſhire Bart. by which he had ſeven or eight daughters; of whom Mary was married to Henry Lovibond: and three ſons — Antony, Henry, and one that dyed young. Antony, born 21 June 1676, was of King's-college Cambridge, and of the Middle Temple London [V]. He married, 1. Martha, daughter of Sir Francis Child, Alderman of London, by which he had, Henry that lived but a little while, and Antony, that dyed 20 Decemb. 1723, aged 21. As alſo two daughters, Elizabeth, and Martha. 2. His ſecond wife was, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Walter Wrotteſly Bart. by which he had no iſſue. He died 13 Decemb. 1729.

Arms of Collins. A Chevron charged with 3 black-birds, between 3 plates. On a chief, a Griffin courant, or volant.

In the 18th of Edward II. Simon de Knightbridge held lands in this pariſh (b).

Richard de Plaiz, that dyed in 1360, had Half a fee in Sandon, which John Blount and his partners held under him. —John was his ſon and heir (i).

Some lands in this pariſh continued to be holden of the Barony of Scales, as low as the year 1616; for John Maddiſon, who dyed the 1ſt of Auguſt, that year, at Danbury, is ſaid to have held the maner of Sandon-hall, of the Earl of Oxford, as of his Barony of Scales and Newſells.—Humfrey was his ſon and heir, aged upwards of 22 (k).

The CHURCH of Sandon is dedicated to St. Andrew, and conſiſts of a body, chancel, and north iſle, all tiled. The Steeple is of brick, and contains 5 Bells.

The Living is a Rectory, which hath continued longeſt in the families of Scales, and Gate, as may be ſeen in Mr. Newcourt. Qu. Mary I. in the firſt year of her reign, granted the Advowſon of it to Suſan Tounge alias Clarencieux, widow, which preſented to it four times (l).

The greateſt ornament of this pariſh; nay, in ſome reſpects, one of the greateſt ornaments of this Nation, was the learned Brian Walton, Editor of the Polyglot Bible. He was inſtituted to this Rectory 15 Janu. 1635. and here he loſt his firſt wife Anne Claxton [U].

He was diſpoſſeſs'd of this Living, and of his other of St. Martin's Orgar, London, in 1641. But in 1660, he was repoſſeſs'd of them, and 2 Decemb. the ſame year, conſecrated Biſhop of Cheſter. He dyed 29 November, 1661. See his life in Biographia Britannica.

7. DANBURY.

THIS name ſignifies the Caſtle or Town of the Danes; and, as it is one of the higheſt, if not the higheſt, Hill in this county, was undoubtedly one of their ſtrong holds; when they infeſted theſe parts under our Saxon Monarchs, till at laſt Cnut the Dane became Maſter of the whole kingdom [W].

In records it is written theſe various ways, Danengebiry, Danegebury, Danyggebiry, Daningbyri, Danewbery, Dannebury, and Danbury.

During the Saxons government, it was holden by one Arling; and, at the time of the general Survey, by Geffrey de Mandeville [X].

We find it afterwards divided into theſe ſeveral Maners. 1. The maner of St. Clere's. 2. The maner of Heyrons, alias Hewes. 3.

The maner of Bretton: which three have taken their denominations from families of thoſe ſurnames. 4. The maner of Danbury, alias Runſells. But at preſent there are acknowledged only two maners in this pariſh; namely St. Cleres with Heyrons; and Danbury alias Runſells.—Thoſe of Biknacre, and Giberake, extend however into ſome part of this pariſh [Y].

1. 2. The maners of St. CLERE's, and HEYRON's, have commonly gone together.

The family of St. Clere, de Sancto Claro, was of great antiquity in this kingdom: the Lord of St. Cler being one of thoſe officers that attended William the Conqueror into England (m). Hugh de S. Claro was one of the witneſſes to the Charter of K. Stephen, in 1136 (n). William de Sto. Claro paid ſcutage for the redemption of K. Richard I, in the 6th year of his reign: He is numbred amongſt thoſe that had no capital honors (o). — William de St. Clere, and Ralph de Heyrun, were indicted at Chelmsford, the 39th of Henry III, for having Knights-fees, and yet not being knighted (p). Either this William, or another, held, in the 51ſt year of the ſame king, 1 carucate of land in Danegebury, 12 acres of meadow, 8 of paſture and wood; 34 s. rent of aſſize, and 12 s. a year to the ward of Dover-caſtle. He had alſo lands in Eaſt Tillebury, and Coringham (q). This is the firſt time we find that family mention'd in records, as having a relation to this pariſh.—In the reign of Edw. I. William de St. Clere had a park at Daningebury. He was Sheriff of Eſſex, in the 7th year of that king [Z]. And, either he, or one of the ſame name, held, about that time, the maner of St. Cleres-hall, alias Chich-Riddell, in Chich St. Oſith, where this family continued till the year 1554, when by fine John Seint Cler paſſed St. Cleres-hall to Thomas Lord Darcy.— William de Senklere Eſq; was alſo in this county in the reign of K. Henry VI. (r)

Arms. Azure, a ſun in his glory proper.

As to the Heyron-family in particular: Richard de Heyrun held in this place half a fee; as did, in the year 1165, or 1166, Ralph de Hayrun, and William Pincerna (s).—John Heyron, who dyed in 1342, held in fee, in Danewbery, 1 meſſuage, 40 acres of arable land, 2 of wood, 7 s. 4 d. per ann. of the Prior and Convent of Canterbury: And 1 meſſuage, 20 acr. of arable, half an acre of meadow, and 27 s. 1 d. rent of Reginald Grey by the ſervice of 8 s. a year.— Criſtina, wife of John Fancelona, was his ſiſter and heir (t).

Theſe Eſtates were next in Hugh de Vere, a younger ſon of Robert the fifth Earl of Oxford; for the executors of him, and Dionyſia his wife, daughter and heir of William Fitz-warin of Montchenſi (u), preſented to the living in 1321. (w) They dyed without iſſue.

Hugh, ſon of Simon de Vere Kt. (x) held the maner of Dannebiry, in 1330, under Edmund of Woodſtock Earl of Kent, as of his maner of Swanſcamp. He had alſo a park at Danbury, and another at Sandon; and the maners of Liſton and Coringham (y). He held the ſame alſo, under Roger Mortimer Earl of March, who dyed in 1360 (z).—Edward le Fitz-Simon, Kt. probably ſon of Hugh, was poſſeſs'd of it in 1362, and preſented to the church (a). — And Nicolas Fitz-Simon was owner of it in 1398 (b).

It was next in the Greys of Wilton, who had before ſome eſtate in this pariſh, as will be ſeen in the following article. Henry Grey of Wilton, that dyed the 19th of Richard II. held the maner of Heyronys of the Counteſs of Hereford. And Elizabeth, his widow, enjoy'd it after him, till her deceaſe, the 3d of Henry IV.—Richard her ſon and heir was then ten years old (c).

Sir Gerard Braybroke Kt. ſon and heir of Sir Gerard Braybroke, and Edmund Hampden Eſq; held this maner, in the 4th year of K. Henry IV, of the Earl of March, as of his maner of Swanſcamp (d). The ſaid Sir Gerard junr. married Perne, daughter of Reginald de Grey Lord of Wilton (e); and very probably had with her this eſtate. She dyed 8 April 1414, and He 29 March 1422, and were buried in this church (f).

After theſe, it appears to have returned into the Grey-family. For Joan, wife of John Grey, dyed the 4th of Henry VI, 1425, poſſeſſed of an eſtate in Dannebury, Liſton, and Coringham; which Hugh Fitz-Simon once held.—— Henry was her ſon and heir (g).

Then, by purchaſe or otherwiſe [A], it came into the Darcy-family, which preſented to the living from 1440 to 1504 (h), and one of them, — Robert Darcy Eſq; preſented to it ſeveral times. This Robert was ſteward and executor of Joan, counteſs of Hereford and Northampton, which dyed in 1419; a man of great fidelity; and that acquired large poſſeſſions. In 1419, he was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire (i); was returned among the Gentry of this county, the 12th of Henry VI (k); and departed this life the 27th of the ſame king. His eldeſt ſon and heir,—Sir Robert Darcy Kt. was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire, the 37th of Henry VI. (l) And reſided at Danbury; (where he was buried in 1470.) As did alſo his ſon—Thomas, who was ſquire of the body to K. Henry VI. and Edw. IV. [See a more particular account of this family in Maldon and St. Oſith.]

This eſtate was afterwards in the Crown. For K. Edward VI. in performance of the intentions of the King his father, granted to William Parr

This noble Lord, by licenſe dated 1 Aug. the ſame year, alienated theſe maners to—Sir Walter Mildmay of Apthorp in Northamptonſhire Kt. fourth ſon of Thomas Mildmay of Moulſham Eſq; [of whom ſee an account under Chelmsford.] Sir Walter was educated at Chriſt's-college in Cambridge, where he founded a Greek Lecture. In Henry the Eighth's reign, he was Surveyor of the Court of Augmentations (n); and became Chancellor of the Duchy, Chancellor and Under-treaſurer of the Exchequer, and Privy Counſellor to Qu. Elizabeth. In 1584, he founded, and well endowed, Emmanuel-college in Cambridge. He was knighted 22 Febr. 1546. repreſented, in 1552, the town of Maldon in parliament; Peterburgh in 1554; and the county of Northampton in 1556; as alſo in all the parliaments of Qu. Elizabeth, till his deceaſe, which happened 31 May 1589. He lyes buried in the chancel of Great St. Bartholomew's church London. By his Lady, Mary, daughter of William Walſingham Eſq; and ſiſter to the famous Sir Francis Walſingham, which dyed 16 March 1576, he had two ſons, Sir Antony, who ſucceeded him in his eſtates at Apthorp; and Humfrey: and three daughters, Winifred, married to William Fitz-williams, anceſtor of the Lord of that name; Martha, to William Bronckard of Wiltſhire, anceſtor to the Lord Bronckard; and Chriſtian, to Charles Barret of Aveley Eſq; anceſtor to the preſent Lord Dacre, afterwards to Sir John Leveſon of Kent, Kt.

Humfrey Mildmay Eſq; the ſecond ſon, was of Danbury-place, a fine ſeat erected by his father. He married Mary, daughter of Henry Capel of Hadham in Hertfordſhire Eſq; and dying 9 Aug. 1613, was interr'd in the north iſle of Danbury-church [B]. His wife outlived him till 12 Octob. 1633, being 73 years old, and lyes by him in the ſame iſle. They had one daughter, Mary, wife of ... Ducket of Cambridgeſhire; and five ſons. Humfrey, John, Antony, Walter, and Sir Henry Mildmay of Wanſtead Kt. Maſter of the Jewel-office to K. Charles I. and one of his Judges. [Concerning whom ſee under Wanſtead.]—— Sir Humfrey Mildmay, of Danbury Kt. ſucceeded his father, being at that time 20 years old, and was High-ſheriff of this county 11 Car. I. He married Jane, daughter of Sir John Crofts of Saxam in Suffolk, and by her had iſſue, John, Humfrey, Edward, Antony; and a daughter, Cecily, that was married, firſt, to ... Haines, ſecondly to Robert Mildmay of Terling Eſq;—John, the eldeſt ſon, born in 1622, married Mary, daughter of James Bancroft of Derbyſhire Eſq; but dyed leaving no iſſue by her. She afterwards became the wife of Robert Cory D. D. Rector of this pariſh, and Margaret Roding, and Archdeacon of Middleſex, that dyed 2d March 1704, by whom ſhe had a daughter —Mary, that was married to William Fytch of Woodham-Walter Eſq;—John Mildmay had left to his ſaid wife Mary, theſe maners, and Danbury-place; with the maner of Fingrith in Blackmore; and from her they paſſed to her daughter, and ſo into the Fytch-family.

But, before his deceaſe, John Mildmay, and Mary his wife, above mentioned, ſold the demeſnes of St. Cleres, with the advowſon of the church, to—Henry Mildmay of Graces in Little Badow [of whom ſee an account in that pariſh.] and from him they came to his 3d daughter—Elizabeth Waterſon, who left them, with her other eſtates, to Edmund Fowler Eſq; He dyed 25 July 1751, leaving an only daughter, named—Frances.

The manſion-houſe is about half a mile from the Church.

3. The Maner of BRETTON.

William de Bohun, Earl of Northampton, held this maner, in 1360 (o). As did—Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex in 1382 (p).

After that, it went, probably, along with the other eſtates, and came into the Darcy-family; of whom—Robert, in the time of K. Henry V, made it part of the endowment of his three Chantries founded here, and three others founded in All-Saints at Maldon. Upon the ſuppreſſion, K. Henry VIII. in 1543, granted the maner of Bretton-hall, with the appertenances, and all hereditaments in Danbury, Maldon, Sandon, Woodham-Ferrers, and Fairſtead, which did belong to thoſe ſix Chantries founded in Danbury and Maldon, commonly called Darcy's Chantries, to Thomas Darcy and his heirs. And he had licenſe, 6 Aug. 1546, to alienate this eſtate to—Antony Stapleton (q).

There is not now any ſuch maner as Bretton in this pariſh: and even the very name is forgot among the inhabitants.

4. The maner of Danbury, alias RUNSELLS, is a hamlett in this pariſh, formerly belonging to the ſee of Canterbury; on which account the Spiritual juriſdiction of it was under the Dean of Bocking.

Afterwards it came into the Rich family, and by Richard Earl of Warwick was ſold to

.... Weſtern of Rivenhall Eſq;

It is now in Mrs. ... Dolliffe, whoſe maiden name was Weſtern.

The manſion houſe is a mile from the church.

This maner is a member of Mayland-hall in Dengey-hundred, to which Court the Tenants appear, and do ſuit and ſervice.

5. Stodley-wood; and a farm-houſe near it, belong to Lord Viſcount Barrington.

[B] At the time of his deceaſe, he held the maners of Cleres and Herons; Danbury-park; and advowſon of the church: And two Chantries and one Guild, with lands belonging to them. Alſo, the maner, or late Priory, of Bicknacre. Bowers farm in Woodham-Walter; the maner of Cannon-Barnes in Eaſt Hanningfield; Lords lands in Danbury; Stubbers in the ſame pariſh; a meſſuage and lands called Forſters; the maner of Fingrith-hall in Blackmore; Ripley-marſh in Berking and Dagenham; the Advowſons of the churches of Woodham-Ferrers, and Steple; a meſſuage in Alderſgate-ſtreet, London, &c. Inquiſ. 11 Jac. Octob. 16.

Charitable Gifts.

Lands, given, firſt, for the reparation of the Church, and then for the relief of ſuch indigent poor people as the feoffees ſhould think fit. Thoſe lands lye in Danbury, Purley, Cold-Norton, and Woodham-Walter. In a deed dated 6 Ed. II, it appears, that John Landiſdale, and Margaret his wife, were donors of the lands lying in Purley.——Theſe lands are now lett for 12 l. 10 s. per ann. and applied to the proper uſes.

The feoffees erected formerly a ſmall Alms-houſe for two families, on the South ſide of the common.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. John the Baptiſt, conſiſts of a body with two iſles, and a chancel; all tyled. At the Weſt end is a Tower of ſtone, with a ſpire ſhingled, but leaded at the upper part. In it are 5 bells.

As it ſtands high and expoſed, it hath ſometimes ſuffered by ſtorms of thunder and lightning; particularly, 24 May 1402, when the body of the Church, and half the Chancel, were deſtroyed (r) [C]. And again 5 Febru. 1749-50, when the top of the ſpire was ſet on fire by lightning, which burnt downwards about twenty feet.

This Rectory was anciently divided into two portions, or moieties, on account of the fruitfulneſs of the fields, the largeneſs of the pariſh, and the multitude of the pariſhioners (s): one of which portions was given, by William de Mandeville, Earl of Eſſex, who dyed in 1190, to the Convent of St. Bartholomew in Weſt-Smithfield, London; and the other was in lay-patrons; each of which continued ſeverally to preſent till 31 May 1440, when the two portions were united by Robert Gilbert biſhop of London. And from that time they have been but one Living (t).

The Advowſon is appendent to the maner of St. Clere's (u).

Robert, Abbot of St. John's Colcheſter, and the Convent there, gave, 3 Edw. II, licenſe to John ſon of Simon, and Robert de St. Clere Kts. to give all their lands in Munden, holden of the ſaid Abbot's fee, in pure alms, to the Chapel at Denewbury, for the ſoul of William de St. Clere. Witneſſes, Roger Baynard, John de Prayers, Kts. Robert de Gybberaks, Hugh de Lachenden (w).

There were alſo three perpetual Chantries in this church, founded by the Darcyes, and called Darcyes Chantries, two whereof were dedicated to St. Mary, and the other to St. John the Baptiſt. — And here, moreover, was another Chantry, founded by Richard Waldryan (x).

In the North wall of the North iſle of the church are two arches; in each of which is a man in armour, cut in wood, lying upon his back, and croſs-legg'd, which is a ſign that they were engaged in the cruſades. According to tradition, they are two of the Darcies (y). But it is more likely they belong to the St. Cleres, who held lands here from K. Stephen's to Edward the Second's time, when the Holy War was in vogue; and probably founded this north iſle. Whereas the firſt of the Darcys who had Danbury, dyed in 1428, which was 137 years after the end of the Holy War [D].

On the top of Danbury-hill, there are the remains of an ancient Camp, of which an exact draught hath been taken.

8. WOODHAM-FERRERS, is one of theſe three Pariſhes, near one another, that bear the name of Wodeham, or Woodham; becauſe undoubtedly, when firſt the Churches were founded, they were placed among Woods; wherewith this County was almoſt covered. And this has the diſtinguiſhing appellation of Ferrers, becauſe that noble family were owners of the moſt conſiderable part of the Pariſh.

In records, it is written as above, and alſo Udeham, and Wodham.

Before the conqueſt it was in one Bundi; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, in Henry de Ferrariis, or Ferrers [E].

The capital maner of this pariſh continued long in that noble family. And there are, or have been, the following ſubordinate ones. 1. The maner of Champeynes, alias Champions. 2. — of Edwards. 3. — of Jackletts, Ilgars, and Joyes. 4. — of Olliffes, alias Olivers. 5. — of Wicombs, alias Wickhams. The ſite of Bicknacre-Priory was alſo in this pariſh.

1. The maner of WOODHAM.

The manſion-houſe ſtands near the road leading from Danbury to Woodham-Ferrers church, about a mile from the church; and was ſurrounded with a large moat: It is now only a plain farm houſe.

Henry de Ferrers, above mention'd, who held this maner at the time of the general ſurvey, was ſon of Gualcheline de Ferriers a noble Norman: And he had alſo four other Lordſhips in this county (z). Eugenulf and William, his two eldeſt ſons, dying before him, he was ſucceeded by his youngeſt — Robert, who, for his valour at the battle of the Standard in Yorkſhire againſt David king of Scotland, was created by K. Stephen Earl of Derby in 1138, and dyed the year following; leaving, by Hawiſe his wife, —— Robert, who ſtyled himſelf Robert the younger Earl of Ferrers, and younger Earl of Nottingham (a). — William, his ſon and heir ſucceeded him, being poſſeſs'd of no leſs than 79 knights-fees; and by Margaret, daughter and heir of William Peverell of Nottingham, had Robert, Earl Ferrers, who married Sibilla, daughter of William de Braoſe of Brecknock; by which he had, Melicent wife of Roger Lord Mortimer of Wigmore; and Agatha, concubine to K. John, and by him mother to Joane married to Llewellyn Prince of Wales: As alſo his ſon and heir —William, Earl Ferrers, whom K. Richard I. deprived of his poſſeſſions, giving them to his own brother John Earl of Mortain. But he ſoon regained them again, and attended that king to the holy land, where he dyed at the ſiege of Acon, in 1191. By his wife, alſo named Sibilla, he left iſſue—William, his ſon and heir; who was ſolemnly created Earl of Derby by K. John, in the firſt year of his reign [F]. He held Wodeham with the appertenances, as part of his Barony, by the ſervice of ſeven knights fees (b). And had licenſe, 19 Hen. III, to aſſart and impark his wood at Woodham, within the foreſt of Eſſex (c). He dyed the 31ſt of the ſaid King, having had by Agnes, one of the daughters and co-heirs of Ranulph Earl of Cheſter,— William, his ſon, Earl of Derby. This William took for his firſt wife, Sibil, one of the daughters and coheirs of William Mareſchal Earl of Pembroke, by whom he had ſeven daughters. His ſecond wife was Margaret, one of the daughters and coheirs of Roger de Quinci Earl of Wincheſter; by whom he had Robert, who ſucceeded him in the Earldom of Derby, being the laſt of this family by whom it was enjoyed: And

William, on whom he ſettled, 12 Decemb. 1251, the maners of Wodham, Stebbing, and Fairſtead, with a meſſuage in Cheche, or St. Oſith, by the ſervice of five knights fees. He dyed 22 March 1254, and his counteſs enjoyed theſe maners after his deceaſe, in dower (d): with the conſent of her ſon, William laſt mention'd: Who having of her gift the maner of Groby in Leiceſterſhire, [that came to her upon the partition of her father's inheritance, viz. Roger de Quinci Earl of Wincheſter] he and his poſterity ſeated themſelves there; and thence took their title. He departed this life the 16th of Edw. I, poſſeſs'd of the maners of Wodham, Stebbing, and Fairſtead, in Eſſex; Groby, and Roteby, in Leiceſterſhire; Newbottle in Northamptonſhire; and Bolton in Lancaſhire: and having married Joan, daughter of Hugh le Deſpenſer, he had by her, Anne, wife of John Lord Grey of Wilton; and — William, his ſon and heir, then aged ſeventeen; Eleanor his ſecond wife ſurviving, which had the maners of Woodham-Ferrers and Stebbing aſſign'd her by the King, till her dowry ſhould be ſet forth (e). William, laſt mention'd, was ſummon'd to Parliament the 25th of Edw. I. (f) and dyed the 18th of Edw. II, leaving—Henry Lord Ferrers, his ſon and heir, twenty two years old; who was poſſeſs'd of the maners of Stebbing and Woodham, holden of the Earl of Lancaſter by the ſervice of two knights fees (g). He procured, in 1338, a charter for a Market every Thurſday at his maner of Woodham-Ferrers; with a fair yearly on the eve and day of St. Michael, and two days following (h). He dyed in 1343; leaving iſſue by his wife Iſabel, one of the three daughters and coheirs of Theobald de Verdun, —— William, Lord Ferrers of Groby (i); who had two wives. 1. Margaret, daughter of Robert de Ufford, Earl of Suffolk. 2. Margaret, daughter of Henry de Percy, and widow of Gilbert de Umfranvil Earl of Angus (k). He departed this life in January 1371, poſſeſs'd of Woodham-Ferrers, Stebbing, and Merks in Dunmow, &c. and his ſecond wife was jointured in theſe (l). — Henry, his ſon and heir by his firſt wife, inherited part of the eſtate of his uncle William de Ufford Earl of Suffolk. He demiſed his eſtates in Eſſex to the Biſhop of London, William de Burgh Kt. and others. And dyed 3 Febr. 1387. leaving, by Joan his wife daughter of Thomas Lord Poynings— Henry, his ſon and heir then in minority, of whom little is ſaid, and even the time of his death is not recorded (m).—William his ſon ſucceeded; and dyed 18 May 1445 (n). By Elizabeth his wife he had two ſons,— Henry, who dyed before him, leaving only one daughter— Elizabeth; and Thomas, who had all the lands that were entail'd on the heir male. [See an account of him under Champeyns.]

Elizabeth, the daughter juſt now mention'd, was married to Sir Edward Grey Kt. ſecond ſon of Reginald Lord Grey of Ruthin; who in her right took the title of Lord Ferrers of Groby, and was ſummon'd to parliament as ſuch, 27 Hen. VI. He dyed 18 Dec. 1457, leaving—— Sir John Grey Kt. his eldeſt ſon and heir 25 years of age (o); Edward, afterwards created Lord Liſle &c. Sir John married Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter of Richard Widville Earl Rivers, by which he had two ſons, Sir Thomas, and Sir Richard, both knights. He was ſlain 17 Febr. 1460, in the ſecond battle of St. Albans, fighting for K. Henry VI. His widow became afterwards the Queen of King Edward IV. (p) By whoſe favor —Sir Thomas was created, 24 Aug. 1471, Earl of Huntingdon, and 18 April 1475, Marquis of Dorſet (q). In the 1ſt of Richard III. he was attainted of high-treaſon; but eſcaping into

[F] He was created by charter, dated 7 July 1205, and girt with a ſword by the King's own hands, being the firſt mentioned to have been ſo: With a grant of the third penny, of all pleas holden before the ſheriff of the county of Derby, to himſelf, and his heirs. Bretagne, he returned to England after K. Henry VII. was ſettled upon the throne, by whom he was reſtored to his honors and eſtates, and made a privy counſellor (r). He dyed 30 Aug. [G] 1501. By Cecily, daughter and heir of William Lord Bonville, he had ſeven ſons, and eight daughters.—Thomas, his eldeſt ſon and heir, Marquis of Dorſet, dyed 10 . . . . 1530, ſeized of the maner of Woodham-Ferrers. By Margaret his wife, daughter of Sir Robert Wotton of Bocton in Kent Kt. he had 4 ſons, Henry; John Grey of Pirgo in Eſſex; Thomas; Leonard. And three daughters, Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Lord Audeley of Walden, Lord Chancellor of England; Catharine of Henry Fitz-Alan Earl of Arundel; and Anne of Henry Willoughby of Wollaton in Nottinghamſhire Eſq;—Henry, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded to his father's honors; but it is doubtful whether he ſucceeded to this maner, as we ſhall ſhew preſently, after having juſt mentioned his Marriages and Iſſue. He had two wives, 1. Catharine, daughter of William Fitz-alan Earl of Arundel, which brought him no children. 2. Frances, eldeſt daughter of Charles Brandon Duke of Suffolk by Mary [third daughter of K. Henry VII, and widow of Lewis the Twelfth king of France] by which he had, the Lady Jane Grey, proclaimed Queen after the death of K. Edward VI, but ſoon after beheaded; Catharine, married to Henry eldeſt ſon of William Earl of Pembroke, and, being divorced from him, remarried to Edward Seymour Earl of Hertford; and Mary to Martin Keys. This Henry, Marquis of Dorſet, was created Duke of Suffolk 11 Octob. 1551: But, for joining Sir Thomas Wyatt, was beheaded, 23 Febr. 1554 (t). He appears not to have been poſſeſs'd of this maner:

For Sir Thomas Audeley, Baron of Walden, who dyed 8 May 1544, had, among other great eſtates, the maner of Woodham-Ferris, and a paſture or Marſh called le Mowthe, worth 56 l. 10 s. per ann. (u) He ſettled it upon his brother—Thomas Audeley Eſq; whoſe ſon—Thomas, dyed ſeized of it 31 Decemb. 1572 (w). As did his ſon—Robert, 27 Septemb. 1624 (x). And—Sir Henry Audeley Kt.—As alſo his two ſons ſucceſſively—Thomas, and—Henry Audeley, Eſqrs. [H] The latter, about the beginning of this century, ſquandering away his eſtates. This was purchaſed by Mr. Stuteville of Cambridgeſhire. And in 1743, Thomas Stuteville of Newmarket Gent. ſold it to Mr.

Joſeph Strutt of Moulſham-mills near Chelmsford.

2. The maner of CHAMPEYNES, alias CHAMPIONS, or CAMPIONS, took its name from a family. For—William Champayne, who dyed in 1356, held, with Alice his wife, a maner called Champaynes, in this pariſh, of William de Ferrers, as of his maner of Woodham-Ferrers. —— Margaret was his daughter; under age (y):

We find it next in the Ferrers family: For William Ferrers of Groby, who dyed 18 May 1445, [as already mention'd] held this maner, of Roger Fiſhewyk clerk, Richard Walſhe, and Richard Acton Eſqrs. as of their maner of Woodham-Ferrers [I]: and certain lands and tenements called Ilgers and Lacheleys in this pariſh (z).

Thomas Ferrers of Tamworth, his ſecond ſon ſucceeded [as above mention'd,] and held this maner, and Lands, of Elizabeth de Ferrers, late wife of Edward Grey Kt. Baron of Groby. He dyed the 37th of Henry VI, leaving—Thomas, his ſon and heir, aged 36 years (a); who was afterwards knighted: He departed this life 22 Auguſt 1498; being ſucceeded by his couſin—Sir John Ferrers Kt. (b) who held the maner of Champnons of Thomas Marquis of Dorſet; Ilgars, and Lachleys; and 4 acres of land called Priors and Joys; he dyed 26 July 1511. Humfrey was his ſon and heir (c). But this eſtate was holden, moſt probably in dower by his widow—Maud Ferrers, alias Agard. She dyed in 1514; and—Humphrey, ſon of John, ſon of her huſband John Ferrers, was her heir. (d) This Humfrey held the maner of Champins, Pryors, and Choiſe; and the maner of Ilgars and Lachells, with the appertenances in Ilgars and Lachells. He dyed 8 January 1607-8.—John his ſon and heir (e), probably ſold theſe eſtates to

Paul, Lord Bayning; after whom they were enjoyed by his ſon—Paul Viſcount Bayning: then by—Albery de Vere Earl of Oxford [K], and the Lennard family. [See under Butſbury and Stock.]

The ſaid Lord Bayning compounded for the diſafforeſting of the maner of Campions, with all its demeſne lands and appertenances; and the lands and meſſuages called Burrs, Joyes, Priors, Bridgemans, Spurhawk, Downes, Buſh-croft, Great fields, Sherline; Ilgars, Lacheleyes; and woods &c. in Woodham-Ferrers, Champions, Burrs &c. being then rented at 213 l. per ann. and Ilgars and Lachleyes at 100 l.

Richard Chaſe Eſq; purchaſed the maner and demeſnes of Campions: Which are now in his ſon—Sir Richard Chaſe Kt. of Hadham in Hertfordſhire, Sheriff of Eſſex in 1744.

The maner-houſe is about ſix furlongs from the Church. The Quit-rents are 9 l. 3 s. 7½*d.* per ann.

Within the compaſs of this maner, is a meſſuage and twelve acres of land called Highgates, Heygates, alias Hayes, alias Gardiners, alias Freemans, alias Creephedges; which are part of the Eſtate given to three Preachers in Colcheſter by Henry Batchelor, in 1646. Sir Richard Chaſe was generouſly pleaſed to enfranchiſe them, 8 May 1756.

[I] His great-grandfather Henry had demiſed the maner of Woodham-Ferrers, as we have ſaid above.

[K] This Earl leaſed, or lett, it to Edw. Rigby Gent.

3. The maner of EDWARDS was anciently holden by a family of note, ſurnamed de Wodeham, that had a conſiderable eſtate in this and the neighbouring Pariſhes.

In the 55 of Henry III, William de Woodham held here, of William de Ferrers, one meſſuage, 240 acres of arable, 4 of meadow, and 16 of wood, at the rent of 9 s. a year (f). — William de Woodham, who dyed the 8th of Edward I. held the maner of Wodeham of the Counteſs of Ferrers, by the ſervice of 15 s. per ann. And 56 acres of arable of the Prior of Bykenacre; beſides 10 acres of arable of William Aete, or Ayot, by the ſervice of 4 s. a year (g).—Thomas his ſon, who dyed in 1328, held in this pariſh, 1 meſſuage, 20 acr. of arable, and 3 of wood, of Henry de Ferrars, in ſocage, rent 4 s. per ann. Sixty acr. of arable, 2 of wood, 4 of meadow, and 6 of paſture, of the Abbot of Danneſey [L]; 16 acr. of arable of the Prior of Byknacre; and 36 acr. of William Ayot. —William was his ſon and heir (h).— Edward de Woodham, from whom this maner took the name of Edwards, held it, jointly with Agnes his wife. He dyed the 5th of Richard II. leaving—John, his ſon and heir (i).

We find it afterwards in Col. Wakeling. But it admits of a queſtion, whether it hath not generally gone with Campions: For it is now in Sir Richard Chaſe.

3. The maner of IACKLETTS, ILGARS, and IOYES, have frequently gone with the maner of Campions, as may be ſeen under the deſcription of that maner. At preſent they are ſeparated from it, and are in James Bonnell of Upton, in the pariſh of Weſt-Ham Eſq;

4. The maner of OLIFFES, alias OLIVERS.

Of this I find no particular account, it being unqueſtionably incorporated into ſome of the others.

5. The maner of WICOMBS, alias WICKHAMS.

William Dannebery held this maner of the Duke of Lancaſter, the 16th of Ric. II. (k) This William was a benefactor to Bileigh-abbey, and held alſo, in Woodham-Ferrers, 1 meſſuage, 600 acres of arable, 40 of paſture, 20 of meadow, 20 of wood, and 6 l. rent, of the Lord Ferrers of Groby, by the ſervice of the 6th part of a knight's-fee (l).

Antony Higham, who dyed 15 Nov. 1540, held this maner of Sir William Parre, as of his maner of North-Fambridge. —Robert was his ſon and heir (m).

Stephen Beckingham Eſq; dyed poſſeſs'd of it, 10 Dec. 1571, and alſo of the maner, or capital manſion, called Joyces. ——Thomas, his ſon and heir, was then aged 15. (n)

Edward Elliot, the next owner of Wycombs, and alſo of the maner of Margaret-ing, Newland-hall in Writtle, and the Rectory of Norton-Mandevill, departed this life 26 Dec. 1595; leaving—Thomas, his ſon and heir, aged 22. (o)

It came next, by purchaſe, into the Altham family. [Concerning which ſee Widford.] Sir James Altham Kt. dyed 21 Febr. 1616-17, ſeiz'd of this maner, or ferm, of Wycombs, alias Wikham's (p). His ſon—Sir James, then aged 29, dyed 15 Febr. 1623-24, leaving his ſon and heir—Sutton Altham Eſq; who departed this life 19 July 1630, and was ſucceeded by his two ſiſters and co-heirs, Elizabeth, and Frances (q).

One of them brought Wicombs in marriage to Charles Tryon Eſq; [See under Widford;] whoſe deſcendant— Sir Samuel-John Tryon Bart. ſold it, in 1725, to Thomas Inwin Eſq; and it is now enjoyed by his only daughter—Sarah, married firſt to Henry Earl of Suffolk; and now to Lucius Lord Viſcount Falkland.

Edwin's-hall, about a mile from the Church, was built by Edwin Sandys, Archbiſhop of York, and took its name from him.

BIKINACRE, or BYCKNACRE, vulgarly BITACRE, is a hamlet, partly in this pariſh, and partly in Danbury.

Within that part which lies in this pariſh, are the remains of a Priory for Black Canons, dedicated to [the virgin Mary,] and St. John Baptiſt, built and endowed by Maurice Fitz-Geffrey of Tiretai, ſheriff of Eſſex, at the charge for the moſt part of K. Henry II. (r)

The remains of it ſtand a little out of the road, on the right hand leading from Danbury to Woodham-Ferrers. Part of it ſeemeth to have been new built after the diſſolution. The Chapel, at the end of the houſe, is entirely down. Some of the arches of the Houſe are ſtill ſtanding, and are lofty.

What particular Grants to this Priory appear upon record, are as follows.

K. Edward I. in the 13th of his reign, gave leave to the Prior of Bricknarkre, to impark, or incloſe, his waſte in Woodham-Ferrers and Daningbury, being 60 acres of land (s). The next year, he granted licenſe to Andrew de Woodegrie to give 40 acr. in Eaſt-Haningfeild; to John Toleberle and John Turpyne to give 30 acr. of arable in Dannbery; and to William de Ferrers to give 30 acr. in Steple, to this Prior and Convent (t). Six years after, he granted licenſe, to Robert de Mapreſhall, to give them 30 acres; to John Langehurſt, to give them alſo 30 acres, both in this pariſh: And to John de Maleſho, to give them 30 acres in Danbury (u). In 1336, Richard Badew had licenſe to give them, a meſſuage, 1 carucate of land, 8 acr. of meadow, and 20 acr. of paſture in Woodham-Ferrers (w). And William Danbery, Adam Maylend, Roger Groome, and Robert Parker, to give them a meſſuage, 30 acres of arable, 1 of meadow, and 1 of wood, in this pariſh and Danbury (x).

An Account of the Priors of this Houſe may be ſeen in Mr. Newcourt (y).

About the beginning of the year 1506, this Priory, through the careleſſneſs of its governors, and other accidents, was grown ſo poor, that, at the death of Edmund Goding, the Prior, there was but one monk left in the houſe, and it became in a manner wholly neglected. Whereupon, the Prior and Convent of Elſingſpittle without Biſhops-gate London, procured, 21 April 1509, licenſe from K. Henry VII, to have this Priory of Byknacre, with all its lands &c. united and appropriated to their Hoſpital; which was done the 9th of November following.—But one of this Priory's maners in Woodham-Ferrers, named Prior's, was then, or about that time, annex'd to the Hoſpital of St. Mary of Bethlehem, London (z).

What the ſum of Bikenacre Monaſtery's poſſeſſions were, appears by the Inquiſition taken after the death of Edmund Goding, wherein they are deſcribed to be, The maner of Bikenaker, and 30 meſſuages, 300 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 60 of wood, 500 of paſture, 62 of marſh, and 5 l. yearly rent, with a court leet, and view of frank pledge, in Woodham-Ferrers, Danbury, Norton, Steeple, Chelmsford, Mayland, Stow, Eaſt and Weſt Hanyngfield, Purle, Burnham and Downham; and then reckoned worth 40 l. 10 s. per annum (a). But what the original Endowment was, will appear by the extract below [M].

Upon the ſuppreſſion of the Religious houſes, K. Henry VIII. 3 Febr. 1539, granted the ſite of this Priory, with the maner of Bicknacre, and its appertenances, as parcel of the poſſeſſions of the New Hoſpital of St. Mary's without Biſhopſgate, to Henry Polſted, and Alice his wife, and their heirs (c).

On the 20th of Septemb. 1548, Henry Polſted ſells this maner of Bycknacre to—Sir Walter Mildmay; and a recovery was ſuffered in the March following (d). But his grandſon Sir Humfrey, of Danbury-place, and George Duncomb Eſq; ſold it again to Gobert Barrington Eſq; of Little Badow; and a fine was levied, term. paſch. 1654. It hath paſs'd as the reſt of the eſtates of that family, [of which ſee an account in Little Badow] and is now in the Lord Viſcount Barrington.

Before the founding of Bicknacre-Priory, here appears to have been a Hermitage, which K. Henry II. granted to the Canons of the ſaid Priory (e).

The CHURCH of Woodham-ferrers, dedicated to St. Mary, conſiſts of a body, two iſles, and a chancel, all covered with tyles. At the weſt end is a ſquare Tower of brick, newly built; which contains four Bells.

In the reign of K. Henry II. this church was given, by Robert Earl Ferrers, to Bicknacre-Priory (f); and his ſucceſſor, William de Ferrers, releaſed to them, 20 Dec. 1360, all his right to the ſame (g). However, it was never appropriated to their houſe, but continued chiefly in the gift of that noble family, and other lay-patrons; except in 1517, when the Prior and Convent of St. Mary Spittle without Biſhopſgate preſented (h), tho' how they came to that right is not plain. On the ſuppreſſion, it ſeems to have gone along with the grant of the foreſaid Priory to Henry Polſted, who preſented at the next avoidance. And from Polſted it paſſed to Sir Walter Mildmay, and his poſterity.

It is indeed ſaid (i), that William Earl Ferrers gave to the Monks of Lenton in Nottinghamſhire, all his right to the Church of Wodeham. But that Earl's ſubſequent troubles might hinder this grant from taking effect. For it is not mentioned in the Inſpeximus of Edw. II. wherein all their poſſeſſions are amply confirmed (k).

In our MS. Collections we find it mentioned, that Sir Walter Mildmay gave the great Tithes of this pariſh to this Church. They might be only portions of Tithes, paid out of it to Bicknacre Priory &c. [N].

HANINGFIELD, vulgarly call'd Hanville. The name ſeems to be form'd from theſe Saxon words, Hean, or or Han, Inᵹ, and ꝼelꝺ.

In Domeſday-book, it is written Haneghefelda, and Haningefelda, and in other records Hanenfeld.

There are three Pariſhes of this name, adjoyning to one another, about ſix or ſeven miles South-eaſt from Chelmsford; and diſtinguiſh'd by the ſeveral appellations of, Weſt-Haningfield, Eaſt-Haningfield, and South-Haningfield.

Before the Conqueſt, theſe Lands were holden by one Friebert; one Norman; Oin a Dane; and three other Freemen. At the time of the general Survey, they were in Odo biſhop of Bayeux, William of Warin, and Ralph Baynard [M].

Afterwards the Lordſhips of theſe Pariſhes became veſted in the Montchenſy-family.

The founder of this family, Hubert de Monte Caniſio, or Montchenſy, was, in the reign of William the Conqueror, Lord of Edwardſton in Suffolk (l); and, at the time of the Survey, held Stanſtead-hall in Halſtead, &c. as tenant under Robert Malet Great Chamberlain of England (m). His ſon and heir — Warine lived in the reign of K. Henry I. and left iſſue—Hubert, who married Muriel de Longeva, alias Langtolt, daughter of Peter de Valoines, and had two ſons—William, and Roger. William, in the reign of K. Henry II. held Hanenfeld as part of his Barony, by the ſervice of ſeven knights-fees; which included the beſt part of theſe three pariſhes (n). He married .... daughter of William de Albini Earl of Arundel, and had iſſue—— Warine, William of Edwardſton, and Ralph. Warine married Joan, ſecond daughter and co-heir to William Mareſchal Earl of Pembroke, by which he had—William; and Joan married to William de Valence Earl of Pembroke. He dyed in 1255. William de Montchenſy, Lord of Swainſcamp, married Dionyſia daughter and heir of Nicolas de Aneſty, and had, William, who dyed young, and Dionyſia, his ſole daughter and heir, that was married to Hugh de Vere ſecond ſon to Robert de Vere Earl of Oxford, who became in her right Baron of Swainſcamp, but by her had no iſſue (o). He had licenſe, 27 Edw. I, to enlarge his Park at Eaſt-Hanningfeld, within the bounds of the foreſt, with eleven acres of land (p). His lady Dionyſia dyed 7 Edw. II. poſſeſſed of the maners of Haningfields: Her couſin

Aymer, or Audomare, de Valence, ſon of William Earl of Pembroke and Joan above-mention'd, was her next heir (q). This Aymer dyed 17 Edw. II. ſeiz'd of South-Hanefield by name, and of the Advowſons of the Churches of Eaſt and Weſt Hanningfield. Having no iſſue, his three ſiſters, Anne, Iſabell, and Joane, became his co-heirs: And, upon the partition of his eſtate, theſe maners of the Hanningfields were allotted to his ſecond ſiſter Iſabell (r). She was the wife of John de Haſtings Baron of Bergavenny, and ſurvived him. By her he had—John de Haſtings, his ſon and heir, who dyed 18 Edw. II. leaving his ſon—Laurence de Haſtings, who had the title of Earl of Pembroke given him by K. Edw. III. on account of his deſcent from Aymer de Valence, by his grandmother Iſabell (s). He dyed in 1348, poſſeſſed of the maner of Eaſt-Haningfield, with ſome tenements in Weſt-Haningfield (t).—— John, his ſon and heir, had the advowſons of the Churches of Eaſt and Weſt-Hanyfield (u), and departed this life in 1375, leaving iſſue—John, who was killed at a tilting at Woodſtock, the 13th of Richard II, in the 17th year of his age, and unmarried. His heirs were, Richard Talbott Kt. ſon of Gilbert Talbott, ſon of Elizabeth, one of the daughters of Johanna, one of the ſiſters of Adomar de Valence late Earl of Pembroke—Elizabeth wife of John le Scrope Kt. — Philippa, the wife of John Haleſham, daughter of David de Strathbolgi late Earl of Athol, ſon of David, ſon of Johanna another daughter of the ſaid Johanna ſiſter of Adomar de Valence—and Iſabell, another ſiſter of Adomar, mother of John de Haſtings father of John laſt deceaſed (w).

But theſe eſtates did not deſcend to them: For John Earl of Pembroke had ſettled them on his mother's ſiſter's ſon,

William de Beauchamp, a younger ſon of Thomas Earl of Warwick, who had alſo of his ſaid uncle's gift the Barony of Bergavenny (x). He held all the three Hanningfields, and dyed 8

May 1411. (y) having had to wife Joane daughter of Richard Earl of Arundel, and leaving by her—Richard, his ſon and heir, aged 14, created Earl of Worceſter in 1419. He was a brave ſoldier, attended K. Henry V. in his wars, and was ſlain at the ſiege of Meaux in France, in 1422. from whence his body being brought over, was buried in Tewkſbury-Abbey (z). His mother ſurvived him, and held theſe maners in dowry till her death, which did not happen till 1435 (a). By his wife Iſabell, daughter of Thomas Lord le Deſpenſer, he had an only daughter—Elizabeth, which was married to

Sir Edward Nevill, fourth ſon of Ralph Earl of Weſtmoreland; who in her right became Lord Bergavenny. He held the three Haningfields of the King in ca. as one entire maner (b). And dying 18 Octob. 1476. was ſucceeded by his ſon—George, who dyed the 7th of Henry VII. leaving iſſue—George, who by his ſecond wife Mary, daughter of Edward Duke of Buckingham, had five daughters, and two ſons—Henry, and Edward. The former married Frances daughter of Thomas Manners Earl of Rutland [by which he had an only daughter, Mary, that was married to Sir Tho. Fane]. He dyed 20 Febr. 1586. She laid claim to the Barony of Bergavenny, as did alſo the younger brother—Edward; a diſpute that was not determined till 25 May 1603. long after this Edward's death (c), for he dyed either in 1588 or 1589. His wife was Catharine daughter of Sir John Brome of Oxfordſhire, by whom he had his ſon and heir—Edward, Lord Nevill Baron of Bergavenny, who departed this life 1 Decemb. 1622. By his wife, Rachel, daughter of John Leonard of Knoll in Kent Eſq; he had ſix ſons, and five daughters. His eldeſt ſon—Sir Henry Nevill Kt. Lord Abergavenny, ſold theſe eſtates to John Lord Petre, Baron of Writtle, that dyed 11 Octob. 1635. And they have been enjoyed ever ſince by his Poſterity, of which an account may be ſeen under Writtle.

Thus having given an Account of the capital Maners in the three Hanninfields, as united under one poſſeſſor, or in the ſame family; we come now to treat ſeverally of each of the Pariſhes in particular.

9. EAST-HANINGFIELD.

THIS is ſuppoſed to be the part that belonged to one Norman, in the time of Edward the Confeſſor; and, at the grand Survey, was holden by Ralph Baynard Lord of Dunmow [N].

Henry grandſon of Ralph Baynard, forfeiting this eſtate, by ſiding with the Earl of Maine and others againſt K. Henry I. the King gave it to Robert, a younger ſon of Richard Fitz-Gilbert, progenitor of the ancient Earls of Clare, and Baron Fitz-walter: In which family it continued, till Elizabeth daughter and heireſs of Walter Fitz-walter brought it to the Ratcliff-family.

The chief Lordſhip in this pariſh belongs to the Lord Petre, as hath been already ſhewn. There are two other Maners beſides; namely, 1. The maner of Claidons, alias Haviningfield. 2. The maner of Cannon-Barnes.

1. The maner of CLAIDON's, alias Havining, or Hanning-field, was ſo named from ancient poſſeſſors of the ſame.—Sir William Hanyngfeld was a knight-banneret in the time of K. Edward I. and gave for his arms, or, a chevron ſable (d).

William Claydone, who dyed in 1330, poſſeſſed a maner in Eaſt Hanyngfeild, and certain lands and tenements in Woodham-Ferrers, Sandon, and Danewebery, holden of the heirs of Robert Lord Fitz-walter under age.——John was his ſon and heir (e).

William Hanyngfeild, who dyed the 11th of Richard II. held of the Lord Fitzwalter, one meſſuage, 170 acr. of arable, 6 of meadow, 60 of wood, and 53 s. 4 d. rent in Eaſt, Weſt, and South Hanningfelds, Sandon, and Woodham Ferrers.—William, his ſon, or grandſon, held the maner called Hanningfeld-maner, in the pariſhes abovemention'd. He dyed the 5th of Henry VI, leaving—Elizabeth, Catharine, and Agnes, his next heirs (f).

Sir Thomas Hille Kt. who dyed 23 Sept. 1485, held 1 meſſuage, 40 acr. of arable, 12 of meadow, 100 of wood, 100 s. rent, with the appertenances, in the three Hanningfeilds, called Claydons maner, alias Hanningfelds maner of the Lord Fitzwalter.——William, his ſon and heir, was then aged 24 (g).

William Lathom Gent. held this maner the 36th of Henry VIII. (h)

Sir Edward Sulyard, who dyed 5 June 1610, held alſo this maner of Claydons of Robert Earl of Suſſex, as of his maner of Woodham-Walter (i). See an account of the Sulyard family in Runwell.

This eſtate belongs now to the Lord Petre.

2. The maner of CANNON BARNES.

The manſion houſe ſtands about a mile from the Church, towards South-Hanningfield. But the eſtate lies partly in this pariſh, and partly in that of Weſt-Haningfield; being 140 l. a year.

Sir Walter Mildmay, of whom you have a parcular account under Danbury, dyed 11 May 1589, poſſeſſed of this maner of Canon-bernes, which was then valued at 8 l. a year (k).——Humfrey, his ſecond ſon, enjoyed it after him (l).

It is now in Philip Brooke of Nacton in Suffolk, Eſq; Eaſt Hanningfield Lodge, is another eſtate in this pariſh. The reſt are moſtly ſmall parcels.

Charities.

In this pariſh, is a field of Four pounds per ann. given to the Church and Poor.

And Sixteen pounds a year, out of a Houſe and Lands, for Widows.

An Alms-houſe ſtands within the Church-yard for one Family.

This pariſh alſo, as well as that of Weſt-Haningfield, partakes of the Lady Cæſar's Gift mention'd under Downham.

Abbey-lands.

Andrew de Wodeyre had licenſe, 14 Edw. I; to give 40 acres of arable in Eſt-Hanningfeld to the Prior and Convent of Bikenacre (m).

The CHURCH is a Rectory appendent to the maner. It conſiſts of a body and chancel, both tyled. The ſteeple, containing 4 Bells, is only a boarded frame ſtanding on the weſt end, with a ſhingled ſhaft. At the north ſide of the Church and part of the Chancel, is a Chapel or Chantry built with brick.

Arms] In the ſouth window of the Church, on painted glaſs. Parti per feſſe, nubile, argent and ſable, 3 goats heads couped counterchanged, collar'd, or.

In the weſt window, or that of the Belfrey, are theſe three. 1. Argent, 6 croſslets fitché, ſable; on a chief, azure, 2 mullets pierced, or. 2. Azure, 6 Lionels rampant, argent. 3. Quarterly. 1ſt and 4th gone. 2d and 3d azure, 3 feſſes, argent; on each 8 martlets, 3, 2, 3. gules.

10. WEST-HANINGFIELD, at the time of the grand Survey, was holden by William Warren Earl of Surrey [O].

Beſides the chief Lordſhip, there are in this pariſh the following Maners. 1. Cloviles-Hall. 2. Hanningfield Temple, and Hanningfield Parages. 3. The maner of Peverells. 4. Cherviles.

1. CLOVILE'S-HALL,

ſtands about a mile North-weſt from the Church. This maner takes its name from a very antient family, which is alſo written Colevill and Clonvyle.

William de Clovill held three knights fees of Walter Meduana, in the reign of K. Henry II. —Herbert de Clovill married the daughter of ... Wokingdon, and heireſs of ... Picot.—William de Clovill lived in the reign of K. John (n), and married a daughter of ... Haningfeld. His ſon——William de Clovile, or Clonvile, married the daughter and heireſs of Richard de Goſfeild (o). He had alſo Widford (p). —Robert, his ſon, had of the gift of Warine de Montchenſy all the lands he enjoy'd in Weſt Hanningfeild. His three immediate ſucceſſors, were —Sir William — William, who dyed in 1350.— and Richard, who married Agnes (q) daughter of Sir John Heiron Kt. Lord of the maner of Wickford.— William was next, who had—John, that married the relict of ... Shardelow, daughter and heir of ... Aucher Kt. He was buried at Hanningfeld. — Henry was living in 1421— William in 1431— Henry in 1441. — William in 1462; and his ſon and heir — William in 1486. —John Clonvyle dyed 5 July 1490.—Henry, his ſon and heir by Margery daughter of Sir William Allington Kt. was then aged 26 years, and ſucceeded in Clovill's Hall, and Widford-hall. (r) He married Margaret daughter and coheir of ... Anger of Kent, by which he had—— William, aged 30 years, at the time of the ſaid Henry's deceaſe, which was 10 Dec. 1513. (s) This William married Mary daughter of Sir William Carew, and had iſſue——Francis; Mary wife of John Leventhorp; and Edward, whoſe daughter became wife of William Stokeville, or Stuteville. Frances dyed 3 May 1562. He married Anne daughter of ... Thirkall, by which he had—Euſtace, born in 1541. Priſcilla wife of Roger Bramſton of Boreham; Anne of Francis Greene; Priſcilla of Thomas Ruſh. Euſtace Clonvyle of Clovill's-hall, married Jane daughter of Sir Percival Hart, and had Sir Henry; Chriſtopher; George that came to an unhappy end; Percival ſlain, ſine prole; Elizabeth wife of Edward Laſcells of York; Edward that was living in 1625. In this Euſtace's time, the maners of Clovile-hall and Wykeforts were deſcribed as containing 20 meſſuages, 10 cottages, 8 tofts, 500 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 500 of paſture, 200 of wood, and 40 s. rent in Eaſt and Weſt Hanningfeld and Wykefort (t). Euſtace dyed 16 Novemb. 1589; and it is ſaid in the Inquiſition, that—Percivall Clovill was his ſon and heir, aged 16 years, and ſeiz'd of this maner (u).—Sir Henry Clonvyle of Clovill's-hall Kt. married Anne daughter of Thomas Ryvett of Woodhall in Rattleſdon in Suffolk Eſq; and had Henry, that was living in 1614. Edward, William, Thomas, John, and William. Lucretia wife of John Elmer, nephew and heir of John Elmer biſhop of London; Catharine, Suſan, Jane that dyed without iſſue; Anne, wife of Richard Everard of Badew; Mary wife of Robert Cheſter of Wickford; Elizabeth of William Goldingham (w) of Goldingham-hall in Eſſex — Edward Clovyle of Weſt Hanningfield married Anne daughter of Richard Caermarthen of London Eſq; His ſecond ſon, Henry Clovile of Stiſtead, married Grace daughter of Gilbert Brook of Witham (x).

This eſtate belongs now to Mr. Richard Finch.

John, ſecond ſon of John the firſt Lord Petre, was ſeated in this Pariſh (y).

2. Hanningfield Temple, and Hanningfield Parages, Pages, or Paggetts.

I ſuppoſe it was called Temple, becauſe ſome of the Lands did formerly belong to the Knights Templars; and the other name it undoubtedly took from ſome family.

K. Henry VIII. in 1541, granted the maners of Hanningfeild Temple and Hanningfeild Pages to John Cannon, citizen and merchant-taylor of London (z); who dyed 29 March 1547, poſſeſs'd of theſe maners, lying in the Hanningfeilds and Stock, holden of the King in ca. —Richard, his ſon and heir, dyed 20 Decemb. 1605, and was buried in Rettendon-church (a). Dying without iſſue, he gave his eſtates to his half-brother

Richard Humfrie Eſq; [of which family there is a full account under Rettendon]. This Richard dyed 21 Decemb. 1607. poſſeſſed of the maners of Hanningfeild-Temple, Hanningfeild Perages, and Chervile's.—Richard, his ſon and heir, was then 18 years, 4 months, and 14 days old (b) [P].—Edmund, brother of this laſt, dyed 8 Septemb. 1634. and was ſucceeded by his brother—Richard, aged 40 years (c); who dyed July 7. 1635, poſſeſs'd of this eſtate; leaving—Richard, his ſon and heir, aged 21 years (d). He held Perages, and lands and tenements in Eaſt, Weſt, and South Hannyfeld. They were enjoyed by his two ſucceſſors—Edmund, and—Edmund: The laſt of which dying a batchelor 12 June 1727, left his eſtate in Weſt-Hanningfeild (viz. Parages) to

Humfrey Sidney of Margaretting Eſq;

As for Hanningfeild-Temple, it was next in … Drage.

Daniel Williams V. D. M. bought it of Drage, it being then rented at 38 l. per annum. And, by a codicil to his will, dated 22 Auguſt 1712, he gave the Temple maner to his wife for life: And, after her deceaſe, to the cities of Glaſcow, and Edinburgh, for Almeshouſes. See under Tolleſhunt-Major.

3. The maner of Peverell's, was ſo call'd from a family ſurnamed Peverell.

The manſion-houſe ſtands a mile from the church. By a ſurvey taken of this maner (e) in 1611; it appears, that it contains 308 acres, 2 roods, and 2 perches.

John Peverell, who dyed about 1311, held certain Tenements in Weſt Hanenfend, of the lands belonging to the Knights Templars in England, then in the King's hands, by the ſervice of 15 s. per ann. paid to the maner of Newwood, viz. a capital meſſuage, 73 acres of arable, 2 of meadow, 4 of wood. And he held of Hugh de Vere 120 acres of arable, and 6 of meadow, by the ſervice of 24 s. 3 d. per ann. and ſuit of court.—Hamo was his ſon (f).

William Clovile, who dyed in 1469, had the maner of Peverell in Weſt Haningfeild, Herward-Stoke, and Great Badow; part of which was holden of the Prior of St. Johns of Jeruſalem in England, and the reſt of the Lord Bergavenny.—Edward was his brother and heir (g).

John Tanfield Eſq; who dyed 6 Octob. 1625, held a moiety of the maner of Peverells of Peter Whetcomb, of his maner of Temple-Perages; and the other moiety of William Lord Petre, as of his maner of Eaſt-Weſt Hanningfeild. He married Elizabeth Clovill, by whom he had—Clovill, his ſon and heir, then aged 30 years, and upwards (h).—William occurs next.—Edmund Tanfield ſucceeded him, and was living in 1678.—Daniel Tanfield ſold it to Daniel Williams V. D. M. & D. D. mentioned in the laſt article.

4. Chervile's.

The houſe ſtands about a quarter of a mile behind the church. It took its name from an owner.

About the year 1254, there was a trial between Ernald de Berkeld and Michael de Chervile, and others, about their Common of Paſture in Weſt-Haningfeld, belonging to the free Tenement of the ſaid Chervile (i).

John Wawton, who dyed 25 Octob. 1489, held the maner of Chervyle, and 4 meſſuages, 100 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, 10 of paſture, 5 of wood, and 20 s. rent in Chervyle in Weſt Hanningfeild, of Sir George Nevill Lord Bergavenny.—Cecily his daughter and heir was then aged 3 years (k).

By marriage, or otherwiſe, it came afterwards to John Cannon; when it was called the Hamlet of Chervile's.

Afterwards it belonged to Mr. Humfry, and is now in Humfrey Sidney Eſq;

Near the Church, there is a good houſe, called the Church-houſe, formerly the ſeat of Edmund Humfry Eſq; now belonging to Humfrey Sidney Eſq;

§. In this diſtrict there was anciently a Maner called Bedeneſted, which makes a conſiderable figure in Domeſday-book [Q]: And gave

Charitable Gifts.

Richard Cannon, who dyed in 1605, gave to the Poor of this pariſh, "Five pounds per an-" "num, for ever, to be diſtributed everie Sa-" "baoth day in bread to the Poor of the ſaid" "pariſh."

Mrs. Anne Humſrey, aunt to Mr. Humfrey of Rettenden-hall, gave Forty ſhillings a year, for ever, to poor Widows of this pariſh, that take no collection: To be paid out of Chervile's.

The CHURCH of Weſt-Hanningfield, conſiſts of a body and South-iſle: And ſo does the Chancel. It is dedicated to St. Edward: And was a Rectory appendent to the Maner; In conſequence whereof, it became ſucceſſively in the gift of the noble poſſeſſors of that maner. But of late it has been alienated.

At the weſt end ſtands a Tower, in which are four Bells: and at the top of it is a ſpire of wood.

Arms] On an altar-tomb of ſtone, covered with a grey marble, on the north ſide of the Chancel, are theſe arms, inlaid in braſs. Quarterly, 1. and 4 Clovill. 2 and 3. ermine, on a chief three lionels rampant. Impaling, quarterly, 1 and 4 billité, a Bend ingrail'd, 2 and 3. Three covered cups. Towards the bottom, another Eſcoch. on which, Quarterly, 1 and 4 Clovill; 2 and 3. Three Herons. — This was for Henry Clovill, and Margery his wife, daughter of Sir William Allington, as above mention'd.

In the north window of the Chancel, above this tomb, are three Eſch. I. Quarterly, 1ſt 4th. argent, 2 cheveronels, ſable, each charg'd with 5 nails, or, for Clovill: 2d and 3d. ermin; on a chief, azure, 3 lionels rampant, or. II. The ſame, impaling, quarterly, 1ſt and 4th billité. a bend ingrail'd, arg. 2d and 3d. gules, 3 covered Cups, argent. III. The ſame as the firſt: Impaling, quarterly, 1 and 4 Clovill; 2 and 3, azure, three Herons argent.

In the South iſle of the Chancel, is an old Stone, in which were inlaid in braſs two half figures. That of the Man is gone; but that of the Woman remains, with this French inſcription, in old Engliſh letters.

II. SOUTH-HANINGFIELD.

There is but one Lordſhip in this Pariſh: And we have deſcribed it ſo particularly in the firſt part of this article, as intermix'd with the others, that there is neither room nor occaſion to add any thing thereto.

It paſs'd, as the reſt did, through the families of Montchenſy, Valence, Haſtings, Beauchamp, Nevill, &c. And is now in Lord Petre.

The maner of Baron, alias Barne-hall, extends partly into this pariſh. See under Downham.

South Haning-field-Hall, an eſtate of 140 l. per annum, belongs to Amery Pratt Gent.

Here are two Eſtates named Preſton's. Great Preſton's belongs to Mr. Langley: And Little Preſton's to Humfrey Sidney Eſq;

William Paſcall, ſecond ſon of John Paſcall of Great Badow Eſq; by Mary Noke his wife, [as may be ſeen under that pariſh,] had formerly theſe eſtates. He married Anne, daughter of John Baſſet in Little Badow, by Anne his wife, daughter and heir of . . . Rawſon. And his iſſue by her, were, John; Anne, wife of John Collens of Southampton; Elizabeth, wife of Lee Sadler, of Standon in Hertfordſhire; William, Francis, and Robert, which laſt three dyed without iſſue. — John, the eldeſt ſon and heir, had two wives. 1. Frances, daughter of John Hide of London. 2. Frances, daughter of . . . . Bowyer of Suſſex. By the firſt he had —John Paſcall, of Perſons in this county. And by the ſecond, Nathanael; Tobias; and William: Beſides two daughters by the firſt, and five daughters by the ſecond.

The CHURCH is a Rectory, of late appendent to the Maner. At firſt, it belonged to the Prior and Convent of Ledes in Kent, a monaſtery for Black-Canons of the order of St. Auguſtin, founded in 1119. by Robert de Crevecoeur, and ſo continued till 1401 incluſive. Afterwards it came into the noble families of Beauchamp, Nevill, and Petre (n) — the laſt of which has lately alienated it.

This Church is of one pace with the Chancel, tyled. The tower has at the top a ſpire, ſhingled; and contains only one Bell.

12. RETTENDEN,

otherwiſe written in Records Ratendune, Radendune, Ratyngdon, Retingdon, Retingden, Rettington, Retyndon, Rattendon, &c.

Reȝ in Saxon ſignifies Sad: and Raꝺ, or Raꝺe, Riding, from one of which the name may be derived.

This Lordſhip belonged from the firſt to the Nunnery of Ely, founded anno 673 by Etheldreda, or Adeldreda, as ſhe is named in Domeſday-book [R]. And when a Biſhopric was eſtabliſhed at Ely, A. D. 1108, this eſtate became part of its endowment.

Some parts of it have been holden, under the Biſhop, by the Families of Bourchier, and De la Hay, which have given names to two reputed Maners in this pariſh; though at preſent there are but Two in all, namely, Rettenden-place, and Hall; and Hide-hall.

In the 5th of K. John, the Biſhop of Ely had leave to incloſe his wood of Rattinden (o). And in the 32d of Henry III, he had a Park here (p).

The capital Maner of Rettenden continued in the Biſhops of Ely, till it was alienated, either in the reign of K. Henry VIII, or Qu. Elizabeth.

On the 6th of November 1601, it was granted, by the name of Rattendon, alias Rettingdon, alias Rattingdon hall, to Richard Barrell, and others, to be holden in free ſocage of the maner of Eſtgrenewich (q).

It was next in the Cannon-family. Richard, mention'd under Hanningfeild-Temple, dying without iſſue 20 Decemb. 1605, gave This, among his other eſtates, to his half-brother,

Richard Humfry Eſq; But Richard Bridges who dyed 7 Novemb. 1606, was his couſin and next heir (r). The ſaid Richard Humfry married .... daughter and co-heir of .... Warren of London, by which he had iſſue—Richard of Rettenden, who dyed 21 Decemb. 1607. By his wife Alice, daughter of ... Hill, he had—Richard, then 18 years old, William, and Edmund (s). This laſt Richard dyed 7 July 1635, poſſeſs'd of Rettendon; the maner and farm of Hanningfeild Perages; and lands and tenements in Eaſt, Weſt and South Hanningfeild, holden of William Lord Petre.— Richard his ſon and heir was then aged 21 (t). He married Anne, eldeſt daughter of Sir Henry Hungate of Eaſt Bradenham in Norfolk Kt. and had by her, Richard, Henry, and Anne, that dyed ſingle; Edmund, and Thomas. — Edmund, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon and heir, married Frances daughter of Eleazar Carſwell of Shiffnall in Shropſhire Eſq; by which he had Richard that dyed an infant — Edmund; and Carſwell who lived only till the age of twenty. Edmund dying a batchelor, 12 June 1727, aged 53. gave all his eſtate in this pariſh to William Fitch of Danbury-place Eſq; paying 20 l. yearly for ever for a School to be erected in this pariſh (u).

The maner-houſe lyes North-weſt of the Church.

Humfry's Arms. Gules, a Croſs botonée, argent, charged with 5 pellets, ſable. Creſt. On a helmet, a Torſe, argent and gules, an Arm, armed proper, holding a Croſs botonée fitched, or.

BOURCHIERS.

What occurs in records concerning this eſtate, is as follows. Robert Lord Bourchier, who dyed in 1349, held a meſſuage, 100 acres of arable land, 5 of meadow, and a marſh, in Retindon of the Biſhop of Ely, as of his maner here, by the ſervice of 5 s. (w) — John Lord Bourchier held the ſame, by the ſervice of the 4th part of a knights fee, the 1ſt of Henry IV. (x) As did —Bartholomew Lord Bourchier, who dyed the 10th of the ſame king (y).

It ſeems to have been the ſame as the following, called Lillehaies: Unleſs it were what is now called was denominated from the Hay, or la Hay, family; which enjoyed it, even in Henry the Second's time. They had alſo Layer de la Hay in this County (z).

Ralph de la Haye, in the 38th of K. Henry III, held in this pariſh, of the Biſhop of Ely, 200 acres of land, 7 s. rent of aſſiſe, and 300 opera, [workmen, or working days of the tenents] by the ſervice of one knight's-fee.

William, ſon of William de Montchenſi, was his next heir (a).

Henry Bourchier, Earl of Eſſex, who dyed 4 Apr. 1483, held the maner of Latilhayes of the Dean of St. Paul's. — Henry, his grandſon and heir, ſucceeded (b); and being killed by a fall from a horſe in 1539, left his only daughter and heir—Anne, wife of Sir William Parre, afterwards Earl of Eſſex, and Marquis of Northampton. She dyed 26 January 1570, poſſeſs'd of the maner of Lytlehayes, holden of the Biſhop of Ely (c).

John Cely held it, at the time of his death 7 Nov. 1588. and John was his ſon and heir (d).

It came afterwards into the poſſeſſion of the famous Sir Henry Savile Kt. who made it part of the endowment of his two Profeſſorſhips of Geometry and Aſtronomy, in Oxford. This maner of Little Hays, alias Little Haye, lyes on the channel below Battle-bridge, and has a Royalty belonging to it. The rent is now, or lately was, 85 l. per ann. but formerly 110. The Houſe is but ordinary.

CHARITIES.

There is an Eſtate in this pariſh, called Merks, purchaſed in 1706, by the Truſtees of Edmund Lee Eſq; who dyed in 1705, and gave 1000 l. for putting out five poor Boys of the pariſh of Egham, in Surrey, Apprentices yearly to Watermen. If they neglect to do it, then the profit of it to go to the Poor of Stanes. The Eſtate, when firſt bought, was lett at 50 l. per ann. but is ſince reduced to 40.

A gentlewoman, interred in this Church, under a tomb of free-ſtone, on which was an Inſcription upon a plate of braſs, but now gone, gave Four pounds a year, diſtributed in money by the Miniſter and Churchwardens, the firſt Sunday after Eaſter.

Richard Cannon Eſq; who dyed 20 Dec. 1605, did give and aſſure unto the Poore of this pariſh, Five pounds landes per annum for ever, to be diſtributed everie Saboath day in bread. See Weſt Hanningfeild.

Mrs. Anne Humfrey, aunt to Mr. Edmund Humfrey abovementioned, gave Forty ſhillings yearly for ever to poor Widows of this pariſh that take no collection: And the like Sum to Weſt Haningfeild; payable out of a farm, called Chervile's, or, as I find it in another account, Helmons on the green.

The CHURCH conſiſts of a body and chancel, covered with tile; as is alſo a Chapel, or Chantry, on the north ſide: At the weſt end, a ſtone Steeple embattled, having a low ſpire, tiled. In this ſteeple are 5 Bells.

The Patronage of this Church is in the Biſhops of Ely. 'Tis dedicated to All-Saints.

W. H. Thomlinſon M. A. 1718, upon Frezer's death. Biſhop of Ely.

13. RUNWELL,

otherwiſe Ronewelle, undoubtedly received its name from ſome conſiderable Running Well in the pariſh.

The chief Maner here anciently belonged to the cathedral church of St. Paul's, being given to it by K. Athelſtan; and conſiſted then of twelve manſas, maſions or farms. It appears to have been ſeiz'd at the Norman conqueſt. For K. William reſtor'd to God, St. Paul, and their Servants, ſix caſſatas, or habitations, with land to maintain ſo many families; or ſo many hides, which had been taken away from that church (e).

Two other maners here, were poſſeſſed in the Saxons times, by Leſſtan and Edeva: and, at the time of the general ſurvey, by Euſtace Earl of Bologne; and under him by Lambert, and Adelolf, or Athelwolf [S].

From theſe three, aroſe the following three Maners in this pariſh. 1. The maner of Runwell-hall. 2. The maner of Sandon. 3. The maner of Flemyngs.

1. The maner of RUNWELL-HALL.

The manſion-houſe is about a mile from the Church.

This maner, as we have already ſaid, was in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and continued in them, till the year 1546. But then K. Henry VIII. got it ſome how or other: And on the 9th of December that year, made a grant of it to

Sir Antony Brown, Elizabeth his wife, and their heirs (f). The King's death, that happened in the month following, very likely rendered this Grant ineffectual, on account of its not having gone through all the offices. For, in the 1ſt of K. Edward VI, the Church of St. Paul remain'd poſſeſſed of this maner; when they exchang'd it with

His Majeſty, together with ſome other things, for the maner of Mucking in this county, and the advowſon of the Church; and for the parſonages of Charing in Kent, Therfield in Hertfordſhire, and High Eaſter in this County with the advowſon of the Vicarage (g). They exchang'd it by the name of Romewell in Eſſex, and it was then valued at 37 l. 10 s.

The next poſſeſſor, Edward Lord Clinton, granted it, 4 May 1553, to Sir John Gate; upon whoſe attainder the ſame year, Queen Mary granted it to Suſanna Tonge, alias Clarencieux, widow (h), firſt Lady of her Bed-chamber. By royal licenſe ſhe gave the reverſion of it, after her life, to her brother's ſon

2. The maner of SANDON.

There was a Gentleman of this name, who held an eſtate at Rawreth, in K. Henry the third's reign. And ſuch an eſtate here was formerly, but the memory of it is now loſt; and it is undoubtedly incorporated into the others.

In all probability, it was one of the two Fees holden, in 1210 and 1211, by Simon de Merk, in Ronewell, and Dunmow (m). The latter is to this day known by the name of Merks [T].—Ingelram de Merk had half a carucate of land in Runwell, 43 Hen. III, which was holden under him by Matthew de Mateli (n).—His ſon Robert de Merk enjoyed it after him; till his death, in the 34th of Edward I. (o) as did—Jacomima, Robert's widow, which departed this life in 1340. Her ſon—Robert ſucceeded (p).

K. Henry VIII. granted an eſtate in this pariſh to Cardinal Wolſey, which doth not appear to have been any other than this.

3. The maner of FLEMYNG's derived its name from an ancient Family of that name, whoſe ſeat it was.

The manſion houſe ſtands at a diſtance from the Church, and was formerly very large, but moſt of it is pulled down. It had alſo a park round it.

In 1327, a Fine paſs'd between Robert Flemyng and Alice his wife, and Roger of Dorkceſter deforciant, of the maner of Ronewell, and the advowſon of the church (q). Here lived Robert—and John Flemyng, in the reign of K. Edward III,—Robert in the time of Richard II, and—Thomas in that of K. Henry IV.—Sir Thomas Fleming dyed in 1464, 4 Edw. IV, poſſeſs'd of this maner.—John, his ſon and heir, was then 15 years old (r). He held this maner of the Church of St. Paul; and alſo the maner of Great Sutton, and advowſon of the Church. John dyed without iſſue, leaving three ſiſters, coheirs; Conſtantia, Blanch, and Anne.

It came next by Marriage into the Sulyard family, of which we have this account.

Sir William Sulyard Kt. was of Eye in Suffolk. He had iſſue—Sir John Sulyard, who married Agnes, daughter and heir of .... Fayreford.—Sir John married Dorothy daughter and heir of .... Bacon.—William Sulyard Eſq; married Joan, daughter and heir of .... Good.—John Sulyard Eſq; married Alice, daughter and heir of Sir John Barrington, and had—Sir John Sulyard Kt. made, 22 Octob. 1485. 1 Hen. VII, one of the Juſtices of the King's Bench. He had two wives, 1. Anne, daughter and heir of .... Hungate, by whom he had—Edward his eldeſt ſon and heir. 2. His ſecond wife was, Anne daughter and coheir of John Andrewes of Baylam in Suffolk Eſq; By her he had, John; Andrew, that married Margery daughter and coheir of John Lyſton, and dyed without iſſue; Elizabeth, wife of Sir Edward Baynton; Anne, wife of Roger Apulton Eſq; Alice, wife of William Rous Eſq;—Edward, eldeſt ſon of Judge Sulyard, had alſo two wives, The 1ſt was Elizabeth, or Mirabel, daughter and heir of Thomas Copdowe Eſq; by Anne his wife daughter and coheir of Sir Tho. Flemyng of Runwell Kt. by which he had—Sir William Sulyard his eldeſt ſon and heir, Edmund, Antony, and John. 2. Anne, daughter of John Norrys was his ſecond wife, by whom he had Euſtace, and Mary wife of Sir John Cornwallis. Sir William dyed 25 March 1540, without iſſue: He held two parts of Flemyngs; and of two meſſuages, 600 acres of arable and paſture, 40 acr. of meadow, and 80 of wood, in Runwell, Rettendon, Rawreth, Wykford, Great Stambridge, Ramſden Belhouſe, Downham, and South-Hanningfield; and two parts of the Church of Runwell. Alſo Stubnetts, and Haſſelers, in this pariſh, of the Dean of St. Pauls; and Deux-hall in Lambourne (s). His couſin and next heir was Robert Garneys [V], a deſcendent by the mother's ſide of Judge Sulyard. But—Euſtace, his half-brother, inherited Flemyngs; for he dyed 26 Febr. 1546, poſſeſs'd of it, with the advowſon of the Church; and of Stubnetts, Haſtaleers, and Deux-hall (t). By his wife Margaret, daughter of Robert Forſter, of Little Birch (u), and widow of Gregory Baſſett Eſq; he had—Edward, Mary, Margaret, Jane, Anne, and Briget (w). Edward, the ſon and heir, was knighted, and dyed 5 June 1610, leaving iſſue by .... his wife, daughter of ... Edon of Suffolk—Edward .... Thomas, Elizabeth wife of Sir Francis Harrys Kt. and .... wife of ... Wright of Keldon.—Edward dyed without iſſue, and was ſucceeded by his ſecond brother—Sir Thomas, born in 1573, and who departed this life 9 March 1634. He married Anne, only Matthew de Monteby held, in the 54th of Henry III, half a fee in Ronewell (y).

Robert le Norreys held alſo in this pariſh, 1 carucate of arable land, by the 4th part of a knight's fee, under Philip Burnel that dyed 22 Edw. I. (z)

Linfords is on the left hand of the road from Rettenden to Runwell, almoſt a mile from the Church.

Newland fee alſo is a hamlet in this pariſh.

Almshouſes.

One near the Church, of two dwellings. And another near Rettenden Common, of one dwelling.

The CHURCH conſiſts of a pace, and a South iſle: The Chancel hath a ſouth iſle likewiſe; all leaded. At the weſt end, a ſquare ſtone Tower, containing 4 bells: on the top of the tower, a ſpire ſhingled. This church is dedicated to the Virgin Mary.

The Advowſon of this Church hath been long appendent to the maner of Flemyngs (a). But of late it is in the Pugh-family.

14. MOUNTNEYS-ING, vulgarly MUNNASSING, written in records theſe other different ways; Mountneſing; Mountnaſing; Mountezing; Ging [W], Ginge, Gynge, Gynges, Gyginge-Mounteneye, or Munteney; Yng or Yeng-Mountney; Hynge Mounteney &c.

The meaning of the termination Ing is accounted for below, under Ingatſtone; and the name of this pariſh is diſtinguiſh'd from the two other adjoining Ginges, by the addition of Mounteneys, ancient Lords of the capital maner here. It bore the name of Gynge Monteney as early as Henry the Third's reign (b).

In the Saxons time, this diſtrict was poſſeſs'd by Ingwar; Alfega, and Algar; two young women that were free; and Alwin. At the general Survey, it was holden by Ranulf brother of Ilger, and under him by one William [X].

In this pariſh are the following Maners. 1. The maner of Mountneys-ing. 2. —— of Bacons. 3. —— of Chevers. 4. —— of Cowbridge. 5. —— of Arnold's.

1. The maner of MOUNTNEYS-ING.

The manſion houſe ſtands within a few rods of the church.

The Mounteney family was of great antiquity in this pariſh: For, Robert de Mountenni was one of the witneſſes to the foundation-charter of Thobie-Priory, mentioned lower, about the reign of K. Stephen (c). And is ſuppoſed to have been the ſon and heir of Læcia, eldeſt daughter of Jordan de Brieſete, founder of the Hoſpital of St. John of Jeruſalem near Weſt-Smith-field London (d). This Robert had a ſon named—Euſtace (e).

In 1254, or 1255, Robert de Mounteney was preſented at Chelmsford, for not taking upon him the order of Knighthood (f).—Either he, or his ſon, Sir Robert de Mounteney, dyed the 15th of Edw. I, holding the maner of Gyng-Monteney of the Earl of Glouceſter; and alſo Mountneys in Elmdon.—Ernulph, or Arnulph, afterwards created a Knight Banneret, was his ſon and heir (g).—Sir John de Mounteney is mention'd next. And—Sir Robert held it in 1375 (h).—William de Mountenay, 8 Feb. 1417. obtain'd of K. Henry V, free warren in his lands in Yenge Mountenay (i).

In this family it continued till Henry the Eighth's reign: For, John Mountney Eſq; who dyed 16 July 1528, held the maner of Mountnys-inge, alias Ginge Mountney, 300 acres of arable land, 100 of meadow, 200 of paſture, 100 of wood, and 10 l. rent, in this pariſh, and Hutton, of Robert Peyton, as of his maner of Wydeſkſhoe.—William his ſon and heir was then 30 years old (k).

About the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth's reign, this maner was in . . . Hamon. For —William, third ſon of James Wilford, married Agnes daughter of William Hamon, and held the maner of Mountneſſing in her right. After his deceaſe, ſhe was married again to Henry Wentworth (l).

Soon after, it was purchaſed by Sir William Petre [Y]: And hath continued ever ſince in his family.

2. The maner of BACONS, is ſo call'd from a family of that name.

In the latter end of Edward the Firſt's reign, Edmund Bacunne, and John his brother, had licenſe to incloſe their wood of Gings, within the bounds of the foreſt of Eſſex, and convert it into a Park. That wood, and their maner, were holden of John de Gings, by the ſervice of the 4th part of a knight's fee (m).—Sir Robert Bacon, who dyed in 1375, held, with Alianore his wife, 1 meſſ.' 100 acres of arable, 12 of paſture, 4 of meadow, 20 of wood, in Gynge Mounteneye of Sir Robert de Mounteney Kt. in ſocage. —— Bartholomew was his ſon and heir (n).

Sir William Capell, who dyed 6 Septemb. 1514, held this maner of John de Mountney.—Giles was his ſon and heir (o). He was anceſtor to the preſent Earl of Eſſex.

Sir William Petre purchaſed it ſoon after, (it being holden of the Earl of Oxford, as of his maner of Ging-Monteny) and dyed poſſeſs'd of it, 13 Janu. 1571 (p). It hath continued ever ſince in his poſterity. And John Lord Petre, who dyed 11 Octob. 1613, held This, as well as the maner of Mountnes-ing, of the King, of his Honor of Clare.

3. The maner of CHEVER's, derived that name from a Family ſurnamed Capri, or de Capra; converted afterwards into the French name Chevre, or Chevere, a Goat.

I find, that in 1206, the 8th of K. John, a fine paſſed between Nicolas Capri, and Hamo Capri, of this place (q).

Hamo Chev'e held half a Fee in Ging Mountney, of Gilbert Earl of Clare, that dyed the 8th of Edward II. (r) — This Hamo, or another, held the ſame of Mary Counteſs Mareſchall who dyed in 1362 (s).—Hamo Chevre held likewiſe half a fee here, of Edmund Mortimer Earl of March, who dyed the 22d of K. Richard II. (t) — And Hamo Chever held the like, (in Ging Monteney and Gedyng, as the Record expreſſes it) of John Duke of Norfolk, who dyed the 11th of K. Henry VI. (u).

4. The maner of COWBRIDGE extends to the Red Lion inn at Bellerica, and coming up as far as the Watch-houſe, goes down the lane called Tye-lane that leads to Burntwood.

It was in one Alwin, under the Saxons government; but, at the time of the general ſurvey, the owner of it was Ranulf brother of Ilger [Z]; as we have obſerved above.

A Family took their ſurname from it; for we find Richard de Cobrige mentioned in a deed of Roger de Ginges, in the reign of K. Henry III.

This maner became part of the poſſeſſions of the Abbey of Stratford Langthorn: which obtained free-warren for this their maner in Ginges Mounteney (w). After the ſuppreſſion of Monaſteries, it came into the poſſeſſion of Sir Richard Riche, who alienated it, 4 March 1545, to Sir William Petre, for the ſum of 453 l. 10 s. It was then valued at 20 l. a year (x).

Here are two Farms of this name, great, and little Cowbridge; but the former only is a maner. They both belong to the Lord Petre.

5. The maner of ARNOLD's, is ſuppoſed to have taken its name from Sir Arnulph, or Ernulph, de Mounteney, whoſe ſeat it is reported to have been.

The manſion houſe lies about half a mile out of the London road, on the left hand going from Chelmsford. The Building is large, and ſhews great antiquity.

I find no mention of this Eſtate till K. Henry the Seventh's reign. In the 9th of that King, 3 Sept. 1493, Henry Elvedon Eſq; dyed, holding the maner of Arnolds, of William Capel. —— Dionyſia was his daughter and heir, one year old (y). In the 20th of the ſame King, 9 December 1504, — Dionyſia Spark widow, (very probably Elvedon's relict, married again to one Spark) dyed, and held this maner of Sir William Capell, of his maner of Bacons by fealty. —Dionyſia Elvedon was her daughter and heir, twelve years old (z).

The next poſſeſſor that occurs in records, was John Brock Eſq; For in Trinity-term 1569, a writ was iſſued out, directed to the ſaid John Brock Eſq; and the Lady Anne his wife, daughter to John Vere the fifth Earl of Oxford of that name, late wife of Edmund Lord Sheffield, to deliver to — John Thomſon Eſq; the maner of Arnolds, alias Arnold's-hall, with the appertenances, and 4 meſſuages, 4 cottages, 4 tofts, 2 mills, 2 dove-houſes, 4 gardens, 4 orchards, 200 acres of arable, 120 acres of meadow, 400 acres of paſture, and 20 acres of wood, 100

It was next in the family of Pert. John Peert of Arnolld's-hall dyed 17 December 1583, and is buried in the chancel of this church.

This family was originally of Yorkſhire; but a branch of them came and ſettled in London, where they were Merchants (b).—William Pearte, ſon of George, of London, dyed 17 Aug. 1616, poſſeſs'd of the maner and capital meſſuage of Arnolds-hall, and 200 acres of arable, meadow, and paſture belonging to that meſſuage; holden of William Lord Petre, of his maners of Mountneſyng-hall and Bacons; — William, his ſon and heir, being then 30 years old, and upwards (c). His other children, by Margaret his wife, daughter of John Rigges of Fulbeck in Lincolnſhire, were George, Henry, and Anne wife of John Ward of Norfolk. William, the eldeſt ſon, was High-Sheriff of Eſſex, the 18th of K. James I. (d) He had two wives, 1. Iſabell, daughter of Tho. Conyers of Barnet in Middleſex Eſq; by which he had Margaret, married to John Burton of Tenham in Norfolk. By his 2d wife, ... daughter of Sir Henry Doiley of Shotteſham, he had, Henry, George, Edmund, and Charles. Edmund dyed 17 July 1676, aged 50, and was buried in this church; having had ſix daughters by his wife, Abigail, daughter of John Grigbie of Lynn.—Henry, the eldeſt ſon, married Frances, daughter of Sir Arthur Herris of Crickſea Kt. and had William; Henry, a merchant at Surinam, where he dyed; George, of Braſen-noſe-college in Oxford, and of the Temple; Arthur, a clergyman; Anne, wife of Mr. Meers merchant in London; Elizabeth, Mary, Dorothy, and Alice. He dyed 2d July 1671. aged 56, and is buried in the ſouth iſle of this church. — William, his eldeſt ſon, married Elizabeth daughter of William Foſter of Aldermarſton in Berkſhire, and heir to her brother Sir Humfrey Foſter Bart. and had iſſue — Elizabeth, which had two huſbands: 1. William Foſter of Bamborough-caſtle in Northumberland, uncle to General Foſter; who dyed without any child by her. 2. William Lord Stawell, by whom ſhe had, William, who dyed in France Febr. 1739-40, without iſſue; and Charlotte, which was married, 3 Sept. 1750, to the Right Honourable Henry-Bilſon Legge Eſq; late Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Her father, William Lord Stawell, dyed 13 April 1755. And her grandmother, after the death of her huſhand William Foſter Eſq; having taken to her ſecond huſband Henry Kelſall Eſq; one of the Directors of the Eaſt-India company, dyed at Arnold's, 17 Janu. 1734-5. being the laſt of the Pert-family [¶].

Other Eſtates in this pariſh.

John Fancyllan, who dyed the 27th of Edw. I, held in this pariſh of Gynges Mounteney, a meſſuage, 60 acres of arable, 15 of meadow, 3 of wood, and 6 s. 8 d. rent, of Arnold de Munteney, by the ſervice of a pair of gilt ſpurs: of the Abbot of Stratford, 12 d. per ann. and of the Prior of Tobye, 18 acres of land, paying 15 d. per ann.—Robert was his ſon and heir (e).

The diſſolved Priory of THOBY, alias TOBIE, ſtands in this Pariſh.

It was founded in K. Stephen's reign, between the years 1141 and 1151, for Canons of St. Auguſtin, by Michael de Capra, Roeſia his wife, and William their ſon; and dedicated to the virgin Mary, and St. Leonard.

The Founders granted, in their Charter, to God and the church of St. Mary and St. Leonard, in their wood of Ginges; and to Tobias Prior of the ſame; and his brethren there ſerving God; one Hide of land about that church, exempt from all ſecular ſervice; and panage for 40 hogs; and full paſture for all cattle that ſhould be given them; and Tithes of their own hay, and mill; and ſufficient wood at all times, to be taken out of their wood of Ginges aforeſaid (f).

From Tobias, the firſt Prior, mentioned in this Charter, it unqueſtionably took the name of Tobie.

The Patronage of it was in the Mountney-family (g).

This was one of the ſmaller Monaſteries granted to Cardinal Wolſey, in 1525, and ſuppreſſed in order to be appropriated to his two Colleges: The Spiritualities of it being then valued at 18 l. 13 s. 4 d. and the temporalities at 56 l. 13 s. 6 d. ob: in all 75 l. 6 s. 10 d. ½ a year (h). More particularly, its Revenues conſiſted of the maners of Thobie, Ging-Mountney, Bluntswalles, and Cubford, with the Rectory of this Church, and Advowſon of the Vicarage: and 60 meſſuages, 2000 acres of arable land, 1000 acres of paſture, 60 acr. of meadow, 100 acres of wood, and 12 l. 7 s. 9 d. ½ rent, in this and other pariſhes [A].

Upon the Cardinal's præmunire, theſe fell again to the Crown; and the maner of Thoby, with the ſite of the Priory, were granted by K. Henry VIII, in 1530, to Sir Richard Page Kt. (i) and the reverſion of the ſame, in 1539, to

William Berners Eſq; and Dorothy his wife, [mentioned in Frierning]. He dyed 30 Auguſt

1558, and had for ſucceſſors in this eſtate—Thomas his ſecond ſon, who dyed without legitimate iſſue: and—Leonard, the third ſon, who dyed 10 Febr. 1562. leaving a ſon, 1 year, and 5 months old (k). This ſon, in all probability, dyed young. For the next poſſeſſor of this Eſtate upon record, was

Griſild, daughter and heir of William, elder brother to the ſaid Thomas and Leonard Berners. She was married to Thomas Baker Eſq; and dyed 1 Novemb. 1589, ſeiz'd of this eſtate, leaving Richard Baker, her ſon and heir then eleven years old (l).

It appears afterwards to have been again in the Berners family. For one of them, named Leonard, having married Mary daughter of ... Gedge, he dyed, leaving a ſon by her, named —Antony: Which Antony aſſigned her for her dowry the maner of Thoby; and ſhe enjoyed it in 1616, having taken to her ſecond huſband John Butler (m).

We find it next in the Preſcot-family, deſcended from the ancient Families of that name in Lancaſhire:—Particularly, from William Preſcot of Coppulin in the pariſh of Standon in that County; who had iſſue, Thomas, Geffrey citizen and merchant of London, Alexander, Richard, Edward citizen and ſalter of London; and Joan, and Elizabeth.—Alexander, the third ſon, was a goldſmith, citizen and Alderman of London, and one of the Sheriffs in 1612. He had two wives, 1. Martha daughter of John Pemberton citizen and grocer of London, which dyed 26 November 1616 [B]. 2. Anne, relict of ... Houghton Gent. By this laſt it doth not appear he had any children. But by the firſt he had ſix ſons, John, Alexander, Edward, &c. and five daughters, Mary wife of Thomas Hodges of London, merchant; Martha wife of ... Turnour of Totteridge in Hertfordſhire, Gent. Elizabeth married to Dr. Tho. Goodwin; .... to Sir William Leman Bart. .... to Sir Nicolas Criſp Kt. He purchaſed the maners of Radwinter; of Bendiſh-hall in the ſame pariſh; and the maner and Priory of Thoby: and dyed 15 Janu. 1621. His eldeſt ſon and heir—Sir John, was then aged 31 years, and more (n). He married Griſogona, daughter of Sir Kenelm Jenoure of Bigoods Bart. by which he had a ſon that dyed young, and two daughters; as may be ſeen under Radwinter, p. 171.—Alexander, the ſecond ſon, married Iſabella, daughter of Francis Stafford of Warwickſhire Eſq; and had, John, Alexander, Edward, Henry; and four daughters. He dyed 14 Dec. 1671, aged 69. Of his ſons, John dyed 19 Febr. 1656, aged 33 (o), without iſſue.—Alexander, the ſecond ſon, married .... daughter of Humiliation Heaman of London, merchant, and had by her, Alexander; Heaman, that dyed a batchelor; John, that married Elizabeth, daughter of James Silverlock of Ford-place in Stifford in this county; Roſe, wife of Walter Maſters of London, merchant; Iſabella; Mary, wife of Capt. William Lambert; Honor, wife of William Sidney of Margetting Eſq; and Martha, of William Threſher of Billerica. He dyed 28 March 1701. aged 70 (p).—Alexander, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married, for his firſt wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Nathanael Grantham of Stifford Eſq; by which he had no iſſue [C]. His ſecond wife, was, Mary daughter of Sir John Blencow of Marſton in Northamptonſhire Kt. Judge of the Common-Pleas, by Anne his wife daughter of the famous Dr. John Wallis of Oxford, by whom he had, Alexander, who dyed 18 Octob. 1731, aged 22 (q). John, Thomas, Anne, Elizabeth, and Mary. This ſecond wife dyed 27 Novemb. 1741, aged 62 (r).——John Preſcot Eſq; dyed 19 May 1750 [¶¶].

The Church, dedicated to St. Giles, or St. Leonard, conſiſts of a body and two iſles: The Chancel has alſo a ſouth-iſle, or chantry, all tyled. At the weſt end, a wooden frame, with a ſhingled ſhaft, and one bell.

This Church was appropriated to the Priory of Thoby, and a Vicarage ordain'd, of which the Monks continued patrons till their ſuppreſſion. It then coming to the Crown, K. Henry VIII, 18 December 1545, granted, for a conſideration of 400 marks, the Parſonage of Ging-Mounteny, late belonging to Cardinal Wolſey, to Sir William Petre; and the advowſon of the Vicarage; in lieu of the maner of Peldon, which Sir William gave up to the King (s). The Saxon word Inᵹ, which forms the firſt ſyllable of this name, ſignifies a meadow, or paſture; and is part of the name of the adjoyning pariſhes, of Frierning, Margareting, Mountneys-ing: uſed undoubtedly to characteriſe and denote the particular Goodneſs of the paſtures, in this level.— As for the words at ſtone, they plainly import, that Here ſtood, at the time it received that Appellation, one of the Roman Milliary Stones. For it is well known, that the Romans uſed to ſet up Stones in their Highways, to mark the Miles, as is done in our turn-pike-roads; whence aroſe the expreſſion, ad tertium, ad quartum, ab urbe lapidem, three, or four, miles from the city. Whether they began the reckoning of their Miles here, from London-Stone in Watling-ſtreet, one of the great Military ways in this Iſland, is not certain, though very probable (t).

Ingatſtone is found written theſe various ways in Records; Ging, and Yng, ad Petram, Ging, and Yng, at Stone; and ſometime Ging Abbeſs, becauſe it formerly belonged to the Abbeſs of St. Mary's at Berking: on which account it is entered in Domeſday-book, as belonging always to St. Mary's [E].

In this Pariſh are three Maners, 1. The maner of Ingatſtone. 2. The maner of Hanley, alias Hauley. 3. The maner of Wood-Barnes.

Theſe three Maners did all belong to the Nunnery of Berking; founded by Erkenwald biſhop of London, anno 675. and the Celleresſe of that monaſtery was to receive, of the collector of their rents, at Gynge at Stone, on the feaſts of St. Michael and Eaſter, by even portions, 48 s. (u)

In the 13th of Henry III, a fine paſſed for their incloſing Sixty two acres of aſſart-lands, in this pariſh (w).

The Abbeſs and Nuns continued poſſeſſed of theſe Maners till their Diſſolution, when they came to the Crown.

The 15th of December 1539, K. Henry VIII. in conſideration of the ſum of 849 l. 12 s. 6 d. (x) granted the maner of Ingatſtone, alias Ging ad Petram, to William Petre LL. D. and his heirs for ever; and in that family they continue to this day.

Notwithſtanding which, we find in Records, that William Petre Eſq; by licenſe dated 24 October 1540, alienated the maners of Ginge ad Petram, alias Ging-Abbes, and Hauley, with appertenances; and the advowſon of the Church there, to John Browne, and others.—And that, in 1542, the maner of Yng at ſtone, and the Advowſon of the Rectory of the Church of Gyng-Hoſpital, were granted to Edward Earl of Hertford (y).

2. The maner of Hanley, alias Havley, belonged, like the laſt, to Berking Nunnery.

February 6. 1539, King Henry VIII. granted the maner of Hanley-hall to Elizabeth Hill, widow of Richard Hill, ſervant to that King.

From her it came to Sir William Petre [F]. For he dyed 13 January 1571, poſſeſſed of the maner of Hanley, alias Ginge-Petre, in Ginge Petre (z).—And John Lord Petre, who dyed 11 October 1613, held this maner of the King in ca. as well as that of Ingatſtone (a).

3. The maner of Wood-Barnes.

After the diſſolution of the Monaſteries, K. Henry VIII, 22 September 1540, gave this maner to John Smith Eſq; one of his ſervants, and to his heirs for ever (b). He had alſo a grant of Blackmore-Priory.

Sir William Petre is recorded to have alienated this maner, on the 26th of June 1565, to Thomas Smith Eſq;—And, at the ſame time, the ſaid Thomas alienated to Sir William, ſtyled Chancellor of the Garter, a meſſuage, barn or grange, and farm called Wood-grange (c). But for what uſes is not mentioned. However, all theſe Eſtates have centered in the noble family of Petre; of which you have a particular account under Writtle.

Sir William Petre becoming maſter of all the chief part of this Pariſh, made Ingatſtone-Hall the place of his Reſidence: And ſo have many of his ſucceſſors. It is a large and ancient Edifice; ſtanding in a bottom, but, upon that account, well ſupplied with water, and ſtored with fiſh-ponds. They have a finer and larger ſeat at Weſt Horndon. To ſecure to himſelf, and ſucceſſors, theſe and other lands that had belonged to Monaſteries, he procured, 27 November 1555, a Bull from Pope Paul IV. confirming to him and his heirs, The maner of Ging-Abbeſs, or Ingatſtone, and the advowſon of the church; the maner or farm of Hauley-Barnes; the maner, or Lordſhip, of Crondon, alias Crowdon, with the park; the maners, or Lordſhips, of Cowbridge, and Weſelandz, with lands and tenements, in Mountneyes-ing, late belonging to Stratford-abbey; the maner of Eſt-Horndon, with land called Dame Elyns, and the maner of Matching, both once belonging to Waltham-abbey; the maner of Blunt-wall, and Rectory of Ging-Mounteney, belonging to Thoby-Priory; a farm and tenements in Writtle, called Salmons and Borobbes, once belonging to St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter; the maners of Tuddenhin and Sutton, belonging to Weſtminſter-abbey: and the maners of South-Brent and Churcheſtow, in Devonſhire, late parcel of the poſſeſſions of the monaſtery of Buckfaſt. Under pretence, that he was ready to aſſign and demiſe the Rectories aforeſaid to ſpiritual uſes (d).

The Hide is a very good houſe in this pariſh, built by the late Timothy Brand Eſq; High-Sheriff of this county in 1721. He married Sarah, daughter of Thomas Michell of Rickling, Gent. by whom he had a ſon named Thomas, and two daughters, Sarah and Elizabeth. He dyed 25

Charitable Foundation.

On the right hand of the road, leading from this town to Butſbury and Stock, there is an Almshouſe, of brick, for ten dwellers, 7 women, and 3 men, founded by Sir William Petre, 6 July 1557. The Endowment is, forty eight pounds a year, paid out of Crondon-park; an eſtate of eighteen pounds per annum, called Catlyns in Butſbury; ſix pounds thirteen ſhillings and four pence, yearly, out of a farm called Ramſey Tirrels: and eighteen pounds, a year, out of a copyhold eſtate in Frierning belonging to Wadham-college, in lieu of Six cows, two for the Prieſt, and four for the poor people, that were to be fed on the maner of Ingatſtone. The Miniſter is Prieſt to this Hoſpital, and hath 4 l. per ann. — 6 l. in lieu of the two cows, — 15 s. for a livery or gown, and for wood yearly 1 l. 16 s. Each of the Poor hath 6 s. 8 d. a month, 24 s. every year for wood, and 12 s. for a gown. Ten other common poor, that have no dwelling, have 2 s. 8 d. a month out of this charity. On Chriſtmaſs-eve, there is diſtributed 6 s. 8 d. to twenty poor folk of Ingatſtone. — And, on Eaſter-eve, 13 s. 4 d. to forty poor folk. At the auditing of the accounts by the Miniſters of Ingatſtone, Mountneſſing, and Butſbury, to be ſpent 5 s. To be depoſited in the cheſt 2 l. 17 s. 4 d. yearly, towards the repairs of the Hoſpital, and of the Lord Petre's Chancel built for the Poor. The whole Endowment is 90 l. 13 s. 4 d. a year.

The CHURCH, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, ſtands on the Eaſt ſide of the ſtreet; and hath a row of pillars in the middle, which divide it into two paces, that are continued through the Chancel; and are all tyled. At the weſt end is a high Tower of brick, embattled, containing five Bells. Adjoyning north to the Chancel, is a large brick Chapel, erected on purpoſe to be a Burial-place for the noble Family of Petre.

16. BUTSBURY, alias Ginges-joiberd, and Ginge Laundri, is otherwiſe written in Records, Botteſbury, Botulneſbury; Butterbury, and Bictulneſpurie, Botulneſpyrie, and Botulſeſpirie; qu. St. Botolph's-bury.

In the Saxons time, it was holden by one Bond; and, at the time of the general Survey, by Henry de Ferrers; and is entered in Domeſday-book under the name of Cinga [G].

There are reckoned ſeven Maners in this Pariſh; namely, 1. The maner of Blunts, alias Ging-Joyberd-Laundry. 2. Friſtling, alias Thruſtling-hall. 3. Impey-hall. 4. The hamlet, maner, and park of Crondon. 5. The maner of Whites. 6. The maner of Ramſeys, alias Ramſey Tirrel's. 7. Buckwyn's. But ſome of them extend into, and almoſt comprehend, the adjoyning Pariſh of Stock.

1. The maner of BLUNTS, alias Ging-Joyberd-Laundry.

Ging is a little alteration of the word Ᵹe-Inᵹ, of which we have given the ſignification above, and under Ing-at-ſtone: As for Joyberd-Laundry [H], we can give no account of that odd appellation.

It took the name of Blunts, from the ancienteſt poſſeſſors of it upon record, under the noble Family of Ferrers. — For, Robert le Blund held it about the reign of K. Henry III [I]. The 43d of the ſame King, Andrew Blund held, at Ginge-Laundry, a yearly rent of 32 s. and 2 d. two capons, two hens; 140 acres of arable land, 2 of meadow, and 10 acres of wood: And at Gynge-Joyberd, 160 acres of arable, 3 acres of meadow, 10 acres of wood, and 30 acres of outland [forinſeci] wood; and the moiety of the advowſon of the Church of Ginge-Joyberd, belonging to the inheritance of the ſaid Andrew; and a wind-mill (e).

Robert de Blund was attainted, for joining with Simon de Montfort Earl of Leiceſter and other of the Barons againſt the King; and his eſtates coming thereby to the Crown, were granted [namely the maner of Ginge-Joberd and Ginge-Laundrie, with the advowſon of the Church of Ginge-Joberd] to John de Weſton, couſin and heir of John de Weſton (f).

But they appear again afterwards in the Blunt-family: For Hugh Blount Kt. who dyed in 1361, held, with Joyce his wife, the maner of Ginge-Joyberd-Laundry, of William Ferrers Kt. (g) — His ſon, John le Blunt Kt. held the ſame, in the beginnining of the year 1377 (h). And, in the 12th of Richard II, — Thomas le Blounte held lands in this pariſh (i).

As for the FERRERS, Lords paramount of this maner, we find the following account of them in Records.

Henry de Ferrar, who dyed in 1343, had in Gynge-Joyberd-Laundry the 4th part of a fee, which the Prioreſs of Ikelyngton held under him, and the 8th part of a fee in the occupation of Hugh de Blount (k). — William de Ferrers of Groby Kt. held this maner in 1371, and under him Sir Hugh Blunt (l). — His widow Margaret dying three years after in this maner-houſe, was found to have held it of the Duke of Lancaſter, by [H] For Ging, ſee above note [W], page 43. —— Joiberd was the name of a Family. For I find, in an old deed without date, that Emma daughter of Adam Joiberd gave Robert de Frid lands in the village of Ginges.

[I] In the deed which proves this, is the following clauſe . . . contra omnes gentes tam Chriſtianos quam Judeos warantizabimus . . . which ſhews, that it was before the reign of K. Edward I.

by the ſervice of 18 d. a year, payable at the Sheriff's turne in Stock, at Eaſter. — Her ſon and heir Henry de Ferrers of Groby Kt. lett it, for a term of years, to Robert Biſhop of London, William de Burgh Kt. and others (m). He dyed 3 Febr. 1387, and was ſucceeded by his ſon — William de Ferrers of Groby Kt. who departed this life 18 May 1444, having had — Henry, his eldeſt ſon and heir; who left an only daughter — Elizabeth, wife of Sir Edward Grey Kt. to whom deſcended this Eſtate, together with the advowſon of the Church of Herward-Stoke (n).

Of her, Thomas de Ferrers, her uncle, younger brother to her father Henry aforeſaid, held it, as of her maner of Woodham-Ferrers. He dyed the 37th of Henry VI, poſſeſſed of this maner, and the advowſon of the Church of Herewardeſtoke, leaving — Thomas, his ſon and heir, then aged 36 (o). He held the maner of Jinggingeybord and Blounts, of that of Woodham-Ferrers in ſocage; and departed this life 22 Auguſt 1498. — Sir John Ferrers, his couſin and heir, at that time aged 24, became the next poſſeſſor. He dyed 26 July 1511, holding of Thomas Gray Marquiſs of Dorſet, the maner of Blunts, with the advowſon of Stock; and 200 acres of arable, 40 of paſture, and 20 of meadow, in Gyngoberd Landrey, Herford-Stoke, and Butteſbury. — Humfrey, his ſon and heir, was then 15 years old (p).

Maud Ferrers, alias Agard, was next poſſeſſed of this eſtate, and dyed in 1514. Her grandſon — Humfrey, viz. ſon of — John, ſon of her huſband John Ferrers, was her Heir (q). This Humfrey dyed 8 January 1607-8, leaving — John his ſon and heir (r).

From the Ferrers, it came by purchaſe to Paul Bayning Eſq; who was Sheriff of London in 1593. His ſon — Paul was created a Baronet in 1611; a Baron of this realm, in 1627, by the title of Lord Bayning of Horkeſley; and ſoon after Viſcount Bayning of Sudbury. He dyed 29 July 1629 (s), having for ſucceſſor his ſon — Paul, then 13 years of age, who dyed in 1638, leaving only two daughters, Anne and Penelope.

Anne, the eldeſt, was married to Albrey de Vere, Earl of Oxford, to whom ſhe brought this, and other very large eſtates. But having no iſſue, this eſtate came to her aunt,

Elizabeth Bayning, youngeſt ſiſter of her father; which was married to Francis Lennard, Lord Dacre of Hurſt-Monceaux in Suſſex: And had by him two ſons, Thomas advanced to the title of Earl of Suſſex; and Henry. She was afterwards married again to David Walter Eſq; See under Stock. The fourth part of the Bayning eſtate, which ſhe had inherited, ſhe left to her younger ſon — Henry Lennard Eſq; in which was included Blunts-hall, and that part which lay in Stock. By .... daughter of Timothy Haddock of Carliſle, merchant, and widow of Geo. Uſher Rector of Arthuret in Cumberland, he left three daughters, co-heireſſes; viz. Margaret, married to Col. Lanoye, or Lanoue; Catharine to Jones Eſq; and Anne. They ſold Blunts-hall, with the appertenances, in 1745, or 1746, to

The Lord Viſcount Bayning compounded with the Crown, for the diſafforeſting of the maner of Jynjoyberd Laundrie, alias Blunts in Butſbury and Stock, containing above 200 acres, then rented at 111 l. per ann.

The manſion houſe of Blunts ſtands on the right ſide of the road, leading from Stock to Billerica.

2. The maner of FRESTLING, alias Thruſtling; otherwiſe Firſtlinge, and Thyrſtlinge-Hall.

The manſion houſe ſtands about the midway between Stock and Margetting, up in the fields.

At the time of the general Survey, this Maner belonged to the Nunnery of St. Mary's at Berking [K].

Afterwards we find it in the hands of Fitz-Richard and Brudenell. For, Nicolas Fitz-Richard held, in 1391, the maner of Freſtlinge of the Duke of Glouceſter, of his Honor of Mandeville (t).

Drugo Brudenell, who dyed 14 March 1489, held the maner of Thruſtling-hall in Ging-Margaret of Sir Tho. Tyrrell as of his maner of Whitches. — Edmund was his ſon and heir, 21 years old and more (u).

It is now in the Lord Petre.

3. IMPEY-HALL, alias Impeheye.

The manſion houſe ſtands about a mile ſouth-eaſt from Butſbury-church.

This eſtate was part of the endowment of the Nunnery of Ikelington or Ickleton in Cambridgeſhire, founded, about the year 1140, by Aubrey de Vere, Earl of Oxford. It continued in their poſſeſſion till the ſuppreſſion of the Monaſteries (w).

I ſuppoſe, it was for this maner that the Nunnery obtained of K. Henry III. a market on Thurſdays, at Herwardſtoc (x).

Ickleton Nunnery being [in ſome of the Ely-regiſters] ſaid to have been of the foundation of the Biſhops of Ely (y); In exchange for the noble maner of Hatfeild-Biſhop's belonging to that ſee, K. Henry VIII. anno 1538, did grant to Thomas Goodrich Biſhop of Ely, the maner of Impey-hall, in the pariſhes of Butteſbury and Hartford-Stock; and all the maners, meſſuages, lands and tenements in Strethall, Great Cheſterford, Littlebury, Elmyngdon, and Creſhall, belonging to the Priory of Iklington and Swafham Bulbec, and to his ſucceſſors (z).

When it was taken from that Biſhopric we have no account. Moſt probably it was in Qu. Elizabeth's reign.

It hath belonged for a conſiderable time to the Lords Petre.

4. The hamlet, maner, and park of CRONDON.

This Eſtate may not improperly be placed under Butſbury, becauſe it ſeems to make a part of that pariſh: and lieth between it, and Stock, and Margetting. Tho' in ſome reſpects it more properly belongs to Orſet, notwithſtand- it is 16 miles diſtant from it: for it is rated in this latter pariſh, and pays Tithes to the Rector of Orſet; except ſo much of the ſaid Eſtate as is in Stock, and pays tithes to the Rector of the ſame.

Some of the lands come up to the road which leads from Chelmsford to Billerica.

Who the firſt poſſeſſors of this Eſtate were, I do not find: But afterwards it became parcel of the Church or Biſhopric of London (a). In Henry the Eighth's time, it was in the Crown. For that King, October 2. 1545, granted, for 160 pounds, the maner and park of Crondon to Sir William Petre Kt. and it was confirmed to him by act of Parliament; being then valued at 8 l. 16 s. 8 d. His heirs have enjoyed it ever ſince.

What was a Park is now converted into farms. Out of this eſtate, there are Forty eight pounds per annum paid to the Hoſpital at Ingatſtone.

5. and 6. The maner of WHITES, and the maner of RAMSEYS, alias Ramſey-Tyrell's. We join them together, becauſe they belong to the ſame family; the ancient family of Tyrell [L]. The maner of Whites is ſometimes called Whitley, and Whitches.

The manſion houſe is ſituated about midway between Stock and Butſbury, on the right ſide of the road from Stock.

Sir John Tyrell Kt. who dyed the 16th of Edward IV. 1476, held the maner of Whites in Betteſbury of Elizabeth then Queen of England, by fealty, and rent of 2 d. a year. — He alſo held the maner of Tyrell, in the ſame pariſh of the Prioreſſe of Hakelynton, by fealty, and rent of 6 d. per ann. And 20 meſſuages, 200 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 40 of wood, in Bettiſbury, Ynggingberd-Laundry, and Herford Stoke of the foreſaid Queen, of her Duchy of Lancaſter, by fealty, and rent of 4 d. per ann. (b) — Sir Thomas Tyrell, who dyed the 2d of Henry VIII. 1510, held the maner of Tyrells, in Butteſbury, of the Prioreſſe of Hiklington; and Whites, in the ſame pariſh, of Katharine Queen of England, of her Duchy of Lancaſter.—Thomas, his ſon and heir, was then 22 years old (c). He dyed 3 April 1541, holding the maner of Whitley of the Duchy of Lancaſter; and the maner of Ramſeys Tirrell of the Biſhop of Ely, as of his maner of Impey-hall.—Katharine, and Gertrude, were his daughters and coheirs (d).

But it ſeems the heirs male ſucceeded, for—Henry Tyrell Eſq; who departed this life 20 May 1588, was found to hold Whites, of the Queen, as of her maner of Tutbury, parcel of the Duchy of Lancaſter; and the maner of Ramſey Tirrels of the maner of Impey hall.—Thomas was his ſon and heir, then aged 40 (e).

They have continued ever ſince in that honourable family, of which there is a particular account under Eaſt-Horndon.

It is in right of theſe Eſtates, that they have the diſpoſal, every third time, of the Rectory of Stock.

Out of Ramſeys, 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. is paid to the Hoſpital at Ingatſtone.

7. The maner of BUCKWYNS, ſome time called Buckeſkin.

This Eſtate belonged at firſt to the Abbey of Stratford-Langthorn. After its diſſolution, K. Henry VIII, 24 Febr. 1531, lett a 26 years leaſe of it to Thomas Rigge, at the yearly rent of 10 l. 2 s. (f)

The ſame King, in the 31ſt of his reign, alienated the maner of Buckwyns, Whites, and Cowbridge, to Sir Richard Rich, and Elizabeth his wife (g).

On the 8th of February 1540, Sir Richard ſold the maner of Buckwins to Walter Farre, and others.... Notwithſtanding which, he is ſaid to have ſold the ſame, 30 October 1551, to Thomas Marſhe (h). However, it remained in the family of Farre. For Walter Farre Gent. who dyed 20 September 1604, held the maner of Buckwyns of the King in ca. leaving—Henry, ſon of his brother Richard Farre Eſq; his next heir, aged 29. This Henry dyed 15 December 1608. and—Henry, his ſon and heir, was then aged 5 years, 1 month, and 20 days (i).

Afterwards it was in the Taverner family. About 1739. James Taverner M. B. (k) ſold it to

Mr. Vernon, of the Hide, in Frierning, a merchant in London.

The 15th of Henry III, a Fine was paſſed between Ralph de Heyne, and Pagan' Foliot, tenant of one Knight's-fee, and one hide of land, in Ginges Joyberd; but no deſcription leads us to know where it was (l).

Out of an Eſtate in this pariſh, called Catlyns, 18 l. a year is paid to Ingatſtone Hoſpital.

The CHURCH of Butſbury is ſmall, being only, (with the ſteeple,) thirty eight feet long, and twenty one wide, on the outſide. It hath two ſmall iſles, ten feet high from the ground, which open into the church by two handſom Gothic arches. The Chancel is 28 feet long, and 21 wide, on the outſide. At the weſt end, is a ſquare Tower, built of flint and ſtone; on the top of which is a ſpire ſhingled. In this Tower are three Bells.

This Church, dedicated to St. Mary, was of old appropriated to the Nunnery of St. Leonard Stratford near Bow, now called St. Leonard Bromley in Middleſex. By whom this donation was made, I find not: But it was very ancient; for K. Henry the Third confirmed to the Nuns of St. Leonard de Gynges, and the Hermit of Gynges, all the Grants made to them &c. (m) From whence it is plain, that St. Leonard near Stratford had a Cell, or Hermitage, at this place.

Upon the fall of the religious Houſes, this coming to the Crown, was granted by K. Henry VIII, in 1538, to Sir Ralph Sadler Kt. with the Rectory of Butſbury &c. (n)

Two years after, Sir Ralph had licenſe to alienate this Rectory to Sir William Petre Kt. (o) by which means it came into that family.

This Church, is a Donative, or Curacy, with care of Souls; ſerved by ſuch perſon as the owner of the Rectory, or Impropriator, is pleaſed to appoint; being licenſed by the Biſhop. The certified value of it is 14 l. a year. They have divine ſervice here only once in a month or five weeks.

17. STOCK, otherwiſe named HERWARDSTOCK, HAVERDSTOCK, and HERTFORD-STOCK.

FROM what Herward it took its diſtinguiſhing appellation, we cannot learn for want of memorials.— But, as to Stock, the Etymologiſts inform us, that it comes from the Saxon Stocce, a ſtock, or log; which implies, that here was plenty of wood, or that this ſpot was full of the remains of a Foreſt, when it came to be ſettled by the Saxons.

This Pariſh is not mentioned in Domeſday-book: And indeed there is not in it the ſite of any one Maner-houſe. That it was anciently a Hamlet to Butſbury, appears moſt probable, not only becauſe it is incloſed on all ſides, except the Eaſt, by that Pariſh; but, eſpecially, becauſe the Lands in it are holden of three adjoyning Maners in Butſbury; eſpecially that of Blunts.

In the 19th of Henry III, Geffrey the Monk was poſſeſſed of ſome Lands in Ginges Joybert, with the Advowſon of the Church of Stoks (p).

Philip de Burnell, who dyed 22 Edward I, had an under-tenant named John de Wytenham, who held one Carucate of land in the pariſh of Stock (q).

The chief part of the lands in this pariſh became afterwards veſted in the noble family of the Ferrers of Groby, as part of their Lordſhip of Blunts, or Ging-Joyberd-Laundry, in Butſbury; concerning which ſee under Butſbury. From this family it paſſed to

Paul Banning, or Bayning Eſq; Sheriff of London in 1593; of whom, and his poſterity, ſee an account under Little Bentley. He was ſucceeded by his ſon — Paul, created a Baronet in 1611, being the 74th in order; advanced to the dignity of a Baron of this realm, in 1627; and ſoon after to that of Viſcount Bayning of Sudbury. He dyed 29 July 1629 (s) [M], having for ſucceſſor his ſon — Paul, then 13 years of age, the charge of whoſe Wardſhip amounted to no leſs than eighteen thouſand one hundred and eighty five pounds; viz. to the King, eighteen thouſand pounds, for the fine of the wardſhip, and a hundred and eighty five pounds for charges about the ſame. He dyed in 1638, leaving only two daughters, Anne and Penelope.

Anne, the eldeſt, was married to Albrey de Vere, Earl of Oxford, to whom ſhe brought this, as part of the maner of Blunts. But having no iſſue, this Eſtate came to her aunt, Elizabeth Bayning, youngeſt ſiſter of her father; which was married to Francis Leonard, or Lennard, Lord Dacre: And had by him two ſons, Thomas advanced to the title of Earl of Suſſex; and Henry.

The fourth part of the Bayning eſtate, which ſhe had inherited, ſhe left to her younger ſon — Henry Lennard Eſq; in which was included Blunts-hall, and that part which lay in Stock. By .... his wife, he left three daughters, co-heireſſes; viz. Margaret, Catharine, and Anne (t). They ſold Blunts-Hall, with the appertenances, in 1745, or 1746, to

Lady Comyns, widow of Sir John Comyns Kt. late chief Baron of the Exchequer. And Mary widow of John Comyns Eſq; is jointured in it; after whoſe deceaſe it is to deſcend to — John Richard Comyns Eſq;

The Lord Viſcount Bayning compounded with the Crown, for diſafforeſting Buſhy-lees, 70 acres; Stock-mead; and other lands in this pariſh, parcel of the maner of Blunts.

A meſſuage, and 60 acres of land in this pariſh, called Danyell, were holden by Sir Tho. Tyrell, who dyed in 1476, of John Lord Bourchier, of his maner of Blounts, by fealty, and rent of 12 d. per annum (u). — K. Henry VIII. granted the ſame in 1525 to Cardinal Wolſey: on whoſe attainder they reverting to the Crown, K. Henry granted them, anno 1544, to Sir William Petre, and his heirs (w).

Sir William Petre, who dyed 13 January 1572-3, had the Turn of Stocke, alias Harverdſtocke, and a meſſuage called Copthall, with 60 acres of arable, 40 of paſture, and 16 of meadow, in the pariſhes of Harverd-ſtocke, and Butteſburye; then valued at 6 l. per ann. (x).

There are at preſent but two Houſes of any note in this pariſh; one inhabited by Mr. Edward Bailey; and the other by George Bate Eſq; great-grandſon to George Bate M. D. author of Elenchus Motuum &c. His mother was named Anne Throgmorton.

The chief part of this pariſh ſtands pleaſantly on a ſmall hill. In ſome places the Soil is gravelly; but, towards the Common, (which is pretty large, and almoſt joins with Gallow'd Common on the North, and Ramſden on the Charitable Gift.

One Mr. James gave a Houſe, and two crofts of land, in Downham, containing about four acres. The rent to be divided between the pariſhes of Stock and Buttſbury.

The Church, dedicated to All-Saints, is pretty large, having two Iſles; and both Church and Chancel are tyled. There is a tradition, that the Steeple was demoliſhed by fire many years ago. The preſent Steeple is all of wood, and remarkable in this; that it conſiſts of large thick wooden planks, fixed in deep grooves between the ſtuds. In this ſteeple are 3 Bells, and a clock.

Within the ſouth wall of this Church, near the Chancel, ſtands an altar-tomb, covered with a gray-marble-ſtone; in which is inlaid, in braſs, an Eſcocheon; quarterly, 1. A ſaltier engrail'd, with a chief. 2. A croſs pattée, ermine, between three roſes. 3. An orle between eight martlets. 4. Three Bears muzzled. Creſt, a raven.

Under theſe, a man in armour, whoſe hands are folded in poſture of devotion: At his feet, a plate with the following Inſcription in old Engliſh letters.

Bewrapte in claye and ſo reſerved untill the joyefull dome
Whoe in his lyffe hath ſerved well againſt the Ingleſhe foes
In foren lands and eke at home, his countrye well it knowes
The prince he ſerved in courte full longe a penſioner fitt in perſonage
In his countrey a Juſtice eke a man full grave and ſage
Foure almes howſes here hath he builte for foure poore knights to dwell
And them indewed with ſtypendes lardge enoughe to kepe them well.
In fiftye eyghte yeares his courſe he ran and ended the 28 of Januarye 1574.

The large ſtipend, is no more than Twelve pence a week to each poor man: and, by the foundation, Stock puts in two, and Boreham the other two.

Richard Twedye, the founder, lived at Boreham. Beatrix, his mother, was daughter and heireſs of Richard Winnington. His great-grand-father, George Twedye, came out of Scotland (y).

The Advowſon of this Rectory is in the Lords of Blunts-maner, and of Ramſeys-Tirrel. The former preſent twice together, and the latter hath every third turn.

Amongſt the Rectors of this Pariſh, one of the moſt eminent was Charles Hoole M. A. a kinſman of Biſhop Sanderſon; at firſt Maſter of Rotherham, and other ſchools; and editor of ſeveral uſefull ſchool-books: afterwards Rector of this pariſh from 1660, to 1667. He lyes buried in the Chancel of this Church. For a further account of him, ſee Wood's Athenæ (z).

And no leſs eminent for learning was the late Rector, the Rev. Mr. Tho. Cox; of whom ſee an account under Bromfield, the place of his reſidence.

18. MARGARET-ING, vulgarly Margeting.

It is otherwiſe called Ging-Margaret, Yng-Margaret, and Ging-magna; to diſtinguiſh it from the other adjoyning Pariſhes, whoſe names begin or end in Ing.

Margaret is the Saint to which the Church is dedicated, and from thence this pariſh received that appellation.

In the Saxon times, the Lands in this pariſh were in the poſſeſſion of Siward; Edwin Grut; Selva, and Top'; and Anſchill. But, at the time of the general Survey, they were in Robert Gernon, Matthew Mauritanienſis; and two under-tenants, William, and Ilger [N].

In this Pariſh are reckoned three Maners. 1. The maner of Margeting. 2. The maner of Copisfold-deale, alias Cold-hall. 3. The maner of Shenfeild.

1. The maner of Margetting, was holden, in the 12th of K. Henry II, 1165, or 1166, by John de Sanford, under the name of Ginge (a). [See an account of that family under Blackmore.]

Alice, daughter and heir of Gilbert de Saunford, held the maner of Gynges Regis, by the ſerjeancy of being the Queen's Chamberlain; worth 20 l. per annum (b) [O]. This Alice was married to Robert de Vere, the ſecond Earl of Oxford of both thoſe names (c). At the time of her deceaſe, which happened the 6th of Edward II, ſhe held in this pariſh, a capital meſſuage, 100 acres of arable, 4 of meadow, 6 of paſture, 8 of wood, and 4 l. 2 s. 6 d. rent; beſides the maner of Fingry in Blackmore, and lands in Wolfameſton in Chigwell. Robert de Vere was her ſon and heir (d). But he did not ſucceed to theſe Eſtates; for they were given in marriage [P] to his ſiſter

Joan de Vere, wife of William de Warren, ſon to John de Warren Earl of Surrey. She had by him a poſthumous ſon, John Earl of Surrey; and two daughters; Alianor married to Henry Lord Percy; and Iſabel to John Balliol afterwards King of Scotland (e).

K. Edward II. in the 8th year of his reign, confirmed to Edmund Earl of Arundel, in fee, the maners of Yenge-Margaret, Prittlewell, Oveſham, High-Rothing, and Wolfhampton, in Eſſex; and the maners of Wenge, and Blakewell in the county of Bucks (f): and a fine was paſs'd in 1321. He was beheaded in 1327. by the procurement of Roger Lord Mortimer (g).

Whereupon, K. Edward III, in 1328, confirmed theſe maners to John de Warren, Earl of Surrey, in fee (h). He dying in 1347, without legitimate iſſue, left Alice, his ſiſter, widow of Edmund Earl of Arundel, his next heir in blood (i). Her ſon Richard, had his honors and eſtates reſtored to him, which had been taken from his father Edmund. And was ſucceeded in them, by — Richard — and Thomas, who dyed poſſeſſed of a moiety of this maner, 13 October 1415 (k): the other moiety being holden by Elizabeth Ducheſs of Norfolk, then wife of Sir Gerard Uſeflete Kt. and by Joane de Beauchamp Lady Bergavenny, and Margaret wife of Sir Rowland Lenthall, his ſiſters and heirs (l).

William Scot Eſq; who dyed 3 November 1491, held the maner of Marget-Ginge of the King, in ca. — John, his ſon and heir, was then of the age of 35 years (m).

John Berdfield, and his ſon, are ſaid to have held it ſoon after. And the next heirs of the latter were his father's two ſiſters, viz. Margaret wife of Robert Gedge, and Thomaſine wife of William Daniell (n). But it is a queſtion, whether this is not meant of Copfold-hall.

For, 5 June 1512, the ſaid Margaret bought of William Reade, half of the maner of Gynge-Margaret; and Thomaſine Daniell purchaſed the other half, of the ſame William, on the 2d of November following (o).

Sir William Petre Kt. who dyed 13 January 1572-3, held the maner of Ging-Margaret of the Queen, in ca. (p) —— John Lord Petre his ſon ſucceeded him (q); and it hath continued in that noble Family ever ſince.

Thus we have traced the owners of this Eſtate down to the preſent times.

But by ſome accounts it ſhould ſeem, as if this Maner had once belonged to the Priory of St. Laurence at Blackmore in this county. For, in a ſurvey of the Revenues of that Monaſtery, taken in 1525, the two firſt articles named, are the maners of Blackamore, Ging-Margaret &c. And, in another ſurvey, in 1528, it is ſaid, That the Prior and Convent aforeſaid held, at the time of their ſuppreſſion, one meſſuage, 100 acres of arable land, 100 of paſture, 30 of meadow, and 20 of wood, in Ging-Margaret, alias Margareting; with the Rectory, or great tithes, and advowſon and patronage of the Church. [See under Blackmore.]

That that Monaſtery had a pretty conſiderable Eſtate in this pariſh, is manifeſt not only from the latter ſurvey; but alſo from a Licenſe in mortmain, anno 1413, whereby Robert Rikdon, Richard Waltham, and Thomas Naylinghurſt, were impower'd to give to that Convent 60 acres of arable, 8 of meadow, and 9 of paſture, called Scrapilis, in Ginge-Margaret; which lands were holden of the Earl of Arundel, by the ſervice of 13 s. per ann. and ſuit of court (r). — Whether the Jurors who made the return, miſtook the Convent's eſtate for a maner; or, by what name ſoever it was, or might be, diſtinguiſhed; It is certain, that it was granted, in 1525, by K. Henry VIII. to Cardinal Wolſey, with the Rectory and advowſon (s). Upon whoſe fall they reverted to the crown, and were obtained by Sir William Petre; whoſe poſterity have the chief part of this pariſh.

Leave was given by K. Henry V. to grant 60 acres of land in this pariſh, to the foreſaid Monaſtery, for praying for the ſouls of Nicolas Fitz-Richard, and Alice his wife (t). That family had, in the 16th of Richard II, lands and tenements in this place, to the yearly value of 40 marks (u). Thoſe 60 acres are now undoubtedly in the Lord Petre, with the reſt.

2. The maner of Copiſfold-Deale, alias Copfeild, Copfold, Coptfold, Copwold, or COLD-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands about half a mile from the London road, on the right hand as you go to Ingatſtone.

This maner, in the years 1250, and 1264, was poſſeſſed by Ralf de Gings: and afterwards by James Lamborne, who held it of . . . Vere Earl of Oxford. —— Thomas de Lamborne, who dyed in 1360, held it of the Counteſs of Oxford, by the ſervice of the fourth part of a Knight's-fee (w). —— William, his ſon and heir, dyed under age in 1362. And was ſucceeded by his ſiſter

Joane, which became the wife of William Chene (x). He enjoyed it, in her right, in 1371 (y).

It was next in the Clovile-family, of which you have an account in Weſt-Haningfield: And, under them, it was holden by Tho. Berdfeild, in the reign of K. Henry VI. Then by John Berdfeild, who dyed 16 Febr. 1497. and held alſo the maner of Ging-Margaret of the King, as of his Duchy of Lacncaſter (z). And by John Berdfeild, who departed this life 15 November 1514, leaving his father's two ſiſters, Margaret wife of Robert Gedge, and Thomaſine wife of William Daniell, his next heirs (a).

In the 7th of Henry VIII. it was in Edward Clovile; who married ... relict of .... Aucher (b). And, in the reign of Edward VI, in Thomas, or James Clovile. James Clovile held this maner of the Earl of Oxford, by the ſervice of half a fee: and dyed about the year 1554, leaving his two ſiſters co-heireſſes; viz. Elizabeth, wife of William Tanfield, of Harpelo in Northamptonſhire: and Mary wife of Thomas Burges. The latter had, by his wife Mary, an only daughter, Elizabeth, that was married to Eugenius Gatton of Stamford, who ſold his part of this eſtate to .... Hoy (c).

As for William Tanfield he reſided at Copfold-hall, and had, by his wife Elizabeth, John, born 25 January 1547, James, Clovile, another Clovile, and Robert, (who by Mary Winter had ſeveral ſons and daughters.) —— John, the eldeſt ſon and heir, dyed 6 October 1625 (d), leaving, by Catharine his wife [Q], daughter of George Comey of Chicheſter Eſq; —— Clovile Tanfield, who married Elizabeth daughter of Sir Edward Ingram, or Engehan, of Goodneſton in Kent Kt. and had by her —— Edmund, living in 1664 (e). He married Martha daughter of Henry Borrit of Stradbrooke in Suffolk Gent. (f) by which he had iſſue — Elizabeth, and Martha.

Of them, Henry Biſhop Eſq; many years Under-Sheriff, and a Juſtice of Peace, for the County of Eſſex, bought this Eſtate [R]. He married Mary, eldeſt daughter, and co-heir of John Scarpe of Maningtree Eſq; by whom he had a ſon named — Scarpe Biſhop, who dyed young; and Sarah, married afterwards to Richard Williams of Tendring-hall in Suffolk Eſq; Mr. Biſhop ſold again this eſtate to

Richard Benion Eſq; late Governor of Fort St. George in the Eaſt-Indies, now ſeated at Gidding-hall near Romford; who hath conveyed this to his brother —— Edward Benion Eſq; and He to Richard Holden Eſq; He hath made great Improvements and additions to the Houſe.

3. The maner of SHENFIELD, is ſo named from the two Saxon words, Scen-ꝼelð, a pleaſant field. Thoſe who gave it that name undoubtedly thought it ſo; though the houſe is in a bottom, on the left ſide of the road from Chelmsford to Ing-at-ſtone. It is moated round, and hath a draw-bridge. Altho' it is a maner, there is no Court kept.

This Eſtate was at firſt in the family of Gedge, or Gage; and came by marriage into that of Harrys.

William Harrys of Prittlewell was father of —Arthur, who by Joan, daughter of Thomas Percy ſecond ſon of the Earl of Northumberland, had—William, of Southminſter, that married three wives. By the 1ſt he had ſeveral ſons, of whom, Vincent, the ſecond, was ſettled at Maldon. By the 2d wife, he had — Arthur, of Woodham-Mortimer, and Creekſeth, where his poſterity flouriſh'd for many ages. [See under that pariſh.] His 3d wife was Anne daughter of .... Rutter, by whom he had — Chriſtopher Harrys; and Edward, of Southminſter. Chriſtopher married Mary, daughter and co-heir of Jacob Gedge of Shenfeild. By her he had iſſue, William; Edward; Mary wife of Sir Tho. Bludder Kt. and Catharine (g). He dyed 26 December 1571; poſſeſſed of the maner of of Beckneys in Aſhendon, Griſtle-hall in Rochford and Aſhendon, the maner of Wickford, lands in Shopland and Sutton; and a meſſuage called Shenfeilds in Margetting, val. per ann. 12 l. (h) —Edward Harrys was of Great Badow, and Lincolns-inn. He married Elizabeth daughter of Robert Taverner of Aveley in Eſſex; and had Edward, aged 21 in 1634; Arthur, William, Chriſtopher, Elizabeth, Mary, Sarah, Anne. —— Sir William Harrys Kt. was of Shenfeild, and by Frances daughter of Tho. Aſtley of Writtle had Chriſtopher, Edward, William, John, Mary and Frances.—Chriſtopher, the eldeſt ſon and heir, dyed in his father's lifetime; having married Elizabeth daughter of Sir Harbottle Grimſton Kt. and Bart. by whom he had Chriſtopher, Elizabeth, Frances and Mary. Elizabeth was wife of George Walton of Little Burghſted Eſq; and dying 1 March 1666, was buried in the chancel of the Church there.— Chriſtopher, her eldeſt brother, dyed 19 January 1654, aged 27, and was buried in the ſaid church (i).

Of this Chriſtopher, or his heirs, it was purchaſed by Robert Wood M. D. and LL. D. a famous mathematician, and F. R. S. one of the Commiſſioners of the Revenue in Ireland, and Accomptant general to thoſe Commiſſioners. He dyed at Dublin 9 April 1685 (k). By his wife ... daughter of ... Adams, he left three daughters, Catharine, wife of .... Bluck of Dorſetſhire; Martha and Frances, twins.

Theſe ſold this maner, in November 1714, to William Alexander, a wine-merchant upon St. Mary-hill, London: And he gave it by will to Edward Alexander Eſq; of Doctors Commons, London, and alſo of High-Onger in this county.

Tradition ſays, That this was one of the Houſes of pleaſure, where K. Henry VIII. uſed to reſort to his Miſtreſſes. The other places of that kind, were, Newhall, and Jericho in Blackmore.

Humfrey Sidney Eſq; hath a good ſeat in this pariſh. His father Humfrey Sidney Eſq; dyed 8 September 1731.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Margaret, conſiſts of a body and ſouth iſle; which, as well as the Chancel, are tyled. At the weſt end is a wooden belfrey, containing 4 Bells; and having on the top of it a Spire ſhingled.

The Tithes of this pariſh were anciently appropriated to the Priory of St. Laurence in Blackmore, and a Vicarage ordained, of which that Convent were patrons. In 1525, Cardinal Wolſey obtained theſe, with the reſt of that Priory's poſſeſſions, and ſettled them on his Colleges at Oxford and Ipſwich. Upon the Cardinal's fall, they reverting to the Crown, were appropriated to the Abbey of Waltham-Holycroſs, in 1533. After the general Diſſolution of the Monaſteries, King Henry VIII. granted the Rectory of this church, in 1540, to — Elizabeth Hill, widow; who, the ſame year, alienated it to — Edward Bowland, Gent. (l) He dyed 14 November 1546, poſſeſſed of it, and the advowſon of the Vicarage (m): which deſcended to his ſon — Richard Bowland. This Richard ſold them, 10 Elizabeth, 1568 (n), to — William Lark Eſq; He departed this life, 16 Auguſt 1582; and — Julian wife of Simon Clerke, and — William Sookerman, both of Mildenhall in Suffolk, were his next heirs (o). —— Soon after, theſe alienated them, without the Queen's licenſe, for which they procured a pardon. But they ſeem to have ſeparated the Rectory, or Great Tithes, and the Advowſon of the Vicarage. For this laſt hath been a long time, and is, in the Lord Petre's family. But the Great Tithes were in — . . . . Crowford, of this place; who, anno 1720, ſold them to — John Hopkins Eſq; and they are now in his nephew — John Hopkins of Bretons in Horn-church pariſh Eſq;

19. FRIERNING.

THIS name denotes the Friers, or Monks, Paſture: and was undoubtedly ſo called becauſe it belonged to the Brethren of the Hoſpital of St. John of Jeruſalem. In records it is otherwiſe named Inga, and Ginges; and Ginge-Hoſpital, for the reaſon juſt now given.

It belonged, in the Saxons times, to Selva, and Topius, and Borda; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, to Robert de Gernon, or Greno [S], of the ſame family, as we have reaſon to ſuppoſe, with him who was the fourth Earl of Cheſter.

His ſon and heir, William, ſurnamed de Montfichet, becauſe that ſeat in the pariſh of Stanſtead became the head of his Barony (p), ſucceeded. — And he had for ſucceſſor his ſon — Gilbert de Montfichet; who, in the reign of K. Henry II, granted Half the maner of Ginghes, with all its appertenances, to God, and St. Mary, and St. John Baptiſt, and the Poor of the holy houſe of the Hoſpital of Jeruſalem, and the Brethren in the ſame houſe ſerving God; in free and pure alms: except the outer Wood called Weſtfrid, which he reſerved to himſelf and his heirs. He alſo gave them the Church there, with lands (q). — His ſon Richard ſeems to have given them the other part of the maner. For, in King John's Confirmation-charter, it is thus expreſſed, the vill of Ginnges, with the Church, and all its appertenances (r) [T].

The Hoſpital held alſo in this pariſh, one carucate of arable land, under Philip Burnell that dyed 22 Edward I, by the ſervice of one Knight's fee (s).

The premiſſes continued in the Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem till their ſuppreſſion, when they came to the Crown. Then K. Henry VIII. granted them, [as alſo Thoby-Priory,] to William Berners Eſq; one of the King's Auditors; who was grandſon of John Berners of Writtle Eſq; This William married Dorothy, daughter of Antony Hanſard of Suffolk Eſq; (t) and dyed 30 Auguſt 1558, poſſeſſed of this maner, and the advowſon of the Church (u); having had three ſons — William, Thomas, and Leonard [V]. William married Elizabeth Eden, and had, Thomas, and Griſild. — Thomas dyed without iſſue, 2 February 1561, holding this maner and advowſon; and 20 meſſuages, 3 granges, 4 mills, 5 woods, 20 cottages, 200 acres of arable, 300 acres of meadow, 400 of paſture, 400 of wood and underwood, and 40s. rent with the appertenances in Yng at ſtone, Gyng Fryerne, Ging Hoſpital:—Griſild was his ſiſter and heir, then two years old (w). She became the wife of

Thomas Baker Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir Richard Baker of Kent: and dyed 1 November 1589, leaving by him—Richard, her ſon and heir (x). She is ſaid, in the Inquiſition, to have held 20 meſſ. 4 mills, 5 tofts, 20 cottages, 150 acres of arable, 300 acres of meadow, 500 acres of paſture; and the reſt as Thomas Berners (y).

It was next in . . . Whetcome.

Then Dorothea Wadham, having purchaſed it, made it part of the Endowment of Wadham-college at Oxford; as it ſtill continues. And they have alſo the Advowſon of the Church.

This Dorothea was the ſecond daughter of Sir William Petre, by his firſt wife, Gertrude, daughter of Sir John Tyrell of Warley. She became the wife of Nicolas Wadham of Mery-field in Somerſetſhire, Eſq; who left at his deceaſe 3800 l. a year eſtate, and 4000 l. in money: and ſhe performed what he had intended and begun, namely the foundation of Wadham-college in Oxford.

Charles Hornby Eſq; late Secondary of the Pipe-office, built a good Houſe in this pariſh.

Thirty ſix Houſes, on the Weſt ſide of Ingatſtone-ſtreet, and nine on the Eaſt ſide of the ſame ſtreet, are in this Pariſh.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel; and both are tyled. At the Weſt end, a Tower of brick, in which are 5 Bells.

John Olmeſted, who dyed 22 October 1586, held a piece of Land in this pariſh, then worth 12 d. a year, called Chappell yard (z); but what Chapel had ſtood there, we cannot find.

Robert Doiley, late Rector of this pariſh, left 1000 l. to the Corporation in London, for relief of Clergymens widows &c.

20. BLACKMORE, vulgarly BLAKEMORE, took its name from the nature of the ſoil.

It is not mentioned in Domeſday-book, and therefore we cannot find by whom it was poſſeſſed in the ancienteſt times. About the reign of K. Stephen and K. Henry II, all, or the greateſt part of the pariſh was holden by a family ſurnamed de Sandford, which had a ſmall Barony.

There are four reputed Maners in this pariſh. 1. The maner of Blackmore-hall. 2. The ſite and maner of Blackmore Priory. 3. The maner of Copſechys. 4. — that of Fingreth.

1. The maner of BLACKMORE, lying about half a mile from the church, and now called Smiths-hall, was originally in the Sandford, or Samford, family. Adam, and Jordan, de Samford, gave it to the Priory which they founded here, about K. Henry the Second's reign: Of which Priory we proceed to give an account.

2. The maner and ſite of the PRIORY.

This Priory was founded, according to Biſhop Tanner (a), before, or in the beginning of, K. John's reign, by Adam, and Jordan, de Samford. But Richard St. George Eſq; affirms (b), that it was founded about the reign of K. Henry II, by Sir John de Saundfort, who by his wife, Alice Baſſet, left two ſons, Alan and Nicolas: the eldeſt whereof deſired to be buried in this Priory Church, by his anceſtors.

John de Sandford had alſo, about the year 1165, the maners of Fingreth in this pariſh; of Ginge-Margaret, and Wolverſton-hall in Chigwell in this county; and Great Hormead, and Nuthamſtede in Hertfordſhire (c).

This Priory was for Canons regular of the order of St. Auguſtine, and dedicated to St. Laurence; whence it came generally to be called the Monaſtery, or Priory, of St. Laurence de Blackmore.

It continued till the year 1527, 17 Henry VIII. when it was diſſolved; and granted, among others, 21 December and 20 January, to Cardinal Wolſey, for part of the Endowment of his College at Oxford (d). At which time, a ſurvey was taken of the Revenues of this houſe, whereof an abſtract is given below [W]. They amounted in the whole to 85 l. 9 s. 7 d. per ann. viz. in ſpiritualities, 41 l. 13 s. 4 d. and in temporalities 43 l. 11 s. 3 d. (e) Upon the Cardinal's attainder, in 1529, it came to the Crown; and, two years after, 1 January 1531, was granted by K. Henry VIII, to the Abbey of Waltham Holy-croſs, in exchange for the maner of Stanſted-Abbots, and other lands, which they yielded to his Majeſty. In the grant, they were allowed to hold a Fair at Blackmore, on St. Laurence's day, and the day before, and the day after; viz. Auguſt 9, 10, 11 (f) [X].

They had alſo one meſſuage in Brentwood; the church of Marybone in Middleſex; the Church of Great Hormead, with the advowſon of the Vicarage in Hertfordſhire. See Newcourt, vol. I. p. 695. and 834. and vol. II. p. 63, 64. 95. 405. 669.

[X] The Convent of Blackmore had before the grant of a fair from K. Henry III. and another for three days from K. Henry IV. Cart. 16 Hen. III. Pat. 1 Hen. IV. p. 3. m. 37. & p. 6. m. 13, vel 14.

Upon the general diſſolution of the Monaſteries, this Eſtate reverting to the Crown, K. Henry VIII. granted it, in 1540, to John Smyth, and his heirs (e): and it hath continued ever ſince in his poſterity.

The Smyth family derive themſelves from Sir Michael Carrington, ſtandard-bearer to K. Richard I. in the holy war. One of his deſcendents, John Carrington Eſq; in the 15th century, changed his ſurname to Smyth. [See a more particular account of this family under Creſſing-Temple, and Rivenhall.]

John Smyth, above mentioned, was one of the King's Auditors; and ſecond ſon of Thomas Smyth of Rivenhall, by Iſabell daughter of William Tofts of Little Badow. He married ... the daughter of ... Twiſell of Worceſterſhire: By her he had his ſon and heir — Thomas Smyth of Blackmore Eſq; who married, 1ſt, Blanch, daughter of Nicolas Colſhill of Middleſex Eſq; by whom he had two ſons, the eldeſt named Francis, and two daughters. His 2d wife was Margaret, daughter and ſole heir of John Turner of Creping-hall in Walkes-Colne Eſq; [Y] by which he had ſix ſons and four daughters. The daughters were, Margaret, Abigail, Athalantia or Athaneia, Jane, Elizabeth, &c. The ſons were, John, Charles, Arthur, ... He dyed 10 May 1594, aged 70 (f). Francis, the eldeſt ſon by the firſt wife, married .... daughter of Sir Henry Billingſley, alderman of London; but was diſinherited by his father—John, the eldeſt ſon by the ſecond wife, (made heir to his father,) dyed 31 May 1621, without iſſue, poſſeſſed of the maner and rectory of Blackmore, and of Creping-hall (g). — Charles inherited next. By his wife Dorothy, daughter of .... Wiſeman of Rivenhall, he had an only daughter, Dorothy, which was married to Tho. Jennings of Dunmow, Gent. Dying without iſſue male, he was ſucceeded in theſe eſtates by his next brother—Arthur, viz. not only in the maner of Blackmore, but alſo in a capital meſſuage called Copſheff, alias Copeſewes, alias Smyths-hall, which laſt was holden of the maner of Fingrith (h). He dyed 7 March 1602-3, leaving by Anne his wife, daughter of .... Milward, Stephen, Thomas, and Arthur. ——Stephen, at the time of his father's deceaſe, was 18 years, 9 months, and 7 days old (i). He married Jane, daughter of Tho. Bennet, alderman of London, by which he had, Arthur; Henry; Stephen; Bennet, that dyed a child; Thomas and Chriſtiana, twins; Dorothy; Margaret; Nicolas; and Joanna wife of Nicolas Alexander of Mardenaſh, Gent. (k) He dyed 22 Sept. 1670, aged 68. Of his ſons, Henry dyed 22 December 1671, aged 28. Stephen 14 March 1672, aged 23. and Thomas 23 May 1684, aged 32 (l). This—Thomas Smyth of Blackmore Eſq; married Mildred, fourth daughter of Sir Capel Luckyn Bart. (which took to her ſecond huſband Daviſon Browning of London, linnen-draper) and had iſſue by her, Thomas; Mary; and Joanna, which was married to William Tendring of Dorewards-hall in Rivenhall, Gent. and had by him a daughter named Mary.——Thomas Smyth of Blackmore Eſq; dyed 25 January 1724. and was buried the 2d of February following, in the chancel of this church among his anceſtors. As he had no iſſue, he left by will, This, and other his eſtates, to his niece

Mary Tendring: And ſhe dying unmarried in 1732, bequeathed them to her couſin

Thomas Alexander, third ſon of Nicolas Alexander of Marden-aſh above mentioned: upon condition that he ſhould take the name of Smyth. This Thomas Alexander Smyth dyed without iſſue 26 Sept. 1747, and left by will his eſtates to his nephew

Charles Alexander Eſq; a deſcendent of William, eldeſt ſon of Nicolas aforeſaid; who was alſo his heir at law. [See under Cheping-Ongar.]

But the aforeſaid Thomas left the impropriate Rectory of this pariſh, for life, to his nephew John Gibſon Vicar of Bromfield, ſon of his ſiſter Joanna and John Gibſon D. D. Provoſt of Queen's college Oxon. He dying without iſſue in 1757, this Rectory deſcended to Charles Alexander Eſq;

The Priory ſtood near the Church. Mr. Smith ſold the ſite of it, about 1714, to Jacob Ackworth, a ſhip-builder, afterwards made Surveyor of the Navy, and knighted at Portſmouth 30 Auguſt 1722, by K. George I. He repaired it, and made ſome additions to the old building. As the workmen were levelling the foundation, they found a leaden coffin, about a yard long, full of human bones; and other bones ſcattering about. It is now in his heir Jacob Wheat Eſq;

This is reported to have been one of K. Henry the Eighth's Houſes of Pleaſure; and diſguiſed by the name of Jericho. So that when this laſcivious Prince had a mind to be loſt in the embraces of his courtiſans, the cant word among the courtiers, was, that He was gone to Jericho. Here was born his natural ſon, by Elizabeth Tailbois, daughter of Sir John Blount, and widow of Sir Gilbert Tailbois. His name was Henry Fitz-Roy; and his father, 18 June 1525, created him Earl of Nottingham, Duke of Richmond and Somerſet, and Knight of the Garter. He dyed 24 July 1536 (m).

3. The maner of COPSECHYS.

Of this I find no other mention in records, than this; That Thomas Stalbroke dyed 1 May 1484, poſſeſſed of the maner of Copſechys in Fingreth in the pariſh of Blackmore, holden of the Earl of Oxford.—Matthew was his ſon and heir, 20 years old (n). It is now incorporated into Smyth's-hall, as may be ſeen above under Arthur Smyth.

4. The maner of FINGRETH was holden of the King in capite by grand Serjeanty, i. e. by the Tenent's having the Honor of being Chamberlain to the Queen of England, of keeping her chamber, and the door of the ſame, on the day of her Coronation; and of having for his fee the Furniture of the Chamber, the Beds, Baſons, &c.

[Y] After Tho. Smyth's deceaſe, ſhe was married again to Sir Stephen Powle Kt. Epitaph.

In that manner it was holden by Gilbert de Sandford [Z], Chamberlain to Eleanor Queen of K. Henry III. His only daughter and heir —Alice, was married to Robert, ſon and heir of Hugh de Vere Earl of Oxford. Of which noble Family, a full and particular account may be ſeen under Caſtle-Hedingham, and in Dugdale's Baronage. And therefore we ſhall only juſt mention here what is ſaid of them with relation to this eſtate, in the Records now before us.

Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, dyed the 24th of Edward I. as did —Alice his Counteſs the 5th of Edward II. holding this maner of the King in cap. by the ſervice of keeping the Queen's chamber at her Coronation, and this as principal Chamberlain, or Lord Chamberlain, to the Queen [A]; as alſo of the Barony of Samford. —Robert was their ſon and heir (o). He dyed the 5th of Edward III. and the ſon of his younger brother Alfonſus, named —John, was his nephew and heir, then aged 19. He departed this life the 34th of Edward III. as did —Maud his counteſs, the 40th. and their ſon— Thomas, the 45th of the ſame king; all holding this Eſtate of the Barony of Sampford, by the ſervices aforeſaid (p).—Albery, Earl of Oxford, who dyed 23 April 1400. —Richard, Earl of Oxford, in 1416; and his widow —Alice, 29 Hen. VI, held this maner, by the ſame ſervices (q).—John, Earl of Oxford, being attainted for his ſtrict adherence to the Houſe of Lancaſter, was beheaded 26 February 1461, and his Eſtates were confiſcated. But K. Henry VII. reſtored them to his ſon—John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, who dyed 10 March 1512, and was ſucceeded by his brother George's ſon, named —John (r), that dyed 14 July 1526, without iſſue. Whereupon his couſin —John, ſon of Robert ſecond brother to John that was beheaded, came into his great inheritance (s). He departed this life 21 March 1539; leaving iſſue —John, who dyed 5 Auguſt 1562 (t). His ſon —Edward, ſquandering his eſtates, ſold This to Richard Branthwaite, Gent. (u). But he alienated it again, ſoon after, to

Sir Walter Mildmay, Chancellor of the Exchequer; of whom you have an account under Danbury. His ſecond ſon—Humfrey, had this eſtate, and Danbury-place. He dyed 9 Auguſt 1613, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon —Sir Humfrey Mildmay of Danbury Kt. His eldeſt ſon—John, inherited this and other Eſtates after him. He married Mary, daughter of James Bancroft of Derbyſhire Eſq; but dying without any iſſue, he left to her and her heirs the maner of Fingrith, Danbury-place, &c. She was married again to Robert Cory D. D. Rector of Danbury, and Margaret-Roding, and Archdeacon of Middleſex. He dyed 2 March 1704, leaving an only daughter—

Mary, which became the wife of William Fytch Eſq; and brought into that family this Eſtate; which is now in —Thomas Fytch Eſq; of Danbury-place.

At the Coronation of Qu. Anne, Dr. Cory, and Mary his wife, as Lords of the maner of Fingrith, claimed the office of Chamberlain to the Queen: And it was claimed alſo by the Lord of this maner, at the Coronation of Qu. Caroline, 11 October 1727. but Diſallow'd, becauſe not made out (w).

February 8. 1315, Robert de Vere Earl of Oxford, gave licenſe to the Prior and Convent here, to appropriate to their Monaſtery, all the lands and tenements which Henry de Fyngrye held of him in the vill of Fyngrith (x).

Beſides the MANERS already mention'd, there is another in this pariſh, or Partly ſo; named Wither Spains, which is ſuppoſed to have been what the Priory held in Willingale-Spain, or near it. It is now, or lately was, in Mr. William Baker.

Charitable Donations belonging to this pariſh.

1. Half an acre of freehold land, at Clatterford-waſh in this pariſh, ſaid to be given, and always applied, for buying Bell-ropes. The Donor unknown. It pays 4 d. a year to the maner of Fingrith-hall; and hath been uſually lett for 9 s.

2. George Callice of this pariſh, by his will dated 19 Auguſt 1580, deviſed a free-hold Tenement garden and orchard in this pariſh called Claydons, to four inhabitants here, their heirs and aſſigns; in truſt, to diſtribute the Rents and profits of the ſame, quarterly or half-yearly, to Six of the pooreſt inhabitants of this pariſh: after firſt paying the charges of repairs, and eight pence a year to themſelves. Two ſurviving feoffees to aſſign to four new ones. It pays one ſhilling and eight pence a year to the maner of Blackmore.

3. Callice by will gave Twenty pounds to this pariſh; the intereſt to be applied by the Churchwardens yearly for ever as follows. To a Miniſter for preaching two Sermons, one on Advent Sunday, the other on the firſt Sunday in Lent, 5 s. each ſermon: One ſhilling each time to the Miniſter, and the ſame to the Sexton: The reſidue among Nine of the moſt aged poor perſons of this pariſh. With this proviſo, that if the Goſpel ſhould not be preached in the realm as it then was, the Ten ſhillings for the two Sermons ſhould be given to the ſaid 9 poor perſons. This 20 l. with 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. given to the Poor of this pariſh by Dr. Tabor of High-Ongar; 10 l. by John Trotter of Doddinghurſt in 1603; and 31 l. 13 s. 4 d. by charitable collections; was repoſited with John Witham, late of this pariſh glover, who dyed in April 1720. and did, for the Poors better ſecurity, by his will charge his moiety of Twenty acres of copyhold land called Lords land, holden of Fingrith-hall maner in this pariſh with an Annuity of Three pounds five ſhillings for ever. This eſtate was late Mr. William Nicholas's of Berners Rothing.

4. Margaret Powle, relict of Sir Stephen Powle Kt. charged part of her eſtate in this pariſh, [now Smyths-hall] with the annuity of Forty ſhillings for ever: to be, on All-ſaints yearly, in the Church-porch of this pariſh, given to eight of the pooreſt women thereof, Five ſhillings each.

5. Humfrey Waller of South-weald, did by his will dated 7 December 1601. charge his tenement and ten acres of land called Farrows, alias Fouchers, and a croft called Canuels, lying in High-Ongar, with an annuity of Forty ſhillings towards the maintenance of the Poor of this pariſh for ever. Samuel Saltmarſh of High-Ongar lately had that eſtate.

6. John Symonds of this pariſh, did by will charge his croft called Little Harpers, lying in this pariſh, with an Annuity of Forty ſhillings to the poor of this pariſh for ever. It is now part of Mr. Docminique's farm.

7. William Peacock of this pariſh, taylor, did by his will dated 12 May 1722. charge his copyhold meſſuage or tenement, an orchard, and an acre of land thereto belonging in High-Ongar, called Kings-Ridden, with an Annuity of one pound: To be paid yearly on Chriſtmaſs-day for ever.

8. Thomas Almond of this pariſh, innholder, did by will dated 9 October 1728. deviſe a copyhold meſſuage or tenement with the appertenances, and Ten acres of land, more or leſs, called Spooners, alias Lekins, and holden of the maner of Fingrith-hall, for the beſt Uſes of the Poor of this pariſh for ever. But he deviſed firſt this eſtate to his wife's niece Elizabeth Clark, wife of John Chaulk of Stanford-Rivers, butcher, for life, and the life of her huſband; and after their deaths, if they left iſſue and the youngeſt was not then 20 years of age, then to ſuch iſſue, until the youngeſt were 20 years of age.

The CHURCH now ſtanding is ſuppoſed by Mr. Symonds, to have been part of the Old Priory Church. It was appropriated to this Monaſtery; and hath, ever ſince the ſuppreſſion, continued a Donative, or Curacy, in the Impropriator's gift. In 1720, Thomas Smith Eſq; augmented it with Tithes worth 400 l. upon receiving 200 l. of the Governors of Qu. Anne's Bounty. The ſtipend is 20 l. a year.

adjoyning South South-weſt to Chelmsford, was ſo named from the *Wid*th of the Ford there, before there was a bridge built over the river.

In this pariſh there is but one Maner, called The Maner of Widford.

In the earlieſt times upon Record, it was holden by the Clovils, of Clovill-hall in Weſt-Hanningfeild, where lived —William de Clovill, in the reign of K. John (y). His ſon—William held it, the 49th of Henry III. when he obtained licenſe to clear his wood in Wideford [B], and turn it to arable.

It was next in Edmund of Woodſtock, Earl of Kent, and ſixth ſon of K. Edward I. who was beheaded in 1329, for contriving the deliverance of the captive King, Edward II (z). The perſon who held this maner under that Earl, with the Advowſon of the Church, was Edmund Bacon (a): who held it likewiſe under Roger de Mortimer, Earl of March, to whom this Lordſhip was given, upon the Earl of Kent's forfeiture.

In 1360, Robert de Ufford Earl of Suffolk held this maner of the Earl of March, as of his maner of Swainſcamp (b).

Margaret, wife of John Bacon [C], that dyed the year following, was poſſeſſed of two parts of the maner of Wedeford; whereof 20 acres of arable, and 4 of meadow, were holden of the Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, Lord of Writtle; and the reſidue of the ſaid two parts was holden of the Earl of March, by the ſervice of half a fee.—Robert Bacon Kt. was her ſon and heir (c). He was found, in 1375, to hold this maner of the Earl of March, by the ſervice of a knights fee (d).

Roger Mortimer, Earl of March, that dyed the 22d of K. Richard II, held a view of frankpledge, once a year, at Wedeford (e).

As did Anne, wife of Edmund Earl of March, that dyed the 11th of Henry VI. (f).

This maner returned, ſome time after, into the Cloville-family. For, John Clovill, that dyed the 5th of Henry VII, held the maner of Widdford-hall of Cecily Dutcheſs of York, as of her Honor of Clare.—Henry, his ſon and heir, was then aged 26 years (g). This latter dyed 10 December 1513. leaving his ſon and heir—William 30 years old (h).—Francis, moſt probably ſon of William, departed this life 3d May 1561. holding this maner, and advowſon of the church, of the ſaid Honor of Clare; and leaving —Euſtace his ſon 21 years old (i). He married Jane, daughter of Sir Percivall Hart; by whom he had his ſon — Percivall, who was 16 years of age, at the time of his father's death, 16 November 1589 (k).

It was next in Charles Altham, Serjeant at law, who built the Chapel adjoyning north to the Church in 1604 [D]. — Thomas Altham Gent. dyed 28 April 1607. — Sir James Altham Kt. dyed 21 February 1616-17, holding this maner and advowſon of Sir Ralph Weldon Kt. as of his maner of Swainſcampe (l). — Sir James, his ſon, then 29 years old, ſurvived him but a few years; for he dyed 15 February 1623-4 (m), leaving his ſon [E] — Sutton Altham Eſq; born 27 Auguſt 1601. He dyed 19 July 1630, upon which this eſtate deſcended to his two ſiſters and coheirs—Elizabeth, and Frances (n).

One of them was married to Charles Tryon ſon of Peter, ſon of Moyſes, of Haringworth in Northamptonſhire [F]: by which he had his ſon—Charles of Bulwick and Stamford in Com. North. and of Clifford-ſtreet in Burlington-gardens. The latter ſold this eſtate to Thomas Inwin, of Southwark Eſq; member of Parliament for that borough. He dyed 19 April 1743. and by will left this Eſtate to—— Sarah his widow; upon whoſe death, which happened 25 May 1746, this maner and advowſon came to — Sarah, Counteſs dowager of Suffolk, their ſole daughter and heir; widow and relict of Henry Earl of Suffolk, who dyed 22 April 1745, and to whom ſhe had been married 13 May 1735. She was remarried in October 1752. to Lucius Carey, Lord Viſcount Falkland.

There are about Eight hundred acres of land in this pariſh.

The late Lord Chief Baron Comyns built a ſeat in this pariſh, named Highlands; which he left to his Lady for life; and, after her deceaſe, to his nephew John Comyns Eſq; ſon of his brother Richard.

The Chief Baron's father was William Comyns, (deſcended from the Comyns of Dagenham in this county) educated at Queen's college in Cambridge, and afterwards a member of Lincoln's-inn. He dyed 8 March 1685-6. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Matthew Rudd of Little Badow Gent. They had, Robert, and Thomas, that dyed infants; William who dyed a batchelor; John, and Richard; and two daughters, Elizabeth wife of Geo. Davenport of London Gent. and Mary wife of Edward Tabor of London, laceman. —— John Comyns, Eſq; afterwards Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, was of the ſame College and Society with his father; created Serjeant at Law 8 June 1705; one of the Burgeſſes for the Burgh of Maldon in the 4th parliament of K. William; appointed one of the Barons of the Exchequer 4 November 1726; and knighted; one of the Juſtices of the Common Pleas 5 February 1735-6; and Chief Baron of the Exchequer, 8 July 1738. He dyed 13 November 1740. without iſſue, though he was thrice married: His firſt wife was, Anne, one of the daughters and coheirs of Nathanael Gurdon D. D. Rector of Chelmsford, which dyed 28 February 1705. The ſecond, Elizabeth, daughter of . . . Courthop of Kent Eſq; The third, Anne Wilbraham.

His brother, Richard Comyns of Rolſton's Eſq; was of the Inner Temple, and created Serjeant-at-law 30 April 1724. He had three wives. 1. Judith, youngeſt daughter of Dr. Nathanael Gurdon above mentioned. She dyed 6 April 1700. with John her ſon. 2. Frances, daughter of Tho. Houghton D D. Vicar of Writtle, Rector of Higham Gobion in Bedfordſhire, and Prebendary of St. Pauls and Chicheſter. 3. Elizabeth Chiffings of Kent. By the ſecond he had, John his eldeſt ſon and heir, Houghton, Richard; and three daughters; Frances; Elizabeth, married to the Rev. John Birch, who had by her three ſons; and Mary. Serjeant Comyns dyed in 1740. — John, his eldeſt ſon, was of Queen's College in Cambridge, and of the Inner Temple, and a Barriſter at law: He dyed 9 October 1760. having been thrice married. His firſt wife was . . . Wright; the ſecond Elizabeth Hallet; and the third, Mary, ſiſter of Sir John Tyrell. He left by the ſecond an only ſon, named—Richard-John, a minor [FF].

The Church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, ſtands on the weſt ſide of the London road; and is a ſmall but ancient building, conſiſting of a Nave, and Chancel, of one pace, tiled; on the north ſide of the Church, there is a Chapel, leaded, belonging to the Lords of the maner. At the weſt end, is a wooden turret, containing two bells; and having over it a ſhaft ſhingled. The Gabel between the Church and Chancel is thicker than uſual.

The Clovill-family preſented to this Rectory from 1410 to 1597 (o) [G].

lyes Weſt of Chelmsford, about 25 or 27 miles from London, and is reckoned the largeſt Pariſh in this County; and one of the fineſt.

Here, or hereabout, is very juſtly ſuppoſed to have been the ancient Roman ſtation, named CAESAROMAGUS in Antoninus's Itinerary.

Before a bridge was built at Chelmsford over the river, the public Road from Braintree, and ſeveral other places in the North and North-eaſt parts of this County, to London, led through Writtle; turning at the corner where is now the ſign of the Red Cow, and going on to Beyford-Tye, and ſo quite over to Margareting. A very large and famous Inn called the Swan, antiently ſtood in this road, near the farm called Shakeſton's.

This noble Lordſhip antiently belonged to the Crown; and, in Edward the Confeſſor's time, was part of the poſſeſſions of Earl Harold, that ſucceeded him in the government of the kingdom. Upon his being ſlain in battle, it fell to William the Conqueror: who, at the time of the general Survey, held the greateſt part of this pariſh in demeſne, as the King's fee: Robert Loſinga, Biſhop of Hereford, held another part: And Newland-hall, in Roxwell, was holden by Euſtace Earl of Boulogne [H].

The maner of Writtle was part of the Corpus Comitatus of Eſſex.—K. Richard I. granted ſome Franchiſes to John Fitz William and Walter de Hadfield, out of it; which made it fall conſiderably in its value. But what thoſe franchiſes were, is not ſpecified (p).

In 1211, K. John built a houſe, or Palace, here (q). The remains of it, are ſuppoſed to be a quarter of a mile out of the Green, on the left ſide of the road leading to Chelmsford. For there ſtill appear old ruins of ſome ſeat, which contain about an acre of ground, and are ſurrounded by a deep moat. Oppoſite to it, is a farm called the Lordſhip: Here the Court-Baron is held. But the Court-Leet is kept at Green-Bury on little Green, upon Whitſon-monday, in a place incloſed like a ſummer-houſe.—The Market-houſe ſtood near it, and is now pulled down.

The ſame King, in the 6th year of his reign, granted this maner, or part of it, in fee-farm, and afterwards for life, to Thomas de Neville, with free-warren (r). In the grant, this Thomas de Neville is ſtyled Clerk, and the maner of Writell is ſaid to be ſome of the lands that were given to the Normans (s).

K. Henry III. in the firſt year of his reign, granted the town, or maner, (villa) of Writtle, to Philip de Albene (t): and, the year following, to William Long-eſpée, Earl of Saliſbury (u): And, again in the 14th year of his reign, he granted it to the Biſhop of Chicheſter, Lord Chancellor of England, with a wood called Horfrith (w). This Biſhop was Ralph de Novavilla, or Neville, who built a Houſe in Holburn, to be a town-reſidence for the Biſhops of that ſee, when they came to London (x): which from a ſubſequent owner, Henry Lacy Earl of Lincoln, took the name of Lincolns-inn.... The ſame King, about eight years after, gave this maner of Writtle, to—Iſabella de Bruys, or Brus, ſiſter of John Earl of Cheſter [I]. The occaſion of this grant was as followeth: Ranulph de Blandevile, the laſt Earl of Cheſter of the line of Hugh Lupus, dying without iſſue, this Earldom fell to his ſiſters; of whom Maud, the eldeſt, was married to David Earl of Huntingdon, brother to William King of Scotland. John, ſurnamed Scot, their ſon and heir, in right of his mother, became Earl of Cheſter. He married Helene, daughter of Lewellyn Prince of Wales; but ſhe poiſoning him, he dyed without iſſue in June 1244. After his death, K. Henry III. took this Lordſhip into his own hands, leſt ſo fair an inheritance ſhould be divided among females (y); and gave his ſiſters other lands, by way of compenſation. Margaret, the eldeſt ſiſter, was married to Alan of Galloway [K]. Iſabella, the 2d ſiſter, was married to Robert de Brus of Anandale. Maud, the 3d, dyed without iſſue. Ada, the 4th, was wife of Henry de Haſtings (z).—Helene, above mentioned, was ſoon after married again to Robert de Quincy: And Iſabella de Brus refuſing to let her have her Dower, out of the lands of her firſt huſband John Scot, the King cauſed the 3d part of the maners of Writel and Hathfeild to be ſeized (a). Robert de Brus dyed about 1252, [K] She granted the maner of Writtle to Henry de Writtle; concerning which family ſee under Bobingworth. But very likely ſhe could not maintain her grant.

the 36th of K. Henry III, leaving iſſue by Iſabella—Robert, his ſon and heir (b); who doing homage, had livery of his mother's inheritance. But he had alſo another ſon, named Richard, whom he had enfeoff'd and his heirs, in the maner of Writele, for his homage, and one gold-ring of the value of 2 s. or for 2 s. yearly: and who dyed in 1287, without iſſue [L]. Robert, the laſt mention'd, married, in 1240, Iſabel daughter of Gilbert de Clare Earl of Glouceſter, which was born in 1226. And, in 1276, he ſerved in Wales, for one knight's-fee in Writele and Hatfield (c). Upon the vacancy of the throne of Scotland, he was one of the competitors for the crown of that kingdom. But, 7 November 1292, being then very old, he releaſes to his ſon Robert, and his heirs, all the right and claim he had, or could have, to that Crown. And, dying in peace at Lochmaban in Anandale in 1295, was buried at Giſburn, with his anceſtors (d). His ſon—Robert, juſt now mentioned, married Martha, ſole daughter and heireſs of Neil Earl of Carrick, (widow of Adam de Kilcontach, who in her right had been Earl of Carrick) and got livery of his lands in England (e). He dyed in 1304, 32 Edward I. poſſeſſed of the maner of Writell, which he held of the King in capite, by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee; and of the maner of Bromeſhobery in Hatfied Broad-oak, which he held by the ſame ſervice; together with the Half-Hundred of Harlow belonging to this laſt maner (f): And was buried at Holm-cultrum (g). His ſon—Robert, Earl of Carrick, born 11 July 1274, (b) ſucceeded him. But ſtrenuouſly aſſerting his right to the kingdom of Scotland, and being crowned at Scone 25 March 1306, he was deprived of all his eſtates in England by K. Edward I.

This Maner remained in the King's hands, till K. Edward II. gave it to Humfrey de Bohun, High-Conſtable of England, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex; and Elizabeth his wife, and the heirs of their body (i). This Elizabeth was the ſeventh daughter of K. Edward I. and widow of John Earl of Holland and Zealand (k). They had iſſue ſix ſons, and four daughters. He dyed in 1321. and was ſucceeded in his Dignities, and in this Eſtate, by his eldeſt ſon—John, who dying in 1335. (l) without iſſue [M], his inheritance deſcended to his next brother—Humfrey: He had leave, of K. Edward III. in 1347, to fortify and embattel his maner houſe at Writtele (m). The 15th of October 1361, he dyed, unmarried; and was ſucceeded by—Humfrey, ſon of his brother William Earl of Northampton (n): Who departed this life 17 January 1372, leaving iſſue, by Joan his wife daughter of Richard Earl of Arundel, only two daughters, Eleanor, which was married to Thomas of Woodſtock, ſixth ſon of K. Edward III. and Mary, to Henry Earl of Derby, afterwards King of England by the name of Henry IV.

Thomas of Woodſtock, Earl of Buckingham, Eſſex, and Northampton, Duke of Glouceſter, and High-Conſtable of England, had this Maner in right of his wife; with other great eſtates. On the 8th day of September 1397, he fell a ſacrifice to the malice of his enemies, and the weakneſs of his nephew K. Richard II. By his wife Eleanor above-mentioned, he had one ſon, Humfrey who dyed young, Anne, Joan, Iſabel, and Philippa (o).

Anne, the eldeſt daughter, was contracted in marriage, very young, to—Thomas Earl Stafford; who dying 4 July 1392, without having cohabited with her by reaſon of her tender age; ſhe took, by vertue of the King's ſpecial licenſe, in 1398, his next ſurviving brother and heir—Edmund Earl Stafford, for a huſband (p). But he was killed at the battle of Shrewſbury 22 July 1403 [N], leaving—Humfrey, his ſon and heir, then not two years of age; and Anne, married firſt to Edmund Mortimer Earl of March, and afterwards to John Holland, Earl of Huntingdon. On account of his near alliance in blood to the royal family, the foreſaid Humfrey was, on the 14th of September 1444, created Duke of Buckingham; having before the titles of Earl of Buckingham, Hereford, Stafford, Northampton and Perch; Lord of Brecknock, and of Holderneſſe (q). He had the misfortune of being ſlain at the battle of Northampton 10 July 1460, fighting ſtoutly for K. Henry VI. At the time of his deceaſe, he was found poſſeſſed of the maners of Writtle and Boyton (r). His eldeſt ſon——Humfrey Earl Stafford, by Anne daughter of Ralph Nevill Earl of Weſtmoreland [O], was dead before him, having been killed, 22 May 1455, at the battle of St. Albans (s). So that his grandſon—Henry, born in 1456 (t), was his next heir. His mother was Margaret, daughter and coheir to Edmund Beaufort Duke of Somerſet (u). He was the chief inſtrument in placing the crown on the head of K. Richard III. but declaring afterwards againſt that Uſurper, he was beheaded November 2. 1460, and his Eſtates became forfeited. —Edward, his eldeſt ſon by Catharine daughter of Richard Widevill Earl Rivers, obtained from K. Henry VII, in the 14th year of his reign, livery of all his father's lands (w). But, as unhappy as his predeceſſors, he came to a violent and untimely end. For, happening to offend

Anne, mentioned in this grant, was Sir William's ſecond wife, daughter of Sir William Browne Kt. Lord Mayor of London, and widow of John Tyrell of Heron-place Eſq; —John, their only ſon, was knighted in the 18th of Qu. Elizabeth; and, by K. James I, 21 July 1603, advanced to the dignity of a Baron of this realm, by the denomination of Lord Petre of Writtle, taking his title from this noble Lordſhip (z). Of him, and his poſterity, we ſhall give an Account, after having taken notice of ſome Appendages that belonged to this Maner.

In the grant to Sir William Petre, were included Two Parks. And, indeed, there were of old two Parks in this Pariſh: One called the King's-Park, or Writtle Park; which I take to be That now ſo called, lying towards Ingatſtone. The other Park lay in the road from Cooksmill-green to High-Ongar. It has been diſparked a long time. 'Tis called Hoaſtly, or Oſterly, park: but the antient name was Horſfrith. K. Henry III. granted it to Ralph de Nevill biſhop of Chicheſter above-mentioned. And it was alſo poſſeſſed by Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, in 1372, under the name of ‘ a certain Park, called ‘ called Horsfrythe, near Writele, containing ‘ 300 acres of land’ (a).

The King had a Wood, or Foreſt, in this Pariſh [Q], that had a Keeper, as well as his Park; for which ſervices they held lands of the Crown, here, in Serjancy, as appears from the following inſtances.—The 11th of Henry III. Roger Serjaunt held one virgate (b) of land, worth 20 s. per ann. by the ſerjancy of keeping of the King's wood. And Colm de Parenton held land for keeping the Kings park (c).—The 13th of Edward I. Auguſtine de Wennare held a Carucate of land (d), in Writele, by the Serjancy of keeping the King's Foreſt, and the Half Hundred of Chelmsford (e). ——John de Wollaxton, who dyed 3 Edward II. held the Bayliſhip of the Foreſts of Writele, and Half-Hundred of Chelmsford, by the ſerjancy of keeping the King's Foreſt in Writele. And, by the ſervice of 20 s. per ann. he held of Robert de Bruis by reaſon of his maner of Writele, 1 meſſuage, 160 acres of arable land, 6 acres of meadow, 6 acres of paſture, 8 acres of wood, and 17 s. rent in Writele: And whoever held the premiſſes, was on account of them to diſcharge the Bayliſhip aforeſaid (f).

We proceed now to give an account of the Petre-family, Lords of this maner. Sir William Petre, Kt. the founder of this family, was born in the pariſh of Tor-Brian in Devonſhire; and educated in Oxford, where he took the degree of Doctor of Law. In 1535, he was appointed one of the Viſitors of the Monaſteries, out of whoſe revenues he got a very conſiderable eſtate. About 1539. he was knighted; and in 1543. conſtituted one of the principal Secretaries of State: in which office he continued during the reſt of Henry the Eighth's life, and in the reigns of K. Edward VI. and Qu. Mary, and the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth; being alſo a Privy Counſellor, and often employed in affairs of the greateſt importance. Dying 13 January 1571-2, he was buried in a new iſle of the Church at Ingatſtone. [See under that pariſh.] By his firſt wife he had two daughters; one of which was Dorothy, married to Nicolas Wadham, founder of the college of that name. By the ſecond he had three daughters, and—JOHN, his ſon and heir, who, 21 July 1603, was created Baron Petre of Writtle. His Lordſhip had four daughters; and four ſons, of whom John, the ſecond, was ſeated at Weſt-Haningfield; Thomas, the third ſon, at Cranham; Robert, the fourth, dyed young. —William, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded his father in dignity and eſtate. He had ſeven ſons and three daughters, and dyed 5 May 1627. —Robert, his eldeſt ſon, had three ſons and two daughters; and departing this life 23 October 1637. was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon —William, who had only a daughter, and dyed in his confinement in the Tower 5 January 1683-4. —John, his next brother, ſucceeding, dyed unmarried in 1684. And was ſucceeded by the next brother —Thomas, who dyed 4 June 1707. His only ſon —Robert, dying of the ſmall pox 22 March 1712-13, left his lady [Catharine, daughter of Francis Walmeſley Eſq;] big with child, who, the 3d of June following, was delivered of —Robert, the late Lord Petre. He married Anna-Maria, daughter of James Earl of Derwentwater; and dying in July 1742, hath left iſſue by her —Robert-Edward his ſon and heir, and three daughters (*). For a further account of this Family, we ſhall refer the reader to Sir William Dugdale's Baronage, and the Peerages of England.

Within this maner there is a remarkable Cuſtom, called Leppe and Laſſe; viz. That every Cart which comes over a part thereof called Greenbury, except it be the Cart of a Nobleman, is to pay four pence to the Lord of the maner. 'Tis ſuppoſed to have anciently been a market place.

[Q] There is a Perambulation of this foreſt, and of the pariſh of Writtle, in the 26th of Edw. I. among the Records in the Chamberlains of the Exchequer's office.

From the noble Lordſhip of Writtle, have been parcelled out, at different times, Nine Maners; of which we ſhall give account in the following order.

1. The Maner of ROLSTON's, ſo named from a family ſurnamed de Rolleſton.

The maner-houſe is pleaſantly ſeated on the right ſide of the road, leading from Writtle Church to Blackmore: about half a mile from that church.

Walter Thomas, Gent. who dyed 14 April 1543, held this eſtate of the King of his maner of Writtell, by fealty, and rent of 25 s. 6 d. per ann. being then valued at 8 l. a year.——William Thomas, alias Walter, his ſon and heir, was then 36 years old (g). This family had alſo Tye-hall in Roxwell.

It was afterwards in the Aſtley-family. For Sir Andrew Aſtley Kt. dyed 1 September 1633, poſſeſſed of this eſtate: — Thomas his ſon and heir being 30 years old, and upwards (h).—— Of Antony Aſtley it was purchaſed, 23 July 1653, by William Wiſeman, and, upon his death 30 April 1657, deſcended to — Elizabeth Wiſeman. She, or her heirs, ſold it, 12 December 1685, to John Adams Eſq; who lived at this houſe; and dying 2 September 1711. aged 77 years, was buried at Writtle.—Randal Adams, his ſon, was of Gore-hall in Kent. It ſtill continues in that family, and is now in—Bonny Adams Eſq;

2. The maner of SHAKESTON's.

The manſion houſe lyes on the ſide of the road leading from Writtle-church to Margetting.

William Bedell, who dyed 3 September 1535, held of K. Henry VIII, this meſſuage, called in the record Scheheſtons, another meſſuage named the Lodge, and another called Howchers, all in Writtle.—Thomas, his ſon and heir, was then 8 years old (i). See more of this family under Bedell's-hall.

Sir Andrew Aſtley Kt. mentioned above, held this maner and ferme of Shakeſton's, with its appertenances, in Writtle, of Richard Earl of Portland, and Peter Whetcomb, of their maner of Writtle; which they had in truſt for the Lord Petre. Sir Andrew lived at this houſe.

This family took its name from Aſtley, a Lordſhip in Warwickſhire (k). They derived themſelves from Thomas de Eſtley, or Aſtley, impriſoned by Fulk de Brent in the caſtle of Bedford, in 1215 (l): whoſe grandſon, Andrew de Eſtlegh, was ſummoned to parliament 23, 25, 27, 28, 30 &c. Edward I. (m)—John de Aſtley, of this family, was much renowned for maintaining a duel on horſe-back, at Paris, 29 Auguſt 1438, againſt one Peter de Maſſei, whom he vanquiſhed in the preſence of Charles VII. King of France: And, three years after, for another fight in Smithfield London, before K. Henry VI, with Sir Philip Boyle, an Arragonian knight, whom he alſo conquered. On account of which victory he was knighted by K. Henry, and made one of the Knights of the Garter (n).

But to return to Sir Andrew above mentioned. His father,—Thomas Aſtley of Shakeſtons, third ſon of Thomas Aſtley and Amy Cruſe daughter of .... Cruſe of Warwickſhire, married Mary daughter of Antony Denny of Hertfordſhire, by whom he had — Andrew, and Thomas; Elizabeth wife of Edward Darcy of the privy Chamber; and Frances wife of Sir William Harrys of Shenfeild Kt. Andrew was knighted, and had two wives. 1. Alice, daughter and coheir of John Daniel of Meſſing; by whom he is not recorded to have had any iſſue. His 2d wife, was Mary, daughter of ... Relſtredg of London, relict of ... Drywood of Eſſex: By her he had, Thomas, Andrew, John; Mary, wife of Thomas Darcy ſon of John Darcy Serjeant at law. He dyed 1 September 1633, leaving — Thomas, his eldeſt ſon and heir, aged 30 years and upwards. He married Suſan, daughter of ... Drywood aforeſaid and Mary his wife; ſo that ſhe was his ſiſter by the mother's ſide. They had iſſue, Thomas, John, Antony, Mary and Suſan, twins.—Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, was born in 1624. From the Aſtleys it came to the families of Browne — Rogers — and Plummer. The latter of which ſold it to

3. The maner of FIDLER's.

The manſion-houſe ſtands a little out of the road, on the right hand, leading from Writtle Church to Blackmore; about 3 miles ſouth-weſt from the Church. There is a walk of trees from the road to the houſe. It is ſo called by contraction from Fithelers, or Vithelers, the ſurname of a Family of great antiquity. Nicolas de Fithelir lived here in the reign of K. Henry III. John was his ſon and heir, who had Maud, and Amicia (o). John ſon of Benedict de Fithelere was living in Edward the Second's reign, and held lands under Laurence de Tany.

In 1356, Nicolas de la More releaſed to Sir Hugh de Badwene Kt. and Alice his wife, remainder intail to their ſon Hugh, all the right he had in a tenement and maner in Writtle called Vitheleris (p).

We find it next in the Joſceline-family. Sir Ralph Joſceline was Maior of London in 1465, and 1476 (q). His ſon and heir—Richard Joſceline was of Fidlers; whoſe daughter, Beatrix, was married to John Browne of this county, deſcended from a younger branch of the Brownes of Derbyſhire. By Beatrix he had, a daughter married to ... Marſh of Lyme-houſe; and a ſon and heir named—Henry, who married Mary daughter of ... of Haydon in Eſſex, and had John, Robert,

Robert, the ſecond ſon, had iſſue Robert of Wades in this county, who marrying Joane daughter of John Waltham of Great Waltham, had Robert, born in 1629, Antony, and Thomas.——John, the eldeſt ſon, of Fidelers Eſq; married, 1. Gertrude daughter of Sir Henry Tyrrell of Heron Kt. by whom he had ſix children, viz. Henry, John that married a daughter of . . . Brooke of Herfordſhire, Charles who married a daughter of . . . Flint of Norfolk, relict of . . . Farre of Eſſex; Mary wife of John Derings of Hertfordſhire, Thomaſine wife of Chriſtopher Dennys of Lincolnſhire, and Frances. His 2d wife, was Elizabeth daughter and heir of George Bird Gent. by which he had, Edward, Richard, William, and Elizabeth. He dyed 2 Sept. 1617. and lies buried in the ſouth iſle of the Church. His eldeſt ſon,—Henry, was knighted [¶¶].

It came afterward into a branch of the Petre-family, wherein it has continued ever ſince. William, eldeſt ſon and heir of John the firſt Lord Petre, and who ſucceeded him in the Barony, married Catharine, ſecond daughter of Edward Earl of Worceſter, by whom he had ſeven ſons, Robert that ſucceeded him, William, Edward, John, Thomas, Henry, George; and alſo three daughters, Elizabeth married to William Sheldon of Beoley in Worceſterſhire Eſq; Mary to John Lord Tenham, and Catharine to John Carrel of Harting in Suſſex Eſq; (r) From William, the ſecond ſon, deſcended William Petre of Bell-houſe in Stanford-Rivers Eſq; And from John, the fourth ſon, the family ſeated at Fithelers. This—John Petre Eſq; had three wives. 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Pordage of Rodmerſham in Kent Eſq; by whom he had John his eldeſt ſon and heir. She dyed 15 Auguſt 1658. in the 39th year of her age, and was interred in the South iſle of the Chancel. 2. His ſecond wife was Elizabeth, ſecond daughter of John Pynchon of Writtle; She dyed 3d November 1678, in the 41ſt year of her age. By her he had, William, Charles, Matthew, Thomas, John, Benjamin, Laurence; and a daughter, named Elizabeth. William was an Eaſt-India Captain. 3. His third wife was Frances daughter of Geo. White of . . . . by whom he had no iſſue. He dyed 15 May 1690, aged 73 years, and is buried in the ſouth iſle of the Chancel (s).—John, his eldeſt ſon and heir by his firſt wife, married Mary daughter of Sir Francis Mannock of Giffords-hall in Suffolk Bart. and had iſſue, John who dyed young, Joſeph, George, Robert, Thomas; Mary, Anne, Winifred. She dyed 27 April 1687, in the 46th year of her age, and is buried in the ſame iſle.—Joſeph, his ſecond ſurviving ſon, had two wives. 1. Catharine daughter of Sir William Andrew of Downham in Eſſex Bart. by whom he had, John, Francis, Joſeph; William, and Edward, which two laſt dyed young. She departed this life 3 December 1700, in the 32d year of her age, and is buried in the ſouth iſle aforeſaid. 2. His ſecond wife, was Dorothy daughter of George Throgmorton of Cheſtfield in Hertfordſhire Eſq; and widow of John Hurſt of Haverhill Gent. by which he had no iſſue. She dyed 23 April 1714, in the 42d year of her age. He himſelf departed this life 31 January 1721, in the 57th year of his age, and was interred in the foreſaid iſle (t).—John Petre Eſq; his eldeſt ſon by his firſt wife, married Anne, daughter of Sir Robert Throgmorton of Weſton in Buckinghamſhire Bart. by whom he had a ſon named John-Joſeph. He dyed 11 September 1721, in the 31ſt year of his age, and is buried with his anceſtors. His ſon—John-Joſeph dying 28 January 1721, three days before his grandfather, never enjoyed this eſtate; which deſcended to—Joſeph, next living brother to John, and third ſon of Joſeph above mentioned. Upon whoſe deceaſe, it deſcended to his brother—Francis.

4. The maner of TURGES.

A capital meſſuage, called Turges and Caſſus, ſtands about a mile from the Church to the Northweſt. 'Tis now called Sturgeons. It hath been an ancient ſeat, where perſons of note have reſided. There is a tradition, that Ralph Nevill Biſhop of Chicheſter and Chancellor of England lived here.

This Maner, as it is called, was holden by John Berners Eſq; [of the ancient family of this name that were poſſeſſed of Berners-Roding in this County not long after the Conqueſt] under Henry Stafford Duke of Buckingham, as belonging to his maner of Writtle. He was Gentleman-Uſher to the Princeſs Elizabeth eldeſt daughter of K. Edward IV. and afterwards Sewer to K. Edward V. as appears from the epitaph on his monument in this Church, where he was buried in 1525. He had two wives. 1. Margaret daughter of Richard Vere of Addington in the county of Northampton Eſq; a branch of the Veres Earls of Oxford. She lyes buried by her huſband. 2. His ſecond wife was Conſtance daughter of Sir Robert Pakenham of Streetham in Surrey Kt. and is buried alſo with him. By the firſt wife he had—John, his ſon and heir, who was Receiver-general of the Honors, Caſtles, Lordſhips, and Maners both in Eſſex and Suffolk that belonged to Catharine Parr, dowager of K. Henry VIII. He purchaſed the maner of La Hay in Therfield in Hertfordſhire, and ſold this eſtate very probably to the Pinchon-family (u); of which we proceed to give ſome account.

Nicolas Pinchon of Wales was one of the Sheriffs of London in 1532 (w). He left—John Pinchon of Writtle Eſq; who married Jane daughter of Sir Richard Empſon, [one of the hated miniſters of K. Henry the Seventh, beheaded 17 Auguſt 1509.] By her Mr. Pinchon had, according to the Epitaph, four ſons; but, according to the pedigree now before us, only three; viz. William; John, of Springfield; Sir Edward, a Knight, that dyed without iſſue: And two daughters, Elizabeth wife of Geffrey Gates of St. Edmunds-bury, and Jane wife of Andrew Paſchal of Springfield. He dyed 29 November 1573, and lyes buried in the North

The eldeſt ſon — William Pinchon of Writtle Eſq; married Roſe daughter of Thomas Redding of Pinner in Middleſex Eſq; and had, according to the epitaph, ſix ſons, and three daughters, of which only the following are mentioned in the pedigree, Edward, Henry, Chriſtopher; and Joane (x) wife of Sir Richard Weſton of Skreens in Roxwell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made Baron of Stoke-Neyland, and Earl of Portland. He dyed 13 October 1592. and is buried in the ſame iſle. In the Inquiſit. poſt mortem, it is ſaid, that he left—— Peter his ſon and heir 15 years old. But, upon this Peter's deceaſe, his next brother—Edward, who was knighted, came to the eſtate. He married Dorothy daughter of Sir Jerom Weſton of Skreens in Roxwell Kt. by whom he had John, his ſon and heir; and three daughters, Mary wife of Walter Overbury of Morton-in-the-marſh in Glouceſterſhire, Elizabeth, and Anne. He dyed 6 May 1625, and was buried in the chancel of this church, where a noble monument is erected to the memory of himſelf and Dorothy his wife, againſt the north wall.—John ſucceeded his father, and married Elizabeth daughter and co-heir of Thomas Corderoy by the ſiſter of Tho. Cornwallys Eſq; whoſe heir ſhe was. He dyed 30 July 1654, and was buried within the rails of the Communion-table. His ſecond wife, Ann, dyed 10 May 1675, and was buried by him. — Edward, ſon of this laſt John, dyed February 1672, and was buried by his father. This family lived laſt at the Parſonage.

The maner of Turges belonged afterwards to William Wolfe of St. Andrews Holburne, Eſq; and is now in—John Wolfe Eſq;

5. The maner of HASET's.

In Qu. Elizabeth's reign, 'twas holden by John Pinchon Eſq; of the maner of Writtle, as Turges, and continued in his poſterity till of late.

Afterwards it came to William Wolfe Eſq; as the foregoing.

6. The maner of MOREHALL, alias STANDFORD's.

The manſion-houſe ſtands in the road to Highwood, about a mile north-weſt from the church.

Moſt probably it has its name from the ſituation, in a More, or Wet place. In 1359, the 33d of Edward III, Elizabeth daughter of Sir William Scot Kt. late wife of John, ſon of Sir William De la more, or at More, lett to Ralph Woley, or Wolſey, the maner of More-hall during her life, for 40 marks a year. And her brother in law Nicolas releaſed to the ſaid Ralph, and his heirs, all his right in the ſame (y). In 1367, this Nicolas grants the reverſion, and in 1375. releaſes all his right, in the maner of More-hall unto—John Aubrey (z).

The 6th of Henry IV. Sir Adam Fraunceys Kt. releaſes unto William Creſſewyk, John Darham, and others, all his right in the ſaid maner, and in other lands and tenements of his in Wrytle, called Goos and Frydays (a).

John Hende, of Bradwell near Coggeſhall, who dyed in 1418, held this maner in right of Elizabeth his wife.—John, his ſon and heir, was then 9 years old (b).

We find next, that Sir Thomas Charleton, who dyed in 1465, held the maner of Morehall, alias Staunfords in Writtel of the Abbat of Bylegh: And 1 meſſuage, 2 tofts, 250 acres of arable land, 16 acres of meadow, 40 acres of paſture, 20 acres of wood, and 40 s. rent in the ſame pariſh, of Anne Counteſs of Buckingham (c). —Richard, his ſon and heir, by Elizabeth daughter and co-heir of Adam Fraunceys, [afterwards knighted,] was then 15 years old. For taking part with K. Richard III. he was attainted of high-treaſon in 1485, and his eſtates fell to the Crown (d).

Soon after, K. Henry VII. granted this maner of More-hall to Sir John Forteſcue Kt. and his heirs (e).

But, 6 April 1510, John Baſſet Eſq; deſcended from John Hende above mentioned, had ſpecial livery of the ſame maner from K. Henry VIII. (f).

Notwithſtanding which,—John Forteſcue Eſq; ſon and heir of the foreſaid Sir John, dyed 9 June 1518, poſſeſſed of this maner, holden of the King, and worth then 24 l. per ann. (g)—Henry, his ſon, who dyed 6 October 1576, held the ſame (h).—Francis, his ſon, at that time 30 years old, dyed 8 July 1588, leaving—Edmund, his ſon and heir, 22 years of age (i). He had licenſe, the 2d of September following, to alienate the maners of Morehall, &c. to

William Carewe Eſq; But, two years after, Qu. Elizabeth granted the ſame to William Carewe and John Forteſcue (k). And, the next year,—Thomas Carewe ſuffered a recovery of this maner againſt William Carewe [R]. Which laſt ſold it, about 1592, 35 Elizab. to Chriſtopher Sybthorpe Eſq; and his heirs [S]. This Chriſtopher dyed 24 January 1600-1, poſſeſſed of the maner of Morehall; leaving two daughters and coheirs, in minority; Elizabeth five years and two months, and Anne two years and nine months, old (l).

Moſt probably it was purchaſed by Nicolas Wadham Eſq; or Dorothy his wife daughter of Sir William Petre, and ſettled upon Wadham-college at Oxford, to which it belongs.

7. the maner of BOWERS, otherwiſe called Burrowes, or Barrowes, lies by the ſide of Edney common, in that part of the pariſh that is named High-wood: And is holden of the maner of Writtle, by the rent of 20 s. per ann.

In the reign of K. Charles I. it belonged to the Luckyn family, of which ſee an Account under Dyves-Hall in Chicknall-Smeley.

Richard Luckyn Eſq; was High-Sheriff of Eſſex in 1636. — Richard, his ſon, married two wives. 1. Elizabeth daughter of Sir Thomas Heale Bart. by whom he had — Joſeph, his ſon and heir. 2. . . . . daughter of William Cholmely of High-gate in Middleſex Eſq; by whom he had Anne, married to Sir Joſeph Brand of Edwardſton in Suffolk Kt. Joſeph the ſon married Sarah Manwood of Bromfeild; but, dying without iſſue, this eſtate deſcended to

Joſeph Brand Eſq; ſon of Sir Joſeph: who ſold it to Job Marple, clerk, Vicar of Boreham in this county. He gave it to Thomas Cook, Rector of Semer in Suffolk, who had married his youngeſt daughter: And it is now in his ſon — Thomas Cook, Rector of the ſame place.

8. The maner of BEDEL'S-HALL.

This is one of the four Hamlets belonging to Writtle-pariſh. The manſion-houſe is ſeated on the right ſide of the road leading from Pleſhey to Chicknal-Smeley, not far from Dyveſhall; and is above 4 miles North-eaſt from Writtle-church. Near it formerly ſtood a croſs at the meeting of the three ways, called Bedel's-croſs.

This maner is part of what was holden, at the time of the general Survey, by Robert Gernon Lord of Stanſted Montfitchet. From his deſcendents it paſſed into the noble family of the De Veres Earls of Oxford, as Stanſted did; and upon that account came to be holden of them.

William le Bedell is mentioned in the Inquiſitions 35 Hen. III.

Richard Bedell held this eſtate under John de Vere Earl of Oxford who dyed in 1360 (m).— William Bedell held it in the 8th of Richard II.—William Bedell in the reign of Henry VI.— And another William 7 Henry VIII.—William his ſon and heir in the 25th of Henry VIII. The Earl of Oxford granted his wardſhip to John Brockette for 30 l. (n) He dyed 3 September 1535, holding the maner of Bedel's-Hall of John Earl of Oxford, of his caſtle of Hedingham, by the ſervice of the fourth part of a knight's-fee. — Thomas his ſon and heir was then eight years old. Beſides this, he held a meſſuage called the Lodge, a meſſuage and divers lands called Shekeſton's, and a meſſuage called Howchers, in Writtle, of the King of his maner of Writtle (o).

In the reign of Qu. Elizabeth, William Bedle Gent. held this eſtate.

Of this family, but born at Black Notley, was the famous and learned William Bedell D. D. biſhop of Kilmore in Ireland. See his life written by Gilbert Burnet afterwards biſhop of Saliſbury [†].

We find Bedle's-Hall next in the poſſeſſion of Chriſtopher Glaſcock, Clerk, Maſter, for about forty years, of Felſtead-ſchool in this county. He dyed, at the age of 76, in January 1689-90, leaving this eſtate to his ſon — Thomas Glaſcock, many years Town-clerk of Colcheſter. And he dying, without iſſue, 14 February 1727. this maner was purchaſed by — Job Marple, Clerk, Vicar of Boreham above mentioned, who gave it to his daughter —— Jane, wife of Thomas Wallace M. D. and it is now enjoyed by his grandſon Job Wallace, Rector of Liſton, and Vicar of Meſſing, in this county.

9. The maner of BENEDICT OTES, took its name from one Benedictus Otes, that held it formerly. In records it is corruptly written Benditotes, and Benecotts.

The manſion houſe ſtands on the right ſide of the road from Roxwell to Chelmsford, near Cooks-Mill green, about three miles Northweſt from Writtle-church.

It belonged anciently to Mountney's Chantry, founded in the Church of Chelmsford by Sir John Mountney (p).

After the diſſolution of the Chantries, K. Edward VI. granted this maner, with the appertenances, in Writtle, belonging to Mountney's Chantry in Chelmsford, to Sir John Peryent, and Thomas Reve (q).

But Sir John Cary, that dyed three years after, 9 September 1552, was found poſſeſſed of the maner of Benedic Otes in Writtle, belonging to the Chantry of St. Mary's de Mountney; and of one meſſuage, 300 acres of arable, 100 of meadow, 200 of paſture, 20 of wood, and 20 s. rent, in Chycknall St. James, Writtle, Bromefeild, and Chelmsford, holden of the King in capite.—— Wymond, his ſon and heir, was then fifteen years old (r).

From this family it paſſed to John Agmondeſham Eſq; who dyed 1 Auguſt 1598. — Mary wife of William Muſcampe, of Godalming in Surrey, was his ſiſter and heir, then aged twenty one (s).

It was afterwards in William Petre of Mile-end in Middleſex Eſq; a branch of the Lord Petre's family: And is now in—William Petre Eſq;

There is a farm in this pariſh, called Beaumont Otes, in the road from Chicknall-Smeley to Chelmsford, belonging to Lord Petre.

Charitable Gifts.

Thomas Hawkins, by his will dated 16 Henry VII, gave a meſſuage and farm called Hooks, and ſixty acres of land, in Writtle, to William Carpenter the then Vicar, and others; for the uſe of ſuch Poor people, as ſhould from time to

The ſame Thomas Hawkins, as is ſuppoſed, gave Thirty acres of land, meadow, paſture, and wood-ground, being a farm called Bumſteds; and 3 Tenements, called Parker's tenements, Eaſt Hayes alias Polls, and Motts tenement; with 2 s. rent iſſuing out of a tenement called Morrells, in Writtle. A Deed of feoffment of the ſame tenements, and of Hooks, was executed 1 April 1569, between Thomas Wood and John Hawkins, of the one part, and Thomas Bedell Eſq; and others, to the number of twenty in all: with covenant, to give further aſſurance by fine &c. Accordingly, a fine was levied at a Court holden for the maner of Writtle 28 May 1569, and the uſes of Bumſteds and the other tenements declared to be for the repair of the Church, and of Hooks for the Poor in the Almshouſes as aforeſaid. When the feoffees are reduced to the number of four or five, they to enfeoff others.

William Horne of London, grocer, by will dated 1 July 1591, gave Five pounds ſix ſhillings and eight pence per ann. out of his meſſuage, tenements, ſtables, haylofts, yards, with the appertenances, in the Weſtlere in the pariſh of St. Ethelburgh in Biſhops-gate-ſtreet London, to the poor of the pariſh. By decree of Chancery 25 February 1653, this ſum was ordered to be paid in the ſouth Church-porch of Writtle every Chriſtmaſs and Midſummer days.

Mr. Edward Hunt, by will dated 3 February 1705, gave two Tenements, parcel of Abyns, for the dwelling of two ſole perſons for life; to be put in by two or three of his deviſees, and the Churchwardens: Continued by feoffment as the foregoing. And he further gave Twenty ſhillings per ann. iſſuing out of a field of Five Acres in Chelmsford, called Appesfeild, for the better maintenance of the ſaid 2 poor perſons, payable at Michaelmaſs and Lady-day.

Dorothy Davis, by will dated 13 April 1634, gave Fifty three ſhillings and four pence for Twelve Penny-loaves, to be given every Sunday, to 12 poor people of this pariſh, as ſhall be then at Church, or abſent by ſickneſs; at the diſcretion of the Churchwardens or overſeers; with power of entry and diſtreſs. This Annuity iſſues out of a Houſe and land called the Newhouſe in Writtle and Roxwell.

Abbey-lands.

BEDEMANNES-BERG [T].

This was a Hermitage, ſituated in the middle of a wood called High-wood Quarter, about 4 miles North-eaſt from Writtle Church. Part of the Chapel is ſtill ſtanding.

The founder of this Hermitage, was one Robert, a monk, in the time of K. Stephen [V]. That King granted him not only the ſite of the Hermitage in his foreſt of Writele, but alſo whatever he wanted for building the houſes there, for firing, and paſture for his cattle, and proper fences.

Some time after, Robert reſigned all his title and intereſt in the ſame unto the Abbat and Monks of St. John's in Colcheſter: and K. Stephen granted and confirmed it to them in perpetual alms. As did afterwards K. Henry II. who ordained, that two Monks, Prieſts, perpetually reſiding there, ſhould pray for the King then being, and for the ſouls of the Kings his predeceſſors. He appointed for their maintenance four pence a day, which had been anciently aſſigned in his maner of Writole for the King's alms. Willing and enjoyning, that this venerable place, and all belonging to the ſame, ſhould have all manner of liberty, which can be offered from man to God, and granted to his miniſters. Namely that they ſhould be free and exempt of and from all toll, of the expeditating of their dogs, of payment for pannage, for aſſarts, and all ſecular exactions. And ſhould have in his foreſt whatever they wanted, for firing, for the paſture of all their cattle, their fences, and repairs of their houſes. And, that they might have their men to gather Nuts in his foreſt round about, as long as the ſeaſon for gathering of Nuts ſhould laſt (t) [W].

Beſides the two Prieſts above mentioned, the Abbey put in a Keeper, or Guardian (u).

After the diſſolution of the Monaſteries, this Hermitage, then corruptly called Barrows and Salmons in Writtel; and deſcribed, as comprehending a Dove-houſe, orchard, and garden, and certain lands conteyning Fifty acres; were granted by K. Henry VIII. in 1542, to — Robert Tirwhit Eſq; and his heirs; who ſold them, the ſame year, to Philip Lentall, and Pernel his wife (w). In 1544, July 18. this Philip had licenſe to alienate them, being called about 40 acres, unto Sir William Petre Kt. And they continue in his poſterity to this day.

The CHURCH of Writtle, dedicated to All-Saints, is very large and ſtately. Both Church and Chancel have iſles belonging to them; the whole leaded, except the top of the Chancel which is tyled. At the weſt end is a lofty Tower of ſtone, with battlements: In it a ring of 8 Bells.

This Church is ſaid to have been given by K. Stephen, in 1143, to the Priory of Bermondſey in Surrey (x). But, in 1203, K. John gave it to the Hoſpital at the Church of St. Mary in Saxia, otherwiſe called the Hoſpital of the Holy Ghoſt in Rome, belonging to the Engliſh, for the maintenance of the Poor and infirm there [X]. And K. Edward III, in the 2d of his reign, confirmed it to them (y).

In purſuance of this grant, there was a Houſe erected here, called The Houſe of the Holy Ghoſt, that was governed by a Warden or Prior, appointed by the King's letters patent; and who held this Church in free-alms (z). Algucius, Warden of this Houſe, had licenſe, 30 Edward I, to purchaſe ſome lands here, for himſelf and ſucceſſors (a). During the wars between England and the neighbouring States, theſe Wardens commonly put themſelves under our Kings protection (b) [Y]. At length this Church was ſeized by the Crown as belonging to an Hoſpital Alien. And William of Wykeham, Biſhop of Wincheſter, having about that time, viz. 5 March 1399, founded his New College at Oxford, he acquired this Church; which the then Warden had leave from K. Richard II, to make over to that college (c) [Z].

From that time, the Warden and Fellows of the ſaid College have been, and ſtill are, proprietors of the Rectory, Patrons of the Vicarage or Donative, and Ordinaries. For, it is a peculiar Juriſdiction belonging to New College in Oxford, and in all ſpiritual matters ſubject to ſuch Commiſſary as is conſtituted by the Warden and Fellows of that Houſe: ſo that it is exempt from Epiſcopal viſitation.

The Rectory of this Pariſh is a Maner, and the Court is kept at the Parſonage-houſe, that ſtands pleaſantly on the ſouth ſide of the Church-yard. It is called The maner of Romans Fee, or Rectoria de Writtle, alias Roman; on account of the Rectory's belonging to the foreſaid Hoſpital at Rome. There ſtill remains the remembrance of a Water-mill, called Roman-mill.

I take this Romans Fee to be what the Biſhop of Hereford held in this pariſh, at the time of the general Survey; belonging to the Church.

Romans Fee is one of the Four Hamlets, or Diſtricts, in this pariſh; the other three being, Town-Quarter, High-wood, and Bedel's-end.

There were formerly four Chantries in this Church.

1. One, of the yearly value of	£. 06 02 04
2. Sewal Bromfeilds, alias our Ladies Chantry, to which belonged a Chapel in the Church-yard, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, -	15 10 06
3. St. John Baptiſt's Chantry, -	09 12 06
4. Carpenter's Chantry, - -	13 05 03

At the time of their ſuppreſſion, in Edward the Sixth's time, this was called a great and populous Toune, contayning in it by eſtimation 1000 of houſeling people, and above.

There were alſo Endowments for Twelve Obits in the Church; and for one Lamp.

23. ROXWELL.

OF this place there is no mention in Domeſday-book; nor can I find from whence the preſent name is derived, except from the nature of the ſoil, which abounds with ſprings and wells. In ancient Records it is ſometimes written Rokeſwell, and Wroxwell.

It lies about four miles North-weſt from Chelmsford, in the road leading from this town to Margaret-Rothing: And contains above 2000 acres of land.

'Tis a Chapelry, or Hamlet, belonging to the pariſh of Writtle; and doth not appear ever to have been a diſtinct pariſh, at leaſt preſentative [A].

Here are ſeveral Maners, but they are all within the great Maner of Writtle, that comprehends all the lands in Roxwell; of which however the maners of Skreens and Duke are not holden, but of the King in capite. In one place, indeed, (d) mention is made of the maner of Rokeſwell; but that means the maner of Mounteneys alias Rokeſwell, of which hereafter: And this diſtinction has long been loſt.

The maners, or reputed maners here, are theſe Six. 1. The maner of Boyton-hall. 2. — of Skrenes. 3. — of Tye-hall. 4. — of Mountneys. 5. — of Dukes. 6. — of Newland-hall.

1. The maner of BOYTON-HALL.

The ſeveral names it has gone by, are Boyton-hall, Boyton-croſs, and Boyton magna. Probably, a Croſs ſtood near it formerly, from whence called Boyton-croſs; and Boyton-magna, to diſtinguiſh it from another farm called Boyton parva.

In the Pleas of the Crown at Chelmsford, 13 Edward I. we find mention of Beytone Strata, and of Roger, ſon of John de Beyton-ſtrata, or Beyton-ſtreet: From whence we may conclude, that here was then a conſiderable thorough-fare.

This maner always went with that of Writtle, as part of the ancient demeſnes... Henry Duke of Buckingham dyed 10 July 1546, ſeiz'd of the maner of Boyton, as well as that of Writtle (e). And they being forfeited to the Crown, upon the attainder of one of his ſucceſſors, in 1521, were granted by Qu. Mary I. in 1553, to Sir William Petre, Kt. and Anne his wife (f). And they continue in his poſterity to this day.

2. The maner of SKRENES.

The manſion-houſe ſtands on the left ſide of the road, going from Roxwell to Shellow, about a mile beyond Roxwell-Church. It was elegantly rebuilt ſome years ago, by the preſent worthy poſſeſſor.

It took its name from a family of note, that were many years ago poſſeſſed of this and other conſiderable Eſtates in this county.

William Skrene, of Writtle, and of Cliffords-Inn, was conſtituted Serjeant at law, 10 Henry IV. 1409 (g). His ſon — Sir William Skrene, who dyed the 9th of Henry VI, held, jointly with Alice his wife, the maner of Longhous in Chaldwell, with its appertenances in Orſet, Weſt-Tilbury, and Little Thurrock; and two meſſuages in Stamford-Rivers, called Berwyk and Cadnes, with their appertenances in Ongre, Matching, Bobingworth, and Stapleford (h) [B]. His ſon — John Skrene, who dyed 4 July, 30 Henry VI, held the ſame eſtates, and the maner of Chambers in Epping. — John, his ſon and heir by Philippa his wife, was then a year and a half old (i).... But, beſides the eſtates already mentioned, this family had others in this very pariſh. For Alice, named a little above, that had taken to her ſecond huſband .... Straunge, dying about the 38th of Henry VI, was found to have been poſſeſſed of the maners of Rokeſwell Mounteneys, and Dukes, and a tenement called Serles in Rokeſwell, holden of Humfrey Duke of Buckingham in ſocage, and of the maner of Wares in Good Eaſter, holden of the Dean of St. Martin le Grand (k). Her grandſon — Sir John Skrene, ſon of Philippa as above, inherited thoſe Eſtates, with the maner of Mulſham in Great Leighs. What he had in this pariſh, is thus particularly ſet down in the Inquiry. ‘ And the maners of Skrenes, Dukes, and Rokeſwell; five meſſuages, viz. Serolys, Aſhwell, Rotys, Swannewyke, and Whelers, 300 acres of land, 20 acres of meadow, and 20 acres of wood, in Rokeſwell and the Lordſhip of Writell’ (l). — The appertenances of the maners of Langhous and Cadnes, are there ſaid to be, 1 meſſuage, 640 acres of land, 20 acres of meadow, 20 acr. of paſture, 32 acr. of wood, 250 acr. of marſh, and 4 l. 4 s. 2 d. rent, out of Stamford-Rivers, Ongre, Matching, Bobbingworth, Stapilford Tany, Chaldwell, Orſet, Weſt-Tilbury, Little Thurrocke, Cheping-Ongre, and Shelley (m). He dyed 14 Edward IV.

Three years after Sir John Skrene's deceaſe, John Cornyſhe, William Drayton, and Thomas Garthe, releaſed to William Lord Haſtings, all thoſe maners, lands, and tenements in Writtell, Rokeſwell, Newland, and Shellowe, which were lately the eſtate of Sir John Skrene Kt. or of his father, or grandfather (n).

It came afterwards into the Family of Farmer. For K. Henry VIII. May 17. 1544, granted the maner of Scrynes, Serles, and Dukes, in Writtle and Roxwell, lately belonging to Richard Farmer attainted of high-treaſon, to

Richard Sampford, yeoman. But in this family it continued but a very little while: becauſe we find, that William Sampford had licenſe, 23 July 1546, to ſell the premiſſes to — Chriſtopher Alen. And, 10 January 1554, — Richard Sampforth had licenſe to alienate this eſtate to Richard Weſton Eſq; (o) This family derived their original from Hamon de Weſton, Lord of Weſton under Lyzard in Staffordſhire in the reign of Henry II. There were two branches: the eldeſt of which ended in .... daughter and heir of John de Weſton, married to Sir Adam de Perſhall about the beginning of K. Edward the Third's reign.

Of the younger branch, was Sir William de Weſton of Boſton Kt. living in the time of K. Henry III. and Edward I. He had two ſons, John Weſton of Weſton in the county of Stafford —— and Michael.

Michael was the firſt of this family that ſettled in Eſſex, about the 14th of Edward I. He left two ſons. 1. Thomas de Weſton Kt. that held the maners of Eythorp-Roding and Elmſtead. Margaret, his daughter and heir, became wife of John de Loveyn Lord of Little Eſtayne; whoſe daughter and heir was married to William Bourchier Kt. from whom the Earls of Eſſex of that name were derived. 2. Humfrey de Weſton was the other ſon of Michael. He ſettled at Preſted-hall in Fering, where he was living in 1360, and where his poſterity flouriſhed till the William Weſton of Preſted-hall, and of London mercer in 1512, had four ſons, Richard, William, Thomas, John, and two daughters, Margaret, and Mary.

John had 20 l. a year ſettled on him by his father. He left one daughter, Mary, wife of John Ball of Suffolk; and a ſon named

Richard, who being bred to the law, laid the foundation of the Grandeur of this family. He bought of Richard Sampforth the maner of Skrenes, as hath been obſerved above. The 24th of January 1559. 1 Elizab. he was called to the degree of Serjeant at law: the 13th of the month following, conſtituted one of the Queen's Serjeants: and the 16th of October, the ſame year, made one of the Juſtices of the Common Pleas (p). He had three wives. 1. Wiburga, daughter of Michael Cateſby of Seaton in Northamptonſhire, relict of Richard Jenour of Great Dunmow, anceſtor of the family of that name. 2. .... daughter of ... Burnaby. 3. Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Lovett of Aſtwell in Northamptonſhire. He dyed 6 July 1572, poſſeſſed of this maner; and of the maner of Netteſwell, and advowſon of the church; divers lands and tenements in Great and Little Parndon, Latton, and Harlowe; the maner of St. Lawrence-hall; Dunmow-park; the moiety of the maner of Weſt-Tilbury, and the Ferry; Stilmans in Wickford; Long Barnes, a maner in Beauchamp-Roding; Lands in Barnſton and High-Eaſter. By his firſt wife he had Jerom; and two daughters. Amphalis, wife of Sir Benjamin Tichbourne of Hamſhire, and Margaret wife of John Loveday, remarried to Andrew Glaſcock. No other iſſue of his is recorded.——Jerom, the only ſon, juſt now mentioned, being 22 years old at his father's death, was High Sheriff of Eſſex 41 Elizabeth (q); and afterwards knighted. He had two wives. 1. Mary, daughter and coheir of Antony Cave. 2. Margery, daughter of George Pert of London, relict of ... Thwayts; by which laſt he doth not appear to have had any children. He dyed 31 December 1603 (r), and, beſides the above-named eſtates, held the maner of Skreenes, and Tye-hall; Long Barnes, and Freys; the maner of Neyland, Suff. and the maner of Berwick-hall in White Colne. The iſſue he had by his firſt wife, were, Richard, and William: and five daughters, Anne wife of John Williams of Brentwood, executed for treaſon; ... wife of .. Gardiner of Suſſex; Winifrida wife of Nicolas Cotton of Romford Eſq; Dorothy of Sir Edward Pinchon of Writtle Kt. and Margaret, of Edward Leventhorp. His eldeſt ſon —— Sir Richard Weſton Kt. born in 1577, was a man of great abilities. K. James I. ſent him Embaſſador with Sir Edward Conway into Bohemia, to endeavour to make up the differences between the Emperor and the Elector Palatine: and the next year he was diſpatched alone to Bruſſels, to treat there with the Embaſſadors of the Emperor and King of Spain, about the reſtitution of the Palatinate (s). In 1621, he was made Chancellor and Undertreaſurer of the Exchequer; which office he diſcharged with ſo much wiſdom and integrity, that, 25 May 1624, he was commiſſioned to execute the office of Treaſurer of the Exchequer during the King's pleaſure: created, 13 April 1628, Baron of Neyland in Suffolk: the 15th of July following conſtituted Lord Treaſurer of England: elected Knight of the Garter 9 April 1630: on the 15th of February following made Captain of the iſle of Wight: and finally, 17 February 1632-3, created Earl of Portland (t). He held the maner of Skreens of the King, in capite, by the tenth part of a knight's-fee; and Tye-hall of William Lord Petre, as of his maner of Writtle. He had alſo the maner of Blounts-hall in Witham &c. He married two wives. 1. Elizabeth, daughter of William Pinchon of Writtle Eſq; by whom he had Richard, his eldeſt ſon and heir, who dyed in his life-time, unmarried: and two daughters, Elizabeth, wife of Sir John Netterville, ſon of Nicolas Viſcount Netterville, in Ireland; and Mary, wife of Walter Aſton, ſon to Sir Walter Aſton Baron of Forfare in Scotland. 2. Frances, daughter of Nicolas Walgrave of Boreley in Eſſex, Eſq; was his ſecond wife, on whoſe male iſſue the Barony was entailed. By her he had four ſons, Jerom; Thomas; Nicolas, who dyed without iſſue; and Benjamin, that married Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Sheldon of Houby in Leiceſterſhire, widow of Charles Earl of Angleſey. He had alſo by this wife four daughters. Anne, married to Baſil Lord Feilding, then ſon and heir of William Earl of Denbigh; Mary; Frances, to Philip Draycote of Payneſley in Staffordſhire, Eſq; and Catharine, to Richard White of Hutton in Eſſex, Eſq; This noble Earl departing this life, at Wallingford-houſe in Weſtminſter, 13 March 1634 (u), was buried in Wincheſter-Cathedral (w). He was ſucceeded in his Honors by his eldeſt ſon then living — Jerom Earl of Portland, who married Frances daughter of Eſme Steuart Earl of March and Duke of Richmond and Lennox, in June 1632.

But, we ſhall bring the account of this Family no lower, than whilſt they remained poſſeſſed of this Eſtate.

It is moſt probable, that Richard Earl of Portland left it to his ſecond ſon—Thomas: For, of him it was purchaſed, in the year 1635, by Sir John Bramſton Kt. Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench: of which Family we now proceed to give a diſtinct account.

This antient Family derives its original from William Bramſton, Sheriff of London 18 Richard II. 1394. (x) ... from whom deſcended — John Bramſton, who purchaſed, in 1480, ſeveral meſſuages in Alderſgate-ſtreet, upon ſurrender from William Dormer. His ſon and heir—Hugh, and Joane his wife, were admitted that year to ſeven tenements, ſome of which remain in the family to this day. He had a ſon, named alſo—Hugh, who married Eleanor daughter of Thomas Rooks, and had by her—Hugh, who, as heir at law to his mother, recovered an eſtate in White-Chapel. He married Elizabeth, daughter of

.... Norrys of London, and had, John, Thomas, who dyed without iſſue; and Agnes, wife of ... Champane of London.—John, the eldeſt ſon, was a mercer in London. He had two wives. 1. Margaret, daughter of Thomas Symonds of London. 2. Elizabeth, daughter of William Chambers. By the firſt, he had, Roger, Francis, Hugh, Thomas, Richard and John, that dyed without iſſue; and three daughters, Grace, wife of George Selighe of Havering; Anne, of George Sherman of Maldon, and Elizabeth of George Buck of Long Melford in Suffolk.—Roger, eldeſt ſon of John, married Priſcilla daughter of Francis Clovill, of Weſt-Hanningfeild-hall in Eſſex, Eſq; an antient and honorable family, which had flouriſhed there for ſeveral generations: She was widow of Thomas Ruſh of Boreham, Eſq; This match occaſioned his removal from his habitation in White-Chapel to Maldon in Eſſex, where he ſettled, and where John his eldeſt ſon and heir was born. He had another ſon named William; and three daughters, Margaret, Mary, and another Margaret. Mary was married to John Stepkyn of Lees Eſq; of German extraction, and they had ſeveral children. Margaret dyed unmarried.—William, the ſecond ſon, was in arms for K. Charles I. He had four ſons, and three daughters. 1. William, who married Jane, daughter of Sir George le Hunt of Suffolk, and had one ſon, John, and three daughters, Jane, Catharine, and Mary. 2. Edmund, bred up a merchant, and had only one daughter. 3. John, appeared alſo in arms for K. Charles I. and dyed ſingle. 4. Edward, a merchant, dyed likewiſe ſingle. The three daughters were,—Mary, wife of Richard, ſecond ſon of John Argal of Great Baddow Eſq; who became a Clergyman: they had one daughter, Mary, who was married to Capt. Blackman, but left no children.—Elizabeth, married to Richard Freman M. A. Rector of Springfeild-Boſwell, had iſſue one ſon, John, an eminent Attorney at Colcheſter.—Catharine, married to ... Antrobus, had one ſon and three daughters...... To return to JOHN, eldeſt ſon of Roger Bramſton. He was born at Maldon, as hath been already obſerved, and bred up in the Middle Temple in the ſtudy of the common Law; wherein he attained to ſuch eminency, that he was, firſt, appointed Counſel to the Univerſity of Cambridge; September 22. 1623, raiſed to the degree of Serjeant at law; in 1628, choſen Counſel at large to the city of London, with a fee pro conſilio impenſo & impendendo; in 1630, appointed chief Juſtice of Ely; in 1632, made Serjeant to the Queen; July 8. 1634, King's Serjeant, and knighted; and 14 April 1635, conſtituted Lord Chief Juſtice of England (y). When he was Reader of the Temple, he carried away the title of the beſt Lawyer of his times in England, and when made Serjeant with fifteen more, had the character of the faireſt Pleader in England (z). This further character is given of him, That he was one of deep learning, ſolid judgment, integrity of life, gravity of behaviour; in a word, accompliſhed with all qualities requiſite for a perſon of his place and profeſſion (a). It was his unhappineſs, to live in bad and difficult times. For, having delivered his opinion about Ship-money, in favour of K. Charles I, he was impeached by the Houſe of Commons 5 July 1641 (b). However, ſo unexceptionable was his conduct found; and ſo great his uprightneſs and abilities, that in the Propoſitions ſent to the King at Oxford, in 1642-3, one clauſe was, That his Majeſty would be pleaſed, by his letters patent, to make Sir John Bramſton chief Juſtice of the Court of King's Bench (c). In the beginning of the year 1647, the Parliament propoſed to make him one of the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal (d); which very probably he declined. And, about the ſame time, the Lords voted, that he ſhould ſit in their houſe, as an aſſiſtant (e). They likewiſe voted, 29 April 1647, that he ſhould be one of the Judges of the Common Pleas (f). This learned perſon dyed 22 September 1654, aged 78, and was buried in Roxwell Church. He had two wives. 1. Bridget, daughter of Thomas Mondeford, an eminent Doctor of Phyſick, (ſon of Sir Edmund Mondeford of Feltwell in Norfolk Kt.) by Mary his wife, one of the daughters of Richard Hill, and Elizabeth his wife the 20th daughter of Sir William Lock, Alderman and Lord Mayor of London... By her, he had ſeveral Children, of which we ſhall give an account preſently. 2. His ſecond wife, was Elizabeth, widow of Sir John Brereton Kt. Serjeant at law, daughter of Edward Lord Brabaſon, Baron of Ardee in Ireland, by which he had no iſſue. She dyed 7 June 1647, and is interred in Roxwell-Church..... The children of Sir John by his firſt Lady, were, three ſons .. and three daughters; viz. Dorothy, married to Sir William Palmer of Old Warden in Bedfordſhire; Mary, to John Porter of the Inner Temple Eſq; ſecond ſon of John Porter of Lamberhurſt in Kent; Catharine, to Sir Thomas Dyke of Horeham in Suſſex, Kt. Of his ſons — Sir John, was the eldeſt; Sir Mondeford the ſecond, of whom, and his poſterity, we ſhall give ſome account at the end of this pedigree: Francis, the third ſon, was made Serjeant at law 25 June 1669, and one of the Barons of the Exchequer 17 June 1678 (g)... John, the eldeſt, was created Knight of the Bath at the coronation of K. Charles II. and was one of the Repreſentatives for this County, in the Parliaments choſen in 1660, and 1661; and alſo one of the Burgeſſes for Maldon in the Parliaments ſummoned in 1678, and 1685. He married Alice, eldeſt daughter of Antony Abdy Eſq; Alderman of London, youngeſt ſon of Roger Abdy. He had by her ſeveral ſons and daughters, all which he ſurvived, except his ſon Antony. She dyed 11 February 1647, and is buried at Roxwell. He lived to the great age of 89, and dying 4 February 1699, was interred near his father. Of his daughters: Abigail dyed unmarried: Mary was married to Sir Andrew Jenour of Bigoods in Gr. Dunmow Bart. and Elizabeth to Mondeford Bramſton, ſon of Sir Mondeford above mentioned.—Antony, the ſon, married Catharine, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir Thomas Nutt of Mayes in Suſſex Kt. by Catharine daughter of Sir Thomas Parker of Wellington in the ſaid county, [whoſe mother was the daughter of Henry Lord Dacre of Hurſt-Monceaux, father of Richard, father of Thomas late Earl of Suſſex.] She dyed 24 June 1708, and He himſelf 26 January 1722, aged 83, and were both buried in Roxwell Church; having had two ſons ... and eight daughters; viz. Theodoſia; Catharine; Alice, married to John Williams Eſq; by whom ſhe had two daughters; Mary; Elizabeth; Grace; Sarah, and Philadelphia. The ſons were, — John, who married Mary daughter and heir of John Pennington of Chigwell Eſq; and dyed 17 Auguſt 1718. He left only three daughters, Sarah, that dyed without iſſue; Mary, married, 17 November 1730, to Edward Byng Eſq; one of the Lord Viſcount Torrington's ſons; and Elizabeth. The ſaid John dying thus without iſſue male, the maner of Skreens, and other Eſtates, deſcended to his brother — Thomas Bramſton Eſq; educated at Pembroke-hall, and afterwards of the Middle-Temple. He married, 1. Diana, daughter of Edmond Turner of Stoke in Lincolnſhire Eſq; and widow of Robert Ferne of Locke in Derbyſhire. She dyed 10 January 1725-6. His 2d wife, is, Elizabeth, only daughter of Richard Berney Eſq; late Recorder of Norwich, by whom he has—Thomas-Berney, and Mary, married, 8 Auguſt 1758, to William Deedes Eſq;

We now proceed to give a ſhort account of Sir Mondeford, a younger ſon of the Lord Chief Juſtice Bramſton. At the Reſtoration, he was made a Maſter in Chancery, and knighted. He married Alice le Hunt, by whom he had ſix ſons, and four daughters, viz. 1. John. 2. Mondeford, married to his firſt couſin Elizabeth Bramſton, by which he had ſeveral children, and particularly John, who married Iſabella Maſters, and had Edmund, Gentleman-Uſher to the Princeſs-Dowager of Wales. 3. George LL.D. father of Theodoſia, that was married to Sir Robert Abdy, Bart. 4. Francis, father of James, Rector of Ludgarſhall in Suſſex, author of The Man of taſte, and other poems. 5. William D. D. Rector of St. Chriſtophers behind the Royal Exchange, Prebendary of Worceſter &c. who dyed in Auguſt 1735, having had William, LL. D.; George; and John, Rector of Theydon Gernon, and Woodham Walter. 6. Thomas, of the Six Clerks Office in Chancery; who had iſſue, George, Thomas, Henry; Mary; Grace, married to Francis Crofts Eſq; and Catharine to Richard Price Eſq; — Of Sir Mondeford's 4 daughters; Mary dyed ſingle; Elizabeth, was married to Barrow Fitch Eſq; Alice to Henry Mildmay of Wanſtead Eſq; and Dorothy to Antony Fiſher Eſq;

From the ancienteſt Records and Evidences it appears, that the maner of Skrenes has been all along in Families that have raiſed themſelves by their Merit and Eminence in the Law; a circumſtance attending no other Eſtate, that we can find, in this County.

3. The Maner of TYE-HALL.

The manſion-houſe is moated round, and ſtands at ſome diſtance from the road, on the left hand between Roxwell-church and Skreens. It was formerly poſſeſſed by a branch of the great Family of Heveningham in Suffolk. For, in the year 1415, Thomas Heveningham held the maner of Tye-hall in Rokeſwell of the Earldom of Hereford, by fealty, and ſervice of 20 s. per annum (h).—Sir John Heveningham, moſt probably his ſon, gave it by will, 3 Henry VI, to his brother Thomas for his life, remainder to — John, ſon of the teſtator (i). We find it next in — Thomas Heveningham ſenior; (fourth ſon of Thomas;) and, in his ſon—Thomas Heveningham junior. Which laſt left an only daughter and heir, named — Thomaſia, after her mother's name. This Thomaſia was thrice married, 1. to Thomas Berdefield. 2. to John Bedel. 3. to Walter Thomas, Gent. who was originally of Goge-Hawell in Wales. By the two firſt ſhe doth not ſeem to have had any heirs; for, from her the Eſtate paſſed into the family of Thomas; namely to — William, her ſon and heir by her third huſband: which William appears to have born the name of William Walter of Roxwell Eſq; He married Iſabella, daughter of Thomas Denton of Catesfield in Oxfordſhire, by whom he had — Thomas his ſon and heir: Thomazina, wife of William Luckyn of Maſhbury: Iſabella: Anne, wife of .... of Denton in the county of Salop. After his deceaſe, his widow, Iſabella, was married again to Edward Grenefeild of Wotton-under-wood in Buckinghamſhire...... William Walter held this eſtate in the reign of Qu. Elizabeth.

Afterwards it came to—Sir Jerom Weſton, and —Sir Richard, Earl of Portland.

And is now in Thomas Bramſton Eſq;

4. The maner of MOUNTNEY'S, alias Rokeſwell, is ſo named from an antient family of this ſurname, that were owners of the maner of Mountney's-inge, which from them was ſo called; and there is alſo the maner of Mountney's in Elmdon.

The manſion-houſe ſtands on the left ſide of the road leading from Boyton-croſs to Margaret-Roding, about half a mile from Newland-hall: it is large, and ſeems to have been antiently a conſiderable ſeat.

In the 28th of Edward I. John de Mounteney held in Wrytele, 1 meſſuage, 120 acres of arable land, and 4 of meadow, of Robert Lord Brus, by the ſervice of 20 s. and ſuit of court (k).

In the 13th year of Richard II, John Boſeham, citizen and mercer of London, and others, demiſed to Robert Braybroke biſhop of London, Sir Gerard Braybroke, &c. all their lands and tenements in Writtell, Rokeſwell, Schelowe, and Roding-Berners; eſpecially Mountneyes, Rokeſwell, and Aſhewelles; which they had of the gift of John de Fiſhide and Idonea his wife: and which belonged once to William de Redeſwell (l). And this ſhews, through whoſe hands they had paſſed.

In the reign of K. Henry VI. it was in the Skrene's family, and in Alice Straunge (m), mentioned above under the maner of Skreens.

From the Fermors, or Fermers, mentioned in the ſame place, it paſſed to the Lukyns: For, a fine was levied, 37 Henry

VIII, between Geffry Lukyn Pl. and Richard Fermor and Anne his wife Deforc. of the maner of Mounteneys, alias Rokeſwell, two meſſuages, 200 acres of arable, 50 of meadow, 200 of paſture, 3 of wood, and 50 s. rent, in Wryttel, Newland, Shellow-Bowells, and Barnes Rothyng; the right of the ſaid Richard (n). Geffry Lukyn held this maner of Mountneys, alias Rokeſwell, (of the King, as of his maner of Writtle) at the time of his death, which happened 1 November 1549. leaving—Thomas, his ſon and heir, 30 years old (o).

It is now in John Bullock Eſq; of Falkburn-hall in this county.

5. The maner of DUKE's, is a conſiderable farm, often called a Maner. The manſion-houſe ſtands at the upper end of Roxwell-ſtreet, on the right ſide of the road leading from Roxwell-church to Skreen's.

From whence it had its name of Dukes, is not plain; unleſs it were, becauſe it anciently belonged to ſome of the noble Dukes, that had the Lordſhip of Writtle. It was formerly in the family of Skrene's, as may be ſeen above under Skreens; and paſſed from them to other perſons, of whom we find no account.

It is now in John Cruſh, Gent. and has been in his family for ſeveral generations.

6. The maner of NEWLAND-HALL, belonged to K. Harald before the Conqueſt. At the time of the general Survey, Euſtace Earl of Boulogne held this Lordſhip by the name of Neuuelanda [C]; and one Malger was tenant under him.

The manſion-houſe ſtands on the left hand of the road, leading from Boyton-croſs to Margaret-Roding, about a mile from Roxwell-church.

A family of note took their ſurname from this maner. For, in the 12th and 13th of K. John, ann. 1210, and 1211,—Ralph de Nova landa held two fees in Nova landa of the Honor of Boulogne (p).—William de Neweland, who dyed the 2d of Edward I, held of the King in Neweland 458 acres of arable, 49 of meadow and paſture, and 10 s. rent of aſſiſe. He had ſold, before his deceaſe, the lands and tenements to divers perſons, except the capital meſſuage: all which together were holden of the King, by the ſervice of two knights-fees.—John was his ſon and heir (q). In the 23d of Edward I. anno 1349,—Margaret Newland held this maner (r).—Henry de la Newland, her ſon, held it alſo, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee. He dyed the 4th of Richard II, leaving—Richard his ſon (s), who had only two parts of this maner, for his mother Agnes enjoyed the third. Richard dyed the 7th of Henry IV, and Agnes not till the 10th of Henry VI (t). Then—John, ſon of the ſaid Richard, became poſſeſſed of the whole. He departed this life, 26 Henry VI (u), leaving —Walter, his ſon, who was of Coggeſhall; and releaſed, in the 27th of Henry VI, all his right in Newland-hall, and Lutwode, near Wrytele, to William Taverner, and Elen Tironill, or Turnill. Four years after, this Elen releaſed all her right in the ſame, to the ſaid William Taverner, ſon of Margery, one of the daughters and heirs of John ſon of Mauger de la Neulond, and his heirs: the other daughter of Mauger was named Elen (w). Walter, named above, dyed the 31ſt of Henry VI. and his heir was —Thomas, brother of Richard Newland abovementioned (x).

We find this Eſtate, next, in the Birdfeild, or Berefeild-family. For—John Birdfeild, who dyed about 1514, held the maner of Newland-hall; and alſo that of Margaret-Inge;—John, ſon of his brother Thomas, was his heir, two years old (y). He dyed 15 November, the ſame year; upon which theſe two maners deſcended to—Margaret, wife of Robert Gedge, and—Thomaſina, wife of William Daniell, as couſins and heirs of the ſaid John, ſon of John, viz. ſiſters of the ſaid John Berefield junior, father of John, and of full age (z).

Thomas Lightfoote alienated a moiety of the maner of Newland in Writtle, 5 June 1519, to Margaret Gedge; and, 2 November following, the other moiety to Thomaſine Gedge (a).

January 16. 1538, George Gifford had licenſe to alienate one moiety of this maner to Richard Hales, and 15 January 1540, to alienate a moiety to Thomas Arundell (b).

However this Eſtate ſtill remained in the Gedge-family; for—James Gedge, Eſq; who dyed 22 Auguſt 1555, held this maner, by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee; leaving three daughters, coheireſſes; viz.—Mary, then 14 years old; Joane, 13; and another Joane, 10 (c).

By virtue of a licenſe, dated 27 and 28 May 1565, Chriſtopher Harris and Edward Elliot Gent. alienated this maner to Richard Lee and William Loveday (d). I ſuppoſe it muſt be in truſt for ſome uſes, as well as the former alienations: for this eſtate was ſtill in Gedge.

Joane, one of the daughters of the ſaid James Gedge of Shenfeild Eſq; [ſon and heir of Margaret, wife of Robert Gedge, daughter and coheir of Thomas Bardfield of Shenfeild Eſq; by whom he had four ſons and ſix daughters] married

Edward Elliot of Biſhop's-Stortford in Hertfordſhire Eſq; He dyed 26 December 159, leaving—Thomas, his ſon and heir, 22 years old (e). He held this maner of the Queen, of her Dutchy of Lancaſter; together with the maner of Wycombs, alias Wickham, in Woodham-Ferrers, and the Rectory of Norton Mandeville.

From him, by purchaſe or otherwiſe, it paſſed to the Thwaite-family.... William Thwaite, citizen and Alderman of London, married Margery, daughter of George Pert of Mountneys-ing Eſq; and had—Sir Samuel Thwaite Kt. of Newland-hall in Roxwell, that married Margaret daughter of Sir Thomas Gardiner of Peckham in Surrey, Kt. and had three ſons, and one daughter; viz. 1. Samuel, that dyed about the year 1635. 2. Thomas. 3. William ... and Margaretta. He dyed 25 November 1636, leaving—Thomas, his eldeſt ſurviving ſon and heir, 9 years, 10 months, and 9 days old (f). He held the maner of Wares in Good-Eaſter &c. but no mention is made of this maner in the Inquiſition [¶].

William Taylor of Great Hadham in Hertfordſhire: who hath taken the name of William Taylor How.

Within this Chapelry formerly lived a pretty conſiderable family ſurnamed Young; at a place called Young's.

The CHURCH of Roxwell is a ſmall building, of one pace; on the left ſide of the road leading to Shellow-Bowells; about four miles from Chelmsford, and two from Writtle. At the Weſt end there is a wooden turret, in which are three Bells.

24. BROMFIELD,

a pariſh very pleaſantly ſituated, in the road from London and Chelmsford to Braintree, Sudbury, &c. between 31 and 32 miles from London.

The ſoil near the road, and eſpecially the place where the Church ſtands, is very apt to produce Broom, which unqueſtionably is the occaſion of the name.

It is ſometimes written in Records, Brumfelda, and Bromfend.

In the Saxons times, this diſtrict was poſſeſſed by perſons named Saulf, Segar, Borda, Picot, and Godric. But, at the time of making the general Survey, it was in Goisfrid de Magnaville, Odo Biſhop of Bayeux, and William of Warenn.

There are four reputed Maners in this pariſh. 1. Bromfield-hall. 2. Patching-hall. 3. Woodhall. 4. Bellſtead-hall.

1. The maner of BROMFIED-HALL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands near the Church.

At the time of the Survey it was in Goisfrid de Magnavilla, or Geffrey de Mandeville, who came into England with William the Conqueror; and was rewarded by him with a hundred and eighteen Lordſhips, whereof forty in Eſſex, and this among the reſt [C].—William, his ſon, ſucceeded. And he was ſucceeded by his ſon—Geffrey, whom K. Stephen, and alſo the Empreſs Maud, honored with the title of Earl of Eſſex (g). [See an account of this family under Walden.]

Walter, brother of this laſt Geffrey, enjoyed it, in the reign of K. Henry II. As did his ſon and heir—Thomas (h). They two held of the ſaid Geffrey no leſs than eight knights-fees, lying in this Pariſh, Great Waltham, Great Lees, and Black Notley [D]: So that he continued Lord paramount of this maner.

As did afterwards the Bohuns Earls of Hereford and Eſſex. For when Humfrey de Bohun dyed, 30 Ed. I. 1301, or 1302, it was found, that Thomas de Mandeville held of him four knights-fees, in Bromfield, Great Waltham, and Notley (i). And—Thomas de Mandeville ſenior, held the ſame, of Humfrey de Bohun, who dyed in 1372.—Elizabeth his wife is mentioned, as holding them (k); probably in dower.—Thomas de Mandeville, ſon of Sir Thomas, dyed the Friday before the feaſt of St. Laurence, 1399, ſeiz'd of this maner: But under age, and without iſſue (l); whereupon his eſtates came to be divided between his two ſiſters; viz.—Joan, wife of John Barry Eſq; and—Alice, wife of Helmingius Leget, or Legat (m).

Alice had for her part, the maners of Bromfield, Black Notley, Chatham-hall in Great Waltham; Eaſtwick, in Hertfordſhire; and the advowſon of Stapleford-Tany church (n). [See more of them under Stapleford-Tany.] ... To her ſecond huſband Alice took Roger Spice; and had by him a ſon named—Clement Spice. She had alſo by Leget a ſon named Thomas; but very probably he departed this life before her; For Roger, and Clement Spice preſented ſucceſſively to the Rectory of Stapleford; without any notice taken of Leget. Alice dyed in 1420 (o). And her ſon Clement Spice 1ſt of Richard III. (p) leaving—Humfrey her ſon and heir; who dyed 28 October 1485. having no other iſſue but—Philippa, aged one year (q). She brought this, among other eſtates, to her huſband John Forteſcue Eſq; [See under Falkburne.]

We find it next in Rich, [of which noble Family ſee an account under Little Lees.]

Sir Richard Rich Kt. Lord Rich, dyed 12 June 1566, holding, among other large poſſeſſions, the maners of Chatham-hall, and Bromefeild, and divers lands and tenements in Chatham, Bromefeild, and Little Waltham, of Queen Elizabeth, as of the Honor of Mandeville (r).—Robert Lord Rich, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded his father, and dyed 27 February 1581, having for ſucceſſor—Robert his ſecond, but then eldeſt ſurviving, ſon; advanced, 6 Auguſt 1618, to the title of Earl of Warwick. He departed this life 24 March 1618.—Robert, his eldeſt ſon, enjoyed this eſtate after him; and dying 19 April 1658, was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon—Robert, who dying 19 May 1659, without ſurviving male iſſue [E], had for ſucceſſor his next brother —Charles: He alſo dyed without iſſue, 24 Auguſt 1673. Upon which, theſe great eſtates were divided between the female heirs of Robert, the ſecond Earl, and of Robert the third Earl, of Warwick, or their iſſues; namely, Edward Earl of Mancheſter, John Lord Roberts, Nicolas Earl of Scarſdale;—and Sir Thomas Barrington, Sir Henry St. John, and Daniel Earl of Nottingham.

This Maner fell, among others, to Nicolas Earl of Scarſdale, who ſold it to Herman Olmius, of London, Merchant. He gave this to his daughter—Judith, which dying unmarried, left it to her nephew—John Olmius Eſq; ſon of her brother John, and grandſon of the ſaid Herman.

2. and 3. The maners of PATCHING-HALL, and WOODHALL.

I place them together, becauſe tho' they are ſometimes mentioned diſtinctly, yet they are oftner ſet down in old records as one ſingle Maner.

Patching-hall ſtands on the right ſide of the road, leading from Bromfield-church to Chelmsford; a little more than a mile from that town; being a brick-houſe. The maner extends into part of Chelmsford.

Wood-hall is at a conſiderable diſtance from it, on the North-weſt ſide of the Church, near the road leading from Chelmsford to Chicknal-Smely.

In the Saxons times, they were in three parcels: one holden by Segar; but, at the time of the Survey, by Odo Biſhop of Bayeux, half-brother to the Conqueror [F]: another by Edward, but at the time of the Survey by Geffrey de Mandeville [G]: and the third by Borda, but at the time of the Survey by Robert Gernon, and under him by Picot [H], from whence this maner came to be called Patching-hall Picot, alias Pigot.

Richard, ſaid in the Survey to hold of Odo, I take to be Richard Fitz-Gilbert, Lord of Clare, whoſe poſterity appear to have been Lords paramount of this maner; and to have holden a Court at Patching-hall, called Patching-Pigot, or Pecott. Roger de Mortimer, Earl of March, who dyed 22 Richard II. held a view of frankpledge here (s): As did Edmund Earl of March, that dyed 3 Henry VI.

Edward, mentioned alſo in the Survey, held in the Confeſſor's time, Cetham, i. e. Chatham-hall.

Odo being, for his ill behaviour, diſpoſſeſſed of his eſtates, This ſeems to have been given to the Mandeville family, as mentioned in the Survey.

In Pleas at Chelmsford, 39 Henry III, Ralph Benet is indicted for diſpoſſeſſing Gilbert ſon of William de Brumfeld of his free tenement in Paching-Pigot.

Under Philip Burnell, who dyed 22 Edward I, Engebald de Bretun held, in Patching-Pychott, 100 acres of arable, 7 of meadow, and 3 of wood (t). — But what parts of this maner theſe were, cannot be traced out.

It continued longeſt in the noble Family of Bourchier: [of which ſee an account under Halſtead.]

Robert Bourchier, Lord Chancellor of England, who was ſummoned to Parliament the 16th and 22d of Edward III, dyed the 23d of that king; holding, in Bromfield, a tenement called Wood-hall of Hugh de Gros (u). His ſon and heir —John, Lord Bourchier, in the 7th of K. Richard II, obtained a charter for free-warren in all his demeſne lands, particularly Patching-hall and Woodhall (w). He dyed 21ſt May 1400. ——Bartholomew, Lord Bourchier, his ſon and heir, ſucceeded him, and dyed 18 May 1409, ſeiz'd of the maner of Woodhall, holden of the Biſhop of London (x).——Idonea, his widow, held the ſame, and the maner of Patching hall of the heirs of Sir Thomas de Mandeville Kt. She dyed 12 September 1410 (y); leaving—— Elizabeth, their only daughter and heir; which was married, firſt, to Sir Hugh Stafford Kt. and afterward to Sir Lewis Robeſſart, Knight of the Garter; but ſurvived them both, and dyed 1 July 1433, without iſſue (z).

Her couſin and next heir, was Henry Bourchier, Earl of Eu, viz. ſon of Sir William, who was ſon of William, brother to John the ſaid Bartholomew's father. He held theſe maners of William de Clovyle, of his maner of Widford-hall (as Elizabeth had done of Henry Clovyle) and departed this life 4 April 1483.—— William his ſon was dead before him; and ſo he was ſucceeded by his grandſon——Henry (a). He being killed by a fall from his horſe, 13 March 1539, left an only daughter——Anne, which became the wife of William Lord Parre, afterwards Earl of Eſſex and Marquis of Northampton (b).

In January 1548, a Fine paſſed between Sir Richard Riche Kt. with Elizabeth his wife, plaintiffs, and the ſaid Marquis, deforciant; for the maners of Pachyng-hall, and Wood-hall, Le Hyde, and appertenances; and 500 acres of arable land, 100 of meadow, 300 of paſture, 300 of wood, 500 of furze and heath, and 100 ſhillings rent, in Bromfeild, Writtle, Chicknall, great and little Waltham (c) [I].

[I] It is ſaid, that K. Henry VIII. anno 1525. granted the maner of Patching to Cardinal Wolſey, upon whoſe attainder, it reverted to the King. Lett. Pat. 17 Hen. VIII. But how it came to the Crown, we cannot find.

From Sir Richard Riche, Patching-hall and Wood-hall deſcended to his ſon —Robert Lord Riche (d): and to their poſterity Earls of Warwick. And from them it paſſed to—John Olmius Eſq; as Bromfield-hall.

4. BELSTEAD-HALL

ſtands in the Eaſt and South-eaſt part of the Pariſh, near New-hall-park.

Godric Poinc was owner of it in the Saxons time, but, at the time of the Survey, William de Warrenn [K].

I find very little mention of this maner in Records: Only, that John Fermer, who dyed in 1354, held a moiety of Belſted-hall in Bromfeild of William de Wauton Kt. by the ſervice of 20 s. per ann.—Nicolas was his ſon and heir (e).

John Wyſeman of Felſted Eſq; dyed 5th January 1558, poſſeſſed of the maner of Belſtead-hall, holden of Richard Lord Rich, as of his maner of Bromfield-hall.——Thomas was his ſon and heir, 30 years old (f).

George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, was alſo poſſeſſed of it, as well as the adjoyning eſtate of Newhall, at the time of his violent death 23 Auguſt 1628, and was ſucceeded by his ſon—George (g).

It was afterwards in General Monk, Duke of Albemarle, and his poſterity. And hath continued ever ſince, in the owners of Newhall eſtate. The chief part of which, with Belſtead-hall, is now in Richard Hoare Eſq; of Boreham.

Other Eſtates of any conſequence in this Pariſh.

1. A capital Meſſuage, on the right-hand ſide of the road to Chelmsford; between the road and the parſonage. It belonged formerly to—Sewell.—Sir Richard Everard of Great Waltham, [of which family you have an account in that pariſh] purchaſed it about the year 1716.——George Lathbury Gent. that married his youngeſt daughter Anne, had it afterwards; and ſold it to—Mr. Hanbury of Coggeſhall.

3. Butlers, on the ſame ſide of the road, a little above Bromfield-green. In 1563, it was the eſtate of Mr. Paſcal, who ſoon ſold it to—Wood. The latter, 10 May 1574, alienated it to Mr. Prow. And Prow, 10 January 1605, ſold it to—Frith; who, not long after, paſſed it to Sir John Tryon; whoſe ſon, Sir Samuel Tryon, ſold it to Robert Vincent. This laſt left it to his ſon Robert; whoſe daughter Elizabeth, widow of John Everley Gent. ſold it to George Mertins, afterwards knighted, and Lord Mayor of London in 1725 (h). Of him it was bought by Daniel Scratton, Gent. who dying without iſſue, it came to his nephew Daniel Scratton, Gent. lately deceaſed; and it is now in his eldeſt ſon. [See under Prittlewell.]

4. Priors, an eſtate in the South-weſt part of the pariſh, about half a mile from the Church. It originally belonged to the Priory of Blackmore, which is the occaſion of its name. King Henry VIII. granted it to Waltham-Abbey, with other lands, in exchange for Stanſted-Abbots, as may be ſeen under Blackmore. Upon the ſuppreſſion of the Monaſteries, the ſaid King granted it, 17 October 1544, to Richard Roger, and Robert Taverner. The 4th of January following, William Garrard had licenſe to alienate Priors, and a wood called Bromfield-grove, to William Eyre, and others. On the 2d of November 1557, William Eyre jun. obtained a licenſe to alienate the premiſſes to William Eyre ſen. And 8 February 1562, William Eyre had leave to paſs away the ſame to Thomas Wallenger. From Wallenger they paſſed, in 1582, to Edward Elliot, and from Elliot to Manwood. John Manwood of Lincolns-inn, Counſellor at law, author of the Foreſt Laws, printed at London 1600. 4to. [and kinſman to Sir Roger Manwood Kt. made Serjeant at law in 1567, one of the Barons of the Exchequer in 1572, and Lord Chief Baron of the ſame in 1579.] married Mary, daughter of ..... Crayford in Kent, by which he had, Thomas; Jaſper, a Counſellor at law; and Anne.—Thomas was of Lincolns-inn, and of Priors in this pariſh; and dyed 20 September 1650. He married Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Love Kt. Vice-admiral in the reign of K. James I. by which he had three ſons; Thomas, who dyed unmarried; John; Roger, that dyed young: and ſix daughters;—Anne, married 1ſt to Stephen Sandford, by whom ſhe had Stephen, and Anne. 2dly, to Weſton Stileman, by whom ſhe had Weſton, who married Elizabeth Wood, and had iſſue, Robert Vicar of Biſhop's-ſtortford, and three daughters.—Mary, married to Henry Godſalve Gent.—Elizabeth, wife of Nicolas Sibley of Moreton in this county, who had Nicolas, John, Thomas, Elizabeth.—Sarah, married 1ſt to Joſeph Luckyn of Dives-hall in Chicknal Smeley. 2dly, to Samuel Woodgate, M. D. but had iſſue by neither.—Love, wife of Thomas Cox Vicar of Bromfield, who had iſſue, Thomas Rector of Stock, and of Ramſden Belhouſe, John, Edmund, Mary, Martha, Ann, Love Bridget. She lived to the age of 99.—Thomaſina, wife of Thomas Freman of Springfield, Gent.—John Manwood, only ſurviving ſon of Thomas, married Diana, daughter of Richard Gould of London, merchant, and dyed 11 April 1705, aged 63; leaving—Thomas, who dyed unmarried; Diana, wife of Nathanael Luckyn, who had no iſſue; and Catharine, ſecond wife of Oliver Pocklington, Rector of Chelmsford, who had by him, Thomas; Catharine, married to J. Woodroffe, Rector of Cranham and Springfield-Richards; and Diana, wife of Capt. George Tindal. Thomas Manwood dying unmarried, as I have juſt now ſaid, left Priors, and his other eſtates, to his nephew

Thomas Pocklington, Attorney at law, of Chelmsford, who is married, but as yet has no iſſue.

5. Scravels, is another eſtate in this pariſh, near Priors, belonging formerly to the Booſey family: now to Mr. Daniel Harrington.

Abbey-lands.

Concerning what was given, in this pariſh and Chelmsford, to the College of Thele (i): ſee above under Chelmsford, p. 5.

Charitable Donations.

Sixteen acres of arable land, adjoyning to the farm called Priors, and to which there is a way through the yard of that farm, were originally given; to what uſes is not well known at preſent. But the rent of them is now applied towards the repairs and ornaments of the Church. . . . As is alſo the Rent of One other acre.

Thomas Woollard, about the year 1700, gave two Tenements, ſtanding on the South ſide of the Green, almoſt oppoſite to the Church, to the Poor of this pariſh for ever. They are now converted into a workhouſe.

An Alms-houſe for two dwellers, without endowment, ſtands by the weſt ſide of the road, beyond the late Sir Richard Everard's houſe.

The CHURCH ſtands on a green, by the road-ſide, and is of one pace with the chancel, but hath a little veſtry at the North-weſt corner; all tyled. At the Weſt end, there is a round Tower of brick and ſtone, plaiſtered over, containing three Bells; on the top of which is a Spire ſhingled. Theſe round Towers are ſuppoſed to have been built by the Danes, or according to their maner of architecture.

This Church, with the lands, tythes, and appertenances, was given by Walter de Mandeville to the Church of Holy Trinity in London, and the Canons there, and confirmed to that monaſtery by K. Henry III. anno 1226. In May 1293, this Church was appropriated to that Houſe, by Richard de Graveſend biſhop of London, who then ordained a Vicarage here; reſerving to himſelf and ſucceſſors the Nomination of the Vicars, which the Prior and Convent were to preſent. Thus it continued till the Suppreſſion; when, about the year 1541, the whole right and patronage of this Vicarage was granted to the Biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors, and hath continued in their collation ever ſince (k).

But, previous to the Appropriation abovementioned, an Inquiry had been made in January 1289, by John de Malneſton Official to the Biſhop, about the value of the Church, and the Portion to be reſerved to the Vicar. At which time the value of the Church was found to be 30 marks yearly. And there was aſſigned to the Vicar, for manſe and glebe, Nine acres, called Boygrove, where a fair uſed to be held on St. Leonard's day: And another acre; Alſo the Hay [L], or fore-crop, of two half acres in Northmede, belonging to Bromfield-hall: Fifteen ſhillings and four pence, out of the Parſonage, or Rectory, payable by two equal portions at Eaſter and Michaelmaſs: Likewiſe the great Tithes out of a carucate of land holden by Richard Redley at Terlyng, and of all his tenents; namely, of the following fields, Redley fields; Oldbury-fields; Gallow-fields; Bradley-fields, and Ford-crofts; Prior-fields, and Sir John's-croft; Thiſtlefield; Item of all his Tenents; Alſo of Dunſtalleys crofte; and of two crofts called Gardins. The Vicar was moreover to receive all ſmall tithes, obventions, mortuaries, profits of the altar, &c. then valued at 8 marks yearly. — Beſides which, he hath the Tithes of the Woods. — And he was to ſtrew the Church twice in ſummer with ruſhes; as the owners of the Rectory were to do thrice in winter with ſtraw [M].

The impropriate Tithes continued in the Priory of H. Trinity till their ſuppreſſion: Upon which, they were granted by K. Henry VIII, 26 January 1546, with the Parſonage, to William Harris; they being then holden by John Courtman (l). From Harris they paſſed to Richard Lord Rich, who made them part of the Endowment of his Free-ſchool, and Alms-houſe, at Felſtead. For there is paid, out of Bromfield-parſonage, to the School, 68 l. 6 s. 11 d. per annum. And to the Almshouſe, 18 buſhels of wheat, and 29 of malt (m).

The Parſonage-houſe, Glebe, and great Tithes, are holden by Leaſe of the heirs of the ſaid Lord Rich; whoſe preſent repreſentative is the Earl of Winchelſea and Nottingham. — Some of the Leſſees have been, John Attwood of Grays-inn, Eſq; who married Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of Patrick Younge, Eſq; a moſt learned man, library-keeper to K. Charles I. Mr. Younge lived here ſome time with his ſon in law, and dying 7 September 1652, was buried in the chancel of this Church, under a grave-ſtone of black marble (n).—Some other leſſees, or inhabitants, of this Parſonage, have been, Edward Rigby Eſq; —Dr. Stewart —John Hill—and Richard Price Eſq; It was much improved by the two laſt, eſpecially by the latter, ſo as to be fit for a Gentleman's ſeat. Some part of the Houſe was built by the Devereux family, their arms being cut in ſtone over one of the chimneys. The preſent leſſee is the Hon. Edward Finch Eſq; brother to the Earl of Winchelſea and Nottingham, patron of Felſtead-ſchool.

Thomas Cox M. A. Vicar of this church, from 11 February 1685 to January 11. 1733-4, was a man of conſiderable learning, and great induſtry and application. He tranſlated from the French, Dupin's Life of Chriſt, and of his Apoſtles; and his Abridgment of his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, in 4 vols. 12mo.—from the Latin, Pancirollus of things loſt, 2 vols. 12mo. — from the Greek, Plutarch's Morals, by way of abſtract. And he compiled The Lives of Henry IV. V. VI. and Richard III. in the Complete Hiſtory of England: Magna Britannia & Hibernia, from Cumberland &c. 6 vols. 4to.

25. CHICKNAL.

ADjoyning Weſt northweſt to Bromfield, are theſe two, contiguous, Pariſhes; diſtinguiſhed from one another by the appellations, of Chicknal St. Mary and St. James, and Chicknal-Smeley.

The name is written in records theſe different ways, Chignall, Chigenhale, Chiggenhale, Chingenhall, Chiken-hall, Chicken-hall; which laſt ſeems to be the right name, and plainly points at its derivation. In Domeſday-book it is written Cingehala.

CHICKNALL St. Mary and St. James, took that name from the Saints, to which the two Churches that formerly ſtood in it, as I ſhall ſhew, were dedicated. In contradiſtinction to the other pariſh, it is called Great, or Magna, Chicknall; and Chicknall-Zoyn, and Tany, from two ancient owners.

Tho' theſe Pariſhes are ſmall, yet they were, in the Saxons time, in no leſs than Eleven hands; viz. Three free men; Godwin the Deacon; Ulwin; Lefſun, Leuric, Lewin, Aleſtan; Sauin, a prieſt; Erſin. When the general Survey was taken [N], the Lord paramount was Geffrey de Mandeville, whoſe under-tenants were one Richard, and Ralph; and who permitted Lefſun, Leuric, and Leuuin to enjoy under him what they held before. Richard Gernet held alſo ſome part.

But which parcels were in either of the two Pariſhes, we are not able to point out; and therefore are obliged to ſet down together, all that occurs in Domeſday-book under the name of Cingehala.

In the pariſh of Chicknal St. Mary and St. James are reckoned two Maners. 1. The maner of Chiggenhall. 2. The maner of Hawes, alias Hittots.

1. The maner of CHIGGENHALL St. Mary and St. James, alias Chicknall magna, and Zoyn.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about half a mile, north-weſt, from the church, and is large.

In the earlieſt times upon record, it was in the family of Tany, otherwiſe de Tani, or Thani; who were Barons of the realm, and poſſeſſed alſo of the maner of Stapleford-Tany, Theydon-Bois, Elmſtead, great Stambridge, and Latton, in this County (o).—John de Thani gave his maner of Theydon-bois to the Canons of Waltham-abbey. His ſon and heir—Richard was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1260. and dyed the 55th of Henry III, holding the maner of Chiggenhall, and advowſon of the church, of the Earl of Hereford, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee (p). He married Margaret, daughter and heir of William Fitz-Richard, by which he had — Richard, that departed this life 24 Edward I, leaving — Roger, his ſon and heir. But neither he nor his poſterity had ſummons to parliament. However, in them did this maner continue, till — Margaret, ſiſter and heir to Laurence de Tani, (ſon of Robert) that dyed 11 Edward II, became wife to John de Drokensford [O], who dyed in 1341, leaving iſſue by her — Thomas. This Thomas dyed in 1361, and left an only daughter and heir — Anne, married to Thomas, ſon and heir of Sir Thomas de Mandeville of Black Notley (q).

But, before that, this eſtate was holden by the Nevills, under Drokensford. For John de Nevill of Eſſex, who dyed 25 July 1358, held the maner of Chigenhale Tany, with the advowſon of the Church there, of Thomas de Drokenesford; and the maner of Chigenhale Zoyn, with the advowſon of the Church there, of the Earl of Oxford, by military ſervice (r). He was ſummoned to Parliament from the 9th to the 22d of Edward III. but dyed without iſſue. Alice, his wife, who held theſe maners jointly with him, ſurvived him (s). — From this Inquiſition it appears, that here were then two Churches.

In the mean time, the Drokensford family remained poſſeſſed of ſome eſtates in this pariſh. For, under Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed in 1372, John de Throkelsford, as he is called, was found to hold one fee in Chygenhale-Tany; another fee in Chygenhale, and Elſinham; three fees in Chikenhale and Stamburne; and two fees in Chikenhale Trencheford, or Smely (t).

To return to the Lady Alice Nevill [P], ſhe held the maners of Chigenhale-Tany and Chigenhale-Zoyn, of Alberic de Vere, Earl of Oxford, and Sir John Howard Kt. till her death, which did not happen till 1395, thirty ſeven years after her huſband's deceaſe (u).

The reverſion of theſe eſtates was in William de Bohun Earl of Northampton, and his iſſue. But he dying 16 September 1360, and his ſon

[P] In the Preſentations to this Living, we find her named Alice de Nerford, Lady de Nevill. See Newcourt, vol. II. p. 137.

[O] This name is alſo written in Records Trekenesford, and Throkelsford.

—Humfrey, Earl of Hereford, Eſſex, and Northampton, dying alſo 16 January 1372, before the ſaid Alice (w); They deſcended to this Humfrey's two daughters and heirs; viz. Eleanor, wife of Thomas of Woodſtock, ſixth ſon of K. Edward the Third, and Duke of Glouceſter; and Mary wife of Henry Earl of Derby, afterwards K. Henry IV.

Upon the partition of the great eſtates of this noble family, This fell to Eleanor. — But their mother—Joanna, daughter of Richard Earl of Arundel, ſeems to have enjoyed it during her life: For ſhe preſented thrice to the living, by the title of, the Lady Joanna de Bohun, Counteſs of Hereford, Eſſex, and Northampton (x).

The iſſue of Eleanor by Thomas of Woodſtock, was, Humfrey, Anne, Joan, Iſabel, and Philippa. Humfrey dyed unmarried; Joan, and Philippa, young; and Iſabel was a nun. So that all the Honors and Eſtates centered in Anne, which had three huſbands. 1. Thomas Earl of Stafford: He dying without iſſue, in 1392, ſhe took to her 2d huſband, his brother Edmund, Earl of Stafford; who being ſlain at Shrewſbury fight 22 July 1403, ſhe had for her 3d huſband William Bourchier Earl of Eu, who departed this life in 1420, leaving iſſue by her, Henry Earl of Eu and Eſſex; William Lord Fitz-warin; Thomas Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Cardinal; and John (y). She lived till 1438, or beginning of 1439; and preſented five times to this living, by the titles of, Lady Anne, Counteſs of Stafford, Buckingham, Hereford, Eſſex, and Northampton, Lady of Brecon, and Lady of Chignal (z).

Sir John Bourchier, her younger ſon, had the maners of Chigenhall-Tany, and Chigenhall-Zoyne. He married Margery, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Berners Lord Berners, in whoſe right he took the title of Lord Berners: and dyed 21 May 1474. as Margery did in December 1475 (a). — Humfrey, their ſon, had been ſlain at Barnet-field, 14 April 1471; And therefore they were ſucceeded by their grandſon —John, 8 years old at the time of Margery's deceaſe (b). He married Catharine, daughter of John Duke of Norfolk, by which he had—Joan, his only lawful daughter and heir, who was married to Edmund Knyvet of Aſhwellthorp in Norfolk, Serjeant-Porter to K. Henry VIII. But he had three illegitimate ſons, Humfrey, James, and George (d). He departed this life 16 March 1532.

As he dyed without iſſue male, we find reaſon to conclude, that theſe maners reverted into the Stafford-family: And when Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, was ruined by the treachery of his ſteward Charles Knevet, and beheaded 17 May 1521 (e), they fell to the Crown. For K. Henry VIII. 26 January 1522, granted this maner and advowſon to Chriſtopher Rocheſter, and Henry his ſon, for life; as late parcel of the poſſeſſions of Edward Duke of Buckingham (f). And the ſame King, afterwards, on the 16th of March 1544, granted, after the Duke of Buckingham's attainder [Q], the maner of Chingenhall, alias Chigenhall, with the advowſon of the Church, a water-mill, and a view of frank-pledge there, and two woods called Penge-park, and Rookes-neſt, to Ambroſe Barker Kt. who preſented thrice to the living (g). He dyed 24 December 1560, leaving—Thomas, his ſon and heir, aged 30 (h). This Thomas had licenſe, by patent, 1 April 1563, to alienate the premiſſes to

Sir William Petre Kt. and others. His ſon—John Lord Petre dyed poſſeſſed of it 11 October 1613 (i). As did —John Petre Eſq; who dyed 2 January 1622-3. being the ſecond ſon of John Lord Petre. He had alſo the maner of Maſhbury (k). His poſterity ſettled at Fidlers in Writtle; where ſee an account of them.

There is a Farm that goes with this maner, called Brettons.

2. The maner of HAWES, alias HITTOT's, was ſo named from two owners.

The houſe ſtands about a mile from the church, on the left hand as you go from thence to Chelmsford.

Very little mention occurs of this maner in records.

The 24th of Edward I. Joane de Brianzon granted to John de Hotot, 1 meſſuage, 80 acres of arable land, 4 of meadow, 12 of paſture, 6 of wood, 10 s. rent, and a pound of cummin, in Chigenhale Zoyn, to hold to the ſaid Joan and her heirs (l).

John Woode, who dyed 30 January 1529, held the maner of Hawes, alias Hottots, with the appertenances, in Chiggenhall St. James and Bromfeild, of the King in capite, as of his maner of Chiggenhall-Zoen, which was come to his Majeſty after the death of the Duke of Buckingham, for half a knight's-fee.——John was his ſon and heir, 13 years old (m).

From theſe records we learn, that the maner of Zoyn was in the Eaſtern part of this pariſh, adjoyning to Bromfield.

In 1638, it was in William Peacock, Eſq;

Afterwards it was in Edward Herbert, Rector of Cranham, and North-Okendon in this county.

This maner is called Great Hawes. There is a Houſe oppoſite to it, with a brick Barn, named Little Hawes; which lately belonged to Mr. Blackall a woollen-draper in London, brother to Offspring Blackall biſhop of Exeter; now to his heirs.

Other lands in this Pariſh.

Margery de Moeſe held, in Chegenhale-Zoyn, a carucate of land, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee and a half, under Philip Burnell, nephew to Robert Burnell, Biſhop of Bath and Wells, who dyed 22 Edward I. (n)

In 1360, Richard Buſſy held half a fee in this pariſh of John Earl of Oxford.—And, in 1371, John Mounteney and Cecilie his wife, held half a fee of Thomas Earl of Oxford.—As William Bedel did a quarter of a fee. And James de Lamborne half a fee, both of the ſame Earl (o).

Thomas de Wayland had licenſe, 14 Edw. I, to incloſe and make a park, of two groves, and four acres of land, within the vills of Chigenhale-Zoyn, Chigenhale-Tany, and Wretle (p).

About the year 1700, Thomas Woollard gave a Tenement and Croft, worth about Three pounds a year, to the Poor of Chicknal St. James for ever; or Five pounds in land, as his Epitaph informs us.

There are but 18 Houſes in this pariſh.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel, and both are tyled. At the weſt end there is a Spire ſhingled; in which are three Bells.

Here were formerly two Churches, as I have intimated above, one for the maner of Chicknall-Tany, and the other for the maner of Chicknall-Zoyn [R]; and one dedicated to St. Mary, and the other to St. James. The former ſeems to be that which is down. For there is a field of the Glebe, called St. Mary's croft, in which a parcel of land, about the bigneſs of a Church-yard, is incloſed with a bank and deep ditches on all ſides, except the weſt: and ſome ruins of a building have been ploughed up; bricks and ſtones ſtill remaining ſcattered about, or lately did ſo.

It appears by the Regiſter of Fulk Baſſet, biſhop of London, in the time of K. Henry III, that the patronage of St. James was in the heirs of Geffrey de Zoyn.

The Advowſon of this Rectory was appendent to the Maner, till ſevered from it by Joſeph Petre Eſq; who ſold it, with the Advowſon of the adjoyning pariſh of Maſhbury, to .... Stock of Great Hallingbury, Gent. His ſon Thomas Stock, M. A. enjoyed it, from December 21. 1726, till his deceaſe 7 February 1744-5. And, leaving it by will to his neice Mrs. Carter, ſhe brought it in marriage to her huſband, John Shrigley M. A. the late Incumbent of this pariſh, and of Maſhbury.

26. CHICKNAL Smeley, otherwiſe written Smele, Smelley, Smethelea, Smetheleth, Smethly; and named from an owner Trenchfoill, alias Trenchfoyle, Trenchfield, Trenchfuill, Trenchford; as alſo Brick Chicknall, becauſe the Church is built of brick; and finally Chicknall Parva, or Little, becauſe it is ſo, not only in compariſon of the other Chicknall, but of moſt of the other Pariſhes in this County; ſtands north of the former.

In this pariſh are two Maners. 1. The maner of Chicknall-Smeley, alias Trenchfoyle, alias Dyves-hall. 2. The maner of Bereman's.

1. The maner of DYVES-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands about a quarter of a mile South-eaſt from the Church, partly ſurrounded by a moat; and was a large edifice built moſtly by the Luckyn family: but ſome of it hath been lately taken down.

In the 12th of K. Henry II, John Trenchfuill held 4 knights fees here, under Geffrey de Mandeville Earl of Eſſex (q). So that he [Mandeville] was Lord paramont of this as well as the other Chicknall.

In the 13th of K. Henry III, we find mention of a gift of ſome land here to Richard Fitz-Hugh, which William Trenchfoyle held (r).

This maner, in the earlieſt times after that, was in a family ſurnamed Dyve, which gave it the name of Dyves hall; and, under them, it was holden by the Botetourts, and other families.

The 4th of Edward I. Ida Botetourt held a Court at Chykenhale Trenchfoil. As did Sir John Bottourtot the 20th of the ſame king. And John de Botetor the 14th of Edward II. (s)

Hugh ſon of Otto, who dyed the 11th of Edward I, held the maner of Chikenhale of Robert Dyve, by the rent of one clove-gilly-flower. But the reverſion of it was in Robert Dyve, after the death of the ſaid Hugh. And the Prior of Dunmow held a tenement in Plechedone of the ſaid maner, paying to the ſcutage 10 s. whenever a ſcutage is levied.—Joane was Hugh's daughter and heir (t).—William Orrell held the 8th part of a fee of the ſame maner.

And, under Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed the 31ſt of Edward I, the heir of Robert Dyve held one fee and a half in Chigenhall and the hamlet of Plechenden (u).

Sir John de Philibert Kt. preſented to this living in 1331 (w); held a court here in 1332; and dyed in 1333. He held the maner of Chigenhalle Trenchfoille, called half a knights-fee, and ſcutage, when levied, of the King: alſo a wind-mill, and 10 acres, of the Prior of Leighs, at the rent of 4 s. per ann. And one acre and a half of John Cornewall, by the ſervice of 6 d. per ann.—John was his ſon and heir (x).

In 1333, John de Illegh held a Court here. So did Sir John de Litton the next year. And Walter Blount in 1357 (y).—Thomas Blount, very probably ſon of the latter, preſented to the living in 1394 (z).

Alice de Neville, mentioned in the laſt pariſh, and John de Neville, held alſo at one time, two Fees in this pariſh, which had belonged to William de Trenchfoyle.

Hitherto the maner of this pariſh ſeems to have been but One: About the year 1400, we find traces of Two, the owners of which preſented, either jointly or alternately, to the Rectory.

The maner of Dyves-hall, was in the year 1429. in John Glaſcock, and continued in perſons of that ſurname till the year 1559 (a). That family had conſiderable eſtates in ſeveral parts of this county, as at Farnham, Aldham, &c. and ſome of their deſcendents remained lately in the pariſhes of Little and Great Waltham.

John Glaſcock, Lord of this maner, dyed 15 January 1456 (b). —John Glaſcock held a Court here in 1462 (c).—William Glaſcock dyed 7 February 1503, and held a moiety of the maner of Chicknale Trenchfoile, with the Advowſon of the Church, of the King as of his Duchy of Lancaſter, by reaſon of his maner of Pleſhye. ——Edward was his ſon and heir (d).

It came next into the Luckin-family, [of which ſee an account under Little Waltham] and was in William Luckin in 1578. He dyed 31 January 1601. holding the maner of Smeley Chiggenhall, alias Dyves-hall, and a moiety of the Patronage of the Rectory of the Honor of Mandeville (e). — Richard, his ſon, married, in 1578, Frances daughter of John Searle of Epping, Gent. but dyed before his father, leaving ſix daughters, and four ſons——Richard, who ſucceeded his grandfather; Thomas, of Great Waltham, that married . . . daughter of . . . Mountford of Hatfield-broad-oak; William; John, of Sandon. Richard, the eldeſt, was High-Sheriff of Eſſex; and had two wives. 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Tho. Heale of Devonſhire, Bart. by which he had Joſeph, his ſon and heir. His 2d wife was . . . daughter of William Cholmely of Highgate in Middleſex, Eſq; and by her he had Anne, married to Sir Joſeph Brand of Edwardſton in Suffolk, Kt. who had by her one ſon named Joſeph. Richard Luckin dyed 10 March 1657, aged 76 (f). — Joſeph, his only ſon, ſucceeded him. He married Sarah, fourth daughter of Thomas Manwood, of Priors in Bromfield; and dying without iſſue 23 February 1668, this eſtate deſcended to his firſt couſin

Joſeph Brand, Eſq; But Sarah, widow of the ſaid Joſeph, was jointured in this eſtate, and poſſeſſed it till her deceaſe in 1729. She was married again to Samuel Woodgate M. D.—— Joſeph Brand ſold the reverſion of this eſtate to Job Marple, M. A. Vicar of Boreham in this County, a native of Derbyſhire, and Maſter of Arts of Jeſus College in Cambridge, in 1682. By his wife, Sarah, daughter of Francis Freeman of Wellington in Herefordſhire, he had 3 daughters. . . 1. Elizabeth, wife of Daniel Cook of Semer-hall in Suffolk, Gent. 2. Jane, wife of Thomas Wallace, M. D. late Fellow of Pembroke-hall. 3. Sarah, married to Thomas Cook, M. A. brother of the ſaid Daniel, late Fellow of Peter-houſe, and Rector of Semer. Elizabeth dying without iſſue ſurviving, Mr. Marple left this eſtate to his grand-daughter—Sarah, daughter of Thomas Cook aforeſaid; which Sarah, was married to the Reverend . . . . Child: but both he and ſhe are dead, and have left iſſue.

2. The maner of BEREMANS, ſo named from one John Bereman, who was a tenant of it, but no owner. It was originally part of the maner of Chicknall Trenchfoyl, and was ſevered from it, with the moiety of the advowſon, about the beginning of the fifteenth century; when it came into families of the name of Armenter, and Rolf: which preſented ſeveral times to the living (g). The name of Rolf is ſtill common in this and adjoyning pariſhes, and they have held this farm for many years paſt.

In Queen Elizabeth's time it came into the Porter family, particularly to Laurence Porter.—John Porter, his ſon, dyed 21 April 1611, holding the maner, or capital meſſuage, called Beremans in Chignall Smely, Chiggenhall St. James, and Writtle, and the moiety of the advowſon of this Church, of the King, as of his Honor of Mandeville.—Abraham his eldeſt ſon ſucceeded; and in 1620. ſold this eſtate to

James Chaplin, who, 27 October 1626, ſold it again to

William Haſelfoote, Gent. After the Reſtoration it was purchaſed by Thomas Singleton, Gent. ſchoolmaſter in Hogſdon-ſquare near London, who preſented to this Rectory in 1666, and again, either he or his ſon—Thomas in 1677. The ſon ſold it to

Timothy Brand, Eſq; of the Hide in Friernng; who dying 25 January 1734, was ſucceeded by his ſon —Thomas Brand, Eſq;

There are but Thirteen Houſes in this pariſh, and about 300 acres of land.

The CHURCH is ſmall, of one pace with the chancel, both tyled; and at the weſt end there is a Tower, embattled, with one Bell. Both Church and Tower are built of brick.

The Advowſon hath been appendent to the two Maners of Dyves-hall and Beremans; the owners of which preſented ſometimes jointly, but oftner of late alternately.

27. GREAT WALTHAM.

THERE are four pariſhes of the name of Waltham in this county, diſtinguiſhed by the ſeveral additions of Waltham-Stow, Waltham-Abbey, Great Waltham, and Little Waltham.

The name is Saxon, viz. Wealꞇ-ham, a village in a wood; this County, like moſt other parts of this iſland, being formerly covered with woods.

Vulgarly it is called Much Waltham, a word of the ſame import as Great: and it is very properly ſtyled Great, not only in contradiſtinction to the other adjoyning Waltham, but alſo on account of the Extent of it; being, next to Writtle, the largeſt pariſh in Eſſex: For it is reputed to be about 7 miles in length from a little beyond the late watch-houſe at Little Waltham to near Onſley-green [S], and borders upon eleven pariſhes.

It is divided into theſe eight Hamlets.—— Church-end — South-end — Rophey-green — Chatham-end — How-ſtreet — Littley-green — Fourth-end — and North-end. All which together contain about 260 families.

The lands here were holden, in the Saxons time, by Algar, and Uluuin: At the time of the general Survey, by Geffrey de Magna villa, or Mandeville; and under him by Hubert, Walter, Turchill, and Roger [T].

Theſe lands were afterwards divided into the following Maners. 1. The maner of Walthambury. 2. The maner of Chatham. 3. The maner of Warners. 4. The maner of Hide-hall. 5. The maner of South-houſe. 6. The maner of Langleys. 7. The Rectory is alſo a maner.

1. The maner of WALTHAM-BURY.

The manſion-houſe ſtands near a mile, weſt northweſt from the Church, and is but mean.

As to the word Bury, it ſignifies a town, or capital ſeat, where the Lord's court was kept.

This maner, as we have ſeen, was, ſoon after the Conqueſt, in Geffrey de Mandeville, who had Forty Lordſhips in this county; whoſe grandſon was advanced to the title of Earl of Eſſex; and his poſterity enjoyed the high offices of Conſtable and Sheriff of London, of Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire, of Juſtice, and of High Conſtable of England, &c. But, as none of them ever reſided here, but at Pleſhey, and eſpecially at Walden, where they had noble Palaces; for a more particular account of them, we ſhall refer the Reader to thoſe pariſhes. And only ſet down the names of ſuch of them as poſſeſſed this maner and eſtate; which were —William de Mandeville — Geffrey, the ſecond, founder of Walden-abbey — Geffrey, the third; who marrying Euſtachia, a kinſwoman of K. Henry II, and leaving her ſoon after, the king cauſed her to be divorced from him, and took from him two of his beſt lordſhips, Walden and Waltham, which he beſtowed with her in marriage on Anſelm de Campdanere. But they reverted to his brother and ſucceſſor — William de Mandeville, who dyed without iſſue 12 December 1190 (b).

Whereupon Beatrix, his father's ſiſter, wife of William de Say, became his heir. But this maner was obtained by

Geffrey Fitz-Piers, who had married Beatrix, eldeſt daughter and co-heir of William de Say, ſon of the firſt-named Beatrix. He was Juſtice of England, and Earl of Eſſex; and dyed the 14th of K. John, anno 1212.—Geffrey, his ſon, ſucceeded him, and took the ſurname of Mandeville. But departing this life in 1216. without iſſue, had for ſucceſſor his brother—William, who dyed unmarried in 1227. Whereupon Maud, his ſiſter and heir, brought this and other noble eſtates, with the Earldom of Eſſex, in marriage to her huſband

Henry de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, and High Conſtable of England, who had a ſeat and caſtle at Pleſhey. His deſcendents — Humfrey, the firſt — Humfrey, the ſecond — Humfrey, the third — Humfrey, the fourth — John — Humfrey, the fifth, and — Humfrey, the ſixth, all Earls of Hereford and Eſſex, and High-Conſtables of England, enjoyed this eſtate. The laſt dyed in 1372, the 46th of Edward III, leaving only two daughters, coheirs, Eleanore, and Mary (i).

Eleanore, the eldeſt, was married to Thomas of Woodſtock, Duke of Glouceſter, ſixth ſon of K. Edward III. and Mary to Henry Earl of Derby, afterwards King Henry IV. . . . Eleanore had this maner, among many others in purparty, with the Earldom of Eſſex, and Conſtableſhip of England. Her huſband was barbarouſly murdered, being treacherouſly fetched away from his ſeat at Pleſhey by K. Richard II. as is well known (k): And ſhe herſelf departed this life 3 October 1399 (l). Their iſſue was, Humfrey, who dyed unmarried; Anne, Joane, Iſabel, and Philippa. Iſabel was a nun; and Philippa dyed young.——Joane had this eſtate for her part. She was married to Gilbert Lord Talbot of Goderick-caſtle and Blackmere; but dyed ſoon after her mother, leaving an only daughter named — Ancharet. She dying young (m), this Eſtate devolved to her aunt,

Anne, eldeſt daughter of Thomas of Woodſtock, which was ſucceſſively wife of Thomas and Edmund Earls of Stafford, and of William Bourchier Earl of Eu, [as may be ſeen under Chicknal St. James.] But, upon Ancharet's dying under age, her mother Joane's part came to be divided between her two heirs, Anne aboveſaid, and her ſiſter Mary's ſon,

Henry the Vth then King of England; who had for his ſhare this Eſtate among many others: And this partition was confirmed in parliament 9 Henry V. other lands of the ſame value being aſſigned to Anne. From K. Henry V. it deſcended to — K. Henry VI. — Edward IV. and Vth, and — Richard III. The latter granted this Lordſhip, among many others, to the yearly value of 1084 l. 1 s. 9 d. unto Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, who had aſſiſted in placing him upon the throne.

But endeavouring to pull that King down again, he was betrayed by his ſteward Ralph Baniſter, and beheaded at Saliſbury 2 November 1483, without arraignment or tryal (n).

Thus it came again to the Crown, and K. Henry VII, in the firſt year of his reign, granted it to Queen Elizabeth, widow of K. Edward IV, for her life (o).

June 10. 1509, K. Henry VIII. ſettled it in dower upon his firſt Queen, Catharine of Arragon, under the ſeal of the Duchy of Lancaſter: and this grant was confirmed in the Parliament holden the 23d of January following (p).

That great acquirer, Sir Richard Rich, Kt. Chancellor of the Court of Augmentation, got it from the Crown, after the Queen's death;—and held his firſt Court here in 1539 (q). The 16th of February 1546, he was created a Baron, and conſtituted Lord Chancellor 30 November following. He dyed 12 June 1566. [A particular account may be ſeen of him in Little Leighs; as alſo of his Poſterity, that enjoyed This, and other his great eſtates: and were,] —Robert, who dyed 27 February 1581.—Robert, created Earl of Warwick, and dyed 24 March 1618.—Robert, dyed 19 April 1658;—Robert, 19 May 1659. and his brother—Charles, 24 Auguſt 1673, without iſſue. His widow, Mary, ſiſter of the great Robert Boyle, Eſq; poſſeſſed This, and other eſtates, in jointure till her death 12 April 1678.

After that, they were divided between the Coheireſſes of the two laſt Earls of Warwick, of the name of Robert. And this maner, with Chatham-hall, were allotted to Robert Montagu, Earl of Mancheſter. [See under Little Lees.]

About the year 1701, they were purchaſed of the Earl of Mancheſter by Herman Olmius, a Dutch merchant, who had acquired great riches by trading, and was then an inhabitant of the pariſh of St. Peter's Poor, London. He married Judith, daughter and ſole heir of John Drigue of London, by which he had John, Herman, Drigue; and Judith. Dying 7 Auguſt 1718, he left this eſtate, and Chatham-hall, to his younger ſon—Drigue: Upon whoſe death they deſcended to his nephew—John Olmius, Eſq; of New-hall. [For a more particular account of the family, ſee under Braintree.]

This is a noble Maner; the lands and demeſnes belonging to it containing no leſs than 800 acres. The Quit rents are upwards of 64 l. But the Fines are certain.

2. The maner of CHATHAM-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands Eaſt North-eaſt, a mile from the Church, and about half a mile, on the right hand, from the road leading from Braintree to Chelmsford.

At the time of the general Survey it was called Cetham; and belonged, as well as the laſt, to Geffrey de Magnaville [V].

Not long after that, it was holden, with ſeveral others, by a younger branch of the great Mandeville family; of which I have given a particular account in the Hiſtory of Black Notley.

Under Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed in 1372, Thomas de Magnavilla, or Mandeville ſenior, held 4 knights-fees, and the 4th part of a fee, in Bromfield, Black-Notley, and Chatham in Great Waltham, and Redlegh (r).—Thomas, ſon and heir of Sir Thomas Mandeville, Kt. who dyed the 1ſt of Henry IV, 1399, held this maner of the Earl of Hereford. Having no iſſue, this and other his eſtates were divided between his two ſiſters and co-heirs; viz. Joane wife of John Barry, and Alice wife of Helmingius Legat (s).

Alice had for her part this Maner, with thoſe of Bromfield, Black Notley, &c. She took to her ſecond huſband Roger Spice; and dyed in 1420 (t). By Roger Spice ſhe had a ſon named Clement, who ſucceeded her in this and other eſtates, [as may be ſeen under the maner of Bromfield.] He dyed the 1ſt of Richard III, leaving a ſon, named—Humfrey, who departed this life 28 October 1485, having no other iſſue but—Philippa, aged one year (u).

It was next in the Riche family. For Richard Lord Riche dyed 12 June 1566, poſſeſſed of the maner of Chatham, alias Chatham-hall, holden of the Queen, as of her Honor of Mandeville (w). It deſcended from him to his Poſterity; and paſſed, as Waltham-bury did, to

John Olmius, Eſq;

Near Chatham-hall, there is a Green, by the ſide of the Braintree-road, called Chatham-Green.

3. The maner of WARNERS.

The manſion houſe lyes about 2 miles from the Church, beyond How-ſtreet, on the left-hand ſide of the road from Waltham to Dunmow.

It took its name from the ancienteſt poſſeſſors of it upon record, the Warners, who had alſo the maner of Boys-hall in Halſtead. 'Tis ſometimes ſtyled, Warners, alias Waleys, or Wallis's, with Aſtelyns, and Old Warners.

Edmund Warner lived here, and held this eſtate, called the fifth part of a fee, under Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed in 1372 (x).—John Warner Eſq; who dyed the 18th of Henry VI, married Joane, ſiſter and heir of John Malden, by which he had —John, his ſon and heir, then aged 6 years and a half (y). He dyed the 13th of Edward IV, 1473, holding the maner of Waleyſe, and 200 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, 16 of paſture, in Great and Little Waltham, Piaſſe, High-Eſter, and Good Eſter, of Elizabeth Queen of England, as of her maner of Great Waltham (z). —Henry Warner, Eſq; probably ſon of the laſt, dyed 20 March 1505, holding the maner of Warners, alias Walls, of the King, of his maner of Great Waltham.—John, his ſon and heir, was then 19 years old (a). He held the maner of Warners, alias Warleys, and 10 meſſuages, 200 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 40 of wood, and 100 ſhillings rent, with appertenances in Great Waltham: And 6 meſſuages, 130 acres of arable, 30 acres of meadow, 60 of paſture, 30 of wood, called Aſtelyns, Phelips, and Newlonds in Great Waltham, of Sir Richard Rich, Lord Rich, of his maner of Great Waltham, by the yearly rent of 3 l. for all ſervices, worth 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. per annum. He dyed 21 September 1552; and his next heir, was his brother —Henry, then aged upwards of 60 (b). This Henry was of Finchingfield, and dyed 4 March 1556; being recorded to hold, 2 meſſuages, 20 acres of arable, 2[illegible] of meadow, 60 of paſture, with the appertenances called Old Warners, worth at that time 40 l. a year, in Great Waltham, Playſhey, High-Eſter, and Good Eſter, of Richard Lord Rich, of his Maner of Great Waltham, by fealty, and a yearly rent of 10 s. 2 d. for all ſervices;

Thomas Nudigate, ſon and heir of Anne Warner; Elizabeth, Thomas, and Margery: and Thomas ſon of Thomaſine Warner, were the heirs of the ſaid Henry (c) [W].

From this family are deſcended the Warners of Parham and elſewhere in Suffolk.

Soon after the death of Henry Warner, this eſtate was purchaſed by Richard Lord Rich. That great acquirer had obtained a little before, viz. in 1536, a grant of the Priory of Little Lees, with the lands and demeſnes belonging thereto, parted from Warner's only by the road. Theſe Demeſnes he converted into a Park, about four miles in circumference; lying partly in this pariſh, and partly in thoſe of Little Lees and Felſted. It was called Littley-Parke, alias Littley-hey; and along the South ſide of it, there is a Hamlet, or pleaſant Green, named Littley-Green.

In that part of the Park which lyes in this pariſh, there is, or lately was, a Chapel built of timber, and formerly uſed for divine ſervice. It is ſituated on the left ſide of the cauſey leading from Lees-houſe to Waltham, oppoſite to the Lodge.

The Rich-family had three other conſiderable Eſtates, in the North and Northweſt parts of this pariſh; which it will be proper to take notice of here, all together.

One is, Abſeild, or Abchild Park. This Sir Richard Rich purchaſed, 12 December 1538, of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk (d): It being ſaid to lye in Great Waltham, Barnſton, and Dunmow.

The other is Old Parke. The houſe is in this pariſh; but the Lands lye partly alſo in High-Eſter, and Pleſhey. Quære, Whether it is not, what was formerly called, Old Warners; or the Great Park of Pleſhey (e)? Unleſs, this laſt is part of Waltham-bury lands, adjoyning to Pleſhey.

The third is, Old Lawn, or Lawn-hall. The houſe is in this pariſh; but the lands lye partly alſo in High-Eſter, and Dunmow.

The firſt ſeems to have formerly belonged to Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex: For he got leave, in 1348, to embattle his Maner-houſes of Apechilde, Writtle, Brimſhoo, Depeden, and Walden (f).

Theſe Eſtates, like Waltham-bury, were enjoyed by the Lord Riche's poſterity till 1678. Then, upon the partition of that noble Inheritance, theſe, with Lees-Priory, were allotted to

Charles Montague, Earl of Mancheſter, grandſon of Anne, daughter of Robert Earl of Warwick. He dyed 20 January 1721-2, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon and heir —William Duke of Montague; who, the ſame year, ſold theſe Eſtates, and Lees-Priory, to the Guardians of Edmund Sheffield, Duke of Buckinghamſhire, a minor. He dyed unmarried 31 October 1735; whereupon theſe eſtates came to —Charles Herbert Sheffield, Eſq; ſince created a Baronet, a natural ſon of John Duke of Buckinghamſhire, father of the ſaid Edmund, according to the ſettlement made by the will of John, the father.

4. The maner of HIDE-HALL, ſtands about a mile and a half North-eaſt from the Church, and half a mile from the Braintree-road. The Houſe is large and ancient. It was ſo called, from a family of that ſurname; or gave name to a family: Or elſe, becauſe it originally contained a Hyde of land.

In the 18th of Edward II, 1324, James de la Hyde held, in Great Waltham, 1 meſſuage, 140 acres of arable, 5 acres of meadow, 12 acres of wood, and 4 s. 8 d. rent of aſſiſe, of the maner of High Eſtre, which was of the Honor of Mandeville, late the Earl of Hereford's, and then in the King's hands, by the ſervice of the 5th part of a knight's-fee. —— Elizabeth was his daughter and heir, ſix years old at the time of his death (g). In another Inquiſition, ſhe is called Elizabeth, Lady de Hemenhale (h).

Peter at Hyde was living 5 March 1363: and held the 8[illegible] part of a [illegible] pariſh, under Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, that dyed in 1372 (i). —Thomas at Hyde, was living 1 Richard II. and either He, or another —Thomas at Hyde, was witneſs to a deed 4 Henry V. anno 1416 (k). After that we hear no more of this Family.

In the beginning of the laſt century it was in the Hankin family. —— John Hankin held it in 1623, of the Honor of Tutbury (l). He dyed 1 March 1631-2, [for I take it for granted that he is the ſame perſon, that is named John Hawkins in the Inquiſition] poſſeſſed of a capital manſion houſe in Great Waltham, called the Hide, holden of the Duchy of Lancaſter; with a meſſuage, and 5 acres of meadow and paſture in Great Leighs. —— John, ſon of his brother Thomas, aged 15 the 24th of December before, was his heir (m).

He ſold this eſtate, about the year 1650, to John Sorell, Gent. That Family were then Leſſees of the Parſonage of this Pariſh, and had alſo the Parſonage of Stebbing. John Sorell, father, as we ſuppoſe, of John abovementioned, dyed 12 Auguſt 1626. He had not only lands in this pariſh, but likewiſe houſes and lands in Maldon (n). — To return to John Sorell, the purchaſer of Hide-hall: He married Mary daughter of Thomas Aylett of Coggeſhall, Hay of London, apothecary, and had by him a ſon named John-Sorell Hay.—Mary married . . . . Barns, owner of Stonehouſe, and deceaſed without iſſue.—Anne dyed unmarried. John, their father, dyed 13 January 1674, in the 38th year of his age (p).—Richard, the ſecond and ſurviving ſon, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Wiſe of Berkſhire, Gent. He dyed 25 January 1738. in the 76th year of his age, but without iſſue, ſo that the Family became extinct (q).

His nephew John Sorell Hay was his heir. But it was left by him to Dr. Tyſon, a Phyſician; and is now in his ſon Richard Tyſon, Eſq;

The Sorell-family had another eſtate in this pariſh, not far from How-ſtreet, called Hill-houſe.

Arms of Sorell. Gules, 2 Lions paſſant, ermines.

5. The maner of SOUTH-HOUSE, called in old writings the Hamlet of Southhouſe; and in the Court-rolls of Waltham Le South End; alſo Bybbeſworth-fee, from the ancient owners [X].

The Houſe ſtands a quarter of a mile South-weſt from the Church.

Hugh de Bibbeſworth, who lived in the reign of K. Henry III, held this eſtate (r). And—John de Bybbeſworth held it about the 10th of K. Edward III. 1336 (s). But this family doth not occur in the Inquiſitions till the reign of K. Henry VI. In the 27th year of that king, 1448,—John Bibbeſworth dyed, holding the maner of Southous in Great Waltham, of Margaret Queen of England, of her maner of Great Waltham, in ſocage: And a tenement called Sparkanekeſley in Little Waltham.—Thomas, his ſon and heir was then 3 years old (t). He dyed 29 September 1485, holding this maner, with the appertenances, of the King, as of his maner of Plaſhey, parcel of the Duchy of Lancaſter, by the rent of 12 s. per ann. And for a Fine and Lete within the ſaid maner 6 s. 8 d. There belonged then to this maner 3 l. 3 s. 6 d. rent of aſſiſe, with 20 l. from divers tenants that held at the will of the Lord. The demeſnes conſiſted of 100 acres of arable, each acre then valued at 2 d. per ann. ſix acres of meadow, each acre worth 12 d. per ann. ſix acres of paſture, each worth 1 d. per ann. and a wood of twelve acres, worth nothing.—— Joane wife of Thomas Barley junior, daughter of Joane Glowſeter aunt of the ſaid Thomas Bybbeſworth, and John Cotys, were his next heirs (u).

Thomas Barley, in right of his wife, held this maner of Sowthewis, of the King, as of his Honor of Waltham-bury, parcel of his Duchy of Lancaſter, in ſocage, by the ſervice of 12 s. per ann. and one pound of pepper, for a fine and lete within the ſaid maner 6 s. 8 d. worth by the year 4 l. 7 s. 9 d.—Robert, his ſon and heir, was then 30 years old (w). He was of Kimpton in Hertfordſhire, and dyed 7 June 1534, ſeized of the premiſſes, leaving—Francis, his ſon and heir, 15 years old (x). He dyed 8 December 1559, holding this maner of Thomas Mildmay Eſq; as of his maner of Little Waltham, by the ſervice of 12 s. yearly; It being then valued at 10 l. per ann. And one meſſuage, 50 acres of arable, 10 of paſture, 6 of meadow, in Great, and Little, Waltham, and Sparhawkiſey, of the Queen, as of the Honor of Mandeville, parcel of the Duchy of Lancaſter, by the ſervice of the 13th part of a knight's fee; being then worth 40 s. per ann.—Richard, his ſon and heir, was then aged upwards of 21 (y).—Thomas Barley, Eſq; held this eſtate from the 18th of K. James I. to the 13th of K. Charles I.

It was lately in Mrs. Weſtland. And is now in Weſt-Andrew Blackaller, Apothecary in Abbington, Berks.

6. The maner of LANGLEYS, otherwiſe Marſhalls, or Mariſkalls.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about a quarter of a mile from the Church, and is moſt pleaſantly ſituated on an eminence, having the river Chelmer on the North, and a Brook on the South.

It took the name of Marſhalls from an antient family that flouriſhed here, from the reign of K. John down to that of Edward III. William le Mareſkull, who held this maner, was living in 1336, the 10th of Edward III.

Then it came to a family ſurnamed Langley, from which it took the name that it retains to this day. In the 9th of Henry V. 1421, John Langeley did homage for lands he held in this pariſh, of Waltham-bury.

A moiety of this maner was afterwards in the Slixtons of Horndon in this county.—John, ſon and heir of John Slixton and Joane his wife, conveyed a moiety of the maner anciently called Maſkalls, and lately Langleys, to Tho. Tenderyng and Tho. Everard, by deed dated at Great Waltham 16 May 1482. Six days after, theſe two truſtees, Tenderyng and Everard, convey the ſaid moiety to—John ſon and heir of the foreſaid John and Joane, and to Elianor, daughter of John Garland, which John Slixton the ſon was to take in marriage.

John Slixton of Horndon ſenior, and John his ſon, did, on the 26th of June 1529, convey their moiety of this maner to Richard Everard: and the 29th of November following, a Recovery of this moiety was paſſed by J. Slixton to R. Everard. This moiety is ſaid to be one water-mill, 200 acres of arable, 30 of meadow, 100 of paſture, and 20 of wood.*

The other moiety was in the Corniſh-family, antient inhabitants of this pariſh [Y], where—John Corniſh lived in 1398, and held lands called Edward VI.—On the 7th of January 1515, John Corniſh, ſon and heir of John Corniſh, ſon and heir of Thomas Corniſh of this place, and Idonea his wife, confirmed their part of this maner to Thomas Everard, of Great Waltham, who had married their daughter and heir, named Joane, or Mary. And a Recovery was paſſed at Weſtminſter the 12th of February following, of the premiſſes, to Richard Stevyn of Chykenale St. James, and Thomas his ſon, in truſt for the ſaid Thomas Everard. This moiety conſiſted of one meſſuage, a water-mill, 140 acres of arable, 12 of meadow, 52 of paſture, 46 s. rent, and 3 capons per ann.

The Everard-family becoming thus poſſeſſed of this whole Maner, ſeated themſelves here, and many years made a conſiderable figure: for which reaſon it will be proper to give a particular account of them.

Ralph Everard lived in the reign of Henry III. and Edward I. and had—Walter, who lived in the reigns of Edward IId and IIId, and left iſſue—William Everard of Marſhbury, where he lived in the times of Richard II. and Henry IV. He left two ſons both of the ſame name—John Everard ſenior, and John Everard junior. John Everard ſenior, of Newarks in Good Eſtre, and of Maſhbury, in this county, by his wife, Catharine .... had Thomas his ſon and heir, and 2 daughters; Elizabeth, wife of .... Rochell; and Joane, wife of .... Styleman.—Thomas, the ſon and heir, became ſole owner of Langleys, as is above related. He lived in the reigns of K. Henry VII. and VIII. and by Joane, or Mary, daughter and co-heir of John Corniſh of Langleys, had ſix ſons, and three daughters; viz. 1. John, who dyed without iſſue. 2. Thomas, who had by his firſt wife, William, (that married Margerie Wale, and had a ſon named Ralph) and Thomas. He had, by a ſecond wife, Chriſtopher, William, and John. 3. William, who left iſſue, John, Thomas, Robert, another John, Richard, and William. 4. Richard was the fourth ſon, of whom more particularly by and by. 5. John dyed without iſſue. 6. Edward had Richard, John, Thomas, Edward, Roſe, and Joane.—The Daughters were, Margerie, married to ... Hankyn; Elizabeth, to .... Gold; Agnes, to Thomas Sorell.——Richard, the fourth ſon, ſucceeded his father in this eſtate. He had two wives. 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Stephens, Gent. by which he had Richard, and three daughters; Agnes, wife of Thomas Wood of Little Rayne; Margery, of Richard Sorrell; and Margaret, of Robert Pake. His 2d wife was Agnes Upcher, relict of Thomas Wood, by whom he had Dionyſia, married to John Samford of Boyton-hall in Roxwell.—Richard, his ſon, married Mary daughter of Thomas Wood of Little Rayne, (who ſurviving him, became the wife of John Goodday of Braintree, Gent.) but he dyed in his father's life-time. Richard, the father, dyed 29 December 1561, poſſeſſed not only of the maner of Langleys, and other lands in this pariſh called Capons, Whites, Dudborow, Wardfield, Chriſtian-acre, Woodfield, the Herſte, Hidemeade, Weights, &c. but alſo of the maner of Havering, and other lands, in Felſtead; and in Little Rayne, Good Eſter, and Maſhbury (z); the chief of which, viz. the maners of Maſcalls and Havering, he ſettled on his grandſon—Richard, (the ſon of his deceaſed ſon (then aged upwards of 21 years and 11 months (a). He married Clementia, daughter of John Wiſeman of Great Canfield, Eſq; and had iſſue Antony; Matthew, that lived at Rettenden; Hugh; John, of Great Badow. [See there, under Sebrights.] And one daughter, Mary, wife of John Wiſeman, of Styeſtead, Eſq; They lived together in wedlock 53 years. She dyed 1 September 1611; and He 25 July 1617, aged 78. And both lye buried under an altar-tomb, near the eaſt window of the ſouth iſle of this church.—Antony, the eldeſt ſon, received the honor of knighthood 23 July 1603, but dyed before his father. He had two wives; 1. Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Barnardiſton, of Kedington in Suffolk, Kt. by which he had, Antony, Richard, and Elizabeth, that dyed young; and Anne, that became his ſole daughter and heir, and ſecond wife to Sir William Maynard of Great Eſton, Kt. and Bart. afterwards Lord Maynard; into which family ſhe brought eſtates, lying in Foxearth, and ſeveral other pariſhes, with the lordſhip of Sandon, to the amount of about 600 l. per ann. This his firſt wife departed this life 19 December 1609, and is interred under a very ſtately monument, on the north ſide of this church. His 2d wife was Anne, daughter of Sir Antony Felton, of Playford in Suffolk, Knight of the Bath, by whom no iſſue is recorded. He himſelf dyed in 1614, and lyes interred by his firſt wife.——Hugh Everard, Eſq; third ſon of Richard above-mentioned, ſucceeded to the eſtate at Waltham. He was High-Sheriff of Eſſex in 1626; and married Mary, daughter of Thomas Brand, alias Bond, of Great Hormead in Hertfordſhire, Eſq; She dyed 3 April 1637, and He the 24th of Auguſt following; and both lye buried under a graveſtone near the eaſt window of the ſouth iſle. He held, at the time of his deceaſe, the maner of Mariſcalis, alias Langleys, with the appertenances, of the King, of his Dutchy of Lancaſter, and left an only ſon and heir—Sir Richard Everard; who had been created a Baronet 29 January 1628. He had two wives; 1. Joane, fifth, and youngeſt, daughter of Sir Francis Barrington, Kt. and Bart. of Hatfield Broad-oak, by which he had, Richard, his eldeſt ſon and heir; Barrington, Everard, and Robert, that dyed without iſſue; Hugh, Fellow of Emmanuel-college in Cambridge: Winifred, wife of Sir William Luckyn of Little-Waltham-hall, Bart. and Joane, Anne, and Frances, one of which was married to John Cutts of Arkeſden, Eſq; Two of the daughters that lived with Sir Richard, and were deeply prejudiced in favor of the Parliament againſt the King, engaged him in the ſame meaſures, ſo that he was a Committee-man, &c. His 2d wife was .... mother of Sir Gervaſe Elways, of Stoke in Suffolk; but by her he had no iſſue. The time of his death is not mentioned. His eldeſt ſon—Sir Richard Everard, Kt. and Bart. ſucceeded him. He was Sheriff of Eſſex in 1644, and had two wives. 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Henry Gibbs of Falkland in Scotland, Gentleman of the bed-chamber to K. James I. by which he had, Richard, that dyed unmarried, Sir Hugh, and Jane, that dyed an infant. His 2d wife was, Jane, daughter of Sir William Finet, Maſter of the Ceremonies to K. James and K. Charles I. but he had no iſſue by her. He dyed 29 Auguſt 1694, in the 70th year of his age, and lyes buried in this Church. — His ſecond ſon, and ſucceſſor, Sir Hugh Everard, Bart. was bred to arms. He married Mary, daughter of John Brown, M. D. of Saliſbury, by whom he had, Richard; Hugh, drowned in the great ſtorm, 27 November 1703, being Lieutenant of the Reſtoration; Morton, that was killed on board the Hamſhire commanded by the Lord Maynard: And two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Henry Oborne, M. A. Vicar of Great Waltham, Rector of Weſt-Hanningfield, afterwards Vicar of Thaxtead; and Frances, that never married. Dying 2 January 1705-6, aged 51 years, he was buried in this church. He was for ſome time Receiver-general for this county, but left his eſtate much encumbered with debts: So that his ſon and ſucceſſor — Sir Richard Everard was forced to ſell it; and bought a ſmall eſtate in Bromfield, [as may be ſeen under that Pariſh.] About the year 1724, he went Governor of North-Carolina under the Lords Proprietors; but being diſplaced when the Crown purchaſed that Province, he returned to London, where he dyed 17 February 1732-3, and his Lady, who ſurvived him, dyed 12 September 1739. Her name was Suſanna, eldeſt daughter and co-heir of Richard Kidder, D. D. Biſhop of Bath and Wells, who was killed by the fall of ſome chimneys during the great ſtorm in November 1703. By her he had two ſons, — Sir Richard, who ſucceeded him, but dyed in March 1742, unmarried. — Sir Hugh, who came to an empty title, with a very ſmall pittance of eſtate, and went to Georgia: And two daughters, Suſanna, married in Virginia to Mr. David Mead, a conſiderable merchant and planter there; and Anne, married to George Lathbury, Gent. [¶].

The Gentleman who purchaſed this eſtate of Sir Richard Everard, was Samuel Tufnel, Eſq; ſon of a very rich and eninent merchant in London [Z]. Having pulled down the greateſt part of the old manſion, he built here a very good houſe, and made a Park round it, with many other improvements. He ſince purchaſed Wiſeman's near the Church, and the farms called Fitz John's, and Balls, in this pariſh. He dyed 28 December 1758, leaving iſſue, by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of George Creſſener Eſq; [concerning whom ſee under Great Tay] John-Jolliff; George; William: Elizabeth, and Mary-Anne. — John-Jolliff, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married, 2 April 1748, Anne Meeke, daughter of William Meeke of North-Allerton in Yorkſhire, Eſq; by which he hath ſeveral children.

7. The maner of the RECTORY, was given to Walden-Abbey, by Geffrey de Mandeville, grandſon to the founder of that houſe; and continued in them till their ſuppreſſion (b). Then it came, by purchaſe or otherwiſe, to Sir Richard Rich, and afterwards to Sir Thomas Pope, Kt. founder of Trinity-college in Oxford, who ſettled it upon the Preſident and Fellows of that his foundation.

Under them it was many years holden by Leaſe by the Sorell family, mentioned above; particularly by Chriſtopher, Robert, and John, Sorell, in the laſt century.

John Rotherham, Eſq; purchaſed the leaſe of them, about the year 1684, and made great improvements in the houſe and buildings, which ſtand about a mile north-eaſt from the church, by the ſide of the river Chelmer. He was ſon of John Rotherham, Vicar of Boreham, and Rector of Springfield in this county; but originally of the ancient family of the Rotherhams of Lutton in Bedfordſhire, which were related to Thomas Rotherham Archbiſhop of York, and founder of Lincoln-college, Oxon. John Rotherham, Eſq; was an eminent Counſellor at law; called to the degree of a Serjeant 11 June 1688; and, 3d July following, made one of the Barons of the Exchequer, and knighted. — He was ſucceeded by his ſon, John Rotherham, Eſq; Barriſter at law, Recorder of Maldon; who dying 2 April 1729, aged 77, left iſſue, by Mary his wife, daughter of Giles Alleyn, D.D. five daughters: 1. Mary, which dyed unmarried. 2. Anne, married to John Wyat, M. A. Maſter of Felſtead-ſchool, and Rector of Woodham-Mortimer, of Peldon, and Little Waltham. 3. Elizabeth, married — firſt to Sir Theophilus Napier, Bart. — then to Thomas Howard, Baron of Effingham — and laſtly to Sir Conyers Darcy. 4. Penelope, married to a tobacconiſt in Alderſgate-ſtreet. 5. Frances, married — firſt, in the Eaſt Indies, to Peter Curgenven, merchant there — ſecondly to Lord Somerville. None of them having any iſſue — Mary, the eldeſt, to whom her father had bequeathed this leaſe, left it, after her ſiſter Anne's deceaſe, to the two daughters of the foreſaid Lord Effingham by his firſt Lady, viz. Anne, wife of the late Sir William Yonge, Bart. and Mary, married to George-Venables Vernon, of Derbyſhire, Eſq;

In North-end, John Wiſeman, Eſq; about the 8th of K. Henry VI, purchaſed a capital meſſuage named Bullocks, and made it the place of his reſidence; [but the chief part of it is now pulled down.] He was the firſt of his family who lived in Eſſex: and from him ſprung theſe ſeveral Branches, which made a very conſiderable figure in this county, and have been diſtinguiſhed by the places of their habitation; viz. Styſtead, Great Canfield, Little Mapleſtead, Bradocks in Wimbiſh, Rivenhall, Willingale-Dou, Great Badow, Laingdon-hills, Elſenham, Wigborough, and Mayland. In the laſt century, they were poſſeſſed of about 7000 l. per ann. And three of them were honoured with the dignity of Baronet; viz. William Wiſeman of Canfield-hall, created 29 Auguſt 1628. Richard Wiſeman of Thunderſley, 18 December the ſame year. And Sir William Wiſeman, Kt. of Rivenhall, 14 June 1660. — To return to John Wiſeman abovementioned; He had iſſue — John, father of — John, of North-end, and Bradocks in Wimbiſh; which laſt had — John, of Felſtead: and Thomas, of North-end.

A ſecond ſon of the firſt John, named — Thomas, lived at Guyharlands in Chelmsford, and had iſſue — John Wiſeman, Eſq; who married Agnes, daughter and heir of Philip Joſſelyn of Great Canfield, Eſq;

A Lady of this family endowed Black Chapel, in this hamlet; as we ſhall more particularly mention a little lower. [See a fuller account of the ſeveral Branches of this Family, under the Pariſhes above-named.]

Arms of Wiſeman. Per pale, or and azure, on a chevron 2 dragons encountrant, counterchanged. On a chief, ermines, 3 coronets argent.

Other Eſtates of value in this Pariſh.

Wiſeman's, near the Church, once belonging to Richard Lord Rich.

Balls, about a mile South from the Church, late Goodeve's.

Fitz-John's, above a mile South-weſt from the Church. Theſe three were purchaſed by the late Samuel Tufnell, Eſq; and are now his ſon's.

Iſrael's, near Fitz-John's, lately belonging to John Blatch of Colcheſter, merchant; now to his ſon-in-law, Charles Whaley of the ſame place, merchant.

Bleſſed Bailey's, in Chatham-end; lately belonging to Walter Lane.

Under Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed in 1372, Simon de la Boterie held the tenth part of a fee: And the Abbot of Walden the 20th part of a fee; both in this pariſh (c). But where they lay, or what names they now bear, is unknown.

A Charitable Donation.

John, and William, Wolmer, of this pariſh, by Deed dated 4 October 1542, in purſuance of a ſecret truſt repoſed in them by William Wolmer their grandfather, did grant to Richard Everard the elder, Thomas Wyſeman, and Richard Everard the younger, All that Tenement, with garden adjoyning, called Wolmers, lying in Much Waltham, between lands called Hatchfyld on the ſouth part, and the King's highway leading from Waltham church towards Chelmsford, on the north part; for repairing the Church, maintaining the bridges, and all other charitable uſes from time to time in this pariſh: To be diſpoſed of according to the diſcretion of the greater part of the Inhabitants for the time being. It was a cottage, now down, and an Acre of land.

This pariſh receives, every Lent, three Barrels of white Herrings, and ſome red, part of the Lord Rich's donation. [See under Felſtead.]

The CHURCH conſiſts of a large and ſpacious Body, and a ſouth iſle. The Chancel is of one pace; to the north of which adjoyns a Veſtry: all leaded. At the weſt end, there is a ſquare Tower, containing ſix good tuneable Bells; On the top of which ſtands a clumſy Spire leaded. In the chancel, there is a neat wainſcot Altar-piece, erected about 1720.

This Church, with all its profits, was given to Walden abbey, by Geffrey de Mandeville, founder of that monaſtery [A]. Afterwards K. Henry II. confirmed it to them, with all its Tithes, and appertenances (d). Whereupon the great Tithes were appropriated to their Houſe, and a Vicarage ordained here (e). They continued poſſeſſors of them till the general Suppreſſion; when they appear to have been firſt in the Lord Rich, and then in Sir Thomas Pope, Kt. who gave both Rectory and Vicarage to Trinity College in Oxford, founded by him in the year 1555 (f). According to a Compoſition mentioned by Mr. Newcourt, beſides the ſmall Tithes, the Vicar is endowed with the Tithes of Hay, and others; ſpecified in the Compoſition, which is entered in the Regiſtry of London (g). Notwithſtanding which, ſo large and burdenſom a Cure was only a poor Vicarage of about 80 l. a year, payable by 126 hands: But the patrons of it, the Preſident and Fellows of Trinity-college, 1 Auguſt 1721, made a handſom Augmentation thereto, of Fifty pounds a year for ever, payable, by equal half-yearly portions, from the Leſſee of the Rectory, to the Vicar for the time being that ſhall be preſented by the ſaid College. And this augmentation hath been ſince increaſed to 80 l. a year.

In North-End, by the ſide of the road leading from this Church to Dunmow, ſtands a little timber building, with a wooden Turret, called Black Chapel, being a Chapel of Eaſe for this diſtant part of the Pariſh: but they are obliged to bury their dead in Waltham Church-yard. A Lady of the Wiſeman-family, ſeated at Bullocks, left a farm near this Chapel; for the endowment of it, and to the Poor: now lett for 26 l. per ann. The Truſtees are ſome of the neighbouring Farmers, who allow the Preacher 16 l. a year: but they are very ſhy of ſhewing the feoffment. The Vicar, it is ſaid, is excepted from being Preacher here, that he may not be induced to neglect the mother-church.

We have obſerved above, that there was a Chapel in Littley-Park. To it belonged the Tythes of Six acres of land, adjoyning to Chatham-green; which are now in private hands.

Walter de Bykleſworth, or rather Bybbeſworth, Kt. and Thomas de Mandevil, had two Chapels here, in the year 1248; belonging probably to their maners of South-houſe, and Chatham-hall; but no traces of them remain (h).

Eudo Dapifer, granted to the Abbey of St. John's in Colcheſter, which he founded, the Third part of the Tythe of this pariſh of Waltham (i).

There is an old houſe, partly over the weſtern Gate of the Church-yard; formerly called the Guild-hall, [becauſe probably the Court was holden there,] or the Church-houſe. It came, we know not how, into Qu. Elizabeth's hands, lyes eaſt of Great Waltham, and through it is the road to Braintree. The river Chelmer runs alſo through it; which adds to its otherwiſe agreeable ſituation.

28. LITTLE WALTHAM

This pariſh, in the Saxons time, was holden by Lefſtan; the Abbot of St. Edmundſbury; and Stanhard; At the time of the general Survey, by Euſtace Earl of Boulogne, and Albert; and under Euſtace, by one Lambert [B].

In this Pariſh are the following Maners. 1. The maner of Little Waltham; with Powers. 2. The maner, lordſhip, or farme of Sheepcote. 3. The maner of Boycroft, and Blaſterd's-fee. 4. The maner of Walkefare's is alſo partly in this pariſh.

1. The maner of LITTLE-WALTHAM.

It is now ſtyled the maner of Little Waltham cum Powers; and hath been ſo many years.

The manſion houſe ſtands near the Church, and is very agreeably ſituated.

After Earl Euſtace, the next poſſeſſor of it upon record, was Robert de Tatteſhall, a deſcendent of Eudo, who came into England at the Norman conqueſt; and obtained of Duke William the Lordſhip of Tatteſhall in Lincolnſhire, where he ſeated himſelf, and from whence he took his ſurname. Eudo's ſon, named —Hugh Fitz-Eudo, had three ſons; Robert; William, ſurnamed Fitz-Hugh; and another William, ſurnamed de Dentune. —Robert, the eldeſt, had iſſue, —Philip, commonly called Fitz-Robert, Fitz-Hugh; Sheriff of Berkſhire in 1195, 1196, 1197; and of Lincolnſhire in 1198; who dyed about the year 1199, leaving his ſon—Robert de Tatteſhall, above-mentioned, Lord of Walthammaner. In 1205, he was Sheriff of Huntingdon and Cambridgeſhires; and dyed about 1211. leaving, by Iſolda Pantulf his wife, —Robert de Tatteſhall, 3d of that name: He married Mabel, or Amabill, eldeſt of the four daughters and co-heirs of William de Albini Earl of Arundel and Suſſex; in whoſe right he became poſſeſſed, in 1244, of very great eſtates, particularly of the caſtle and maner of Buckenham in Norfolk, which was made their principal ſeat (l). He dyed in 1248, or 1249, 33 Henry III, leaving —Robert then 26 years of age (m); who, in the 48th of K. Henry III, had leave to impark his wood of Little Waltham, within the bounds of the foreſt of Eſſex (n). By his wife, Joane, ſecond daughter of Ralph Fitz-Ranulph Lord of Middleham in Yorkſhire, he had Robert his only ſon; and three daughters, Emme married to Adam de Cailli, Joane to Sir Simon de Dryby, and Iſabell to Sir John de Orreby. He dyed 26 Edw. I, and was ſucceeded by his ſon—Robert, who dyed 31 Edw. I, leaving, by Eve his wife, daughter of Robert de Tibetot,—Robert, his ſon, aged 15. But he dying 3 years after, unmarried, his next heirs were found to be, Thomas ſon of Adam de Cailli, aged 24; Joane de Dryby, aged 30; and Iſabell, wife of John de Orreby, 29 years of age (o). Upon the diviſion of the eſtates,

Thomas de Cailli had for his ſhare the Lordſhip of Little Waltham; the caſtle of Buckenham, &c. He was ſummoned to parliament in 2, 3, 4. of Edward II. and dyed the 10th of the ſame king, without iſſue (p): His ſiſter Margaret had taken in marriage one of his Eſquires, named Roger de Clifton. And their ſon, Adam de Clifton, then nine years of age, became heir to his uncle Thomas de Caillie. He married Eleanor daughter of Robert Mortimer of Attilburgh, Kt. and by her had his ſon—Conſtantine, who was knighted, but dyed before his father; leaving John his ſon and heir, by Catharine daughter of Sir William de la Pool, or Powell. She held this maner of Little Waltham, of the King in ca. as parcel of the Barony of Tattiſhall, till her death, which happened in 1363 (q).—John de Clifton ſucceeded his grandfather Adam. He was ſummoned to parliament from the 50th of Edward III. to the 12th of Richard II. and married Elizabeth daughter and co-heir of Ralph Cromwell, Kt. but departed this life in the iſle of Rhodes, leaving —Conſtantine, his ſon and heir, 16 years of age: (r) who had livery of his lands, and ſummons to parliament in the 17 and 18 of Richard II. (s) He married Margaret, daughter of Robert Howard, Kt. of Eaſt-Winch, by Margaret Scales his wife; and dyed about the 19th of Richard II. 1396. leaving John his ſon and heir aged one year, and Margaret, afterwards wife of Sir James Knivet. —— John Clifton, afterwards knighted, married Joane, daughter and co-heir of Sir Edward Thorpe, by whom he had Margaret his daughter and heir; which became the wife of Sir Andrew Ogard. And, in her right, was the Inheritance of the Cliftons divided between the Ogards and the Knivets.

But this maner of Little Waltham did not come in amongſt them. For Sir John de Clifton aforeſaid, who dyed at Rhodes, had granted it to Richard de Waltham, and Margaret his wife. Moſt probably, he mortgaged, or ſold it, to them, to raiſe money for his voyage to Rhodes, or the Holy land. That he had parted with this eſtate, is plain from the Inquiſition taken after the death of his ſon Conſtantine (t): wherein it is ſaid, that this Conſtantine dyed poſſeſſed of no lands in Eſſex, becauſe his father John had granted the maner of Little Waltham to Richard Waltham and Margaret his wife then living; but that the Reverſion of that maner belonged to John ſon of the ſaid Conſtantine. However, notwithſtanding this reverſion, Richard Waltham kept this Lordſhip, and ſeems to have been the real owner; As appears by the following account, which moreover ſhews how conſiderable a perſon he was.

In the 16th of Richard II, He, and William Bateman, William Taylour of Braintree, John Aſpall, Thomas Houlett, and John Eleyne, clerk, had licenſe, to give one meſſuage, 130 acres and a half of arable, 8 acres and 1 rood of meadow, 7 acres and a half of paſture, and 4 acres of wood, in Great Dunmowe, to the Prior and Convent of Little Dunmowe. And there was remaining to the ſaid Richard Waltham, beſides this gift, 1 meſſuage, 400 acres of arable, 20 acres of meadow, 30 acres of paſture, 24 acres of wood, and 6 l. 3 s. annual rent, in Waltham, Bromfeld, and Great Waltham, holden of the Duke of Glouceſter, by the ſervice of three parts of a knight's fee (u). Moſt probably, he was a native of this pariſh, and took his ſurname from it. But, though his poſterity flouriſhed here ſome time after him, as appears from the Epitaphs in this church, yet I have not found any mention of them in the Inquiſitions poſt mortem. His ſon —John Waltham, Eſq; ſucceeded him, and dyed 28 November 1418. He lyes buried in the chancel of this church, under a marble ſtone, with an inſcription in which he is ſtyled Lord of this vill. (w)——Richard Waltham, his ſon, was the next poſſeſſor, and dyed 28 October 1426. He is alſo interred in this church (x) [¶].

John Mabon appears to have been the next Lord of this maner. He dyed 11 December 1447, and was buried in the chancel of this church (y).

We find it next in the Mildmay-family. Thomas Mildemay of Moulſham, Eſq; that dyed 21 December 1565, was poſſeſſed of this maner, then valued at 20 l. and of the advowſon of the church (z). They continued in his poſterity; and we find the following licenſes for alienating of them (a). May 1. 1587, Edmund Mildmay had licenſe to ſell them to Thomas Tirrell, Eſq; with appertenances; and 6 meſſuages, 6 cottages, 12 gardens, 400 acres of arable, 40 acres of meadow, 200 acres of paſture, 60 of wood, 60 of gorſy and heathy ground, and 4 l. rent, in this pariſh, and elſewhere. The 26th of March 1604, Thomas Mildmay, Eſq; had licenſe to alienate the premiſſes to Robert Deareham. As Sir Thomas Mildmay had, the 16th of May following, to alienate them to Robert Mildmay, Gent. And yet Sir Henry Mildmay lived afterwards at Waltham-hall, and had three daughters and a ſon baptized here. Frances 18 May 1612. Mary 3 April 1618. Anne 13 September 1619. and Charles 13 February 1620 (b).

It was bought, not long after, by Luckyn. This family was originally of Good-Eſter, of which branches ſpread themſelves into Sandon; at Shenge's in Great Badow; and alſo in Much-Waltham: but the moſt conſiderable of them were fixed at Chicknal-Smeley, at Little Waltham, and in latter times at Meſſing.

William Luckyn, of Shenge's, or Maſcall's, in Great Badow, married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Jenney of St. Edmund's-Bury, and dyed 13 December 1610, leaving iſſue by her —William, his ſon and heir, born in 1594, created a Baronet 2 March 1628, and Sheriff of Eſſex in 1637. He married 1. Mildred, daughter of Sir Gamaliel Capel of Rookwood-hall in Abbeſs-Rothing, by which he had Sir Capel Luckyn, born in 1621, who married Mary, daughter of Sir Harbottle Grimſton, and was ſeated at Meſſing-hall: William, of Little Waltham-hall; and two daughters, Jane, and Elizabeth. His 2d wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Pynchon of Writtle: and by her he had 3 ſons and 4 daughters. She departed this life 7 July 1657 (c).—William, the ſecond ſon, was created a Baronet 15 November 1661. He married Winifred, third daughter of Sir Richard Everard of Great Waltham, Bart. by which he had one only daughter—Anne [*].

Of Luckyn's heirs it was bought by John Edwards, Eſq; This gentleman came from Huntingdon; and had alſo eſtates in Cambridgeſhire, and the maner of Deynes at Depden in this county. He married Suſanna, eldeſt daughter of Sir Richard Munden, Kt. commodore of the ſquadron which retook St. Helena from the Dutch in 1673, and brother of Sir John Munden, Kt. rear-admiral of the Red. By her he had, Henry; John, M. D. of Colcheſter, who dyed 3 January 1757. without iſſue; Suſanna, wife of James Chalmers, Rector of Lammarſh, and Wickham St. Paul; Catharine, married to Daniel Scratton of Bromfield, Gent. Elizabeth, to Joſeph Jekyll of London, grocer; Anne, the third, dyed unmarried.—Henry, the eldeſt ſon and heir, was of Lincolns-inn. He ſucceeded Fleetwood Dormer, in his place of Maſter in Chancery. But he was greatly hurt by the Lord Chancellor Macclesfield's fall. To make him ſome amends, there was given him the new-created place of Accomptant in Chancery. However it could be of no great advantage to him; for he dyed 8 December 1726. He had married Sarah, only daughter of Richard March, of London and Enfield, merchant, by which he had —John, his eldeſt ſon, an Attorney; Sarah; Henry, an attorney, both dead: and Richard.

2. and 4. POWERS, SHEEPCOTE's, and WALKFARES.

Theſe were formerly called Maners, but are not acknowledged now for ſuch; they being all merged into that of Little Waltham.

The manſion-houſe of Powers ſtands about a mile eaſt from the Church; in the road to Boreham: That of Sheepcotes, which hath for many years gone along with it, is quite within the fields, half a mile north eaſt from the Church. As for that of Walkfare, we cannot trace it out, but believe it was within the pariſh of Boreham. [See under Boreham.] [C]

Powers is ſometimes denominated Great and Little Powers. And Walkfare is otherwiſe written Walkferes, Walfay, and Walkeſon. In writings, they are frequently ſet down by the names of the maner of Waltham Parva and Boreham; And, in the Inquiſitions poſt mortem, are ſometimes joyned together, and at other times put down diſtinctly.

Robert de Borham formerly held the maners of Borham and Waltham parva: And, in the 7th of K. Edward I. they were in

Robert Burnel, biſhop of Bath and Wells. [Concerning whom ſee in Boreham, under Calwattes and Walkfares.] He held, in this pariſh, and Boreham, 2 meſſuages, 2 carucates of land, and one water-mill, of the king in ca. of the Honor of Bologne, by the ſervice of two parts of a knight's-fee.—And, in this pariſh in particular, 80 acres of land, of William de Bovile, at the rent of 10 s. 5 d. per ann. and ſuit of court: Likewiſe 20 acres of land, at the yearly rent of 5 s. and to the church 12 d. — Of the heirs of Reginald Peche, 80 acres of land, by the ſervice of 3 s. rent, and 20 weeks work.— And of Adam le Cayle, 20 acres of land, by the yearly rent of 2 s. (d) This great Prelate having gone through the ſeveral offices and dignities of Canon of Wells, Archdeacon of York, Lord Treaſurer, and Chancellor of England, Privy Counſellor to K. Edward I. and continued Biſhop 18 years, departed this life in 1292, or 1293, and was ſucceeded by his brother Hugh Lord Burnel's ſon, named — Philip, who dyed the year following, poſſeſſed of 533 acres of arable, 23 of meadow, 40 of paſture, 7 of wood, and 71 s. 11 d. rent, in this pariſh, and Boreham (e).—Edward, his ſon and heir, was ſummoned to parliament from the 5th to the 8th of K. Edward II. and dyed the 8th of that king; leaving no iſſue by his wife, Aliva, daughter of Hugh le Deſpenſer (f). So that

Maud his ſiſter, wife of John Lovel of Tichmerſh, in Northamptonſhire, who was ſummoned to parliament 6, 7, 8, of Edward II. became his heir. Her huſband dyed 8 of Edward II. leaving a ſon —John, who however did not inherit theſe eſtates. For the ſaid Maud beſtowed them upon her ſecond huſband

John de Handlo, and his iſſue. This John was ſon and heir of John de Handlo, who had a conſiderable eſtate at Shepenhall and Chadlington in Oxfordſhire: He was a great warrior, and ſummoned to parliament 1 and 16 of Edward III. By this Lady he had Richard, (who departed this life before him, leaving by Iſabell his wife, Edmund, Margaret, and Elizabeth) and Nicolas. John de Handlo dyed in 1346. holding, among other things, one meſſuage, 240 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, 10 of paſture, 24 acres of uncultivated ground, and 4 of wood, in this pariſh: and the maner called Walkefare (g).—Edmund, his grandſon, was his heir: But he dying 1 June 1355, a minor; his uncle—Nicolas de Handlo had livery of his lands, and took the ſurname of Burnel, from his mother who was ſo great an heireſs. He was ſummoned to parliament 24 Edward III. and dyed 19 June 1383, poſſeſſed of the maners of Powers, Boreham, and Walkefare (h). His ſon—Hugh Burnel ſucceeded him, and was a Lord of Parliament from 1383 to 1420, and knighted. Being a great favorite of K. Richard II. he was ſtigmatized with the odious name of one of his evil counſellors. He dyed 27 November 1420. By Joyce his wife, daughter of John Botetourt, he had his only ſon —Edward, who dyed before him; leaving, by Alice daughter of Thomas Lord Strange, only three daughters; namely, Joyce, wife of Thomas Erdyngton junior; Catharine, married afterwards to Sir John Ratcliffe, Kt. and Margerie wife of Ed. Hungerford (i).

Upon failure of the male line, theſe eſtates reverted into the Lovel-family, deſcended from Maud Burnel's firſt huſband.—Sir William Lovel Kt. Lord Lovel, dyed 33 Henry VI, poſſeſſed of the maner of Little Waltham called Powers, and thoſe of Walkefare, and Great Boreham: He married Alice, one of the daughters and coheirs of John Deincourt, Kt. by which he had his ſon — Sir John Lovel, Kt. Lord Lovel (k), who dyed in 1469, 9 Edward IV. leaving iſſue, by Joane, ſiſter of William Viſcount Beaumont, — Francis Lord Lovel, advanced, 4 January 1482, by K. Edward IV. to the dignity of Viſcount Lovel; [as may be ſeen more at large under the maner of Calwattes in Boreham.] He was attainted by act of Parliament, in 1485, for aiding and abetting the uſurper Richard III. And K. Henry VII. in the 4th of his reign, granted theſe eſtates to

John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, who had ſuffered much for the Houſe of Lancaſter, and been very inſtrumental in ſetting the crown upon his head; and to his heirs male (l). He dyed 10 March 1512, without legitimate iſſue. Before which, viz. on September 6. preceding, K. Henry VIII. had granted the reverſion of theſe maners to

Thomas Bullen, father to Queen Anne Bullen, created afterwards Earl of Wiltſhire and Ormond. His only ſon and heir, George Viſcount Rochford, being made a ſacrifice to Henry's luſt, and other unbridled paſſions, in 1536, theſe eſtates fell again to the Crown.

On the 15th of July 1557, K. Philip and Queen Mary granted the maner of Powers, with the appertenances, to Thomas Mildmay, Eſq; (m) And it paſſed, as Waltham hall, to his heirs.

Of ſome of them it was purchaſed by Richard Bannyng. This Richard was of Dedham in this county, and married Anne, daughter of John Barker of Ipſwich in Suffolk, by which he had Paul [of whom, and his poſterity, ſee an account under Little Bentley]. Andrew, and Robert.—Andrew, the ſecond ſon, had this eſtate, and dyed 21 December 1610, holding the maner of Powers in little and great Waltham, and great Leighs, of the King in ca. — Robert, his brother and heir, was then 75 years old, and more (n). He was ſucceeded, either by his brother Paul, who dyed 1 October 1616, or by his nephew — Sir Paul Banning, Kt. and Bart. created, 27 February 1627-8, Baron Banning of Horkeſley, and Viſcount Banning of Sudbury the 8th of March following. He married Anne daughter of Sir Henry Glemham, Kt. by Anne Sackville his wife, and had Paul, his ſon and heir; and four daughters, Cecily, married to Henry Pierpont, Viſcount Newark; Anne, to Henry Murray, Eſquire of the Chamber to K. Charles I; Mary, to William Villiers, Viſcount Grandiſon; and Elizabeth to Francis Lennard Lord Dacre of Hurſt-Monceaux in Suſſex.——Paul, Viſcount Sudbury, married Penelope, daughter and ſole heir of Sir Robert Naunton, Kt. Maſter of the Court of Wards, by which he had 2 daughters; Anne, married to Albrey de Vere, Earl of Oxford, but had no iſſue; and Penelope, born after her father's deceaſe, and married to John Herbert, youngeſt ſon of Philip Earl of Pembroke. After Anne's deceaſe, her four Aunts above-named becoming co-heirs to her Eſtates, This fell to the ſhare of Elizabeth, the youngeſt, married to Francis Lord Dacre. She had by him two ſons, Thomas, advanced to the title of Earl of Suſſex; and Henry Lennard, Eſq; to which laſt ſhe left This Eſtate, with the maner of Lyon-hall in Great Lees, Blunts-hall in Butſbury, and Stock, &c. He dyed in 1703, leaving by .... daughter of Timothy Haddock of Carliſle, three daughters in minority; Margaret, afterwards married to Col. Lanoye, or La noue; Catharine to ... Jones, Eſq; and Anne.

Capt. Charles Lanoue, ſon of the Colonel, is poſſeſſed of the farm called Sheepcote's.

But the farm called Powers was lately purchaſed by Mr. Tho. Holmſtead of Braintree.

Paul, Viſcount Banning, compounded with the Crown, for diſafforeſting the maner, or lordſhip, of Powers, with all its rights, members, and appertenances, containing by eſtimation one hundred and eight acres, one rood, and twenty poles: And all thoſe lands, tenements, &c. known by the name of the maner, lordſhip, or farm of Shipcoate, lying in the towns aforeſaid, containing by eſtimation two hundred and ſeventy nine acres, and thirty ſeven perches. Rent 120l. per annum.

3. The maner of BOYCROFT, and Blaſterdsfee, lies on each ſide of the road, leading from Waltham-bridge to Chelmsford.

The maner-houſe of Boycroft is only a cottage, ſtanding on the left-hand ſide of the road, as you go towards Chelmsford, a little beyond the turning, or watch-houſe. Here the Court is called; then the homage adjourn to a Barn in a wood called Sparhawks on the other ſide of the road, and to South-houſe: For it has gone, from time immemorial, with that maner, of which an account is given in Great Waltham.

Edmund Warnere held the tenth part of a knight's fee in Sparekawkeſay, in Little Waltham, under Humfrey de Bohun, who dyed in 1372 (o).

John Bibbeſworth dyed 27 Henry VI, poſſeſſed of a tenement called Sparhaveſkeſley in Little Waltham, which he held of the Queen of England, of her Honor of Mandeville by the ſervice of the 15th part of a knight's-fee. — Joane, daughter of his ſiſter, brought it in marriage to Thomas Barley (p), [as may be ſeen under South-houſe,] and his ſon — Robert Barley, of Kimpton in Hertfordſhire, Eſq; dyed 7 June 1534, poſſeſſed of it. As did his ſon — Francis Barley, Eſq; 8 December 1559, holding one meſſuage, 50 acres of arable, 10 of paſture, 6 of meadow, in great and little Waltham, and Sparhawkeſey (q). From him it paſſed to — Richard — and Thomas Barley, &c. as South-houſe hath done.

'Tis ſometimes called Sperhakeſey, alias Sparrowhawkefee.

As to the fee, or hamlet, of Blaſterds; it is otherwiſe ſtyled Blaſtford-hill, Blaſtwood-hill, Blat-hill, Blaſter-hill, and Blaſted-hill.

Stonedge, or Stonage, is a farm in the North-weſt part of this pariſh, by the eaſt ſide of the Braintree-road.

TWANHELL, alias CHANNELS, is a tenement about a mile South from the Church, of which it is proper to give ſome account.

It is part of a larger Eſtate, which the Abbot and Convent of St. Edmundsbury had here, and in Great Lees, at the time of the general Survey [D]. But ſome of it ſeems to have been appropriated by one Thomas Cowleman, for finding a chantry-prieſt, an anniverſary, an obit, lights or lamps, in this Church (r).

The name of Twanhell it received from an owner. For, in the 2d of K. Edward I. a Fine paſſed, at Weſtminſter, between Simon de Twanhull and Margery his wife, plaintiffs, and William de Twanhull and Fina his wife, deforciants; for two meſſuages, fourſcore acres of arable, one acre of meadow, and half an acre and one rood of wood (s). And, in the 32d of the ſame King, the ſaid Fina, wife of William de Twanhelle, was found to hold of St. Edmund, in this pariſh and Great Leghs, 30 acres of arable by the ſervice of 12 d. per ann. with half an acre of meadow, and one acre and a half of paſture (t).

Upon the general diſſolution of religious houſes, theſe lands coming to the Crown, K. Edward VI. alienated them, in 1553, to Richard Hamonde, Eſq; and Roger Prideaux, Gent. by the name of Chanels and Colemans. The 3d of May, the ſame year, they ſold them to Roger Poole, yeoman, a native and inhabitant of this place, deſcended from the Pooles of Belſtead in this pariſh and Bromfield: And He, in the 4th and 5th of Philip and Mary, ſettled them on Richard Sorrel, and other inhabitants of this pariſh, in Truſt; to the honor and glory of almighty God, and for the ſupport and repairs of the pariſh church of Little Waltham, and for pious uſes, and works of Charity [E]. This beneficent perſon was buried 27 February 1558. The Eſtate is lett for 43 l. a year.

Mr. JOHN ALEYN's generous Legacy claims the next place. And we cannot give a better account of it, than in the following words of his will.—'I give 500 l. to be layd out for 'the buying of lande in the names of Truſtees, 'the Revenues whereof ſhall be imployed for 'the Bindinge out Apprentices of the Children 'of the Poore of the pariſh of Little Waltham 'in Eſſex, where I was borne and deſire to be 'buried, and when there are no ſuch Children 'there fit to be bound out, then the Revenue 'thereof ſhall be imployed towards the Reparation of the Church and Chancell there, and 'the overplus, if any be, ſhall be diſtributed 'amongſt the poor people of that pariſh, by the 'direction of the Parſon and the Churchwardens 'thereof for the time being, who are likewiſe 'to appoint the binding forth the poor Children 'there to be Apprentices: And my will is, that 'there be not one half of one yeares Revenue 'given with one child.'

Thoſe 500 l. were laid out in the purchaſe of an Eſtate, lying in Broxtead and Takeley in this County, lett for 27 pounds a year.

The Donor, was fourth ſon of Giles Aleyn, M. A. Rector of this pariſh; born 2 March 1621, and brought up a counſellor in Gray's-inn. He dyed 26 June 1663, in the 41ſt year of his age; and was buried in the chancel of this church, on the ſouth ſide of the communion table: where a Monument is erected to his memory, in the inſcription whereof he is characteriſed, 'One not more famous for his eminent 'Learning and knowledge in the Lawes, than 'for his great Integrity and Uprightneſſe, and 'his exemplary Charity, both living and dy'ing.'

By a Survey taken of this Pariſh, 16 July 1627, it appears, That it did contain One thouſand nine hundred fifty one acres, and three roods: Whereof two hundred and eighty acres did lie within Newhall Park.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel, both tiled. At the weſt end, there is a ſquare Tower, of brick and ſtone plaiſtered over, and embattled; in which are five Bells. The Parſonage houſe ſtands very conveniently at the weſt end of the Church.

The Advowſon of this Rectory was originally in a family, ſurnamed de Chively, and was by William de Chively given to the Priory of Hatfield Peverell [F].

Upon the ſuppreſſion of the Monaſteries, it came to the Crown: and was, by K. Henry VIII, in the 29th of his reign, granted to Giles Leigh, Eſq; and his heirs (u). This Giles was of Walton-leigh upon Thames in Surrey. He had two daughters coheirs; Margaret, married to John Alleyn, and Agnes to Chriſtopher Alleyn, of London, Gent. both brothers to Sir John Alleyn, in 1525, Lord Mayor of London (w), and ſons of Richard Alleyn, of Thaxſtead. On the partition of Leigh's eſtate, Hatfield-Peverell, and this advowſon, came to John Alleyn, and he had livery of it from K. Henry VIII, 28 October 1539 (x). From him it deſcended to his poſterity, ſeated at Hatfield-Peverell.

29. LEES, or LEGHS.

THESE are two contiguous Pariſhes, about ſix or ſeven miles north-eaſt from Chelmsford, in the road to Braintree. The name is formed from the Saxon words, leȝe, leaȝ, leah, all ſignifying a paſture, or untilled ground; a condition it undoubtedly was in, when firſt ſo named. And, in that ſenſe the words Lee and Lay are ſtill uſed in many parts of England.

In Domeſday-book it is written Lega, and Legra: and in old deeds, Leghs, Lighs, and Leez.

One of theſe Pariſhes is called Great, or Much Lees, and the other Little Lees.

GREAT LEES

is, according to the name, the largeſt of the two.

The Entries in Domeſday-book relating to Lega, or Legra, are not diſtinct; from which we may infer, that neither were the two Pariſhes then diſtinct.

The owners in the Saxons times were, Edric; Anſgar, or Eſgar; Scalpin; Godric; and Ulmar. But, at the time of the general Survey, they were Eudo Dapifer, Geffrey de Mandeville, and Odo biſhop of Bayeux [G].

There are computed to be Two thouſand acres of land in this pariſh.

The maners in this pariſh, are, 1. The maner of Great Lees. 2. — that of Lions-hall. 3. — that of Biſhops Lees. 4. The maner of Gobions. 5. The maners of Mulſham, and Fayrewood, which extend alſo into Little Lees and Felſtead. 6. The maner and hamlet of Chatley. 7. The maner of Brayham's, alias Breames. 8. Fulborne's.

1. The maner of GREAT LEES.

The manſion houſe ſtands about a mile from the church.

This is the maner which Eudo Dapifer held at the time of the Survey. He dyed 28 February 1120, and was buried in the Abbey of St. John's in Colcheſter, which was of his munificent foundation. His only daughter—Margaret, brought this maner in marriage, among many others, to William de Mandeville, ſon of Geffrey de Mandeville abovementioned, and father of —Geffrey de Mandeville, Earl of Eſſex: of which noble family there is a full account in Walden (y).

Under them, it was holden by the families of Tani, and Bovill.

Robert de Tani, living in the time of William I, had for ſucceſſor — Haſculf de Tani, who, in 1140, had a great ſuit with Rualo de Abrincis, and then gave the King a fine of 16 l. 17 s. 8 d. that he might enjoy, in demeſne, thoſe lands in Eſſex, which William de Boevill did unjuſtly detain from him. To this Haſculf ſucceeded — Rainald: And to him — Gruel, or Grailand, de Tani (z); which laſt held lands here.

Under him Otvel de Bovill held one fee; and three fees and a half of the old feoffment. He held alſo ſix knights fees and a half of Geffrey de Mandeville Earl of Eſſex (a). — William de Bovill kept a court at Great Leghes, 39 Henry III. And another — William de Bovill, in the 30th of Edward I, held ſeven fees and a half of Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, in Leyes (b) [H]. We hear no further of the Bovill-family in this pariſh.

Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, that dyed in 1361, held this maner of Great Leghs (c). And had for ſucceſſor in the poſſeſſion of it — Humfrey, ſon of his brother William Earl of Northampton. He departed this life 17 January 1372. leaving two daughters, Eleanor, married to Thomas of Woodſtock Duke of Glouceſter; and Mary to

Henry de Bolingbroke, Earl of Derby, afterwards K. Henry IV. (ſon of John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter) and he brought this, with many other noble Lordſhips, to the Crown. But, before that,

Thomas de Mandeville ſen. was found, in 1382, 6 Richard II, to hold the maner of Leghs magna (d).

It remained in the Crown till K. Henry VIII, in June 1509, ſettled it in dower upon Queen Catharine of Arragon, under the Seal of the Duchy of Lancaſter: which grant was confirm'd by Parliament the ſame year.

In 1536, that King granted it to Sir Thomas Audeley, Kt. Lord Chancellor. [See a further account of him in the Hiſtory of Colcheſter.] He dyed 8 May 1544, poſſeſſed of it, and of the advowſon of this church (e); leaving only two daughters, Margaret, and Mary. The latter dyed ſingle: But Margaret was married 1. to Henry Dudley, Eſq; youngeſt ſon of John Duke of Northumberland; who being ſlain at St. Quintin in 1557, ſhe became the 2d wife of

Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk. This Duke had licenſe, 1 April 1563, to alienate the premiſſes to

Thomas Mildmay, of Moulſham, Eſq; (f) who dyed 21 December 1565, poſſeſſed of the maner of Much Leighs, then worth 20 l. per annum, and the Advowſon of the Church. He had alſo the maner of Biſhop's Lees, then valued at 10 l. a year (g). It paſſed from him to his poſterity, as Waltham-hall and Powers did.

Some of them ſold it to Richard Banning, [of whom ſee a particular account under Little Bentley.] He had three ſons, Paul, Andrew, and Robert. —Andrew, the ſecond ſon, dyed 21 December 1610, holding this maner, and Rectory, of the King in ca. as of his Duchy of Lancaſter. —Robert, his younger brother, aged 75 years, was his heir (h). — Paul Banning, his elder brother, dyed 1 October 1616. as did — Sir Paul Banning, ſon of this laſt, 29 July 1629. He had been created, 27 February 1627-8, Baron Banning of Horkſley, and Viſcount Banning of Sudbury the 8th of March following. At the time of his deceaſe, his ſon and heir — Paul, was 13 years old: And he left alſo four daughters; Cecily; Anne; Mary; and Elizabeth. [See under Powers, in Little Waltham.] Paul, Viſcount Banning of Sudbury, by Penelope, daughter of Sir Robert Naunton, had

Anne, which was married to Albrey de Vere, Earl of Oxford; but having no iſſue by him, [H] In villa de Leyes; as the Record expreſſes it. But in a charter about the ſame time, 'tis called villa de Magna Leta.

the Banning eſtates were divided between her three aunts above-mentioned.

Elizabeth, the youngeſt, had the maners of Great Lees, and Lyon-hall; Powers and Sheep-cotes in Little Waltham; Great Blunts in Butſbury, and Stock; Vange-hall; Berne-hall in Downham, &c. She married Francis Lord Dacre, and by him had two ſons, Thomas, advanced to the title of Earl of Suſſex; and

Henry Lennard, Eſq; to which laſt ſhe left theſe eſtates. He married . . . . daughter of Timothy Haddock of Carliſle, merchant, widow of George Uſher, Rector of Arthuret in Cumberland. And, at the time of his death in 1703, left by her three Daughters, in minority. Margaret; Catharine; and Anne. [See under Powers in Little Waltham.]

Margaret had this Maner, with the third part of the Advowſon of the Church. She was married to Col. Lanoye, or Lanoue, who is ſince deceaſed.

Paul, Viſcount Banning, compounded with the Crown, for the diſafforeſting of the Maner of Much Lees, with all its rights, members, and appertenances, containing together about 320 acres. The rent then 150 l. a year.

2. The maner of LIONS, alias LYON-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands near the weſt end of the Church: This maner ſeems to have ſwallowed up the Maner of Great Lees, it being now reputed the chief maner in the pariſh.

According to tradition, it took its name from an ancient family; which is not very certain. It is more reaſonably ſuppoſed, to be what is entered in Domeſday-book under the name of Laghen-beria; and was then in Odo biſhop of Bayeux, but had been, in Edward the Confeſſor's time, in one Turchill [I].

We ſuppoſe it came, with the former, into the Crown. K. Henry VIII. in the 29th year of his reign, granted it, among many others, to Sir Thomas Seymour, Kt. brother to Edward Duke of Somerſet (i).

In the 9th of Queen Elizabeth, George Scott, Eſq; held this maner of Lyon-hall (k).

The Banning-family poſſeſſed it after that; and it is deſcended, with the maner of Great Lees, to Mrs. Margaret Lanoye.

3. The maner of LEES-Epiſcopi, alias BISHOPS-LEES, did anciently belong to the See of Norwich; from whence aroſe the name; but hath been long alienated from the Biſhopric [K].

Biſhops hall ſtands in Church end, near the Parſonage, and is in Witham Half-Hundred.

In all probability, it went along with the maner of Great Lees. For Thomas Mildmay, Eſq; who dyed 21 December 1565, held one as well as the other. His ſon — Sir Thomas Mildmay, Kt. did, on the 2d of May 1576, alienate the maner of Biſhops Leigh, with all its appertenances, to

Thomas Shawe, of Margeries in Terling, Eſq; (l) And He, on the 2d of September 1586, ſold them to

Thomas Wyberd, Gent. Who dyed 3 February 1599, poſſeſſed of the Lordſhip, or maner, of Biſhopps Leighes with the appertenances in Much Leighs, Terling, Faireſted, Little Leighs, Chattely, and Boreham (m).—John, his ſon and heir, March the 2d. 1600-1, conveyed the premiſſes to William Colleyn, and his heirs male (n).—Nicolas Collyns, Eſq; dyed 11 December 1616, poſſeſſed of this maner; as well as that of Gobions, [of which we ſhall next give an account.] —William Collyn, Eſq; was his ſon and heir (o).

In 1635, John Debnant held it; and paſſed the maner in groſs to John Marion, of Braintree, clothier.

Mr. Mead of London held afterwards the maner-houſe, with ſome part of the demeſnes.

It was next in Joſeph Man, of Braintree, Attorney at law; who, at his deceaſe, left it by will, to Jernegan Cheveley, of the Six Clerks office; and Joſeph Cole, of Furnivalls-inn, Attorney at law. The latter dyed 18 Auguſt 1747.

4. The maner of GOBIONS.

The maner houſe ſtands about a mile and a half north-eaſt from the Church, near a windmill, on a Green called from it Gobions-green; and from thence a Common runs up to the Braintree-road. The houſe is large and old, and moated round.

It took its name from an ancient owner. In 1332, a Fine paſſed between Sir Thomas Gobyon, plaintiff, and Hugh de Fering and Alianore his wife, deforciants, for one meſſuage, 86 acres of arable, 6 acres of meadow, 10 acres of paſture, and 6 s. 6 d. rent, in Great Leghes, Felſtede, and Black Nottle (p). Sir Thomas Gobioun held theſe lands 10 May 1349 (q).

We find it, in 1376, in Sir Walter de la Lee, who had alſo Hartiſham in Farnham, and Barnwalden in Tolleſhunt-Knights. And, the year following, it was in

Sir Richard de Bedeford, whoſe ſon — Thomas enjoyed it after him (r). Shortly after, it was in

Sir Thomas de Mandeville, ſeated at Black Notley; and of whom alſo there is an account in Bromfield and Stapleford-Tany.—Thomas, his ſon, dyed in 1399, without iſſue. His next heirs were his two ſiſters; viz. Joan, wife of John Barry, Eſq; and Alice, wife of Helmingius Legat (s).

Joan had for her part this eſtate, among many others. Her ſon — William Barry, Eſq; dyed in 1472, holding of Sir John Skrene, a meſſuage, called Gobions, formerly Sir Thomas Gobion's, containing 160 acres of arable, 4 acres of meadow, 5 acres of wood, [K] That the Biſhops of Norwich had lands, and moſt probably theſe very lands, in this pariſh, is manifeſt from the Court-rolls of Mulſham, and Fayerwood, maners. Where, 20 Ric. lying in Great Leighs, Black Notley and Felſtead (t).

The 18th of March 1569, James Clerke, of Eaſt Farley in Kent, and Mary his wife, daughter of Edward Saxbye, alias Saxilbye, Eſq; ſold this maner of Great Gubyon, alias Gobbyons-hall, to Robert Lord Riche. And, October 21. 1583, Thomas Shawe of Terling, Eſq; mentioned in the laſt article, did releaſe to the ſaid Robert Lord Riche, and his heirs, all his right of Commonage, which he had on the ſaid Lord's Common, called Fayrewood, by reaſon of one Tenement called Gubbins (u).

We find it next in the Colleyn-family, as well as the laſt. For Nicolas Collyns, Eſq; who dyed 11 December 1616, held a capital meſſuage in Great Leighs, called Gibbions, alias Gubbions-hall, and a wind-mill, &c. of William Smith, Eſq; as of his maner of Creſſing (w).—William Collyns, Eſq; his ſon and heir, was then 30 years old, and upwards.

Afterwards it was in ... Meade of London, merchant. And

... Aſhurſt of Caſtle-Hedingham, Eſq;

5. The maner of MELESHAM, alias Mulſham-hall.

The manſion-houſe ſtands a little weſt from the Braintree-road, about a mile and a quarter from the Church.

In the Saxons time, it was holden by Godric, and Ulmar; but, at the time of the general Survey, it belonged to Odo, Biſhop of Bayeux. [L] What Godric held came afterwards to be called Great Molſham, and the other Little Molſham.

A Family took their ſurname from it. Philip de Melſham was living in 1294 (x); and John de Molſham was witneſs to a deed dated 1300.

We have no account of its poſſeſſors till it came into the Skrene-family, ſeated at Skrene's in Roxwell, where a more particular account of them may be ſeen.—William Skrene, was conſtituted Serjeant at law 10 Henry IV. 1409. He had two ſons, Sir William, of Roxwell; and Thomas.—Thomas Skrene dyed in 1466, holding this maner of the Prior of St. John's in Jeruſalem (by reaſon of Creſſing-Temple).—John, ſon of John, ſon of his younger brother William, is ſaid in the Inquiſition to have been his next heir (y). He was a knight, and dyed in 1474, poſſeſſed of this maner, and other eſtates (z).

John Clerk, ſon of Catharine Wareyne, daughter of Magin Lomyn, daughter of Chriſtina, ſiſter to Serjeant Skrene above-named, was heir to Sir John Skrene; and had alſo lands in Bumpſtead-Helion, and Campes. He, jointly with Chriſtina his wife, &c. 25 June 1482, paſſed the maners of Mulſham, Brayhams, and Warrokys, with appertenances, by fine in the King's bench, to Geffrey Younge, and John Rampſton, in truſt for

Sir Thomas Montgomery, of Falkbourn-hall; but for the uſe of his ſecond wife's ſon, by her former huſband, viz. for Roland Blount, ſecond ſon of Lora, wife of the ſaid Sir Thomas, and relict of Sir John Blount, and the heirs of Roland; in default of whom, they were to go to—William Blount Lord Montjoy, and his heirs.

Of this Lord they were purchaſed by Thomas Denny, Eſq; at the requeſt of William Aylworth of Chelmsford. And a common Recovery paſſed in Michaelmas-term, 1522, by Thomas Dennye, and William Aylworth, againſt Sir William Blount Lord Montjoy, of the maners of Mulſhams, Brayhams, and Warrokys, with appertenances, and 10 meſſuages, 1000 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 800 of paſture, 400 of wood, and 300 acres of more, in Great and Little Leighes, Black-Notele, Fayreſtede, and Felſted (a). October 2. 1531, theſe eſtates were purchaſed of Aylworth by William Walſingham, Eſq; for the uſe of John Gates of High-Eſtre. And, the 10th of the ſame month, Walſingham conveyed them to the ſaid

John Gates, Eſq; who, the 27th of March following, ſold them again to

Edward North, Eſq; And he, 1ſt April following, conveyed them to

Brian Tuke, Eſq; treaſurer to K. Henry VIII, afterwards knighted. [See an account of that family under Layer-Marney.] Sir Brian, 20 November 1540, ſold them to

Richard Riche, Eſq; and Elizabeth his wife: In whoſe poſterity, Earls of Warwick, and ſeated at Lees-Priory, they continued till 1678. Upon the partition of the Warwick eſtate among the coheirs, Mulſham-hall and Fayrewood maners, came to the ſhare of

Nicolas Earl of Scarſdale; and ſome time after they were ſold to

Herman Olmius, a rich Merchant; and are now in his grandſon—John Olmius, of Newhall, Eſq;

As to the maner of Fayrewood in particular:

It lyes below a way called Youngs-end, and has a Common belonging to it, of the ſame name.

The Contents of Fayrewood are about Eighty acres: They are now all incorporated into Mulſham-hall maner, and thus entered on the rolls, in Queen Elizabeth's time, 'Manerium de 'Moleſham, et Fayrewood.'

The Court Baron of Moleſham-hall was, in time paſt, kept on the aboveſaid Common. But Sir Brian Tuke did, 10 December 1538, keep a Court for theſe two maners, under a tree called Court-Oak.

6. The maner and hamlet of CHATLEY, alias CHAPLEY.

This hamlet is in Witham Half-Hundred; and appendent to Creſſing-Temple. The maner begins at White-Notley, and runs on both ſides of the road towards Chelmsford, taking in the third part of this pariſh; viz. the maners of Mulſham, Fayrewood, Brayhams, Gobions, Biſhops-hall, and St. Anns; among the reſt Deresbridge, which is the bridge over the rivulet below St. Anne's. A Court-leet is kept at St. Anne's January 13. every year, where two Conſtables are choſen. The Inhabitants pay ten groats to the Steward for a common fine. It belongs to the Lord of the maner, to puniſh perſons for committing nuiſances within the hamlet. When a Court, or View of Frank-pledge, is ſummoned, notice is given of it in Great Lees Church.

7. The maner of BRAYHAMS, alias Breames, and Barnes.

The manſion houſe lyes half a mile out of the Braintree road, not far from Little Lees church, and yet is in Great Lees.

It took its name from ancient owners of it, ſurnamed de Brayham. Euſtace de Brayham is mentioned in a deed dated 1258.—William de Brayham was living 33 Edward I. and Nicolas 1 Edward II. — William Brayham of Great Leighs, is named in a deed dated 10 May 1349.—And John Brayham was witneſs to a deed dated at Leighs, in 1358.

It hath for many years gone along with Mulſham-hall; on which account there needs no further mention of it here.

8. The maner of FULBORNES, is a ſmall diſtinct maner.

The manſion houſe ſtands on the right ſide of the road leading from St. Anne's to the Parſonage. It is holden of Mulſham-hall, and pays a quit-rent of 10 s. per ann.

John Fulborne is mentioned in a deed dated 1399.

This maner belonged to the late William Marriage of Bromfield, and is now in his widow, or ſon.

Remarkable Tenure.

In the 39th of K. Henry III. Sewall de la Kerſenere held, in the hamlet of Cattelegh, 76 s. rent, by the ſerjeancy of finding one ell of Scarlet, ad caligas Regis, for (b) the King's hoſe or breeches. There was ſome little variation in this tenure. For William de Goldington, who dyed 12 Edward II. is ſaid to have held of the King, here, in ca. five marks rent, iſſuing from 17 free tenents; by the ſervice of finding the King one ell of Scarlet, of the price of 2 s. at the feaſt of St. John the Baptiſt's nativity (c).—His widow, married afterwards to John Fermer, held, as the record hath it, the third part of 100 s. rent, here; by the ſervice of finding the King, at his coronation, one ell of Scarlet of the price of 6 s. 8 d. This was 32 Edward III. (d).—And, 15 Richard II, Edward Roſe infeoff'd William Kylel, and others, in a piece of paſture called Fairewood, in Chatelie, Felſted, Great and Little Leighes; which was holden of the King in ca. by the ſervice of furniſhing our Lord the King of England, after his coronation, with half an ell of Scarlet cloth (e).

ST. ANNE'S, on the left hand ſide of the road from Braintree to Chelmsford, was formerly an Hermitage. It being ſeized at the Reformation, Qu. Elizabeth granted it (f), 10 Auguſt 1571, to Thomas Jennyns, by the name of a tenement or hereditament, with a garden, in Great Leighes, called St. Ann's Ermitage. 'Tis now converted into an Ale-houſe.

Gifts.

A houſe, now a Blackſmith's ſhop, by the road-ſide, holden of the maner of Fulborn's; given to buy Bell-ropes.

An acre of land, given to the Parſon, to find a load of peaſe-ſtraw, to litter the Church in winter.

Five pounds a year, being the intereſt of 100 l. left by Mrs. Fortune Watts, by will dated January 1698. to be diſtributed in ten equal portions to ten poor people, natives and inhabitants of this pariſh, at the diſcretion of the Miniſter and Churchwardens, every New-years day in the afternoon in the Chancel. She was buried 18 September 1700, and the probate of her will bears date 6 November following. — She was grand-daughter of Mr. Geffrey Watts, Rector of this pariſh, who publiſhed a Book againſt the Anabaptiſts.

¶ There is a Tradition, that the Road from Braintree to Chelmsford, a mile before you come to St. Ann's, went down the outer Common, thence to Gobions-green, to Much Lees church, and ſo to Little Waltham &c. But the new Road is better and ſhorter.

The CHURCH is very antient, and by its form and materials ſeems as old as the times before the Conqueſt. At the weſt end, there is a round Tower [the Daniſh manner of building] of flints and ſtones; covered with a pretty high octangular ſteeple, ſhingled; and in this ſteeple are 5 Bells. The Door, at the weſt end, has a handſom ſemicircular arch, adorned with indented work. Though the walls of the Church are very thick, they appear to be but weak and mouldering, and are ſupported by buttreſſes. The Chancel ſeems to have been built ſince the reſt. Both Church and Chancel are of one pace, and tiled.

The Advowſon of this Rectory hath been all along appendent to the maner of Great Lees, and of late to that of Lions-hall. It becoming veſted in the three coheireſſes of the Hon. Henry Lennard above-mentioned, they ſold it, about the year 1729, to Lincoln-college in Oxford.

The Parſonage-houſe, which is about half a mile north northweſt from the Church, was new built in 1716, by the ingenious John Townſon, M. A. Rector of this pariſh from 2 July 1713. to 1733. He alſo ſet up a Charity-ſchool here. He was of Magdalen-hall in Oxford.

The Glebe is 100 acres, whereof 30 are wood.

LITTLE LEES

lies Northweſt of the other; and is a ſmall Pariſh, containing by computation but about Five hundred acres.

There are in it theſe three Maners, or reputed Maners. 1. The maner of Little Lees-hall. 2. The maner of Warrocks. 3. The maner of Lavender-Lees, or of the Priory.

1. The maner of LITTLE LEES-HALL was holden at firſt by a family ſurnamed de St. Philibert. John de St. Philibert had, 10 Edward II, a Charter for free-warren in all his demeſne lands at Little Leys, &c. (g) He dyed in 1333, holding this maner of William de Mareny, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee. Ada his wife enjoy'd it afterwards for her dower, and by her he had—John, his ſon and heir, who ſucceeded to this eſtate (h). He married Margaret daughter of Sir Hugh de St. John of Baſing in Hantſhire, and dying in 1359. left iſſue, whoſe names are not recorded.

By marriage, or otherwiſe, this maner came next to Edmund de Helpeſton [of whom ſee an account under Felſtead], who held it of Sir Robert de Marney by the ſervice of 100 s. per annum. And, under the ſaid Edmund, Abel Croke had here one meſſuage, and 100 acres of land, (i) in 1373.

From the Helpeſton-family it paſſed into that of Marſhall. Thomas de Markeſhale, who dyed 16 Henry VI, held the third part of the maner of little Leighs of John Marny, as of his maner of Leyre-Marny, and the third part of a tenement in Felſtead and Belchamp called Whelpeſtones. —Thomas was his ſon and heir (k).

Afterwards it was in the Scots of Stapleford-Tany, where you have a particular account of the family. John Scot, Eſq; dyed 6 February 1526, poſſeſſed of the maner of Little Leighs-hall, &c.—Walter, his ſon and heir, was then 19 years old (l). This Walter dyed 25 October 1550, holding the maner of Little Lighes-hall, and 4 meſſuages, 200 acres of arable, 12 of meadow, 200 acres of paſture, and 20 acres of wood, in Little Lighes, of the heirs of the Lord Marney, by fealty, and rent of 5 l. per ann. (m) —Roger, his ſon and heir, dyed 9 September 1585, ſeized of this maner. Whoſe ſon —George dyed 4 February 1588-9, poſſeſſed alſo of this maner. And, by Dorothy his wife, daughter of John Frank of Hatfield Broad-oak, Eſq; left two daughters, coheirs, Elizabeth, and Mary (n).

Elizabeth was married to Sir Edward Alleyn of Hatfeild-Priory [M], created a Baronet 24 June 1629. to whom ſhe brought this eſtate, with Stapleford-Tany-hall, and Oveſham-hall in Matching. By him ſhe had, Edmund; GEORGE; Robert; John, and Dorothea, which two laſt dyed without children; and two daughters more, Martha, wife of Joſhua Blower, Chaplain to Sir Edward, Vicar of Hatfeild, and Rector of Fairſtead; and Mary, wife of Robert Clive, of Stych in Shropſhire, Eſq; Martha dyed in 1639, aged 25 (o). Sir Edward dyed in November 1638. His eldeſt ſon Edmund dyed before him, viz. 28 February 1633, poſſeſſed of the maner of Little Lees, leaving iſſue, by Mary, daughter of Nicolas Miller of Wrotham in Kent, a ſon, Edmund, one year, 2 months, and 2 days old (p); and a daughter named Elizabeth, married, firſt, to John Robinſon, Eſq; father of Sir John Robinſon of Denſton-hall in Suffolk, Kt. afterwards to Sir William Jones, Attorney-general to K. Charles II. — Sir Edmund Alleyn, Bart. ſucceeded his grandfather; and married Frances, only daughter and heir of Thomas Gent of Moynes in Steeple-Bumſtead, Eſq; by which he had, Edmund; and two daughters, Frances; and Arabella; which laſt was born 5 November 1655. Sir Edmund dyed 2 November 1656, and his Lady 16 January 1657 (q).... Their ſon Edmund, and daughter Frances, dyed alſo young; ſo that Arabella became the ſole heir. She was married, 1. to Francis Thomſon of Yorkſhire, Eſq; 2. to the Hon. George Howard, third ſon of Henry Duke of Norfolk. [See a further account of her, under Hatfeild-Peverell.]

This maner of Little-Lees-hall did not deſcend to her: But it came, with the title of Baronet, to the male line, viz. the ſon of GEORGE, above-named, brother to Sir Edmund, who dyed in 1638. This Sir George had three wives; 1. Elizabeth, daughter of ... Hall of Lincolnſhire, by which he had Elizabeth, that dyed unmarried. His 2d wife, was Martha, daughter of Roger Jones of Monmouthſhire, Eſq; by which he had three ſons, George, Edmund, and Edward; and two daughters, Mary, and Anne. Edmund, Edward, and Mary, dyed ſingle. Anne, was married to Henry Freeman of Higham-Ferrers in Northamptonſhire, Eſq; Sir George dyed in 1664 [N]. His eldeſt ſon Sir George Alleyn, who dyed in 1702, married Mercy, youngeſt daughter of John Clopton of Little Waltham, Gent. of the antient family of the Cloptons of Liſton-hall, and by her he had 4 ſons.—Clopton; and —George, which ſucceeded one another in the title of Baronet, and dyed unmarried [O]; Edward, Attorney at law; and John, a packer, who alſo dyed unmarried. Edward having taken to wife Mary, daughter of

[M] See a particular account of this family under Hatfeild-Peverell.

[N] We cannot find who the 3d wife was.

[O] Sir Clopton dyed 1 Sept. 1726. The family lies buried in Little Lees church.

John or Thomas Trott, Vicar of Saling magna, had by her — Sir Edmund, who ſucceeded his two uncles above-mentioned, [Edward the father being dead before them,] and Arabella married to the Rev. James Chalmers, M. A. Vicar of Earls Colne, and Rector of Little Waltham. Their kinſwoman, Lady Arabella Howard dying 9 July 1746, left Sir Edmund, Hatfield-Priory, with the appertenances, after the death of Arthur Dabbs, who had a life-eſtate therein; ſo that the Alleyn eſtate centered in Sir Edmund. He dying unmarried 15 September 1759, Little Lees-hall deſcended to his ſiſter Arabella, wife of the Rev. Henry Chalmers, and her heirs.

This Family hath alſo the Eſtate called Bullocks, in North-end in Great Waltham.

Little Lees-hall ſtands in a bottom, about a quarter of a mile from the Church; and tho' no large eſtate, the late Baronets lived upon it in a prudent, honeſt, and creditable manner.

2. The maner of WARROCKS.

The houſe is on the left hand as you go from the Church to Court-hill, and was formerly moated round. It took its name from a family of great antiquity here.

Roger Warrock was witneſs to a deed of Euſtace de Braham, dated in 1258, 42 Henry III. — William Warrock was witneſs to a deed between John Geroun of Halſted, and William de Cowland and Mariote his wife, concerning lands in Great Waltham, anno 1335.—Andrew Warrock was witneſs to another deed dated 1346. — And Emma, daughter of Roger Warrock, is mentioned in 1348.

July 6. 1420, Sir Gerard Braybrook, John ſon of William de Doreward of Bocking, Thomas Heneningham, and Robert Rikedon of Witham, grant Warrocks to John Warner of Much Waltham, Eſq; Thomas ſon of Robert Rikedon, and Thomas ſon of Richard Mellere [P].

The ſaid John Warner, and Thomas Rikedon, having afterwards enfeoffed Thomas Mellere of Great Leghs, with all the lands, tenements, rents, and ſervices, called Warrokkes in Little Leighes; He granted the ſame, 4 January 1426, to Edmund Wyſtok of Fayreſted, John Wakerynge of Leighs aforeſaid, and John Ingelond.

In proceſs of time, it became united to the adjoyning maner of Mulſhams. For Sir Thomas Montgomery of Falkbourn-hall, Kt. bequeathed his maners of Mulſham, Brayhams, and Warrocks, to Geffrey Young his ſervant, and Joane his wife.

And Robert Lord Riche, at the time of his death, 12 June 1566, was poſſeſſed of the maner of Mulſham's, Brayhams, and Warwicks (r).

From him they paſſed to the preſent owner, John Olmius, Eſq;

His father, and uncle Herman, reſided in a neat little brick-houſe in this pariſh, about a mile eaſt from the Church; which one of them built originally for a farm-houſe.

LEES-PRIORY, and Maner

ſtood above a mile north from the Church, in the further parts of this pariſh, adjoyning to Felſtead.

It was founded in the reign of K. Henry III. about the year 1230, by Sir Ralph Gernon, for Auguſtin Friers, or Black Canons, and dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and St. John the Evangeliſt. The Advowſon, and patronage, of it remained in the Founder, and his heirs. He dyed in the 32d of Henry III. holding the maner of Legh of the heir of Anger, by the ſervice of the 4th part of one knight's fee. — William was his ſon and heir (s). — Sir John Gernon, laſt male of this ſamily of the direct line, dyed 7 Richard II, poſſeſſed of the advowſon of this Priory, leaving only two daughters; Joan, wife of John, ſon and heir of John Lord Botetourt; and Margaret, wife of Sir John de Peyton. Joan had by Botetourt a daughter and heir, called

Joan, married to Sir Robert Swinborne (ſ). Alice, one of his daughters and coheirs, was married to John Helion, and had by him — John; which laſt married Editha, daughter and heir of Thomas Rolf, Eſq, of Goſfeild-hall, and dyed 28 Henry VI, poſſeſſed of the maner of Gerners, alias Gernon, ſo named from a branch of the Gernon-family, ſeated in Wormingford; to which maner belonged the advowſon of the Priry and Church of Lees; the premiſſes being holden of the King, in cap. of his Duchy of Lancaſter, by the ſervice of half a knight's fee. Editha ſurviving him, was married again to ... Greene, and enjoyed theſe eſtates till her deceaſe 1 June 1498. By Helion ſhe had Philippa, and Iſabella (u).

Iſabella was married to Humfrey Tirrell of Warley, Eſq; and had by him

Anne, her daughter and heir, married to Sir Roger Wentworth of Codham-hall (w). He preſented, in her right, to this Abbey and Church: But, before her deceaſe, this Houſe was diſſolved, and in the King's hands.

At the Suppreſſion, it was valued at 114 l. 1 s. 4 d. per ann. Dugdale.... 141 l. 14 s. 8 d. Speed.

And, becauſe no particular account was ever publiſhed of its revenues, we ſhall give the following liſt of them, from a manuſcript found in the Augmentation-office.

K. Henry VIII. in the 28th year of his reign, granted to Sir Richard Rich, Chancellor of the Court of Augmentation, the ſite of Lighes Priory, the maner of Lighes, alias Leighes parva, Camſey, Berns, and Herons, in great and little Leighes, Felſted, and Fifeild; and the advowſon of the Church of Little Leighes; and an annual penſion of Five Marks iſſuing out of the Rectory and Church of Great Birch. To be holden by knight's ſervice (x). How great a bargain he had of the ſite of the Priory, may be judged from hence, That, at the time of his deceaſe, it was valued only at Two pounds (y).

Sir Richard having thus obtained a grant of this Priory, made it the capital Seat for himſelf and family. It was all built of brick, and conſiſted of two Courts, an outer, and an inner one; the latter of which, towards the gardens, was faced of free-ſtone, or ſtone-mortar.

Here was a Park, even from the ancienteſt times. For, John de Pleſſetis had licenſe, about K. John's time, to incloſe a wood in Little Legha, called Thuuenamehagg, to make a Park.— Thomas de Blakenham had alſo a Park here.— And, in 1342, the Prior of Leghes was preſented for incloſing a Park, called Proureſwode in Leighs, adjoyning to the Foreſt of Felſtede; and hunting in the foreſt, without warrant or authority.

There came afterwards to be Three very conſiderable Parks here. One round the Houſe, of about 413 acres, called Pond-Park, on account of the Fiſh-ponds that were in it.—Another, on the back of that, containing upwards of 400 acres.— Another, about four miles in circumference, called Little, or Littley Park [Q]. Within this, there was a Chapel, built of Timber, as I have obſerved under Great Waltham. Theſe Parks lay partly in Little Lees, and partly in Great Waltham, and Felſtead. They are now diſpark'd, and converted into Farms.

As to the Maner that went along with the Priory, it is called Lavender-Lees. The Court is called at Court-hill in this pariſh, a place where three Oaks are planted, and three ways meet; and thence adjourned to the Hall. 'Tis ſtyled Lavender-Court.

It will be proper now to give ſome account of Sir Richard Rich, to whom a grant of this Priory and eſtate was made; and whoſe Poſterity flouriſhed here, upwards of a century, in great ſplendor.

This family was originally of Hamſhire, where John le Rich flouriſh'd at Rich's place about the reign of Edward II (a). His great grandſon Richard Rich, Eſq; was of London. He dyed 2 Henry V. 1414, and was buried in St. Laurence's-church Ivy-lane; leaving his ſon —Richard Rich of London, mercer, Sheriff of that city in 1441, who by Trading became Rich in Subſtance as well as in Name, and left his deſcendents ſo [R]. Dying in 1469, he left two ſons; John, [from whom deſcended the Riches of Southweald, and Horndon in Eſſex, and Sir Robert Rich, Maſter in Chancery in 1620] ..and Thomas. This laſt married .... Meyne, of London; by which he had—Richard; who taking to wife Joan, daughter of .... Dingley, had two ſons, both named Richard (b); or, according to others, three ſons, named, Richard, Robert, and Hugh (c).—RICHARD ſtudied the Laws in the Middle Temple, and by becoming an obſequious tool to that tyrant K. Henry VIII. [S] raiſed himſelf to the moſt profitable Employments, and to the Honor of a Baron of this realm. In 1529, he was choſen Autumn Reader of the Middle Temple: In 1532, appointed by the King Attorney-general in Wales, and its Marches, for life (d): The next year Sollicitor-general to his Majeſty: And, two years after, he got a grant of the profitable office of Chirographer of the King's-Bench (e). Upon the diſſolution of the Monaſteries, he was appointed Chancellor of the Court of Augmentation; which gave him an opportunity not only of getting this Priory, but of greatly inriching himſelf otherwiſe with the ſpoils of the religious houſes. In 1544, he was Treaſurer of the King's wars both in France and Scotland. And, two years after, K. Henry VIII. conſtituted him in his will one of the aſſiſtants to his executors. February 16. 1546, by K. Edward VI. he was created Baron Rich of Leez, and, the 20th of November following, conſtituted Lord Chancellor of England. But endeavouring privately to ſerve the Duke of Somerſet during his troubles, and being diſcovered, he was forced to reſign the ſeal 21 December 1551. Whereupon he retired to his ſeat at Lees, where he employed himſelf in charitable works; founding a Free-ſchool, and an Almshouſe at Felſtead, &c. He dyed at his houſe at Rochford, 12 June 1566, (f) and was buried at Felſtead. He continued a Papiſt; though he was very inſtrumental in ſuppreſſing the Monaſteries, for the ſake undoubtedly of ſharing their plunder. For it appears by the Inquiſition taken after his deceaſe, that he was poſſeſs'd of theſe immenſe eſtates. The Priory and maner of Little Lees, [S] When Sir Thomas More was a priſoner in the Tower, on account of his refuſing to acknowledge the King's Supremacy, Mr. Rich diſcourſing with him on that ſubject, in order to intrap him; pretended, that Sir Thomas dropp'd theſe words, 'A Parliament can make a King, and depoſe him; 'but a ſubject cannot be bound ſo in the caſe of Supremacy.' Which he teſtified upon oath at Sir Thomas's tryal: Who was ſo much irritated thereby, that he could not forbear breaking out into theſe ſtrong words, 'If I were a Man, my Lords, 'that had no regard to my oath, I had no occaſion to be here 'as a criminal; and if this oath, Mr. Rich, you have taken 'be true, then I pray I may never ſee God's face; which, 'were it otherwiſe, is an Imprecation I would not be guilty 'of to gain the whole world.' Then he proceeded to charge Mr. Rich with being light of tongue, a great gameſter, and of no good character in the pariſh where they had lived together, or in the Temple where he was educated. After which he ſhew'd, how unlikely it was he ſhould impart the ſecrets of his conſcience, eſpecially in ſo nice a point as the King's ſupremacy, to a man he had always ſo mean an opinion of. See State-Tryals, vol. I. p. 69. &c. This diſhonorable proceeding which might at other times have hurt a man's reputation, ſerved only to recommend Mr. Rich the more to that unworthy Prince, whoſe ſervice he had devoted himſelf to, right or wrong.

This Richard Lord Rich married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Jenks of London, by whom he had—Robert his ſon and heir, born in 1536; three other ſons which dyed without children; nine daughters; beſides a natural ſon, and three natural daughters. Robert, who ſucceeded his father in his honor and eſtates, dyed 27 February 1580-1, having had by Elizabeth, daughter and heir of George Baldry of Hadley in Eſſex, Eſq; Richard, who married, but departed this life before his father, without iſſue; Robert; Edwin; and two daughters. — Robert, the ſecond ſon, ſucceeded his father. He built an Almshouſe at Rochford, for five poor men, and one aged woman. The 6th of Auguſt 1618, he was advanced to the title of Earl of Warwick; but did not ſurvive his honor quite eight months; departing this life 24 March 1618. He had two wives, 1. Penelope, daughter of Walter Devereux Earl of Eſſex, which forſook him, [and was married in his life time to Charles Blount Earl of Devonſhire;] having had by him three ſons, Robert; Henry, created Earl of Holland 24 September 1624. and four daughters. 2. He took to his ſecond wife Frances, daughter of Sir Chriſtopher Wray, but had no children by her.—Robert, his eldeſt ſon ſucceeded him. He was appointed Admiral by the Long Parliament, and devoted himſelf entirely to their intereſt. By his 1ſt wife, Frances, daughter and heir of Sir William Hatton, alias Newport, Kt. he had four ſons, Robert, and Charles, who ſucceeded one another in the Earldom; Henry, and Hatton, who both dyed unmarried: Alſo three daughters, Anne, married to Edward then Lord Mandeville, ſon and heir to Henry Earl of Mancheſter; Lucy, to John Lord Robertes of Truro; and Frances, to Nicolas Earl of Scarſdale. To his 2d wife he took Eleanor, daughter of Sir Edward Wortley of Yorkſhire, widow of Sir Henry Lee of Quarendon. He dyed 19 April 1658, in the ſeventieth year of his age. — Robert, his eldeſt ſon and heir, married two wives. 1. Anne, daughter of William Cavendiſh Earl of Devonſhire, by whom he had an only ſon, Robert, who, 11 November 1657, married Frances, youngeſt daughter of the Protector Oliver Cromwell, but dyed of the King's-evil 16 February 1657-8, in the life-time of his father and grand-father. 2. The ſecond wife of Robert Earl of Warwick, was Anne, daughter of Sir John Cheke of Pirgo, widow of . . . Rogers, by which he had three daughters, Anne, married to Thomas, ſon and heir of John Barrington of Hatfield-Broad-oak, Bart. Mary, to Sir Henry St. John, father of the late Lord Viſcount Bolingbroke; and Eſſex, to Daniel Finch, ſon of Heneage Lord Finch and Lord Keeper, afterwards Earl of Nottingham. Robert, the third Earl of Warwick, dying 19 May 1659, thus without iſſue male, was ſucceeded by his next brother — Charles, mention'd above (g). He married Mary, daughter of Richard the firſt Earl of Cork, and ſiſter to the Honourable and ever memorable Robert Boyle; but dyed 24 Auguſt 1673, without ſurviving iſſue. For a ſon, named Charles, which he had by this Lady, and who had married Anne ſiſter to William the firſt Duke of Devonſhire, departed this life before him. This noble Earl dying thus without iſſue in 1673, left the eſtate of Lees-Priory &c. to his eldeſt ſiſter's ſon

Robert Montagu, Earl of Mancheſter [T]; together with Warners, Abbchild-Park, Old Park, and Lawn-hall, in Great Waltham.

The reſt of the great Eſtates were divided between the Heirs, or Repreſentatives, of his three ſiſters, the Ladies Mancheſter, Radnor, and Scarſdale; and of his three nieces, the Ladies Barrington, St. John, and Nottingham.

As for the empty Title of Earl of Warwick, it deſcended to Robert Rich, ſon of Henry Earl of Holland mention'd above; with no more of the eſtate than Warwick-houſe in Holbourn, London.

Robert, Earl of Mancheſter, juſt now mentioned, dyed at Montpellier 14 March 1682.

(g) See Ar. Collins's Peerage, laſt edit. vol. III. & Hiſt. of Felſtead, printed in 4to.

[T] See the will of Charles Earl of Warwick in the Prerogative office. . . . Dr. Antony Walker, in his Funeral Sermon on this Earl, confirms this fact, when he ſays, that 'he bequeathed the ſeat at Leesto the eldeſt ſon of his eldeſt and 'moſt endeared ſiſter, the Earl of Mancheſter.' Concluding thus: 'Your noble Uncle hath left you, after your noble 'Aunt, a ſecular Eliſium, a wordly Paradice, an Heaven 'upon earth, if there be any ſuch.'

He married Anne, daughter of Sir Chriſtopher Yelverton of Eaſton Mauduit in Northamptonſhire, Bart. by which he had five ſons, and four daughters. Of the ſons, Edward, and Henry, the two eldeſt, dyed infants; —Charles, the third ſon, ſucceeded to his father's honors and eſtates. He was employed in two Embaſſies to Venice, one to France, and one to the Court of Vienna; and was alſo one of the principal Secretaries of State. Having been created Duke of Mancheſter 30 April 1719, he dyed 20 January 1721-2, leaving, by Dodington his wife, the youngeſt of the two daughters and coheirs of Robert Greville Lord Brook, —William, his eldeſt ſon and heir; Robert; and four daughters. William, Duke of Mancheſter, ſoon after his father's deceaſe, ſold Lees Priory, and all his other Eſtates adjoyning, to the Guardians, or Truſtees, of Edmund Sheffeild, the young Duke of Buckinghamſhire. He dying 31 October 1735, unmarried, and under age; theſe, and other his eſtates, according to the direction and limitation in his father's will, deſcended to his half-brother, Charles Herbert, who took the ſurname of Sheffeild, and was afterwards created a Baronet.

He hath ſince ſold this eſtate to the Guardians, or Governors, of Guy's Hoſpital, who have cauſed the Priory and ſeat to be taken down, all but the Gate-Houſe, and the lands to be converted into farms.

Benefactions.

This Pariſh partakes of the Gift of Herrings, which was given to it, jointly with the Pariſhes of Felſtead, and Great Waltham, by Richard Lord Rich. See under Felſtead.

Mr. Aſslet gave Twenty ſhillings per annum to Little Lees, Shaldeford, and Bardefeild magna, out of an Eſtate in Shaldeford, called Nicolls.

The CHURCH ſtands about half a mile, North, from the London road; and is of one pace with the Chancel; both tyled. At the weſt end there is a wooden ſpire, ſhingled, containing one Bell.

This Rectory was all along in the gift of the Prior and Convent of Lees till their ſuppreſſion. After which K. Henry VIII. granted the advowſon to Sir Richard Rich, with the Priory, as ſpecified above. In his poſterity it continued till about the beginning of this century, when it was purchaſed, with the maner of Warrocks and other lands in this pariſh, by Herman Olmius, Eſq; and is now in his grandſon John Olmius, Eſq; lately created Baron Waltham of Philipſtown in Ireland.

Page 15. There was in the Chapel of New-Hall a Window of fine painted Glaſs, which Edward Conyers Eſq; purchaſed, with a deſign to put it up in his Chapel at Copped-hall: But when it was found better to new-build, than to repair, that ſeat, John Conyers Eſq; ſold the Glaſs to the Pariſhioners of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter, who have ſet it up in the Chancel of that Church.

The middle part is a repreſentation of the Crucifixion of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, between two thieves. The portraiture of their perſons is ſo well done, that you may ſee the extenſion of the muſcles of each limb, occaſioned by the different ways they are expanded on the croſſes. Round about the croſs are the Roman officers and ſoldiers attending the execution, with ſome of the chief rulers of the Jews. At the foot of the croſs, you behold the Virgin Mary, Mary the wife of Cleopas, and Mary Magdalen, weeping and bewailing themſelves. On the right hand of the croſs, you behold the centurion, or Roman ſoldier, on horſeback, who with a lance pierces our Saviour's ſide: The horſe is judged to be exquiſitely done. Behind the croſs, a little to the left, is a ſmall perſpective view of the city of Jeruſalem. Over the head of the penitent thief, on the right hand of our Saviour, appears an angel, repreſented as conveying the ſoul of the thief to the manſions of the bleſſed. Over the head of the other thief, who reviled our Saviour, is repreſented, in a different attitude, his conveyance into the manſions of the wicked. On the ground-plot, are ſtrewed ſkulls, &c. a fit alluſion to Golgotha, or the place of ſkulls.

In the third figure, under that of St. George, you ſee a King, or Prince, at his devotions, attired in royal robes, crowned with a diadem, and kneeling under a canopy of ſtate. In the fourth figure, under that of St. Catharine, you behold a Queen, or Princeſs, arrayed in royal robes, and at her devotions, under a canopy of ſtate. It hath been generally thought, that theſe two figures repreſented K. Henry VII. and his Queen Elizabeth. But others ſuppoſe, that they were rather intended for Prince Arthur, and his Princeſs Catharine of Arragon.

Laſtly, above, in a row of ſmall panes, are pictured ſome of the Apoſtles and Saints. On the right ſide of them is placed a white roſe within a red one, to ſignify the Union of the Families of Lancaſter and York in the perſons of K. Henry VII, and Elizabeth his Queen. Oppoſite to the white and red roſe united is a Pomegranate, the arms of Granada; either referring to the Princeſs Catharine above-mentioned; or to denote the deſcent of the Houſes of Lancaſter and York from the royal families of Spain, by means of the intermarriages of John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter, and of his brother Edmund Duke of York. See London Magazine February 1759, p. 63, &c. This painted Glaſs is ſuppoſed to have been originally deſigned for K. Henry VIIth's Chapel.

There is in the Archives of the Society of Antiquaries, a very fine Drawing of this window, in the proper colours, taken by the late ingenious Mr. George Vertue, at the expence and by the order of that Society.

A Diſpute hath ariſen between the Dean and ſome of the Chapter, and the Pariſhioners of St. Margaret's, about the ſuperſtition and ſcandal of this innocent Window; concerning which I chuſe to ſay no more at preſent.

THE HUNDRED OF WITHAM.

THIS Hundred is adjoyning to the Eaſt and North-eaſt parts of Chelmsford Hundred; and bounded on the other ſides by the Hundreds of Hinckford, Lexden, Thurſtable, and Dengy. We are told that it was anciently call'd Mældune (a). It ſtands in a very good part of the County, between 34 and 48 miles from London.

This Hundred, or as it is called in ſome Charters Half-Hundred (b), was originally in the Crown; but given by K. Stephen, with the maner, to the Knights-Templars: with the conſent of his Queen Maud, of whoſe patrimony and inheritance it was. In their, and the Knights Hoſpitallers, poſſeſſion, it continued till the fall of the Religious Houſes, when it came to the Crown. Soon after which, by grant or purchaſe, it was in the family of Smyth, alias Neville, ſeated at Creſſing; for Thomas Smyth dyed 10 March 1563. ſeized of the Half-Hundred of Witham (c); and his ſucceſſors were poſſeſſed of the fee of the Hundred, and had the green wax to farm it under the King (d). In a book of Claims, kept by the foreign appoſer in the Court of Exchequer in 1749, William Pritteman, and Edward Evelin Eſq; are entered as claimants of the Half-Hundred of Witham; and are the laſt that claimed, though the time is not mentioned when they put in their claim.

With regard to the Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, it is within the Archdeaconry of Colcheſter.

In this Hundred are Fourteen Pariſhes, which we ſhall treat of in the following order.

Witham.
Creſſing.
Falkborne.
Fairſtead.
White Notley.
Black Notley.
Terling.
Hatfeild-Peverell.
Ulting.
Brackſtead magna.
Brackſtead parva.
Rivenhall.
Keldon.
Bradwell.

Chartley hamlet, which is alſo in this Hundred, hath been deſcribed under Great Lees, in which pariſh it lies: As Coggeſhall-hamlet will be taken notice of under Great Coggeſhall.

1. WITHAM TOWN.

THE name is variouſly written, as Witham, Wytham, Whittam, Witam, Wyham; which is form'd from the two Saxon words, ƿiꞇ and ham.

In old writings it is ſometimes ſtyled the Burgh of Witham. And the Aſſizes were held here 19 July 1568.

This Town is about 37 miles from London: Part of it lies upon the high road leading from Harwich and Colcheſter to that great City; and the other part is about the Church, being named Cheping-hill (e), becauſe it was formerly the moſt trading part, and where the Market was kept. It is a pariſh of conſiderable extent, and pays to the land tax 519 l. 16 s. 10 d. at 4 s. in the pound. The Market is on Tueſdays: but was originally on Sundays, and afterwards on Wedneſdays [B]. There are alſo two Fairs, viz. the Monday before Whitſunday, and on September 14.

Here ſeems to have been no Town till the year 913. when one was built by K. Edward the Elder, ſon of K. Alfred, according to the Saxon Chronicle, of which we ſhall give as literal a tranſlation as we can. 'Afterwards, the ſame 'ſummer, betwixt gang-day [Aſcenſion] and 'mid-ſummer, King Edward came with ſome 'of his forces in Eſſex to Mældune and abode 'there, while men work'd and built a Town 'at Witham. And a good deal of the folks 'ſubmitted to him, that were before under the 'dominion of the Danes (f).'—Much the ſame account is given by our ancient Hiſtorians (g).

[B] Wytham Mercatum, quod ſolebat eſſe in Die Dominica, transfertur ad Diem Mercurii. Clauſ. 2 Hen. III. m. 12. Eſſex.dorſo. From Mr. Symonds's Collections, vol. I. fol. 155.

Some indeed have imagined (h), that here ſtood the old Roman ſtation Ad Anſam, mentioned in the ixth Iter of Antonine's Itinerary. And for a proof of it alledge, that ‘ between the Church and the Street are ſtill viſible the remains of a large old camp; tho' much of the fortifications are dug down to make way for the plow, and a road lies through the midſt of it.’ In levelling ſome of them, Mr. Barwell found a Coin of the Emperor Valens, with this reverſe, SECURITAS REIPVBLICAE: And one of Gratian, with this legend on the reverſe, GLORIA NOVI SECULI. But Roman Coins are diſperſed about Earl's-Colne, and other parts of this County; ſo that this argument is no way concluſive.

According to Richard of Cirenceſter, the true reading in the iiid Iter, is, Ad Sturium amnem, viz. Stretford in Suffolk, upon the river Stour. And if Amnem was originally thus contracted Am'em, it might eaſily, as the learned Dr. Maſon ingeniouſly conjectures, be turned by ſubſequent ignorant tranſcribers into Anſam; a word without any proper meaning.

But to come to more certain matters: This pariſh hath for a long time being divided into theſe ſeveral Maners. 1. The maner of Witham magna, alias Cheping-Witham, or Newelond. 2. The maner of Witham parva, alias Powers. 3. The maner of Blunts-hall. 4. The maner of Hobregge, alias Hubbridge-hall. 5. The maner of Batisfords. 6. The Vicarage is alſo a maner. To which may be added, a capital meſſuage, named Bacons and Abbots; and Bennington-hall.

1. The maner of WITHAM MAGNA, alias Newelond.

The manſion houſe ſtands in the middle of the town, on the right hand ſide of the road from Colcheſter to Chelmsford.

In the Saxons time it belonged to Earl Harold, who aſcended the throne. At the time of the general ſurvey, Peter the Sheriff, kept it in the King's hands; and ſeveral portions of it were parcell'd out among divers tenents [C].

It was ſome time part of the Eſtate of Euſtace Earl of Bouillon, who married Goda ſiſter to Edward the Confeſſor; and was afterwards called the Honor of Bononia, being one of the four antient Honors [D] in this kingdom: The three others were, Dover-caſtle in Kent, Hawley or Hagoneth caſtle in Suffolk, and Peverell in Nottinghamſhire, of either of which whoever held lands by knights ſervice, held the ſame in capite.

Afterwards it deſcended to Stephen King of England, who gave it to the Knights Templars. And it was confirmed to them by his ſon Euſtace Earl of Bouillon, and the Kings Richard I. John, and Henry III. as appeared from their original Charters, formerly in the poſſeſſion of .... Smyth of Creſſing-Temple, Eſq; but now loſt. From copies of them before us, we ſhall give below that of Euſtace Earl of Bouillon [E].

This Lordſhip, and Half-Hundred as above mentioned, continued in the poſſeſſion of the Templars, and afterwards of the Knights-Hoſpitallers of St. John of Jeruſalem, till the ſuppreſſion of the latter 29 April 1540; when their large Revenues, and this among the reſt, were veſted in the crown (i). But Queen Mary I. having refounded their Houſe, ſhe did by her letters patent, dated 2 July 1556, grant unto them the maners of Witham, Purflet, Temple-Rodon, and Chingeford in Eſſex. (k) They reverted, after her death, to the Crown, and continued therein till the reign of K. Charles I. [F] when the maners of Witham-magna and Newelond were purchaſed by

Henry Smyth, alias Nevill, of Creſſing Temple, whoſe anceſtors had been many years in poſſeſſion of the Half-Hundred, as is obſerved above.—William Smyth Eſq; dyed 11 February 1630. holding the maner of Witham, with a view of frank-pledge &c. of the King, of his maner of Originally no lordſhips were Honors but ſuch as belonged to the King; tho' afterwards they were given in fee to noble men. And Honors have been created by act of parliament; for by ſtatute 33 Hen. VIII. c. 37, 38. Ampthill, Grafton, and Hampton-court, are made Honors; and by 37 Hen. VIII. c. 18. the King is empowered, by letters patent to erect four ſeveral Honors, viz. Weſtminſter, Kingſton upon Hull, St. Oſithe, and Donnington. There are divers Honors in England beſides theſe; as Lancaſter, Clare, Wallingford, Nottingham, Weſt and Eaſt Greenwich, Bedford, Windſor, Glouceſter, Cheſter, &c.

[F] In a MS. belonging to the Dutchy of Lancaſter, and containing an Account of the lands ſold to the city of London by K. Charles I. in 1629. for 350,000 l. is this entry.

The manour of Wytham, beſides 9 l. 2 s. 1 d. ob. for free rents, and 22 l. for increaſe of rent, clare per ann. 53 l. 19 s. 10 d. which rated at 28 years purchaſe, in money 1651 l. 16 s. 6 d. The yearly rent to be reſerved 73 l. 2 s. 0 d.

Eaſt-Grenewich, by fealty only in free and common ſocage: being then valued at 8 l. a year (l). [See under Creſſing.] Of Henry Nevill, alias Smyth, of Holt in Leiceſterſhire, Eſq; and William Nevill, his ſon and heir apparent, it was bought in 1658, by Jeremy Blackman of London, Eſq; commonly called Captain Blackman, an eminent Eaſt-India merchant, who was ſaid to have brought 100,000 l. from India. But in 1668. he ſold again theſe maners of Witham magna and Newelond to

John Bennet of Weſtminſter, Eſq; deſcended from the Bennets of Wiltſhire; [of which family was, Henry Bennet late Earl of Arlington, and John Bennet Lord Oſſulſton.] He dyed in 1670, and left theſe lordſhips to his eldeſt ſon and heir—John Bennet, afterwards of Gray's-inn, Eſq; In 1699, he was made Judge of the Marſhalſea court: In 1705, created Serjeant at-law: and knighted 7 July 1706. He dyed 21 December 1723; having had iſſue, by Anne his wife, ſiſter of the late Sir Joſeph Brand of Edwardſton in Suffolk, Kt. four ſons, and one daughter; viz. John, a Barriſter at law, and one of the Maſters in Chancery; 2. Thomas, alſo a Barriſter at law, and conſtituted Maſter in Chancery 10 June 1723; 3. Joſeph, a dry-ſalter in London; 4. Alexander, a merchant, who lived nine years in the Eaſt-Indies, and brought thence a conſiderable fortune. The daughter, named Anne, was married to the Honourable John Vaughan, Eſq; eldeſt ſon of John Lord Viſcount Liſburne in Ireland, by Mallet one of the daughters and co-heirs of John late Earl of Rocheſter. Upon Sir John Bennet's death, his eldeſt ſon and heir—John, above-mention'd, ſucceeded to this eſtate. About the year 1735, he ſold it to George Sayer D. D. Vicar of this pariſh &c. who kept his firſt court here 19 October 1736. and dyed in 1761. He married, 28 July 1739, Martha eldeſt daughter of Dr. John Potter, late Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, by whom he left an only daughter, named Elizabeth.

The Courts for the maners of Witham magna and Newelond, are kept at the ſame time for both, and at the ſame place, but the Court-rolls are diſtinct. The Cuſtoms in them are uncommon and very extraordinary, being as follows. —It is the cuſtom of both theſe Maners, that the owners of all the freehold lands in either of them, muſt pay one year's full yearly value of thoſe lands upon every death and alienation in certain, for a Fine to the Lord: unleſs ſuch owner ſhall be born within that maner to which his lands belong, according to the cuſtom of the ſaid maner: And he is called a purchaſer within the maner, and muſt pay a Fine for his firſt purchaſe within the ſaid maner. But if ſuch purchaſer be born within that maner wherein his lands lye, he pays no Fine, but a Relief to the Lord, which is a double quit-rent, and is thereby excuſed from paying a Fine for his firſt purchaſe. There are likewiſe many Copyholders of the ſaid maner: And ſeveral Leaſe-holders, who hold by copy of Court-roll for term of years, granted by the Lord ex gratia for longer or ſhorter terms of years as the Lord chuſes, paying to him what Fines he pleaſes.

Within the maner of Newelond there is a Market on Tueſdays for Corn, Butter, &c. And alſo a Beaſt-Market for all ſorts of cattle. There are likewiſe two Fairs in the year; one on the Monday before Whit-ſunday, the other on Holy-rood day, September 14. as afore mention'd.

The Market was at firſt granted by K Richard I. and kept at Cheping-hill; but removed in K. Richard the Second's time to the Hamlet of Newlond [H].

2. The maner of WITHAM PARVA, alias POWERS-HALL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about three quarters of a miles Southweſt from the Church, on the left hand ſide of the road leading from Witham to Braintree. It is called Powers from ancient owners of it, mentioned before under Little Waltham; and by contraction or corruption, Poors, and Poſt-hall.

In the Saxons time, it was holden by two Freemen, named Burcard, and Leſtan; but when the Survey was made, it was holden by Robert Gernon, and under him by Hugh, and Anſchetill [I], by the name of Witham.

The Lords paramount of it were the Barons of Stanſted Montfitchet. For under one of them, viz. Giles de Plaiz, who dyed 31 Edward I. about 1302, Robert de Powers held the 4th part of a knight's-fee in Witham (m). And—Robert de Powers, and Tho. Bacon held half a fee of Richard de Plaiz that dyed in 1327 (n). This Robert had—Henry, father of—Henry, who left —Elizabeth, his ſole daughter and heir.

But, under Richard de Plaiz, who dyed in 1360, Robert Bacon, Henry Baſſett, and Chriſtopher Anonor of Welyngton, Kt. held in this pariſh one knight's fee; beſides that which Juliana Talbot held there (o).

And in 1356, Dionyſia Bacunne held for term of life, 103 acres of arable, 6 and a half of meadow, and 6 of wood, in Witham, of Lucy de Powers; which were part of this eſtate (p).

To return to Elizabeth Powers; ſhe had two huſbands. The firſt was John de Rikedon: By him ſhe had—Thomas, father of—Robert de Rikedon; who held a moiety of a knight's fee here, under Sir John Howard in right of Margaret his wife daughter and heir of John Plaiz: This Sir John dyed 16 Henry VI. (q) And Ro-

The ſecond huſband of Elizabeth Powers, was John Fryer, ſon of Alban Fryer of Bocking, who gave name to the maner of Fryer's there: By him ſhe had an only daughter and heir

Elizabeth, which became wife of William Brokeman of Witham, Eſq; and by her he had—John Brokeman, who married Florence, daughter of ... St. Leger. He dyed 22 Auguſt 1500. and ſhe the 18th of March, and were both buried in this church (r).—Thomas, their ſon and heir, by a daughter of ... Rocheſter, had Thomas; and John.—Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, by his wife Anne Bonner had 2 ſons, John, and Emerius; and 4 daughters, Abigail, Anne, Agnes, and Frances [K].

We find it next in William, ſon of Tho. Wheatley, of Holkham in Norfolk, Eſq; This William dyed 26 January 1574, as did his ſon and heir—William 19 June or July 1588 (s). The latter had two wives: His iſſue by the firſt wife, were Anne, Frances, and Mary; and by the ſecond, Arthur, or Antony, who dyed ſoon after him, ſo that his ſaid three daughters became his coheirs. The ſecond wife was remarried to William Bainham.

On the 8th of Auguſt 1601, this maner of Little Witham, alias Powers-hall, was granted by Queen Elizabeth to Sir Nicolas Forteſcue, and ... Shelberrie, and their heirs, to be held by the ſame ſervices and rent as before the attainder of Edw. Bainham (t).

It came afterwards, by purchaſe or otherwiſe, to the Southcot-family, mentioned lower; and was by Sir Edward Southcote ſold to

Sir Nicolas Garrard of Eaſt-ham, Bart. who had no iſſue. His heir is Sir Jacob-Garrard Downing, Bart. of Gamlinghay in Cambridgeſhire.

3. The maner of BLUNTS-HALL, lies partly in this pariſh, and extends alſo into the adjoyning pariſhes of Hatfield-Peverell and Terling.

It took its name from ancient owners of it, the Blunts, or Blunds; deſcended from Robert Blundus of Suffolk at the time of the Conqueſt.

The manſion-houſe ſtands in the fields, on the right hand, about a mile from the great road leading to Chelmsford.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign it was in three parcels, holden by a Free-woman; Bricmar; and Harold. But at the time of the general Survey, they were in Euſtace Earl of Bologne, Ralph Peverell and his under-tenent Humfrey, and Richard ſon of Earl Gilbert [L]. Soon after, thoſe three parcels became united in the Blund family. William le Blund, ſtandard-bearer to the Barons at the battle of Lewes, and ſlain there 48 Henry III, left two ſiſters, co-heirs:—Agnes, wife of William de Creketoft, who had a ſon named William;—Rohaeſia, wife of Robert de Valoniis, or Valeynes, who had

Robert de Valeynes, her ſon, then aged 17 (u). This Robert dyed 10 Edward I. holding the maner of Bluntes-halle of the King in capite, and the maner of Tolleſhunt.—Roeſia, and Cecilia, were his daughters, and heirs (w). In the 13th of the ſame King, Eva de Valeynes held one knights fee in the hamlett of Blunteſhal and Toppyngho of the King, in capite (x).

John de Ludham, who dyed 12 Edward II, was poſſeſſed of a moiety of the maner of Blunteſhall, holden of the King, of the Honor of Peverell, by the ſervice of half a knight's fee, and ſuit at the court of Peverell from month to month, paying 11 d. rent to the bayliff of the Hundred.—John was his ſon and heir (y).

Dionyſia Bacon, widow of John de Boys, held a moiety of it for life, of the King, as above. She dyed in 1349, leaving—John de Boys her ſon and next heir (z). He dyed in 1361, ſeiz'd of the maner of Blunteſhale in Witham and Hatfeild-Peverell. From him was denominated the maner of Boys-hall in Halſtead.—John, his ſon and heir, ſucceeded; and, with others, was a benefactor to Dunmow-Priory (a). He held this maner of the honor of Bologne (b).

It came next to the Montgomery family, mentioned at large under Falkburn. For Sir John Montgomery, who dyed 27 Henry VI. held of the King in ca. as of his Duchy of Lancaſter, this maner of Blunteſhalle; Witham-mill, called Machones-mill; and all the lands, in Witham, Hatfeild-Peverell, Terling, and Fairſtead, thereto belonging, by the 4th part of a knight's-fee.—John, his ſon and heir, was then aged 22 years. (c) But he did not inherit; being cut off by death: For Elizabeth, Sir John's widow, which dyed 5 Edward IV. 1465, is ſaid to have held this maner; and—Sir Tho. Montgomery, who dyed 2 January 1493. was her ſon and heir, and ſeiz'd of this maner of Blunteſhall, &c. His ſiſter and heir was—Alice, wife of Robert Langley (d). Beſides this huſband, ſhe was married to Clement Spice of Black Notley, Eſq; by whom ſhe had a daughter named Philippa, which became the wife of John Forteſcue, Eſq; and brought him this eſtate. [See under Falkburn.]—Henry Forteſcue, Eſq; was poſſeſs'd of the maner of Blunteſhall, and Newland-ſtreet, in Witham, and dyed 6 October 1576.—Francis, his ſon and heir, was then aged 30, (e) and dyed 8 July 1588, leaving his ſon—Edmund, twenty two years old: (f) He dyed 24 September 1596.—John, his ſon and heir, was then aged 11 years (g).

Witham tenet Ricardus de Comite [Euſtachio] quod tenuit Haroldus pro li acris. Semper i carucata, & i bordarius, ii acre & dimid' prati, Val' xx ſolidos.

Richard Weſton, Earl of Portland, was found to be poſſeſs'd of this maner at the time of his deceaſe 13 March 1634, — Jerom his ſon being 26 years old (h).

It was next in the famous Bulſtrode Whitelock, Eſq; much employed in ſtate-affairs in the laſt century, one of the commiſſioners of the great ſeal under Oliver Cromwell, &c. He dyed 28 July 1675. His younger ſon — Sir William Whitelock, or the ſon of the ſaid Sir William, enjoyed it after that: As did his widow, Anne, daughter of Edward Noel Eſq; one of the Commiſſioners of the Exciſe.

The next poſſeſſor was Daniel Pettiward Eſq; of Putney.—His widow, Anne, held it in jointure after him. And it is now in Roger-Mortlock Pettiward D. D. Chancellor of Chicheſter.

4. The maner of HOBREGGE, alias Hubbridge-hall.

The Houſe ſtands on the left hand ſide of the road leading from this town to Chelmsford; and ſome of the lands come up to Witham-bridge. 'Tis now called the Dovehouſe.

Brictmar, the ſame very likely that is mentioned under Blunts-hall, held alſo this maner in Edward the Confeſſor's reign: But, at the time of the Survey, it was holden by Robert Gernon, and under him by one Richard [M].

Robert Gernon was anceſtor of the Barons of Montfitchet, ſeated at Stanſtead. By a female part of this Barony came into a family ſurnamed de Plaiz: and from them, by a female heir to the Howards: from them, the ſame way to the Veres, Earls of Oxford, who were chief Lords and proprietors of this maner under the King.

William de la Zouch, who dyed 56 Henry III. held this maner, of the inheritance of Maud his wife, by the curteſy of England, becauſe he had iſſue by her. — Sir John de Trailly was next heir to the ſaid Maud (i). He dyed 2 Edward I. holding this maner of the inheritance of Richard Munfitchett, by the ſervice of one knight's fee. Walter was his ſon (k).

Hugh de Mortimer, a branch of the great family of Mortimer, was poſſeſs'd of this maner, at the time of his deceaſe 32 Edward I (l). And Maud his wife, who dyed 1 Edward II. held of Giles le Plaiz, then the King's ward, a tenement in Hobrigge by the 4th part of a knight's fee; and a capital meſſuage, 180 acres of arable, 6 acres and a half of meadow, 5 acres of paſture within the foreſt of Eſſex; a water-mill; 34 s. 4 d. ob. of the free tenents, with pleas of the court there. — Joane, and Margaret [N], were their daughters and coheirs (m).

Upon partition of the eſtate, Hobrugge, and Norton in Eſſex, fell to Joane's ſhare: who had alſo Ricard's caſtle in Herefordſhire. She was twice married; firſt, to Thomas de Bikenore, by whom ſhe had no iſſue; ſecondly, to Richard Talbot, ſecond ſon of Richard Talbot, who dyed 34 Edward I. by Sarah daughter of William Beauchamp Earl of Warwick (n). They had their ſon and heir—Sir John Talbot, Lord of Ricard's caſtle, who, jointly with Julian his wife, held this maner of Richard de la Plaiz, by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee. He dyed in 1355, and was ſucceeded by his ſon — John (o), who departed this life in 1375 (p); as did Catharine his wife in 1380. They both held the maner of Howbrigg-hall, alias Hobriggs Talbot (q) [O]; and left their eldeſt ſon and heir,—Richard, who dying in 1382, had for ſucceſſor his brother — John (r): He dyed 3 July 1388, poſſeſs'd of this maner; ſaid in the Inquiſition to be in the vills of Witham, Hatfeild-Peverell, Kelveden, and Great Totham. Whereupon his eſtates deſcended to his three ſiſters, and co-heirs; viz. Elizabeth, wife of Sir Warine Lercedeken [Archdeacon] Philippa, wife of Sir Matthew Gurnay; and Elianor (s).

On the partition, Elianor had this maner to her ſhare; holding it of Sir John Howard, and Margery his wife daughter and heir of Sir John Plays, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee. She dyed unmarried 14 Richard II. whereupon her two ſiſters, Elizabeth, and Philippa, abovemention'd, became her co-heirs (t).

Elizabeth had only three daughters by Warine Archdecken; namely, Elianor, married to Walter de Lucy, Philippa to Hugh Courtney, and Margaret to Tho. Arundel (u).

Philippa by P. Gurnay had Philippa, wife of Sir John Tiptot. She dyed in 1417, poſſeſs'd of this maner; and Elianor wife of Sir Walter Lucy; Elizabeth, and Joan, daughters of Sir Hugh Courtney; and Margery wife of Sir Tho. de Arundel, were her heirs (w).

Elizabeth, wife of Sir Walter Lucy, having this for her purparty, enjoyed it till her deceaſe: And had by him, — William, that dyed without iſſue; Elianor wife of Tho. Hopton, Eſq; and Maud of William Vaux, Eſq; (x) Margaret, widow of this William Lucy, held the maner of Hobrigge-hall of the Abbey of Weſtminſter, till her deceaſe in 1466. and Elizabeth, daughter of the ſaid Tho. Hopton, firſt married to Sir Roger Corbet of Shropſhire, afterwards to John Tiptot, Earl of Worceſter; and William Vaux, ſon of the foreſaid Maud, were her couſins and next heirs (y).

By Elizabeth Hopton, Sir Roger Corbet had his ſon and heir — Sir Richard, father of — Sir Robert Corbet, who dyed 11 April 1513, holding the maner of Wobrigghall of the Earl of Oxford: — Roger was his ſon and heir (z). He dyed 20 December 1538. poſſeſs'd of this eſtate, leaving — Andrew, his ſon and heir, aged 16 years (a).

By marriage, or otherwiſe, it ſoon after came into the Jenour-family. For Richard Jenour Eſq; who dyed 26 November 1548, held, Howe-brigge-hall, with the appertenances, 10 meſſuages, 200 acres of arable, 30 acres of meadow, 40 acres of paſture, 60 acres of wood, and 20 s. rent, in Howbrigge-hall, Little Howbrigge, Great and Little Braxted, and Witham, of the Earl of Oxford, as of his caſtle at Hedingham. — Andrew, his ſon and heir, was then aged 9 years, and 38 weeks (b). He dyed 11 April 1620.—Kenelm, his eldeſt ſon, was then 47 years old and upwards. He was created a Baronet 30 June 1628, and dyed in 1629 (c). His next brother—Andrew, ſucceeded him in this eſtate; and dying 20 November 1632, without iſſue, left it to his nephew—Sir Andrew Jenour, Bart. (d) [See a further Account of this family under Great Dunmow.]

Sir Antony Abdy Bart. ſold it to .... Lingard of London, vintner; whoſe ſon—John, was a Counſellor at law, and common Serjeant of the city of London. He dyed 5 November 1729, leaving four daughters, Elizabeth—Sarah—Anne—Frances, married to Richard Chaſe of the Strand, mercer.

5. The maner of BATISFORDS, is a ſmall maner, having no copyhold Tenents, but only free. 'Tis a grant from the Honor of Grafton in free ſocage of all rents and ſervices whatever, but not in chief. The manſion houſe ſtands in Witham ſtreet, on the left hand of the road from London to Colcheſter, almoſt over againſt the maner houſe of Newelond.

William Freborne, by deed dated 20 December 1633, did ſell this eſtate to

Dr. George Boſevill; whoſe daughter Iſabell was married to

Fuller Meade Eſq; and he had this eſtate with her, which, 19 December 1643, was ſettled on them and their heirs. They had iſſue Iſabell, and Richard. But, on the 30th of November 1693, the ſaid Meade, and others, alienated this maner to William Jackſon of Witham, Eſq; He married Sarah, daughter of Laurence Browne of Wickham-Biſhop's; and had iſſue —John, who dyed ſingle; and —William, that married Sarah, daughter of Eleazar Hazell of London, mercer; and hath had by her—John—William; Catharine, and Sarah.

6. The VICARAGE

is a Maner, called Hog-ende, and hath a Court lete and baron, of which the Vicar is Lord. This maner is very ancient, having been erected about the reign of K. Stephen, who gave this Church to the Canons of St. Martin's le Grand in London. In old time, the other Maners uſed to pay 4 d. to it, and did their homage.

The maner houſe ſtands on the weſt ſide of the Church-yard; and has been much enlarged, and greatly [or rather extravagantly] beautified by the late Vicar, George Sayer D. D.

The capital meſſuage called BACONS and ABBOTS, is pleaſantly ſituated by the high-way leading from Cheping-hill to Falkburn, a little before you come to the river; and has a fine row of Trees between it and the road.

This meſſuage, and 29 acres of land, were given by Roger Bacun to the Abbot and Convent of St. John at Colcheſter, in K. Edward the Firſt's reign; which acounts for the name. (e) [P]

At the Suppreſſion they becoming veſted in the Crown, K. Henry VIII. granted them to George Treſham Gent. who, afterwards, ſold them to—John Moigne (f).

October 18. 1565, Queen Elizabeth gave licenſe to Jerom Songar, and Mary his wife, to alienate them to Francis Barneham, citizen and alderman of London (g) [Q]. Barneham ſold this capital meſſuage called Bacons, alias Abbots, and a capital meſſuage called Petworths, to

John Southcote Eſq; (h) ſon of William, who was ſecond ſon of Nicolas Southcote of Chudleigh in Devonſhire, Eſq; deſcended from the Southcots of Southcote in that county. This John being bred to the law, was created a Serjeant 27 October 1558, and 10 February 1562. conſtituted one of the Juſtices of the King's-Bench (i). He dyed 18 April 1585, aged 74, and was buried in the north iſle of the chancel of this church, where a ſtately monument is erected for him, and his wife, Elizabeth daughter and heir of William Robins of London; by which he had 13 children, of whom only two daughters ſurvived him; and his ſon and heir—John Southcote Eſq; who (k) dyed 12 June 1637, having married Magdalene daughter of Sir Edward Walgrave Kt. by which he had—Edward Southcote of Witham, Eſq; He married Elizabeth daughter of John Seaborne of Herefordſhire, Eſq; and had by her two daughters, and a ſon named—John, afterwards knighted; who, by Elizabeth eldeſt daughter of Walter Lord Aſton by Mary daughter of Richard Weſton Earl of Portland Lord Treaſurer, had Edward; John, and Thomas, both which dyed unmarried; Mary, wife of John ſecond ſon of William Viſcount Stafford; and Anne, who had no iſſue.—Sir Edward Southcote Kt. the eldeſt ſon, married two wives. 1. Juliana, daughter of Sir Philip Tirwhit of Lincolnſhire, Bart. by which he had, Edward, who dyed an infant; John, married to Mary daughter of Edward Paſton of Berningham in Norfolk, Eſq; couſin to the Earl of Yarmouth; Philip, that dyed an infant; Francis-Edward, born 17 April 1691; Thomas, born 7 December 1695; Edward-Philip-Benedict, dead; Bridget-Penelope, born was anciently called Breddingchou, and belonged to St. Edmunds-bury-abbey, of which it was holden, at the time of the general Survey, by William ſon of Groſſe [R]. A tenement called Weſthall has uſually gone along with it.

William Lord Stourton now lives in this houſe.

BENNINGTON-HALL

The manſion-houſe ſtands in the South-eaſt part of this pariſh, adjoyning to Brackſtead, and Wickham, in both which pariſhes ſome of the lands lye, but moſtly in Brackſtead. It was anciently, together with the Lordſhip of Brackſtead, in the Munchenſi family. [See under Great Brackſtead.] Dionyſia de Munchenſi, wife of Hugh de Vere, dyed in 1313, 7 Edward II. and, beſides the ſaid Lordſhip, held Weſthalle of the Earl of Glouceſter; and a tenement called Briddinghoe of the Abbot of St. Edmundsbury in ca paying every twenty weeks 18 d. (m) Her heir — Adomare de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, who dyed 17 Edward II. held Weſthall, and Breddinghoe, and 100 acres of arable there of the honor of Stambourn (n). From him it paſſed to the Haſtings, Talbots, Ayliffes, and Darcies. For Thomas Darcy Eſq; held, in 1557, of the Queen, of her maner of Witham, the maner of Bentons, alias Benyngton's, with 2 meſſuages, 100 acres of arable, 20 acres of meadow, 100 acres of paſture, and 20 acres of wood, in Witham, Hatfeild-Peverell, and Wickham; lately belonging to William Berry, alias Beriff, and John Greene (o). It was afterwards in Thomas, and Brian Darcy, Eſquires, and in Sir Thomas Darcy of Braxtead-lodge, Bart. Frances, one of his daughters and coheirs, brought it in marriage to

Sir William Dawes Bart. late Archbiſhop of York, who dyed 30 April 1724. His ſon — Sir Darcy Dawes enjoyed it after him: Then it deſcended to — William, ſon of Sir Darcy Dawes, who dyed in June 1741. aged 12. His only ſiſter and heir — Elizabeth is married to

The Right Hon. James Hamilton, Earl of Abercorn, hath a good houſe at the entrance into this town from Colcheſter. The greateſt part of it was built by Robert Barwell, a bay-maker. But the noble owners of it have improved it, with plantations of trees, and other decorations.

The Pattiſſons, eminent ſhop-keepers here, have of late adorned this place with good brick houſes, more than any other perſons.

Remarkable Tenure.

Geffrey de Lyſton held Land of forty ſhillings value in Witham, by the ſerjeancy of carrying Flour to make Wafers on the King's birthday, wherever his Majeſty was in this kingdom (p).

Abbey-Lands.

The Abbey of St. John's in Colcheſter, beſides Abbots and Bacons above mentioned, had, in this pariſh, One hundred and twenty five acres of arable land, given by Henry de Bluntesdon (q). Ten acres once belonging to Havery Scherton, and the like number late Geoffrey Witham's (r). They had likewiſe two parts of the Tithes of great quantities of land in this pariſh and Creſſing, given them by Eudo their founder, which they lett for ever, in 1386, to the Dean and College of St. Martins le Grand, proprietors of the Churches of Witham and Creſſing, for the yearly ſum of ſeven marks (s).

Benefactions.

Dame Catharine Barnardiſton, by deed, in 1630, demiſed a Houſe to the Miniſter of this pariſh for ever; provided he preached on Tueſdays in the afternoon: If not, then to go for the uſe of a free-ſchool. But as few people attended on Tueſdays, it was thought proper by Dr. Warley the late Vicar, with the conſent of the feoffees, to omit the ſermon on Tueſdays, and have two ſermons on the Sundays.

The ſame Lady, by her will dated in 1632, deviſed One hundred pounds to this pariſh; the uſe, or intereſt, of it to be laid out in 12 two penny loaves, every Sunday, for the benefit of 12 poor widows of this pariſh. The inhabitants bought with that money lands and tenements, and ſettled them in truſt for ever. But they have ſince converted ſome of the tenements into a work-houſe.

George Armond Gent. in K. Charles the Firſt's reign, left by will to this pariſh an Almshouſe, for the uſe of two poor widows; and endowed it with Three pounds a year; viz. 20 s. a piece out of two tenements known formerly by the ſigns of the Lion, and the Eagle; and 10 s. a piece out of two houſes once belonging to John Raven, and Mr Blackman.

Two Alms-houſes on Cheping-hill were endowed with a farm in Springfield, of eighteen pounds a year. After having been loſt near 80 years, it was recovered in chancery, chiefly by the care and induſtry of Dr. Warley Vicar of this place (t). Out of that farm are allowed Ten pounds a year to four poor widows in theſe two alms-houſes. The overplus is to go towards beautifying the Church.

By a feoffment dated 28 February 1687, Five Alms-houſes were demiſed to certain feoffees, for the uſe of ten poor widows; and endowed with a farm in Gold Aungre of 16 l. a year, and another in Fairſtead of 19 l. 10 s. per ann.

Dr. Jonas Warley, Vicar of this pariſh [S], by his will, dated 20 Auguſt 1719, and proved 20

[S] He was the ſecond ſon of John Warley of Eltham in Kent, Gent. educated at the free-ſchool in Canterbury; Fel-

Auguſt 1722, gave to the Miniſter, Churchwardens, and Overſeers of the poor of Witham, the ſum of Fifty pounds, to be weekly laid out in bread every Sunday to ſix poor women frequenting the eſtabliſhed Church: The truſtees to be judges who are fit perſons.—He gave alſo One hundred pounds, towards advancing of an orthodox School for teaching of poor Children of the ſaid pariſh: who ſhall not be admitted under the age of eight years, nor exceed fourteen years, during the time of their education. The perſons to be educated to be always at the choice of the Miniſter and Churchwardens for the time being.

The Church, dedicated to St. Nicolas, ſtands pleaſantly on Cheping-hill, about half a mile from the London-road; by the ſide of the high way leading from this town to Braintree. 'Tis very ſpacious, conſiſting of a middle pace, and two iſles. The Chancel is alſo large and lofty, and has a ſouth and north iſle. The walls both of Church and Steeple, are built of Roman bricks and flint, except the top of the Tower, which uſed to be of timber, but was raiſed with brick about the year 1743. This Church may vie in neatneſs with moſt in this county; the ſum of 314 l. 8 s. having been laid out upon it in repairs, between the years 1701 and 1706, by the care, and partly at the charge, of Dr. Warley; who collected 293 l. 14 s. 2 d. among ſeveral Gentlemen [T], and made up the reſt himſelf. Beſides which, he gave an Organ, with this proviſo, that it ſhould continue as long as the Pariſhioners ſhould think fit to make uſe of it; otherwiſe, to be removed by the conſent of the Dioceſan to any Church or Chapel, the then Vicar [Dr. Warley] or his heirs ſhould nominate. But at preſent it is uſeleſs and unremoved.

When K. Stephen gave the maner and Half-Hundred of Witham to the Knights-Templars, he excepted this Church, with its appertenances, which he had given to the Canons of St. Martins le Grand in London (u): The Dean whereof, with the Canons, ordained a Vicar here (w), who by compoſition made between them was to ſuſtain the neighbouring Chapel of Kyrſyng (now Creſſing). And the Vicarage was afterwards ſettled by Euſtace de Fauconbergh Biſhop of London; to whom and his ſucceſſors the collation of it was reſerved (x). Of this Rectory, and Pariſh Church, the Canons of St. Martins continued proprietors, till Henry the Seventh's time; who, 23 July 1503, gave them to St. Peter's Abbey at Weſtminſter. When that monaſtery was converted into a Biſhopric, this Rectory was appropriated thereto by K. Henry VIII. and afterwards to the Dean and Chapter there, upon their endowment. But, at the diſſolution of that Biſhopric, the Rectory of Witham came to the Crown, wherein it continued till 22 April 1591, when Qu. Elizabeth granted it to John Aelmer biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors. And it has remained in them ever ſince; as well as the Collation to the Vicarage, from the year 1222.

There were formerly two Chantries in this Church. One founded in 1397. by Robert Rykedon, and Thomas Byrcheleygh, of Witham, for one Chaplain daily to perform divine offices at the altar of St. John the Baptiſt, for the good eſtate of the Lady Joanna de Bohun Counteſs of Hereford, Eſſex and Northampton, and of the ſaid Robert, and Thomas, and ſeveral others. It was endowed by them with two meſſuages, 130 acres of arable land, 12 acres of meadow, 18 acres of paſture, 30 acres of wood, and 7 s. 11 d. yearly rent in Witham and Wickham (y). After the ſuppreſſion, K. Edward VI. in 1548, granted it, with the Chantry-houſe in Newland-ſtreet, and a meſſuage called Little Howbrig, alias Iſhams, in this pariſh, to Thomas Brend and his heirs (z).

The other Chantry was called St. Mary's Chantry, alias Jennett Childes; and was endowed, with a meſſuage and garden near the Church-yard; an eſtate called Olivers, and divers lands, meadows, paſtures, &c. in Witham, Wickham, Hatfeild-Peverell, and Boreham: To find a Prieſt daily to ſing maſs in this church, at the altar of our bleſſed Lady. At the ſuppreſſion, it was valued at 10 l. 8 s. 1½ d. per ann. And, in the account then given of this chantry, it is ſaid, that this was “a great and populous Town, “having in it by eſtimation 500 houſeling “people and above, and a thorough-fare for “the King's liege-people to lodge in.” K. Edward VI. granted, in 1548, the revenues of this Chantry to Gilbert Claydon, and others (a). In Qu. Elizabeth's reign they were in the Barker family (b) [V].

A Medicinal Spring was found out here, from which great Cures were expected. And James Taverner M. B. a phyſician ſettled here, publiſhed The Virtues of Witham-Spa. The great Hall at New-Hall was bought, and tranſlated here for an Aſſembly-room: but the whole project ſoon came to nothing.

2. CRESSING

naturally follows next. It was originally a part or member of Witham, and therefore is not diſtinctly mention'd in Domeſday-book.

The name is formed from the two Saxon words, Cꞃeꞅꞅen and inᵹ, qu. Creſſes field, or paſture; of which the names Cryſſing, Kirſing, Kyrſing, and Curſing, that occur in Records, are a corruption.

It was anciently poſſeſs'd with Witham by Earl Harold, and others, down to the time of K. Stephen; who, about 1150, granted the whole maner of Creſſynge, with the advowſon of the church of the ſame maner, to the Virgin Mary, and the Brothers of the Knighthood of Solomon's Temple at Jeruſalem (c). Hence it came to be called Creſſing-Temple, as belonging to the Knights-Templars: Who, in 1185, are recorded to have had 5 hides of land in Witham and Kirſing, of the gift of K. Stephen, one part of which was in demeſne, and the other lett to divers tenents; whereof Adam de Kirſing held two virgates at 25 s. &c. (d)

This was one of the Knights-Templars Cells, ſtyled a Commandery, or Preceptory [W], dependent upon their capital Houſe, the Temple, in London. And when thoſe Knights were ſuppreſſed, in 1311, This, with the reſt of their poſſeſſions, were transfer'd to the Hoſpitallers of St. John of Jeruſalem near Weſt-Smithfield; about the year 1312 (e).

Before that time, namely in 1287, Bartholomew de Brianzon held this maner of Kerſinge of the Maſter of the Knights-Templars (f).

And from records it appears, That this Vill, or Pariſh, was divided into Great and Little Kirſing [X].

After the ſuppreſſion of the religious Houſes, and eſpecially of the Knights-Hoſpitallers in 1540, the maner of Creſſing and Half-Hundred of Witham were granted, in 1541, to Sir William Huſe (g).

From him it paſſed to the Smyth-family. And, as they ſeated themſelves, and flouriſh'd long, at Creſſing Temple, it is proper to give a particular Account of them here. They derive themſelves from Sir Michael Carrington, ſtandard-bearer to K. Richard I. in his expedition to the Holy Land. His ſon and heir—Sir Wiliam Carrington, was father to — Sir William Carrington, who married Anne daughter and heireſs of Sir Edmund Farnell, heir of his mother . . . . daughter of Robert Coventry Eſq; and had iſſue Edmund, William, and Thomas.—Edmund, the eldeſt ſon, by his wife Catharine, daughter and heir of Thomas Herrell, had William, Michael, Hugh, and a daughter.—Sir William Carrington, the eldeſt ſon, married Catharine, ſiſter of William Montague Earl of Saliſbury, and had by her theſe children, Thomas; Michael; Eleanor, or Elizabeth, wife of John Curſon; Catharine of Sir Thomas Wake; Iſabell of Nicolas Farington; and Anne.—Sir Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, married Margaret daughter of Sir Robert Roos; and his poſterity were, John; Edmund [that married Jane daughter of Sir John Ferrers, by whom he had Catharine wife of John Trancham, and Iſabell of Thomas Nevill, Eſquires]. A daughter Anne was wife of William Lemton, Eſq; The ſaid Sir Thomas dyed in 1380. His eldeſt ſon —John Carrington, Eſq; being forced to fly from England, (moſt probably during, and on account of, the cruel wars between the Houſes of Lancaſter and York,) changed his name to SMYTH [Y]. He had two wives. 1. Anne Gernon, or Gordon, widow of . . . Baynard, alias Baſtard, by which no iſſue is recorded. 2. Milicent, only daughter of Robert Laingham, by his wife Milicent, daughter and heireſs of John Hende, Lord Mayor of London. He dyed 25 Henry VI. 1446, leaving his eldeſt ſon named Hugh; as alſo John, Chriſtopher, Thomas, (which two laſt had no children,) and Robert; another Thomas, who was of Rivenhall, [and married, firſt, . . . Hamond; ſecondly, Iſabell, daughter and heir of William Tofts of Little Badow, by which he had Sir Clement Smyth of Little Badow, who married Dorothy ſiſter of Edward Duke of Somerſet; John Smyth of Blackmore in this county; and Leonard Smyth of Shouldham in Norfolk.] The ſaid John Carrington, alias Smyth, likewiſe had three daughters, viz. Margaret, wife of Thomas Whitebread of White Notley; Jane, of . . . Edmonds of Rivenhall; and . . . wife of Moyne of the ſame pariſh;—Hugh Smyth of Creſſing, Eſq; and afterwards of Witham, where he dyed and was buried 1 Henry VII, married Elizabeth . . . . [remarried to John Cheeſeman] by whom he had his only ſon and heir—Sir John Smyth, firſt, Remembrancer, and afterwards one of the Barons of the Exchequer, ſo conſtituted in 1540. He had two wives; 1. Alice, third daughter, and one of the coheirs, to Edward Wood, citizen and grocer of London, who brought him a ſon named Edward, one of the Eſquires of the body to K. Henry VIII, that dyed in his father's life time, after having married Barbara daughter and co-heir of Sir John Hampden, and leaving by her Anne, that became afterwards the wife of William Pawlet. The other children by this firſt wife, were, Thomas, Hugh, John, William, and Edward; which laſt married Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter and coheir of Euſtace Fitz-herbert, but had no children by her. She was afterwards remarried to Thomas Smyth of Camden in Glouceſterſhire. Sir John Smyth's 2d wife, was, Agnes, daughter and heir of John Harewell of Notton in Nottinghamſhire, by which he had Francis, ſeated at Aſhby Folvile in Leiceſterſhire, the inheritance of his wife, Margaret, daughter and heir of John Morton of Aſhby Folvile; William, ſettled in this county; and ſix daughters, Martha, Urſula, Bridget, Elizabeth, Anne, and Dorothy.—Thomas Smith, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon of Sir John by his firſt wife, was of Creſſing Temple. He had two wives, 1. Joane, younger daughter and coheir of Euſtace Fitzherbert above mentioned, by which he had no iſſue. 2. Mary, only daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Nevill of Holt in Leiceſterſhire (h), [by Clara, daughter and coheir of Ralph Nevill of Thorton Bridge in Yorkſhire;] remarried to Francis Hervy, Eſq; By her he had Clement; Henry; William; Thomas Smith, alias Nevill, of Holt; and Clara, wife of Robert Bendloes. The ſaid Thomas dyed 10 March 1562 [Z]. Clement, his eldeſt ſon, married Dorothy, daughter of . . . Boſwell of Kent, but dyed in 1600. without iſſue.—Henry, the ſecond ſon, married Anne, daughter of Rooke Grene, relict of Thomas Newman of Quendon, but dyed 17 April 1612 (i), likewiſe without iſſue ſurviving; for a ſon and a daughter of theirs were cut off in their youth. Whereupon,—William, the next brother, ſucceeded, in ſome of his eſtates, but not in Creſſing. He married Dorcas, daughter of John Mootham, and widow of William Bigge; but dyed 12 February 1630, aged 74, without iſſue (k). So that this eſtate deſcended to—Sir Thomas Smith, alias Nevill, who dyed 1 March 1636. (l) and then to—Henry, or, according to others, to Sir John, Smyth alias Nevill, ſon of the ſaid Sir Thomas, of Holt. This Sir Thomas had two wives. 1. Joanna, daughter of Tobias Houghton of King's-cliff in Northamptonſhire, who brought him forth theſe children; Thomas, that dyed young; Henry; Dorothy, wife of Arthur Brook; Jane, wife of Chriſtopher Thurſby of Dorewards-hall in Bocking; William; Thomas; Nevill; and Clement. His 2d wife was . . . . widow of Sir . . . Ferne, Kt. by which he had no iſſue.—Henry Smyth, alias Nevill, Eſq; ſucceeded. He lived at Creſſing in the life-time of his uncle William, and had ſeveral children baptized and buried there (m). His wife was Alice, daughter and heir of John Dackomb Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaſter.

This Eſtate continued in the family of Smyth, alias Nevill, till after the year 1646. Then it came to . . . . Audely; . . . . Tuke; and to

Sir Thomas Davies, Kt. Lord Mayor of London in 1677, 1678. His eldeſt ſon—Thomas Davies, Eſq; unfortunately ſhooting himſelf here; his brothers—John, Robert, and James, ſold this Eſtate, in 1703, to Herman Olmius, Eſq; who, by his will, 1 March 1716, bequeathed it equally between his eldeſt ſon, and his youngeſt daughter Judith. It is now in John Olmius of New-hall, Eſq; newly created Lord Waltham.

A Leet belonging to Creſſing Temple, is kept at Terling the laſt day of December yearly, as may be ſeen under that pariſh.

To the Maner-houſe of Creſſing-Temple there belonged a Chapel, or Oratory; conſecrated for divine ſervice, and the ſolemnizing of marriages and burials; which, in 1626, at the petition of William Smith, Eſq; then Lord of this maner, was confirm'd to him, his heirs and ſucceſſors dwelling in the ſaid houſe, for the uſes aforeſaid, by George Montaigne, Biſhop of London: Provided all things were done and perform'd therein according to the Book of Common Prayer; and that it was kept from profane and common uſes. Reſerving all rights and duties, or profits, belonging to the Church and Vicar of Creſſing (n).

The CHURCH of Creſſing, dedicated to All Saints, was at firſt founded, as a Chapel to Witham pariſh, by Elphelm att Gore, and Levelote, or Lenelek, his wife. They gave 20 acres of land for its maintenance, and the providing of it with all neceſſaries. Afterwards, when K. Stephen granted the Rectory of Witham to the Canons of St. Martins le Grand in London, the Dean and Canons there ordained a Vicar at Witham; who, by virtue of a compoſition between them, was bound to ſupport the Chapel of Creſſing. From which time it came to be look'd upon as a dependent upon the Vicarage of Witham; the Vicars whereof have ever ſince had the Right of Preſentation and Patronage to this Church.

3. FALKBORNE

3. FALKBORNE.

THE two Saxon words Folc, or Falc, and Buꞃn, ſignify the Folks Brook, or Well: A name, which this Pariſh is ſuppoſed to have taken from the Spring riſing between the Church and the Maner-houſe, dedicated to St. German, and to this day called St. German's Well; which in ancient times was in mighty reputation, and much frequented by ſuperſtitious People [A].

Here ſeems to have been an ancient Roman Villa: For a ſilver Coin of Domitian was, ſome years ago, found under the foundation of an old wall, built partly of Roman bricks (o). But that hereabouts ſhould be the ſtation Ad Anſam, is a miſtake grounded upon the falſe ſuppoſition of thoſe who imagined, that Camulodunum was Maldon; whereas I have plainly proved it to be Colcheſter (p).

This Pariſh, in Edward the Confeſſor's time, was holden by Turbin. In William the Conqueror's, it belonged to Hamo Dapifer, whoſe under-tenent was one Ralph [B]. This Hamo had about fifteen Pariſhes, or the greateſt part of them, in Eſſex, and in this Hundred Brackſtead, and White Notley, beſides Falkburn. He was Lord of Aſtremerville in Normandy, deſcended from Duke Rollo (q), and nephew to William the Conqueror, with whom he came into England. His brother Robert Fitz-Hamon [C] obtained of William Rufus the Barony of Glouceſter: and, in 1091, was Commander in chief in the conqueſt of Glamorganſhire from the Welſh (r). Dying in March 1107. he was buried in the church of the Abbey of Tewkſbury, which church he had rebuilt (s). By his wife, Sibill, one of the daughters, or grand-daughters, of Roger de Montgomery Earl of Shrewſbury, he had four daughters, coheirs. But K. Henry I. not permitting ſo large an inheritance to be ſhared among Women, under pretence that they were not capable of performthe military ſervices, made the eldeſt, Cicely, Abbeſs of Shaftſbury; Hawiſe, the ſecond, Abbeſs of Wilton; Amice, the youngeſt, he gave in marriage to . . . . Earl of Bretagne: Reſerving Sibil, or Mabil, the third, for Robert his own natural ſon, to whom he gave, upon her account, the whole Honor of Glouceſter, a large inheritance in Normandy, and the whole eſtate of her uncle Hamo Dapifer (t). Moreover he conferred on him the title of Earl of Glouceſter. And thus Falkborne, from Hamo Dapifer, who dyed without iſſue, came by the marriage of his neice to be involved in the Honor of Glouceſter, on which it depends as to its tenure to this day, being holden of the Honor of Clare, as of the Honor of Glouceſter.—William, eldeſt ſon of Robert, ſucceeded him in honour and eſtate (u). But he ſold moſt, or all, of what had deſcended to him by his mother from Hamo Dapifer, and among the reſt Falkborne to

Richard de Lucy, Lord Chief Juſtice of England, [of whom ſee a further account under Cheping-Ongar,] the ſaid William reſerving to himſelf and his heirs the ſervice of ten knights fees; which ſervice, and conſequently the tenure of this Lordſhip, came to the Honor of Clare, by the marriage of Amice, daughter and at length ſole heir to the aforeſaid William Earl of Glouceſter, with Richard de Clare Baron of Clare and Tonebrige, and Earl of Glouceſter in right of this match (w). Richard de Lucy was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1156; and departed this life 14 January 1179. leaving, by Rohaiſe his wife, Geffrey, and Herbert, Maud, and Rohaiſe. —Geffrey, the eldeſt ſon and heir, ſucceeded; but dying without ſurviving iſſue, his inheritance devolved to his two ſiſters juſt now mentioned. Upon partition of the inheritance, the lands in Eſſex fell to—Maud's ſhare. She had two huſbands: 1. Walter Fitz-Robert. 2. Richard de Ripariis, alias Redvers, or Rivers [D] (x). She dyed 27 Henry III. Her ſon Richard de Rivers was dead before that time: So that her grandſon

Richard de Rivers, then four years old, was found to be her heir (y). The King committed

[A] The worſhip of Springs and Fountains was of a very ancient Original, as appears not only from the ancient Heathen Authors; Horat. Od. l. iii. od. 13. Homeri Odyſſ. l. xvii. but alſo from Chriſtian monuments. For 'tis obſervable, that long after our Saxon anceſtors had embraced Chriſtianity, yet they retain'd the obſervation of many idolatrous and ſuperſtitious cuſtoms relating to Springs and Wells, as may be inferred from injunctions and canons made to forbid them. Thus in Conſtitutions made in 967, under K. Edgar, we find theſe words. 'We teach, that Prieſts ſhall aboliſh all Heatheniſh ſuperſtitions; and forbid ƿilƿeoꞃþunᵹa; which Dr. Hammond, from an old Saxon Poenitential, rightly tranſlates Fontis Veneratio, the Worſhip of Wells . . . and ꞇꞃeoƿum ꞇ on ꞅꞇanum . . and of Trees and Stones.' By which two laſt are underſtood Groves, and Altars of Stone erected in the fields: of which Field altars there are remains to be found in ſeveral places. In another Canon in the foreſaid Poenitential, there is a Prohibition againſt vowing or bringing alms or offerings to any wells, or ſtones, or tree, or to any other creature, but only in God's name to God's church.—Alſo in a Saxon homily of Biſhop Lupus, mention is made of ſome, who being ſeduced by the devil, in their afflictions vow their alms oðꞃon ꞇo ƿẏlla, oðꞃon ꞇo ꞅꞇane, either to well, or ſtone. And in another homily, he cautions men againſt worſhipping Wells or Trees. This fooliſh cuſtom of worſhipping and bringing offerings to Trees and Fountains, continued after the Conqueſt, as appears by a Synod at London in 1102. by the Conſtitutions of Walter Biſhop of Worceſter in 1240. and the injunctions of Oliver Biſhop of Lincoln in 1280. which two laſt forbid the worſhipping of Cerne, and Rolls-well; St. Edward's well near St. Clement's at Oxford, and St. Laurence's well near Peterburgh. Concil. Mag. Britan.—The ſuperſtitious veneration paid to St. Winifred's well, is alſo well known.

[C] There is almoſt an impenetrable Darkneſs in this part of the Norman Hiſtory. Robert Fitz-Hamon might naturally be ſuppoſed to have been the Son of Hamo Dapifer, as his name Fitz-Hamon imports. But Hamo Dapifer was brother to Robert Fitz-Hamon, and uncle to this latter's daughters, as theſe words of W. Gemmeticenſis, p. 306, plainly prove. 'Dedit etiam illi Rex terram Haimonis Dapiferi, patrui videlicet uxoris ſuæ.' Edit. the wardſhip of him to Philip Baſſet for a thouſand marks (z). And, in 1263, he held ten knights fees, part of which lay in Faukburne, under Richard Earl of Glouceſter and Hertford (a). His ſon and ſucceſſor—John de Rivers departed this life in 1294 (b) [E]. Whoſe ſon, —John de Rivers, about the year 1339, conveyed this maner, as we may reaſonably ſuppoſe, with that of Aungre, or Cheping Ongar, to

Sir John de Sutton of Wivenhou. [See under thoſe reſpective pariſhes.]

In 1353, Thomas Fabell held, among other things, two parts of the maner of Falkeburne of the Honor of Glouceſter.—John was his ſon and heir (c).

Afterwards it was holden by Sir John Curſon, and then by Sir Thomas Mandeville, of the Honor of Clare, as appears by the Court-rolls of the knights-fees belonging to the Honor of Clare, dated in 1364 [F]. Of this Sir Thomas de Mandeville there is an account under Bromfield, and Black Notley. His ſon — Thomas dying in 1399, without iſſue, was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſiſter — Alice, who had two huſbands, 1. Helmingius Legat. 2. Roger Spice.

Clement Spice, ſon of the ſaid Alice and Roger, was of Black Notley. [See under that pariſh.]

In the mean time John de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, was ſeized, in 1411, of the maner of Falkeburne, holden of the Earl of March, as of his Honor of Clare (d).

Shortly after, we find this maner in Sir John Montgomery, but how he obtain'd it we cannot learn. He was moſt probably a native of Scotland, as is inferred from the ſmall diſtinction between his Arms and thoſe of Montgomery Earl of Eglington (e). This Sir John, created Knight of the Bath at St. George's feaſt held in Caen, was famous for many military exploits during the wars in France, where he was Privy counſellor to the Regent John Duke of Bedford, Captain of the ſtrong caſtle of Arques and other fortreſſes, Bailiff of Caux, and had the honor of being nominated in the ſcrutiny of the order of the Garter 23 Henry VI (f). He is the firſt in the liſt of the Gentry of this county, returned by the Commiſſioners in 1433 (g). His death happened in 1448, or 1449, at which time he was poſſeſs'd of Falkburne, Bluntſhall, Great Tay maner, Uphall, &c. (h) [G] He married Elizabeth, ſiſter of Ralph Botiler Lord of Sudely, which by a far-fetch'd courteſy conſtantly retained the title of Lady Say, being only the relict of Sir William Heron, ſtyled Lord Say by reaſon of his firſt marriage with Elizabeth the daughter and heireſs of the Lord Say. She had three huſbands, 1. Sir Henry, or Roger, Norbury, by whom ſhe had Sir John Norbury; Ralph; and Anne. 2. Sir William Heron. 3. Sir John Montgomery. Her iſſue by the laſt, were, John, [ſuppoſed by Mr. Anſtis to be the ſame perſon that was beheaded in 1462, for his adherence to K. Henry VI (i); but Sir Thomas mentions a brother John in his will;] Thomas, of whom more at length preſently; Anne, whom Sir Thomas mentions in his will in 1489, as unmarried; Alice, wife of John Forteſcue, afterwards of Robert Langley, and laſtly of Edmund Wiſeman [H]; another Alice, wife of Clement Spice. Their mother, the foreſaid Lady Elizabeth Say, dyed in 1464, poſſeſs'd of this eſtate and the advowſon of the church. Her ſecond ſon — Sir Thomas Montgomery, then aged 30, ſucceeded her (k). He was one of the moſt eminent men in his time; bred up from his infancy in the court of K. Henry VI; one of the Mareſchals of his hall; Keeper of the Exchange and of the money in the Tower of London, and the wardenſhip of the coinage of gold and ſilver within the kingdom. Having the art of adapting himſelf to all changes, be became one of the greateſt favorites, and of the cabinet, to K. Edward IV. who heaped upon him places of truſt and profit; as the ſtewardſhip of Havering at bower, of the caſtle of Haddele, and of the Foreſt of Eſſex; the conſtableſhip of Briſtol, and of the caſtle of Caen, and the treaſurerſhip of Ireland, all for life: Was created a Knight, a Knight banneret, and at length Knight of the honorable Order of the Garter; and employed in embaſſies, and affairs of the greateſt conſequence. In 1477, he was one of the Knights of the ſhire for this county. He appears to have been as great a favorite with K. Richard III. as with his predeceſſor. For Richard granted him the whole Eſtate of John de Vere Earl of Oxford in this county. But he was not much enrich'd by this gift; ſince, upon the uſurper's fall at Boſworth, the Earl of Oxford recovered his eſtates. He was likewiſe in favour under K. Henry VII. The 28th of July 1489, he made his will at Falkeborne, by which we learn, that he was poſſeſſed of the advowſon of this Church, and of the Maner; of the maner of Bluntſhall, and a water-mill called Machons mill, in Witham; of the maners of Rivenhall, and Much Teye; Mulſham, Brayhams, and Warrocks, in Great Lees; Boure-hall in Merſey; and Great Braxſted; all in this county: and had alſo the maner of Shipton in Oxfordſhire, and of Chauton in Hamſhire. He dyed 11 January 1494. aged 55, and was buried in the Chapel of our Lady, which he had made at Tower-hill, in the Abbey of St. Mary of Graces. He had two wives, but left no iſſue by either. His firſt wife, was Philippa, daughter and coheir of John Helion of Bumpſted-Helion, Eſq; by Editha, daughter and heir of Thomas Rolf of Goſfeild-hall, Eſq; The ſecond wife was Lora, daughter of Sir Edward Barkley of Beverſton, and widow of John Blount Lord Montjoy, remarried, after Sir Thomas's deceaſe, to Thomas Earl of Ormond (l) [I].

[H] Robert Langley dyed 28 Auguſt 1499. and was buried in Little Waltham-church. Alice, his widow, being married again, 17 January 1501. to Edm. Wiſeman of Rivenhall, Eſq; dyed in September 1508. and was buried in the church of Falkborne.

The principal heir of Sir Thomas, was John Forteſcue Eſq; eldeſt ſon of his ſiſter Alice, who became ſeated at Falkburne-hall. Another heir of his, was—Humphrey Spice, ſon of another ſiſter of his named alſo Alice, by Clement Spice of Black Notley who dyed in 1483. [See under Black Notley.] Humphrey departing this life 28 October 1485, left an only daughter, named Philippa, which became the wife of John Forteſcue Eſq; ſon of the foreſaid John, and by that means the main of the Montgomery-eſtates centered in the Forteſcue family. Philippa was married again to Sir Francis Bryan, who in her right preſented to this living in 1534 (m).

John Forteſcue, the firſt mentioned above, was deſcended from the very ancient family of that ſurname ſeated at Wimpſton in Devonſhire. William Forteſcue, of that place, had to his ſecond ſon Sir John Forteſcue, Captain of Meaux and Governor of Brie in France, in the reign of K. Henry VI: Whoſe eldeſt ſon, Sir Henry, was Lord Chief Juſtice of Ireland: And his ſecond ſon, Sir John Forteſcue, became Chief Juſtice of the King's-Bench 25 January 1441. Lord Chancellor of England towards the end of K. Henry the Sixth's reign; and wrote the valuable book De Laudibus Legum Angliæ, and other pieces. From the third ſon—Richard Forteſcue Eſq; proceeded the Forteſcues of Poundſborow in Hertfordſhire (n).—John Forteſcue Eſq; of that place, married Alice daughter of Sir Geffrey Bullen, by which he had ſeveral ſons [K]. One of them was—John Forteſcue Eſq; who married Alice Montgomery, as related above, and dyed 9 June 1518 (o). Their ſon—Henry had two wives. The firſt was Elizabeth, daughter of .... Stafford of Broadfeild in Berkſhire, Eſq; by whom he had Francis, his eldeſt ſon and heir, and three other ſons, and five daughters. His ſecond wife was Mary, married firſt to Sir Edward Darrell, then to Philip Maunſell Eſq; and laſtly to our Henry, who had by her a ſon named Dudley, who dyed without iſſue. Henry Forteſcue was one of the four Eſquires for the body to Queen Elizabeth. He ended his life, as his Epitaph expreſſes it, 6 October 1576. as did his ſecond wife 7 October 1598, and both lie buried in this church (p).—Francis, his eldeſt ſon and heir, born in 1546, ſucceeded him; but dyed 8 July 1588 (q). By .... daughter and heir of .... Ford of Suſſex, he had his ſon—Edmund, born in 1566, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edmund Huddleſton. He dyed 24 September 1596, leaving—John, his ſon and heir (r): who married Catharine daughter of .... Philpot of Hamſhire, Kt. and had a ſon named William [L]. But, about the year 1637, the ſaid John ſold Falkburn hall and maner to Sir Edward Bullock of Loftes in Great Totham within this county.

From what place this family originally came, we cannot preciſely determine, ſince we find the name in various parts of the kingdom: However the name is very ancient. Richard Bullock lived in the time of K. Henry III. and had—Gilbert Bullock Gent. his ſon and heir, father of—Robert Bullock, who flouriſh'd in the time of K. Edward I. His ſon and heir,—Gilbert Bullock Eſq; married Anne, daughter and heireſs of Thomas Nevill of Barkham in the county of Berks, Eſq;

Dr. William Bullock, clerk, was one of the negotiators of the peace between England and Scotland in 1335, on the part of the Scots (s). And others lived about that time, of the ſame appellation (t).

The following perſons of this ſurname were returned as Gentlemen in 1431, 12 Henry VI.—Robert Bullock of Bedfordſhire.—Thomas Bullock, and Richard Bullock, Eſquires, of Berkſhire.—William Bullock of Norton in Derbyſhire.—And John Bullock of Norfolk (u).

A family of this name held an eſtate at Thackſtead, about Queen Elizabeth's reign (w).

Some of them diſtinguiſh'd themſelves by their learning. Henry Bullock, D. D. Fellow of Queen's college in Cambridge, a good linguiſt, and general ſcholar, was intimate with the great Eraſmus, whom he calls his maſter, and who ſtyles him in his Letters doctiſſimum Bovillum (x). Cardinal Wolſey was his patron. He appears Rector of St. Martin's Ludgate in 1522, and Vice-chancellor of Cambridge in 1523, and 1524 (y).—George Bullock, Fellow of St. John's college in Cambridge, afterwards Maſter of that Houſe, Vicar of St. Sepulchre's London in 1558, and alſo Prebendary of Durham, is ranked among the learned Writers of his age (z).

But the Falkbourn-family ſeems to have ſprung from thoſe of Berkſhire; particularly from Robert Bullock Eſq; of Herburghfeild, or Arbor-feild, in that county, and Sheriff for it and Oxfordſhire, 8 Richard II. He bore the ſame arms as the Eſſex family now does, and dyed in 1405. His ſon — Thomas, of the ſame place, married Alice daughter and heir of William Yeading, by which he had his ſon — Robert, who by Eleanor his wife left — Gilbert Bullock of Arborfield, Eſq; He married Margaret, daughter of William Norris of Bray in Berkſhire, Eſq; from whom deſcended the Lords Norris of Ricot, and had two ſons, Thomas and Chriſtopher. — Thomas, by Alice daughter of John Kingſmill Eſq; one of the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, had ſix ſons, Richard of Arborfeild, from whom the chief branch of this family proceeded: Thomas: George of Uckefeild in Berkſhire: John: William: and Gregory. And 6 daughters, Dorothy, Margaret, Elen, Margery, Alice, and Jane.—William, the 5th ſon, married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Ralph Bellet of Moreton in Cheſhire, by Elizabeth his wife, daughter and heir of . . . Moreton of the ſame place, and had iſſue, John, Robert, William, Andrew, Thomas; and two daughters, Alice, and Eleanor. Andrew, the 4th ſon, being a citizen and merchant of London, was father of Thomas, from whom deſcended the Bullocks of Thornborough in Berkſhire.

John Bullock Eſq; eldeſt ſon and heir of William aforeſaid, was the firſt who ſettled in the county of Eſſex, at Great Wigborough, where he dyed 10 February 1595, and was buried in the chancel. Anne his widow dyed 20 January 1615, and was buried in the ſame place. They had two ſons, Edward; and Henry, which laſt departed this life 13 June 1609, leaving Henry his only ſon, who dyed 24 November 1628. without iſſue (a). — Edward, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married Joane, daughter of John Collen of High-Laver in this county, and dyed on or about the year 1601. poſſeſs'd of conſiderable Eſtates [M]. His ſon and heir—Edward, born about the year 1580, ſucceeded him (b). He was knighted by K. James I. 3 July 1609. and about the year 1637, as we have obſerved above, bought Falkborne-hall; which from that time became the place of his reſidence, and has been the chief ſeat of his poſterity ever ſince. He dying in 1644, was buried on the north ſide of the chancel of this church, where he has a monument. His lady dyed the ſame year, but was buried in Clerkenwell-church Middleſex. She was the eldeſt daughter of Thomas Weld, or Wyld, of Glazeley-hall in the county of Salop, Eſq; and they had an only ſon—Edward, their heir. He married Mary, daughter of Sir William De Grey of Marton-hall in Norfolk, Kt. (c) by which he had Edward; Robert, and William, who dyed young; and Barbara wife of Hamon Leſtrange of Berton-mere in Pakenham in Suffolk, Eſq; This Edward was buried at St. Andrews Holborn London, and his wife with her anceſtors. Their eldeſt ſon and heir—Edward ſucceeded: and marrying Elizabeth, daughter and heir of William Bolton of Ullenhall in Warwickſhire, Gent. they had 5 ſons; viz. Edward; Thomas, George, and William, which three laſt dyed without iſſue; John, [ſeated afterwards at Dean's-hall in Great Mapleſtead:] and three daughters; Elizabeth, married to Mordaunt Cracherode of St. Paul's Covent-garden, Gent. [N] Elizabeth, wife of George Abbot of the ſame place, linnen-draper; and Dorothy. The father and mother were both buried in this church.—Edward, the eldeſt ſon, was a member of Trinity college in Cambridge, and of Gray's-inn London; elected one of the repreſentatives in parliament for this county in 1698, and for the borough of Colcheſter in 1705; and alſo appointed High-Sheriff for Eſſex in 1703. He dyed 6 December 1705, and was buried in this church. This gentleman had two wives. 1. Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter and co-heir of Sir Mark Guyon of Coggeſhall, Kt. She dyed in child-bed, without any iſſue living. 2. His ſecond wife was Mary, daughter of Sir Joſiah Child of Wanſtead, grandfather to the preſent Earl Tylney, by whom he had Mary, born 6 July 1694; Edward, born 22 September 1695; Joſiah; Richard, afterwards D. D. Rector of Streatham Surrey, and Vicar of Chriſt's-church, London: John; and Emma. She was remarried, after his deceaſe, to . . . Hutchinſon, Eſq; and dyed 15 May 1748.——Edward, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded. He was educated at King's-college in Cambridge; but dying without iſſue, had for ſucceſſor his next brother—Joſiah, who departed this life 29 February 1752. He married Hannah, youngeſt daughter of Sir Thomas Cooke, Kt. and had by her three children, viz. Edward, who dyed young;—John, the preſent poſſeſſor, one of the Burgeſſes in Parliament for Maldon; and Elizabeth, wife of Jonathan Watſon Eſq;

The Maner-houſe is pleaſantly ſituated, on the left hand ſide of the road from Braintree to Witham. It is a ſtately old ſtructure, with lofty towers and battlements; and is ſuppoſed to have been built about the reign of K. Stephen, or Henry II, by Robert Earl of Glouceſter: but is hardly ſo ancient.

Great Additions and Alterations about the Houſe, and very conſiderable Improvements in the Gardens, have been made by the late worthy owners [O].

4. FAIR-STEAD.

ADjoining to Falkborne is this pariſh, the name of which ſignifies a Fair Place; being a fair ſituation, with a good inland proſpect.

In the Saxons time it was holden by Brictmar, but one Turold had it when the general ſurvey was made [P].

It contains only two maners, namely, 1. The maner of Fairſted. 2. That of Walley, Walleigh, or Wileigh-hall.

1. The maner of FAIRSTEAD.

The manſion houſe ſtands near the church.

William Earl Ferrers, (ſon and heir of Robert, grandſon of Henry de Ferrers who flouriſh'd in the time of William the Conqueror,) having married Margaret, daughter and heir of William Peverell of Nottingham, is ſuppoſed to have got with her this Lordſhip. By her he had two ſons —Robert and Walcheline. He lived about the reign of K. Henry II. (d)

Stephen de Beauchamp of Eſſex married Iſolda, daughter of Robert Earl Ferrers, and held, probably in her right, Fairſtede and Comerſe [Q]. He dyed 31 Henry II, leaving his ſon—Stephen, a minor, who had no iſſue (e).

William Earl Ferrers, who dyed in 1254. 38 Henry III. had by his ſecond wife, Margaret, daughter and coheir of Roger de Quinci Earl of Wincheſter, Robert, who ſucceeded him in the Earldom of Derby; and William, who ſeated himſelf at Groby in Leiceſterſhire. His widow outliving him about a year, held in dowry the maners of Fareſted, Woodham-Ferrers, and Stebbing (f). William, the ſecond ſon, had theſe maners of the gift of his father (g); and he is ſaid to have holden one fee in Fayreſted of the King in capite (h). He dyed 16 Edward I. leaving by Joane his wife, daughter of Hugh le Deſpenſer, —William, his ſon and heir, and Anne married to John Lord Grey of Wilton (i). William the ſon was firſt ſummoned to parliament amongſt the Peers 25 Edward I (k): and dyed 18 Edward II. —Henry his ſon ſucceeded him; and departed this life in 1343 (l). He had made a grant of this maner to Thomas de Ferrers: For this Thomas dying in 1353, was found to have holden the maner of Fairſted of the King in capite, of his honor of Peverell, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee, for the term of his life, as of the gift of Henry de Ferrers (m). —William, ſon of the ſaid Henry by Iſabel de Verdon, married, 1ſt, Margaret daughter of Robert de Ufford Earl of Suffolk. 2dly, Margaret, daughter of Henry de Percy, widow of Gilbert de Umfranvill Earl of Angus; which laſt had this maner in dower, among others; and dyed in 1375 (n). Her huſband departed this life in 1372 (o). —Henry, his ſon and heir, had Fairſtead among other eſtates (p); and dying 3 February 1387, left by Joane his wife, daughter of Thomas Poynings, —Henry, who dyed 30 May 1394. having had iſſue—William, who departed this life either the 18th or 23d of Henry VI. —Elizabeth wife of Sir Edward Gray was his couſin and heir, being daughter of Henry ſon of the ſaid William (q): She had a ſon named John, then twelve years of age.

It was afterwards in the Cornwall-family. For Henry Parker obtained a pardon, 12 June 1531, for buying of Thomas Cornwall Eſq; the maner of Fairſted, with appertenances in this pariſh, and in great Lighes, and black and white Notley, to be holden of the King in capite (r).—The 18th of May 1538, the ſame Thomas Cornwall had licenſe to alienate this maner to Thomas Morton (s). Notwithſtanding which, Thomas Cornewall Gent. at the time of his deceaſe, 1 May 1558, was poſſeſs'd of this maner, valued at 10 l. 10 s. per ann.—Jane, his granddaughter and heir, was then ſix years old (t).

She became afterwards the firſt wife of George Chauncy of Ardeley in Hertfordſhire, to whom ſhe brought the maners of Fairſted, lands in Stebbing, an eſtate at Ardeley, beſides a conſiderable perſonal eſtate. She dyed 25 July 1582. By her he had Henry, and four daughters (u). But he, or his ſon, ſold this eſtate to Thomas Hobbes Eſq; who married . . . Chibborne; and dyed 26 February 1632, leaving —Suſan, his only daughter and heir, aged ten years and nine months (w).

Col. Fienes, commonly called Lord Fienes, was next poſſeſſor. Of him it was bought by . . . Barwell; and deſcended to — Newman Barwell. The 16th of November 1720, his ſiſter and heir contracted with Robert Surman, Deputy-caſhier of the South-ſea Company, for the ſale of this maner: and the purchaſe-money was to be 8400 l. But only 1000 l. had been paid in part, when this eſtate was ſequeſtered by parliament for the uſe of the proprietors of the South-Sea-Stock.

It belongs now to James-Edward Oglethorp Eſq;

Some parcels of this maner ſeem anciently to have been in other hands than thoſe above mention'd, as appears by the following records.

Under Edmund Earl of Kent, who dyed in 1330, Sir John Dyn held half a fee, and Simon of St. Paul London the other half, called the maner of Fayreſted (x).—John Holand Earl of Kent dyed in 1353, ſeized of the ſame (y).—Thomas Holand Earl of Kent held in 1396. the half which John Dyn formerly had; and half a fee, holden by the Canons of St. Paul (z).—Alice, wife of Thomas Holand Earl of Kent, held the ſame in 1416 (a).—Joane, wife of Sir Thomas Gray, dyed 4 Henry VI. poſſeſs'd of the premiſſes.—Henry Gray was her ſon and heir (b). This ſeems to be what is now called the maner of Belchamps.

2. WALLEY, or WILEIGH-HALL, ſtands about half a mile from the Church, and at a ſmall diſtance from the road to Braintree. It is a copyhold maner, with about three copyholders, and a little freehold. The houſe is almoſt ſurrounded by a moat and a pond; and there belongs to it a chapel, now thatched, called Lady Wydelin's Chapel.

It was anciently in the Scot-family, mentioned above under Chigwell, Stapleford-Tany, and Little Lees. And afterwards in the Forteſcues, mentioned under Falkburne, and Black Notley.

Henry Forteſcue Eſq; who dyed 6 October 1577, had the maner of Walley-hall.—Francis, his ſon and heir being then aged 30 (c), departed this life 8 July 1588.—Edmund was his ſon (d).—Dudley Forteſcue Eſq; was poſſeſs'd of this maner, 12 September 1604 (e).—Daniel, his ſon, ſold it to . . . Bond, who alienated it to

. . . Dequeſter Gent. It belonged afterwards to Robert Aſhurſt of Caſtle-Hedingham, Eſq; and now to his heirs.

A Farm of about Twenty pounds a year, here, belongs to the Widows Almshouſes at Witham.

There are about 1200 acres of land in this pariſh.

Fairſtead-leet runs up to Walley-green; and is holden yearly the ſame day as that of Chatley-hamlet, namely 13 January: From thence they go to Great Lees. It belongs to Creſſing Temple. The Steward hath a ſhilling for all: The leet puniſh nuiſances among themſelves, breaking of hedges, &c. Chuſe one Conſtable.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the chancel, tyled. At the weſt end, a tower of ſtone, containing 3 bells: above which there is a lofty ſpire, ſhingled.

Roger Rydel, who in 1211. held five knights fees of the Honor of Peverell [R], gave the Patronage of this church to Euſtace de Faucon-bergh, biſhop of London from 1221. to 1228, in pure and perpetual alms, or to whomſoever he would aſſign it. The right of Patronage being thus veſted in Biſhop Euſtace, he aſſign'd it to his ſucceſſors Biſhops of London, who have enjoy'd it ever ſince (f).

About the year 1260, Sir Philip Baſſet, brother to Fulk Baſſet biſhop of London then newly deceaſed, gave to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, 76 acres of arable, 30 acres of wood, 2 acres of meadow, and 10 s. yearly rent, with appertenances, in Fairſted, and half an acre of meadow in Boreham, for keeping his ſaid brother's anniverſary; paying out thence a hundred ſhillings, on May 21, for a repaſt [pitanciam] in St. Paul's church (g).

Some lands in this pariſh belonged to Darcies Chantries in Danbury and Maldon, which Sir Thomas Darcy alienated, by patent 16 Auguſt 1546, to Anthony Stapleton (h).

This Rectory hath a glebe of 77 acres, and is otherwiſe a very good-condition'd Living. Twenty acres, part of the Glebe, lie ſeparate from the reſt, being called Lady Wydelins; and for them 6 s. 8 d. is paid to Haſeley.

NOTLEY.

HERE are two contiguous Pariſhes of this name, diſtinguiſhed from each other by the ſeveral appellations of Black, and White, Notley.

The name is form'd from the two Saxon words, hnut, a nut, and ley, a paſture, qu. Nut-paſture. In Domeſday-book it is written Nutlea, Nutleia, Nuchelea; and in other records Nutteſlega, Nutelegh, Notlee, Notteley, Nuttely, &c.

In the earlieſt times, theſe two made but one village or townſhip; and were holden, in Edward the Confeſſor's reign, by Harold; a freeman named Achi; Aleſtan, another freeman; Eſgar; Levecild; and the Biſhop of London. But, ſhortly after, this diſtrict came into the hands of two great men, viz. Geffrey de Mandevill Earl of Eſſex, and Roger Bigod Earl of Norfolk; who probably founded the Churches of White and Black Notley each upon their own lands, for the conveniency of their reſpective tenents, endowing them with glebes, and the tithes of their demeſnes and tenencies, and ſo they became two ſeveral pariſhes. At the time of the general ſurvey, the chief Lords here, were Euſtace Earl of Bulloin, Swein of Eſſex, Hamo Dapifer, John ſon of Waleran, Geffrey de Mandevill, one Saſſelin: and their under-tenents were Aluric a Theign, Godebold, Ralph, Robert, and John ſon of Ernuchen [S].

5. WHITE NOTLEY.

THIS pariſh contains the Parts mentioned in Domeſday-book that belonged to Euſtace Earl of Bouillon, Swein of Eſſex, and Hamo Dapifer. Thoſe that belonged to John ſon of Waleran, Geffrey Mandevill, and Saſſelin, are in Black Notley.

In 1210. and 1211. Roger Bigod Earl of Norfolk, and Earl Marſhall, held two knights fees here, of the King as of his honor of Bologne (i). Under him it was holden by the Engaine-family, [of which there is an account under Colne-Engaine. See alſo Upminſter.]

Henry Engaine, who dyed unmarried 56 Henry III, held the maner of White Notheley of the Earl Mareſchall, by the ſervice of 69 s. 8 d. a year. —John, his brother and heir (k), dyed the 25th of Edward I, holding this maner of the honor of Bologne, and of the Earl Mareſchall, paying the Earl 38 s. 8 d. per ann. And 11 acres of arable of the Prior of Tetford, by the yearly rent of 6 d. (l) By Joane his wife, daughter and heir of Henry Gray, he left his ſon and heir —John, who was ſummoned to parliament from 25 Edward I. to 14 Edward II. incluſive. (m) He departed this life 16 Edward II. without iſſue; ſo that —John, ſon of his brother Nicolas, by Amicia daughter of Walter de Fauconberg, was found his next heir. Being a Knight-banneret, he attended K. Edward III. in his wars in France; and had ſummons to parliament from 1342. to 1357. He dyed at his ſeat of Dillington in Huntingdonſhire, 14 February 1358, holding this maner of the Counteſs Mareſchall, jointly with his wife, who was Joane daughter of Sir Robert Peverell (n). They had one ſon, named Thomas, and three daughters, Joyce, Elizabeth, and Mary. The ſon, —Sir Thomas Engaine, born in 1336, held, among others, this maner of Sir William de Ufford, by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee, and 69 s. 4 d. yearly rent (o). He married Catharine daughter of Hugh Courtney Earl of Devonſhire, but dyed without iſſue, 29 June 1367; whereupon his three ſiſters above mentioned, being his next heirs, divided his eſtates; viz. Joyce, wife of William de Goldington; Elizabeth, of Sir Laurence Pabenham; and Mary, of Sir William Barnak (p). But the Lady Catharine, his widow, enjoyed this maner as part of her dower, till her deceaſe in 1398, or 1399 (q) [T].

Upon the partition, this maner, and that of Upminſter, came to the ſhare of Elizabeth, widow of Sir Laurence Pabenham, or Pakenham, (he being newly deceaſed). They had an only daughter named

Catharine (r), which brought this eſtate in frank marriage to her huſband Sir Thomas Aylesbury. He dyed in 1418, holding theſe maners of the Earl Mareſchall. —John his ſon and heir was then aged ſixteen (s). But he probably dyed young, or without heirs. For his mother Catharine taking to her ſecond huſband

Sir William Cheney, of Itlingburgh in Northamptonſhire, theſe maners appear for a while in that family (t). Their ſon — Laurence Cheney Eſq; married Elizabeth daughter of . . . Cocker, and had — Sir John Cheney, who married Elizabeth daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Rempſton of Nottinghamſhire, by Alice his wife, daughter and heir of Thomas Beckering and Margaret daughter of Sir John Loudham (u). He dyed 14 July 1489 (w), leaving his ſon — Sir Thomas Cheney, who held this eſtate [V], as his father before him, of the Duke of Norfolk as of his caſtle of Framlingham; and dyed 14 January 1513. Having married Anne daughter of Sir William Parre of Kirby Kendal, they had an only daughter

Elizabeth (x), married to Thomas Lord Vaux of Harrowden; who had iſſue by her William, and Nicolas, and two daughters. —— William Lord Vaux, the eldeſt ſon, dyed in 1595 (y) [W]. He married two wives, and had ſeveral children. But, before his deceaſe, he ſold this eſtate for 2500 l. (z) to

John Wright Eſq; For he dyed 5 May 1609, poſſeſs'd of the maner of White Notley, and the advowſon of Upminſter-church, holden of the maner of Hoo-hall in Suffolk, by fealty and a yearly rent of 59 s. 8 d. worth 10 l. per ann. clear:—John his ſon being of full age (a). [See an account of this family under Keldon-Hatch.]

This part was, by Henry de Eſſex one of his deſcendents, forfeited to the Crown in the time of K. Henry II. and with what Euſtace held given to the Bigod family. See above under Clavering and Rayleigh.

Hamo Dapifer's ſhare was as follows. Nutleiam tenet Radulfus de Hamone quod tenuit Aleſtanus liber homo pro manerio & pro dimid' hide & xxx acris. Semper i carucata. modo i bordarius. This Hamo Dapifer was Lord of Falkburne-hall. Liber Domeſd.

[T] She had only part of this maner in dower. For, by a deed in the poſſeſſion of the late Peter le Neve Eſq; dated in March 1375, it appears, that Nicolas de Stucle, Walter Laſſels, and Robert Waryn granted and confirmed to the ſaid Catharine two parts of two parts . . duas partes duarum partium of the maner of White Notele for her life, without impeachment of waſte: Remainder to the ſaid Sir Laurence Pabenham, and Elizabeth his wife, and their right heirs; with the reverſion of the third part of this maner which the ſaid Catharine had in dower before.

[V] It contained then 6 meſſuages, 100 acres of arable, 40 acres of meadow, 100 of paſture, 40 of wood, and 6 s. 8 d. rent. Inquiſ. 5 Hen. VIII. April 7.

[W] According to the Inquiſitions poſt mortem, William Lord Vaux of Harrowdon dyed 7 Jac. I. But, according to Dugdale's Baronage, the then Lord Vaux was named Edward. Vol. II. p. 305. — Some of the family gave name to Vaux-hall, the noted place of Recreation near London; which was once their ſeat.

The Quit-rent of 2 l. 19 s. 8 d. hath been purchaſed by John Wright Eſq; of the late Earl of Rochford, owner of Hoo-hall [X]. This maner continues ſtill in the Wright-family.

A family of ſome note, ſurnamed Whitebread, farmed White-Notley-hall of the Lord Vaux at 20 marks yearly, and lived here for ſome time. They intermarried with the Smyths of Creſſing. And Anne, daughter of Thomas Whitebread, married Henry Wright, father of John Wright, both of this place. — Some of the Whitebread-family were alſo ſeated at Writtle, and Margaret-ing (b) [Y].

They had an Eſtate here named Stanfields, which belongs now to Edward Tolladay Gent.

SLAMONDSEY, alias SLAMSEY,

is a maner, and hamlet, belonging to this pariſh, and ſtanding on the right hand ſide of the road from Braintree to Little Waltham: On the other ſide, it is ſeparated from the reſt of this pariſh by part of Black-Notley, and Great Lees. It conſiſts at preſent of three farms, Great and Little Slamondſey, and another farm between them.

The Biſhop of London was poſſeſs'd of it at the time of the general ſurvey [Z]. Afterwards it was in a family which took their ſurname from thence: for we find one Geffrey de Slamundeſheye mentioned. In Edward the Second's reign it ſeems to have been in the Engaines. For John de Engaine, who dyed about the year 1323, had one tenent in the hamlet of Slamondeſley, who held of him 60 acres of arable land (c). Soon after, viz. in 1328, John de Aſpale ſettled the maner of Slamundeſhey, with all its appertenances, in White and Black Nottele, upon his father Sir Robert de Aſpale, for the term of his life; and after his deceaſe upon Geffrey ſon of the ſaid Sir Robert, and his heirs male. Remainder, upon failure of ſuch iſſue, to the ſaid John (d).

In the 20th of Richard II. 1396, it was found to be in the Priory of Lees, but by whom given is not ſaid (e). The 12th of May 1535, John Ellys Prior of that Houſe granted this maner to Richard Duke for 40 years, at the yearly rent of 7 l. 10 s.

Upon the ſuppreſſion of Monaſteries K. Henry VIII. granted it, in 1537, to Richard Lord Riche; who dyed poſſeſs'd of it 12 June 1566. (f) — Robert his grandſon, 4 May 1582, ſold this maner, and 220 acres of arable parcel of the ſame, in the pariſhes of Great and Little Lees, to

John Foſter of Coxall, yeoman (g); who, 1 October 1601, alienated it to

Richard Everard; and a fine paſſed between them for the premiſſes, the 2d of November following. In purſuance of this Richard's will dated 9 December 1601, his executors ſold part of Slampſeys to Sir Oliver Boteler, Sir John Rouſe, and John Pake, 1 October 1602. And, on the 1ſt of September 1612, the two former had licenſe to ſell it again to Robert Lord Riche, afterwards Earl of Warwick (h). Upon diſmembring the Warwick great eſtate, as may be ſeen under Little Lees; this, among others, fell to the Earl of Scarſdale's ſhare. And he ſold Great Slameſleys, and Little Slameſleys, to Herman and John Olmius, Eſqrs. From them they have deſcended to John Olmius of Newhall, Eſq; now Lord Waltham.

The Farm between them, as above mention'd, called now Cut-hedge, belonged to Mr. Huxeley. But the preſent landlord is .... Tatom, Eſq;

Here are other leſſer Eſtates, of which the Names, and Owners, are,

Fambridge - - -	Capt. Banks.
Ponnett - - - -	Mrs. Rachel Bullock.
Little-Bury - -	John Clift.
Wiſtock - - -	Jerem. Brock, Gent.

There are two Alms-houſes, with two acres of land by the road ſide in this pariſh, given to the Poor by Major Whitebread of Badow. The Pariſhioners have erected ſince an Houſe for one dweller.

The CHURCH hath two iſles, but the Chancel none: The whole is tyled. At the weſt end there is a pretty lofty Spire, and 3 Bells.

In 1639, Henry Smith, alias Nevill, Eſq; proprietor of the great tithes, did thoroughly repair the Chancel; lining the inſide of the roof with boards, on which are painted ſome Eſcocheons, containing the ſeveral quarterings of the Smith and Nevill families of Creſſing Temple.

Roger Bigod, who poſſeſs'd ſix Lordſhips in this county (i), having founded a monaſtery at Thetford in Norfolk in the year 1103, for Cluniac monks, endowed it with ſeveral Churches. William Bigod his ſon confirmed the ſame: But the Convent not having had them in poſſeſſion, the ſaid William ordered, that they ſhould in the mean time have two parts of the Tithes of ſeveral maners granted by his father, amongſt which were the Tithes of this, by the name of Nutheleia. The grant of this Church and Tithes was confirm'd by K. Henry II (k), and alſo by the Pope. Afterwards in 1273, a Vicarage was ordain'd here, and endow'd, the Biſhop of London reſerving to himſelf and ſucceſſors the Nomination of a Vicar, which right hath continued in the Biſhops of London ever ſince (l).

The profits of the monaſtery at Thetford becoming veſted in the Crown at the Suppreſſion, K. Henry VIII. 22 June 1540, granted the impropriate Tithes and advowſon of the Vicarage of White Notley to Thomas Duke of Norfolk (m). In 1549, they were in Giles Keilway (n): afterwards in Harvey (o). Then in the Smiths, alias Nevill, of Creſſing Temple, ann. 1612, 1635, &c. (p) And in their ſucceſſors, the Davies's (q).

6. BLACK NOTLEY.

THIS pariſh contains what was holden, at the time of the Survey, under the name of Nutlea, by John ſon of Waleran, Geffrey de Mandevill, and Saſſeline, as we have ſhewn above [A].

Theſe poſſeſſions were afterwards divided into two maners; viz. 1. The maner of Black Notley, with Gobions. 2. That of Stauntons.

The maner of BLACK-NOTLEY.

The hall, or manſion houſe, ſtands near the church.

What Waleran and Saſſeline held in particular, centered in the Mandevill family, and became incorporated into the Honor of Mandevill: of which this maner was holden by the ſervice of one knight's-fee and a half (r). William de Mandevill, ſon of Geffrey above mentioned, by Margaret daughter of Eudo Dapifer, had two ſons, Geffrey Earl of Eſſex, and—Walter. The latter had this eſtate; for he is recorded in Henry the Second's reign to hold four knights fees here, and in the neighbourhood, of his brother [B]. By his wife Gunnilda, daughter of Maurice the Sheriff, otherwiſe ſurnamed Fitz-Gilbert, he had—Sir Thomas de Mandevill, who held four knights fees here, and in Bromfend and Great Waltham (s). He married Roſe . . . . by which he had his ſon — Sir John, who had licenſe in the 48th of Henry III. to hunt in the county of Eſſex (t). His ſon and heir, — Sir Thomas de Mandevill, held four knights fees here and in the foreſaid pariſhes, in 1302 (u). And having married Iſmena ſiſter of Sir John de Roos, he had by her—Walter, who by his wife, Agnes daughter of Nicolas Barrington, had—Sir Thomas, living in 1372 (w); and who had a park in this pariſh. He married Anne daughter and heir of Thomas de Drokenſteild, or Drokensford, by whom he had his ſon — Sir Thomas, who marrying . . . . daughter of . . . Wauton, Kt. had by her — Thomas, Alice, and Joane (x). Thomas dyed in 1399, under age, and without iſſue: Whereupon his two ſiſters became his coheirs. Joane was wife, firſt of John Barry, and afterwards of William Pirton of Ipſwich.

Alice had for her ſhare the maner of Black Notley, and other eſtates in this county. [See under Stapleford-Tany, and Bromfield.] She was married, firſt to Helmingius Legat Eſq; Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1401. and 1408 (y), and had by him, Thomas, who did not ſucceed to any of her eſtates [C]. Her ſecond huſband was—Roger, or Richard, Spice, deſcended from the family of Spice, ſeated at Bocking, and Willingale-Spain. He dyed 11 March 1459, and lyes buried in this church (z). By her he had his ſon and heir—Clement Spice of Black Notley, Eſq; She dyed in 1420 (a) [D]. Her ſon Clement dyed in 1483; having married Alice daughter of Sir John Montgomery, and ſiſter and coheir to Sir Thomas Montgomery of Falkbourn-hall (b), by which he had his ſon and heir—Humfrey, who departed this life 28 October 1485, leaving

Philippa, his daughter and heir, aged only one year (c). She was married to John Forteſcue Eſq; to whom ſhe brought a very great eſtate, [as may be ſeen under Falkbourn.] But the maner of Black Notley was not part of that great eſtate: For it went to

Joan Bradbury, that dyed poſſeſs'd of it, (11 May 1530,) and of other lands in White Notley, both the Lees, Felſtead, and Fairſtead, of the yearly value of 40 marks, holden of the King as of his Duchy of Lancaſter: being then a widow (d). Who this perſon was, and how her title accrued, we cannot find; but believe ſhe was ſiſter to Humfrey Spice, or one of that family. She was twice married: Her firſt huſband was Thomas Bodley, by whom ſhe had James, and a daughter named Dionyſia. Her ſecond huſband was Thomas Bradbury, Lord Mayor of London in 1509, ſon of William

The ſons were, 1. John, who married . . . daughter and heir of . . . Baron, but dyed without iſſue before his father. 2. Thomas, of whom hereafter. 3. Nicolas, and 4. John, who left no children. Dionyſia outlived her huſband, and dyed 10 September 1561. being poſſeſs'd of the maner of Black Notley, and of 10 meſſuages, 400 acres of arable, 100 acres of meadow, 500 acres of paſture, 200 acres of wood, and 10 l. rent in this pariſh, and White Notley: as alſo of 3 other meſſuages, 3 gardens, 3 tofts, 100 acres of arable, 12 of meadow, 20 of paſture, 12 of alder, 60 of wood; 3 l. 5 s. 2 d. rent, and 2 capons, in this pariſh, Great and Little Leighes, and Fayrſted, holden of the Queen, as of her maner of Pleſhie, parcel of the Duchy of Lancaſter, in free ſocage, value 40 l. per ann. (f)—Thomas, her ſecond ſon, then aged 28, became her heir. He was of Halling in Kent, and dyed 21 April 1576, poſſeſs'd of this maner. By his wife Urſula, daughter of Sir John Greſham of Tilleſley in Surrey, he had nine daughters: Dionyſia, Mary, Elizabeth, Frances, Urſula, Anne, Greſild, Mary, and Nazareth: and three ſons, John; Thomas, who dyed without iſſue; and William, who, by a daughter of . . . Robotham of the wardrobe to Qu. Elizabeth, had Thomas, born in 1594.—John, the eldeſt ſon, born in 1555, ſucceeded his father (g). He had two wives. 1. Chriſtian, daughter of Sir William Mildmay, Chancellor of the Exchequer, by which he had five daughters, Elizabeth, Rachel, Mary, Chriſtian, and Frances; and five ſons, John, Richard, Thomas, Henry, and Francis. 2. His ſecond wife was Margaret, daughter of Sir Richard Manwood, chief Baron of the Exchequer: He had by her, Elizabeth, Margaret, and Elizabeth.—John Leveſon Kt. the eldeſt ſon, held a court here in 1615. But in 1616, 1618, 1619, and 1620, it was holden in the name of Sir Francis Fane, Sir Richard Newport, Kts. Edward Barret, and Walter Barret, Eſqrs. Then we find the maner in—Richard the ſecond ſon, born in 1588, and created Knight of the Bath at the coronation of K. Charles I. He held courts here in 1627, 1628, 1631, and 1633 (h). But, about 1634, he ſold this eſtate (i) to [F] Thomas Keightley Eſq; who kept a court here 18 Sept. 1634. It has been enjoy'd ſince by
. . . Thorowgood Eſq;
. . . Pate Eſq;
Francis Aſty Eſq; At preſent it belongs to Sir Marmaduke-Aſty Wyvill Bart.

This maner hath Court leet and baron.

is now annex'd to the maner of Black-Notley. It is a farm houſe on the right hand ſide of the road from Braintree to Falkbourn. Clement Spice held it in 1483, it comprehending then 2 meſſuages, 100 acres of arable, 20 of wood, and 12 of meadow, in White and Black Notley; holden of the King as of the honor of Mandeville (k).

The Hall-eſtate conſiſts of about four Farms, viz. the Hall, and Park, Stauntons, Tanners, &c. with ſome woods; amounting in the whole to between four and five hundred pounds a year.

Other Eſtates of ſome conſequence in this pariſh.

A meſſuage and lands called Plumtrees, alias the Buck, formerly belonging to James Coker Eſq; now to Milbourne Carter Eſq; in right of his wife for life.

Balls, a farm of about 24 l. a year, formerly belonging to the great Mr. Ray, now to William Rayment Gent. who hath built a new houſe near the ſite of the former.

A farm called Stocks, and lands, late James Coker's, now belonging to the ſaid Mr. Rayment.

A farm of 60 l. a year called Dagneys, Samuel Ruggles Eſq; landlord.

A farm of about 50 l. a year, called Lumners, belonging to Mr. George Lilly.

The whole Pariſh is by computation 800 l. a year.

In 1274. a Fine paſſed between John de Nutteley, plaintiff, and Simon de Nutteley, deforciant, of one meſſuage, 240 acres of arable, 6 acres of meadow, 3 acres of wood, 14 of paſture, and 13 s. . . d. rent, with appertenances in Nuteley, Blanche Nuteley, Neyre, and Leyes; to hold to the ſaid Simon, and his heirs (l).

The Priory of Leighs had a meſſuage, and ten acres of land in this pariſh, as appears by a Fine paſſed in the octaves of St. Martin, 36 Henry III. (m).

Charities.

Mr. Coker left an Eſtate at Bocking, called Hull-buſh, of 13 l. per ann. Of which, Eight pounds, for 8 poor widows, diſtributed at Lady-day: And Five pounds a year, for a School to teach the poor children, and others.

Mary, daughter of Edwin Walford of this pariſh, Gent. and married firſt to Humphrey

Richard Leveſon was the laſt of this family that lived there, about 1525, or 1526. He had 3 ſons; John, of whoſe deſcendents we find nothing; Nicolas, above-mentioned; and James, from whom ſprung Frances Leveſon, which being married to Sir Thomas Gower, occaſioned the name of Leveſon to be adopted into that noble family. The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, is of one pace with the chancel, both tyled: on the weſt end, a wooden turret, containing 3 bells; at the top of which ſtands a ſpire, ſhingled.

This Church, with lands and tithes, was given by Walter de Mandevill to the Priory of the Holy Trinity in London, and confirmed to them by K. Henry III. February 8. 1217 (o). They continued patrons of it till their ſuppreſſion. After that, K. Henry VIII. in 1544. granted the Advowſon to John Cock and his heirs, to be holden of the maner of Clerkenwell. (p) Then it came to the Leveſon family, and paſſed from them to their ſucceſſors Lords of this maner.

The Parſonage-houſe was new built by the late Rector, Geffrey Barton; who alſo had the great Living of St. Andrew's Holbourn

The learned William Bedell, Biſhop of Kilmore, was born in this pariſh in 1570. See his Life written by G. Burnet, D. D.

But the greateſt honor it received, was by giving birth to that truly Chriſtian Philoſopher, that beſt of Men, Mr. John Ray, whoſe father was a blackſmith in this pariſh. A monument was erected near his grave in the Church-yard, on the ſouth ſide of the Church; being a ſquare pedeſtal of white marble, ſurrounded with an iron balluſtrade. But it beginning to be injured by the weather, was removed into the Church. He was born 29 November 1628, and dyed 17 January 1705-6. See his life in Biographia Britannica.

7. TERLING

LIES between Hatfeild-Peverell and Fairſtead, and is bounded on the weſt by Chelmsford-hundred. The firſt part of the name we cannot account for, unleſs it is taken from a Saxon owner: as for the termination Inᵹ, it ſignifies a meadow, or paſture ground.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign Terling was holden by Ailmar, a King's Thegen, or great officer; and by Ralf Peverell at the time of the general ſurvey [G]. One Richard was his under-tenent.

This pariſh contains the following Maners, or capital Eſtates. 1. The maner of Terling-place. 2. That of Margeries, or Terling-hall. 3. The maner of Ringers. 4. Ridley-hall.

1. The maner of TERLING.

The manſion houſe ſtands near the Church.

Originally, this was part of the endowment of the Abbey at Ely; to which it was confirmed by Edward the Confeſſor (q). But it was taken from it by William the Conqueror, on account of the protection afforded there to ſome of the revolted Engliſh, and given to Ralf Peverell. And afterwards it appears to have been holden of the King in capite of the Honor of Peverell. Then we find it in the family of Brus [H], and in that of Bohun, Earls of Hereford and Eſſex, as Lords paramount.

Under them it was poſſeſs'd as early as the year 1269. by the Biſhops of Norwich (r): And they had a Park, and a Palace in this place, with a Chapel that had the privilege of ſanctuary. Here it was that the famous Hubert de Burgh Earl of Kent and Chief Juſtice fled for refuge againſt the diſpleaſure of his ſovereign K. Henry III (s). In the ſee of Norwich it continued, till Richard Nix exchanged it, and many others, with the Crown, in 1535, for the lands, maners, &c. belonging to St. Benet de Hulm (t).

K. Henry VIII. reſided here ſome time: For there are ſeveral acts of his, dated from this place; particularly the creation of Sir Edward Seymour as Viſcount Beauchamp, 5 June 1536 (u).

Part of this maner appears formerly to have belonged to a family ſurnamed de Mandut, mention'd under Hatfield Peverell. For Gilbert Mandut, who dyed 45 Henry III. held, in Terling, of the King, 180 acres of arable, and 30 s. rent, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee. His ſon—John forfeiting it on account of rebellion, it was given to the Biſhop of Norwich (w). Accordingly it was found, in 1383, that the Biſhop of Norwich held here the maner of Terling called Mandutes, of the Honor of Peverell (x).

[H] For, under the knights fees of Robert de Brus, 10 Edward II. it appears, that the Biſhop of Norwich held two knights fees in Terling and Hatfeild-Peverell of the ſaid Robert, and that they were ſeis'd into the King's hands, by reaſon of the forfeiture of Robert ſon and heir of the ſaid Robert de Brus. Inquiſ. 10 Ed. II. See under Writtle.—In the 22 of Henry VI. the Biſhop of Norwich obtained a grant of a market and a fair at Terling. Pat. 22 Hen. VI. p. 2. m. 18. or 19.

K. Henry VIII. 10 October 1536, granted this maner of Terling, and the advowſon of the Rectory and Vicarage, to Thomas Audeley, Lord Chancellor of England, and Thomas Pomell (y). [I] That Lord obtained licenſe, 8 September 1538, to alienate them to John Eyre, and others (z). Notwithſtanding which, he dyed 8 May 1544, poſſeſs'd of them. Margaret and Mary were his daughters and coheirs. But by will he left theſe to his wife Elizabeth for her life: She took to her ſecond huſband Sir George Norton, who in her right preſented to the Vicarage in 1558. and 1560 (a).—Margaret, eldeſt daughter, and upon her ſiſter Mary's deceaſe ſole heir, to Lord Audeley, married firſt Henry Dudley younger ſon of John Dudley Duke of Northumberland; ſecondly,

Thomas Howard Duke of Norfolk: And he having this eſtate in right of her, got licenſe, 1 April 1563, (b) to ſell it to

Thomas Mildmay of Moulſham, Eſq; He dyed poſſeſs'd of it 25 September 1566 (c). His ſon—Sir Thomas is ſaid to have held it next (d). But it is more probable, that Thomas Mildmay Eſq; ſettled it upon his third ſon—John, ſeated at Cretingham in Suffolk. For—Robert Mildmay, citizen and merchant of London, ſon of the ſaid John, was poſſeſs'd of it, and preſented to the Vicarage from 1632. to 1687, ſo that he muſt have arrived to a great age. He was a Juſtice of peace for this county; and dyed without iſſue. In this eſtate he was ſucceeded by his kinſman—Robert, grandſon of Capt. William Mildmay. He married Mary daughter of Sir Edmund Roſſeter of Lincolnſhire, Kt. by which he had, Robert, that dyed young; and ſix daughters, Mary, wife of George Knott of the inner Temple, Eſq; Elizabeth; Jane; and Lucy; all three ſingle; Arabella, wife of Edward Dixey Eſq; and Anne, wife of Laurence St. Loe Eſq; Juſtice of Peace for Middleſex. Theſe coheireſſes ſold this eſtate to Thomas Weſtern of Rivenhall, Eſq; who gave it in marriage, with his daughter Frances, to Henry Featherſtone Eſq; brother to Sir Heneage Featherſtone of Haſſingbrook in Stanford-le-Hope. He dyed 9 June 1711. and ſhe 14 June 1746.

Of Sir Matthew Featherſtone-haugh it was purchaſed in 1761, by John Strutt Eſq; deſcended from Sir Denner Strutt of Little Warley.

2. The maner of MARGERIES, or Terling-hall.

The manſion houſe ſtands about a mile from the Church.

This ſeems to have been holden at firſt by a family ſurnamed de Terling. For, in Henry the Second's reign, Luke de Terling held a knight's-fee of Nigell Biſhop of Ely of the old feoffment (e). In the 42d of Henry III. Luke de Terling held of the King, in ca. one knight's-fee in Terlinges, worth 10 l. per ann. (f)—Hubert, his ſon and heir, dyed the 55th of the ſaid King, holding a knight's fee here, of the King in ca. 259 acres and a half of arable, by the ſerjeancy of finding one horſe and man completely armed in the King's wars in Wales forty days, at his own charge. He had moreover here 3 acres and a half of meadow, 11 of paſture, 6 of better paſture, 13 of wood, and 15 free tenents (g).—John his ſon held alſo here a knight's-fee of King Edward I (h). And—John de Terling, who dyed in 1329, held 1 meſſuage, 160 acres of arable, 4 acres of meadow, 8 of paſture, 13 s. 4 d. rent, of the King in ca. of the Honor of Peverell.—Thomas was his ſon and heir (i). In 1337, John, ſon of Thomas de Terling, releaſed to his father, and Margaret his wife, for their lives, all the right he had, in one meſſuage, 220 acres of arable, 3 acres of paſture, 6 acres and one rood of meadow, and 2 acres of wood, in Terling, Boreham, Faireſted, Springefeld, and Great Leighes (k). We hear no further of this family.

John de Brianzon, who dyed 9 Edward II. held this maner of Terling by the ſervice of one knight's-fee.—John was his ſon and heir (l).

Edward Gelgelt was found, in 1521, to hold the maner of Terling-hall of the King, as of his Honor of Peverell. And—William, his ſon and heir, was then aged 24 years (m).

John Akelane had licenſe, 1 May 1553, to ſell a moiety of the maner of Terling, alias Terling-hall, alias Margeries, with the appertenances (n), to

John Smith; [of which Family ſee an account under Little Badow.] His father, Sir Clement Smith, held before a moiety of the ſame (o); it being deſcribed as containing 10 meſſuages, 600 acres of arable, 20 of meadow, 100 of paſture, 40 of wood, and 10 l. rent, in Terling, Fairſtead, Boreham, Great Leyes, and Hatfeild-Peverell.—Thomas Smyth had licenſe, 16 May 1562, to alienate this maner, holden in capite, to

Thomas Blackwell (p), who, 14 June 1564, had licenſe to ſell it again to Thomas Shaa, Gent. (q) And—Edmund Shaa held it in 1635. An heireſs of this family brought it to the preſent, that of Godebold.

This family came out of Suffolk, and firſt ſettled at Topingho-hall in Hatfeild-Peverell; which they got by marriage. For—John Godebold Eſq; married Mary, eldeſt daughter of John Sammes Eſq; and had Topingho-hall with her: His children by her, were, Antony; Richard; —and John. This laſt married two wives; viz. 1ſt. Anne, daughter and heireſs of . . . Shaa Eſq; which brought Terling-hall into his family. Anne, their only child, dyed young, and lies buried in this church. His 2d wife was, Priſcilla, daughter of Matthew Rudd of Woodham-Walter, Gent. By her he had, John; Sammes, that dyed young; Priſcilla, wife of Charles Brampton of . . . . in Norfolk, Eſq; Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Brampton of Aye, Gent. and Bridget, a nun at Roan in Normandy. —John, the eldeſt ſon, married Anne, daughter of Brabazon Aylmer of Mugdon Hall in Ulting, Eſq; and had by her eight children, viz. John; Anne, ... Mary, Charles, Antony, Jane; which four laſt dyed young, or ſingle; Richard, M. A. of Clare-hall in Cambridge, Rector of

3. The Maner of RINGERS took its name from an ancient family.

The manſion houſe is about a mile from the church.

John Rengger held this eſtate in the reigns of K. Henry III. and Edward I. He alſo purchaſed a meſſuage and lands in Little Badew, formerly belonging to Robert de Borham (r). Of him

Nicolas le Gras, or Gros, having bought it, a recovery accordingly paſſed between them, 13 Edward I, of a meſſuage, 110 acres of arable, 5 of paſture, 2 of meadow, 12 of wood, and 13 s. 10 d. rent in Terling, and Hatfeild-Peverell (s). — Ralph le Gras, who dyed the 26th of the ſame King, held here one meſſuage, 300 acres of arable, 12 acres of meadow, 20 acres of paſture, and 40 s. rent, of the Biſhop of Norwich, by the ſervice of one knight's fee (t). —Roger his brother ſucceeding him, departed this life the 32d of the ſame reign, poſſeſs'd of this eſtate called the maner of Terling, holden as before.—Nicolas was his ſon and heir (u).

It was next in the Goldington-family, ſeated at Aldham. William Goldington dying the 12th of Edward II. was found to hold the maner of Ringers here of the Biſhop of Norwich, by the ſervice of the 4th part of a knight's fee, and 4 s. 11 d. per ann.—Catharine his widow enjoyed it after him, and dyed in 1358.—John Goldington was their ſon. But ſhe had been remarried to John Farmer (w).

John Cherteſeye held it in 1392 (x). However we find it again in Goldington. For — John Goldington, who dyed in 1419, was poſſeſs'd of Ringers. — Thomas, his ſon and heir, was then aged thirteen (y): He dyed two years after, and his heir was John Henxtwell, ſon of Catharine his father's ſiſter (z).

We find it next in the Rocheſter-family, which reſided, or had eſtates, in this pariſh from the 10th of Edward II. 1316, to the year 1618; and thirteen of which family were buried in this church (a).

A Fine paſs'd, 10 Edward II, between Richard de Rouceſter and Agnes his wife, plaintiffs, and John ſon of Richard de Hatfeild-Peverell, deforciant, for one meſſuage, 30 acres of land, and 6 d. rent in Terling, the right of the ſaid John, to hold to Richard de Rouceſter and his wife (b). — Robert Rocheſter, who dyed 15 May 1508, held the maner of Ringers of the Biſhop of Norwich, as of his maner of Terling-hall.— William, his ſon and heir, was then eleven years old (c): He departed this life 2 September 1558. holding this eſtate of Thomas Smith Eſq; (d)— John, his ſon, ſucceeded, and dyed in March 1584 (e).

Thomas Roberts Eſq; appears upon record the next poſſeſſor of this eſtate, which he held of Robert Wiſeman Eſq; of his maner of Necton in Terling. He dyed 2 July 1636. and—Thomas his ſon, aged upwards of 18, was his heir (f). [See a further account of that family under Little Brackſtead.]

Afterwards, the maner of Ringers was in . . . Haver, of Norfolk, Gent. who ſold it to . . . . Taverner of Halſtead. From him it paſſed to

John Godebold of Terling-hall, Eſq; who alienated it to

John Harris of Red-croſs-ſtreet London, diſtiller. He married Sarah Sawin of Great Lees, by whom he had two ſons, Sawin, and Benjamin.— Sawin dying without iſſue, Ringers deſcended to his brother—Benjamin; who, in 1746, ſold it to Mr. John Strutt of Maldon.

¶ Lowes, or Loys-hall, is a reputed maner in this pariſh; which formerly belonged to the Rocheſters. For William Rocheſter above mentioned held, in 1558, this maner as it is called; and the maner of Skarletts in this pariſh alſo, of Sir George Norton, of his Rectory of Terling: and his ſon—John ſucceeded him (g).

It was afterwards in . . . . Taverner, who bought it of . . . . Haver; and, in his ſon— James Taverner M. D. after whoſe deceaſe it was purchaſed by Mr.

John Strutt of Maldon.

As the Rocheſter-family flouriſhed here many years, it will be proper to give a more particular Account of them.

Richard de Rouceſter was of this pariſh as early as the year 1316, or 1317, 10 Edward II, and his wife was named Agnes. See above.— John Rowcheſter dyed 8 September 1444. and was buried in this church, with Agnes his wife, married firſt to William Gotham (h). He had been return'd in 1433. one of the chief Gentlemen of this county, appointed for the better keeping of the peace (i). Robert Rocheſter, and Johanna his wife, are alſo buried in this church (k).—Robert Rocheſter, Controller of the houſhold to John Earl of Oxford, dyed 4 May 1506, and lies buried here with Elizabeth his wife (l). —John, their ſon and heir, dyed 16 January 1507. His wife was Griſild, daughter and coheir of Ralph Writtle (remarried after his deceaſe to Thomas Weſt), and they had iſſue, Robert, William, and John. The eldeſt—Sir Robert was controller of the houſhold to K. Philip and Qu. Mary, but dyed 28 November 1557. without iſſue (m). — William, his next brother, ſucceeding him, dyed 2 September 1558, as did Elizabeth his wife, daughter and heir of Thomas Newton, 29 July 1556 (n). They had four ſons, John; Edward, who dyed without iſſue; Thomas; John; and two daughters, Griſild, wife of Joblyn Peaſe; and Philip-

His 2d wife, Joanna . . . . had two children, Robert and Mary. He dyed 31 March 1584 (o).—Emerias, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married Mary daughter of John Abell of Wormingford, and had by her—John, born in 1569; who took to wife Frances daughter of Francis Stonard of Knolles-hill in this county; and dyed 30 April 1618 (p) [L].

4. RIDLEY-HALL, is a very old houſe, that ſtands about a mile from this church, towards that of Great Lees.

In Edward the Confeſſor's time it was holden by one Eſgar, and at the time of the Survey by Geffrey de Mandeville [M].

Afterwards it belonged to a Family, which from thence took the ſurname of Riddelee, or Redleigh.

For Richard Riddelee, who dyed 31 Edward I, held in this pariſh of Sir William Bonvyle by the ſervice of the 4th part of a knight's-fee, a capital meſſuage in Terlinges, with 80 acres of arable, one acre and half of meadow, 6 of paſture, and 4d. rent.—Alſo another tenement at Le Fayrewood of Sir Robert de Hilton, in free marriage with Roveigne his wife.—Peter was his ſon and heir (q).—Roger Redleigh held it, by the ſame ſervice, of Henry de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed in 1372 (r).

After a long intermiſſion, we find it in the Browne-family, [of which there is an account under South-weald.] For Sir Humfrey Browne, one of the Judges of the Common Pleas, who dyed 5 September 1563, held the maner of Ridley-hall.—George, his ſon and heir, was then 50 years of age (s).

It came afterwards into the poſſeſſion of the noble owners of New-Hall: and lately was in —Elizabeth, ſucceſſively widow of Chriſtopher Monk Duke of Albemarle, and of Ralph Duke of Montague. [See under Boreham.] With New-hall it was purchaſed by

Benjamine Hoare Eſq; who, about 1733, ſold it again to Thomas Chitty Eſq; a whole-ſale grocer in Thames-ſtreet; knighted; Sheriff in 1754, and in 1760, Lord Mayor of London.

Whether this is what formerly was called the Maner of Necton in this pariſh, we are not able to determine. But ſuch a Maner here anciently was, as appears under Ringers; it being then in Wiſeman. In the 45th of Henry III, about 1261, Henry de Neketon held at Terlinges 360 acres of arable, 8 of meadow, 3 of paſture, and 6 l. rent of aſſiſe, of the King in ca. by the ſervice of one knight's-fee: And of Sir Robert de Brus two knights fees.—William was his ſon and heir (t).

Henry Earl of Hereford held here one knight's fee called Neketon, and his under-tenent was Michael de Haleweſton.—Nicolas de Haluyghton received here 5 merks, of 21 free tenents, who held under the Earl of Hereford about 1285 (u).

¶ Okenden-fee, alias Owles-hill, is an Eſtate in this pariſh; facing the road from Fairſtead as ſoon as you are out of that place. It belonged to Sir Thomas Montgomery in 1494 (w), lately to John Huckeby, now to Mr. Hollis. [See under the maner of Porters in Boreham.] The quit-rents are about 4 l. per ann.

William Mandut held 180 acres of arable, and 30 s. rent here, in 1261 (x).

The Knights Hoſpitallers had ſome Eſtate in this pariſh (y); which at the ſuppreſſion fell to the Crown: And is undoubtedly what we find improperly called the maner of Terling-hall, holden by Richard Ratcliff Eſq; [who dyed 14 Auguſt 1541.] of the King in ca. as of his Priory of St. John's of Jeruſalem (z).

A Leet belonging to Creſſing-temple is kept here on the laſt day of December: And by preſcription chooſes 2 conſtables, and 2 weighers of bread. The fine to the Lord is ten groats.

There are Alms-houſes near the church, for two families: And others for three dwellers, above half a mile from the church, near a Green.

A meſſuage in this pariſh belonged to Lees-Priory, which Sir Richard Rich alienated to the Lord Audeley (a): and he to Mildmay.

The CHURCH, dedicated to All-Saints, conſiſts of a body with a South-iſle, and a chancel. The iſle is leaded, but the reſt tyled. At the weſt end there is a ſquare Tower of ſtone, containing 5 bells, over which ſtands a lofty ſpire ſhingled.

This Church was anciently appendent to the Maner of Terling-place, that belonged to the Biſhops of Norwich; who, we ſuppoſe, got a Vicarage ordained here, of which they continued patrons till Henry the Eighth's time. Since that, it hath paſſed, with the maner, to Audeley and his heirs; to Mildmay; Weſtern; Fetherſton; and John Strutt Eſq;

According to Mr. Le Neve's collections, this pariſh church was appropriated to the monaſtery of Butley in Suffolk, and the Pope granted a bull for confirmation of the ſame.

8. HATFIELD-PEVERELL.

THE name of Hatfield is written in Saxon theſe different ways, Heaꞇꝼelð, Hæðꝼelð, and Heðꝼelða (b), ſignifying a Heathy or bruſhy field: And Peverell is added to this, by way of diſtinction from the other Hatfeild in this county, which is ſtyled Hatfield Broad-oak, or Regis. In records it is otherwiſe named, Hadfelda, Hetfend, and Hethfeld.

This pariſh lies chiefly on the London-road, between Boreham and Witham.

In the Saxons time it was holden by Almar, and thirteen Freemen. And, at the general Survey, by Ranulph, or Ralph, Peverell, who was then ſeiz'd of thirty five Lordſhips in Eſſex [O]. Part of this was holden under him by Serlo, Ennuif, and Richard.

At preſent there are in this Pariſh the following maners, or capital Eſtates. 1. The maner of Hatfeild-Peverell, alias Hatfeild Termines, or Termytts. 2. The Priory and maner of Hatfeild-Peverell. 3. The maner of Earneſt-fee, alias Bovington's. 4. Smalland, alias Marſhalls, vulgarly Murſhee. 5. Toppingo, alias Toppingehou.

1. The maner of HATFEILD-PEVERELL, alias Termine.

This laſt name it took from a family: For Elene Termine held lands in this pariſh, the 32d of Edward I. (c)

The manſion-houſe, called Hatfeild-bury, lies about half a mile north from the church.

This Lordſhip was poſſeſs'd about the reign of William II. or Henry I. by the Normans and Britons, without legal title, as is intimated (d).

K. John gave it to Geffrey Fitz-Peter Earl of Eſſex, being 3 carucates of land.

Afterwards it was, with the reſt of the Barony of Peverell, in the cuſtody of William de Mandeville Earl of Eſſex; who granted it to Hubert de Burgh the great Earl of Kent; and to him it was confirmed by K. Henry III. [P] in September 1227 (e). — John de Burgh, Earl of Kent, ſucceeded his father; but gave this maner to Richard de South-chirch.

Probably it came again to the Crown. For K. Edward II. granted it, in 1310, to Edmund Bacun, or Bacon, in fee (f). By Margaret . . . his wife he had two daughters — Margaret, and — Margery. But his wife held this eſtate for term of her life; partly of the King as of his Honor of Huntingdon, and partly of the Earl of Hereford, by homage and the third part of a knight's fee, and two pairs of gilt ſpurs of 12 d. price. After his deceaſe ſhe was married again to Sir Nicolas de Beche, Conſtable of the Tower of London in 1339. She departed this life in 1349. Of her two daughters aforeſaid, Margaret was married to William de Kerdeſton, or Keneſton [Q], and Margery to John de Molins (g). Margaret had only two daughters, Maud, and Margaret; of whom the latter was married to William Tendring, and had by him — William, whoſe daughter and heir — Alice, became the wife of John Howard father of Robert.

As for the eldeſt, Maud de Kerdeſton, ſhe was married to John de Burgherſh, of the noble family of Burgherſh, owners of the Lordſhip of Burgherſh in Suſſex (h). He dyed in the 19th of Richard II. poſſeſs'd of the maner of Hatfeild, holden of Thomas Duke of Glouceſter, and Elianor his wife, in her right as of her caſtle of Pleſhey, by the rent of 12 d. for all ſervice; And of one meſſuage and one carucate in Hatfeild-Peverell, called Termynes; — of the Prior of St. John's of Jeruſalem, as of his maner of Creſſing-Temple. He married Iſmania, daughter of . . . . Hanham, of Glouceſterſhire, widow of Sir John Ralegh of Nettlecombe, by whom he had two daughters, coheirs, named — Margaret, and — Maud. Iſmania dyed 8

[Q] William de Kerdeſton had, by another wiſe named Alice de Norwich, a ſon named William.

Henry V. 1420. ſeized of this maner, which was divided between her two daughters (i).

Margaret, the eldeſt, was married, firſt, to Sir John Grenevill; ſecondly, to John Arundell of . . . in Cornwall, Kt. The latter dyed the 2d of Henry VI. 1423, poſſeſs'd of a moiety of this maner, leaving his only ſon and heir —John Arundell, aged three years (k).

Maud, the youngeſt daughter, had the other moiety of this maner; and a meſſuage and 1 carucate of land called Termyns. She married Thomas Chaucer, ſon of the famous Poet Geffrey Chaucer; and departed this life 15 Henry VI, 1436, or 1437, leaving an only daughter (l),

Alice Chaucer, which was twice married. Her firſt huſband was Sir John Phelip; and the ſecond — William de la Pole, Duke of Suffolk. This latter dyed about 1449, 28 Henry VI, ſeized of the premiſſes in right of Alice his wife, [P] leaving his ſon and heir — John de la Pole, Duke of Suffolk, then only 8 years old (m). He married Elizabeth, ſiſter to K. Edward IV. by which he had ſeveral children, and dyed in 1491.—John, his eldeſt ſon and heir, 13 March 1467, in his father's life-time, was created Earl of Lincoln. But unhappily engaging in Lambert Simnel's affair, was ſlain in battle, at Stoke in Nottinghamſhire, 16 June 1487. Whereupon this, and the reſt of his eſtates, became forfeited to the Crown (n)

On the 21ſt of December 1487, K. Henry VII. granted this eſtate to Oliver St. John Eſq; who was related to him by Margaret Beauchamp, mother by the firſt marriage to Sir John and Sir Oliver St. John; and by the ſecond marriage mother to Margaret Beaufort Counteſs of Richmond, the ſaid King's mother (o). This Oliver dyed 3 April 1497, poſſeſſed of the maner of Hatfeild-Peverell and Termyns.—John, his ſon and ſucceſſor, was then 24 years old (p): He was knighted by K. Henry VII, and one of the executors to Margaret Counteſs of Richmond, foundreſs of Chriſt's, and St. John's, colleges in Cambridge. Departing this life 1 September 1512, he left — John, his ſon and heir, then 7 years old (q); who being in ward to Sir Richard Carew of Bedington in Surrey, he married him to Margaret, one of his daughters. And by her he had three ſons, Nicolas, William, and John (r). He dyed 5 April 1576, holding the maner of Hatfeild Peverell and Termines of the Queen in ca. of her honor of Huntingdon, and was ſucceeded therein by his eldeſt ſon — Nicolas (s), of Lydiard Tregoze.

In the mean time we find, that, four years after, without a reaſon aſſigned, Qu. Elizabeth by letters patent granted a meſſuage and one carucate of land in Hatfeild-Peverell, called Termyns, alias Termytts, to Edmund Haſelwood, and Edward Thomlinſon (t).

And, 21 October 1488, ſhe granted the ſame, ſtyled the farm, lordſhip, or maner of Termynes, alias Termytts, to Edward Wymarke, with the appertenances in the tenure of Nicolas St. John (u).

This Nicolas dyed 8 November 1589, ſeiz'd of the maner of Hatfeld-Peverell and Termyns, then worth 37 l. clear. — John St. John was his ſon and heir (w).

Walter St. John Eſq; at the time of his deceaſe, 18 Auguſt 1597, held of the Queen this maner of Hatfeild; and a capital meſſuage and one carucate of land, called Termins, alias Termitts; formerly part of the poſſeſſions of John Earl of Lincoln attainted, bought of Edmond Haſelwood and Edward Tomlinſon; and a wood and other lands, of 68 acres. —— John, his eldeſt ſon and heir, ſucceeded (x): Oliver, the ſecond ſon, was a brave warrior; appointed, 3 April 1616, Lord Deputy of Ireland; created Viſcount Grandiſon, 3 June 1622; and Baron Tregoze, 21 May 1626. The year following, he obtained from K. Charles I. a grant of the maners of Batterſea, and Wandſworth; but dyed without iſſue, 30 December 1630. John, his elder brother, had ſeveral daughters, and an only ſon — John, of Lydiard-Tregoze, to whom his uncle, Lord Grandiſon, left his eſtates at Batterſea, &c. He was knighted 2 February 1608, and created a Baronet 22 May 1611. Of ſeven ſons that he had, three were killed in the ſervice of K. Charles I. three dyed without iſſue; as did — John, who had inherited the eſtates. So that they deſcended to — Sir Walter St. John, the ſixth ſon of John juſt now mentioned. On the 19th of Auguſt 1674, He ſold this maner of Hatfeild-Peverell, alias Hatfeild-Bury, with the maner of Termitts, to Antony Collins, of the Middle-Temple, Eſq; [of whom and his poſterity you have an account under Sandon.] They paſſed to his ſon — Henry, and then to Henry's ſon — Antony; who dyed 13 December 1729. His ſon Antony being dead before him, viz. 20 December 1723, his two daughters, Elizabeth, and Martha, became his coheirs. Elizabeth was married to Walter Carew, or Carey, Eſq; and Martha to the Hon. Robert Fairfax, brother to the Lord Fairfax. Upon Martha's death, Walter Carey Eſq; in right of his wife, became entitled to this, and the maner of Sandon, and of Giberake in Purley.

2. The PRIORY and Maner of Hatfield-Peverell.

Ranulph Peverell, a Norman Lord, one of the Conqueror's attendants, was ſo amply rewarded by him, as to have thirty five Lordſhips in this county, one of which was Hatfield, nineteen in Suffolk, ſix in Norfolk, and four in Shropſhire (y). He took to wife the daughter of Ingelric, a noble Saxon. She was a remarkable beauty, and on that account had been inticed to the bed of William the Conqueror, to whom ſhe bare a ſon, William, owner of Nottingham-caſtle, and many other Lordſhips (z). When he was weary of her, ſhe was married to Ranulph Peverell; and that probably being, as it has frequently been in ſubſequent times, the moſt effectual means of promotion [Q], might be the cauſe of his being loaded with eſtates, as we have ſeen, without any real merit. Ingelrica, for ſo ſhe is called by Leland (a), to atone, as ſhe thought, in her latter days, for her paſt vices, founded here in the time of William Rufus, a college of ſecular Canons, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen. Here ſhe ſpent the remainder of her days, till her deceaſe about the year 1100, and was buried in the church, where her Image cut in ſtone is to be ſeen in one of the windows (b). Her legitimate ſon by Ranulph, named William Peverell, converted, in the time of K. Henry I, this college into a Priory of Benedictins, ſubordinate, or a cell, to St. Alban's-Abbey, dedicating it to the Virgin Mary (c). He confirmed all that belonged before to that Church, and which had been given to it by his father and anceſtors: adding thereto, his own manſion, and all his other houſes, to be turned into dwellings for the Monks; and three fields near the ſaid church; and Alvelwood, and Haiwood; alſo lands called Copincho, and Colinges, and Aichacham, with a mill: The tithes of his rents in Meldon, [Maldon] the whole tithe of Done; and the churches of Achaton, Aſelon, Chriſteſaie, with lands and tithes (d). One of theſe Churches, the names of which are ſtrangely disfigured, was Aſſington in Suffolk. And they had alſo the Advowſon and Patronage of the Church of Little Waltham in this county. Moreover, they had the tithes of certain demeſne lands in Bradwell near the ſea; tithes in Little Badow; in Ulting, Witham, Terling, and Boreham; and a penſion of ſix marks out of Depden church (e).

On the 14th of March 1231, the greateſt part of this Priory was deſtroyed by fire (f).

At the time of the ſuppreſſion of monaſteries, the yearly income of this amounted to 60 l. 14 s. 11½ d. according to Dugdale; or, according to Speed, to 83 l. 19 s. 7 d. The number of Monks maintain'd in it was only four, with a Prior (g): And the laſt Prior, was Richard Snowdall (h).

The Crown becoming poſſeſs'd of the Revenues of this Houſe, by virtue of ſtatute 31 Henry VIII; that King, on the 5th of February 1537, in purſuance of indentures of agreement made between him and Giles Leigh, Sir John Alleyn, and others, did grant to the ſaid Giles the Priory of Hatfield Peverell: And alſo the Rectories, Vicarages, and Advowſons of Hatfield-Peverell, and of Acton, and Aſſington, in Suffolk, with all their rights and appertenances: And all portions or penſions, viz. Eleven pounds per ann. out of the Vicarage of Acton, for a ferm; and Four pounds thirteen ſhillings and four pence, out of the Vicarage of Aſſington; with all maners, meſſuages, lands, tenements, paſtures, and woods, in as full words, and in as ample manner and form, as they were enjoyed by the Prior of Hatfield-Peverell (i).

This Giles Leigh was of Walton-Leigh in Surrey, ſon (or grandſon) and heir of Thomas Leigh Eſq; who dyed 23 April 1509, poſſeſs'd of the maners of Hayleſley; Shelley; Garnets, and Olyffs in Margaret Rothing, &c. (k) Giles dying 7 Auguſt 1538, left only two daughters, who were married to two brothers—John, and Chriſtopher, Alleyn, as we ſhall ſee preſently; and brought this eſtate into the Alleyn family [R].

This family is originally from Thaxtead in this county. The firſt whom we have any certain account of, was Richard Alleyn, Gent. who had three ſons. John; John; [for it was not uncommon in thoſe ancient times to have two ſons of the ſame name] and Chriſtopher. He dyed 23 June 1527, poſſeſs'd of a good eſtate in Eſſex. His eldeſt ſon and heir—Sir John Alleyn, was a citizen and mercer of London, Sheriff of that city in 1518, and Lord Mayor in 1525, and 1535, and for his great wiſdom made of the Privy Council to K. Henry VIII. He dyed unmarried, 1544, and was buried at St. Thomas of Acres, in Cheapſide, in a chapel built by himſelf. He was a great benefactor to the city of London; and gave it a rich collar of gold to be worn by the ſucceſſive Lord Mayors: and five hundred marks, to be a ſtock for ſea-coal: the rents of his lands, purchaſed of the King, to be diſtributed to the Poor in the wards of London for ever, &c. beſides conſiderable benefactions to the priſons, and hoſpitals, &c. (l) His next brother—John Alleyn of Thaxſtead, called John Alleyn junior, ſucceeded him. He married Margaret, eldeſt daughter and co-heir of Giles Leigh of Walton upon Thames, above mentioned; and his younger brother, Chriſtopher, married Agnes the other daughter and co-heir. John had, by Margaret, John, Chriſtopher, and Giles;—which laſt was of Hatfield-Peverell, and married Chriſtian daughter of John Weſt, by which he had John: his daughters were, Catharine, wife of John Baker of Cheſterford; Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Barnaby; Agnes, of William Higham (m). John Alleyn, of Thaxſtead aboveſaid, dyed 22 June 1558, leaving—John, his ſon and heir, of Hatfield-Peverell, then 20 years old (n). He married three wives: One was Elizabeth, daughter of . . . . Alabaſter, by which he had Edmund; Thomas, that married Mary daughter of . . . . Fairclough of Hertfordſhire; and two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Chriſtopher Goldingham of Bulmer; Mary, to William Coys of North-Okingdon. He dyed 1 December 1572 (o).—Edmund, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married Martha, daughter and co-heir of John Glaſcock of Powers-hall in Witham, which dyed 5 June 1593 (p): He had by her, Edward; John, and Henry; Anne, and Agnes; which four laſt dyed without iſſue: and Elizabeth, wife of Robert Caſtle of Eaſt-Hatley in Cambridgeſhire; Mary, wife of Henry Hall, ſecond ſon of Henry Hall of Gratford in Lincolnſhire. He dyed 12 September 1616.—Edward, his eldeſt ſon and heir, was then aged 30 (q). In 1629, he was High-ſheriff of Eſſex (r), and the ſame year, on the 24th of June, was created a Baronet, being the 288th in number. He married Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of George Scot of Little-Lees Eſq; with whom he had Little-Lees hall, Stapleford-Tany-hall, and Oveſham-hall in Matching. His iſſue by her, were, Edmund; George; Robert; John, and Dorothea, which two laſt dyed without children; and two daughters more, Martha, wife of Joſhua Blower, Chaplain to Sir Edward, Vicar of Hatfeild, and Rector of Fairſtead; and Mary, wife of Robert Clive, of Stych in Shropſhire, Eſq; Martha dyed in 1639, aged 25 (s). Sir Edward dyed in November 1638. His eldeſt ſon, Edmund, dyed before him, viz. 28 February 1633, leaving, by Mary, daughter of Nicolas Miller, of Wrotham in Kent, a ſon Edmund, one year, two months, and two days old (t); and a daughter named Elizabeth, married, firſt, to John Robinſon Eſq; father of Sir John Robinſon of Denſton-hall in Suffolk, Kt. afterwards to Sir William Jones, Attorney-general to K. Charles II.—Sir Edmund Alleyn Bart. ſucceeded his grandfather in title and eſtate; and married Frances, only daughter and heir of Thomas Gent, of Moynes in Steple-Bumpſted, Eſq; This match brought about 600 l. into the family. He had by her, Edmund; and two daughters, Frances; and Arabella; which laſt was born 5 November 1655. Sir Edmund dyed 2 November 1656, and his Lady 15 January 1657 (u).... Their ſon Edmund, and daughter Frances, dyed alſo young; ſo that—Arabella became the ſole, and a very conſiderabe, heireſs. She was married, firſt, to Francis Thompſon, of Hambleton in Yorkſhire, Eſq; and had iſſue

William Thompſon Eſq; Member of Parliament for Scarborough. Her ſecond huſband was

The Hon. Lord George Howard, eldeſt ſon of Henry Duke of Norfolk, by Jane, his ſecond Ducheſs, daughter of Robert Bickerton Eſq; Gentleman of the wine-cellar to K. Charles II. She dyed 9 July 1746, and was buried in Hatfeild-Peverell-church, with her anceſtors. See under Little-Lees-hall.

Between the years 1715 and 1720, this Lady conveyed theſe eſtates to — Arthur Dabbs, who had been clerk, or book-keeper, to Sir John Floyer; and he enjoyed them till his deceaſe, 5 February 1750-1. But by her will ſhe left the reverſion of them to her kinſman, Sir Edmund Alleyn, of whom I have given an account under Little Lees. [See under that pariſh.] It is now in his ſiſter, Arabella, wife of the Rev. Henry Chalmers.

3. EARNEST-FEE, alias Ernis's, Erins, or Bovington's.

The manſion-houſe is at the bottom of Hatfield-green, near the road leading to Maldon. This maner is derived from the maner of Hatfield-Priory; tho' it ſeems in ſome reſpects ſuperior to it, for here they chuſe a Conſtable. It appears to have taken its names from ancient owners; as is manifeſt from this inſtance. K. John, by charter dated 15 September 1214, granted to Geffrey Fitz-Peter Earl of Eſſex, the lands of Robert Fitz-Ernis in England, viz. Wells, Warham, Maſſingham in Norfolk; Hatfeild-Peverell, and Diepeden, in Eſſex, which were forfeited by the ſtatute, De Terris Normannorum (w).

Afterwards, it was in the families of Bemflet, and Clerebek. For Alexander Bemflet, who dyed in the 48th of Henry III, held of the King, 120 acres of arable, 3 of meadow, and 2 d. rent by the ſervice of one knight's fee. — John was his brother and heir (x).

John Clerebek held the ſame in the 13th of Edward I. and left only two daughters (y).

The Fabell family enjoyed it next. For Thomas Fabell, who dyed in 1350, held in this pariſh a tenement called Bemflete's, containing 120 acres of arable, 3 acres of meadow, 12 acres of paſture, 4 acres of wood, and 4 l. rent, of the King, in ca. of the honor of Peverell, leaving—John, his ſon (z).

Then it became part of the endowment of St. Gregory's college in Sudbury, founded in 1375 (a). And, at the ſuppreſſion, was granted to Alleyn: For William Rocheſter Eſq; dyed 31 Auguſt 1558, poſſeſs'd of the maner of Bovingtons, and an annual rent of 5 l. called Ernes-fee, holden of John Alleyn Eſq; of his maner of Hatfeild-Peverell: — John, his ſon and heir, being 36 years of age (b).

Edmund Alleyn Eſq; dyed 28 February 1632, ſeized of this eſtate (c), which hath paſſed, as Hatfeild-Priory, to his deſcendents.

4. SMALLANDS, alias Marſhalls.

The Houſe is about a mile north-eaſt from the church. And the lands extends partly into the pariſh of Witham.

In the Saxons time, it was holden by Earl Algar; but, at the time of the Survey, by Robert ſon of Corbutio [S].

We cannot give a particular account of its ſeveral owners: Such as remain upon record, were;

Sewall de Smalelond, who held half a fee in Hatfend, under Robert de Montalto, and lived in the reigns of K. Henry II. and Edward I. (d)

John Engaine, in the reign of K. Edward II. (e)

Sir John Montgomery, in that of K. Henry VI. (f)

In 1523, Andrew Edmonds Eſq; was poſſeſs'd of this maner of Smallond-hall: — Chriſtopher was his ſon and heir (g).

And John Wiſeman Eſq; held it at the time of his deceaſe, 15 July 1584, leaving only two daughters, Elizabeth, wife of Richard Jennings, and Dorothy (h).

We find it next, in 1622, in that very rich man Paul Viſcount Bayning, under the name of Smallond-hall, alias Marſhes, in Hatfeild-Peverell, and Wickham; holden of the Lord of Little Notley maner (i). And he compounded for the diſforeſting of it, containing 300 acres, rented at 124 l. per ann.

Of his heirs it was purchaſed by . . . Lingard of London, vintner, whoſe ſon,—John Lingard Eſq; Counſellor at law, was common Serjeant of that city, and dyed 5 November 1729, leaving four daughters.

5. Toppingo-hall, formerly called Filiols.

The houſe ſtands on the right hand ſide of the road, going from Witham to Chelmsford.

In the reign of Henry III. and Edward I. it was holden by Thomas de Toppingho.

About the year 1285, this eſtate belonged of right to Eve de Valoines, but was claimed by Margery wife of Richard at Rede (k).

It was holden of the family of Tregoz: For Baldwin Filiol, who dyed the 11th of Edward I, held the maner of Thoppingho of Nicolas Tregoz, as of his maner of Blunteſhall, by the ſervice of the fourth part of a knight's-fee (l).

And Philip Burnell, who dyed eleven years after, held the ſame of Nicolas Tregoz by the ſixth part of a knight's-fee; viz. 130 acres of land, and 10 s. rent.—Edward was his ſon and heir (m).

It ſeems to have been parcell'd out afterwards. For John de Handlo, who dyed in 1346, held one place and 20 acres of arable called Toppingo, in this pariſh, of the King as parcel of his maner of Boreham.—Edmund, ſon of Richard his ſon, was his heir (n).

And in 1382, Nicolas Burnell held 70 acres called Toppingho, in Hatfeild Peverell (o).

After a long interval, we find it in the Stydole, or Studhoe, family. For William Stydole dyed 10 April 1542, holding this maner of John Alleyn of this pariſh.—William, his ſon and heir (p), by will dated 14 February 1585, gave one moiety of this eſtate to Elizabeth, and the other moiety to Jane, his daughters and coheirs.

Elizabeth brought her part in marriage to John Sammes, fourth ſon of Thomas Sammes of Great Totham, Eſq; being his ſecond wife. They had a ſon named—Antony, who, by Catharine . . . his wife, had,—Mary, Dorothy, and Anne; which laſt had John Cracherood for huſband.

Mary, the eldeſt, was married to John Godebold Eſq; on whom ſhe ſettled this eſtate with the conſent of her mother and two ſiſters. They had iſſue—Antony Godebold, to whom the father, by will dated 12 June 1669, gave this eſtate, and dying the 2d of Auguſt following, was buried in this church. Antony married . . . . and had three children, Richard, William, and Amye.—Richard dyed a batchelor, and left this eſtate to his brother—William, who dying alſo without iſſue, left it to his ſiſter

Amye. She was married to Guſtavus Thomſon, clerk, related to the huſband of Arabella Alleyn above mention'd. He was afterwards Rector of Plumland in Cumberland, and father of Guſtavus Thomſon, Eſq; late a Juſtice of Peace at Whitehaven, &c. The ſaid Amye, and her huſband, on the 9th of November 1693, jointly conveyed this eſtate to

John Mortimer Eſq; (q) only ſon and heir of Mark Mortimer of Somerſetſhire, grandſon of Mark, who had a conſiderable eſtate in that county drowned by an inundation of the ſea; deſcended from the ancient family of Mortimer. Mr. J. Mortimer's mother was Abigail, daughter of . . . Walmeſley of Blackmore in this county. He was an ingenious man, Fellow of the Royal Society; author of "the Whole Art of Huſbandry," firſt printed in 1708. reprinted in 1761. with improvements. He had three wives. 1. Dorothy, eldeſt daughter of the Protector Richard Cromwell, who dyed in childbed, without ſurviving iſſue (r). 2. Sarah, daughter of Sir John Tippets Kt. Surveyor of the Navy, by whom he had John, who dyed young, and Margaret. 3. Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel Sanders of Derbyſhire, Eſq; and by her had iſſue, Samuel, Cromwell, Thomas, John; Elizabeth, and Anne. After Mr. J. Mortimer's deceaſe, his eldeſt ſon—Samuel, who was bred to the Law, ſold this eſtate to his next brother—Cromwell, Secretary to the Royal Society, and M. D. who dyed 7 January 1752, and was ſucceeded by his ſon—Hans Mortimer, of Lincoln's-inn, Eſq; He hath lately ſold this eſtate to

The Right Hon. the Earl of Abercorn.

There is a Seat in this pariſh, named Crix, belonging to the Brage family; of which family you will find an account under Bulmer, in Hinckford Hundred.

A family ſurnamed Maleduct, or Mauduit, had formerly Lands here. One John Maudut is mentioned in the reign of K. Edward the Firſt [T]. And his ſucceſſor, Gilbert Manduit, was executed for aiding the King's enemies in Scotland; whereupon his lands were granted firſt to William de Havingfeild, and afterwards to Robert de Bouſſer; being deſcribed to be 40 acres of meadow, 10 of paſture, 4 of wood, 7 s. 1 d. rent, and the moiety of one meſſuage, lying in Hatfield Peverill, Langford and Ultinge (s).

Hatfield-Wic was lately purchaſed by John Strutt Eſq; of Sir Matthew Fetherſtonhaugh.

The Biſhop of London hath a pretty large Eſtate in this pariſh, which ſeems to be a part of that of Wickham-Biſhop adjoyning. 'Tis leaſed out to Thomas Ely of Dedham, ſhopkeeper.

Charitable Gifts.

In purſuance of a Commiſſion for Charitable Uſes, dated 8 November 1679, a new Deed of Feoffment was made, 31 May 1681, to the Miniſter of this pariſh, and other inhabitants, of the following meſſuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments.

A cloſe of Paſture containing Five roods, lying in this pariſh between the lands of John Porter towards the weſt, and the lands of John Tendring Gent. towards the eaſt, one head abutting on the highway towards the ſouth: hereto-

Two meſſuages or tenements called Maſons Gardens in this pariſh, abutting on Hatfeild-green towards the eaſt.

A meſſuage or tenement with a garden and curtilage adjoyning in this pariſh, between the lands and tenement heretofore of Sir Edmund Alleyn Bart. and a cloſe of Robert Smith, otherwiſe Cook, of the other part; one head abutting on the high way leading to Chelmsford.

Lands and tenements called Londis, with a meadow thereto adjoyning, in this pariſh.

A meſſuage or tenement, ſome time William Turner's, in this pariſh, between the high way leading from Maldon to Terling on one part.

Lands and tenements in this pariſh, late in the occupation of William Ewers, heretofore ſettled in truſt for the Poor of this pariſh, and repairing of the pariſh-church, by virtue of the laſt will of Robert Smith, alias Cooke. [This is ſaid to be 15 l. a year; and here now ſtands the Pariſh workhouſe.]

A meſſuage or tenement, formerly in the occupation of Thomas Hitchinſon, with appertenances, and Two crofts of land and paſture ground called Howletts or Wheelers, containing by eſtimation Nine acres, ſituate in Much Totham, between the way leading from Maldon to Colcheſter on the one part, and upon the ſtreet or way there leading to Totham-hill.—Together with a Cottage erected upon part of that land.

A piece of Meadow in Wickham, containing Three roods, bounded on the weſt by the River running between Wickham and Witham, and towards the north by the bank ditch againſt Beadles mead.

Theſe lands in Totham and Wickham were bought and ſettled purſuant to the laſt will of Sir Edmund Alleyn Bart. who directed, that land to the value of 100 l. ſhould be bought in the name of his ſon, and others, and their heirs; and the intereſt of it, viz. five pounds per ann. ſhould be employed by and with the direction of the heir of his family, the miniſter, church-wardens, and overſeers of this pariſh for ever, towards ſchooling and binding out poor children apprentices only in the cloathing trade, as they ſhall think fit. The reſidue of the rents and profits of theſe lands, to be employed at the diſcretion of the truſtees, for the common uſe of this pariſh. But, to make up this purchaſe, 33 l. were taken out of the common Treaſury of Hatfeild, and added to the above-mentioned 100 l.

Two parts into three to be divided of thoſe three ſeveral pieces of meadow in Little Badow, every of them containing one acre more or leſs; whereof one parcel lieth within Broad Mead; another parcel near Broad Mead gate; and the third piece lieth in Long Mead. And two parts into three to be divided in all the other lands and tenements in Little Badow by the will of John Chalk of Boreham, carpenter: heretofore bought with 46 l. taken out of the common treaſury of Hatfeild, and ſettled in truſt for relief of the poor Inhabitants of this pariſh, as the greateſt number of truſtees ſhall think fit.——And alſo one third part of the ſame three ſeveral pieces, or parcels, of Meadow in Little Badow.

All the lands and tenements late of Thomas Saffold in Little Badow, formerly purchaſed by Thomas Saffold with 23 l. 10 s. part of the ſtock of Hatfeild, for the relief of the Poor of this pariſh, as the major part of the Truſtees ſhall think fit.

The feoffees to be renewed when brought to three. Days of meeting for ſettling the accounts, are the ſecond Thurſdays in February and Auguſt.

¶ A Farm lying in this pariſh, in the way from Hatfeild-geen to Wickham-mill, belongs to the School at Maldon.

There are Alms-houſes on Hatfeild-green, and others by the ſide of the London road.

A tenement called Brigmons brome; another called Pondes; a croft called Danſeis, all three in this pariſh; and a tenement in Wickham called Breck-houſe,—were the ſeveral endowments for four Obits in this church.

The old CHURCH belonging to this pariſh formerly ſtood upon an eminence near the river, in a field between Hatfield-bury and Terling, called Church-field.

The preſent Church is that which belonged to the Priory, and adjoins to the remains of it, now the Maner houſe. It contains a body and chancel, both tiled, and on the north ſide a large iſle, leaded; upon the weſt end of which is a ſmall Turret, that contains one Bell.

This Church was appropriated to the Priory, and a Vicarage ordained, of which the Prior and Convent continued proprietors till their ſuppreſſion. Then it paſſed into the families of Leigh, Alleyn, Thomſon, and their ſucceſſors.

In one of the windows of the iſle, there is a ſtatue in ſtone of a woman in a praying poſture; on each ſide of her head ſeems to have been an angel, and at her feet a lion. The inhabitants have a tradition, that it was the Foundreſs of this Church and Priory.

The Vicar hath a ſtipend of 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. paid by the owner of the Priory; together with 25 l. per ann. given by Sir Edmund Alleyn.

The learned Edmund Caſtle, S. T. B. was Vicar of this pariſh, and alſo Rector of Woodham-Walter, in the laſt century. He was one of the chief aſſiſtants to Dr. Brian Walton, afterwards Biſhop of Cheſter, in his moſt valuable edition of the Polyglot Bible; both in correcting the proofs from the preſs, and collating Manuſcripts. And what was more, he compiled the Lexicon in ſeven languages, Lexicon Heptaglotton, for the better underſtanding of the Polyglot Bible, which is commonly ſold with it; and was a moſt laborious work. After the Reſtoration, he was ſomewhat rewarded, being appointed regius Profeſſor of Arabic in Cambridge, in 1666; Prebendary of Canterbury, in 1685: He was alſo Rector of Higham-Gobyon in Bedfordſhire many years before his deceaſe, which happened there in 1685. He was buried in the chancel of that church, with an epitaph printed at the end of Thomas de Elmham's life of Henry V. publiſhed by T. Hearne (t).

9. ULTING.

THIS little pariſh lieth ſouthward of Hatfield, between it and the river Chelmer: and is otherwiſe written in records, Owting, Owlting, &c.

The chief Eſtates in it, are Ulting-hall, and Mugdon-hall.

ULTING-HALL &c.

In the Saxons time it was holden by Hacen; and, at the making of the general ſurvey, by Ralph Baynard, and under him by one Girard [V].

The eſtate of this Ralph Baynard was by K. Henry I. taken from his grandſon William, for ſiding with Robert Duke of Normandy in his attempt to get the Crown of England; and given by that King to Robert, a younger ſon of Richard Fitz-Gilbert, progenitor to the ancient Earls of Clare. From which Robert ſprung the noble family of Fitz-walter.

It was afterwards in a family ſurnamed Fitz-Robert. For Walter Fitz-Robert had free-warren here in the 41ſt of Henry III. and a market and fair in Reyndon (u).

Under them it was holden by perſons, which from it took the ſurname de Ulting For William de Ulting held it in the reign of K. Henry II, by the ſervice of one knight's fee (w).—Thomas de Ulting, who dyed in the 13th of Edward II, held in this pariſh of Robert Fitz walter, by the ſervice of 3 s. rent yearly, 10 acres of arable, 2 acres of meadow, and 1 acre of paſture. And, of the ſame Robert, and the Prior of Leighes, 30 acres of arable, half an acre of meadow, 3 roods of paſture, and 2 s. rent, by the ſervice of 2 s. 6 d. rent. And of the Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem's hoſpital, 16 acres of arable, and 1 acre of wood, by the ſervice of 5 s. and a half penny. — He had alſo lands in Wyckham and Langeford. — And held in Hatfeild-Peverell of Thomas de Corbridge, by the twelfth part of a knight's fee, and 20 d. rent, one meſſuage and a half, 3 dove-houſes, 60 acres of arable, 5 acres of meadow, 12 acres of paſture, 5 acres of wood, 5 s. 10 d. rent. And of Philip de Stowe, 20 acres of arable, 1 acre of meadow, 3 acres of paſture, by the ſervice of 3 s. 3 d. per ann. And of Maud Lady of Springfeild, 16 acres of arable, one wind-mill, and 2 s. 2 d. rent, by the ſervice of one penny yearly rent. And of Thomas de Seldeford 15 acres of arable, by the ſervice of 12 s. rent. — John was his ſon and heir (x).

We find little or nothing more upon record of this family, hereabouts, only that Nicolas de Ulting held the 6th part of a fee in Langeford, of Walter Fitz-walter, who dyed the 10th of Richard II. (y)

After them, the maner of Ulting was in the Bourchier-family. For Robert Bourchier, who dyed in 1349, held in this pariſh, and in Hatfeild-Peverell and Langeford, the moiety of one meſſuage, 40 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, 10 of paſture, 4 of wood, and 7 s. rent (z). This Robert was Lord Chancellor of England, and ſummoned to parliament in 1342, and 1348. He dyed in 1349 (a), and was ſucceeded by his ſon — John, who had alſo ſummons to parliament from 1381. to the time of his death, in 1400.— Sir Bartholomew Bourchier his ſon ſucceeded, and was ſummoned to parliament from the 1ſt to the 10th of K. Henry IV. He departing this life 18 May 1409, left an only daughter and heir named Elizabeth, who became the wife of Sir Hugh Stafford, younger ſon of Hugh Earl of Stafford. In her right he was ſummon'd to parliament by the title of Lord Bourchier (b): And dyed in 1421, holding of the Lord Fitz-walter, divers lands and tenements in Ulting and Hatfeild Peverell, and elſewhere, called Maudewytts, and 211 acres of arable, 12 acres of meadow, 30 acres of paſture, 30 acres of wood, 17 s. 9 d. rent; and 46 s. from the tenents of a tenement called Oken-armes (c). He left no iſſue: Whereupon the Lord Fitz-walter ſeems to have ſeized this maner of Ulting; for he held it the 11 of Henry VI. 1432 (d).

But it came again to the Bourchier family. For Henry Bourchier, Earl of Eſſex, dyed 4 April 1483, poſſeſs'd of the maner of Ulting, among many others (e). His ſon — William dying before him: and his grandſon — Henry, Earl of Eſſex, leaving only a daughter, named Anne, ſhe was married to

Sir William Parr Lord Parr of Kendall, afterwards Earl of Eſſex and Marquis of Northampton; and he had livery of the lands of her inheritance (f). She was divorced from him for her incontinency: And He, for eſpouſing the cauſe of the Lady Jane Gray, was condemned to death, and forfeited his eſtates. Though his honors and his lands were reſtored to him, yet this maner ſeems to have remain'd in the crown. For,

On the 20th of March 1573-4, Qu. Elizabeth granted the maner, and ſite of the maner or ferm, called Ulting-hall, with appertenances in Ulting, Hatfeild, and Langford, to Thomas Heneage Eſq; to hold in ca. by the ſervice of the 20th part of a knight's-fee (g). It continued for a while in his poſterity, and was purchaſed by Hatfeild-Peverell. It hath paſs'd, with thoſe eſtates, to Walter Carew, and Robert Fairfax, Eſqrs. who married the late Mr. Collins's two daughters.

MOKELTON, alias MUGDON-HALL, is a capital meſſuage, and a maner, in this pariſh; but ſome of the lands extend into the adjoyning pariſhes of Hatfeild-Peverell, and Little Badow: Reputed to be 300 l. per ann.

'Tis otherwiſe named in records, Mokelinton, Mogelington, Magelinto, Mountdon, Moundon, Hall; and Cardevile's, alias Cardfeild's.

The Filiols held it, in the earlieſt times, under the Lords Fitz-walter; and Sir John Filiol married Margaret daughter and heir of . . . . Mucklington of Mugden-hall; which ſhews that it took the name of Mucklington from a family [W].

But of the Filiols it was holden by the Huntingfield family of Suffolk. For Roger de Huntingfield [X], who dyed 31 Edward I, held the maner of Mokelington-hall of John Filiol.—William, his ſon, dying 7 Edward II, held a capital meſſuage, viz. the maner of Mokelington, with 275 acres of arable, 7 acres and a half of meadow, 28 of paſture, 16 and a half of wood, and 8 free tenents, of John Filiol of his maner of Little Badew, by the ſervice of a knight's-fee, and a yearly rent of 38 s. and 9 d. (h)—Roger, his ſon and heir, ſucceeding, dyed in 1337, poſſeſs'd of this eſtate; holden of Margaret wife of Sir John Filiol, of her maner of Little Badew (i). His ſon and heir—Sir William de Huntingfeild had ſummons to parliament from the 25th to the 49th of Edward III. and at the time of his death in 1376, held this maner of John Filiol: He left two Daughters his coheirs—Alice, wife of Sir John de Norwich, and—Mariona, married firſt to John de Huntingfeild, who had alſo ſummons to parliament; ſecondly to Stephen le Scroope (k). Between theſe two were divided, the maners of Mokelington in Eſſex, Huntingfeild in Suffolk, and Bekeſworth in Cambridgeſhire.

Soon after it came into the Rikhell family. For in the 13 of Richard II. anno 1389, William Rikhell is recorded to hold the maner of Mokeltone-hall (l). And—Thomas Rickels, who dyed in 1476, held of the Prior of St. John's of Jeruſalem this maner, deſcribed as lying in Ulting, Springfeild, Hatfeild-Peverell, Woodham-Walter, Little Badowe, and Borham.——John, his ſon and heir, was then 4 years old (m).

In 1519, Alexander Frognall Gent. held Moyden-hall (n).

It was next in the Smyth family, more particularly mentioned under Little Badow. Sir Clement Smyth, who dyed 26 Auguſt 1552, was poſſeſs'd of the maner of Mugden-hall with the appertenances, and one fulling-mill, 30 meſſuages, 20 cottages, 500 acres of arable, 200 acres of paſture, 100 acres of meadow, 200 acres of wood, 15 l. rent, and common of paſture for all cattle in Mugden-hall, Owting, Terling, Boreham, Witham, Hatfeild-Peverell, Little Leighes, and Little Badew, worth 60 l. per ann.—John, his ſon and heir, was then aged 21 years (o). Of this ſon, or his heirs, it was purchaſed by John Aylmer, Biſhop of London from 1576. to 1594 (p). He married Judith, daughter of . . . Bures, of Bures St. Mary's in Suffolk; by whom he had ſeven ſons, Samuel, Theophilus, John, Zachary, Nathanael, Tobel, and Edmund; beſides two or three daughters; viz. Judith, married to William Lynche of Kent; Elizabeth, to Sir John Foliot of Pirton in Worceſterſhire, &c.—Samuel, the eldeſt ſon, had, by his father's will, Muckleton, alias Mugden-hall, with all his lands in Eſſex. He was ſeated at Claydon-hall in Suffolk, of which county he was High-ſheriff in 1625. He dyed 12 January 1635, having had two wives, 1. Dorothy, daughter of Edward Haſtings of Leiceſter-abbey, which brought him no iſſue. 2. Anne, eldeſt daughter of Edward Lord Brabazon of Tamerſcourt near Dublin in Ireland, by which he had theſe children, John, Edward, Antony [father of Brabazon, bookſeller in London]; Elizabeth, and Alice [Z].—John, the eldeſt ſon, married Lucretia daughter of Sir Henry Clovyle of Weſt-Haningfeild, by which he had—Brabazon, Juſtice of the Peace, &c. who marrying Mary, daughter of John Godebold of Toppingho-hall Eſq; had by her three ſons (q),—Samuel, Antony, and John; and two daughters, Anne, married to John Godbold of Territon-hall in Terling Eſq; Lucretia the other daughter dyed unmarried. Samuel and John dyed young.—Antony, the ſecond ſon, married Catharine, daughter of Robert Beale of Hillingdon in Middleſex, ſon and heir of Sir Thomas Beale of Whittlebar in Northamptonſhire, Kt. and had by her, Brabazon; Robert, educated at Bennet-college in Cambridge, and Vicar of Camberwell in Surrey; Antony, and Theophilus, both which dyed young.—Brabazon, the eldeſt ſon, was a Bencher of the Middle Temple, and ſeveral years Clerk of the peace for this county. He dyed 25 Auguſt 1754. On the 31 of July 1735, he married . . . daughter of Robert Brage of Hatfeild-Peverell, Eſq; but left no iſſue by her. She is jointured in this eſtate, which, after her deceaſe, is to come to the nephew, Robert, ſon of the Rev. Robert Aylmer above-mention'd.

Stoke-hall, or Stock-hall, is a capital meſſuage, and reputed or titular Maner, in this pariſh.

The few memorandums we have found relating to it, are theſe:

Under Robert Fitzwalter, that dyed in 1328, John de Ulting held the ſixth part of a fee in Stockhall and Langford. And Nicolas Ulting held the ſame under Walter Fitzwalter, who dyed 10 Richard II. (r)

Hugh Stafford, that married the daughter and heireſs of Bartholomew Lord Bourchier, and dyed in 1417, held of the heirs of John de Preyeres, a tenement called Stockhall, containing 100 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, and 30 of paſture.

Of late it belonged to Cornelius Deeket, who dyed in May 1729.

The CHURCH is a ſmall ſtone fabrick; with a chancel; both covered with tile. At the weſt end of the Church there is a wooden turret, with a ſhingled ſpire, in which are two ſmall Bells. It ſtands on the north ſide of the river Chelmer.

K. Edward I, in the 27th year of his reign, granted licenſe to the Lord Robert Fitz-walter, to give one acre of land, and the Advowſon of the church of Ulting, to the Abbey and Convent of Bileigh, of the inheritance of Beatrix de Ulting. There remained to the ſaid Lord in this pariſh, lands and tenements to the value of 15 l. 11 s. per ann. (t)

Upon the ſuppreſſion of the Monaſteries, K. Henry VIII, in the 31ſt year of his reign, granted the Rectory of Ulting, with appertenances, to Thomas Bell. On the 28th of April, the ſame year, Richard Duke, and Elizabeth his wife, had licenſe to alienate the Rectory of Ulting to John Brougham (u): who in 1555, or 1556, obtained licenſe to alienate this Rectory, and advowſon of the Vicarage to John Allen. The next year, 30 June, Allen, by licenſe, ſold the premiſſes to Francis Goldſmith (w). And on the 1ſt of September 1558, Goldſmith had leave to alienate the Rectory and Advowſon of Owtinge, lately belonging to the Abbey of Bileigh, with 40 acres of land in Hatfeild Peverell called Fabells, to Gabriel Kenney, and others (x).

This living hath of late been moſtly holden by ſequeſtration.

In 1481, K. Edward IV. granted licenſe to Henry Bourchier Earl of Eſſex, the Lady Iſabell his wife, Sir John Dynham, Sir Thomas Montgomery, and others; to found a Gild, to the glory of God and the bleſſed Virgin, conſiſting of two Wardens and diverſe other men and women of Ulting, as alſo of ſuch other perſons, as out of their devotion would enter into that fraternity; in a certain Chapel of our Lady built in the Churchyard there. And to purchaſe lands of ten marks yearly value for ever, to maintain a Prieſt to celebrate divine ſervice every day for the good eſtate of K. Edward IV. and Qu. Elizabeth his conſort during their life: As alſo for the health of their ſouls, and for the good eſtate of the ſaid Henry and Iſabell, and all other the brethren and ſiſters of that fraternity (y). There is no footſtep of this Chapel and Gild remaining.

10. BRACKSTEAD, or BRAXTEAD.

HERE are two contiguous Pariſhes of this name; diſtinguiſhed from one another by the addition of Magna and Parva, Great and Little.

The name is written in records theſe various ways, Brachesteda, Brakings, Brenſted, Brackſtead, and Braxtead.

The Saxon word ſtede, or ſtead, ſignifies a place; but whence to derive the firſt ſyllable of Brack-ſtead, we know not [B], unleſs it is from the old word Brache, Braco, a large fleet hound; or from the Saxon Bꞃac, an enemy. The adjoyning Heath might be a lurking place for thoſe troubleſome Enemies the Danes, when they infeſted theſe parts.

Beſides the maner of Great Brackſtead, there are partly two others in this pariſh, namely, Weſthall, and Briddinghoe.

The maner of GREAT BRACKSTEAD.

This Lordſhip, in the Saxons time, belonged to one of the King's Thægns, or Thanes; but, at the general ſurvey was holden by Eudo Dapifer [C]; [of whom ſee a particular account under St. John's Abbey, Colcheſter.] In the reigns of K. Henry II. and K. John, it was poſſeſſed by a family ſurnamed de Aneſty, from the place of their reſidence, Anſty in Hertfordſhire. — Richard de Aneſty, by Agnes daughter of William de Sackville, had his ſon —Hubert, or Herbert, who, in 1199, paid for ten knights-fees he had in Eſſex and Hertfordſhire. His ſon and heir — Nicolas, in 1210, held one knight's-fee in Brakings (z) [Braxtead]. He lived at his caſtle of Anſty, and join'd with the Barons againſt K. John. His only daughter and heir—Dionyſia, became the wife of William de Montchenſy, baron of, Swainſcamp in Kent; and brought him this eſtate. His ſiſter Joan was married to William de Valence Earl of Pembroke, brother by the mother's ſide to K. Henry III [D]. William de Montchenſy made a warren at Great Brenſted (a): by which is meant this place. He was alſo poſſeſs'd of Haningfeild, as may be ſeen under that pariſh, and dyed in 1289. By his wife Dionyſia he had a ſon, William, who dyed young, and a daughter named Dionyſia, that was married to Hugh de Vere, ſecond ſon of Robert Earl of Oxford, and in her right lord of Swainſcamp. He dyed in 1313, without iſſue, and was buried in the church of Earl's-colne. His lady departed this life the ſame year: and, beſides the three Haningfeilds, Stanford, Fenge, Fordham, and Thuritone; held the maner of Great Brackſtedd, with the advowſon of the church, of Robert Fitz-walter, in ca. And a tenement called Weſt Halle, of the Earl of Glouceſter, in ca. And a tenement called Briddinghoe, of the Abbot of St. Edmund, in ca.

Audomare de Valence, ſon of Joan de Montchenſy above-mentioned, by William de Valence Earl of Pembroke, was her next heir (b). He held the maner of Great Braxted, with the advowſon of the church, and 300 acres of arable, of Robert Fitz-walter, by the ſervice of one knight's fee as of the honor of Baynard's caſtle: And le Weſthall, with 100 acres of arable, of the honor of S ambourne, by the ſervice of doing ſuit at the court of Stambourne, from three weeks to three weeks. Paying yearly to the Abbot of St. John's in Colcheſter 5 s. to the Abbot of St. Edmundſbury 3 s. 10 d. to the Prior of Tiptre 4 d. and to the Bailiff of the Hundred 4 s. (c). Though he had three wives, yet he dyed without iſſue 23 July 1323 (d). His widow — Mary de St. Paul, enjoyed this eſtate in dower till her deceaſe in the beginning of the year 1377 [E] Then it fell to the heir of Iſabell her late huſband's ſecond, or eldeſt, ſiſter, wife of John de Haſtings Baron of Bergavenny, viz. to their ſon

John de Haſtings, who dyed 18 Edward II, leaving, by Julian his wife, daughter and heir of Thomas de Leyburne, — Laurence, his ſon and heir, on whom K. Edward III. conferred the title of Earl of Pembroke. He dyed in 1348, having had by his ſecond wife Agnes, daughter of Roger Mortimer Earl of March,—John his ſon ; who departed this life in 1375; and by Anne his ſecond wife [F], daughter of Sir Walter Manny, left iſſue,—John de Haſtings Earl of Pembroke, who had the misfortune of being killed at a tournament 30 December 1389. He married very young, Philippa daughter of Edmund the third Earl of March, by which however he had no iſſue: whereupon Richard Talbott Kt. ſon of Gilbert Talbott, ſon of Elizabeth, one of the daughters of Joan, who was one of the ſiſters and co-heirs of Audomare de Valence Earl of Pembroke, being one of his co-heirs, ſucceeded to this part of his poſſeſſions. He dyed 7 September 1396, poſſeſs'd of the maner of Great Braxtead. His ſon — Gilbert ſeems to have enjoyed it after him; and left only one daughter that dyed young (e). But none of their deſcendents ſucceeded thereto; only retain'd the advowſon of the church.

For Reginald de Grey, ſon of Reginald, ſon of Elizabeth daughter of John de Haſtings and Iſabell his wife, one of the ſiſters and heirs of Audomare de Valence, obtained this and other eſtates, being found to be next heir to John de Haſtings, who dyed in 1389 (f). So that, after the failure of Richard and Gilbert Talbot's iſſue, this maner came to the family of the De Greys of Ruthyn, advanced to the title of Earl of Kent, 3 May 1465. But a grievous conteſt enſued between them, and the Haſtings family (g). In 1473, 6 July, Edmund de Grey Earl of Kent ſold this maner, for the ſum of 1000 marks, to

Sir Thomas Montgomery of Falkborne, who left the profits of it to his wife Lora during her life. Here was a Park then (h). On the 10th of May 1509, the Earl of Oxford, ſuperviſor of the will of Sir Thomas Montgomery, and Thomas Tyrell Kt. one of the executors of the ſame, ſold this maner, with the appertenances, and the advowſon of the church, to William Aylove, or Ayloffe, Gent. (i) a Juſtice of Peace for this county and Suffolk.

This family was orignally of Sudbury, but ſeated, at the time of this purchaſe, at Breteyns, or Bretons, in the pariſh of Horn-Church in this county.—John Ayloffe of that place married Anne, daughter of Thomas Weſt, by which he had —Thomas, who married Agnes daughter of William Byrch, by Alice his wife, daughter of Roger Grys, and had iſſue—William, the purchaſer of this eſtate; and Agnes, who became the wife of Sir John Bridges, Lord Mayor of London in 1521. William, juſt now mentioned, married Audrey, or Etheldreda, daughter of Sir John Shaa Lord Mayor of London, and by her had, William, his eldeſt ſon and heir; Thomas, ſeated at Little Chiſhall in this county; Etheldreda; Alice; and Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Gaynesford of Crowhurſt in Surrey. He dyed 10 Auguſt 1517, holding the maner of Great Braxſted [G] of Thomas, Prior of the Hoſpital of St. John of Jeruſalem; and was buried in Horn-church.—William, his eldeſt ſon and heir, then aged 13 years, ſucceeded him (k). He married two wives. 1. Agnes, daughter of Thomas Barnardiſton, of Ketton in Suffolk, Eſq; by which he had, William; Thomas; Giles; Ralph; Mary; and Elizabeth. By his 2d wife, Margaret daughter of . . . Foſter of Surrey, relict of Gregory Baſſet, and that took to her third huſband . . . Sulyard, he left no iſſue.—William, the eldeſt ſon, was Sheriff of Eſſex, created a Serjeant at law in Michaelmaſs-term 1577 (l), and ſoon after made one of the Juſtices of the King's Bench. He dyed 8 November 1585, poſſeſs'd of the maner of Great Braxted; leaving by Jane his wife, daughter of Euſtace Sulyard of Flemyng in Suffolk, three ſons, William; Thomas; and George. — William, the eldeſt, was knighted by K. James I, (m) May 11, 1603. [as was his brother Thomas:] and created a Baronet 25 November 1612. He married three wives. 1. Catharine, daughter and co heir of John, or Thomas, Sterne, of Cambridgeſhire, by which he had, William, who dyed in America, before his father, and without iſſue; Benjamin; James; Anne; Jane; Mary, wife of Antony Thomas; Elizabeth, of Gervaſe Lee. 2. His ſecond wife was Barbara, daughter and heir of Thomas Sexton: By her he had, Thomas, who married Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter of Edward Wentworth of Bocking, Eſq; and John, a brave ſoldier. 3. The third wife was Alice Stokes; by which he had three ſons; one whereof named Joſeph was of Grey's-inn. Sir William dyed 11 Auguſt 1627, and was ſucceeded by his ſecond ſon—Sir Benjamin, then aged upwards of 21 years (n). He had two wives. 1. Alice, daughter of . . . Archdale Eſq; that brought him no children. His 2d Lady was Margaret daughter of Thomas Fanſhaw Eſq; Remembrancer of the Exchequer, by which he had William; Benjamin; and Henry. Sir Benjamin dyed in 1663. His eldeſt ſon and ſucceſſor—Sir William married the Counteſs Delavall, a French lady (o), but dyed in 1675, without ſurviving iſſue: As did his next brother—Sir Benjamin, in March 1722. The third brother, Henry, was dead ever ſince the year 1708; and having married Dorothy daughter of Richard Bulkeley of Chedle in Cheſhire, Eſq; had by her, Henry, who departed this life before him; and—Sir John, Rector of Stanford-Rivers, who dyed unmarried 10 December 1730, having inherited the title of Baronet, but not the maner of Great Brackſtead [H]; for that had been ſold by Sir William Ayloffe, the firſt Baronet, even before the year 1610. For

Sir Henry Maynard, Kt. who dyed 11 May that year, held, among other things, the whole maner of Braxted, alias Great Braxtead-hall, with its appertenances, and Braxtead-wood, of the King in ca. by the ſervice of the 20th part of a knight's-fee; it being then valued at 4 l. per ann. (p).

It was afterwards in Sir Robert Cotton of Conington, Kt. and Bart. by whom, or his heirs, it was ſold to Thomas Darcy Eſq; This family originally ſprung from the Noble one of that ſurname in Yorkſhire (q), advanced ſince to the title of Earls of Holderneſſe. Henry Darcy was a vintner in London, Sheriff of that city in 1327, and Mayor in 1337 (r). His grandſon—Robert Darcy, being bred up to the law, was eſcheator for this county in 1420, and marrying Alice Fitz-langley, a rich widow at Maldon, came and ſettled there. His eldeſt ſon—Sir Robert was of Maldon, and alſo of Danbury, Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1458, and married Elizabeth daughter of Sir Thomas Tyrell of Heron.—John, the younger ſon, was ſeated at Tolleſhunt, ſurnamed Darcy from him; which he got by his ſecond marriage with a daughter and coheir of . . . Boys of that place. And the poſterity of theſe two ſpread into divers parts of this county, as at Tiptre, &c. eſpecially at St. Oſith, which became the Head, and chief Seat, of this family; Sir Thomas Darcy of Chich-St. Oſith being created Baron Darcy, 5 April 1551.

This eſtate came not into the poſterity of Sir Robert Darcy above mentioned, but that of his younger brother John; which we ſhall more particularly ſpecify a little lower under Tiptree. And ſhall only obſerve here, That the 5th in deſcent from him was—Thomas Darcy, of St. Clere's-hall in St. Oſith, purchaſer of this eſtate, father of—Sir Thomas Darcy, created a Baronet 20 June 1660, and who came and lived at Brackſtead-hall. His ſon—Sir Thomas left it at his deceaſe to his ſon—Sir George, a minor, who dying young, it came to his three ſiſters and co-heirs, viz. Frances, who dyed 22 December 1705, being the wife of Sir William Dawes Bart. then Dean of Bocking, and afterwards Archbiſhop of York; . . . . married to Thomas Boteler Eſq; and . . . to William Pierpont of Nottingham, Eſq; Theſe three coheireſſes ſold this eſtate to

Henry Corneliſen Eſq; He married a daughter of Sir Richard Hoare Kt. Lord Mayor of London in 1713, by which he had ſix children. After his deceaſe, his heirs ſold this maner and eſtate to is only a farm-houſe. But the Seat, which makes part of this eſtate, is a large Brick-houſe within a Park, named Brack-ſtead-lodge. It was built by the Darcy family, and much improved by the preſent worthy owner.

Peter Ducane Eſq; of Great Coggeſhall, the ſon of a rich merchant; High-ſheriff of this county in 1745. He married Mary daughter of Henry Norris Eſq; by whom he hath had eight children, but only five are living.

The united maners of Breddinchou, alias Benyngton, or Bennington, and Westhalle, extend into this pariſh; but Benyngton-hall ſtands within the pariſh of Witham, where an account is given of the poſſeſſors of that eſtate; to which place we beg leave to refer the reader.

Weſthalle is ſuppoſed to have been the moiety of a knight's-fee, which Simon Fitz-Richard held in Braxtead, under Richard de Clare Earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, that dyed the 47th of Henry III (s). And Simon Fitz-Richard held the ſame under Gilbert de Clare Earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, who dyed 8 Edward II. (t)

The late John Porter, M. D. had an eſtate in this pariſh, now poſſeſs'd by Mr. Charles Buxton, who hath built upon it a very good Houſe.

Tiptre-Priory.

The ſite of the Priory, and maner of Tiptre, is in this pariſh of Great Braxtead. It was for Black Canons, or Canons of St. Auguſtin, and dedicated to the Virgin Mary and to St. Nicolas. When and by whom it was originally founded, is not exactly known [I]. However, it exiſted in the beginning of K. Edward the Firſt's reign: For, in the 9th of that King, the Prior of Tipper, as he is there called, had licenſe to impark 60 acres of his own ſoil within the foreſt of Eſſex (u). The chief Benefactors to this Houſe were the Montchenſy family above-mentioned. For, in 1299, or 1300, Ralph de Montchenſy and Albrida his wife gave to the Convent and Priory of Typpetre 1 meſſuage, 149 acres of arable, and 4 acres of wood in Great Braxted; which lands were holden in capite of Dionyſia de Monchenſy by the ſervice of 13 s. 2 d. and ſuit at the court of Great Braxted from three weeks to three weeks (w).

They had alſo the impropriate Tithes, and advowſon of the Vicarage, of Tolleſhunt-Darcy; (x) with other poſſeſſions, the ſum of which, by an inquiſition taken 24 April 1528, was found to be, the maner of Tiptre, and the churches of Tiptre and Tolleſhunt, with all tithes, oblations, obventions, and emoluments belonging to the ſame; and 40 meſſuages, 600 acres of arable, 100 acres of meadow, 100 acres of wood, and 40 s. rent, with appertenances in Tiptree, Tolleſhunt Tregos, Tolleſhunt major, and parva, Malden, Braxted, Wickham, Witham, Faireſted, Goldanger, Meſſing, Inworth, Stanwey, Colcheſter, Totham magna, and Kelvedon; with courts leet, &c. of the yearly value of 40 marks, above all repriſes (y).

This was one of the 40 ſmaller Monaſteries granted 21 December, and 20 January 1525, to Cardinal Wolſey, for the endowment of his two colleges; it being then valued at 22 l. 16 s. 4 d. (z)

To this Priory belonged a Church, which is now demoliſhed.

Upon the Cardinal's attainder theſe reverting to the Crown, K. Henry VIII. granted them to —John Huddleſton Eſq; afterwards knighted. He alienated them, by licenſe dated 1 April 1547, to

Thomas Darcy Eſq; and at the ſame time Robert Bedingfeild alienated a part of them [as we may ſuppoſe, though it is not expreſsly ſaid] to Richard Heydon Eſq; they being deſcribed as containing 12 meſſuages, 12 tofts, 12 gardens, a dovehouſe, 300 acres of arable, 60 acres of meadow, 400 acres of paſture, 60 of wood, 20 of marſh, 60 of heath and furze, and 6 l. rent. (a) This Thomas Darcy was ſon of Antony, and grandſon of John Darcy of Tolleſhunt Darcy, mentioned above under Brackſtead-lodge.—Antony was ſheriff of Eſſex in 1512, and dyed 18 October 1540. By his wife, Elizabeth daughter of Chriſtopher Wilkinſon Eſq; he had, Robert, who married Joan daughter of John Baſſet Eſq; but dyed without iſſue before his father; Antony, ſeated at Norwich; and—Thomas, the purchaſer of this eſtate. This Thomas had two wives 1. Anne daughter of Sir John Munday, Lord Mayor of London in 1522, by which he had, Antony, who left only a daughter; and Thomas, ſheriff of Eſſex in 1580, who, by Margaret daughter of Euſtace Sulyard of Runwell, Eſq; had ſix daughters, and three ſons, John, who dyed without iſſue; Euſtace, that became the heir male to Lord Darcy of Chiche; and Thomas, eldeſt ſon and heir, who, by his wife Camilla daughter of Vincent Guicciardine, had five daughters, and a ſon Thomas, that dyed without iſſue. 2. The abovesaid Thomas, the purchaſer of this eſtate, took to his 2d wife Elizabeth daughter of John Heydon, Eſq; ſiſter of Sir Chriſtopher Heydon of Baconsthorp, relict of . . . . Bedingfeild Eſq; He dyed 27 October 1556, and ſhe 10 September 1558 (b). His iſſue by her was — Brian, and Arthur. Brian was ſeated at Tiptre, where he built a fine Houſe out of the ruins of the Priory; ſtanding pleaſantly on the right hand ſide of the road leading from Colcheſter to Maldon. He was ſheriff of Eſſex in 1585, and dyed 25 December 1587 (c). His wife was Bridget, one of the daughters of John Corbet of Sprouſton in Norfolk, Eſq; by whom he had—John his ſon and heir, born in 1560; and Robert and Thomas, who dyed young; alſo two daughters. John, the eldeſt ſon, was bred to the law, and created a Serjeant 26 June 1623. He dyed in 1638, having married Dorothy, daughter of Thomas Audeley of Bere-church in this county, by which he had —Thomas, who in 1621. took to wife Mary daughter of Sir Andrew Aſtley of Writtle; and had by her Mary, and his poſthumous ſon —Thomas, born in 1632. He was of Tiptre, and of St. Clere's-hall in St. Oſith. On the 20th of June 1660, he was created a Baronet. He married, 1. Cecily daughter of Sir Symonds Dewes, Kt. and Bart. by whom he

Edward Acris. From him it came to

Sir Francis Pemberton; who, 3 June 1651, convey'd it to

John Braſſey; who paſſed it away, the 2d of February following, to Richard Horne: By his will he gave it to his wife Frances Horne. Of her it was bought, 27 November 1706, by John Price Gent. for 1500 l. He was then of London, but originally of Shrewſbury; and having married Judith daughter of .... Reynolds of Great Tew in Oxfordſhire, Eſq; had iſſue Robert, and John. The latter was Colonel of a Regiment of foot, and a Major-general: and dying at Breda in December 1747, left by Sarah his wife, eldeſt daughter of Matthew Martin of Wivenhou, Eſq; Martin Price Eſq; and Mary, married to the Hon. and Rev. Edward Townſhend, D. D. Dean of Norwich, &c.

Robert Price Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, was of the Middle Temple, Recorder of Colcheſter, and created Serjeant at law 2 June 1736. He married Bridget daughter of William Tempeſt of Yorkſhire, Eſq; one of the Protonotaries of the Court of Common-Pleas, by whom he had Bridget, married to Mr. John Cole of Colcheſter, a rich merchant, and ſeveral other children. He dyed 5 Auguſt 1741. — His widow enjoys now this maner and eſtate [L].

There belongs to it a remarkable Fair on the 25th of July.

TIPTRE-HEATH.

The account we have to give of it cannot ſo properly come any where as in this place; for which reaſon we chuſe to affix it here. This Heath, containing ſeveral hundreds of acres, is not all within the maner of Tiptre, though it takes its name from it; but extends into moſt of the next adjoyning Pariſhes.

Originally it was part of the Foreſt of Eſſex, which comprehended above half of this County. K. John, 25 March 1204, diſafforeſted ſo much of it as lay north of the cauſeway, or great road, leading from Stortford towards Colcheſter; that is, as far as Hayditch, or the ramparts on Lexden-heath, and thence turning to Neyland [M]. There remained to the King this great waſte in the foreſt, called Tiptree-heath, containing above a thouſand acres. All this appears from an Inquiſition taken in February 1401, whence we learn, That the freeholders, or tenents, of Inworth, Meſſing, Laier [Marney] Braxted, the town of Maldon, Totham, Tolleſbury, and Tolleſhunt, had Common of Paſture for their cattle here, and Eſtovers of the Trees and under-wood growing upon this Waſte, for the building and repairing of the houſes and hedges belonging to their tenements, and ſufficient Fewel for firing; as belonging to their lands and tenements in the vills or places aforeſaid, and had ever enjoyed the ſame. But the Abbeſs of Barking, the Abbot of Coxall, and Reginald de Graie Lord of Ruthen, who poſſeſſed maners in the adjoyning pariſhes of Tolleſbury, Tolleſhunt-major, and Brackſtead, had grievouſly incroach'd upon a great part of this waſte [N].

By an order of Council made in K. Henry the Eighth's reign, it was decreed and adjudged, " That all and everye of the freeholders, copieholders, and inhabitaunts of the townes of Meſſynge, Lyard Marney, Wygeboroughe Salcote, Tollyſhunte-knights, Tollyſhunte-Darcye, Tolleſburye, Goldeanger, Tolleſhunt-major, Little Tothame, Muche Tothame, Hebredge, Langeforde, Wikehamme, Braxſted, Keldon in parte, and Inforde, and of Tiptreeheethe, ſhall have and enjoye to them theire heires and ſucceſſors and aſſignes Common of Paſture in Tiptreeheathe in all and every the ſeverall waſtes thereof:" All the ſaid ſeverall Lordes tenants, as well in theire owne Lordes ſoile, common, and waſtes, as in the ſoyle, common, and waſtes of all other Lordes there, generallye to putte in and to common at large upon the ſaid Common and Waſte of Typtreheath, and of everye parte of the ſame, with all manner of Beaſtes and Cattells (except Gootes) at theire pleaſure, without nomber, keeping theire hogges ringed, not ſubverting

And that everye of the ſame freeholder and copieholder, their heires, ſucceſſors, and aſſignes, ſhall have reaſonable Common of Eſtovers of and for Carteboote, Plowgheboote, Hedgeboote to be taken in Tiptreeheathe beforeſaid, onelye in the freeholde off his Lorde or Lordes there of whome he holdeth after the fourme following, that is to ſaye, To loppe, croppe, and ſhredde in thonelye Woodes of his Lorde neceſſarie and convenient to be beſtowed, employed, ſpent, and occupied for Carteboote, Plowgheboote, and Hedgeboote onelye in upon and abowte his owne Landes that he holdeth of his Lorde in any of the ſame Townes adjoyning to Tiptreeheath or in Tiptreeheath beforeſaid, and in none other place, as longe as the ſame will ſerve. And if in cace when the ſaid lopping and ſhredding ſhall not be ſufficient, nor well ſerve them, then everye ſuch freeholder or copieholder to take other woodes and cutte them downe by the grounde that ſhal be convenyent and mete for Carteboote, Plowgheboote, and Hedgeboote growing in Tiptreeheath beforeſaid in thonelye freeholde of his owne Lorde there, to be employed, beſtowed, and ſpent onelye in upon and abowte theire owne landes which they have in any of the ſame Townes or in Tiptreeheath beforeſaid, and holde the ſame of his ſaid Lorde as beforeſaid, and in none other place, nor otherwyſe. And that it ſhal be lawfull to everye of the ſaide Lordes, theire heyres, ſucceſſors and aſſignes, to ſell, geve, fell, cutte down, and carrye away of his onelye woodes growing in his onelye freeholde in Typtreeheathe beforeſaid, at his and theire pleaſure, allwey leaving ſufficient woode for the ſaid Common of Eſtovers to the ſaid freeholders and copieholders after the fourme beforeſaid." [O]

Some time ago, the late Philip Bennet Eſq; of Bourchier-hall in Toleſbury, procured from the Crown a thirty one years leaſe of this Heath, or Waſte; but we do not find that he could make it turn to much advantage.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the chancel, both tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower with a ſhingled ſteeple, containing 3 Bells, beſides a ſmall one called a Saints-bell.

This Rectory was appendent to the maner, and preſented to by the ancient poſſeſſors of it, the families of Valence, Haſtings, and Talbot. And it continued in the Talbot-family, when the maner paſſed to the Lords de Grey of Ruthyn, even down to the year 1612 (d). Though it ſeems to have been convey'd to Sir Thomas Montgomery, and by his executors to William Ayloffe Gent. as hath been mention'd above. Gilbert Talbot Earl of Shrewſbury dying 8 May 1616, and leaving only three daughters, viz. Mary, wife of William Herbert Earl of Pembroke; Elizabeth, of Henry de Grey, Earl of Kent; and Aletheia, of Thomas Howard Earl of Arundel, this Advowſon came to thoſe three co-heireſſes; but the Earl of Kent dyed in 1639. without iſſue, whereupon the patronage of this church centered in the other two. Accordingly, Philip Earl of Pembroke preſented in 1643, and Henry Earl of Arundel in 1680 (e). Of their heirs it was bought by Thomas Tooke D. D. and given, with the Rectory of Lambourne, to Bennet, or Corpus-Chriſti, college in Cambridge.

of John Barry preſented to this living in 1386, and Thomas de Aſheton and Joan his wife in 1396 (g), which unqueſtionably they did by right of inheritance, as daughters and coheirs of Nicolas de Halughton.

Afterwards it ſeems to have been in Sir John Montgomery of Falkborne, who preſented to this rectory in 1439 (h).

Soon after which we find it in Thomas Green of Witham, who preſented three times to this living between the years 1472. and 1480 (i). He, or his heirs, ſold it to

William Roberts, one of the Auditors to K. Henry VII, who was twice married, 1ſt, to Jocoſa, or Joyce, daughter of Edward Peryent Eſq; by which he had a ſon, and two daughters. His 2d wife was Margaret, daughter of Sir William Pyrton, and by her he had one ſon, and one daughter. The ſon, and perhaps both children by the firſt wife, ſeem to have dyed young, or at leaſt to have left no iſſue: For his deſcendents quartered the arms of Pyrton, which ſhews that they derived themſelves from that family. The father, William Roberts, dyed 8 October 1508, and is buried, with his two wives, in this church (k). His iſſue by his ſecond wife was, Margaret, wife of John Timperley, and —Thomas Roberts Gent. This ſon of his was alſo one of the King's Auditors, and held the maner and advowſon of Little Braxted, with 4 meſſuages, 80 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, 10 of paſture, 40 of wood: And 22s. rent, and one pound of pepper, formerly parcel of the maner of Woodham-Mortimer, holden of the King as of his Honor of Peverell by the 15th part of a knight's fee. He dyed 1 December 1535, leaving by Anne his wife, daughter of . . . Aſpelin of Haydon, Clement his ſon and heir; Elizabeth, married firſt to Robert Moody, afterwards to Henry Stapleton; and Philippa, to Chriſtopher Dawney of Norfolk (l). —Clement, born in 1525, ſucceeded his father. He married Mary, daughter of . . . . Michell, by which he had Thomas; Jeronymus; Clement; Henry: and Mary, wife of Robert Vigoris of Langham; Elizabeth; Margaret; Anna. Departing this life 24 June 1593, poſſeſſed of the aboveſaid eſtates, and of a water-mill, and a parcel of meadow and arable called Poſtern-croft, he was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon —Thomas Roberts Eſq; then aged 40 (m). He married Alice, daughter of . . . . Hobſon of Shipley in Suſſex, and had by her Thomas; William; Michael; and Martha wife of John Ponder of Braintree. He dyed 28 March 1612, being then ſaid to be poſſeſs'd of this maner and advowſon; a meſſuage called Squiers, alias Bennetts, and 30 acres of land in Witham; and Barnehouſe with 88 acres of arable in Shipley aforeſaid (n). Notwithſtanding which we find in other records, that two years before Sir Henry Maynard held this maner of Brookehall, otherwiſe Braxted-hall, or Little Braxted (o). Whether it was in truſt, or in fee, doth not appear. But it was afterwards again in the Roberts family: For —Thomas Roberts Eſq; who dyed 2 July 1636, held not only the maner of Little Braxted, and advowſon of the Church, but alſo ſeveral other eſtates (p) [R]. He married Martha, daughter of William Wiſeman of Mayland, by whom he had—Thomas, who dyed 20 March 1680, aged 64, and is buried in the chancel of this church.

Next we find this eſtate in Robert Aylett Gent. deſcended from the Ayletts of Dorward's-hall in Rivenhall, who married a daughter of Henry Ayloff Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir William Ayloff of Great Braxted, Bart. His ſon—John Aylett Eſq; ſold the maner and other appertenances of Little Brackſtead to

Samuel Ruſh Eſq; on or about the year 1717, and it is now in his grandſon —John Ruſh Eſq;

Charitable Gift.

John Goddeſhalfe gave an Houſe and Lands in this pariſh, of Eight pounds a year: Out of which 10 s. per ann. is paid for quit-rent to the Lord of this maner; and 1 s. 8 d. to the King. The remainder is applied to repair the Church. The Donor was buried in Great Totham church-yard, under a grave-ſtone, with an Epitaph wherein this Benefaction of his was recorded, but is now defaced.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel, both tyled: The Chancel is round, and very old. At the weſt end ſtands a ſpire ſhingled, containing two Bells.

This Rectory was all along appendent to the Maner; but hath ſome time been ſuffered to lapſe to the Biſhop, propter notoriam exilitatem, as the record hath it (q), 'on account of its 'remarkable ſmallneſs;' and to the Lord Chancellor, as it did of late. The Rector of Great Braxtead held it a while by ſequeſtration, till the ſeals were taken out.

Norman Meade, M. A. was the laſt Rector, and the preſent is John Lewis.

The name of this Pariſh ſeems to have been originally Raven-hall, and accordingly we find it ſometimes written in records Ravenhale; and theſe other various uncouth ways, Revenhale, Rewenhall, Rowenhall, Renhale, Riuuehala, Ruenhala, Ruinhall, Ruhall, Runall, Ruwehale, Ryvenhall, Rywehale, &c.

Before the Conqueſt, the Lands here belonged to Edeva, [or Editha] K. Edward the Confeſſor's Queen; Harold; Leſtan, and Aleſtan, free-men; and Ulſi, alſo a free-man: At the

1. The maner of RIVENHALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands near a mile from the church.

This maner, as we have ſeen, was in the Earl of Bulloin; and the heireſs of that Family marrying to K. Stephen, it came by that means into the Crown.

In the reigns of K. Henry II, Richard I, and John, Baldwin de Oſterwich held 5 knights fees here (r). And under him they were holden in 1210, 13 of K. John, by Ralph de Roffa, or Rouceſter; whoſe anceſtors enjoyed Nuſels in the pariſh of Berkway in Hertfordſhire, of the gift of Eudo Dapifer. This Ralph had iſſue, William, Peter, and Alice.—William de Roffa, the eldeſt ſon, held the maner of Rewenhalle, and advowſon of the church, of the king, in capite, by the ſervice of one fee and a half (s). And, under him, Hugh de Eſſex held in Rywehale 180 acres of arable, meadow, and paſture, and a water-mill (t). William de Roffa aboveſaid was ſucceeded by his brother—Peter, then aged 40 years. But he dying without iſſue, all his Eſtates came to his ſiſter (u),

Alice, who brought them in marriage to Robert de Scalariis, otherwiſe de Scalers, or Scales, deſcended from Scalier, who came in with William the Conqueror (w). He dyed about the 40th of Henry III, (x) having had two ſons, Peter [T], and Robert. Peter ſeems to have lived but a little while after his father; for, in the 42d of the king juſt now mention'd,—Robert, and Alice his mother, gave that king ſeventeen marks of gold for livery of the maners of Ruwehale and Neuſeles (y). He was in ſeveral expeditions in France; and had ſummons to parliament: Dying about the year 1266, he left by Muriel his wife—Robert his ſon and heir, who was engaged in ſeveral expeditions into Wales, Scotland, France, and Flanders (z): and had ſummons to parliament as a Baron of the realm from the 27th to the 33d of K. Edward I, in which laſt year he dyed. His ſon and heir—Robert, ſucceeded him, and was made Knight of the Bath with Prince Edward, whom he attended in his expedition into Scotland; and was ſummoned to parliament from 34 Edward I. to 18 Edward II. (a) that is, to the time of his deceaſe in 1324; at which time he held the maner of Rewenhale of the king in ca. of his honor of Bologne, by the ſervice of one knight's fee (b) He married Egelina, or Egelma, daughter of Hugh de Courtney, by which he had his ſon—Sir Robert de Scales, who was alſo engaged in ſeveral expeditions; and had ſummons to parliament from the 16th to the 43d of Edward III (c). He held this maner, and the advowſon of the church [V], at the time of his death in 1369 (d); and having married Catharine, ſiſter and coheir of William de Ufford Earl of Suffolk, left by her his ſon—Roger de Scales Kt. then 22 years of age, who was ſummoned to parliament from 49 Edward III. to 9 Richard II (e) [W]. He held in this pariſh 5 s. per ann. by petite ſerjeancy, iſſuing out of a tenement called Goſſelyns: and his lady, Joane, daughter and heir of Sir John de Northwoode, brought him the Lordſhip of Shaldford in this county, and eſtates in Kent. He dyed 10 Richard II. and ſhe 2 Henry V. having taken to her ſecond huſband . . . Thorpe (f). Their ſon and heir—Robert Lord Scales was in an expedition into Aquitain; but, being of an infirm conſtitution, he made no great figure in life, and dyed at the age of thirty, 7 December 1402, leaving two ſons, Robert, and Thomas (g), by his lady Elizabeth daughter of William Lord Bardolph [remarried, after his deceaſe, to Sir Henry Percy of Athol]—Robert, the eldeſt, dyed 1 July 1418, unmarried, and was ſucceeded by his brother—Thomas, then aged 21 (h). He ſignalized himſelf in ſundry martial exploits, in France; againſt Jack Cade; and in many other places (i); in conſideration of which, he obtained from the crown a grant of 100l. during his life; and the privilege, or liberty, of having a ſhip of 200 tuns, to tranſport any goods or merchandiſe to whatever port he ſhould think fit beyond the ſeas, except the ſtaple of Calais, paying the uſual cuſtoms (k). He had ſummons to parliament from the 23d to the 38th of K. Henry VI (l). During the civil wars in this kingdom he firmly adhered to the Lancaſtrian intereſt; but at laſt fell a ſacrifice to it; being murdered (m) on the 25th of July 1460. He married Emma daughter of John Whaleſborough, by which he left his only daughter and heir

Elizabeth, aged twenty four, then wife of Henry Bourchier Eſq; ſecond Son to Henry Earl of Eſſex. After whoſe deceaſe without ſurviving iſſue, ſhe took to her ſecond huſband Antony de Widville, Earl Rivers, [brother to K. Edward the Fourth's Queen,] and in her right he was declared Lord Scales; had ſummons to parliament by that title, &c. In Trinity term 1466, a fine paſſed between Simon Baxter and Gilbert Hengham, plaintiffs, and Antony Wydevyle and Elizabeth his wife, deforciants, of ſeveral Lordſhips in Norfolk, Suffolk, Hertfordſhire and Eſſex, particularly of the maners of Ruynhale and Shaldford, which were ſettled on Antony and Elizabeth his wife for life, and their heirs; and if the ſaid Antony and his wife dyed without iſſue, then thoſe maners to remain to Sir Thomas Bourgchier, John Fyncham, Richard Auſyn clerk, &c. and the heirs of the ſaid Richard. A. Wydvile, Lord Scales, had no iſſue by this lady, nor by Mary daughter of Hentry Fitz-Lewis. It is well known, how this valuable perſon, who had ſignalized himſelf upon many occaſions (n), was beheaded at Pontefract, 24 June 1483, through the artifices of that cruel uſurper K. Richard III. The day before his execution, he bequeathed by will ſuch lands as were the Lady Scales's his firſt wife to Sir Edward Wydvile his brother. But long before that he had conveyed the Lordſhips of Rivenhall and Shaldford to the Gates family; [of which ſee an account under High-Eſtre and Pleſhey.] For

Sir Geffrey Gate, who dyed 22 January 1477, held thoſe maners [X] of Cecily Ducheſs of York (o). And Agnes his widow held them in dowry till her deceaſe in 1487 (p). — William, their ſon, born in 1462, married Mirabella, daughter of Thomas Coppeden, or Copdow, of High-Eſtre; and dying 28 September 1485, [Y] left by her his only ſon — Geffrey, but one year old (q). He was knighted afterwards; and had four ſons by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of William Clopton Eſq; Departing this life 7 May 1526, he was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon — Sir John Gate, aged 22 (r). He was a very conſiderable perſon; as being of the privy chamber to K. Henry VIII. captain of the guard to K. Edward VI. vice-chamberlain of his houſehold, chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaſter, and a privy counſellor. Living in the time of the diſſolution of the Monaſteries, he much enlarged his patrimony by the ſpoils of them; [as may be ſeen under Pleſhey.] He was knighted at the coronation of K. Edward VI. and conſtituted Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1552. But, unhappily for him, zealouſly eſpouſing the cauſe of the Lady Jane Gray, he was beheaded 22 Auguſt 1553. And, upon his attainder, This, and other his Eſtates, fell to the Crown [Z].

In 1553, Queen Mary I. granted this maner of Rivenhall, among others, and the advowſon of the church, to Suſan Tonge, alias Clarentieux, widow, and her heirs (s). And, in 1557, ſhe had licenſe to alienate it to

Francis Englefeild, and others (t). One of theſe purchaſers was moſt probably of the White-family of Hutton and Runwell: For

George White Eſq; who dyed 13 June 1584, held this maner and advowſon, — Richard his ſon and heir being then aged 24 (u). He obtained leave, 2 May 1590 (w), to ſell it to

Ralph Wiſeman Eſq; ſecond ſon of John Wiſeman of Wimbiſh, and of Seborowe-hall in Felſtead. The Wiſeman family was very conſiderable in this county, and poſſeſſed of very large eſtates, in the laſt, and part of the foregoing century, as I have juſt mentioned in Great Waltham. But the name is almoſt forgotten, &c. [See a particular account of them under Great Canfield.] The foreſaid Ralph was knighted 11 May 1603, and had two wives. 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Francis Barley of Kempton in Hertfordſhire, Eſq; by Dorothy, a natural daughter of Richard Lord Riche. 2. .... daughter of Riche of Horndon, by which he had no iſſue. But by the firſt he had Richard, who dyed young; Thomas; Frances, wife of .... Brock; Elizabeth, wife of ... Smyth, and afterwards of Thomas Fitche of Braſenhead; Mary, wife of Thomas Fanſhaw, of this pariſh, Eſq; and Robert. He dyed 26 Auguſt 1608 (x), and was buried in this church [A]. His eldeſt ſon — Sir Thomas Wiſeman, then aged 38, who had been knighted in 1604, ſucceeded him; and was reckoned to have an eſtate of 3000l. a year. He married Iſabella daughter of Antony Rooper of Farmingham in Kent, by which he

He married Martha, youngeſt daughter of Samuel Gott of London, ironmonger, by whom he had five ſons, Samuel; Thomas; Maximilian; William; Robert: And ſix daughters, Elizabeth; Martha; another Elizabeth; Mary; Sarah; and Frances. The ſecond ſon married a daughter of Capt. Fiſher, and dyed 1 April 1733. Maximilian had to wife a daughter of . . . . Matthews Eſq; William dyed unmarried. One of the daughters was married to . . . Tyſon Eſq; Martha to . . . Gott of Suſſex, Eſq; Sarah to Francis Bridges Eſq; receiver general of the duties on ſalt, and brother to the Duke of Chandois: He dyed 25 September 1714. Frances to Henry Featherſtone Eſq; She dyed 14 June 1746. Their father departed this life 11 January 1706, aged 83, and was buried in the chancel of this church, under an iron-monument in form of a grave-ſtone. — Samuel, the eldeſt ſon, was bred to the law, a man of learning and a good character, and thrice burgeſs in parliament for Winchelſea. But he dyed before his father, namely 20 Auguſt 1699, aged 47, and lies buried in the chancel of this church, under a table of white and veined marble. He married Anna-Maria, only daughter of William Finch Eſq; who had been a merchant in London, by whom he had three ſons, Thomas, and Samuel, that dyed young; and —William, who ſucceeded his grandfather. He married Anne, daughter of Sir James Bateman Lord Mayor of London in 1717, ſiſter to the Lord Viſcount Bateman; and dying 12 Auguſt 1729, left by her — . . . . his ſon and heir, and two daughters, one of whom is married to John Hanbury of Kelmerſh in Northamptonſhire, Eſq; His widow was remarried in February 1735. to George Dolliffe of London, Eſq; The ſon dying under age, 19 March 1730, theſe Eſtates deſcended to his couſin —Thomas, ſon of Thomas Weſtern by Mary his wife, daughter and coheir of Sir Richard Shirley of Preſton-place in Suſſex, Bart. He married Anne daughter of Robert Callis Eſq; ſiſter to the late Admiral Smith Callis; and hath by her two ſons, Charles; and Thomas-Walſingham: and three daughters, Anna-Maria; Frances; Judith.

2. The maner of HOO-HALL, alias Martells, or Coggeſhall's, took thoſe various names from its ſeveral owners. The maner houſe ſtands a quarter of a mile from the church.

Euſtace de Ho held one carucate of land in this pariſh, worth 10 l. a year, by the ſerjeancy of finding one horſeman, with a long coat, in the king's army for 40 days, whenever he ſhould war in Wales (a).

William Martell, and John de Coggeſhall, held the ſame before in partnerſhip (b). For Felicia, wife of the ſaid William, dyed 36 Henry III. holding of the king in ca. 98 acres of arable, 4 and a half of meadow, 3 of paſture, and 14 s. 4 d. rent of aſſize in Rywehall, by the ſervice of finding one Eſquire with a purple lance and an iron cap, for 40 days. — Ralph Martell, her ſon, dyed the 43d of the ſaid king, holding 130 acres of arable, 2 of meadow, 4 and a half of paſture, &c. by the ſervice aforeſaid (c).

John de Coggeſhall held, 24 Edward I, a moiety of this maner, viz. 90 acres of arable, &c. by half of that ſervice; as did afterward his ſon and grandſon (d).

And, the 35th of the ſaid king, John Martell held another moiety, upon the ſame terms, of the king, in ca. as of his honor of Bologne (e). — William, his ſon, who dyed 11 Edward II, held a capital meſſuage here, with 120 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, &c. and 18 s. 1 d. rent of aſſize from ſeven free tenents, being obliged to do ſuit every other year for thoſe tenents at the king's court of Bologne at Witham (f).

John de Coggeſhall, his partner, was obliged to do ſuit and ſervice, in his turn, every other year from month to month.

Thomas Martell held, in 7 Richard II, this maner of Hoo-hall, ſaid to be in Rivenhall, Witham, and Falkborne, of the king: and 5 acres called Whaleſland, of the Lord de Scales. (g) This is the firſt time we find it called Hoo-hall in records. His ſon — Thomas held it likewiſe, 2 Henry VI, by the ſerjeancy, as it is expreſſed in the record, of being Chamberlain to the Earl of Bologne, and paying 2 d. to the king by the ſheriff's hands (h). He dyed in the year 1423, or 1424. His next heir was his couſin

Elias Doreward Eſq; deſcended from the Dorewards of Bocking, ſon of Walter; which Walter was ſon of E. Doreward, by Anne his wife, daughter of John Martell of Martell-hall in Ardley, and ſiſter to Thomas Martell Eſq; The ſaid Elias, by Joane his wife, had William, Elizabeth, and Margaret. He dyed 4 Henry VI. and his widow was remarried to Nicolas Mortimer of Woodham-Mortimer, Eſq; — William Doreward, the ſon and heir, being only two years old at the time of his father's deceaſe, dyed 17 Henry VI. under age, ſo that this eſtate fell to his eldeſt ſiſter

Elizabeth, wife of David Mortimer (i).

We find it, five years after, in the Babthorpe family; but by what right doth not appear. For William Babthorpe Eſq; dyed 22 Henry VI. holding one meſſuage, 260 acres of arable, 4 of meadow, 4 of wood, 2 of more, and 10 s. rent in Revenhale, Faulkburne, Witham, and Keldon: and we know that it included this eſtate, by the manner of the tenure, which was to be Chamberlain to the Earl of Bologne (k), — William, his ſon, held the ſame at the time of his deceaſe, in 1465, it being then deſcribed, a meſſuage, and one carucate of land called Martell, alias Hohall, in Revenhale and Falkeburn, by the ſervice aforeſaid. — Elizabeth, his daughter and heir, was then aged four years (l).

It belonged afterwards to ſome branches of the Smyth-family, mentioned above, under Little Badow, Blackmore, and Creſſing. For Sir Clement Smyth, who dyed 26 Auguſt 1552, held this, called the maner of Revenhall. —John was his ſon and heir (m). And—William Smith Eſq; held, in February 1631-2, the maner of Holehall, alias Martells, of the king, in capite,— Sir Thomas Smith, alias Nevill, being his brother and heir (n).

But, between them, John Ellyott had licenſe, 3 May 1567, to alienate Holehall, alias Howhall, alias Martells, to Richard Pickering, and others (o) [B].

It is certain, that ſome of the Smyths were ſettled here: And, in particular, Thomas, youngeſt ſon of John Carrington, alias Smyth, who dyed in 1446. [See under Creſſing.] That Thomas had two wives. 1. . . . . daughter of . . . . Hamond. 2. Iſabella, daughter and heir of William Toft of Little Badow. By this laſt he had Sir Clement Smyth of Little Badow; John Smyth of Blackmore; and Leonard Smyth of Shouldham. [See above under Creſſing.] By his firſt wife he had Thomas; Melicent, wife of William Brampton of Colcheſter; Iſabella, wife of . . . . Hawks of Bocking, afterwards of William Tuſſer; and John, who dyed without iſſue. — Thomas Smyth, the eldeſt ſon and heir, ſeated in this pariſh, married Edith, daughter of Robert Hatche, by which he had his only ſon —Nicolas, whoſe firſt wife was Winifrid daughter of Thomas Wilford Eſq; and by her he had — Reginald, who dyed without iſſue. By his ſecond wife Grace, daughter and heir of Edw. Abell, relict of James Langbroke, he left an only daughter named Mary (p).

It paſſed as the reſt to the Weſtern family, and is now in Mrs. Dolliffe.

¶ Richard Coleman, and Bartholomew de Shaldeford, held ſome parcels of land here of John Martell, 7 Edward II. (q)

And Sir Thomas Eſſex held lands in Martells, alias Hoghall, in 1558 (r).

3. DOREWARDS-HALL

took its name from the ancient owners of it, the Dorewards. It is otherwiſe vulgarly called Durance-hall.

The maner houſe is ſituate on the right hand ſide of the road, going from Witham to Keldon, a mile and a half from Rivenhall-church.

John Doreward was living here 3 Ric. II. (s)

After a long intermiſſion we find it in the Aylett family: [concerning which ſee under Braintree, Doddinghurſt, Styſtead, and White Roding.]

William Aylett, who dyed 31 March 1583, held this eſtate, lying in Rivenhall and Keldon, partly of Feringbury, and partly of Felix-hall. — Richard was his ſon and heir (t). — Thomas, 5th ſon of William Aylett of Rivenhall, was owner of it in 1638. And ſo was— Jeremy Aylett Eſq; at the time of his death, 12 April 1657. He married Frances eldeſt daughter of Richard Freſhwater Eſq; by which he left two ſons, Richard, and Jeremy; and two daughters, Bridget, and Frances (u) — Richard, the eldeſt ſon, was living in 1681, having had by Mary his wife, daughter and coheir of Tho. Bancroft of Santonhouſe in Norfolk, Thomas, born in 1653, and three daughters (w), Elizabeth, married to Sir Robert Tabor Kt. and Frances, and Heſter, one of which was wife of William Tendring Eſq;

It belongs now to Mrs. Jegon.

4. The maner of LANEHAMS.

The manſion houſe is at the weſt end of this pariſh, three miles and a half from the church, and within half a mile of the road leading from Braintree to Coggeſhall.

From its ancient owners, a family ſurnamed de Lenham, it took its preſent name. Edward de Lenham held it, 18 Edward II, of Robert Lord Scales above mentioned, by the 4th part of a knight's-fee: it then conſiſting of one meſſuage, and 120 acres of arable (x). — Robert Lenham, or Laynham, held it in the reign of K. Henry IV. His daughter Melicent was ſecond wife to John Carrington, alias Smyth, mentioned above in Creſſing: who founded a Chapel in the church-yard here, wherein he and ſome of his poſterity were buried.

John Watſon, who dyed 30 December 1583, held of Mr. White as of his maner of Rivenhall, and of John Wiſeman Gent. as of his maner of Styſted, in free ſocage, this maner of Lanehames, with appertenances, in Rivenhall, Stieſted, Bocking, and Brancktree. And alſo a tenement and lands called Norfolks, and Snows-croft, in this pariſh. — William, his ſon and heir, being ten years of age (y).

Richard Caſwell held it 2 January 1627-8 (z). It is now in four co-heirs.

5. BOURCHIERS-HALL

was ſo denominated from its noble owners; two of whom were Earls of Eſſex, and enjoyed immenſe Eſtates in this county, as is more particularly ſhewn under Halſtead.

The maner houſe ſtands two miles from the church.

Robert Burghcher is the firſt of this family upon record, who is ſaid to hold, at the time of his death in 1349, this maner of Revenhale of Robert de Scales, by military ſervice (a). He had ſummons to parliament 16, 22, 23 of Edward III. His ſon — Sir John Bourchier had alſo ſummons to parliament from the 5th to the 23d of K. Richard II. and the 1ſt of K. Henry IV. (b) and at the time of his deceaſe, 21 May 1400, held this maner called one meſſuage and 200 acres of land in Rivenhale and Witham, in which he had free-warren, as well as in many other eſtates (c). He was ſucceeded by his ſon — Bartholomew Lord Bourchier; who dyed 18 May 1409, poſſeſs'd, as it is ſaid in the record, of 50 acres of arable and paſture called Bourgchersmarſhe in Rivenhale, and 1 acre of meadow in Wikeham (d). Idonea his widow dyed 12 September 1410; and they left only one daughter — Elizabeth, then married to Sir Hugh Stafford, and afterwards to Sir Lewis Robeſſart (e). Her father, dying thus without iſſue male, was ſucceeded by — Sir William Bourchier, ſon of William, brother of Sir John, father of the ſaid Bartholomew (f). He married Anne, daughter of Thomas of Woodſtock, Duke of Glouceſter, ſixth ſon of K. Edward III, widow of Edmund Earl of Stafford, by which he had Henry his ſon and heir; Thomas, ſucceſſively biſhop of Ely and archbiſhop of Canterbury; William Lord Fitz-warine; and John Lord Berners. He dyed in 1420, and his eldeſt ſon and heir — Henry, created Earl of Eſſex 30 June 1461, enjoyed this and other his great eſtates, of which he was found poſſeſs'd at the time of his deceaſe, 4 April 1483 (g). By his lady Iſabell, ſiſter of Richard Duke of York, he had ſeven ſons; of whom William the eldeſt being dead before him, his grandſon — Henry Earl of Eſſex therefore ſucceeded him. But being unhappily killed by a fall from a horſe, 30 March 1540, all his eſtates centered in his only daughter — Anne, married ſoon after to Sir William Parr Earl of Eſſex and Marquis of Northampton. At the time of her deceaſe 26 January 1570, ſhe held this maner of Bourchiers-hall, it being then deſcribed as comprehending 20 meſſuages, ... cottages, 20 gardens, 20 orchards, 1000 acres of arable land, 100 acres of meadow, 300 of paſture, 40 of wood, 100 of furſe and buſhes, 40 s. rent, and free-warren, in Rivenhall, alias Ravenhall, Eſterford, and Keldon (h). Her next heir was Walter Devereux, Viſcount Hereford, and Lord Ferrers of Chartley, ſon of Richard, who was ſon of Walter, and grandſon of John Devereux and Cecily Bourchier, ſiſter of Henry Bourchier, the laſt mentioned Earl of Eſſex. But, to corroborate his title, or for ſome other reaſon, Qu. Elizabeth, 25 November 1570, made him a grant of this maner (i).

Sir Ralph Wiſeman dyed poſſeſs'd of it, 26 Auguſt 1608 (k). But it ſeems to have been diſmembred, either before or ſome time after; for William Smith Eſq; the ſame that was poſſeſs'd of the maner of Witham as above mention'd, held, in February 1630, lands that were parcel of the maner of Bourchier's hall (l).

It hath paſſed, as Rivenhall-hall, to Thomas Weſtern Eſq;

Beſides the aforeſaid Eſtates, in this pariſh, there is another ſometimes called a Maner, and named Archer's, from its ancient owners: For Robert Archer held half a knight's fee here of John de Vere Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1360 (m). In Henry the Second's reign it was ſtyled a knight's fee, and holden by Geffrey de Ruinhall, and Robert Huſcual (n). The ſubſequent poſſeſſors, after Archer, were the Smiths, in the times of Henry VI. Henry VII. and Edward VI (o). Sir Ralph Wiſeman, at the time of his deceaſe in 1608, held this maner, or meſſuage, called Archers, in Rivenhall, Bradwell, and Great Braxted, of the maner of Stanſted Montfichet, in free ſocage (p).

Abbey-lands.

St. Martins le Grand had lands in this pariſh.

Robert Scales gave the Knights Templars 162 acres of arable, 3 of meadow, and 5 of paſture in Rowenhalle. And they had other lands here; The tenent of ſome of which was to eat in lieu of all ſervices, 'manducabit pro omni ſervitio (*).'

Charitable Gifts.

Sir Ralph Wiſeman gave Four pounds per ann. to the Poor of this pariſh out of Bradocks in Wimbiſh.

On the ſouth ſide of the church yard near the ſteeple lyeth a ſtone, under which are ſaid to be buried two Siſters, who left a legacy of Four pounds a year, for Herrings to be given to the Poor every Friday in Lent. Over this ſtone ſtood a houſe in which they were diſtributed, but by the fall of the ſteeple it was beaten down, and is not rebuilt.

¶ In this pariſh was formerly ſettled a Family ſurnamed Tuſſer. William Tuſſer married Iſabella, daughter of Thomas Smyth of this place, ſiſter to Sir Clement Smyth, and had by her, Clement, Andrew, John, Thomas, William; and three daughters. From one of the ſons ſprung Thomas Tuſſer, author of 'Five hundred 'Points of good Huſbandry, as well for the 'champion or open country, as alſo for the 'woodland or ſeverall, mixed in every month 'with Huſwifery. Augmented to a fourth part 'more, with divers other leſſons, as dyet for 'the Farmer, of the properties of Windes, 'Plants, Hops, Hearbes, Bees, and approved 'Remedies for Sheep and Cattle, &c." London 1580. 4to. Dedicated to the Lord Paget, who was his patron, and exhibited to him at the Univerſity. In his youth, he paſſed through ſeveral ſchools, as at Wallingford, St. Pauls, and Eaton; from whence he was admitted into Trinity-hall in Cambridge. Afterwards he lived ſucceſſively in Staffordſhire, Suffolk, Norfolk, Cambridgeſhire, London; going through the ſeveral profeſſions of muſician, ſchoolmaſter, ſervant, huſbandman, graſier, poet; and what not? more ſkilful in all, than thriving in any, employment; though he is not charged with any vicious extravagancy. He was buried in the church of St. Mildred, London, in 1580, with an epitaph (q).

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel, only the latter is half a yard narrower on each ſide, and about as much lower, than the Church: both are tyled: At the weſt end a brick Tower with battlements, and leaded, in the middle of which riſes a wooden ſteeple which ends in a ſpire painted like lead: This was done about the year 1717. Here is but one Bell.

generally appendent to the maner, as appears by Mr. Newcourt (r). In 1417, Tho. Frampton, and John Ingoldeſby, clerks, John Northwich, and John Wiltſhire, Eſquires, had licenſe to give the advowſon of this church, holden of the honor of Bologne, to the Abbey and Convent of Burſyerd in Suffolk (s). And, four years after, a patent paſſed for the appropriating of this Rectory to that Monaſtery. But it ſeems to have taken no effect: For it came with the maner to Gate. Upon Sir John Gate's attainder it falling to the Crown, Qu. Mary granted it to Suſan Tonge, as hath been obſerved above. Clement Tuſſer purchaſed one turn of Sir John Gate. And it was bought with the maner, by or even before the year 1579, by Ralph Wiſeman Eſq; (t) From the Wiſeman family it hath paſſed to that of Weſtern, in which it continues.

This Living hath a hundred acres of glebe. The Parſonage-houſe is attended with this inconvenience, that it ſtands a mile from the Church. It was rebuilt by the preſent worthy incumbent the Rev. Mr. Hatſell, ſon of Sir Henry Hatſell Kt. one of the Barons of the Exchequer.

13. KELVEDON, otherwiſe KELDON, or Eaſterford.

THIS little Town is eaſt of Rivenhall. Part of it ſtands pleaſantly on a hill or eminence, the London-road going through a ſtreet belonging to it, of near a mile in length.

In Ongar-hundred there is another Kelvedon, that has the addition of Hatch, to diſtinguiſh it from this.

As to the name; the Saxon Dun ſignifies a Hill, and the firſt ſyllable is formed either from Kelo, a ſpring, or from Celeo, or Celend, cold: The C before a vowel being in the Saxon language pronounced like a K. But the learned Dr. Stukeley derives the name from the Celtic Celn, myſterious, or to conceal, from whence Celi, the name of God; according to which it ſignifies God's-hill.

It is written in records theſe various ways: Kilwendun, Chellenedana, and Chelleuadana, Kelluedone, Kellevedon, Kenlevedon.

Eaſterford denotes the more Eaſtern Ford, which it is in regard to Rivenhall-water now covered with a bridge, and to that at Wickham-mills.

In the Saxons time, ſome of the lands in this pariſh belonged to the Crown; ſome to Agelric, who gave them to the Abbey of St. Peter's Weſtminſter; ſome to Gudmund, a King's Thegn; and ſome to eleven Freemen. In William the Conqueror's reign, they were holden by the ſaid Abbey; and by Hugh de Montfort, whoſe undertenant was William ſon of Groſſe.

They are at preſent divided into four Maners, or Lordſhips. 1. The maner of Church-hall. — 2. Filol's, or Felix-hall. — 3. Kelvedon, Eaſterford-hall.—4. Ewell-hall.

1. The maner of CHURCH-HALL is ſo call'd from its ſituation near the church. It was originally in the Crown, and holden under Edward the Confeſſor by Agelric, one of his Nobles, who gave it, as we have ſaid, to Weſtminſter-abbey [C]. That king confirm'd this grant by the name of Kylewendun with all its appertenances (u).

It continued in that Abbey till the Suppreſſion on the 16 January 1539. The year following, 17 December, this Monaſtery being converted into a Biſhopric, of which Thomas Thirleby was made Biſhop, he had a grant of this maner and rectory among others (w). But that Biſhopric being again diſſolved, 1 April 1550, K. Edward VI. granted the premiſſes to Nicolas Ridley biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors (x). And Qu. Mary I. confirmed, 3 March 1553, to Edmund Bonner biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors, this maner, rectory, and advowſon, with power to convert the rectory to their own uſe.

From that time it hath been holden by leaſe under the Biſhop of London; formerly by John Wakering of Lincolns-inn, Eſq; deſcended from the ancient family of the Wakerings of Great Wakering in this county: and ſince by the St. Johns. Of late it was in Sir Francis St. John, whoſe heir is Sir John Bernard of Brampton in Huntingdonſhire, Bart.

2. The maner of FILIOLS-HALL, corruptly and vulgarly Felix-hall.

The maner-houſe ſtands about a mile from the church.

This is properly the maner of Keldon: Gudmund held it before the Conqueſt, as did after it Hugh de Montfort [D]; according to what we have juſt obſerved above.

It came early into a Family ſurnamed Filiol, from the Latin filiolus, or the French filleul, ſignifying Godſon. And by a Seal appendent to a Grant of William Filiol to Coggeſhall-abbey, [E] having the repreſentation of a Font, with a king on the one ſide of the font and a biſhop on the other, holding a child as in the ceremony of Baptiſm; it is reaſonably ſuppoſed, the Family had a tradition, That this ſurname had been given, at the time of baptiſm, to one of their anceſtors by ſome of our kings of England. —The name occurs in the roll of Battle-Abbey among thoſe Invaders who came in with William the Conqueror (y): But in a liſt of them, at the end of a Life of William by d'Eudemare, which appears to me of the beſt authority (z), that name is not to be found.

The firſt of this name and family that I meet with, is Robert Fillol, or Filioll, that held lands in Leaden Roding, about the reign of K. Stephen. His brother and heir—Ralph had iſſue, William, Nigell, and Ralph.—William, the benefactor to Coggeſhall-abbey as above mentioned, had by Emma his wife Ralph, who dyed before him; and—Baldwine. This latter had three knights fees in Kentenden, otherwiſe Keldon, of the Honor of Hagenet (a). He had alſo eſtates in Bradwell near Coggeſhall, and Little Oakley, as may be ſeen under thoſe reſpective Pariſhes. By his wife ... daughter of John de Boreham (b), he left two ſons, Wareys, who dyed before him; and—Richard, his heir and ſucceſſor; that, by Anne his wife, had John; Thomas; and Giles, Archdeacon of Colcheſter from 1286 to 1298, alſo Prebendary of Mapeſbury (c). Their father Richard had licenſe from K. Henry III, in 1253, to hunt in the foreſt of Eſſex (d). He dyed 44 Henry III, 1260, holding the maner of Kelvedon of the king, in capite, by the ſervice of three knights fees, of the Honor of Halye; and one carucate of land in Little Badue, which was of the inheritance of Anne his wife, by whom he had John, and Thomas (e).—John, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded: And in 1290, or 91, had licenſe to incloſe a wood of 80 acres called Wykehey, that lay within the bounds of the foreſt, for a Park (f). He was a Knight banneret in the reign of K. Edward I. as was alſo his brother Thomas [F]. He dyed without iſſue male, 10 Edward II. [G] holding the maner of Kelvedon of the king in capite, of the Honor of Hagenet, by the ſervice of three knights-fees (g). [He had alſo Little Badow: See under that pariſh.]—John, ſon of his brother Thomas, was his heir, and alſo a Knight banneret. He married Margaret daughter of .... Mucklington of Mugdon-hall in Ulting; by which he had three ſons. 1. John. 2. William, who marrying .... daughter and heir of .... Welſh of Langton-Welſh in Dorſetſhire, became founder of the family of Fillol in that county, and alſo of thoſe at Old-hall in Rayne. 3. Thomas, of Aſhfield in Suffolk, that had three daughters, coheireſſes; namely, Margaret, wife of John de Southwell; Joane, of ... Spencer; and Anne, of ... Willoughby of Parham. Sir John Fillol, their father, dyed in 1332 (h) [H].—Sir John, his eldeſt ſon and heir, married Margery daughter and heir of ..... and had by her Richard; John; and Cecily. At the time of his deceaſe, —Richard, then twelve years of age, was found to be his ſon and heir (i). But both he and his brother John dyed young [I], and without iſſue: For, at the time of their mother's deceaſe, in 1345 [K], her only heir was her daughter

Cecily, then the ſecond wife of Sir John de Bohun (k) of Midhurſt in Suſſex [L], who attended K. Edward III. at the battle of Creſſy, and other exploits in France; and was ſummon'd to parliament in 1363, 1364, and 1365. On the 3d of February 1346, he and his wife Cecily levied a fine of this maner, by which it was ſettled on them for their lives, and on the heirs of their body; remainder to the heirs of the body of the ſaid Cecily: but if ſhe dyed without iſſue, then on Ralph Fillol for life; and on default of his iſſue, on William ſon of Sir John de Sutton and his heirs male, and for want of ſuch heirs, on his brother Richard de Sutton, remainder to John, brother of this Richard, intail male (l). Sir John de Bohun dyed in 1367, 41 Edward III. as did his Lady Cecily in 1381, or 1382, 5 of Richard II, poſſeſſed of the maner of Fillols-hall in Kellvedon, which is the firſt time it occurs by that name in records (m). Their ſon and heir—Sir John de Bohun held alſo petuum quietos clamavi. Hiis teſtibus Gamaliele de Witham, Nigello fratre meo, Radulfo fratre meo, Theobaldo de Ewelle. —Without date, as was uſual in thoſe early times.—The impreſſion on the ſeal is as above deſcribed, and hath round the circumference this inſcription in Saxon characters, SIGILLVM GVLIELMI FILLIOLI. Ex Collect. Ric. St. George, militis. fol. 158. penes P. Le Neve, arm.

[F] The Arms of John Fillol were; Vair, argent and azure, a canton gules. And thoſe of Thomas; Or, on a Feſſe, between 2 chevrons gules, three trefoils argent.

[G] But he had two daughters, Anne, which became the wife of Sir John Sutton, and Joane, of John de Southwell, who had by her John and Richard.

[H] Beſides this maner of Kellvedon, which he held of the honor of Haguenott by the ſervice of 3 knights fees, and 30 s. yearly rent payable to the ward of Dover caſtle; he held in Kellvedon, Inworth, and Great Braxted, 100 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, and 2 of wood. And likewiſe the maners of Little Okeley, and Little Badewe, and advowſons of thoſe two churches, of the heirs of Robert Lord Fitzwalter, by the ſervice of three knights fees each. Inquiſ. 6 Ed. III.

[I] The Inquiſitions are very intricate upon this occaſion. In one place it is ſaid, that Richard was the ſon and heir of Sir John Fillol; and in another place that it was John. So that it is quite uncertain, by comparing them together, whether there was one ſucceſſion, or two, after Sir John Fillol who dyed in 1332. See above under Little Badow, p. 21.

[K] This Margery held the maner of Kellvedon, and 100 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, and 6 of wood, parcel of the ſaid maner in Inworth, and Great Braxted; and 100 s. rent as parcell of the ſame in Bergholt, Mount Bures, Fordham, Great and Little Horkeſley.—Alſo ſhe held in ſervicio the maner of Bradwell, and Nic. de Dagworth under her, by 1 knights-fee.—And lands in Little Cogſhall, Kellvedon, and Bradewell, by the ſervice of half a fee—and lands and tenements in Inworth and Braxted, holden under her by Beatrix late wife of John de Kell-vedone, by the 4th part of a knight's fee. And the foreſaid lands, as well in demeſne as ſervice, were holden of the King as of his Honor of Dover-caſtle, by the ſervice of 3 knights fees and 30 s. a year to the ward of Dover-caſtle; and by the ſervice of 3 s. 4 d. payable to the ſheriff's aid.

She alſo held 60 acres of arable of the Abbot of Weſtminſter in free ſocage—and a piece of meadow of John Coggeſhall—And the maner of Little Badowe with the advowſon of the church, by the ſervice of 2 knights fees and a half. Inquiſ. 20 Ed III.

this maner of Filloles-hall with appertenances in Kelvedon, Fering, Great Braxted, Meſſing, Innworth, Bradwell near Coggeſhall, Eſthorp, Copford, Great Briche; Toleſhunt Tregoz, Toleſhunt-Knights, and Terling; and dyed 11 Henry VI. — Humfrey, his ſon, was then aged fourteen years (n). He was father of — Sir John de Bohun, who dyed about the 15th of K. Henry VII. leaving only two daughters his co-heirs, namely, Mary, married to Sir David Owen, natural ſon of Owen Tudor, grandfather to K. Henry VII. and Urſula, wife of Robert Southwell Eſq; afterwards knighted [M].

Sir David Owen, and Mary his wife, had Fillol's hall. But, upon Mary's death without iſſue, it came to

Sir Robert Southwell, and Urſula his wife: which Sir Robert, 31 Auguſt 1508, releaſed all his right and intereſt in the maner of Filloles-hall, &c. to Sir Thomas Lovell, and others (o). Though this Sir Robert had no iſſue by his lady Urſula, yet he dyed poſſeſs'd of moſt of Filliol's old inheritance. But Henry Owen claimed Filliol's-hall.

On the 20th of September 1532, Richard Southwell of Woodriſing in Norfolk, Eſq; confirmed to Sir Thomas Audeley, Keeper of the great ſeal, Sir William Pawlet, Comtroller of the houſhold, Chriſtopher Hales, Attorney-general, Thomas Cromwell, Keeper of the jewels, and William Brabazon, this maner, with all the lands thereto belonging (p): for the King's uſe we may ſuppoſe: For K. Henry VIII, 20 April 1539, granted the maners of Fillol's-hall and Little Coggeſhall to

Richard Long Eſq; one of the Gentlemen of his bed-chamber (q), afterwards knighted. He was of Shengay in Cambridgeſhire; and, in 1542, married Margaret Kitſon, widow of Sir Thomas Kitſon of Hengrave (r). He dyed 29 September 1547, poſſeſs'd of this maner, and Coggeſhall, and of 20 meſſuages, 300 acres of arable, 100 acres of meadow, 400 acres of paſture, 100 acres of wood, 100 acres of furze, buſhes, and alder, and 17 l. rent, in Great and Little Coggeſhall, Ferynge, Eſterforde, and Keldon, holden of the King in capite, by the 20th part of a knight's-fee, and yearly rent of 6 l. 12 s. leaving — Henry his ſon and heir (s): and four daughters, Elizabeth, Jane, Catharine, and Mary. This Henry was not quite three years old at the time of his father's deceaſe (t); and living in 1556: But he dyed unmarried, or at leaſt without iſſue. For his ſiſter Elizabeth brought this eſtate in marriage to

Sir William Ruſſell: and they jointly ſold it to

Sir Thomas Cecill, a younger ſon of Thomas Earl of Exeter. Of him, or his executors, it was purchaſed by Antony Abdy Eſq; an eminent Merchant in London, and one of the Sheriffs of that city in 1630.

This family is ancient, and derived from Richard Abdy of Abdy in Yorkſhire (u), from whence probably they took their ſurname. Richard had iſſue — Robert, and he another — Robert, father of — Thomas Abdy of the ſaid place, that married Cecily daughter of William Tijas of Yorkſhire, Eſq; whoſe ſecond ſon — Roger, [that dyed in 1595,] had, by Mary his wife daughter of Richard White of Hutton, Eſq; Edmund his eldeſt ſon, who by Judith daughter of Sir Chriſtopher Yelverton, Judge of the Common Pleas, had an only ſon, Sir Chriſtopher Abdy, that married the youngeſt daughter of Sir Herbert Crofts of Suffolk. — Antony, a ſecond ſon of the ſaid Roger, was an Alderman and Sheriff of London, as we have obſerved, and dyed in September 1640, having married Abigail daughter of Sir Thomas Cambell of London, merchant (w), by which he had ſeveral children, particularly three ſons that were created Baronets; namely, Sir Thomas Abdy of Fillol's or Felix-hall; Sir Robert of Albyns [of whom and his poſterity ſee an account under Stapleford-Abbot]; and Sir John Abdy of the More in Salcot-Verley, created Baronet 22 June 1660, but who dyed without iſſue. Alice the eldeſt daughter was married to Sir John Bramſton of Skrene's. [See under Roxwell.]

Sir Thomas Abdy of Fillol's-hall was created a Baronet 7 July 1641, being the firſt Baronet of this family. He married, firſt, Mary daughter of Lucas Corſellis of London, merchant, by which he had James, who dyed an infant, and two daughters; Rachel, wife of Philip Gurdon of Aſſington-hall in Suffolk, Eſq; and Abigail, wife of Sir Mark Guyon Kt. This firſt wife dyed 6 April 1645, aged 27. His ſecond wife was, Anna, daughter of Sir Thomas Soame Kt. Alderman of London, and by her he had three ſons, and ſeven daughters; viz. 1. Antony, his heir. 2. Thomas, who dyed 12 April 1697. 3. William, that dyed 2 February 1682, aged 23, both without iſſue (x). The daughters were, Sara; Anna; Mary, wife of Wentworth Garneys, of Boyland-hall in Norfolk, Eſq; Joanna; Alice; and Judith. Sarah and Judith dyed both infants. Anna dyed 6 April 1682, unmarried. Joanna departed this life 18 September 1710, ſingle (y). Alice was married to William Stane, of Folyot's-hall in High-Ongar, Eſq; — His ſecond Lady dyed 19 June 1679, in the 57th year of her age. And Sir Thomas himſelf departed this life 14 January 1685, in the 74th year of his age; and is buried in the ſouth iſle of the chancel, where a curious monument is erected to his own and family's memory. His eldeſt ſon and heir — Sir Antony Abdy ſucceeded him. He married Mary, ſole daughter and heir of Richard Milward D. D. Rector of Great Braxtead, and Canon of Windſor: [which ſaid Dr. Milward had to wife Mary, daughter of Sir Anthony Thomas, of Chobham in Surrey, by Mary daughter of Sir William Ayloff of Great Braxtead] and by her he had, Thomas, who dyed an infant in February 1684 (z); Antony-Thomas; William; Charles; Richard. And theſe daughters, Mary, Anne, Joanna, Elizabeth, Rachel, Alice, Margaret. He dyed 2 April 1704, in the 49th year of his age, and lieth buried in the ſouth iſle of the chancel of this church; with a monument. He was ſucceeded in dignity and eſtate by his eldeſt ſon

—Sir Antony-Thomas Abdy Bart. who, on the 5th of May 1717, was married to Mary daughter and heir of Hope Gifford of Colcheſter, Eſq; She dyed in 1718. His 2d wife [married in 1729] was Charlotte, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir Thomas Barnardiſton, of Kedington in Suffolk, Bart And the 3d Anne, daughter of Thomas Williams, of Tendring-hall, in Stoke in the county of Suffolk, Eſq; By the firſt and laſt he had no iſſue, but by the 2d he had two daughters, Charlotte, and Elizabeth [N]. He dyed in June 1733, and was ſucceeded in dignity by his next brother Sir William Abdy, ſeated near Chobham in Surrey. But the chief of the eſtate, particularly Felix-hall, went to his daughters [O].

Charlotte, the eldeſt, was married, in 1744, to John Williams Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir John Williams of Tendring-hall, Kt. who rebuilt Felix-hall in an elegant manner. But, after having procured an act of parliament, he ſold it, in 1761, to

Daniel Matthews Eſq;

3. The maner of Kelvedon, or EASTERFORD-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands about a mile from this Church, and within the preſent bounds of the pariſh of Great Brackſtead: in which the greateſt part of its demeſnes lie, and ſome of the lands are in Kelvedon; whoſe preſent bounds go within fourſcore rods of the houſe. I take it to have been, partly, what is placed in Domeſday-book under the title of Encroachments upon the King [P].

Formerly it belonged to a family ſurnamed de Kellvedone, mentioned in records under the year 1346 (a).—Sir William Kelvedon of Braxted left—Jane, his daughter and heir, who was married to

Sir John Lowdham, or Ludham, of Frenſe in Norfolk; who dyed in 1355, and left iſſue—Sir Thomas, who had a ſon named—John, that dyed in 1373 (b). It continued in the ſame family down to—John Lowdham Eſq; who dyed in 1423, or 1424, holding this maner of Kelvedon of the Prior and Convent of St. Botolph's in Colcheſter. His daughter and heir

Joanna, was then wife of Thomas Heveningham Eſq; (c) and afterwards remarried to Ralph Bleverhaſſet Eſq; of a very ancient family, ſo named from Bleverhayſſet in Cumberland. He dyed 14 November 1475. She outlived him long, not dying till 23 June 1501, at the age of 97. Her ſon and heir—John Bleverhaſſet Eſq; was then 67 years old. In the record, ſhe is ſaid to hold this maner of Kelneden-hall in Brakeſted, of Robert Southwell in right of his wife as of the maner of Fillwell-hall (d). John her ſon dyed 27 March 1514. He had two wives, 1. Jane daughter of Thomas Higham of Higham-green in Suffolk, Eſq; 2. Jane daughter of Sir Thomas Tindall of Hockwold in Norfolk; who dyed 17 June 1521. By the firſt he had—Sir Thomas Bleverhaſſet; Robert of Pomeſthorp in Warwickſhire; Margareta, Prioreſs of Campſey; Elizabeth, wife of ... Brampſton. By the ſecond he had John, to whom he gave his eſtate at Southhill in Bedfordſhire; and 4 daughters (e). Sir Thomas dyed 17 June 1531, leaving, by Margaret daughter of John Braham Eſq;—Thomas Bleverhaſſet Eſq; his ſon and heir, aged 30 years (f). But, according to others (g), George, his eldeſt ſon by his firſt wife, was his heir, and dyed in 1543; whoſe daughter and heireſs—Mary was then married to Thomas Culpeper Eſq; And ſhe, by fine, ſettled her eſtates on Francis Bacon Eſq; her ſecond huſband, and Edmund his ſon for their lives. One of them enjoyed Eaſterford-hall in the 23d of Queen Elizabeth. After whoſe deceaſe it reverted to—John Bleverhaſſet, brother to George her father. And—Samuel Bleverhaſſet Eſq; was Lord of this maner in 1613 (h).

It was afterwards in the Carew-family. Anne Carew enjoyed it in 1715; as did, next,—Antony Carew. And it is now in four of his Siſters children.—The quit-rents are 5 l. 5 s. 9 d. pr ann.

At Eaſterford lived formerly a Family of note, ſurnamed Marler.—John Marler was living in the 13th of K. Richard II, anno 1389, as was John his ſon in 1419. who had iſſue Thomas, father of John; which laſt dyed 12 September 1450, and whoſe deſcendent Robert was living in 1500. John Marler, by ... daughter of ... Faſtolph of Suffolk, had William, John, and Stephen, who dyed 12 May 1516. William had iſſue Thomas, and William. Thomas, living in 1540, had, by Margaret White, William; George, that dyed without iſſue; Agnes, wife of ... Hunt; Catharine, of John Loveday; Anne, of John Naphire. William Marler, living in 1595, was married twice. 1. to Margaret, daughter of Thomas Pery of Bardfeild, by which he had, George; William; Anne, wife of Thomas Dickman of Horndon; Joane, of John Lingwood of Eaſterford; and Grace. 2. The name of his ſecond wife is not mentioned. He dyed 2 January 1597, and lies buried near the ſouth door of this church. George, the eldeſt ſon, had, by Judith, daughter of Edward Clarke of Feering, George, and Stephen. William, the ſecond ſon, lived at Eaſterford, and, by Anne daughter of William Nevill of Raleigh, had William; Anne, wife of ... Tillingham of Dunmow; Grace; Sarah; Suſanna [Q]. He dyed 14 December 1609, holding a capital meſſuage and divers lands in Kelvedon and Feering (i).

[Q] Several of this family are buried in the Church and Chancel under grave-ſtones, with Epitaphs which are preſerved in Mr. Symonds's Collections, vol. I. fol. 87.

4. The maner of Ewell-hall.

The houſe ſtands about half a mile from the Church.

Not long after the Conqueſt, this maner was in a family ſurnamed de Ewell; which moſt probably took that appellation from the pariſh of Ewell in Surrey.

Theobald de Ewel was witneſs to a Deed of William Filiol, about the reign of Richard I. and K. John.

In the 37th of Henry III, Richard Fitz-Ralph obtained a grant of Free-warren in Ewell, Kellenden, and Fering (k).

John ſon of John Doreward Eſq; who dyed in 1476, held, among other things, the maner of Ewell hall in Keldon, under John Bowhun, as of his maner of Fillol-hall. — John his ſon and heir, then aged 20 years, dyed 11 Henry VII, about 1495, holding Ewell-hall of John Fylingley (l).

It was afterwards poſſeſs'd by the Sammes family, particularly by Thomas Sammes Eſq; ſeated at Tolleſhunt major. [See under that pariſh.] For ſome time it hath been in the Cooper-family, and is now in—John Cooper, Gent.

Other Eſtates of ſome conſequence in this pariſh.

Doreward's hall, mentioned above under Rivenhall. Part of the houſe is in Kelvedon, and part in the other pariſh: And the lands lye in both pariſhes, but the greateſt part in Rivenhall.

A farm called Bridgefoot, by the river Pant, or Blackwater, which runs through this pariſh. Here ſeems to have been anciently a hamlet, or ſmall village. This eſtate formerly belonged to the Aylet family, mentioned under Brackſtead and Rivenhall: and ſome of them lived here. John Aylet Eſq; ſold it to Bezaliel Sherman of this town, chirurgeon, who married to his ſecond wife a ſiſter of the late Sir Antony Abdy. It belongs now to Joanna, and Alice, Abdy, of Kenſington.

Thomas Leapingwell, Gent. hath an eſtate here; ſome of which belonged to the late Robert Jegon, attorney at law.

The Watering farm, at the bottom of the town, near the river Pant, of about 80 l. per ann. belongs to John Ruſſel, of North Okingdon, Eſq;

Highfields, about a mile from the church. This farm, and ancient ſeat, belonged in the laſt century to Thomas Cudmore Eſq; who dyed 25 July 1637; and he had alſo a meſſuage called Scripps farm, lying in this pariſh, and in Feering and Coggeſhall (m). [See under Little Coggeſhall.] From him it paſſed to . . . Blackmore, and to Hugh now Jones Raymond, Eſq;

Michael Cordel hath alſo an eſtate here.

Charitable Gifts.

John Marler gave two little houſes, and one acre of meadow in Broad-mead, to the maintenance of two Almshouſes, and a common well. — He alſo founded three Obits in this church: As did Thomas Marler one; part of the endowment of which laſt, was a Houſe in the ſtreet, called the Hermitage.

William Nicor, and William Pace, founded alſo two Obits here (n).

There is a Fair in this place on Eaſter-Monday.

The Church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, ſtands pleaſantly at the upper end of the Town, and is a large and neat fabric. It conſiſts of a body tyled, and two iſles leaded. The Chancel hath but one iſle, and is tyled. At the weſt end there is a ſquare Tower of brick, embattled, containing five Bells; above which is a Spire leaded.

This Church was confirmed to Weſtminſter-abbey by Edward the Confeſſor (o); and continued a Rectory in their gift till 15 October 1331, when K. Edward III. gave them licenſe to appropriate it to their Monaſtery; and they remained Patrons of the Vicarage, which was endow'd, till their ſuppreſſion. After which K. Edward VI, in 1550, granted this Rectory, or appropriate Tithes, to N. Ridley biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors. And Qu. Mary, 3 March 1553, confirmed to Edmund Bonner biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors, this maner, rectory, and advowſon; as we obſerved above, under Church-hall.

The Vicarage houſe ſtands low, North weſt of the Church, but there belongs to it a good Glebe of 56 acres.

Thomas Dunbar, M. A. 19 February 1706, upon Talbor's death.	Biſhop of London.
William Barecroft, M. A. 1729, upon Dunbar's death.

14. BRADWELL.

THERE are two pariſhes within this County named Bradwell, diſtinguiſhed from each other by their ſituation; namely, This, juxta, or near Coggeſhall: and the other in Dengey-hundred, near the Sea, therefore called juxta mare.

This Pariſh is ſo named from a Broad [R] Well, or Spring, riſing a little north of the Hall; out of which the water flows ſo plentifully, and with ſo violent a fall, that it turns an overſhot Mill ſome few rods from its riſe.

The river Pant, or Blackwater, runs through part of it, and gives name to a Hamlet, or Village, in it, upon the road between Cogſhall and Braintree.

¶ There is only one maner in this pariſh called Bradwell-hall [S].

I can find no mention of it in the Domeſday-Survey, or in the Red Book of the Exchequer; though its preſent name occurs in ancient Deeds as early as the reign of K. John. Therefore 'tis moſt probable, that it was formerly part of what Hugh de Montfort held under the title of Chelleuadana, or Invaſiones ſuper Regem, in Kelvedon. And what renders it the more credible, is, That this lordſhip of Bradwell was holden of Fillol's-hall, namely of Baldwine Fillol [in the reign of K. Henry III.] who is ſaid to have three knight's fees in Kentenden, or Keldon, as we have ſhewn above (p). Now Fillol's-hall could not have amounted to three knights-fees, near 1300 acres, unleſs it had comprehended the maner of Bradwell, and other conſiderable appendages. Beſides, the ſaid Baldwine is expreſsly ſaid to have been poſſeſs'd of this Bradwell (q).

About the reign of K. John, it was in a family ſurnamed Daggeworth [T]. And in the next reign, Oſbert Daggeworth had free-warren in Bradewell, and in Dagworth in Pebmarſh; and licenſe, for himſelf and his heirs, to hunt in the foreſt of Eſſex (*). He dyed in the 44, or 46 of Henry III. holding the maners of Braddewell, and of Daggend, of Baldwine Filioll and his heirs. And John ſon of Richard Filioll, who was heir of the ſaid Baldwin, is ſaid in the record to hold the ſaid maners, in capite, of the King, by the ſervice of three knights fees (r).—John Daggeworth, ſon of Oſbert, married Maud, one of the daughters of Laurence [de Scaccario] of the Exchequer, lord of Twinſted maner: and, on the death of her brother Simon in the 20th of Edward I, became one of his coheirs; having of his gift the maner of Dagworth in Pebmarſh (s). Their ſon—John de Daggeworth held, jointly with Alice his wife, this maner of Bradewell, and the advowſon of the church, of John Fyloll, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee, and 5 s. 8 d. a year [V]. He dyed in 1332, as did his wife the year following.—Nicolas their ſon, born in 1306 (t), ſucceeded them. He held, in 1334, this maner of John Fyloll, by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee; valued then at 100 s. per ann. (u) And is ſaid to have dyed in 1351, leaving—John his ſon and heir (w): in whom this Family ceaſed here [W]. One Thomaſine ... was his wife. [See under Elmdon.]

In the 7th of K. Richard II. this eſtate was granted to Sir John Sutton, it being ſaid to be then holden of the King in capite, as of the Honor of Peverell (x).

In the 17th year of the ſame King, it was poſſeſs'd by Sir John Hende, or Hinde, a very rich man; Alderman of London: Sheriff in 1381, and Lord Mayor of that city in 1391, and 1404 (y). He was a great benefactor to Coggeſhall-abbey; in gratitude for which they engaged to celebrate his obit with the ſolemnity of a founder. By fine, in 8 Henry IV, he ſettled the maners of Little Canfield, Little Chiſhall, Bradewell, Pycotes, 2 meſſuages, 3 mills, 800 acres of arable, 32 of meadow, 72 of wood, and 10 l. rent, in Bradewell, Fering, Styſted, Coggeſhall, Bocking, Creſſing, Pateſwick, Great and Little Chiſhall; and the advowſon of Little Chiſhall-church; with the maner of Langporte, Old Romene, Kingſweld, and Cherleton near Dover, and the advowſon of the Church of Cherleton; on himſelf and Elizabeth his wife for their lives: Remainder in tail to divers perſons (z). By his wife Elizabeth .... he had two ſons, both named John. In his will, proved 14 Auguſt 1418, he gave to the eldeſt, the maners of Panfield, and White Roding, when he came to the age of 21 years; and the reverſion of his lands and tenements in Little Canfield, and the water mill called Shaldeford-mill, and a third part of the maner of Blounterys in Great Eaſton, and all his lands in Little Reyne; likewiſe the reverſion of all his other eſtates which his wife was to enjoy for her life.—And to the youngeſt he gave the maners of Rameſeye, Wrabnaſſe, and Standon; and the reverſion of a tenement, with a quay, in the ſuburbs of Colcheſter.—In caſe either of them dyed during his wife's life, the ſurvivor was to be enfeoffed in what had been given or aſſigned to the other. Moreover, he gave to his wife 1000 l. and his capital tenement in St. Swithin's London; to his eldeſt ſon 1500 l. to the youngeſt the ſame ſum; and for repairing the road between Coggeſhall and Colcheſter 100 marks.—It is alſo to be remembred, that he contributed largely towards the rebuilding of the church and ſteeple of St. Swithin's (a). Sir John Hende dyed 1 Auguſt 1418, poſſeſs'd of the maners of Bradwell, Morehall in Writtle, Makleſbury in White Roding, &c. and was buried in this church (b) [X]. His wife was remarried to Ralph Boteler Eſq; created Lord Sudley, who in her right preſented fourteen times to this living (c). She dyed in 1462 (d).—John Hende Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, was nine years old at the time of his father's deceaſe (e). In 1443, and 1447, he was ſheriff of this county (f). He dyed in 1461, before his mother. For in letters patent of K. Edward IV, dated 15 December 1461, Greſild is called widow and relict

[T] From the maner of Dagworth in Suffolk, which they had. In Pleas at Chelmsford, 13 Edw. I, we have this entry. Jo. Fyllol tenet tria feod' mil' & dimid' in capite de Dno Rege in Kellveden & Bradewell in Eſſex. & Daggeworth in Suffolk.

[V] He alſo held a tenement in Elmedon, called from him Dagworth's. See under Elmdon, p. 129.—Arms of Dagworth. Argent, on a Feſſe gules, 3 bezants, or.

[W] Of this family, and deſcended from Lora one of the ſiſters of Simon of the Exchequer, were, Thomas de Dagworth, and Nicolas his ſon, both brave warriors, and employed in France in the ſervice of K. Edward III.—Sir Thomas, the father, being commander of the King's forces in Britanny, in 1346, in two ſeveral engagements, both in one day, conquered Charles de Blois, who then took the title of Duke of that Duchy, in right of his wife, notwithſtanding the great inferiority of the Engliſh forces. And, the year following, with an inconſiderable force, defeating the ſaid Charles de Blois, brought him priſoner to the Tower of London: For which great ſervice, he was made our King's Lieutenant and Captain-general in that Dukedom. And alſo ſummon'd to parliament among the Barons of the realm. His ſon—Nicolas de Dagworth, little inferior to him in conduct and bravery, defeated the French in ſeveral battles. But being afterwards in the number of thoſe who were called K. Richard the Second's evil counſellors, he underwent ſome troubles; which, however, being ſoon over, he came to be employed in affairs of the greateſt importance. See Tho. de Walſingham Ypodig. [X] He was buried in the Chancel of this Church, under a coarſe marble-ſtone, on which were his Arms, but now gone.—Whatever memorial there might be of him in St. Swithin's church, it hath been long defaced; but his Arms were in the glaſs windows. Stow's Survey.

of John Hende the elder: and preſented, by virtue of a marriage ſettlement, as is ſuppoſed, to Bradwell church 18 May 1471 (g), living till the beginning of the year 1473. — John Hende Eſq; the younger ſon, was Sheriff of this county in 1456 (h). He dyed in 1464. The eldeſt brother left an only daughter (i), named

Joane, which was heir general to the two brothers [Y], and brought a vaſt eſtate in marriage to Walter Writtel Eſq; of a very ancient family, deſcended from Ralph Fitz-Ralph Eſq; who had a grant of the maner of Writtle in this county from Margaret Counteſs of Gallway, and took from thence the ſurname of Writtle. This Walter was ſeated at Bobbingworth, [where you have a more particular account of the Family.] He was High Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1471 (k). Dying 18 April 1475 (l), he was buried at Bobbingworth, where his epitaph lately remained. By Joane his wife he had two ſons, William, who dyed young; and — John. This latter dyed at Falkborne-hall, of the ſweating-ſickneſs, 13 October 1485, leaving — John, his only ſon, ſix weeks old (m); whoſe mother, Anne, dyed 22 December 1487 (n). The wardſhip of this minor was granted, 29 July 1486, to Sir John Shaa, goldſmith, afterwards Sheriff of London in 1496, and Lord Mayor in 1501 (o). And he, as was common in thoſe days, married his ward to his daughter Etheldreda, who had by him a daughter named Julian. The ſaid John Wretyll, or Writtle, departed this life 28 July 1507, under age it ſeems [Z], on which account his eſtates eſcheated to the King (p): His child Julian dyed ſoon after: and her eſtates deſcended to

John Baſſet of Great Chiſhall, Eſq; in right of Catharine his wife, daughter of William Andrews Eſq; and Amicia, ſiſter of Sir John Hende above mentioned (q). Sir John Smyth of Creſſing-Temple laid claim to this great inheritance, as being deſcended from Alice daughter of John Hende, alderman of London. However, his pretenſions not being admitted, theſe eſtates were confirmed to John Baſſet aforeſaid; a deſcendent from the noble family of the Baſſets of the South. He had two ſons, Gregory, and William; and a daughter named Margaret, wife of Philip Goldborne. — Gregory, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded his father [A]. He married Margaret, daughter of Robert Forſter of Birch, Eſq; by which he had Dorothy his only daughter and heireſs, aged one year at the time of his deceaſe, 30 November 1528 (r). Margaret his widow was afterwards remarried to William Ayloff of Great Brackſtead, and to Euſtace Sulyard of Runwell, Eſquires. [See under Runwell.]

Thomas Bonham of Kent, Eſq; got the wardſhip of this great heireſs Dorothy Baſſet; and, as her guardian, kept his firſt court here 3 Auguſt 1531. He procured her to be married very young to his ſon — Robert Bonham Eſq; who had by her Jerom, or Jeremy; Charles; Mary, wife of Andrew Clark, of Bocking, Eſq; and Elizabeth, of John Filliol, of Old-hall in Raine, Eſq; The ſecond ſon, Charles, married Jane daughter of Gilbert Songar, and had an only daughter, Dorothy, married to Sir John Selby, ſon and heir of Sir John Selby.

After the death of Robert Bonham, Dorothy [late Baſſet] his widow, took to her ſecond huſband Antony Maxey of Great Saling-hall Eſq; who hereupon removed from thence, and made Bradwell-hall the place of his reſidence. He was deſcended from the ancient family of the Maxeys, originally of Cheſhire, and of Maxey-caſtle in the county of Northampton (s). By him ſhe had three ſons, Antony, that dyed an infant; Sir Henry; and Sir William: and three daughters, Jane, that dyed young; Dorothy, married to Sir Edward Heron, one of the Barons of the Exchequer; and Bridget, to Edward Wentworth of Bocking-hall, Eſq; — She proved very unkind to the children of her firſt huſband Bonham; in a manner diſinheriting them. For ſhe ſettled her whole eſtate, as far as we can find, on the children of Antony Maxey. And as for Jer. Bonham her eldeſt ſon, that ſhould have been her heir, ſhe made the poor man penſioner to his own eſtate, allowing him a ſmall annuity of 10 l. a year for life out of her maner of Pycots in Great Saling. He dyed unmarried in the latter part of Qu. Elizabeth's reign; or rather 7 November 1621, if he is the ſame Jeremy Bonham that was buried in the chancel of this church. — Antony Maxey dyed 12 September 1592 (t). His widow and relict Dorothy took to her third huſband John Babington Eſq; She dyed in 1602, and was buried by her ſecond huſband Antony Maxey, under a fair monument at the upper end of the chancel of this church. — Henry Maxey Eſq; born in 1567, ſucceeded to this eſtate. He was knighed 23 July 1603, and Sheriff of this county in 1607 (u). He married Mildred one of the daughters of William Cook Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir Antony Cook of Giddinghall, by Frances his wife daughter of the Lord John Gray, brother to Henry Gray Duke of Suffolk; but by her he had no iſſue. He dyed 22 October 1624, as did his wife the [Z] It is ſaid in the record, that he dyed 'abſque debita liberatione Maneriorum extra manus Domini Regis.' — When the King's Tenent in capite, or by Knight ſervice, dyed, the King had his lands till the heir did homage; which, if he were of full age, he might do preſently; but if he was under age, the land continued in the King's hands till his full age. And when either the one or the other ſued to have it out of the King's hands, his obtaining it was called Liberatio, or Livery.

Inquiſ. 20 Hen. 8. March 5.

8th of November following (w). His brother —Sir William Maxey Kt. then aged 50 years, ſucceeded him. He married Helena daughter of Sir Edward Greville, of Harold's park in Eſſex, Kt. by whom he had 3 ſons, and 7 daughters. 1. Greville. 2. Henry, who was a great Royaliſt, and ſerved K. Charles I. as Adjutant-general of his horſe. 3. William was a Traveller, and ſerved the ſame King in all his wars againſt the rebels, and was Major-general of his horſe at the ſiege of Colcheſter; he dyed 25 January 1659 (x). Of the daughters, Elizabeth was wife of Tho Barker, of Sibton in Suffolk, Eſq; Dorothy, of ... Thwaits, Gent. Mildred, of Robert Carlo of Herefordſhire; Frances, of ... Wanford; Margaret, of John Winter of Herefordſhire; Elizabeth, married firſt to ... Baker; ſecondly to Orlando Greene Eſq; Anne dyed unmarried. Sir William departed this life 24 July 1645, aged 88. His Lady ſurviving him, was remarried to Captain Spencer. She dyed 2 November 1659, and was buried by Sir William, in the chancel of this church, where ſtands a ſumptuous monument erected to their memory by Henry their ſecond ſon.—Greville Maxey Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded his father, and was Captain of the trained bands in this county. He dyed 15 February 1648. By his wife Mildred, daughter of Sir William Cook, of Higham in Glouceſterſhire, Kt. he had, Antony; Henry; William, that dyed unmarried; Greville, killed at Launy in Germany; Thomas, that dyed at Southampton; Edward, one of the King's life-guards: Helena, wife of Thomas Eden of Doreward's-hall in Bocking, Eſq; She remarried afterwards Richard Kirkeby of Kirkeby-hall in Lancaſhire, Eſq;—Antony Maxey Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, married Suſan daughter of Sir William Poley of Boxſtead in Suffolk, Kt. but I do not find he left any iſſue living. He ſold the lordſhips of Saling-hall and Picots, &c. for 3980 l. in 1665, to Martin Carter Eſq; but he left Bradwell-hall to his brother—Henry Maxey Eſq; who, by his wife Sarah daughter of Humfrey Lowe of Badow, had his ſon —Antony, that married Elizabeth daughter of Martin Carter, of Saling-hall, Eſq; and had by her —John, his only ſon, who dyed in 1727 [B]. Elizabeth the mother dyed in 1728.

Upon her deceaſe, this Eſtate, which had been ſettled upon Antony Maxey and Elizabeth his wife, and the ſurvivor of them, and the heirs of ſuch ſurvivor, deſcended to Martin Carter, of Witham, Eſq; her nephew and heir; to whom ſhe did, for greater ſecurity, deviſe the ſame by will. This Martin Carter was the eldeſt ſon of John Carter of Braintree, attorney at law, who was brother to Martin Carter Eſq; the laſt owner of that name of Great Salinghall. [See under Great Saling.] The ſaid Martin Carter, of Witham, Eſq; was one of the two Coroners for this county many years before his deceaſe, which happened 23 July 1754. He was twice married, but dying without ſurviving iſſue, he left Bradwell-hall to his brother, Milbourne Carter, of Braintree, Eſq; who has the chief part of the pariſh. But William Townſend, Gent. and Mr. Harrington, and Mr. Buxton, have alſo eſtates here.

John Northey, and Joane his wife, held lands of this maner, in 1511 (y); and from them was deſcended the late Sir Edward Northey, Attorney general.

Here formerly was a family ſurnamed de Bradewelle. Odo de Bradewelle lived in the time of K. John. His ſon Robert had iſſue Richard, who is witneſs to a Deed, 20 Edward I, wherein he is called Prepoſitus de Bradewelle. But whether they were lords of this maner I cannot learn.

This is a ſmall Pariſh, it being rated to the land-tax only at 408 l.

The CHURCH, dedicated to the holy Trinity, hath been all along appendent to the maner. It is ſmall, conſiſting of a body and chancel, both of one pace, and tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower containing three bells, above which ſtands a ſpire ſhingled.

THE HUNDRED OF LEXDEN.

THE Hundred of Lexden is bounded on the Weſt by the Hundreds of Witham and Hinckford; on the North by the river Stour which parts Eſſex from Suffolk; on the Eaſt by the Hundreds of Tendring and Winſtree; and on the South, partly by this laſt Hundred, and alſo thoſe of Thurſtable and Witham.

The name is written theſe various ways in Records, Lexden, Laxendana, Laxendena, Laſſendene, Leſſendena. Under the King, the Government of this Hundred was originally managed by the Sheriff of the County; till K. Henry II. granted it to Robert de Agillun or Aguyllion; who left four daughters: Iſabell, mother of Adam de Cokefend; Ela, of Luke de Ponyngs; Margery, of Andrew de Saukvill, or Sackville; and Joanna, of Ralph Fitz-Bernard (z).

It was next in the Gernon Family. For Ralph Gernon, who lived in the reign of K John, held of the King by a fee-farm of four marks per ann. this Hundred. As did his ſon—William, who dyed in the 43d. of K. Henry III. (a)—Ralph his ſon had it next; and then—Sir William Gernon, in 1327. (b)—John Gernon granted it, in 1350, to William ſon of John Gernon, and Elizabeth his wife (c) In the 7th of Richard II.—Sir John Gernon held this Hundred of the King, by the Service of 33 s. 4 d. payable by the hands of the Sheriff out of the white Ferm annually. (d) By Alice his wife he left two daughters; Margaret wife of Sir John de Peyton; and Joanna. Margaret had it for her purparty, at the fee-farm of 4 marks. And it was entailed upon her ſon—John Peyton, and Grace his wife; then on Thomas, and Robert, two of their other ſons; remainder to Margaret and her huſband, and their reſpective iſſue. And in failure of ſuch iſſue, it was entail'd upon Thomas Prior, John Daniell, Robert Newport, Nicolas Morris, John Burgoyne, John Stanford, and Thomas atte Pond, clerk. Margaret Peyton died poſſeſſ'd of it in 1414, and her next heir was her grandſon—John Peyton (e). Grace, widow of this John, and remarried to Richard Baynard had it 13 Henr. VI. (f).

Robert Peyton, by licenſe date 1 Octob. 1536, ſold this Hundred of Lexden to Sir Thomas Audeley Lord Chancellor of England, He, by licenſe dated 28 Decemb. 1536, conveyed it to Richard Greſham Eſq; who, by another licenſe dated 4 July 1537, conveyed it back again to Sir Thomas. And, the 20th of October following, K. Henry VIII. granted to Sir Thomas Audeley, and Criſtina his wife, and the heirs of the ſaid Sir Thomas for ever, the rent or white Farm of four marks iſſuing out of the ſaid Hundred; and the Sheriff's turn; return of writs; with all fines, amerciaments, felons goods &c. within this Hundred. (g) He dyed poſſeſs'd of it 8 May 1544 (h). and left it by will to his brother—Thomas who dyed 20 Aug. 1557. As did—Thomas his ſon Decemb. 31. 1572; holding this Hundred in ca. by knight's-ſervice (i) The next poſſeſſors were—Robert Audeley Eſq; who dyed 27 Septemb. 1624.—Sir Henr Audeley Kt.—Thomas Audeley Eſq; eldeſt ſon of Sir Henry—Henry Audeley Eſq; Sir Henry's younger ſon. This laſt being a weak and vicious man dyed without iſſue 1 Septemb. 1714, having mortgaged This, among his other eſtates, to James Smith of Upton Eſquire; And his heirs, or aſſigns, hold it now under this mortgage, and have ſometimes kept Hundred-Courts at Stanway.

The Hundred Court, for the payment of the ward ſilver, is called at Empford, als. Stanway-bridge.

Colcheſter, which might be thought to be in this Hundred, is a Hundred of itſelf.

With regard to the Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, this Hundred is in the Archdeaconry of Colcheſter.

1. COGGESHALL, is a pretty large and populous Town, ſituate about 45 Miles from London. It owes its exiſtence to the Abbey, whoſe foundation here drew round it a number of Dependents, and Inhabitants. And many other Towns in the Kingdom ſprung from the ſame Origin.

'Tis well watered; the River Pant or Blackwater running at the bottom of the Town; which is there low, but the reſt, eſpecially about the Church, is high, and ſtands partly on the declivity of a hill: ſo pleaſant, that in old deeds it is called Coggeſhall, or Sunny bank, Sunnendon (i).

Hereabouts have been found the remains of ſome ancient little Roman Station, or Villa; of which J. Weever gives the following account (k). "Adjoyning to the rode called Coccill-way, which to this towne leadeth, was lately found an arched Vault of bricke, and therein a burning lampe of glaſſe covered with a Romane Tyle ſome 14 inches ſquare, and one Urne with aſhes and bones, beſides two ſacrificing diſhes of ſmooth and poliſhed red Earth, having the bottome of one of them with faire Romane letters inſcribed COCCILIM. I may probably conjecture this to have beene the Sepulchral Monument of the Lord of this towne, who lived about the time of Antoninus Pius (as by the Coyne there likewiſe found appeareth) the affinitie betweene his and the now townes name being almoſt one and the ſame. Theſe remaine in the cuſtody of that judicious great Stateſman Sir Richard Weſton Kt. Baron Weſton of Nealand;" whoſe relations had the adjoyning manor of Preſted-hall in Feering.—W. Burton obſerves, (l) that one of theſe Urnes 'was of a polite and moſt fine ſubſtance, reſembling rather corall than red earth.' [And a great deal of the ancient Roman pottery, found in the remains of their Colonies, doth indeed ſo]. 'On the cover thereof was inſcribed COCCILIM, 'as he goes on, that is perhaps for COCCIL. L I. M. i. e. Coccilli Manibus. To the manes 'of Coccillus. So that from this Coccillus the old 'town may ſeem to have received its name, re'mainders of which ſeem viſibly to continue yet 'in the preſent one even at this day."

We do not hear that any other remains of Antiquity have been found in and about this place; Except what Dr. Holland, in his Tranſlation of Camden's Britannia, p. 449. and Weever p. 619. mention in theſe words: "In a place called "Weſtfield, three quarters of a mile from Coggeſhall, and belonging to the Abby there, was "found, by touching of a plough, a great brazen "pot. The ploughmen ſuppoſing it to have been "hid treaſure, ſent for the Abbot, to ſee the taking it up. The mouth of the pot was cloſed "with a white ſubſtance like paſt or clay, as hard "as burnt brick; when that by force was remov'd, there was found another pot, of earth; "That being open'd, there was found in it a leſſer pot of earth, of the quantity of a gallon, "cover'd with a matter like velvet, and faſten'd "at the mouth with a ſilk lace; in it they found "ſome whole Bones, and many pieces of ſmall "bones wrap'd up in fine ſilk, of freſh colour, "which the Abbot took for the reliques of ſome "Saint, and laid up in his veſtiary."—But more probably it was a Roman Urn.

The name of this pariſh is written in Records theſe various ways. Cogſhal, Cogeſhal, Cogeſhale, Coggeſhall, Coggaſhael, Cokkiſhall, Coxall, Coxhall, Goggeſhale, Hoggeſhall &c. The true and original name ſeems to me to have been Cocks-hall.

COGGESHALL is now divided into GREAT and LITTLE: a diſtinction of no very old date; for it doth not occurr in the royal Charters, nor in ancient deeds and records.

GREAT COGGESHALL was holden in the Saxons time by Colo, a free-man; and was then a very conſiderable Lordſhip, conſiſting of one manor, and of three hides and a half: Likewiſe of three carucates in demeſne, and, of ſixteen carucates belonging to the Men, or Tenants. But it was not then a Town; nor at the time of the Domeſday-Survey, when it belonged to Euſtace the great Earl of Bologne [C].

What he held, included the maners of Great and Little Coggeſhall, and moſt of thoſe two Pariſhes. From him they deſcended to his only daughter and heir Maud, who brought them in marriage to her huſband Stephen Earl of Blois, afterwards King of England. And they ſettled them upon the Monaſtery which they founded here, in 1142, for Ciſtercians; of which a more particular account is given below. The Abbot continued Lord of this Town, and of the two maners, till the diſſolution of this Houſe 5 Febr. 1538 (m).

On the 26th. day of May 1247, K. Henry III. granted the Abbot and Convent free warren in all their demeſnes in Coggeſhale. The ſame King, 10 Octob. 1250, granted them a Fair for eight days yearly, at their maner of Cogeſhale, to begin the 31ſt of July, and continue the ſeven days following. He alſo authorized them, 6 April 1256, to hold a market weekly on Saturdays in this town; provided it was no prejudice to the neighbouring markets. (n) The market is now on Thurſday; for corn &c. but ſome little market is ſtill kept on Saturday: and the Fair on Whitſun-tueſday.

Not long after the Surrender, a grant was made by K. Henry VIII. of this manor to Sir Thomas Seymour. (o) But, on the 12th. of May 1541, he exchanged it with the Crown; and Qu. Mary, in the firſt year of her reign, granted the manors of Great and Little Coggeſhall, Home Grange, a water-mill, and the fiſhery of the river, to Dorothy wife of Thomas Leventhorp, for life, if it pleaſed her Majeſty ſhe ſhould enjoy it ſo long. (p) This Eſtate, with two woods called Great Monkwood and little Monkwood, was afterwards in Sir Henry Bromley, who, jointly with Randolph Wolley, and Tho. Dodd, conveyed it, 24 January 1604, to Cyprian Warner, and others (q).

Afterwards it was in Auguſtin Mayhew, [great grand-father to the laſt Mr. Tho. Mayhew of Colcheſter], who had married Alice daughter of John Wells, mention'd a little lower. Of him this maner was purchaſed by Nehemiah Lyde of Hackney Eſq; who alſo bought the Grange, and Dairy-farms, Cardhall, and Capons, lying in theſe pariſhes, and Bradwell. He dyed in July 1737, leaving an only daughter wife of Richard Ducane, Eſq; who dyed in Octob. 1744. and was ſucceeded by his ſon—Peter Ducane Eſq; now ſeated at Great Braxtead lodge. [See under that pariſh].

The Court for the manor of Great Coggeſhall is called at the ſhambles in the market-place, and is only a Court-baron. The Court for Little Coggeſhall-manor is both a court lete and a court baron: 'Tis kept between the bridges at a private houſe in that hamlet. Both are holden annually on Whitſun-monday. Theſe Courts have a Fine certain, viz. two years Lord's quitrent for freehold called a Relief, and two years Lord's rent for copyhold. At the court-baron are choſen the Conſtables for Great Coggeſhall, and at the Court-leet are choſen two Conſtables for Little Coggeſhall.

HOVELS alſ. Holfield, or Holvile, is the maner houſe of Great Coggeſhall, and formerly belonged to the Abbey. It was purchaſed of K. Charles I. by Thomas Aylett of this town Gent. who dyed 19 Octob. 1650. He had only the ſite of the manor, not the royalty which the King kept in his own hands.—Aylett ſold it to

Thomas Lovett, Eſq; who conveyed it to

Thomas Guyon of this town, clothier; and he gave it to his grandſon—George Guyon, who left it to his daughter

Anne, wife of Thomas Forſter, Eſq;

It is now the property of Mrs. Elizabeth Lamplow.

The following capital Eſtates here belonged alſo formerly to the Abbey.

BOWSERS, alias BOURCHIERS grange in this pariſh, took its name from the noble family of Bourchier, whoſe chief Seat was at Stanſtead-hall in Halſtead, and ſome of whom moſt probably gave it to this Abbey. In 1326, John de Bucks, for the ſum of 40 marks of ſilver, paſſed this eſtate by Fine to John de Bouſſer: It conſiſting then of a meſſuage, 85 acr. of arable, 1 acre of meadow, 6 of wood, 3 of alder, 12 s, rent; and a yearly payment of two cocks, 4 hens and 4 chickens. (r) And, in 1368, Robert de Bouchier obtained a charter of free-warren here.

At the time of the ſuppreſſion it was let for 7 l 16 s. 8 d. And K. Henry VIII. 2 Decemb. 1544, granted to Clement Smith of Little Badow, [where ſee an account of the family], this farm, grange, and meſſuage called Bowſers, als. Bourghchiers; and Holfeild, als. Holvile grange; and the farm, grange, and meſſuage called Buſhegate houſe; and Buſhett-grove Goldingtons garden, and Thorneſland-grove. containing 7 acres: all in Coggeſhall, and late belonging to the Abbey. To hold of the King, by the 50th. part of a knight's fee. (s) Sir Clement [for he was knighted] dyed 26 Auguſt 1552. and left this Eſtate to his ſon and heir—John, who procured a licenſe, 9 Sept. 1561, to alienate it to

Robert Gurdon; (t) and he dyed 5 April 1578, poſſeſſed of the premiſſes, and then valued as follows: Bowcers, 7 l. 6 s. Holford or Holvile grange 9 l. 13 s. 4 d. Buſhegate-houſe, 106 s. 8 d. His ſon John ſucceeded him (u). And it hath continued in that family, ſeated at Aſſington-hall in Suffolk, BUSSHEGATE, or the GATE-HOUSE FARM belongs alſo to them.

HOLFIELD, or OLDFIELD GRANGE, is reputed a maner, and has a pound belonging to it for waifs and ſtrays. Mr. Gurdon ſold it to Henry Oſgood, Gent. who converted the houſe into a good ſeat, and made a Park about it. His daughter Anna was married to Mr.

John Hanbury, a rich Virginia-merchant, who caſed the Houſe with brick, and by other great improvements made it an elegant ſeat. It belongs now to his ſon—Oſgood Hanbury Eſq; who hath married Miſs LLoyd of Birmingham.

Monk-Downs, belongs to Mr. Thomas Bridge.

The Mount to Mr. John Wall of Colcheſter.

Wood houſe, partly in this pariſh, and partly in that of Pattiſwick; belongs to William Mayhew Gent.

LITTLE COGGESHALL.

This little Pariſh, or Hamlet, is now generally look'd upon as a member of Great Coggeſhall.

But originally it was diſtinct from it, and is in a different Hundred, that of Witham.

Before the Conqueſt, part of it belonged to the Cathedral Church of Canterbury; of the gift of Godwine the great Earl of Kent, together with Stiſtede, and Chich in this County. This dona-

[E] On which account it is, that this diſtrict is an exempt, or a peculiar, to the ſee of Canterbury; and ſubject in ſpiritual matters to the Archbiſhop's Commiſſary, the Dean of Bocking: at whoſe Court a Sidesman is choſen every year, who pays 6 s. 8 d. as an acknowledgment. As they have no Church in uſe, and repair to Great Coggeſhall for divine ſervice, they chuſe no Churchwardens of their own, but only Overſeers.

Tedric Pointel held alſo here one hide and a half of land, at the time of making the grand Survey; which he exchanged for Packleſham and Stambridge [F].

Little Coggeshal-hall is the only maner in this pariſh. The Houſe ſtands near the river, on the left ſide of the road leading from Coggeſhall-town to Kelvedon.

It was poſſeſs'd in the earlieſt times by a family ſurnamed de Coggeſhall. The firſt that occurs in records is Sir Thomas de Coggeſhall in the reign of K. Stephen; whoſe poſterity long flouriſhed, and enjoyed ſeveral very conſiderable Eſtates, in this County. Namely, Hoo-hall in Rivenhall, New-hall in Boreham, Sandon, Shemhall in Shaldford, Alresford-hall, Packleſham, Bemfleet-hall, Hackwell, Sturmere-hall, and particularly Coddam-hall in Wethersfield, which was their chief ſeat: and under which pariſh a more particular account will be given of the family. Here we ſhall mention them no further than as they were connected with this Eſtate.—Ralph de Coggeſhall, Kt. who dyed 33 Edw. I. held this maner partly of John Filoll, and partly of the Abbots of Coggeſhall, and Weſtminſter, and of William atte Napleton, (w) His ſon and heir,—John de Coggeſhall, held here, at the time of his deceaſe 13 Edw. II. a capital meſſuage, water-mill, 8 acres and a half of wood, 203 acres of arable land 6 acr. of meadow, 3 acr. of paſture, and 6 s. 8 d. rent, of John Filloll, by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee, and the yearly ſervice of 64 s. 4 d.—Alſo, 33 acres of arable, 1 of meadow, 4 of paſture, a grinding houſe, with a barrel, or wheel, a pond, and 2 s. 7 d. rent; of the Abbot of Weſtminſter, by the ſervice of 16 s. per ann.—And of the Abbot of Coggeſhall, by knight's ſervice, 44 acres, of arable, with 3 s. rent. Likewiſe of the ſame Abbot, in ſocage, 2 granges, 2 chambers, a garden, and 5 acres of arable, by the ſervice of 17 s. 2 d. a year. (x) His ſon—John de Coggeſhall Kt. held the ſame at the time of his deceaſe in 1361. (y) And ſo did his ſon and heir—Sir Henry de Coggeſhall, who died in 1375. (z) He was ſucceeded by—Sir William de Coggeſhall, who dying in the beginning of K. Henry the ſixth's reign at Codham-hall, left four daughters coheirs. 1. Blanch, married to John Doreward, Eſq; 2. Eleanor, or Alice, to Sir John Tyrell, of Herons. 3. Margaret, to William Bateman of Little Samford Eſq; afterwards to John Roppeley Eſq; 4 Maud, to Robert Dacre Eſq; and then to John St. George.

Blanch, the eldeſt daughter, brought this maner to her huſband John Doreward, of Doreward's hall in Bocking Eſq; [where ſee an account of the family]. He was Speaker of the Houſe of Commons 1 Henry V. (a) and dyed, in 1476, poſſeſs'd of this eſtate, which deſcended to his ſon—John, then aged, 21. (b) He held this maner of Coggeſhall-hall with two water mills, called Pointell-mell, and Eſtford-mell; alſo 200 acres of arable, 100 acres of meadow, and 10 of wood in Coggeſhall, Markeſhall, Colne, Feering, Kelvedon, Blackwater, Inworth, Stiſted, and Fordham-forth; and 32 meſſuages with appertenances, in Coggeſhall. He dyed the laſt day of February 1495, and Margaret wife of Nicolas Bewpre, aged 19; Elizabeth, wife of Henry Thurſbit Eſq; aged 18; and Chriſtian, wife of John de Vere aged 14, were his couſins and heirs, viz. daughters of his ſiſter Elizabeth. (c) For he left no iſſue by his wife, Margaret daughter of —— Lyhert: which was married again to Sir James Hobart of Norfolk. She enjoyed this eſtate during her life.

Ralph Chamberlayn, and Edward Chamberlayn Eſquires having it in truſt, did, 27 April 1513, for the ſum of 172 l. convey the reverſion, after the death of the ſaid Margaret, to Sir Robert Southwell of Filiols-hall in Kelvedon; and a recovery was paſt the 4th of May following. He dyed, 30 March 1515. His nephew—Richard, ſon of his brother Francis, then aged ten years, was his heir (d). But, upon Sir Robert's death without iſſue male, this Eſtate, and Filiols-hall, fell to the crown.

K. Henry VIII. 20 April 1539, granted them both to Richard Long Eſq; as may be ſeen under Kelvedon, p. 152. His ſon—Henry Long Eſq; dying without iſſue, they deſcended to his four ſiſters, of whom the eldeſt

Elizabeth, brought them in marriage to her huſband Sir William Ruſſell. And they, by licenſe dated 18 May 1584, ſold This, to Henry Earl of Kent, George Earl of Cumberland, and Sir Thomas Cecill, 5th and youngeſt ſon of Thomas Earl of Exeter. He married Anne, daughter of Sir Robert Lee, alderman of London, by whom he had Benjamin, Charles, Dorothy, and Anne.

Hugh Raymond Eſq; late Director of the South-Sea-Company. It is now in——Jones Raymond Eſq;

The maner of Little Coggeſhall hath only a court-baron; the Fine at the will of the Lord.

On the 15th of April 1558, this maner was united to the Duchy of Lancaſter; as alſo were thoſe of Lacton, Bradwell juxta mare; Mundenhall, Stamford-Rivers, and Stanford-hall, Tracy's-Bridges, and Piggeſland there; Stapleford-Tawney; and the Lordſhips of Coppedhall; Epping; Dedham; Langeham; and Claret-hall in Aſhen (i).

Little Coggeſhall was formerly reputed a Pariſh, and had two Churches: the one built by the Abbot for himſelf and Monks, which ſtood in the field called the Park on the left ſide of the Abbey; It was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and is entirely demoliſhed. The other, dedicated to St. Nicolas, was built for the Inhabitants of this hamlet, and is ſtill ſtanding, not far from the Abbey, on the left hand ſide of the lane leading from the King's high-way to the ſaid Abbey. 'Tis called the Chapel of Little Coggeſhall, and is now converted into a barn, or hay-houſe.— After the Suppreſſion, the great Church was pulled down, and the Bells carried to Kelvedon, as tradition ſays; and this village was united to Great Coggeſhall, whither the Inhabitants reſort for divine Service.

Coggeſhall-Abbey.

The remains of it ſtand within the precincts of Little Coggeſhall, near the river. It was built after the Gothic manner, but is moſtly demoliſhed. Over the porch, which is a newer edifice than the reſt, in a free-ſtone is this inſcription $\overset{\text{B.}}{\text{R.}\quad\text{A.}}$ and the date 1581.

This Abbey was founded in the year 1142. [C] by K. Stephen, and his Queen Maud, for Ciſtercian, or white, Monks, and dedicated to the Virgin Mary. As it was built on part of Qu. Maud's patrimony, who, as heireſs of the houſe of Bologne, had This among other great eſtates; Therefore the foundation-Charter runs in her name. K. Stephen, her huſband, and their ſon Euſtace, join in the grant of the maner to the Abbey; but the King, and their other ſon William Earl of Bologne and Warren, ſeverally confirm This, and other Grants (k). Qu. Maud, moreover, granted them an exemption from toll and other cuſtoms, throughout all the lands belonging to her, and her ſon Euſtace in England and Bologne. And K. John, 10 January 1203, gave them leave to incloſe their Wood here, and convert it into a park, for which they paid him an acknowledgment of 40 marks (l). The like licenſe they obtained of K. Henry III: to incloſe their woods of Toleſhunt Mager, Tolleſhunt Tregoz, Inneworth, Chiltendich, and Warlegh Setmoll (m).

The Abbot and Convent founded a Chantry in their Church, for one of their Monks to pray daily for K. Edward III, Philippa his Queen, and their Children; in conſideration of which, that king granted them, and their ſucceſſors, 11 Janu. 1344, a hogſhead of red Wine, to be delivered in London by the king's Gentleman of the Wine-cellar, every year at Eaſter.

By virtue of a licence from K. Henry IV. dated 27 Janu. 1407. Joane de Bohun counteſs of Hereford, Margaret wife of Sir Hugh de Badew, William Bourgchier, William Marney, Nicolas Hunt, Kts. Robert Rikedon, Edmund Peverell, Henry Frank, clerk, Geffrey Colvill, and John Norman, chaplain, founded here a Chantry, for one Monk to pray daily for the Souls of the ſaid Hugh, Margaret his wife, and Thomas Coggeſhall: and they endowed it with ten pounds per ann. iſſuing out of 2 meſſuages, a fulling-mill, 240 acres of arable, 11 acr. of meadow, 46 acr. of paſture, 2 acr. of wood in Springfield and Sandon, called Springfield Barnes and Sandford-Barnes (n).

Ralph de Coggeſhall gave alſo to this Abbey, in 1276, Sixty acres of arable (o).

What the reſt of their Poſſeſſions were, will beſt appear from the following extract of the Survey, returned into the Court of Augmentation, at the time of the diſſolution; and from other authorities.

This Abbey was ſurrendered to the Crown 5 Febr. 1538, as hath been obſerved above: It being then valued at 298 l. 8 s. Speed. 251 l. 2 s. Dugd.

The ſame year, K. Henry VIII. granted the principal or chief ſite of this Monaſtery or Abbey of Coggeſhall, alias Coxhall, and the Church, Rectory, and advowſon of Coggeſhall and Childerdich; and the manors of Coggeſhall, Childerdich, Tillingham, and Keuton-hall, Lions, Tolſhunt major, Chedingſell, Tutwyke, Bouſeys, Holfield-grange, and Buſhey-gate-houſe, to Sir Thomas Seymour, brother of Edward Duke of Somerſet; (p) who, 12 May 1541, exchanged them with the King.

The Site of the Abbey, and the Abbey-farm, belong now to Mrs. Hannah Bullock, widow of Joſiah Bullock, late of Falkborne-hall Eſq;

As for the large Wood abovementioned, and called at preſent Great and Little Monk-wood, it is divided into ſeveral parcels. About 80 acres belong to Oſgood Hanbury Eſq;—40 acres to the heirs of the late Sir William Dawes, Archbiſhop of York. —40 acres to Mrs. Rachel Bullock.—and 20 acres to General Philip Honywood.

The Towns of Great and Little Coggeſhall are divided by a Bridge called Little Bridge, ſtanding over the old ſtream, that had formerly upon it a Mill called Tye-mill, now demoliſhed: The meadow there is ſtill called Tye meadow. This Bridge is equally maintained by the Inhabitants of both Pariſhes.

Near the Site of the Abbey there is another Bridge, which was originally built by K. Stephen, and did conſiſt of three arches. The River over which this Bridge ſtands was not the ancient ſtream, but a channel cut at the upper oſiers, (a plat of ground ſo called) to convey it nearer to the Abbey. This is now called Long Bridge, and maintained by the Lord of the maners of Great and Little Coggeſhall, and the ſeveral Fee-Farmers and Proprietors of the lands and tenements late belonging to Coggeſhall-abbey.

In Weſt-ſtreet there is a third bridge called Hares Bridge, which is always repaired by the Conſtables of Great Coggeſhall.

Charitable Gifts.

Joan Smith of London, widow, by her will dated 21 April 1601, gave four hundred pounds to provide a purchaſe of forty marks per ann. 20 marks thereof to Great Coggeſhall, to be beſtowed and imployed for the relief of the Poor there, and the ſame to continue unto them as her free gift for ever, by five ſhillings in bread every Sunday to the world's end. In lieu of the ſaid twenty marks, there is a yearly rent and fee farm of Fifteen pounds granted out of the Rectory and Church of Eaſt-Tilbury in this county.

Thomas Guyon of Great Coggeſhall Gent. by his will dated 21 Novemb. 1664, gave Two hundred pounds, to be laid out in lands and tenements by his Executors, for the uſe and benefit of the moſt honeſt aged poor people of Great Coggeſhall, and directed, That the yearly rents and profits thence ariſing, ſhould weekly upon every Lord's-day after the Sermon in the forenoon be beſtowed in bread to the Poor there for ever. Sir Mark Guyon added Twelve pounds a year to the ſaid gift diſtributed weekly at Church, in three-penny loaves, by the Miniſter and feoffees to the Poor of this pariſh for ever; and tyed a farm in this town called Highfields for the payment of it.

Samuel Crane of Great Coggeſhall Gent. by his will dated in November 1609. did give the rents and profits of his meſſuages or tenements in Stanham ſtreet, to the uſe of the Poor of Great Coggeſhall, to be laid out in bread and delivered to them the 25th day of December, and to continue for ever.

But the moſt conſiderable Benefactor to this pariſh was Sir Robert Hitcham Kt. By his will, made 8 Auguſt 1636, he ſettled the caſtle and maners of Framlingham and Saxtead, which he had purchaſed of Theophilus Earl of Suffolk, upon the Maſter and Fellows of Pembroke-hall Cambridge; requeſting that they ſhould make a good aſſurance of thoſe Eſtates to certain Truſtees; for the uſes following. "To erect a work-houſe at Framlingham, to ſet the Poor of that place, Debenham, and Coxall on work, firſt, and after them of other Towns, if they ſee cauſe, and to provide a ſubſtantial ſtock for that end: To build one or two Almshouſes, conſiſting of ſix perſons each, for twelve of the pooreſt and moſt decrepid perſons, who ſhall be allowed two ſhillings a piece weekly during their lives, and forty ſhillings each for a gown and firing every year: To erect a ſchool-houſe at Framlingham, and appoint a Maſter, who ſhall have 40 l. per annum paid him to teach thirty or forty, or more, of the pooreſt children of Framlingham, Debenham, and Coxall, to write, read, and caſt accounts, who when fit ſhall be allowed 10 l. a piece to put them out apprentices, at the diſcretion of the four ſenior Fellows of the College." The people of Coggeſhall were to ſend their poor children to Framlingham; but the great diſtance hindred it, and law-ſuits aroſe among the parties concerned. Whereupon it was ordered by the Protector Oliver Cromwell and his council, that an ordinance ſhould be printed 20 March 1658, wherein it is ordained, that the ſaid College ſhould pay ſo much in money to the reſpective towns, viz. To the town of Coxall 150*l.* per annum. Which ſum was to be paid to twelve Truſtees, there appointed, at the Cow-croſs in Framlingham on the firſt Tueſday in March and firſt Tueſday in September by equal portions: To be employed for a work houſe at Coxall; and for a ſchool-houſe there, for the teaching 20 or 30 poor children grammar, reading, and writing; for binding out apprentices; and for ſending ſome of the grammar-ſcholars to Cambridge to the ſaid college, as the Truſtees ſhall think fit. The Maſter of the ſaid Free-ſchool to be choſen by the Maſter and Fellows of Pembroke-hall; with a ſalary of 20*l.* a year.

There are three Almshouſes adjoyning to the Church-yard, without endowment.—And two Almshouſes more at the upper end of Weſt-ſtreet, given by Sir Mark Guyon to this pariſh, in lieu of two Almshouſes that were pulled down near his houſe.

This Town was of old famous for the Clothing-Trade, as appears from the Epitaphs of ſeveral Clothiers in the Church, particularly of the name of Paycock. When the Bay-trade came into this County, it ſoon inſinuated itſelf into this place, which was famous for one ſort called Coggeſhall-Whites, on account of their remarkable Fineneſs. Many traders in thoſe goods raiſed great Eſtates; but one Mr. Thomas Guyon is ſcarce to be matched in England, for he is ſaid to have dyed worth near 100,000*l.* which he raiſed by the Bay-trade. At preſent it is much upon the decline, as it is in the reſt of the County of Eſſex: and the price of the work being lowered, and proviſions of all ſorts much advanced; That hath entail'd a numerous Poor, which the reſt of the Inhabitants are ſcarcely well able to maintain.

The CHURCH of Great Coggeſhall, dedicated to St. Peter, ſtands pleaſantly at the upper end of the Town, having a good proſpect Southward. 'Tis a ſpacious and lofty Edifice, and has north and ſouth iſles. At the weſt end there is a large Tower of ſtone, containing ſix Bells. The Tithes of this pariſh originally belonged to the Abbey till about the year 1223, when Euſtace de Fauconbergh, biſhop of London, obliged the Monks to allow part of them to the maintenance of a Vicar; who was then appointed, and endowed with a Glebe of about 20 acres, and all the ſmall Tithes; the reſt, namely the Tithes of Corn, being appropriated to the Monaſtery. At the ſame time, the Biſhop reſerved to himſelf, and his Succeſſors Biſhops of London, the Collation to the Vicarage. It continued in them, till Dr. Nicolas Ridley biſhop of this See, did, on the 12th of April 1550, convey by indenture the perpetual Advowſon of this Vicatage to K. Edward VI. his heirs and Succeſſors. (q) Six days before, that King had granted it by patent to Richard Lord Riche. (r) Notwithſtanding which, upon the next vacancy, Bp. Bonner, who had been reſtored to his See, taking no notice of his predeceſſor's conveyance, collated a perſon to this Vicarage in 1558, as patron, in full right (s). But the advowſon of it was afterwards confirmed to the Lord Riche, who dyed poſſeſs'd of it 12 June 1566 (t). And in his family it continued, till, for want of iſſue male, their great eſtates came to be ſhared out among coheirs. Then this advowſon was allotted to Sir Henry St. John Bart. afterwards created Viſcount St. John, who, jointly with his eldeſt ſon and heir Henry Earl of Bolingbroke, conveyed it to the abovemention'd Nehemiah Lyde Eſq; and it is now in his grandſon Peter Ducane, Eſq;

Two noted perſons were Vicars of this Church in the laſt century, viz. Obadiah Sedgwick, and John Owen D. D. Nor was the late Vicar James Boys leſs remarkable for the infinite number of Sermons of his own compoſition he left behind him, beſides his Expoſition of the 39 Articles. &c.

As for the Great Tithes, they becoming, upon the ſuppreſſion of this Monaſtery, veſted in the Crown, K. Henry. VIII. granted them, in 1537, to Sir Thomas Seymour (u). The ſame year he made an exchange of them with that King; and they ſeem to have continued in the Crown till about the year 1591, when Q. Elizabeth granted to John Wells Scrivener, and Hercules Witham, Gent. both of London, the Rectory of Coggeſhall, with appertenances alias Little Coggeſhall and the Vicarage there, and a meſſuage called kills and ciſternes le mawlting houſes, and the two tithe-barns: To hold in Socage (w). The 8th of January following, they ſold the Rectories of Great and Little Coxall, and Vicarage of little Coggeſhall; to Richard Bettenſon of this pariſh Gent. And he, 20 Nov. 1604, alienated them to

Richard Benyon. This laſt Richard dyed 17 Novem. 1609.—Richard his ſon and heir was then aged four years and ſix months (x). By deed dated 22 Febr. 1629, he ſettled the premiſſes on himſelf and Margaret his wife for their lives, and on their heirs, and for failure of iſſue on their right heirs for ever. Afterwards, 13 May 1659, he gave by will all the Tythes of lands in the hamlet of Little Coggeſhall, great and ſmall; and the Tythes of thoſe grounds belonging to the Abbey lying in Great Coggeſhall, and the barn and ground in the Abbey-lane, to his eldeſt ſon —Henry, and his heirs; who, in May 1661, conveyed part of the Tithes to Auguſtin Mayhew Gent. This Henry made his will 18 Septemb. 1673, and bequeathed his Tythes in Little Coggeſhall except a field called horſe-paſture, to his brother Charles, in lieu of a legacy left him by his father. By another deed of the ſame date, he gives all tythes, and other his real eſtate in Great and Little Coggeſhall and elſewhere, to Thomas Stafford Gent. and his heirs; to be ſold for payment of his debts, the overplus to the ſaid Thomas Stafford, with the Chancel of Great Coggeſhall, which he was to maintain. A law-ſuit aroſe about this gift of Stafford, at the promotion of Henry Benion's ſiſters, of whom Thomas Cudmore bought one moiety of this eſtate; and Henry Abbot another moiety, which he left to his ſon Joſeph. Cudmore's moiety of the Tythes belongs now to Jones Raymond Eſq; the other moiety was purchaſed of the deviſees of Joſeph Abbot, by Samuel Carter Gent. who alſo bought of Tho. Arnſby and Elizabeth his wife, the whole great Tithes of Hovell's farm, Wood-houſe, and Eaſtlands, formerly belonging to Auguſtin Mayhew.—But becauſe the Abbey was of the Ciſtercian order, the Lands formerly holden by the monks diſcharged of Tithes, are ſtill reputed ſo whilſt in the hands of the owner; when occupied by a Tenant, they pay ſmall Tithes.

In this Church there were founded two Chantries, twelve Obits, and an Endowment for a Lamp.

One of the Chantries was founded by ſeveral perſons for the maintenance of a Prieſt for ever to ſing maſſe in this Church, and alſo to help ſerve the Cure. In the certificate of Chantry-lands, given in K. Edward the Sixth's time, is the following obſervation. "The ſame towne "of Coggeſhall ys a populous towne and having "yn yt to the number of 1000 of howſeling peo"ple, and have noe more but the Vicar and the "ſaid Chauntrye Prieſt to miniſter there who ys "not able to ſerve the ſame without helpe."

The other Chantry was founded in 1518. by Thomas Paycocke of this town Eſq; who gave by will 500 marks, to provide a maintenance for a Prieſt and ſix poor men, to pray, or ſing maſs, in St. Catharine's iſle in this Church, before the altar of St. Catharine, for him and his wife, his father and mother, and his father and mother in law, and for all his friends ſouls.

Some of the Endowments of the Obits, were Godard's garden, Roodes land, Vincents, an old Chapel, in the ſtreet, and a houſe called the Yieldhall.

2. MARKESHALL

is bounded by the ſeveral pariſhes of Coggeſhall, Patteſwick, Stieſted, Halſtead, Earls-Colne, and Fering.

It is moſt probably denominated from a family ſurnamed de Merc or Merk, which held Merks Tay, and other eſtates named from them in this County; particularly the maner of Merks in Dunmow, in William the Conqueror's time, when this (y) Pariſh bore a name nearly reſembling the preſent, viz. that of Mercheſhala.

Gudmund held it under Edward the Confeſſor; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, it was holden by Hugh de Montfort, and under him by one Nigell [I].

This Lordſhip did not continue long in the Montfort family. For Robert, grandſon of this Hugh, eſpouſing the intereſt of Robert Courthoſe in oppoſition to his younger brother K. Henry I. and being queſtioned for breach of his allegiance, he obtained leave to go to Jeruſalem, and left all his lands to the King (z). Who ſoon after gave them to the noble family of Eſſex, whoſe chief ſeat was the Honor of Raleigh in this County: [where ſome account is given of them] But Hugh de Eſſex, Conſtable and Standard-bearer to K. Henry II, behaved very unworthily in an expedition which that King in perſon made into Wales, 1163; throwing down the ſtandard, and cowardly running away; which ſo animated the Welſh, and diſcouraged the Engliſh under an apprehenſion of the King's being ſlain, that the whole army was utterly routed. For which high miſdemeanor, being charged with treaſon by Robert de Montforde, and vanquiſhed in a ſolemn tryal by battle, he ought to have ſuffered death by law; had not the king interpoſed; who, ſparing his life, cauſed him to be ſhorn a Monk in the abbey of Reading, and ſeized his whole eſtates (a). From the Conqueſt, this maner in particular was holden of the Honor of Haule, alias Hageley, Hugenet, or Dover-caſtle, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee and paying 10*s*. yearly to the wardſhip of that caſtle, on the feaſt of All-ſaints.

It becoming veſted in the Crown upon Eſſex's forfeiture, it was granted in fee to a family ſurnamed from hence de Merkeſhale, who were at firſt only tenants under the chief lords; but in proceſs of time came to be perſons of eminence. The firſt of this family was Nigel above-mentioned, who held it, at the time of the general Survey, under Hugh de Montfort. He was ſucceeded by his ſon Robert de Mercheſhale; that was witneſs to a deed of Aubrey de Vere, about the year 1109, wherein he confirms his father's grants to Colne Priory (b). His ſon and heir—Roger de Markeſhale, held this eſtate of the Honor of Hagent, in 1210 and 1211. He had his ſon and heir Herbert de Merkeſhall, a conſiderable benefactor to Coggeſhall-abbey [K], who dyed about 1274. 2 Ed. I. poſſeſſed of this eſtate, and of the advowſon of the Church: Alan, and Arthur, were his two ſons (c). Alan, the eldeſt, dying without iſſue, was ſucceeded by his brother—Arthur, who by Elen his wife left two ſons, Thomas, and John; but was surviv'd by his mother Alice, who had taken to her ſecond huſband John le Hunt, and dyed in 1349.—Thomas de Markeſhale was her next heir; (d) but lived only a little while: For upon the death of his mother Elen, the next year,—John was found to be her ſon and heir (e). He married Alice . . . . who ſurvived him, and held this maner in dowry till her deceaſe in 1375.—Thomas was their ſon and heir: (f) and beſides this lordſhip had the third part of the maner of Little Leghes, and the third part of a tenement in Felſted and Belchampe called Whelpeſtones. He dyed about 1437. His ſon—Thomas ſucceeded him (g). The 14th of May 1541, William Markeſhall had licenſe to alienate this maner with appertenances in Markeſhall, Fering, and Earl's Colne, and the advowſon of the church of Markeſhall, to—John Markeſhall (h). And the latter, jointly with his wife, obtained a licenſe, 1 May 1562 [I], to ſell the maner of Markeſhall, with appertenances, to

John Cole. Thus the family of Merkeſhall having continued proprietors of this eſtate from the Conqueſt to the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth's reign, almoſt 500 years, diſpoſed of it to the Cole family. John Cole, Eſq; juſt now mentioned, at the time of his deceaſe which happened 26 Septemb. 1567, held the premiſſes, namely, the maner of Markeſhall alias Marſehall, in Markeſhall, Feringe, and Earl's-Colne, and two meſſuages, four cottages, 3 tofts, 4 gardens, 2 orchards, 140 acres of meadow, 140 acres of paſture, 30 acr. of wood, 40 acr. of marſh, and 15 s. rent in the foreſaid pariſhes; and the advowſon of the Church of Markeſhall; then valued at 22 l. per ann. and holden of the Queen as of the Honor of Dover, by knight's-ſervice.—William his ſon and heir was then aged upwards of ſeven years (i). He ſoon parted with this eſtate: For 8 Octob. 1581, he ſold it to (k)

Edward Deraugh, or Derechaugh Eſq; (l) who, by Margaret . . . his wife, had two ſons; Edward that was buried in this church 28 June 1593, and William. He dyed in January 1595, and was interred here 2 February following.—William his ſon ſucceeding him, conveyed, on the 2d of September 1605, all his right to this Eſtate unto Robert Honywood of Charing in Kent Eſq; in whoſe poſterity it continues to this day.

This Family derive their original from a place called Henewood, ſometimes written Hunewood in the pariſh of Poſtling, and in the Hundred of Hene, in Kent; where they flouriſhed not long after the Conqueſt (m). William de Honywood, of Honywood in the foreſaid pariſh, lived in the reign of K. Henry II. and left three ſons, Thomas, Richard, and John.—Thomas, the eldeſt ſon ſucceeded, and had iſſue—Edwin de Honywood, who lived in the reigns of K. Henry III. and Edward I. He was a conſiderable benefactor to Horton-Priory, (n) founded by Robert de Vere Earl of Oxford, near Poſtling, as a cell to the Abbey of Lewes. He had to wife Amabilia, daughter and heir of Nicolas de Handlo, of an ancient and noble family in Kent, the capital Seat of whoſe Barony was Bellerica, or Courtup-Street in Allington not far from Honywood, which by their means obtained the privilege of a market. This heireſs brought ſeveral Lordſhips into his family: [M] And by him had three ſons, Ralph, Paine, and John father of Nicolas. The two firſt were benefactors to Horton Priory, eſpecially Paine, who gave the monks lands to the yearly value of nine pounds. Ralph, the elder brother, dying without iſſue,—Paine, the ſecond, ſucceeded to the inheritance, and had a ſon named—Alan, who dyed in the reign of K. Richard II. leaving three ſons, William, Robert, and John; who had each of them a ſon of their grandfather's name—William de Honywood, the eldeſt ſon, married Catharine Daughter and heir of Caſebourne, an ancient family, ſo called from the caſtle of Caſebourne within the pariſh of Newington near Hyth in Kent [N]. By her he had—Alan, father of—Thomas de Honywood, that married Mary daughter of William Lovelace of Betherſden in Kent Eſq; deſcended by the mother's ſide from the ancient families of Broxcomb and Pluckley in that County. [And from the ſaid William ſprung the Barons Lovelace of Hurley in Berkſhire]. It doth not appear he had any iſſue by this wife. But by the ſecond he had five ſons; John; Robert; [O] Richard, Thomas; and William: and two daughters, Alice wife of . . . Dalmington and Joan. He was choſen one of the Barons of the Cinque-ports for Hyth in the parliament that met at Weſtminſter 20 Nov. 1459 and dyed in the reign of K. Edward IV.—John, his eldeſt ſon and heir, had two wives, both of which brought him a numerous offspring. The firſt wife was, Agnes, daughter and heir of Henry Marten of Graveny in Kent Eſq; [P] who by her large fortune made a very conſiderable addition to the Honywood-eſtate: For her mother, Agnes, was daughter and heir of . . . . Boteler of Graveny, who married the daughter and heir of William Frogenhal of Frogenhal in the ſaid County. [Q] By this firſt wife John Honywood had, John; Bennet, wife of John Dryland; Iſabel of Chriſtopher Lachford; Mary, married to Vincent Boys of Bunington, and after his deceaſe to Edmund Gayde of Elmeſtede; and Jane to . . . . Ferrers . . . John Honywood's ſecond wife, was . . . . . . daughter of . . . . Barnes of Wye in Kent Eſq; and by her he had ROBERT, from whom lineally deſcended the family of Markeſhall; and two daughters, Bennetta, married firſt to John Turney of Brookhill in Saltwood, and then to Walter Moyle of Buckwell, both in Kent; and Margaret to Edward Hales.

Of the elder branch, ſeated at Honywood and Sene, I ſhall give an account in the note below. [R] And proceed here to carry on the ſucceſſion of the younger branch, which in time tranſplanted themſelves at Markeſhall.

He married Mildred daughter of Sir John Hales, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, by which he had Iſſue, Thomas; John; Chriſtopher, who was thrice repreſentative in parliament for Hyth, viz. 26, 27, and 29 Elizab. . . . and four daughters, Bennet; Mary; Mildred;

Robert aboveſaid, younger ſon of John Honywood Eſq; by his ſecond wife . . . Barnes, ſettled at Charing in Kent. He married Mary, one of the daughters and coheirs of Robert Attwater [or Waters] of Royton near Lenham in Kent Eſq; a very rich man. By her he got a conſiderable addition to his eſtate, and a large family of ſixteen children, 7 ſons, and 9 daughters. Of the ſons, the following are particularly mentioned. 1. Robert, the eldeſt ſon and heir. 2. Antony, who founded an hoſpital at Lenham, and dyed without iſſue. 3. Arthur, that married Elizabeth, daughter of John Spencer of Chart-Sutton in Kent, and had by her Antony, Henry, John, Robert; Mary, Suſan, Dorothy, Rachel, Catharine, and Jane. 4. Walter. 5. Iſaac, a captain at the famous battle of Newport in the Netherlands. Of the reſt we find no account. The nine daughters were, 1. Catharine, married firſt to William Flete, and afterwards to William Henmarſh. 2. Priſcilla, to Sir Thomas Ingeham. 3. Mary, to George Morton. 4. Anne, to Sir Charles Hales. 5. Grace, to Michael Heneage; from whom are derived the Earls of Winchelſea and Nottingham. 6. Elizabeth, to George Woodward. 7. Suſan, to . . . . . Rancham. 8. Bennetta, to Henry Crooke; and, 9. Dorothy to William Crooke. Their father dyed in 1576, and was buried in Lenham Church. His wife, Mary Waters, ſurvived him 44 years; and dying here at Markeſhall 16 May 1620, in the 93d year of her age, was buried by her huſband. But a cenotaph, or honorary monument, was erected to her memory in this church of Markeſhall. She was ſo memorable a perſon upon many accounts, that we muſt mention her more at length, after we have concluded the hiſtory of this family. Their eldeſt ſon and heir——Robert, ſucceeded them in the Lordſhip of Charing; and alſo purchaſed, in 1605, this eſtate of Markeſhall, as hath been intimated above, and removed from Kent hither; making this ſeat the chief place of his reſidence. He pulled down part of the old Houſe, and built a handſome Front, which was finiſhed about 1609, as appears from an inſcription on the chimney in the great Hall. He married, 1. Dorothy, daughter of John Crook, Doctor of the Civil law, by which he had Robert, to whom he gave the eſtate in Kent [S]. His 2d wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Browne of Beachworth-caſtle in Surrey Kt. He had by her 6 ſons, Thomas; Matthew, that married a daughter of Sir John Rivers Kt. and Bart. Peter; Henry; Michael, D. D. and Dean of Lincoln [T]; Iſaac: and one daughter, Heſter, married to John Sayer of Bourchier's hall in Aldham Eſq; Their father, Robert Honywood Eſq; dyed 11 June 1627, and was buried the 13th of the ſame month, at the upper end of the chancel of this church, under a black marble ſtone with an epitaph. His ſecond wife was interred by him 28 June 1631. Their eldeſt ſon,——Sir Thomas Honywood, ſucceeded them in this eſtate. He was born at Beachworth-caſtle in Surrey 15 Janu. 1586, knighted 22 Auguſt 1632, and married Heſter, daughter and heir of John Lamotte Eſq; Alderman of London, [widow of John Manning of the ſame city Eſq; an eminent merchant, by whom ſhe and Joane: of which the eldeſt was married to William Finch of Coldwell in Kent,——Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, married Margaret, daughter of William Bedingfeild of Bellaven in Kent Eſq; and had by her Elizabeth, his only daughter, that became the wife of Thomas Scott of Scotts-hall in Kent Eſq; Dying without iſſe male, he was ſucceeded in the chief of his eſtates by his next brother——John Honywood Eſq; who had two wives. 1. Jane, ſole daughter and heir of Peter Heyman by Mary his wife daughter and coheir of William Tirell of Beeches in Eſſex Eſq; Their iſſue was an only daughter named Catharine, heir to her grandmother Tirell, that was married to Sir Edward Scott of Scotts-hall, knight of the Bath. 2. The ſecond wife of John Honywood was Joane, daughter and heir of . . . . Perrey of Chatham in Kent, by which he had Thomas; and four daughters. Margaret, wife of Jonathan Carlell; Mildred, of . . . . March; Bennetta of Ralph, ſecond ſon of William Heyman; and Jane of John Knatchbull. The ſon and heir, ——Sir Thomas Honywood Kt. took for his firſt wife Jane, daughter of Edward Hales of Tenterden in Kent Eſq; and had by her ſix ſons, and three daughters. Namely, John; William Lord Mayor of London in 1630; Edward; Robert; Thomas, a captain in the Netherlands; and Benoni. The daughters were, Margaret, married to Thomas Boys of Merſham; Priſcilla, to Robert Scott, brother to Sir Edward Scott; and Catharine, to Thomas Taylor of Willeſborough. Sir Thomas Honywood's ſecond wife was Margaret, daughter of . . . . . Buller of Shillingham in Cornwall, by whom he had an only daughter, Thomaſina, married to Francis Buller, ſon and heir of Sir Richard Buller.——Sir John Honywood of Elmſted and Sene, eldeſt ſon of Sir Thomas, had two wives; but iſſue only by Mary daughter of Tho. Godfrey of Lyd in Kent Eſq; namely Edward; William; John: Elizabeth, married to Richard Lea of Delce magna Eſq; Mary, to Edmund Scott Eſq; Jane; and Catharine.——Edward was created a Baronet in 1660. and from him is deſcended the Baronet-family of Evington in Kent. See Baronettage, Vol. III. Part i. p. 105. &c.

[S] This Robert, who was knighted 7 July 1625, married . . . . . daughter of Sir Martin Barnham of Hollingborne in Kent, and had by her twenty children; viz. Robert, the eldeſt ſon; Thomas; Martin; Francis; Iſaac, killed at the ſiege of Maeſtricht; Benedict, a captain in the Low-Countries; Viceſimus, the 20th child, &c. And theſe daughters, Judith, married to John Sherley Eſq; and afterwards to Sir Thomas Pelham Kt. and Bart. Anne, wife of Thomas Fox of London; Elizabeth, dyed without iſſue; Mary; Alice; Margaret; Dorothy; Jane; Priſcilla; Elizabeth. The eldeſt ſon and heir——Sir Robert Honywood, knighted 15 June 1625, ſucceeded his father. Being of a military diſpoſition, he ſpent many years abroad in the wars of the Palatinate, in the rank of a Colonel: and was one of thoſe gallant Engliſh voluntiers that vigorouſly eſpouſed the intereſts of Frederick king of Bohemia, father to the late Princeſs Sophia, ſacrificing a great part of his patrimony in that ſervice. During our civil wars he ſided with the Parliament, and by means of his kinſman Sir Thomas Honywood was made one of the Council of State about 16 May 1659. In his old age and retirement, he tranſlated the Hiſtory of Baptiſta Nani, a Venetian Patrician, out of Italian into elegant Engliſh, which was printed at London in folio 1673. and dedicated to his brother-in-law Sir Walter Vane Kt. For he married Frances, daughter of Sir Henry Vane the elder, Treaſurer of the Houſhold, and of the Privy Council to K. Charles I. by whom he had Robert; Henry; Charles, Lodowic, and thirteen other children. —— Charles Lodowic had two Sons, ROBERT, who ſucceeded J. la Motte in the eſtate at Markeſhall, &c. and Philip. This latter being bred up to arms, proved a very good officer; and became Col. of a regiment, General of horſe, Governor of Portſmouth, Aid de Camp to his Majeſty &c. In 1744 he was created a Knight of the Bath, on account of his bravery at the battle of Dettingen; and dyed 17 June 1752, unmarried.

[T] This Dr. Honeywood had his education at Chriſt's-college in Cambridge, of which he was Fellow. During the civil wars, he went abroad, whither he ſpent ſeventeen years. At the Reſtoration, he was made Dean of Lincoln, where he re-edified part of the Cloyſters, over which he furniſhed a Library with a good collection of Books: and behaved otherwiſe with great charity, munificence, and probity. He dyed 7 Septemb. 1681, aged 85, and was buried in the cathedral, where a monument is erected to his memory.

had three ſons that dyed before their father, and Elizabeth wife of Maurice Abbot, ſon of Sir Maurice Abbot, once Alderman and Lord Mayor of London, and brother to thoſe two eminent Prelates, George Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Robert Biſhop of Sarum;---mother of Maurice Abbot Eſq;] By the ſaid Heſter Sir Thomas Honywood had ſeven children. 1. John, baptized 2 Aug. 1636, and buried the 9th of the ſame month. 2. Henry, baptized 11 July 1641, and buried 16 April 1643. 3. Matthew, baptized 2 Novemb. 1645, and buried 24 March 1646. 4. Thomas, baptized 28 July 1639. 5. John Lamotte. 6. Elizabeth, baptized 20 Aug. 1637, and married, 20 Octob. 1663, to Sir John Cotton Kt. and Bart. of Conington in Huntingdonſhire, Son of the famous Sir Robert Cotton, founder of the Cottonian library. 7. Martha, baptized 22 April 1640, and buried 30 April 1646. Sir Thomas Honywood was a man of great note in his time; and, during the civil wars, ſided with the Parliament, to which he proved ſerviceable upon many occaſions. For ſeveral years he was a principal member of the Committee for Eſſex. He commanded, in 1648, a body of militia at the ſiege of Colcheſter. And, in 1651, led a regiment of Eſſex-men, of which he was Colonel, at Worceſter-fight (o). The 9th of September, the ſame year, he was created Doctor of the civil law at Oxford (p). He was one of the Knights of the Shire for this county, in Oliver's parliament which began at Weſtminſter 3 Sept. 1654; and again for his other parliament that began 17 Septemb. 1656 (q). Likewiſe was advanced by him to be one of his Lords of the Other Houſe. He dyed 26 May 1666, in the 80th Year of his age, at Cotton-houſe in Weſtminſter, belonging to his ſon-in-law, and was ſolemnly buried, the 1ſt of June following, in the chancel of this Church, where there is an epitaph for him. His wife, Heſter, ſurviving him many years, dyed 19 October 1681, in the 75th year of her age, and was buried by his ſide in this church, the 26th of the ſame month. She is ſaid to have been one of the moſt remarkable perſons of her time for Wiſdom, Piety, and Charity.——Thomas Honywood Eſq; the eldeſt ſon and heir, ſucceeded his father, but did not long enjoy his inheritance; for he dyed 24 Novemb. 1672, without iſſue; and was buried on the ſame Day according to the Regiſter, under the South window of the Chancel. Upon his deceaſe, his next brother——John Lamotte Honywood Eſq; inherited the whole eſtate of this family, which was very conſiderable. In the parliament which met at Weſtminſter 21 Octob. 1680, and of the next that aſſembled at Oxford 21 March 1680-1, he was choſen one of the Knights for this County. And, in 1691, was appointed Sheriff for the ſame. By his wife, Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir William Wiſeman of Rivenhall in this county, Bart. he had no iſſue. He dyed in 1693; and, after his deceaſe, his widow was married again to Sir Iſaac Rebow of Colcheſter.

The Eſſex-branch of the Honywood family ceaſing thus in John la Motte; the next heir, Robert Honywood of Charing Eſq; juſt mentioned under Note [S], ſucceeded to the Lordſhip of Markeſhall, and other conſiderable eſtates in this county, and elſewhere. He was one of the Deputy-lieutenants for Eſſex, Colonel of a regiment of foot, &c. In the firſt Parliament of K. George I. he was elected one of the Knights for this county, in the room of Tho. Middleton Eſq; deceaſed; as he was again in 1722, in the ſecond Parliament of the ſame king: and departed this life in Janu. 1735. He married Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Sandford Bart. by Mary daughter of Sir Francis Bowes of Howgilcaſtle in Weſtmoreland Eſq; [who, upon the death of her brother Sandford, became his heir,] and had by her theſe ſeveral children. Robert, who dyed unmarried; Richard; Charles, that dyed at Preſton in Lancaſhire in Janu. 1716 17, of the ſmall pox; John; Philip; and Mary.--- Richard, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, ſucceeded his father; but dyed in 1755. He married a daughter of Sir James Gray, and had by her Richard, who dyed in 1758, having lived only to about the age of 10 years. John, the ſecond ſon, married, 30 May 1747, Mary daughter of Sir Orlando Humphreys, and widow of William-Ball Waring Eſq; but dyed 16 Janu. 1747-8, without iſſue.——Philip, the youngeſt ſon, being bred up to arms as well as his uncle Sir Philip mentioned in note [S], diſtinguiſhed himſelf at the battle of Dettingen, where he was moſt dangerouſly wounded. He was again much wounded in 1746, near Clifton in Lancaſhire, in the action with the Scotch rebels, as they were retreating home from Derby. By gradual advances he is arrived to the rank of Lieutenant-general of horſe. And, upon the death of his two eldeſt brothers, (and of his nephew,) without ſurviving iſſue, ſucceeded to the eſtates in 1758. He married Elizabeth Waſtell, a very agreeable and accompliſhed perſon, by whom he hath Philip, born in July 1760 [U]. The Maner-houſe is pleaſantly ſituated near the Church, on a riſing ground. Part of the old houſe, which was long inhabited by the family of Merkeſhall, is ſtanding: To which a beautiful Front was added by Robert Honywood Eſq; as hath been obſerved before. The Gardens, Park, and Fiſh-ponds contribute not a little to make it a delightful Seat.

At the entrance, over the Porch, are carved ſeveral quarterings of the Family's Arms [V]. And in the Hall, on one ſide of the chimney are theſe capital letters R. H. O. on the other ſide, the date 1609, ſhewing the time when this part of the houſe was finiſhed.

[V] Parti per pale. 1. Honywood, impaling, Sable two cheveronels between three birds, two and one. Argent, ſeven croſs croſſlets, or, three, one, three; and three creſcents, argent. Sable, wavy bendy of four, in feſſe, argent, between three ſwans, proper, for Waters. 2. Sable, three lions paſſant, between two double cotiſes, argent, for Browne. Creſt, over the 1ſt a Boar's head coupée. Over the ſecond a Griffin's head eraſed.

In the dining room is an original Picture of Mrs. Mary Waters, or Honywood, abovementioned, in a widow's habit, with a book in her hand. On the right ſide of her hat is this inſcription in golden letters, ÆTATIS SUÆ 70. on the other ſide ĀNO DNI 1597. This memorable perſon was born at Lenham in Kent, and remarkable upon more accounts than one. She continued 44 years a widow, and arriving to the age of 93, ſaw 367 children lawfully deſcended from her: Sixteen of her own body; one hundred and fourteen grand-children; two hundred twenty eight in the third generation; and nine in the fourth. The following wonderful ſtory is moreover related of her. Being much afflicted in mind, many Miniſters repaired to her, and among the reſt Mr. John Fox the martyrologiſt. All his counſels proved ineffectual, inſomuch that, in the agony of her ſoul, having a Venice-glaſs in her hand, ſhe burſt out into this expreſſion, "I am as ſurely damn'd as this "glaſs is broken," which ſhe immediately threw with violence to the ground: but the glaſs rebounded again, and was taken up whole and entire, being ſtill preſerved in the family. However, ſhe took no comfort thereat, but continued in her former diſconſolate condition without any amendment; "till at laſt (as the ſtory goes on) "God ſuddenly ſhot comfort like lightning into "her ſoul, which, once entered, ever remained "therein; ſo that ſhe led the remainder of her "life in ſpiritual gladneſs." This ſhe told to Dr. Tho. Morton, biſhop of Durham, from whoſe mouth Dr. T. Fuller received the account. (*) But her caſe was plainly a religious Melancholy. In the days of Qu. Mary ſhe uſed to viſit the priſons, and to comfort and relieve the poor perſecuted Proteſtants. She was preſent at the burning of Mr. Bradford in Weſt-Smithfield, and reſolved to ſee the end of his ſuffering, tho' the preſs was ſo great, that her ſhoes were troden off, and ſhe forced to go barefoot from Smithfield to St. Martin's le Grand, before ſhe could furniſh herſelf with a new pair.

John Spooner Gent. held, about the year 1553, 2 meſſuages, 2 gardens, and 43 acr. of arable in this pariſh, parcel of the maner of Markeſhall, of the Queen, as of her caſtle of Dover; and 1 meſſuage and 16 acres of arable of the Earl of Oxford, as of his maner of Earl's-Colne; and preſented, for one turn, to this church 23 June 1553 (r). He dyed 1 Auguſt 1555; leaving Mary, Alice, Emma, and Anne, his daughters and co heirs (s).

The Family of Dunſtephins, or Stephens, ſeemed to be of conſiderable ſtanding in this pariſh, and lived at the brick-houſe on Markeſhall-green. In the reign of Qu. Elizabeth, William Stephens Eſq; by his two wives, Mary, and Elizabeth, had ſeven ſons and five daughters born, and baptized here, as appears by the Pariſh regiſter.——John Stephens ſold this eſtate to Sir Thomas Honywood.

This Pariſh is very ſmall, being rated to the Land-tax only at 245 l.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Margaret, is a Rectory, and hath been all along appendent to the maner. It ſtands near the manſion-houſe, and conſiſts only of a body of the ſame pace with the chancel. At the Weſt end there is a wooden turret, containing one Bell.

In Mr. Symonds's time (t), there was in the Weſt window of this church the portrait of an armed Knight, kneeling: On his ſurcoat the Arms of Markeſhall; in a label from his mouth, Eraſme int'cede pro me. Before him, an helmet, with the bever cloſe; upon it a cap, ſable, faced ermines: whereon ſtood a Griffin, argent: And near, theſe words, Eraſme int'cede pro nob. Above the portrait was the picture of Eraſmus, and under it Scus Eraſmus . . . . . The reader will be pleaſed to obſerve, that this picture was not of Eraſmus of Roterdam, who is far from being look'd upon as a Saint by the Romiſh Church, but for one Eraſmus, biſhop and Martyr, who, in their Calendar, is placed againſt June 3.

3. FERING.

THIS pariſh is of a pretty great extent, and lies partly on the London road, being divided from Kelvedon by the river Pant.

The name is formed from the two Saxon words, ꝼeaꞃꞃ and ınᵹ, ſignifying Bull's meadow, or paſture. In records it is called Feering, Feringes, Frearing; and in Domeſday-book, Pheringas, and Ferlingas.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, Harold afterwards King of England, and Brictmar, had the chief part, if not the whole, of this Pariſh. At the time of the general ſurvey, it was holden by the Abbot of Weſtminſter, and Ralph Peverell [W]. And from thence were derived the two capital Maners here, 1. Feringbury, and 2.

Preſted-hall. To which are to be added two leſſer ones, called, 3. Chambers; and 4. Howchins, alias Fowchins.

1. Fering-bury.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about half a mile from the Church.

This is a conſiderable eſtate. It was for many years part of the Revenues of Weſtminſter-abbey, but by whom given I cannot find. However, they were poſſeſſed of it in 1343 (u); and continued ſo till their diſſolution, when it came to the Crown.

K. Henry VIII. upon his erecting Weſtminſter Abbey into a Biſhoprick, endowed it, among other things, with the manor and Rectory of Fering, and the Advowſon of the Vicarage; 20 Janu. 1540 (w). But K. Edward VI. ſuppreſſing that Biſhopric, gave the premiſſes, 12 April 1550, to Nicolas Ridley, biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors (x). Q. Mary I. confirmed the ſame, 3 March 1553, to Edmund Bonner, biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors for ever (y): And they have remained poſſeſſed of them ever ſince. Under them it is holden by Leaſe by .... Cotton Eſq; otherwiſe Preſtwood-hall, ſometime written Perſted and Porſted, and in Domeſday-book Pereſteda; was holden by Ralph Peverell, at the general ſurvey; but had belonged before to one Brictmar [X].

2. Prested-hall;

The manſion-houſe ſtands about half a mile from the Church, a little way South from the London-road. In the reign of K. Henry II, Brien Son of Ralph held this Lordſhip of the Honor of Peverell of London (z).

Nicolas Engayne, who dyed 16 Edw. II, held the maner of Perſted of John ſon and heir of Emeric Peche, by the ſervice of the fourth part of a knight's fee. [See under Colne-Engaine.] (a).

Soon after that, we find it in the Weſton-family, [mentioned particularly above, under Roxwell,] a branch of which was ennobled with the title of Earl of Portland. They were originally of Staffordſhire: But Sir William de Weſton was of Boſton in the 34th of Henry III, and 5 Ed. I. He had two ſons, John de Weſton of Weſton in Staffordſhire, and Michael.——Michael was the firſt of this family that ſettled in Eſſex; and lived 14 Ed. I. He left two ſons, Thomas, and——Humfrey (b). This latter lived at Preſted-hall, from whence he is called in the record Humfrey de Perſted. He held one knight's fee there, under John de Vere Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1360 (c). His five immediate ſucceſſors were alſo of Preſted-hall; namely——Humfrey, in 1371.——Humfrey, who, at the time of his deceaſe, in 1387, left John, that had the eſtate at Boſton, &c. and——Robert, of Preſted-hall, living from the 5th of Henry V. to the 8th of Henry VI. His iſſue was, Richard, and Robert.——Richard lived here from the 10th of Henry VI. to the 24th of Edward IV. and left——John, his ſon and heir, ſucceeded by——William Weſton of this place, and of London, mercer, in 1513. By Margaret .... his wiſe he had four ſons; Richard; William; Thomas; John [father of Richard of Skrene's, in Roxwell.] [YY] and two daughters, Margaret, and Mary. To each of the Sons he gave 20 l. a year, and to the daughters 10 l. a-piece for their portions.——Richard Weſton, the eldeſt ſon, of Preſted-hall and Colcheſter, who dyed in 1541, had by Elizabeth .... his wife——John, who left his ſon and heir——Robert Weſton of Preſted-hall Eſq; [Y]. He dyed 6 June 1601, leaving two daughters, coheirs, Anne, aged nine years and three months, and Mary, five years and ten months (d). Dorothy, his widow, was married again to Thomas Fuller Gent. who, by virtue of the ſaid Robert's will, became guardian to the two daughters. But Mary ſeems to have dyed young: For Anne, the eldeſt, brought this eſtate in marriage to [Z]

Dean Tindall Eſq; ſon and heir of Sir John Tindall of Great Mapleſtead Kt. [See there an account of this Family.] By her he had ſeveral ſons and daughters. He was buried in Great Mapleſtead-church 25 April 1678, aged 92. His eldeſt ſon and heir——John Tindall Eſq; ſucceeding him, ſold this eſtate to ..... Owtram.

It belonged lately to Sir Francis St. John; and now to Sir John Bernard Bart. who hath married Sir Francis's daughter, Mary; and, in her right, hath Church-hall in Kelvedon, and other conſiderable eſtates in this county.

3. Chambers is the next maner in this pariſh. The Houſe ſtands by the road, not far from the Church.

We find very little account of its owners, only that it was for a while, in the Bettenſon family, who had alſo an eſtate at Layer de la Hay. [See under that pariſh.]——Richard Betenſon Eſq;

[Y] He held this maner of Preſted-hall with appertenances, and divers lands, tenements, and hereditaments in Feringe, Meſſinge, and Inworth, alias Inford, belonging to the ſaid maner, holden of the Earl of Oxford as of his maner of Hedingham-caſtle, by fealty only; valued then at 5 l. per ann.—Alſo other lands called Samons or Machons or Rawlins, and Batalles, Amis or Avis crofts, Wigbands, or Savers Lee. who dyed 12 July 1624, held this maner (e). [A]——— Richard his Son and heir, then aged upwards of 21, and afterwards knighted, held it in 1634.

It is now in Lady Philipſon.

4. HOWCHINS, alias Fowchins.

The Houſe ſtands a little way from the road leading from Marks-Tay to Coggeſhall. The lands lie partly in the adjoining pariſhes of Little Tay, and Great Tay.

It appears to have been what anciently belonged to Hugh de Feringe, who took his ſurname from this pariſh. In the year 1332, he and Alianore his wife gave it to St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter; it being then deſcribed, to be one toft, a hundred and twenty two acres of arable, four acres of wood, and 31 s. rent, in Feryngge, Great and Little Teye, Kelleneden, and Inneworth: Whereof, the toft, 66 acres of arable, 4 acr. of wood, and 12 s. of the rent, were holden of the Prior and Convent of H. Trinity, London, under John Fitzwater, who held them of the King: And 24 acr. of arable were holden of the ſame John, as the other [B]. And 16 acr. of the arable were holden of the Earl of Oxford, who held them of the King. The reſt were holden of the aforeſaid Abbey (f). At the diſſolution they came to the Crown.

On the 15th of June 1557, Qu. Mary I. granted, among other things, all that maner called Fowchings in Ferrynge, lately belonging to the monaſtery of St. John's in Colcheſter, to Auguſtin Thayer (g).

Afterwards it came into the Marſhall family. For William Marſhall, who dyed 10 June 1632, held this maner of Eaſt Greenwich, in free ſocage; it being then valued at 53 s. 4*d.* (h). [C] He left an only daughter, Margery, aged 12 years; which doth not appear to have inherited this eſtate. For, in 1634, it was poſſeſſed by ——— Henry Marſhall of Berkſhire Eſq;

For ſome time paſt it hath been in the Honywood-family of Markeſhall; and belongs now to Lieutenant-General Philip Honywood.

This maner hath a Court-Baron.

Mrs. Selly, of Colcheſter, hath an eſtate in this pariſh, upon which ſhe hath lately built a brick houſe.

Some lands called Domſheys, or Daunſeys, lye partly in this pariſh, and belong to Mr. Buxton of Coggeſhall, and others.

Richard de Rok of Weſtminſter had licenſe in 1353, to give 24 acr. of arable, in Fering, and Tey Godmar, or Little Tey, to the Abbey of Weſtminſter. And in 1392, John Thurſton, Tho. Alſton, and Simon Barton, had leave to give 1 meſſuage, 40 acres of arable, 4 acres of meadow, and 10 d. rent in Fering and Kelvedon to the ſame Abbey (i).

In the Survey of the Chantries, we find, that Thirty acres of arable land here, then lett for 46 s. 8 d. were given, to find a Child to School at Oxenford, who was to receive 40 s. . . . . . . and 6 s. 8 d. to the Vicar, for ſinging maſs once a week.

Item a Guild called Corpus-Chriſti guild, to which belonged a Tenement, with two acres of land named the Yeld-hall, worth by the yere 10 s.

On the right hand ſide of the ſtreet, going up to the Church from Coggeſhall, are Alms houſes for 4 dwellers, with yards to them, but no Endowment. 'Tis ſaid, that a field of 4 acres, behind them, now belonging to Chambers-hall, formerly belonged to them.

The chief number of Houſes in Fering, are at a place called Gore-pit, and Fering-hill; the reſt are diſperſed about the Pariſh.

The Land here is reckoned ſome of the beſt in this County; and the ſame good vein extends into the adjoining Pariſhes of the Tays, and of Coggeſhall, partly, &c.

The CHURCH, dedicated to All Saints, ſtands high and pleaſant. The body of the Church, and the Chancel, are tyled; but a north and ſouth iſle adjoining to the Church, are leaded. The ſouth wall, and the Porch, are of brick; and in the windows were pictured a ſhuttle and three feathers, with the letters H. P. which gave riſe to the vulgar tradition, That they were built by a weaver (k). At the Weſt end, there is a ſquare Tower of ſtone, containing 5 Bells.

This Church was given, with the maner, to Weſtminſter-abbey. It was originally a Rectory and Sine-cure; but, in Henry the Third's reign, a Vicarage was here ordained and endowed, in the patronage of the Rector or poſſeſſor of the Sine-cure. Afterwards the Rectory, or great tithes, were appropriated to the ſaid Abbey and Convent; and they remained patrons of the Vicarage till their ſuppreſſion: And then they were granted to the See of London, as hath been mentioned above.

4. PATESWIC, or PATTYSWICKE.

THIS little Pariſh doth not occur in Domeſday-book, it being then a Hamlet to Fering; as it hath been moſtly reckoned ſince; [for which reaſon we place it here:] though it is parted from it by the pariſh of Coggeſhall.

The Saxon word Ƿic, or wic, ſignifies, a village, caſtle, farm-houſe or dairy, &c. the true ſignification of which muſt be determined by the circumſtances and ſituation of the place. Paaꞇ, another Saxon word, is a Path; but how far applicable here, we cannot well decide. Norden derives the name from the family of the Pates in Edward the 2d's time; but, beſides that the name occurs long before the reign of Edward II. namely, in that of Henry III. and that the Pates do not appear to have ever had an eſtate here, therefore this derivation is plainly groundleſs.

As a member of Fering it belonged to Weſtminſter-abbey, till the diſſolution of Monaſteries.

What hath in the mean time occurred to us, concerning it, in records, is as follows:

Simon Betail, or Batail, in the 30th of K. Henry III. had free warren in Pateſwyke, Stiſtede, and Wyvenho (l), of which laſt he was lord. [See under Wivenhoo.]

In the 49th of the ſame king, Sir Theobald de Ferings had free-warren in Fering and Pateſwick (m).

In 1377, John Sewale of Coggeſhall Eſq; held here one meſſuage, and one carucate of land of the Abbot of Weſtminſter (n).

Under the ſaid Abbot, the chief part of this Pariſh ſeems to have been holden by the Hende family; particularly mentioned under Bradwell. Sir John Hende dyed 1 Aug. 1418, poſſeſſed of the maner of Pycotes, and other lands in this pariſh, as may be ſeen above under Bradwell (o).

This maner of Pycotes is a cuſtomary Maner, holden by copy of Court-roll of the maner of Fering. ——— John Hende Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, dyed in 1461, and left an only daughter, wife of

Walter Writtel Eſq; who, in her right, inherited this and other great eſtates. His ſon ——— John dying under age, they devolved to his kinſman

John Baſſet; whoſe ſon ——— Gregory dyed poſſeſſed of them 30 Novemb. 1528. Some of the lands they had in Pateſwick, Bocking, and Creſſing, &c. are ſaid in the inquiſition to have been holden of the Earl of Eſſex, and others of the Prior of St. John's in Jeruſalem. [See more particularly above, p. 156, note A] (p).

When K. Henry VIII. converted Weſtminſter Abbey into a Biſhopric, he endowed it, among other things, with the maners of Fering, Pateſwicke, Kelvedon, and Fanton &c. (q).

Upon the diſſolution of that Biſhopric, they were granted, 12 April 1550, to Nicholas Ridley Biſhop of London, in free and perpetual alms (r); and confirmed, 3 March 1554, with Fering, &c. to Edmund Bonner Biſhop of London, and his Succeſſors for ever (s).

The ſubordinate maner of Patteſwick, or Pycotes, took the name of Pycotts, or Pigots, from its ancient owners [D]. Edward Fabyan Eſq; who dyed 4 Febr. 1561, held of the maner of Stiſted, 130 acres of arable, part of the maner of Pigotts; and a parcel of land called Blacklayne: and the maner of Pigotts, with divers meſſuages, lands, and tenements thereunto belonging, in Pigotts Pateſwike, Ferynge, and Coggeſhall. He held alſo ſome lands and tenements in Pateſwike of the Biſhop of London. His ſon—William Fabyan was then aged 16 years (t). [See under Jenkins in Styſtead.]

In part of the reigns of Qu. Elizabeth and K. James I. Sir Edmund Huddleſton Kt. held the maner of Piggots, and lands belonging thereto in Patteſwicke, of the maner of Patteſwicke, by fealty and a rent of 27 s. 4 d. He had alſo Overhall; Clavering-park, lawn, and wood, in this county: the maners of Stocken-Pelham, and Sawſtons or Pyratts, and the lordſhip of Dale, in Hertfordſhire: the maners of Whittlesford, Great Wilbraham, and Bartlow-hall, in Cambridgſhire: the maner of Huntingtons &c.——Henry, his ſon and heir, was then aged upwards of 34 years (u). This Henry, jointly with his Son Sir Robert Huddleſton Kt. ſells, in 1623, this eſtate to

John Darcy Eſq; Serjeant at law. By will it came to——Sir Thomas Darcy Bart. of Brackſtead-hall [where ſee an account of him, p. 139.] His ſon . . . Sir George Darcy dying unmarried, it devolved to his three ſiſters and co-heirs, viz. Frances married to Sir William Dawes Bart. afterwards Archbiſhop of York; Mary to Richard, or Thomas, Boteler Eſq; and Elizabeth to William Pierpont Eſq; Theſe three co-heirs ſold it, in 1703, to Herman Olmius Eſq; [mentioned above under Bromfield, Great Waltham, Little Lees &c.] and he, in 1704, gave it to his ſon . . . . John Olmius Eſq; grand-father of Lord Waltham of New-Hall.

Beſides this eſtate, there are ſome others, as namely,—Harvies belonging to . . . . Mr. Geo. Baker of Colcheſter.

A conſiderable part of Holfield-grange eſtate, Oſg. Hanbury's Eſq; — of Wood-houſe farm, W. Mayhew's Gent. lie in this pariſh. Part of Stanſtead lordſhip, and parcels of other adjoining eſtates extend alſo here; ſo that the Pariſh is rated to the Land-tax at 608 l. 5 s.

The capital meſſuage, called Patſwick-hall, had formerly a large Park belonging to it, but now diſparked.

The CHURCH ſtands on a very pleaſant green. It is of one pace with the chancel, both tyled: And at the weſt end there is a ſpire, ſhingled, containing one Bell.

As this village was originally a hamlet to Fering, ſo was this Church anciently a Chapel of eaſe to that Church: And the time of its foundation was about the beginning of K. Edward Iſt's reign. At firſt they had no right to bury in their Church-yard; but they obtained permiſſion ſo to do July 1313, on account of their great diſtance from the mother church (w). The patronage of both continued in Weſtminſter-abbey, till its diſſolution: And then was granted to Bp. Thirlby. Afterwards the Advowſon of this Church, or Chapel (x), was given to N. Ridley, and Edmund Bonner, with the maners and rectories of Fering &c. This valuable Donative, or perpetual Curacy, hath continued ever ſince, in the patronage and collation of the Biſhops of London [E].

By the copy of a deed between Richard Abbot, and the Convent of Weſtminſter on one part; and William of Fering, Simon Batail, Robert Pigott, Ranerd of Styſted &c. of the other part; it appears, that the name and family of Pigott was here in K. Henry the Third's reign. The Deed is without date, as was very common in thoſe early times.

5. INWORTH.

THIS pariſh comes up to the London road, near Fering-hill, and extends on the other ſide to Tiptre-heath, where it hath Common of Paſture, as is ſhewn above, p. 141, 142.

From whence the name is formed, doth not ſo plainly appear. The Saxon word Inne, ſignifies, as well as the preſent Engliſh, an Inn: But, worth, ƿoꞃði, and ƿoꞃðiᵹe, admit of theſe various ſignifications; a way through a water or river; a manſion, or dwelling houſe; a farm, or field; and in general a manor, or eſtate (y).

The name is written theſe various ways in records, Ineworth, Inneworth, Inneworde, and Inford.

There are two Manors, or reputed manors in this pariſh; namely, 1. The manor of Inworth. 2.—that of Chedingſell, or Chiddingſwell.

To whom theſe belonged in the earlieſt times we can give no account; for the place is not mentioned in Domeſday-book.

1. The manor of INWORTH.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about a quarter of a mile from the church.

It was part of the revenues of the Nunnery of Helenſtow, Elnſtowe, Alneſtowe, or Elſtow, in Bedfordſhire, founded by Judith, niece to William the Conqueror, and wife of Waltheof Earl of Huntingdon, to the honor of the Holy Trinity, St. Mary, and St. Helen (z).

When and by whom this eſtate was given to that nunnery, doth not appear. But they were poſſeſſed of it in the beginning of K. Edward the IIId's reign. For Sir John Fylol, who dyed in 1332, held, among other things, 70 acres of arable, 6 acres of meadow, and 2 of wood, in Inneworth and Great Braxted, of the Abbeſs of Elneſtowe, by the ſervice of 18 d. a year (a). It continued in that houſe till their ſuppreſſion.

John Bond, and J. Barnaby, preſented to the Living 1557 (b).

This eſtate belonged lately to Antony Carew, then to Will. Carew Eſq; and now to his four coheireſſes, one of whom is married to —Henry Racket, Gent. (*).

2. The manor of CHEDINGSWELL, otherwiſe Chedingſell; Cuddingſwell, vulgarly Chiſwell, or Chiſwic-grange; and Tuttewick; was part of the Revenues of Coggeſhall-abbey. [F] The houſe ſtands about a mile from the church.

At the time of the Suppreſſion they were lett to John Paſcall at 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. a year (c).

In 1538 K. Henry VIII. granted them to Sir Thomas Seymour (d); who, 12 May 1541, exchanged them again with the King. [See above under Coggeſhall.] And they were granted by that Prince, in 1543, to Robert Riche Eſq; [younger brother to Sir Richard, afterwards Lord Riche, and Chancellor of England.] He dying 1 June 1558 (e), left by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of ... Colvill Eſq;——Elizabeth, his only daughter, married to Robert Burgen, or Burgoine Eſq; but had no iſſue by him. She dyed 22 Janu. 1561, being a widow, and poſſeſſed of the maner of Chyddingſell, and two Granges called Chyddingſell and Tutwicke, with lands and tenements thereto belonging; and a wood, and lands, called Grange-wood, containing 26 acres; in Inworth, otherwiſe Inforde, Meſſing, Great Braxted, and Tolleſhunt-Tregooſe. She was ſucceeded by the next heir,——Richard Lord Riche, then aged 67 years (f). He dyed 12 June 1566, holding the premiſſes of the Queen in capite: and had for ſucceſſor his ſon——Robert, at that time upwards of 30 years of age. He was created Earl of Warwick 6 Auguſt 1618, and dyed 24 March 1619, ſeized of this eſtate: wherein he was ſucceeded by his noble deſcendants.—Robert, Earl of Warwick, who dyed 19 April 1658.—Robert, Earl of Warwick, who dying 19 May 1659, was ſucceeded by—Charles, his next brother, Earl of Warwick, that departed this life 24 Auguſt 1673. [See above under Little Lees.] He leaving no iſſue, the great eſtate of this family was divided among the co-heirs, as may be ſeen above p. 76. 84. 102. and this, among others, became the purparty of Sir Henry St. John.

It was lately in Sir Francis St. John Bart. and belongs now to

The following Eſtates alſo are ſaid, in records, to extend into, or be partly in, this pariſh.

The manors of Tiptre, Kelvedon, or Eaſterford-hall, and Coggeſhall (g). Part of the lands given by Hugh de Fering to St. John's Abbey (h). Part of the tenement called Gutters and Suttons (i).

Ewell-More in Inford belonged to John Lord Marnye, in 1525 (k).

And the Abbot of Coggeſhall had here 7 acres and 1 rood of heath, and half an acre of wood, 41 Hen. III. (l).

In the 13th of Edw. II. John de Coggeſhall held 3 meſſuages and 20 acres of arable in Meſſing and Inworth of John de Kelvedon (m).

The CHURCH and Chancel are of one pace, tyled. It had formerly a ſteeple, which in Mr. Symonds's time was fallen down (n): At preſent it hath only a little wooden turret, containing one Bell.

This Rectory, as appendent to the Manor, belonged to the Nunnery of Elnſtowe [G] abovementioned; and the patronage of it continued in them, till their ſuppreſſion, when it came to the Crown (o). On the 24th of July 1557, K. Philip and Qu. Mary granted the Advowſon of this church to William Riggs, and others (p). From them it paſſed to ſeveral other patrons; and hath been of late moſtly in the Angier family. There belongs to this living a Glebe of about 57 acres.

6. MESSING, is written in records theſe different ways; Meſſinges, Maſinges, Meſſanges, Meſcinge, Meſcinges, Methings, Metcinges, Metchinges, Metzcinges &c.

The name is formed from theſe Saxon words, Meꞅa, a Cow, or Meꞅꞇ, largeſt, biggeſt, and Inꝣ, meadow or paſture; ſignifying Cow-meadow, or the biggeſt paſture.

In the reign of Edward the Confeſſor, this Pariſh was in two parcels; one belonging to Ormar, a free-man: and the other to a free-woman. At the time of the general ſurvey, the former was holden by Roger de Ramis, [called afterwards Raine,] and Ralph Baynard, whoſe undertenant was one Bernard [H].

Roger de Ramis, Lord of the chief part of this pariſh, was one of thoſe Adventurers who came in with William the Conqueror; and was rewarded with ſeveral manors in this County, which were erected into a Barony, called the Barony of Raines, conſiſting of ten knights-fees, whereof the maner of Old-hall in Little Rayne was the head. [See under Little Rayne.]

There are in this pariſh the following Maners, or reputed maners. 1. The maner of Meſſing, and Baynards. 2. . . . . that of Harberts, or Hardburghs. 3. The maner of Bourchiers-hall.

1. The maner of MESSING.

Meſſing-hall, otherwiſe Baynards, and Baynard-caſtle, ſtands about a quarter of a mile from the Church, rather low as to its ſituation: but hath been for many years inhabited by perſons of worth and good ſubſtance:

Anſchetil is mentioned in Domeſday-book; and moſt probably a deſcendent of his, named Anketill de Metings, in K. Henry the ſecond's reign, held here three knights fees of Robert de Raines. [I] In the reign of K. John, Roger de Meſtings held a knight's fee here . . . . At the ſame time, Alberic [de Vere] Earl of Oxford, held the ſixth part of a knight's fee in Meſtings (q). His poſterity got afterwards this whole maner of Meſſing in exchange for lands in Beauchamp-Walter; and —Hugh de Vere, Earl of Oxford, held it, in 1263, of the King in ca. as of the fee of Roger de Meſſing.—Robert de Vere, his ſon, ſucceeded him (r). [G] By an old Deed, in the time of K. Henry II. we learn, that William ſurnamed Fillol, and his wife Emma, gave their church of Inneworde to the church of St. Mary of Wykes, and the Nuns there, in perpetual alms: but it ſeems to have taken no effect. However, we learn thus much from it, That, at that time, this Church, and very probably the Manor to which it was appendant, belonged to the Filiol-family of Kelvedon; and that ſome of them gave it to the Nunnery of Elnſtowe.

[I] K. Henry III. granted to Hugh ſon of Anketill de Meſcinge, all the land which he held of the Barony of Reynes, in the villages of Meſſanges, Birche, Badowe, and other places, and what he and his heirs ſhould afterwards purchaſe, with ample privileges, and liberty of hunting in all the foreſts of England. Charta de Foreſta de Eſſex.

of Oxford, in the 1ſt of Edward II. paſſed this maner by fine, for the ſum of 20 l. ſterling, to John de Prayers (s), a family mentioned under Hedingham Sible.

It paſſed afterwards into the Baynard Family, of which we ſhall preſently give an account.

2. The maner of HARBERTS, alias HARDBURGHS, or Harburghte, was originally a diſtinct maner, but ſoon went along with the maner of Meſſing.

The houſe is about a quarter of a mile from the Church. It took its name from a family ſurnamed de Hardburgh.

In the reign of K. Henry II. Anketill de Methings complained, that Roger de Hardburgh held the greateſt part of Methings of his demeſne, but he did not know of whom, nor by what right. —In K. John's reign, Hugh de Herdebergh held land in Meſtings, and free marriage, of the gift of Robert de Rames (t).

In 1473, Richard Baynard, who had the maner of Meſſing, held alſo the maner of Hardburghs, of the King, as of his honor of Reymes, by the ſervice of half a knights-fee (u). Since which time we do not find it mentioned as a diſtinct maner; but in the ſame hands as that of Meſſing.

We proceed now to give an account of the Baynards, Lords of theſe Maners.

Thomas Baynard was living in the year 1200. [See ſome account of this family under Old-hall in Rayne.] Imania Baynard, who dyed in the 56th of Henry III. held here of the King in ca. by the ſervice of one knight's fee, a capital meſſuage, 180 acres of arable, 5 acr. of meadow, 3 of paſture, 8 of wood, and 26 s. 8 d. rent of aſſize: There belonged to it three cuſtomary tenents, pleas and perquiſites of court, and view of frank pledge (x). Her children were, Reginald, Roger, Richard; and Alice. The firſt dying young—Roger became heir to this eſtate. At the time of his deceaſe, 23 Edw. I. he held of the King, as above, in Meſſing, 1 meſſ. 240 acres of arable, 13 of meadow, 46 of paſture, 60 of heath, 15 of wood, 4 l. 5 s. ob. rent. He had alſo the maner of Old-hall in Rayne, and a conſiderable eſtate at Little Maldon (y). But having no iſſue, he was ſucceeded by his nephew —Thomas, ſon of his brother Richard (z). He held in this pariſh, one meſſuage, 208 acres of arable, 12 acr. and a half of meadow, 59 acres of paſture, 27 acr. of wood, 100 acres of heath, 4 l. 5 s. rent, and a rent of ten hens, of the king, in ca. as of the Honor of Reynes, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee [K]. He died in 1344, as did Joane his wife, who had this eſtate for her life, in 1349.—John their ſon (a), moſt probably dyed without iſſue. For, in 1375, —Thomas Baynard, who then departed this life, Octob. 8. held jointly with Katharine his wife, the MANER of Meſſing of the King, as of the Honor of Reynes, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee (b). [Whether this Katharine brought it by marriage into the Baynard-family, we are not able to determine after the moſt diligent ſearch: But this is the firſt time the Maner of Meſſing is mentioned in the Inquiſitions, as a Maner, belonging to the Baynard-family.]—Richard Baynard, their ſon and heir, had two wives. The ſecond was Grace, daughter of John Burgoyne, of Drayton in Cambridgeſhire, Eſq; widow of John Peyton, of Eaſtthorp, adjoining. [See under that pariſh.] He dyed 12 Hen. VI. 1433, or 1434, as ſhe did five years after, both poſſeſſed of this eſtate; and his iſſue by her was, Richard (c); Lewis; Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Bray, and Margery wife of Thomas Knyvett.——Richard Baynard, Eſq; the eldeſt ſon and heir, born in 1426 (d), ſucceeded his father in this eſtate. He died in 1473, poſſeſſed not only of the maner of Meſſing, but alſo of that of Hardburgh's above-mentioned; both holden of the Honor of Reymes: and of two meſſuages, 100 acres of arable, and 3 of meadow, called Suttons and Gotterys or Gutters, in this pariſh Inworth and Fering, holden of the Abbot of Weſtminſter: and of the maner of Birche-hall and Birche-caſtle: and of the maner of Knybſo, alias Baynards, in Mayland (e). By his wife, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Knivett, he had two children, Richard, who dyed very young, and,

Grace, who became his ſole heir [L]; and was married before his deceaſe to Thomas Langley. She took to her ſecond huſband Edward Daniel, Eſq; ſon of Sir Thomas Daniel, Baron of Rothware, in Ireland, and Lord Deputy there under K. Edward IV. by Margaret his wife, ſiſter to John Howard Duke of Norfolk [M]. The ſaid Grace, by this her 2d huſband had three ſons, Edward; John; and Thomas: and four daughters, Jane married to Sir John Jermyn, of Metisfield in Suffolk; Margaret to Green, of Witham in Eſſex; Elizabeth Abbeſs of Multym; and Catherine. She dyed 2 Janu. 1508, poſſeſſed of the ſame eſtates as her father; and alſo of ſome lands and tenements in Copford, holden of Sir Henry Tey.—John Daniel, Eſq; her ſecond ſon, is ſaid to be her heir (f); the eldeſt being either dead, or ſettled at Bulmer, or Acton-hall in Suffolk. Beſides the maners of Meſſing, Hardeburgh, Birche-hall and caſtle, and Knibſoe in Mayland;—he had ſeveral other eſtates, ſpecified below [N]. He dyed 5 September 1556, and his ſon —Edmund, then aged 44, ſucceeded him. He dyed 16 Decemb. 1570, and had for ſucceſſor his ſon —John, aged ſeventeen years (g).

His ſucceſſors were—Edmund, and—John Daniel, of Meſſing, Eſqrs. The later married Hawiſia, daughter of . . . Tyrell, of . . . . and had by her two daughters; whereof Urſula was married 1ſt to William Wiſeman of Great Badow Eſq; ſon of George Wiſeman of Upminſter Eſq; and had by him William, and John. Her ſecond huſband was George Aylett of Great Coggeſhall Gent. [O].

About the beginning of K. James the firſt's reign, by purchaſe, or otherwiſe, this eſtate was in the Chibborne family. For Chriſtopher Chibborne Eſq; dyed 7 April 1606, poſſeſſed of the maner of Meſſing called Baynards and Harbroughs. He was thrice married. His firſt wife was Elizabeth daughter of Edward Laurence of Eaſt Tilbury in this county, by which he had Sir Charles, his eldeſt ſon and heir; and Alexander that dyed young. The 2d wife was . . . daughter of Maxey, of Bradwell-hall, Eſq; who brought him two children, George, and Suſan wife of Robert Fulmer. His 3d wife was Joane, daughter of Tho. Spilman of Great Chart in Kent.—Charles Chibborne Eſq; knighted afterwards [P], ſucceeded his father in his valuable eſtate, being almoſt this whole pariſh; namely, the maner of Meſſinge-Baynards, alias Meſſing-hall; the maner of Harborough or Herdboroughs, with lands called Turners; the maner of Bowſers-hall; fifty acres, part of the New-park-farm, and Weadowes land; the New-park, alias Palmers, and 120 acres of arable; Howfield-houſe, with 36 acres of paſture, and 16 of meadow; the farm called Rockinghams, &c. with their ſeveral demeſnes and appertenances; and alſo the Rectory, or impropriate Tithes of this pariſh (h). His firſt wife, was Anne daughter of Thomas Spilman, of Great Chart aforeſaid, by which he had his ſon Hanameel: and 3 daughters; Anne that dyed ſingle; Frances wife of Thomas Engham Eſq; Elizabeth married to Richard Juxon of Canterbury. His ſecond wife was Winifred, daughter of Robert Wiſeman of Mayland in this county: And by her he had, John, that dyed young; Winifred; and Mary, wife of Edward Piter of Norwich. Sir Charles dyed 14 Novemb. 1619, and was ſucceeded by his ſon—Hanameel Chibborne Eſq; then aged 15 years and 5 months and upwards (i). He married Mary daughter of George Newman, of Canterbury and of Newman-hall in Quendon, and had iſſue, George, born in 1625; Charles; Cibella, that dyed young; Hanameel (k) [Q].

Soon after the Reſtoration, we find it in the Luckyn family mentioned above under Great Badow, and Little Waltham, p. 19, and 91 . . . Sir William Luckyn of this laſt pariſh, born in 1594, and created a Baronet 2 March 1628, took for his firſt wife Mildred, daughter of Sir Gamaliel Capel, of Rookwood-hall in Abbeſs-Rothing, by which he had Capel, born in 1621, William, Jane, and Elizabeth.—Sir Capel Luckyn Knt. and Bart. the eldeſt ſon, ſettled at Meſſing-hall. He married Mary, eldeſt daughter of Sir Harbottle Grimſton of Gorhambury, Maſter of the Rolls; and by her, who dyed 18 March 1718, in the 86th year of her age, had ſix ſons and ſeven daughters. William, born in 1650. George; Harbottle, born in 1657. William, in 1658. Grimſton, in 1662. Capel, in 1672. The daughters were, Mary; Anne, born in 1651. Mary; Mildred, born in 1660, married firſt to Thomas Smyth, of Smyths-hall, in Blackmore, Eſq; ſecondly to Daviſon Browning of London, linnen-draper; Mary, born in 1665. Sarah, born in 1668. Sarah, married twice, firſt to Richard Saltonſtall of South-Okingdon, Eſq; and had iſſue Richard; ſecondly to Dacre Barret Eſq; of Belhouſe, whoſe third wife ſhe was. —— Sir William Luckyn, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, ſucceeded his father, and marrying Mary, daughter of William Sherington Eſq; of Hamſhire, Alderman of London, had by her 10 ſons, and 5 daughters. Harbottle; William; Capel, attorney at law; Henry; Charles, of Merton-college in Oxford, Rector of Pebmarſh, and Vicar of Meſſing; Edward; Samuel; George; William; Sherington; and James. The daughters were, Mary, wife of Richard Triſtram, Clerk, Vicar of Fering, and Rector of Wakes-Colne; Elizabeth, married to the Rev. Mr. Parſons, Rector of Beningham, and Hampnel in Norfolk; Sarah, to Mr. Joſeph Hucks, brewer in London; Mildred, and Martha dyed unmarried. William, the ſecond ſon, being adopted by his Uncle Sir Samuel Grimſton, changed his name to that of Grimſton, and was created 3 June 1719, Viſcount Grimſton and Baron of Dunboyne in Ireland.—Sir Harbottle, the eldeſt ſon, was cup bearer to Qu. Anne, and K. George I. and dyed unmarried 4 Febr. 1736-7. The reſt of the ſons dying alſo unmarried, or without iſſue [R], this eſtate was given to

The Hon. Harbottle Grimſton Eſq; brother to the Lord Viſcount Grimſton, who hath taken the name of Luckyn.

Edward Luckyn Eſq; built and endowed an Alms-houſe here, conſiſting of four dwellings.

Here is a Fair on the firſt Tueſday in July.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel; at the weſt end, there is a Tower, containing 5 Bells.

The Chancel is curiouſly paved with black and white marble; and the Eaſt window over the communion table is adorned with painted glaſs, in beautiful and lively colours, repreſenting Faith, Hope, and Charity; and what are called the Works of Mercy, namely, Feeding the Hungry; Giving Drink to the Thirſty, &c.

It is not known from whence that valuable Glaſs was procured; but it is ſaid to have been put up there by Chriſtopher, or Sir Charles, Chibborne; who alſo cauſed the Church to be otherwiſe greatly ornamented, and the ſides of the pews to be neatly carved.

In the north wall of the Church, under an arch, lies the effigies, in wood, of an armed Knight. Tradition reports, that He was the founder of this Church; and we find him called Sir William de Meſſing. There was an inſcription over him, which is now decayed. He is croſs-legg'd, which ſhews that he was a Knight-Templer; or at leaſt concerned in the Croiſades, which were ſo much in vogue in the twelfth century.

Both Church and Church-yard ſtand pleaſantly, and this is a neat village. Part of the Parſonage-houſe was new-built by the late Vicar, Mr. J. Boys.

This Church was given by Aubrey de Vere Earl of Oxford, to the Priory of Colne [T], to which the great Tithes were appropriated, and a Vicarage ordain'd, as may be ſeen in Mr. Newcourt (t). Upon the diſſolution of monaſteries, K. Henry VIII. in the 28th of his reign, gave the Rectory, or impropriate Tithes, and Advowſon of the Vicarage here, to John de Vere Earl of Oxford (u), a deſcendant from the original grantor. His grandſon, Edward Earl of Oxford ſold them to Chriſtopher Chibborne Eſq; and from him they have paſſed to the Luckyn and Grimſton families.

The Vicarage hath a Glebe of between 30 and 40 acres.

7. EAST-THORP.

THE two Saxon words Eaꞅꞇ Ðoꞃp, ſignify the Eaſtern Village, which this is with regard to Fering and Kelvedon: and in which view it was conſidered by thoſe who gave it the name.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign this Pariſh belonged to Edric a freeman; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, was holden by Euſtace Earl of Bologne, and one Hugh was his under-tenant [V].

From Euſtace Earl of Bologne, this maner came to be holden of the Honor of Bologne; and in K. Stephen's reign, was veſted in the crown. In the earlieſt times after that, it belonged, with Birch, to Roger and William, de Plane (w).

William Blund, of London, held it of this latter: and obtained this ſingular privilege of K. John; for him and his men, or tenants of Birch and Eſthorp, to be exempt of ſuits of Shires and Hundreds, and aids to Sheriffs and their bailiffs, and all pleas and plaints belonging to them; and ſafely to trade throughout the King's Dominions, paying the proper cuſtoms, for their merchandizes [W]. By the ſame William it was granted 12 Hen. III. to a branch of the Gernon-family [X], deſcended from Robert Gernon, that held at the general Survey many Lordſhips in this county; the head of whoſe Barony was Stanſtead Montfichet, [where ſee an account of him and his poſterity.] In 1211. it was certified into the Exchequer, that Ralph Gernon held three knights-fees in Eſthorpe and Brithe during the King's pleaſure (x); then reckoned worth 30*l.* a year. And they are ſaid to have been ſome of the lands belonging to the Normans: which obſervation implies, that they became forfeited, when Normandy was wreſted out of K. John's hands by Philip King of France.—— William Gernon held the ſame three knights fees, in 43d Hen. III. of the king in ca. by the ſervice of 3 knights, then valued at 20*l.* a year. He had alſo the Hundred of Lexden (y), as is obſerved above.—— Sir Ralph his ſon was likewiſe poſſeſſed of this maner, and the advowſon of the Church, at the time of his deceaſe in 1274 (z). And ſo was his ſon —— Sir William, in 1327 (a) [Y] whoſe ſon—Sir John Gernon, made, in 1332, a grant of the maner of Eſthorp to his ſon, — John and Alice his wife (b): This Alice was daughter, and at length became ſole heir, to Sir Roger Colville of Bytham in Lincolnſhire, upon the death of his great-grandſon (c). The laſt mentioned John Gernon was a knight as well as his father, and dyed 7 Richard II. having had by his wife Alice two daughters, 1. Joane, wife of John ſon to the Lord Botetourt, which Joane was dead before her father, and had left an only daughter Joane then married to Sir Robert Swynborne. 2. Margaret, the other daughter of Sir John Gernon, was married to Sir John Peyton (d), of Peyton-hall in Boxford, a branch of the noble family of the Uffords Earls of Suffolk. Upon the partition of Gernon's inheritance, this eſtate came to the ſhare of J. Peyton in right of his wife [Z]. The time of his death does not occur to us; but his wife Margaret dyed in 1414, holding this maner, and the advowſon of the Church, of the King in ca. by the ſervice of three knights fees: and the Hundred of Lexden (e). John their ſon dyed, in 1403 or 1404, before his mother; and lies buried in the Church of Stoke-Neyland, near his father. He had married Joane daughter and heir of Sir Hamon Sutton of Wickſhoo in Suffolk, by whom he had, John, Thomas, and Margaret (f).—John Peyton Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, born in 1393, ſucceeded his grandmother Margaret (g). He dyed in 1417, in the flower of his age; leaving, by Grace his wife, daughter of John Burgoyne of Drayton in Cambridgeſhire, Eſq; John aged 3 years (h), and Thomas, and Anne. His widow was married again to Richard Baynard of Meſſing; as may be ſeen under that pariſh—John, the eldeſt ſon, dyed 21 Octob. 1432, without iſſue, and was ſucceeded by his brother —Thomas, ſheriff of the counties of Cambridge and Huntingdon 21 and 31 Hen. VI. (i); who dyed in 1484. By Margaret his

Calthorpe of Norfolk Eſq; Thomas, Robert, John, Edward, and ſeveral daughters.—Thomas, the eldeſt ſon and heir, holding this eſtate of John Burgoine ſon of Thomas, dyed 1 Auguſt 1490, without iſſue.—Sir Robert Peyton his next brother ſucceeded him (k). He was of Iſelham; Sheriff of Cambridge and Huntingdon Shires 14 Hen. VII. and held not only this maner, but alſo ſeveral lands and tenements in Eſthorp, Great and Little Birch, Meſſing, and Copford; and the Hundred of Lexden [A]. Dying 17 March 1517, he left, by Elizabeth his wife daughter of Sir Robert St. Clere of Ormeſby in Norfolk,—Robert his ſon and heir then aged 20 years (l). He was Sheriff of the Counties aforeſaid 17. 27 Henry VIII. and 1ſt of Qu. Mary (m). By Frances daughter and heir of Francis Haſilden of Little Cheſterford Eſq; he had his ſon and heir—Robert Peyton Eſq; who obtained licenſe, 1 Octob. 1536, to alienate this maner, and the Hundred of Lexden, to

Sir Thomas Audeley, Lord Chancellor of England. And he, 28 Decemb. following, conveyed them to

Richard Greſham Eſq; who, by licenſe dated 4 July 1537, conveyed them back to Sir Thomas Audeley. By licenſe dated 21 Octob. 1542, Sir Thomas ſold to Robert Forſter, and George his ſon, the maner of Eſthorpe with appertenances, and the advowſon of the Rectory, and 6 meſſuages, 2 dovehouſes, 1 mill, 300 acres of arable, 200 of meadow, 300 of paſture, 100 of wood, and 5 l. rent in Eſthorpe, and Great and Little Birch; and 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* iſſuing out of the Rectory of Birch (n).—George Forſter Eſq; dyed 4 Novemb. 1555, holding of the Queen in ca. this maner, with all the lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, and hereditaments thereunto belonging; and a penſion of 3*l.* 8*s.* and the advowſon of the Rectory: Mary and Joane were his two daughters and coheirs [o]. They were married to . . . Waldegrave, and . . . . Springe.

For, 6 May 1564, Robert Waldgrave had licenſe to ſell a moiety of this maner to Henry Golding Eſq; And, 20 May 1570, Robert Springe, and Joane his wife, obtained leave to ſell another moiety of this manner, and of the advowſon of the Church, to John Bacon, who had leave, 7 Octob. 1576, to convey it to

Henry Golding Eſq; (p) who by this means became poſſeſſed of the whole. He dyed 6 Decemb. 1576, ſeized not only of this maner, but alſo of Oldholt tenement, and ſeveral lands and tenements in Birch and Meſſing.—Arthur his brother and next heir, then aged 40, ſucceeded him (q). On the 20th of Novemb. 1577, he procured a licenſe to alienate this whole eſtate to

Richard Atkins Gent. and Elianore his wife (r). And this Richard, 11 Febr. 1592-3, alienated them again to

George Kingſmill Eſq; a ſon, or deſcendent, of John Kingſmill Eſq; Sheriff of Hamſhire in 1543 (s). He was knighted 23 July 1603 (t), and dyed 20 March 1605-6, poſſeſſed of this maner, and of that Burſes, or Bourchiers-hall in Meſſing: being ſucceeded by his couſin and heir —Sir William Kingſmill (u) of Sidmanton in the county of Southampton, who had been knighted 11 May 1603 (w). His third ſon — George Kingeſmyll Eſq; reſided here, and married Anne daughter of Thomas Blagrave of Oxford Gent. who having ſurvived her huſband 24 years, dyed 18 September, 167 . . . . and was buried in the Chancel of this Church. Their daughter Margaret dying alſo here 25th June 1652, was buried in the chancel (x) [B].

Then it came into the Green-family . . . . Thomas Green Eſq; lord of this maner, dyed 11 Dec. 1698, aged 53, and lies buried in the church. —Anne Green, his widow, preſented to this living in 1703, and was intered 13 Febr. 1719 —Thomas Green Eſq; counſeller at law, their ſon, was buried 17 Octob. 1726, and dyed without iſſue.

His heir being incapable by law to inherit, this eſtate fell to the crown, and was regranted to his next relations; one of whom was married to Mr. John Baker, haberdaſher, near the Monument: It is now in his ſon—Mr. John Baker, diſtiller in London.

Eaſt-thorp-hall ſtands near the Church.

BADCOCKS, a capital meſſuage, and a farm of very good value, in this pariſh, belonged to the late Samuel Shepherd of Springfield Eſq; and now to his ſon, the Rev. George Shepherd of the ſame place, Rector of Markeſhall, and Vicar of Mundon.

It belonged formerly to the Tey-family, [mentioned under Merks-Tey.] and is ſometimes in records called a Maner.—Robert Tey of Copford Eſq; who dyed in 1473, is ſaid to hold the maners called Botinghams, Badcocks, Dorewards, and Tyehouſe, in Copford, Great and Little Birch, Eſthorp, Fering, and Tey-Mandeville; whereof Badcocks, and the two following, were holden of Richard Baynard.—His ſon William

BIRCH.

NEXT to Eaſt-thorp are theſe two contiguous Pariſhes, diſtinguiſhed from one another by the addition of Great and Little; Magna, & Parva.

The name would naturally lead us to think, that they were formerly covered with Birch trees: But they are, otherwiſe, written in Records Bricceia, Bricia, Brythe or Brithe, Briche, &c. probably from the Saxon words Bꞃic, or Bꞃicᵹ, a Bridge, from the Bridge over the little River here, now called Hickford-Bridge. And tho' this River, or Brook, is but inconſiderable; yet from circumſtances as inconſiderable have Places often taken their names.

8. GREAT BIRCH, was, in the Saxons time, in perſons named Edric, Ingelric, and Uluuin; and, when the general ſurvey was taken, in Euſtace Earl of Bologne, and Robert Gernon; and holden under them by Hugh . . . . and Robert [D]. From hence aroſe theſe two maners. 1. The maner of Great Birch, alias Birch-hall, with Birch-caſtle. 2. William a Birches.

1. The maner of Birch, or of Great and Little Birch, as uſually ſtyled in the Court rolls, went commonly along with that of Eaſt-thorp, in the earlieſt times; and both were holden of the Honor of Bologne.

In the reign of K. Richard I. they belonged to Roger Plane (b); and, in the beginning of K. John's reign, to William de Planes (c). They were next in William Blund, who, on the 12th of K. Henry III. granted them to Ralph Gernon, [as may be ſeen under Eaſt-thorp] He dyed in the beginning of K. Henry the IIId's reign, leaving—Ralph, who was one of the Juſtices itinerant, and dying in the 32d of the ſame reign, was ſucceeded by his ſon—Sir William Gernon, Marſhall of the king's houſhold. He married Beatrix, daughter of Henry de Theydon, and dyed 43 Hen. III. holding theſe manners of the king in ca. by the ſervice of three knights fees (d). His ſon and heir, — Sir Ralph, fortified his caſtle of Briche againſt K. Henry III. and was founder of Leghes Priory (e). He had two wives, 1. Elianore, daughter of Robert de Vere Earl of Oxford; by whom he had William; Richard, that married Sabina daughter of Simon Lyconhon, owner of Tolleſhunt-Tregoz, by which he had a daughter married to John Lanbrook: And two daughters, Alice wife of Robert Baynard, of Meſſing, and Margaret wife of Robert de Verley. 2. His ſecond wife was Hawiſia . . . . and by [illegible] he had two ſons; Robert and John, to whom before his deceaſe he gave the maner of Theydon Gernon. He dyed the 2d of Edw. I. (f).

[C] In the South wall of this Church, there is an arch, which ſeems to have been the burial-place of the founder, or ſome other eminent perſon: In the midſt of it, is a window in the form of a roſe; wherein are theſe arms. Argent, 3 piles in point gules.—Gules, a lion rampant argent:—Argent, on a chief indented gules, 3 martlets or. In the South window of the chancel are the remains of theſe Arms. Argent, 6 cheveronels ermines and gules.——And in the North window of the ſame was pictured an armed Knight, with a red croſs on his breaſt; lifted up under the arms by two Angels; his helmet taken off by another Angel. The marriage between Alice Gernon and Robert Baynard, ſeems to have brought this maner for a while into the Baynard family, at leaſt as tenents to the Gernons. For in the 23d of Edw. I. it was in Alice Baynard. In the 1ſt of Edw. II. in Tho. Baynard. In the 5th of Edw. III in Sir Tho. Baynard: In the 29th of the ſame king it was ſtyled Briche Baynard (g). And Tho. Baynard dyed 49 Ed. III. ſeized of the maners of Brichen-hall, and Le Caſtell, formerly Walter de Todenham's, which he held of John Sutton, by the ſervice of one ward-penny payable on Hokeday (h).

At the ſame time, it appears from unqueſtionable Records, that William Gernon was poſſeſſed of theſe eſtates at the time of his deceaſe in 1327, 1 Edw. III. (i). As was alſo his ſon and heir —— Sir John Gernon, a famous warrior in K. Edward IIId's armies in France: who dyed 7 Ric II. He left two daughters, coheirs; Joane married to John ſon of the Lord Botetourt, who had by him an only daughter, named alſo Joane, married to Sir Robert Swynborne: and —— Margaret (k).

The latter was married to Sir John Peyton; [ſeated afterwards at Eaſt-thorp, where a fuller account may be ſeen of him and his poſterity.] By him ſhe had —— John, who married, as may be ſeen under Eaſt-thorp, and had iſſue John, Thomas, and Margaret. John dyed in the flower of his age; leaving by Grace his wife, daughter of John Burgoine of Drayton in Cambridgeſhire — John aged 5 years; who dyed a minor, and without iſſue 29 Octob. 1432, and was ſucceeded by his brother — Thomas (l), who dyed in 1484. By Margaret his wife, [as may be ſeen under Eaſtthorpe] he had—Thomas, who, departing this life before him, left iſſue, by Joane, daughter of . . . . Calthorpe of Norfolk Eſq; four ſons, and ſeveral daughters. — Thomas the eldeſt ſon and heir, dyed 1 Aug. 1490, —— Robert, his next brother was his heir (m).

In the mean time, the Baynard family had remained intereſted in it. For Grace Baynard daughter and heir of Ric. Baynard Eſq; was Lady of the maner in K. Edward the IVth's reign. In 1480 ſhe was widow of . . . . Langley. And in 1482 wife of Edmund Danyell; who, that year, held his firſt court here, jointly with her, and in her right (n). [See more of this family under Meſſing.]

To return to the Peytons: Sir Robert Peyton of Iſelham, Sheriff of Cambridge and Huntington ſhires 14 Hen. VII. (o), was poſſeſſed of this eſtate. He dyed 17 March 1517, leaving his ſon — Robert, who was Sheriff of the Counties aforeſaid 17 and 27 of Henry VIII. and 1ſt of Qu. Mary (p). He married Frances daughter and heir of Francis Haſilden of Little Cheſterford Eſq; by which he had his ſon and heir —— Robert (q).

We find afterwards the moiety of the maner of Great Birch in Henry Golding Eſq; who dyed 6 Decemb. 1576, being ſucceeded by his brother Arthur. They had alſo Eaſt-thorp maner (r): But the latter ſold Eaſt-thorp to Ric. Atkins: and moſt probably Birch to Edward Ellyott Eſq; who occurs the next poſſeſſor, holding it of Ric. Kingſmyll Eſq; as of his maner of Eaſt-thorp. He dyed 26 Decemb. 1594. His ſon and heir —— Thomas Ellyott, then aged 22, was afterwards knighted (s).

From him by purchaſe or otherwiſe, this maner of Great Birch, alias Britch, and a parcel of arable land and wood called Bayles and Holgatts, paſſed to Mark Mott B. D. or D. D. moſt probably the ſame that was Rector of Raine in this County (t). He dyed 3 Janu. 1630, having a ſon named —— Henry, then 10 years and 9 months old. But this maner and eſtate he left by will to his three youngeſt daughters, who were poſſeſſed of it in 1635 (u).

Whether any of them was married to Thomas Kemp, Clerk, we cannot poſitively aſſert; but he was Lord of this manner ſoon after the Reſtoration, and in 1669 (w).

We find it afterwards in . . . . Aſton; and then in Jane . . . . wife of Henry Hene in 1708, remarried afterwards to Ralph Manſell, of London, razor-maker. Their only daughter and heir is married to Mr. Richard Whitfield, of St. Luke's, London.

They have alſo another eſtate in this pariſh: both about 150*l.* per ann.

The maner-houſe ſtands two miles, North-weſt from the Church; oppoſite to Gernons, otherwiſe called the White-houſe.

BIRCH-CASTLE,

Stands a little way South-eaſt from the Church; and is only a mount encompaſſed with a trench. Sir William Gernon had a caſtle here, as we have ſeen above: Whether this mount and trench are the remains of it, as the like mount and trench are, of the Caſtle or Seat of the High-Conſtables of England at Pleſhey, we cannot determine; unleſs it could be aſcertained by the foundations of ancient edifices, ſtill viſible. We take this Mount and Trench, to be rather a Part and Continuation of the ſtupendous Roman Works on Lexden-heath, which are eaſily traced to this place, and much further.

The maner-houſe of Birch-caſtle is now a mere cottage.

2. WILLIAM à BIRCHES.

The manſion ſtands about a mile from the Church, on the Weſt-ſide of the road leading to Layer-croſs. It took its name from a family ſurnamed De Birche, or Briche.

Robert de Briche, who dyed in 1342, held one meſſ'. 80 acres of arable, 2 of meadow, 3 of paſture, and 3 s. rent in Briche, of the King in ca. of his honor of Hugenet, in free ſocage, by the ſervice of one roſe at the feaſt of St. John Baptiſt ſuit at Hugenet court, and 10*s.* rent on the 28th of Auguſt for the ward of Dover-caſtle, —Nicolas, his brother, held the ſame, but in a little different manner; viz. of the King, in ca. of his Honor of Dover, by the ſervice of 10*s.* for caſtle-ward: And of the honor of Haggele, by the ſervice of the 4th part of a knight's fee, and ſuit at that court from month to month. And 13 acr. in Little Birch of St. John's Abbey, Colcheſter, by the ſervice of 3*s.* 4*d.* per ann. And 47 acr. of arable in Little Birche of Ralph de Tendringe. He dyed in 1369 (x).—John, his ſon, held the ſame, jointly with Anne his wife (y). And, likewiſe, a meſſ.' and 69 acres of arable, and 1 of meadow, in Briche, holden of Sir Robert Swynborne, and Sir John de Peyton, John Hynde, Sir Richard de Sutton, and Ralph de Tendringe. John dyed in 1414 (z), leaving Robert, and Richard: and Anne ſurvived till 1442, when ſhe was ſucceeded by—Richard, the other we ſuppoſe being dead. He departed this life in 1474, leaving ——— William his ſon and heir (a).

We find it next in the Tey-family. For William Tey, who dyed 8 June 1502, held this meſſuage, and 160 acres of arable, called, William à Birches, of the king, as above [¶].—Thomas, his ſon and heir, held the ſame, but called only 126 acres, at the time of his deceaſe, 20 April 1543, leaving his ſon —John Tey, aged upwards of 22 years (*). He dyed 29 May 1568, holding the maner called William à Birtches, with appertenances, of the Queen as of her caſtle of Dover—Thomas was his ſon and heir (b). Of William Tey Eſq; it was purchaſed in March 1573, by Humfrey Burton and William Sibthorpe, for the ſaid Humfrey and his heirs; being deſcribed to contain 40 acr. of arable, 30 of meadow, 240 of paſture, and 15 of wood in Great and Little Birch (c).—But Chriſtopher Sibthorpe Eſq; dyed 24 Janu. 1604-5, poſſeſſed of all the premiſſes; ſaid to lye in Great and Little Birch, Layer de la Hay, and Layer Breton: leaving only two Daughters, coheirs; Elizabeth, aged five years and two months; and Anne two years and nine months (d).

It belongs now to Col. Brown.

A conſiderable part of the eſtate of William Round Eſq; lies in this pariſh.—So doth alſo part of the land belonging to Botingham-hall; —and of Layer de la Hay park: beſides other parcels.

And here is alſo Hill-farm belonging to Hezekiah Haines Eſq;—Beldham's, or the Boarded-barn, and Holmer's, otherwiſe Hamond's, William Sturgeon's;—A farm late T. Luſkin's, now J. Clubb's clerk;—one belonging to Edm. Affleck Eſq; in right of his wife.—A large farm called Bullens and Shemens, belonging to Mr. Samuel Long, of Maldon, &c.

Within the bounds of Great and Little Birch maner, are likewiſe the following Eſtates.—Great Helions, Mr. William Beale's;—Little Helions, Sir John Shaw's;—Colefields, Capt. Burton's; —Bauds-barn, W. B. Brand's Eſq;—Otters and Comockers, Henry Hull's;—Hopſmale's, Ant. Weſtrop's;—Armigers, Dan. Harrington's.

Nicolas Walle, who dyed 6 Decemb. 1591, held of Qu. Elizabeth, by knights Service, a meſſuage, and lands called Caſtlehill, Churchfield, Sower-hill, Almondſtandis, Longeſtande, and Euſtaces, in Great Birch and Eaſthorp (e).

And Tho. Camocke, of Layer-Marney, had, in 1601, Lodge-fields, lying in Great and Little Birch; and Wrenpark-fields in Great Birch, Layer Bretton, and Salcot-Verley (f).

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Peter, is of one pace with the Chancel, and both are tyled. At the Weſt-end there is a ſpire ſhingled, which contains one Bell.

This Church was given by Sir Ralph Gernon, to the Priory of Lees; who had the Rectory, or great Tithes, appropriated to them, and a Vicarage here endowed, as may be ſeen in Mr. Newcourt (g); the Nomination of the Vicar being reſerved to the Biſhop of London for the time being. But great Diſputes ariſing between the Prior and Convent and the Vicars, about the Portion of Great Tithes allotted to the latter; Thomas Kemp, biſhop of London, on the 11th of February 1487, diſſolved the appropriation of the Rectory, ſuppreſſed the name of Vicar, and reſtored this Living to the condition it was in before the appropriation: Charging, however, the Rector with a penſion of five marks, or 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to the ſaid Prior and Convent. At the diſſolution, they were all granted to Sir Richard Rich, [as may be ſeen under Little Lees] and he and his ſucceſſors preſented for a while, at the Nomination of the Biſhop. But, for many years, the Biſhops of London have preſented to this Rectory in full right. As for the penſion of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* it has paſſed from Rich to .... Forſter, ... Golding, T. Luſkin, and J. Clubb.

There were three Obits founded in this Church; the Endowments of which, were, Collin-croft: Bulverwicks, an acre and a half: and Beldham-croft.

is adjoyning to, and intermixed with the other. From the ancienteſt times this was diſtinct from it; holden in the Saxon times by one Wluuard, and, when the general Survey was made, by Hugh de St. Quintin [E], in whoſe family it continued for ſeveral deſcents.

Hamo de St. Quintin held it in the 12 and 13 of K. John, of the Honor of Hageley, or Hagenet in Suffolk (b); and alſo ſome lands in Purle; both which made up one knight's fee. But he ſoon after ſold this maner, and was found to have only to the amount of one mark of it left —William being his ſon and heir (i).

In the 3d of Edw. I. Robert de Verley held four fees in Little Birche, Tolleſhunt, Saltecote, Cofford, and Samanton, under Edmund Earl of Lancaſter, brother to that king, in right of Aveline his wife (k); daughter of Richard de Montfitchet, formerly Gernon [F].

Afterwards it became veſted in the family of Tendring [G], that held it of the Veres Earls of Oxford, as of their Honor of Caſtle Hedingham. Under John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1360; and under Thomas de Vere, who dyed in 1371; it was holden by Ralph de Tendring, by the name of half a knight's fee in Briche. It was holden in the ſame manner, by Elizabeth Tendring, 21, 25, and 26 of Henry VI. By John Tendring 6 Edw. IV. and afterwards by William, Robert, and Richard (l). —— William Tendring Eſq; dyed about the year 1500, ſeized of the maner of Little Birch, with the advowſon of the Church; holden as above (m). He left only two daughters, Margaret married to Robert Foſter Gent. and Dorothy to George Southwell.

Robert Foſter had three parts of this eſtate; and Dorothy, juſt now mentioned, by deed, dated 26 May 1514, conveyed all her right in the fourth part to R. Foſter; and Margaret his wife; and their heirs lawfully begotten. R. Foſter, in right of his wife, preſented to this living 25 Octob. 1520 (n). — Robert Foſter preſented to this Rectory in 1528, and 1544 (o), and dyed 18 Decemb. 1545 (p). — George, his eldeſt ſon and heir [H]; of whom ſee a further account under Eaſt-thorp; ſucceeded both to this and the maner of Eaſt-thorp, with all the lands, tenements, &c. thereto belonging; and the advowſon of Little Birch Church. And alſo lands and tenements called Cokes, Windmill-lands, Old Powres, Stayſes, and Wyddowes croft, holden of Tho. Nevill, as of the maner of Old-holt. He dyed 4 Nov. 1556 (q) leaving two daughters and co-heirs, Mary and Joane.

Of their huſbands this eſtate was purchaſed by Henry Golding Eſq; mentioned under Eaſt-thorp. He dyed 6 Decemb. 1576, poſſeſſed of this maner and advowſon of the Church [I]. His brother—Arthur Golding Eſq; ſucceeded him, and preſented to the Rectory 19 May 1591 (r).

Alice Golding, widow, paid Ward-ſilver for this maner, in the 23d of Eliz. 1581 (s).

Of Golding it was purchaſed by John Lord Petre, who ſold it again to Sir John Swinnerton, Knt. of Stanway-hall, under which maner you have a full account of him. He dyed 8 Decemb. 1616, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon—Henry, then 24 years old, and upwards. He held the maner, Park, and Warren of Little Birch, Cookes Woode, and the advowſon of the Church, of the Earl of Oxford, as above [K]; but dyed 18 Decemb. 1617, without iſſue, as did his two next brothers — Richard, and — Robert. But —John, the fourth ſon, had — John, who dyed alſo without iſſue; and — Thomaſina, which was married firſt to Sir William Dyer, and afterwards to John Hopwood, as may be ſeen more at large under Stanway-hall.

Of the Lady Dyer's heirs, or aſſigns, about 1726, it was purchaſed by James Round, of London, Eſq; who left it to his nephew — William Round, Eſq; the preſent poſſeſſor. He married Suſan Warner, by whom he hath iſſue, James; John, counſellor at law; William; and Mary. James, the eldeſt, hath married Thamar, ſole heireſs of the late Peter Creffield Eſq; milies ; ornamented in various places with nine eſcucheons of their Arms. But, in 1727, and 1728, it was rebuilt in a handſome manner by James Round, Eſq; and hath been ſince improved by the preſent owner.

Part of the Old holt, and of the New Holt, is in this pariſh. The former belongs to Sir John Shaw, and the latter to Mrs. Eldred. The Old Holt is called a Maner; and anciently belonged to the Tey-family, ſeated at Marks-Tey-hall. Robert Teye died poſſeſſed of it 5 Hen. VI. As did John Teye the 19th of the ſame reign. And 2 Edw. IV. John Teye: all holding it of William Tendring (t).

John Haynes Eſq; who dyed 3 Novemb. 1605, had it, with lands and tenements called Palmers, Vouchers, and Sowchers. At which time; 100 acres, part of it, were holden of Charles Chibborne Eſq; — 120 acres of the diſſolved monaſtery of St. Oſith :— 200 acres of Geo. Tuke Eſq; as of his maner of Layer Marney ;—and the reſt of Sir Thomas Elliott, as of his maner of Great Birche (u). His ſon —John ſold it, in 1647, to William Tanner, of Great Coggeſhall, clothier. Afterwards, it was in Sir William Abdy: and now in Sir John Shaw.

A meſſuage called Colverwicke, alias Guildhall, lyes partly in this pariſh, and partly in thoſe of Great Birch and Copford. Joane, [redacted] of Robert Springe, who dyed 9 Novemb. 1570, held half of it, with 53 acres of land adjoyning.

The ſaid Joane Spring held alſo lands called Lowings, and 16 acres part of Cheſtwood, parcel of Little Birch maner: the moiety of a tenement called Garlands, containing 140 acr. holden of the maner of Old holt : a meſſuage called Firtons, alias Treales, and other lands to the amount of 80 acres, in the two Birches, Eaſt-thorp, Copford, Stanway, &c. lands called Hawkins, Hawfield, Le Moriff, and a tenement called Pepps, containing 90 acr. Sprotts, Starlings, Croffeilds, the Hay, and Little Poynants, 40 acres. —Thomas Perient was her ſon and heir (w).

The CHURCH is ruinous; the Tower, which is pretty high, and the Walls, only, being ſtanding: But the Roof is quite gone.

In Mr. Symonds's time, here were ſeveral Eſcucheons of the Swinnertons, and Eldreds, which made this their Burial-place.

The Monuments of this laſt family were removed from hence to Earl's-Colne, which became the place of their Sepulture when this Church grew ruinous.

10. EAST-DONILAND.

THERE are two adjoining Pariſhes of the name of Doniland. Weſt-Doniland, alias Bere-church, is one of the four out-pariſhes within the Liberties of the Borough of Colcheſter, where it is deſcribed. Eaſt-Doniland lyeth on the Eaſt of the other, as the name imports.

As to the name of Doniland, or Duniland, it ſeems to be formed from the Saxon ꝺunlanꝺ, hilly, or high land ; of the ſame meaning as the Downs in many counties : though ꝺùn moſtly ſignifies a ſandy hill. In Domeſday-book it is called Dunulanda: And, at the time of making that ſurvey, belonged to Euſtace Earl of Bologne, and others; but had appertained, under Edward the Confeſſor, to Edric, Ingelric, and Moduuin [L].

As part of the Honor of Bologne, it deſcended to the Heireſs of that Houſe, Maud wife of K. Stephen. [See under Witham, page 106.] Of her it was holden in the 12th century by Henry de Merc, or Merch, and under him by Geffrey de Tregoz (x). Some time it was in William de Merc (y). Maud gave it, under the name of the Land of Eaſtdoniland [M], to the Abbot and Convent of St. John's, in Colcheſter, in exchange for the Church and Tithes of Lillechurch, or Heyham, in Kent, which belonged to that Abbey (z). The Queen made this grant and exchange at the inſtance of her daughter Mary, who was a Nun, or Prioreſs, of the Benedictine Nunnery of Lillechurch : and the grant was confirmed by her huſband King Stephen, and her ſon Euſtace. Compenſation was made to the ſaid H. de Merc by certain lands beyond ſea. But he reſerved ſome here, named Bluntеſſale, which his ſon Euſtace de Oeys ſold afterwards to the Abbey for two marks and a half (a) [N]. The Abbey had alſo here Anſchetil's land, given by Hugh Fitz-Stephen ; Birghowood, by William ſon of W. Fitzhergar ; Peſecroft, and the Broomfield, by Ralph de la Haie ; Middlewick, by Walter Haneng, and 35 acres, with 7*s*. rent by Jordan Fitz-Oliver (b). So that they had very near the whole of this pariſh.

K. Henry III. granted them free warren in all their demeſnes here (c).

They continued poſſeſſed of the premiſſes till the diſſolution of the Abbey in 1539, when they became veſted in the crown. K. Henry VIII. on the 29th of November 1542, granted a twenty-one years leaſe of the ſite of the maner of Eaſt-Doniland, with appertenances [O], to Edward

Sir Francis Jobſon, and Elizabeth his wife, the reverſion of the ſite, and whole demeſnes of this maner of Eaſt-doniland, with all its rights, members, and appertenances; together with the reſerved rent of 5*l.* 2*s.* and the advowſon of this Rectory. Of Sir Francis Jobſon and his family there is an account in the Hiſtory of Colcheſter,, under Weſt-Doniland, or Bere-church, which alſo belonged to him. We ſhall only obſerve here, that what rendered him conſiderable, and procured him great eſtates, chiefly from the ſpoils of the Monaſteries, of which he was one of the viſitors; was his intermarriage with Elizabeth Plantagenet, third daughter and coheir to Arthur Viſcount Liſle, natural ſon of King Edward IV. by Elizabeth Lucy, or Jane Shore: For he was not only knighted, but alſo made Maſter of the Jewel-houſe, Lieutenant of the Tower of London, &c. By his Lady he had, John, Edward, Henry, Thomas; and Mary. John, the eldeſt ſon married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir to Sir Richard Pexall of Beaurepair, Eſq; by whom he had Pexall his ſon and heir. But we hear no more of this branch of the family here: For Sir Francis, by his Will dated 22 Auguſt 1572, left theſe eſtates firſt to his 2d ſon, remainder to his eldeſt, then to the third, &c. and the ſaid Sir Francis dying, 4 June 1573 [P], was ſucceeded by his ſecond ſon --- Edward Jobſon, Eſq; He had two wives 1. Mary, daughter and heir of Edmund Markaunt of Dunham-hall, in this County, by whom he had no iſſue. 2. Mary, daughter of John Bode of Rochford, to whom he was third huſband; [her ſecond huſband's name being . . . . . Forth;] by her he had John, who dyed young; Mary, born in 1587, and Elizabeth that dyed 28 May 1592. Edward Jobſon departed this life 28 May 1590 (d). His widow took to her fourth huſband, in Febr. 1595.

William Gray Eſq; who in her right enjoyed this eſtate, and preſented to the living in 1598, and 1600 (e). This William was the ſon of John Gray of Lincolnſhire, by his wife Elizabeth Mayhew; and grandſon of Robert; and great-grandſon of Leonard Gray of Northumberland (f); and was living in 1611, but his wife was dead. He took to his ſecond wiſe Mary, widow of Nicolas Marſhall Eſq; [Q].

Mary, only ſurviving daughter and heir of Edward Jobſon aforeſaid, married, in 1610, George Brooke of Aſpall-hall in Suffolk Eſq; a relation of Brooke Lord Cobham [R]. They had a daughter named Alice, married to Nicolas Marſhall Eſq; but we hear no further of the family here.

In the reign of King James I. Sir John Tonſtall bought this eſtate; and his ſon — Henry preſented to the Rectory in 1638 (g).

Not long after, it came into the Thurſton family. Joſeph Thurſton Eſq; preſented to the Rectory in 1686 (h). His ſon — Joſeph Thurſton Eſq; lived in Colcheſter, of which he was Recorder. He married Mary daughter of Sir Iſaac Rebow, by whom he had Joſeph, and Thomas, and two daughters, none of whom ever married. After his deceaſe, which happened in 1714, his widow having obtained an Act of Parliament for ſale of part of his eſtate (s), for payment of his and her own debts, this was purchaſed by Edmund Raynham, attorney at law: And he, 19 June 1718, conveyed this maner to Daniel Bailey of Colcheſter: but the demeſne lands remained ſtill in Mrs. Thurſton.

Both were purchaſed in 1730, by David Ganſel, of Low-Leyton Eſq; who made a Park, and greatly improved the Houſe and Gardens. He dyed in Febr. 1753, leaving by his wife, ſiſter of John Ward Eſq; — William, Colonel of the 55th Regiment of foot, unmarried; and Anne married to the Rev. Dr. Jebb.

Robert Martin Eſq; hath a houſe and lands, in this pariſh: where alſo the following perſons have eſtates. William Mayhew, Gent. Mr. Robert Smith; Mr. Carey; Mr. Carter; Mr. Cardinal; &c.—And Carteret Leathes Eſq; hath woods, and other lands, here: But ſome are about to be purchaſed by Col. Ganſel.

There are about 700 acres of land in this pariſh.

By the weſt ſide of the Channel leading to Colcheſter, there is a hamlet in this Pariſh called Row-hedge; where Oyſters are preſerved in proper pits, or reſervoirs, and conveyed from thence to Colcheſter - market, Cambridge, and other places.

The lordſhip of Weſt Donyland [including Monkwick, Middlewick, and Upperwick] and the ſite and demeſnes of St. John's Abbey, 29*l.* a year. But he was forced by J. Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, to ſell the Abbey, with the ſite and demeſnes of it, to T. Her ſon Nicolas Marſhall by her firſt huſband, is alſo buried here: together with Elizabeth his firſt wife, eldeſt daughter of Sir John Browne of Flamberts, in this county, Knt. He had taken to his ſecond wife Alice, daughter of George Brooke Eſq; abovementioned. He dyed in April 1621, aged 36, and his firſt wife 3 Octob. 1612. Epitaphs.

[S] Particularly this, and Great Holland.

The Church, dedicated to St. Laurence, is of one pace with the Chancel, both tyled, and ſmall. At the weſt end there is a little turret, containing one Bell. The Advowſon was in the Abbot and Convent of St. John, till their ſuppreſſion. After that it continued in the Crown, untill 1560, when Jobſon purchaſed it with the Maner: and they went together till about 1730, when P. 11. WIVENHOO.

THIS being parted from the reſt of Lexden Hundred by ſo conſiderable a boundary as the River Colne, and Colcheſter-Channel; it might be thought more naturally to belong to Tendring-Hundred, which adjoyns to it moſtly on the other ſides: But ſo it is, that Uſage hath annexed it to the Hundred of Lexden, of which it is the South-eaſt corner.

The name is written in records theſe various ways; Wienhou, Wyneho, Wynenho, Wyſenho, Wyvenho, Wivenhoe, Wivenhoo. What the firſt ſyllable Wiven means, we are not able to determine: But Hoo, from the Saxon Hou, denotes a riſing or hilly ground.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, Wivenhou was holden by Aluric, and two Free-men: And, at the time of the general ſurvey, by Robert Greno, or Gernon, and under him by Nigel [T].

This little Town ſtands for the moſt part high and pleaſant, and the reſt upon a gentle declivity, and commands a handſom proſpect down the Colne-water. The Fiſh brought hither, eſpecially the Soles, are reckoned the beſt in the kingdom.

Here is only one Maner.

Robert Gernon making Stanſted, afterwards ſurnamed Montfichet, his capital Seat, and the head of his Barony: This among many others, became a dependent, and was held, of that Barony.

Afterwards it came early into a family ſurnamed Batayle, Battaile, or de Betaile, that had conſiderable eſtates at Stapleford-Abbots, Bradwell near the Sea, Purley, Lachingdon, Wyley, Gr. Bentley, St. Oſith, &c. (i)—In the 30th of K. Henry III. Simon de Betaile obtained from the king free-warren in Wynenho, Pateſwyke, and Stiſtede (k).—Sir Richard Betaile, his ſucceſſor, married Catharine daughter and heir of Sir Andrew le Blund, and had with her the maner of Tendring, and advowſon of that church, which belonged to her father. By her he had only two daughters co-heireſſes; Margery [V] that was married to Sir William de Sutton, [See an account of this family under Theydon Mount] and Anne to Peter de Taleworthe or Talleſworth; who inherited his great eſtates [W]. Upon the death of Giles de Plaiz, lord of Stanſted Montfichet in 1303, the ſaid Sir William, and Peter, were found to hold of him two knights fees in Wyneho and Doneland (l). Sir John de Sutton was ſon and heir of Sir William; and married Agatha (m). His ſon — Sir John de Sutton was a benefactor to St. Oſith's Abbey, in 1342 (n); and dyed in 1393 (o). His brother and next heir — Sir Richard de Sutton dyed about 1395, poſſeſſed of the maner of Wivenhoo, and other conſiderable eſtates [X]. — Thomas was his ſon and heir (p). But we do not find he left any iſſue. Margery, his ſiſter or aunt, brought few or none of theſe eſtates in marriage to her huſband

John de Walton Eſq; [Y] for what reaſon we know not. He had by her — John, that left iſſue — Richard and Joane. Richard dyed 10 Henry IV. holding the maner of Batayles in Stapleford, and of Albyns in that pariſh and Naveſtock [Z]; and was ſucceeded by his ſiſter

Joane then wife of Sir John Howard (q) junior, eldeſt ſon and heir of Sir John Howard, by Margaret heireſs of the Plaiz family. [See under Stanſtead Montfichet] He dyed before his father, 13 Decemb. 1424, leaving an only daughter named Elizabeth of the age of 14 years: who was afterwards married to John de Vere, the 12th Earl of Oxford of this family. Becoming in her right poſſeſſed of the maner of Wivenhou, he caſt an envious eye upon the Fiſhery, and noble Royalty, belonging to the corporation of Colcheſter, in the river Colne, running by his maner and demeſnes, and granted by the charter of K. Richard I. to the burgeſſes of Colcheſter, and got a grant of it from that weak Prince K. Henry VI. 4 March 1446. But the Corporation not being diſpoſed quietly to part with ſo valuable a right, conteſted it with his Lordſhip; and though, by a very audacious attempt, he brought an attaint againſt the Jury who gave their verdict againſt him, yet after three trials he was forced to deſiſt from his pretenſions, and the letters patent were recalled and cancelled (r). For zealouſly eſpouſing the cauſe of K. Henry VI. and the Lancaſtrian intereſt, this Earl was beheaded 26 Febr. 1461, and his eſtates being confiſcated to the crown, K. Edward IV. gave this, among others, to his brother

Richard Duke of Glouceſter, who preſented to this living in 1479 (s). But this uſurper aſcending the throne, and being defeated and ſlain at Boſworth fight 22 Auguſt 1485, his ſucceſſor K. Henry VII. reſtored John de Vere, ſecond ſon of the beheaded Earl, to his honours and inheritance. And they remained, with this maner, in the poſſeſſion of his four immediate ſucceſſors ——John de Vere, —John —John, and — Edward, all Earls of Oxford [A]. But the laſt waſting his eſtates, ſold this in particular to

Roger Townſhend Eſq; of Raynham, one of the brave Defenders of this Nation againſt the Spaniſh Armada, and who for his valour on that occaſion was knighted by the Lord High-Admiral Howard, at Sea, 26 July 1588 (t). He renewed the pretenſions to the Royalty of the Fiſhery here, but without effect. (u). He had the maners of Great Bentley, Wyhenhoo, Cockens, and Battleſwicke. And dying 11 June 1590, left two ſons, John and Robert (w). —John, the eldeſt ſon, was knighted in 1596; but dyed 2 Auguſt 1603, leaving two ſons, whereof, Stanhope died unmarried.—Roger, the eldeſt ſon and heir, was created a Baronet 16 April 1617; built from the ground the ſtately ſeat at Raynham; and departed this life 1 Janu. 1636. He married Mary, ſecond daughter and co-heir of Horatio Lord Vere of Tilbury, by whom he had five daughters, and two ſons.—Roger, the eldeſt, born 21 Decemb. 1628, dyed a minor. — Sir Horatio Townſhend, the ſecond ſon, became thereupon heir and ſucceſſor to his father, and kept court here 1 March 1652. A few years after, he ſold this eſtate, and Great Bentley, to Nicolas Corſellis, of London, merchant; who kept a court here 16 Decemb. 1657. An account of him and his family, is given under Layer-Marney, p. 448, to which we beg leave to refer: And ſhall only carry down from him the ſucceſſion of the Lords of this maner. He dyed in 1665, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon — Nicolas, who married Martha ſiſter of John Thompſon Lord Haverſham, and dying 19 Octob. 1674, had for ſucceſſor his ſon — Nicolas, born in 1661; one of the Burgeſſes for Colcheſter, in the laſt Parliament of Qu. Anne, &c. He dyed 27 Janu. 1727, leaving, by Elizabeth his wife, —Nicolas, his ſon and heir, who departed this life 10 Decemb. 1761. In 1741, he married Frances youngeſt daughter of Sir Cæſar Child of Woodford, Bart. by whom he had two ſons, Nicolas; and Nicolas-Cæſar. —— Nicolas, the eldeſt ſon, married in 1762, Mary Goodell.

There was an ancient ſingular cuſtom in this Maner, which is mentioned below in the note [B].

Wivenhoo-Hall ſtands pleaſantly, at the upper end of this town. Whilſt it belonged to the Earls of Oxford, who, ſometimes made it the place of their reſidence, it was a large and elegant ſeat, having a noble Gate-houſe, with Towers of great height, that ſerved for a Sea-mark.

There is, partly in this pariſh, and partly in that of Grinſtead, an eſtate formerly belonging to the Beriff-family. It hath been for ſome time converted into a Park, and belongs to Iſaac-Martin Rebow, Eſq; who hath lately built a very good Houſe in it, within the bounds of Wivenhoo-pariſh.

Among other good Houſes in this Town, there is a large one belonging to the late Matthew Martin, Eſq; and now to his ſon Samuel Martin, Eſq; The ſaid Matthew Martin, Eſq; was one of the Burgeſſes for the Town of Colcheſter in the 2d Parliament of King George I. and the 2d Parliament of King George II. and alſo one of the Deputy-lieutenants, and a Juſtice of Peace for this County. In his younger years he was a Captain in the Eaſt-India Company's ſervice, wherein he acquitted himſelf with great ſucceſs and reputation; as appears by his Patent for bearing Arms, which was granted him 18 September 1722, wherein 'tis ſet forth, That he was deſcended from the family of Martin of Saffron-Walden, whoſe Arms were, Or, 3 pallets azure, on a cheif gules, as many martlets or. And for a Creſt, a Martin proper paſſant. And 'tis further ſet forth, that he was Commander of the ſhip Marlborough, belonging to the united Eaſt-India Company, which he defended three days ſucceſſively againſt three French ſhips of war, and brought her ſafe to Fort St. George; her cargo valued at 200,000*l.* for which great ſervice he had a reward of 1000*l.* and a gold Medal

Capt. Matthew Martin dyed 20 July 1749: He married Sarah, one of the daughters of Samuel Jones Eſq; an eminent Eaſt-India Commander, and Amy Potts his wife; by whom he had Samuel, Matthew, Thomas, George, another George; Sarah, Mary, and Anne. Matthew, the two Georges, and Anne dyed young.—— Samuel, the eldeſt ſon and heir, that ſucceeded his father, is unmarried: Thomas is a Counſellor at law, and hath two daughters .... Sarah is widow of Major-general Price. See above, p. 141. Mary is widow of Iſaac-Lemyng Rebow, Eſq; and mother of Iſaac-Martin Rebow, Eſq; one of the Repreſentatives in Parliament for the Borough of Colcheſter.

Here is a Fair yearly on the 4th of September.

The CHURCH conſiſts of a middle pace, and two iſles; but the Chancel hath only a north iſle: all leaded. At the weſt end there is a Tower embattled, that has a clock in it, and five bells. This Rectory hath been always appendent to the Maner.

In the year 1413, a Chantry for two Chaplains, to ſing maſs in the Chapel of St. John Baptiſt in this Church, was founded by Robert Newport, John Tyrell, Ralph Chamberleyn, John Brooke parſon of the Church of Polſted, John Mary parſon of Stanford le Hope, William Sautre, William Pecoke vicar of Brightlingſeye, John ſon of John de Boys, Tho. Martell, Richard Birley, and John Swayn chaplain: and they had licenſe to endow it with one meſſuage, 240 acres of arable, 12 acres of meadow, 26 acres of paſture, 4 acres of wood, and 28*s.* 8*d.* rent in Wivenhoo, Stapleford-Abbot, Naveſtock, and Lamburn (z). Part of this endowment was a tenement, garden, and an acre and a half of land in this Pariſh; Reymeade; and the maner of Albins in Naveſtock, and Stapleford-Abbot. At the ſuppreſſion of Chantries, this was valued at 15*l.* 9*s.* And it was then certified, that this was a populous town, and had but the Parſon, who was not able to ſerve the Cure without help (a). 12. STANWAY.

THE name is formed from the two Saxon words Stan, a ſtone, and Weᵹ, or Wæᵹ, a way; qu. Stone-way: becauſe it ſtands on one of the great public Roads of this kingdom, leading from the eaſtern parts of Eſſex and Suffolk to London, and other places. It was originally paved, as all ſuch great Roman roads were; and, undoubtedly, by digging, ſome remains of the pavement might be found, eſpecially in ſoft and ouzy ſoils, where the bottom was not gravelly and naturally hard. But where it is hard, the ſtones in theſe parts being but of a ſoft contexture, muſt long ago have been ground to powder. In a charter of K. John, it is called Calcea que tendit de Sterteford verſus Colceſtr'. (b). "The Cauſey "which leads from Stortford towards Colcheſter," [C] that is, from Storteford, through Dunmow, Braintree, Coggeſhall, and Stanway, to Colcheſter [D].

In Edward the Confeſſor's time this Lordſhip was in Earl Harold, who after him aſcended the throne. But, upon his overthrow by William Duke of Normandy, it became the property of that uſurper. It was then very large and extenſive; comprehending not only the pariſh of Stanway, but alſo one of the Layers, and Leſſenden, or Lexden [E].

[C] Calcea is by Etymologiſts derived from the French Dhauſſée, or rather from Calco, qu. a much frequented road: via λιθοστρωτος, via ſilicibus ſtrata. See Skinner's Etymologicon, and other books of that kind.

[D] The Bridge in the London-road, between the Pariſhes of Copford and Stanway, near Capt. Roberts's houſe, is in ſome Records called Empford-bridge, alias Stanway-bridge.

There is great reaſon to believe, that this diſtrict, in the earlieſt times, was divided into two pariſhes. For here are not only two Churches partly ſtill ſtanding; but we frequently meet in Records with the names of Stanwey magna, and Stanwey parva, Great, and Little Stanway: the former being the Southern part of the preſent Pariſh, and the latter that which is by the London road. But if they were diſtinct, it muſt have been before the year 1366. For, from that time, the Church hath been preſented to by the name of Great Stanwey, with the Chapel of Albright, or of Little Stanway, annexed (c). And for a long time thoſe two Names have been conſidered only as the Names of two different hamlets.

Mr. Holman was informed, that there are in this pariſh 1000 acres of copſe-wood; and above 5000 acres of other Lands, Commons, and Woods. Some of the woods have been ſtubbed up.

Within the pariſh of Stanway are theſe ſeven Maners, or reputed Maners. 1. The maner of Stanway, and that of Belhouſe. 2. The maner of Oliver's. 3. The maner of Goſbec's. 4. The nominal maner of the Shrebb. 5. The maner of Abbot's. 6. The Rectory is alſo a maner.

1. The maner of STANWAY.

The maner-houſe of Stanway ſtands on the South-ſide of the London road, near the Brook; Bellhouſe is about half way between the two Churches.

From King Harold Stanway maner paſſed to William the Conqueror, as we have juſt now obſerved. It continued in the Crown till about the reign of K. Henry II. when it was granted to Hamo de St. Clare, whoſe only daughter was married to

William de Langvallei, or Lanvalei a perſon of note, warden of the Foreſt of Eſſex in K. Richard the firſt's reign; and alſo in K. John's; and made by this laſt Keeper of Colcheſter-caſtle. He dyed in 1210, leaving his ſon and heir — William, Keeper alſo of Colcheſter-caſtle, father of another — William, who by his wife daughter of Alan Baſſet had an only daughter named —Hawiſe; ſhe brought the maners of Stanway, and Lexden (d), with other eſtates, in marriage to her huſband

John de Burgh, ſon and heir to Hubert de Burgh Earl of Kent. This John, by his deed, dated 2 Edw. I. gave the maner of Stanway [F] to

Thomas de Belhous, Seneſchal of Ponthieu [G], ſon of Sir Theobald de Belhous. This family ſeems to have been originally of Cambridgeſhire, of which county Sir Thomas de Belhous was Sheriff, from the 10th to the 17th of K. Edward I. (e); He was a benefactor to the Canons of Barnewell, and afterwards upon ſome offence became their enemy (f). Sir Thomas de Belhous, who reſided at Stanway, had by his wife Flora or Florentia, three ſons, John, Nicolas, and William: Nicolas being ſeated at Alvithley, gave name to the maner of Belhouſe there, now belonging to Thomas Lord Dacre [H].—John, the eldeſt ſon, of Stanway, was a Knight banneret [I]. He married Iſabell, or Iſolda, daughter of William Fitz-warin by Alice daughter and co-heir of Sir John Hardell; which brought him the maner of Whetlegh in Raleigh; and had iſſue — Sir Thomas that dyed without children: and — John, who departed this life before his mother: But having married Alice Baynard, he left — Thomas; and Iſolda, which became the wife of John Caſtelayn, or Chaſteline Eſq; Thomas juſt now mentioned was a Knight. His wife was Alice daughter of John Berners citizen of London; but he dyed without iſſue, in 1375, holding the maner of Stanway of Sir Walter Fitz-walter, Lord of Lexden, by the ſervice of a pair of gilt ſpurs, or Six-pence (g). His next heir, was his couſin

Margaret, daughter of John Caſtelayn Eſq; She was married to Robert Knivet Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir John Knivet, made Lord Chancellor of England in 1373 (h), and brought him the maner of Stanway, holden of the Lord Fitz-walter, as before; to which maner belonged the Advowſon of the Hoſpital of the Holy-Croſs in Colcheſter (i): likewiſe the maner of Ramſden Belhous, &c. But he ſold the maner of Stanway to John Doreward [K]. He dyed in 1419, leaving iſſue by the ſaid Margaret — Thomas Knivet Eſq; who had two wives; 1. Eleanor, daughter of John, ſon of William Durward, or Doreward, by which he had John his ſon and heir. The 2d wife, was . . . . . daughter of . . . . .

What part of the Layers this Berewic, or hamlet, included, we cannot determine. Moſt probably it was part of Layer de la Hay, which joins to Stanway.

As for the Extract from Domeſday-book, relating to Lexden, it is placed under Colcheſter, to which that Pariſh properly belongs.

[G] I am ſet right in this point by the Right Hon. Thomas Lord Dacre of Belhouſe in Alvithley. Our Hiſtorians call him Seneſcall of Poictou, or Pontivi.

[H] Richard, the elder brother of Thomas Seneſchal of Ponthieu, was ſeated at Ramſden, which from him took the denomination of Bel-houſe.

[I] He is recorded in the Liſt of thoſe Knights who attended K. Edward I. in his wars. From the original roll at Oxford.

[K] That John Doreward purchaſed of Robert Knivet the maner of Stanway, and gave it, after the death of his wife Iſabella, to Thomas Knevet who had married his daughter Eleanor; appears by this clauſe of John Doreward's will, made 1 Feb. 1418, and proved 24 Nov. 1420. "Item poſt "deceſſum Iſabelle uxoris mee lego maner, de Stanwey "Thome Knevet & Elinore uxori, filie mee, quod perqui-"ſivi de Roberto Knevet cum advocatione Eccleſie." Liber Moreton. fol. 397. --- Iſabella (widow of John Doreward) dyed 5 Hen. VI. about 1426, and was found to hold, at the time of her deceaſe, the maner of Stanwey of Sir John Howard, and others, as of their maner of Lexden. And her heirs were, her daughter Katherine, wife of Robert Hunt; and her grandaughter Iſabella, daughter of Margaret her other daughter: which Iſabella was married to Thomas Dayreil. Inquiſ. 5 Hen. Flemingles; and his iſſue by her, was, Robert, who dyed without children; and Margaret, married to . . . . . Tey . . . . Thomas Knivet dyed about 1458, 37 Hen. VI. holding the maner of Stanwey magna, of the Lord Fitz-walter, as of his maner of Lexden by the ſame ſervice as above (k).—John, his eldeſt ſon, mentioned before, ſucceeded him, and at the time of his deceaſe, in 1480, 20 Edw. IV. held the maner of Great Stanwey of Sir John Denham Lord of Denham in right of his wife, Elizabeth Fitz-Walter (l), as of her maner of Lexden, by the like ſervice as above (m). Having married . . . . . daughter of . . . . . Baynard, he left by her —— Thomas Knivet Eſq; who took to wife Elizabeth, ſecond daughter and coheir of William Lunsford: and had by her, Edward; Thomaſine married to Sir William Clopton of Suffolk, and Margaret to Thomas Roydon, whoſe only daughter Elizabeth became wife of John Clopton ſon and heir of Sir William. —— Edward Knivet ſucceeded his father. He married Catharine . . . . . by which he had Elizabeth, his only daughter, aged eleven years at the time of his deceaſe, which happened 4 Feb. 1501. And then he was poſſeſſed of the maner of Stanwey, and 6 meſſuages, 400 acres of arable land, 300 of paſture, 40 of meadow, 60 of wood, and 6*l.* rent in Stanwey; which he held of the King as of the maner of Lexden, it being then in the Crown by reaſon of the attainder of Sir John Ratclyffe Lord Fitz-walter. He held alſo the maners of Belhouſe, Hawes, Olivers, Kyrton, and Shrebbe, in this pariſh (n). [L] His only daughter and and heir

Elizabeth was married to Sir John Rainsforth, and had this maner, with thoſe of Ramſden Belhouſe, Whateley, &c. But ſhe dyed without children, 4 Feb. 1507; her next heirs, being her couſins Elizabeth and Thomaſine Clopton, and Catharine Roydon (o). However,

Her mother Catharine . . . . ſurvived her many years, and enjoyed this maner. After Edward Knivet's death, ſhe took to her ſecond huſband Tho. Bonham Eſq; and to her third huſband John Barnabee. She dyed 28 April 1535 (p). And Sir John Rainsforth had a life eſtate after her, in the maner of Belhouſe and Hawes (q). Her next heirs are ſaid, in the record (r), to have been her couſins, the Lady Thomaſine, then aged 60, ſecond wife to Sir William Clopton, who had by her two ſons, Francis and Richard; and Elizabeth, aged 40, wife of John Clopton Eſq;

But the ſaid Catharine had, by Thomas Bonham her ſecond huſband, a ſon named — Thomas, who was ſeiz'd of the moiety of the maner of Stanway, and reſided at Stanway-hall: The other moiety being in Francis Clopton Eſq; for he and William Bonham, ſon of Thomas, preſented jointly to the living in 1542 (s). This Thomas Bonham the younger dyed 18 June 1532, poſſeſſed not only of this, but alſo of other great eſtates in Colcheſter, the Tolleſhunts, Rawreth, &c. leaving, by Catharine daughter of Henry Lord Marney, the firſt Peer of that family, — William, then upwards of 20 years of age (t). He married Frances, daughter and co-heir of Sir Thomas Tey, by which he had his ſon — Thomas, who lived at Stanway-hall, and by . . . Bocking, ſiſter of Edmund Bocking Eſq; had — George, his eldeſt ſon; and William, a merchant in London (u) [M].

John Bocking, Gent. preſented to this living in 1564 (w) but by what right doth not appear.

The moiety of this maner ſeems to have paſſed from Bonham to William Docker in 1596 [N].

Next, the whole maner was in the Nutbrowne family; for William Nutbrowne dyed 6 Novemb. 1588, holding the maner of Stanneway, Bellhouſe, Howes, and Baſtards of the Earl of Suſſex, as of his maner of Lexden by military ſervice, and the rent of a pair of gilt ſpurs, of the price of 6*d.* His ſon and heir — William, was then aged 25 (x), He ſold, 1 April 1601, the maners of Stanwey and Belhouſe to

John Swinarton or Swinnerton, Eſq; afterwards knighted. His father Thomas Swinnerton, citizen and merchant-taylor of London, was ſon of Richard Swinnerton of Oſweſtry in Shropſhire (y): deſcended from the antient and noble family of the Swinertons of Swinerton in Staffordſhire, formerly Peers of this realm, and ſummoned to parliament in 1337 (z). Sir John was a merchant-taylor as well as his father; one of the Sheriffs of London in 1602, and Lord Mayor of that noble city in 1612 (a). In his younger years he travelled into Spain, from whence he returned an accompliſhed gentleman. Becoming an eminent merchant, he ſerved Qu. Elizabeth with all her wines; and got into his hands the ſole power of the Wine-licenſe-office, whereby he accumulated a great eſtate. He dyed 8 December 1616, poſſeſſed of the maners of Stanway, Belhouſe, Little Birch, &c [O]. His mother Mary . . . . was born at Lexden (b). He had 4 ſons, Henry, Richard, Thomas, and Robert; and 3 daughters, the firſt married to Sir John Miller of Dorſetſhire; the ſecond married to . . . . Pym Eſq; and the third to . . . . a citizen of London.—Henry, his eldeſt ſon and heir, was ſeated at Stanway-hall; and married . . . . [which took to her ſecond huſband Sir Henry Crane of

Sir William Dyer of Tottenham, in Middleſex, who had by her ſeveral children. [See under Newton-hall in Great Dunmow.] But her father, Thomas Swinerton, had, before his deceaſe, ſold the maner of Stanway: For, in 1627, it was in

John Littlebury; and, in 1635, in Sir Henry Calthorpe, of Suffolk, Attorney of the Court of Wards (d). The latter gave it, with his daughter in marriage to

. . . . . Hervey of Suffolk, Eſq; who ſold it to

Capt. William Thomſon, ; and he, after having poſſeſſed it but a little while, ſold it to

John Hopwood. This John Hopwood was a diſſenting Miniſter, and ſecond Huſband to Thomaſina Lady Dyer, who was married to him 8 Auguſt 1683. By him ſhe had no iſſue; but however left him this eſtate. She dying here 13 April 1697, was buried in Newenham-Church in Hertfordſhire near her firſt huſband. J. Hopwood married to his ſecond wife . . . . . Scarlet, widow of . . . . . Fairfax M. By his will, in caſe of his ſon's death, he bequeathed the demeſnes of Stanway-hall, which he dyed poſſeſſed of, to Sarah, daughter of Mr. John Richardſon, apothecary, whom it is ſaid, he deſigned for his ſecond wiſe; and ſhe has brought that eſtate in marriage to Stanway-hall, which ſtands pleaſantly on an eminence by the ſide of the road from Colcheſter to Maldon, was once a ſtately ſtructure, raiſed out of the ruins of the old one by Sir John Swinnerton; but a great part of it was pulled down again by Capt. Thomſon; and reduced to its preſent condition. It had ſeveral large fiſh-ponds, and a park. The Warreners and Bailiffs of the maner were formerly conſiderable perſons.

2. The Maner of OLIVERS.

The manſion-houſe ſtands above two miles ſouth-eaſt from the Church, in a retired but agreeable place; with handſome gardens, canals, and fiſh-ponds; and a wood adjoyning, cut out into pleaſant walks. It took its name from a family ſurnamed Oliver. For John, ſon of Ralph, who was ſon of Oliver, lived here in the reign of King Henry III. and in the 13th of King Edw. I. claimed certain lands in Stanwey, of the Abbot of Colcheſter (e). To which Abbot and Convent — Jordan ſon of Oliver, made a grant of lands, in the 31ſt of the laſt mentioned King (f). — John Oliver, who died in 1338, held, jointly with Agnes his wife, in the vill of Great Stanwey, 1 meſſuage, 160 acr. of arable, 6 acr. of meadow, 8 acr. of paſture, and 10 acr. of wood, of the Abbot of Colcheſter, by the ſervice of 3s. per ann. His ſon and heir — John (g), left an only daughter and heir named — Joane [P], which brought this eſtate in marriage to

William Durward Eſq; deſcended from Alwine Durward of Bocking, Gent. where he lived in the reign of King Henry III. (h). By her he had his ſon and heir — John Doreward, Eſq; who died in 1420, ſeized, jointly with Iſabell his wife, of the maner of Olivers; and of a tenement and 200 acr. of land called Belhous; alſo of three tofts named Chambrys, Stories, and Permynters, with 300 acr. of arable, and 8 acr. of meadow, all in Stanwey: theſe laſt, and Olivers, being holden of St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter. He had likewiſe the advowſon of Stanwey Church. — John, then aged 30, was his ſon (i). He dyed poſſeſſed of this eſtate in 1476. And was ſucceeded by his ſon — John, then 21 years of age; who dying in 1480, had for heir his couſin — William (k) . . . . The next poſſeſſor upon record, was — John Doreward Eſq; who dyed the 11th of Henry VII. about 1495, ſeiz'd of the maners of Olivers, and Belhouſe, and lands called Shrebbe, Hawſe, Kirton, and Permonters, in Stanway and Colcheſter. His next heirs were the three daughters of his ſiſter Elizabeth, viz. Margaret wife of Nicolas Beaupre; Elen of Henry Thurſby; and Chriſtian of John de Veer (l). But none of them ſeem to have poſſeſſed this maner: probably they ſold it to

Edward Knivet Eſq; abovementioned, who at the time of his deceaſe, held it, viz. 4 Feb. 1501. [See under the maner of Stanway.]

Margery Nawnton, wife firſt of . . . . Doreward, and afterwards of Hobbard, or Hobart, dying 13th Octob. 1517, was found poſſeſſed of Oliver's, Kirton, and Shrebbe, holden of St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter; and of the maner of Belhouſe. Her couſin and next heir was — Thomas, ſon of her brother Robert Nawnton (m).

[P] Oliver's Arms. Ermin, 3 chevrons ſable.

The next family we find Oliver's in, about the beginning of the laſt century, was Eldred. The name is Saxon; ſo that the Family, as juſtly as ſome others, may pretend to have ſubſiſted even before the Norman conqueſt. But, not to dwell upon ſuch diſtant things; they are certainly derived from Mr. John Eldred, an eminent merchant and navigator, whoſe voyage to Tripolis in Syria, Babylon, &c. A. D. 1583, is inſerted in Ric. Hakluyt's Collections (n). His picture is preſerved in the great parlor at Oliver's; with that of his ſhip, remarkable for having four maſts [Q]. His eldeſt ſon, — John, born in 1565, was an eminent merchant; and after having reſided ſome time in foreign parts, came and ſettled at Colcheſter, of which Burgh he was Alderman, and one of the Bailiffs in the 7th and 21ſt years of K. James I. (o). He purchaſed Oliver's, and lived in the latter part of his life in Little Birch-hall; the Church of which being ruinous, he and the patroneſs jointly repaired it: and he dying 9 Octob. 1646, aged 81, was buried in that Church. A monument was there erected to his memory: which, when that Church grew ruinous again, was removed by his grandſon into the Church of Earl's-Colne (p). His Son —John, was a collector of the Sequeſtrations for this county, in 1645 (q), and employed about that time in ſeveral other affairs (r). He married Elizabeth, daughter of John Ruſham of London, by which he had — John, his ſon and heir, who dyed 16 Novemb. 1682, and was buried at Earl's-Colne (s); leaving iſſue by Anne his wife, daughter and co-heir of Thomas Goodman of Leatherhead in Surrey, John, Thomas, Edward, William; Olive, wife of Tho. Arris, M. D. Elizabeth, Ann, and Mary. — John, the eldeſt ſon, was a Counſellor at Law, and married Margaret daughter of Richard Harlackenden of Earl's-Colne Eſq; He dyed 2 Septemb. 1717, aged 87 years and 11 months, and was buried in the Church of Earl's-Colne. By his ſaid wife, he had John, and other ſons who dyed young: Margaret, wife of Solomon Grimſton of Chapel, Attorney at Law; Mary, wife of John Barefoote of Lambourn-hall, Eſq; Elizabeth, which dyed unmarried. — John, the eldeſt ſon, married Mary daughter of Rob. Horſeman of Stretton, in Rutlandſhire Eſq; by which he had John, Dulcibella, Anne, and Mary. Dulcibella, and Mary, dyed ſingle; Anne, became the wife of John Wale Eſq; heir to Richard Androwes of Earl's-Colne-Priory, Eſq; — John, the only ſon of John Eldred, Eſq; (who deceaſed in Novemb. 1732.) married Suſanna, 4th daughter of Samuel Rawſtorn, of Lexden, Eſq; but had no iſſue. He dyed 10 Octob. 1738, ætat. 33. [R].

3. The Maner of GOSEBEC's, in the ſouth-eaſt part of this pariſh, belonged, in the reign of K. Henry III. to one Roger de Goſebec, who, in the 39th of that King, had a tryal at Chelmsford before the Juſtices itinerant, with John de Burgh, and others, about the common of paſture belonging to this eſtate, conſiſting of 400 acres of heath in Stanway, of which they had diſpoſſeſſed him. They were obliged to give it up, and fined for their treſpaſs (t).

Soon after John de Burgh became maſter of this eſtate, and gave it to St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter (u). It continued in that houſe till the eve of their ſuppreſſion; when, to pacify the greedineſs of the court, Thomas Marſhall, then Abbot, by licenſe dated 20 May 1538, alienated the maner called Goſſebecs and Stanwey, a wood called Shrebbs, and the maner of Rye in Layer de la Hay, to Thomas Audeley Lord Chancellor (w). He dyed 8 May 1544, leaving by will this eſtate, and Bere-church, to his brother —— Thomas Audeley Eſq; (x) [ſee a more particular account of this family under Bere-church in Colcheſter.] This laſt named Thomas dyed 20 Aug. 1558 (y), and had for ſucceſſor in Goſbecks his ſecond ſon —— Thomas, who departed this life 2 April 1584, being ſucceeded by his ſon and heir — Thomas, then aged upwards of 21 (z), who dyed 22 Septemb. 1599, leaving Anne, wife of Robert Coppin, his ſole daughter and heir (a). . . . It was next in Robert Barker Eſq; who dyed 5 Apr. 1618, being ſucceded by his ſon — Beſtney Barker (b). And in that family it continued till it was purchaſed by Knox Ward Eſq; late Clarencieux: who was ſucceeded by his ſon.

4. The Maner of the SHREBB lies alſo in the ſouth-eaſt part of this pariſh, adjoyning to the banlieu of Colcheſter; and partly in the pariſhes of Lexden and St. Mary's.

In the 11th of K. Henry VII. John Doreward, Eſq; held theſe lands called Shrebbe, Hawſe, Kirton, and Permonters, in Stanway and Colcheſter (c). And, in a ſurvey then taken, it was found, that Schrubbe contained 180 acr. Kyrton-wood 50 acr. Oliver's-wood 52 acr. (d). Permonters, or Parmenters, (ſo called from a family, of which ſome were Bailiffs of Colcheſter in Henry the Third's reign.) (e) with a parcel of land called Stories, 22 acr.

[Q] The family ſeems to have been originally from Saxham in Suffolk. For we find in Sir Edw. Byſhe's Viſitation of Eſſex, fol. 120. that John Eldred of Great Saxham, had the following children, 1. Sir Rivet Eldred Bart. that married Anne Blackwell, and dyed without iſſue. 2. John. 3. Joſeph, Fellow of New College, Oxon. 4. Henry, which two laſt had no children.---Catherine, wife of Sir Samuel Tryon, Knt. and Bart. --- Anne, wife of Robert Henley, a Bencher of the Middle-Temple.

[R] Arms of Eldred. Azure, a croſs-patonce fitched, or. On a chief, or, three globes azure.

Edward Knivet held the ſame 17 Henr. VII. and Margery Hobart in 1517, as may be ſeen above under the maners of Stanway and Oliver's.

That part of the Shrebb, which is on the ſouth-ſide of the road leading from Colcheſter to Maldon, was a wood till lately, when it was purchaſed by Thomas Blackman, and converted by him into a pretty farm of upwards of 100 acres; which, before his deceaſe, he ſold to Mr.

Philip Havens of Colcheſter, bay-maker.

Some on the ſame ſide of the road, is part of the eſtate of John Rayner, being near 50 acres.

The other part of the Shrebb, on the north ſide of the aforeſaid road, lying in Lexden, and St. Mary's, &c. was ſome time in the Rich family; afterwards in the Shaws; and of one of them was purchaſed by Jacob Johnſon of Colcheſter, glazier, being called in the writings 70 acres. It is now in his ſon, the Rev.—Jeremiah Johnſon.

The Shrebb is not looked upon now as a Maner, nor has any ſigns of it.

5. The Maner of ABBOTS, lyeth in the north part of this pariſh, and alſo partly in Lexden, &c. It was parcel of the poſſeſſions of the Abbey of Waltham Holy-Croſs, but by whom given we cannot learn. They had it early; for we find, that Abbey had a grant of free-warren in Lexden, 37 Hen. III. (f) which we take to have been in theſe lands that extended into that pariſh.

Upon the ſuppreſſion of the Monaſteries, K. Henry VIII. in 1544, granted this manner of Abbots in Stanwey with the appertenances; and a farm, meſſ' or maner called Braſwyke, in Mile-end and Lexden, to Sir Francis Jobſon, and others (g). They had licenſe, 1 Novemb. 1546, to alienate them to

George Sayer of Colcheſter (h); who dyed 19 May 1577, poſſeſſed of them. His ſon —— George, then aged 35, deceaſed 3 July 1596, leaving his ſon —— George, aged 30, and afterwards knighted. He dyed 7 March 1630-1, being ſucceeded by his ſon —— John, aged 41 (i), who was buried 19 Aug. 1658 (k). [See a further account of this family under St. Peter's Colcheſter, and Aldham.] In the Inquiſitions, this maner is deſcribed, as lying in Stanway, Fordham, Coptforde, and Lexden (l). It deſcended, as Bourchier's-hall in Aldham, to Robert Lord Romney, and was purchaſed of him by Thomas White Eſq; but it is now a farm of only 70 l. a year; for part of the demeſnes have been bought off, and annexed to ſome of the adjoyning eſtates. It is not looked upon now as a Maner, tho' it ſtill bears the name of Abbots-hall.

6. The RECTORY

is alſo a maner, and hath a Court-Baron, with ſeven or eight tenents, free and cuſtomary, whoſe Quit-rents amount to 11*s.* 6*d.* per Ann. and the cuſtomary fines are at the will of the Lord.

Other Eſtates in this Pariſh.

Beſides Bellhouſe, and Stanway-maner-houſe, Maur. Johnſon, Eſq; has another eſtate here.

A farm near the Church, belonged to the late John Hatch of Earl's-Colne, now to his coheirs.

Upon the London road, are; one belonging to Henry Bevan Eſq;—one to the widow Copping: — Another to the late widow Oakley.— Baſtards; the White-Hart eſtate; and the Beacon Farm, belonging to William Round, Eſq; Theſe three laſt, and Richers, belonged to William Bonham Eſq; in 1533, and to Sir Thomas Tey, in 1540 (m).

One in the Colne-road, belonged to the late J. Tollar, now to his daughter, married to Mr. Alſton, of Newton, Suff. [S].

Beſides Goſbec's, Goodith-hide (n), and other parcels of land, St. John's Abbey had 1 meſſuage, 200 acr. of arable, 100 acres of meadow, and 20 acres of wood, in Stanway, and partly alſo in Birch; called Chambers, from an ancient owner John atte Chambre (o); being part of the great gift of Peter Wawayn and John Chaterys (p). In 1539, K. Henry VIII. granted Parmenters and Chambers to Robert Forſter (q), whoſe ſon George Foſter Eſq; dyed poſſeſſed of them, by the name of Parmiters and Chamberlaynes. Henry Golding Eſq; held the ſame in 1576 (r). In 1618, fifty acres of theſe were in Henry Swynarton Eſq; being then ſtyled Parmiters, and Chamberleyns, alias Chamberleyes, alias Chambers (s).

The Abbey had alſo, of the gift of Eudo their founder, two parts of the tithes of this pariſh: moſt of which they aſſigned, or gave up, to the Rector, 1 Novemb. 1364, for the yearly ſum of two marks (t).

A Fair is held here on the 23d of April.

There are, in this pariſh two CHURCHES as we have obſerved above. They have even before the year 1366, been preſented to as one Rectory, or Living, with a Chapel annexed (u). But the Parſonage-houſe, and the Glebe of near 80 acres, are in that part which was called Little Stanway, by the London road.

The Church of Great Stanway ſtands near Stanway-hall. It conſiſted of a body, and two

The other Church, ſtanding by the ſouth ſide of the London road, is ſmall, conſiſting of one pace with the chancel. On the weſt end there is a wooden turret, containing three bells.

This is reaſonably ſuppoſed to be the Chapel of St. Albright, or as it is more properly written in St. John's great Regiſter (w), St. Æthelbyrht, or Athelbert; being the name of the Saxon Saint to whom it is dedicated.

John Doreward, Eſq; who dyed in 1420, founded a Chantry on the ſouth ſide of Stanway Church, in his maner; to pray for the ſouls of his father and mother; of Catharine late wife of his uncle John Oliver; and of Sir Tho. Belhouſe, and Robert Knyvet. He endowed it with ſeven pounds a year, payable out of Screbe-wood, and out of Belhouſe, and Oliver's (x).

The Rectory of Stanway was appendent to the Maner; and after having paſſed by purchaſe through ſeveral hands, was at length bought by Magdalen-college in Oxford.

13. COPFORD, COPEFORD, or COPTFORD lies between 46 and 47 miles from London; partly on the road from Colcheſter to that city. It is of a pretty conſiderable extent, being about five miles long, tho' not quite a mile broad in ſome places: and the rental of it is upwards of 1100*l.* a year. The name is formed from the Saxon words, Cop, or Coppe, head, or top; and ꝼoꞃꝺ; on occaſion of the Ford here over the Brook that croſſes the road. In this pariſh are only two maners; viz. 1. Copford-hall; 2. Botingham-hall.

1. The maner of COPFORD-HALL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands on the north-ſide of the Church, and very near it; being a handſome and convenient houſe, with good gardens, and fine canals and fiſh-ponds.

From the earlieſt times down to Qu. Elizabeth's reign, this maner belonged to the Biſhops of London [T]. But ſome parts of it were given by William the Conqueror to Robert Gernon.

Biſhop Bonner reſided here ſome time; and there is a walk of trees which leads to the Church, ſaid to have been raiſed by him about three foot high, for the benefit of the pariſhioners in going to divine ſervice.

From him it was got by Qu. Elizabeth; and remained in the Crown till 14 March 1609-10, when K. James I. granted it in free and common ſocage, to

John Argent, M. D. and John Phillips, grocer, both of London. Four or five years after, they ſold it to

Edmund Mountjoy, Gent. whoſe ſon —— Allen Mountjoy Eſq; dying 14 Novemb. 1624, was buried in this Church (y). Before his deceaſe he ſold this maner and eſtate to

John Haynes Eſq; ſon of John Haynes of Old-holt, Eſq; [that dyed 3 Nov. 1605,] by Mary Michell his wife (z). John, the purchaſer of this eſtate, married Mary, daughter of Robert Thornton of Nottingham, by which he had, Robert, and Hezekiah. ——Robert dyed in Auguſt 1657, of a ſickneſs ſo infectious, that it killed all the perſons employed in putting him into his leaden coffin. On his deceaſe — Hezekiah became poſſeſſed of this eſtate. He was much employed in the civil wars, and a Major-General. By his wife, Anne, widow of Mr. Buſhell a Turkey-merchant, and daughter of Tho. Smithby Eſq; ſadler to King Charles I. he had, John, born in 1657. Hezekiah, Thomas, James: Anne, who was ſecond wife of John Cox of Coggeſhall, Eſq; of Emanuel-College in Cambridge, and of Gray's-inn, Barriſter at law; and Mary that dyed ſingle. Hezekiah dyed a batchelor, coming back from the Indies. Thomas married ..... daughter of Col. William Cook of Great Chiſhull, and had iſſue John and Jane. James dyed a batchelor. — John, the eldeſt ſon and heir of Major-general Haines, married Mary, daughter of Thomas Bowes of Great Bromley-hall, Eſq; by which he had John, and Hezekiah. — John the eldeſt ſon, married Sarah, daughter of the Rev. Joſeph Powell, Rector of St. Mary's, Colcheſter, &c. Siſter to the wife of Dr. John Dane Rector of this Church: but dyed 21 Auguſt 1713 (a), without children. Beſides the maner, and other eſtates, in Copford, he had the maner of Foxearth; Grovehall in Tolleſhunt-Knights, &c. In which he was ſuclies in the ſouth part of this pariſh.

2. The maner of BOTINGHAM, or Boddingham-Hall,

It ſeems to have been originally a diſtinct Hamlet by itſelf, belonging to the Crown. And, at the time of the general ſurvey, was among the incroachments made on the King's demeſnes by Hugh de Montfort [W].

The ancient poſſeſſors of it afterwards, took from thence the ſurname of Bottingham, and are recorded to have been theſe.—William de Bottingham—Hugh de Bottingham—Hubert de Bottingham, ſon of Richard.

Sir William Gernon and William de Oldholt, occur alſo amongſt its ancient poſſeſſors.

From the Bottinghams it paſſed, very probably by marriage, into the ancient family of Tey, ſeated at Marks-Tay, and Layer de la Hay. For Edward de Tey married Chriſtian daughter of . . . . . Bottingham (b). Robert Teye Eſq; who dyed 5 Hen. VI. held this maner of Botingham-hall, of the Abbot of St. John's in Colcheſter. —John was his ſon and heir (c).—Robert Tey of Copford, Eſq; dyed in 1473, ſeized of this maner, ſaid to be holden of the Biſhop of London: leaving — William, his ſon and heir, aged 12. He dyed 8 June 1501; —— Thomas his ſon being then 13 years of age. He dyed 20 April 1543, poſſeſſed, among other things, of the maner of Badingham, leaving his ſon— John, aged 22 (d); who dyed 29 May, 1568, holding this maner of the Biſhop of London.— Thomas was his ſon (e).

Elianor, daughter of Thomas Tey, dying without iſſue, it came into the Neville family. For Marmaduke Neville Eſq; fourth ſon of Richard Neville Lord Latimer, had married Elizabeth ſecond daughter of Sir Thomas Tey; and he dyed in 1545 (f).

Of this eſtate Francis Butler Eſq; of Gray's-inn was owner in 1685; who dying in or about the year 1727, it came to his nephew—Ambroſe Mandeville Eſq; He conveyed it to his ſon —— Valentine Mandeville, of whom

Mrs. Mary Webſter purchaſed it in the ſame year; and by her will deviſed it to her ſon-in-law

Charles Gray, Eſq; the preſent worthy poſſeſſor; who hath alſo another farm in Copford.

Other Eſtates in this Pariſh.

A handſome houſe, by the north ſide of the London-road, with ſome land, belonging to Capt. William Roberts;—a farm belonging to the late Mr. Philipſon, now to Capt. Burton;—and another, late Mr. Humfreys's, purchaſed by Lieut. General Brown.—Part of the Old-Holt Eſtate.

[Marſcots, and Fuller's, partly in this pariſh, and partly in Aldham and Mark's Tay, belong to George Wegg Eſq;]

Between the London and Colne-roads are alſo theſe—The Gatehouſe-farm, Mrs. Pamplin's.— Howchins and Chippets, Mr. James Smyth's.— Hole-farm, Mr. Robert Everard's.—One belonging to W. Sturgeon. — And another to W. Rayment, Gent.—Homeſtalls, Sir Richard Chaſe's—Bulbekkes, belonging to Lord Viſcount Royſton.

Lands and tenements in this pariſh called Softbeddes, and Petty-crofts, were holden of the maner of Copford, by Edw. Fabyan, Eſq; in 1561 (g).

John Sayer held, in 1350, 72 acres of arable, 5 of paſture, and 2 of wood, in Coppeford, Great and Little Brythe, of Robert de Teye, and others: And 25 acres of arable of John Gernoun (h).

Charitable Gift.

Two tenements, with an orchard, in the road, about half-way between the Church and the Parſonage, were given to the Poor of this pariſh by one of the Mountjoy-family. But, either by ſome fault in the conveyance, or through neglect of the pariſhioners, they were gone back into the poſſeſſion of the ſame family; till, by deed they were conveyed to John Dane, D. D. then Rector, and to his ſucceſſors for ever: In Truſt, that the Rents thereof be divided yearly by the Rector among ſuch poor Houſe-keepers as receive no collection from the Pariſh.

The CHURCH ſtands on the ſouth ſide of Copford-hall, and, beſides the body hath a ſouth iſle; which the Chancel hath not. The walls are very thick, it having formerly been all arched over, of which there are ſtill ſome remains, eſpecially in the chancel. The eaſt end of this is ſemicirular. At the weſt end there is a wooden Turret, containing three Bells: On the top of which is a ſpire ſhingled. Both Church and Chancel are neat, and in very good repair; through the care and munificence chiefly, of the preſent worthy owner of Copford-hall Hezekiah Haines, Eſq;

The ſtory of the Danes ſkins nailed on the Church-doors, whether true or falſe, may be ſeen in Mr. Newcourt (i).

The Advowſon and Patronage of this Rectory was all along in the See of London; till 1559, when Qu. Elizabeth preſented upon the deprivation of John Morren. At the next avoidance, adjoins to, and lies north-weſt of, Copford. On the north it is almoſt wholly bounded by the river Colne; on the ſouth, part of it croſſes the London-road, and takes in ſome of the great field belonging to Mark's-Tay-hall; the 46 miles ſtone being in Aldham.

14. ALDHAM,

The name is formed from the two Saxon words, Alꝺ, Ham, denoting the Old Village.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign it was holden by Levena; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, by Odo, Biſhop of Bayeux, brother to William the Conqueror, who created him Earl of Kent. [See in Upminſter, Rainham, &c.] Under him it was holden by Beatrix, a ſiſter of the Conqueror, and then wife of Alberic de Vere, anceſtor of the noble family of the De Veres Earls of Oxford [X], the head of whoſe Barony was Caſtle Hedingham; and from hence came the reaſon of this eſtate's being holden ever after of the Honor of Caſtle Hedingham.

In this pariſh are two Manors. 1. Aldham-Hall, with Hoggekyns. 2. Bourchier's-Hall. And a capital meſſuage called the Hou, or Hoo-place.

1. ALDHAM-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands near a mile ſouth-eaſt from the Church.

Under the De Vere family, this eſtate was holden in the earlieſt times by perſons ſurnamed De Merk; who had the adjoining pariſh, which from them came to be denominated Merks-Tay.

In the year 1285, or 1286, William de Wiggeton held the maner of Aldham of Andrew de Merk, for half a knight's fee, and yearly rent of 8*d.* to the heirs of Sir Benedict de Blakenham, and of 2*s.* to Henry Curtys.——John de Wiggeton was his ſon and heir (m).

It was next in William de Goldington, who had the maner of Ringers in Terling as above, p. 127; a conſiderable eſtate at Sturmere, Colne, Engain, and Wake, and other places. At the time of his deceaſe, 12 Edw. II. he held 1 meſſuage, 1 dove-houſe, 100 acres of arable, 2 of meadow, 4 of paſture, and 9*s.* rent, in Aldham, of the heirs of John de Merk, by the ſervice of the 5th part of a knight's fee: And 11 acres of arable, and half an acre of paſture, of Adam Curteys, by the ſervice of one pound of cummin: And 5 acres of arable, and half an acre of paſture of Robert Power, by the ſervice of 16*d.* per ann. And 30 acres of arable, 1 acre of meadow, 1 acre of paſture, and 4 acres of wood, of the Earl of Oxford, by the ſervice of a 4th part of a knight's fee.—John de Goldington, his ſon (n) and ſucceſſor, who dyed in 1338, held by knight's ſervice, this maner of Aldham, of Tho. Fabell, and Robert de Teye. [beſides the eſtates abovementioned, and alſo that of Spring-feild-hall, p. 8.] ——John was his ſon (o), but he did not immediately inherit; for his mother Catharine was married again to John Fermer; who, in her right, enjoyed this, among other eſtates, till his deceaſe in 1354 (p). She herſelf departed this life in 1358, whereupon this meſſuage and carucate of land (as it is called) in Aldham, came into the poſſeſſion of her ſon —— John de Goldington (q). [The Goldington family ceaſes here.] And then it ſeems to have lapſed for a while to John de Vere, and Thomas de Vere, Earls of Oxford, who are recorded to have had here, and in Fering, in 1360, and 1370, one knight's fee, which Robert de Teye held (r). And it ſeems alſo to have been part of the fees in Aldham, Tey-Mandeville, &c. belonging to Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex in 1372, that had been once holden by Tho. Merke (s).

From the year 1360 to 1568, this eſtate was holden by the Tey family, [owners of the adjoining pariſh of Merks-Tey] under the Earls of Oxford, as of their Honor of Caſtle-Hedingham. Robert Teye, who dyed 5 Hen. VI. held it, jointly with Joane his wife.—John his ſon and heir, then aged 19 (t), held it [Y] till his deceaſe, 19 Henry VI. leaving his ſon —— John, aged 7 years (u). Whether any forfeiture happened during the cruel conteſts between the Houſes of York and Lancaſter, we are not able to determine; but we find, that William Abbot of St. John's, Colcheſter, Geffrey Rokell Eſq; John Breton, and Robert Downe, being ſeiſed in fee of this maner of Aldham-Hall, and a farm called Hoggekyns, which were formerly the eſtate of John Tey Eſq; father of Robert Tey of Copford, they did, 21 Decemb. 1463, convey them to this —— Robert, and Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Tho. Knyvet Eſq; and their heirs for ever (w). He dyed in 1473, holding this maner, with Hoggekyns, of Richard Duke of Glouceſter, as of his maner of Hethingham; to whom that, and other eſtates, of the late attainted

Earl of Oxford had been given by his brother K. Edwward IV. —— William Tey his ſon and heir was then aged 12 years (x). He dyed 8 June 1502, poſſeſſed of this maner, with appertenances, valued at 16*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*——Thomas, his ſon and heir, then aged thirteen years (y), departed this life 20 April 1543, holding the maner of Aldham, and 3 crofts of arable containing 12 acres in Aldham and Little Tey, late Richard Antony's, and one acre and a half of arable in Little Tey called Palmers; valued at 10*l.* per ann (z). His ſon and ſucceſſor —— John Tey Eſq; dyed 29 May 1568, and ——Thomas, his ſon and next heir, was then aged upwards of 24 years (a).

About 1595, Charles Cornwallis Eſq; held Aldham-hall (b). We take him to be the ſame gentleman that was ſecond ſon of Sir Thomas Cornwallis, [anceſtor of the preſent Earl Cornwallis] knighted, 11 May 1603, and treaſurer of the houſhold to Henry Prince of Wales (c). Moſt probably he ſold this eſtate to Glaſcock, in whoſe deſcendents it continued till 1722.——Edward Glaſcock Gent. was poſſeſſed of this maner in 1635 (d); [Z]. and afterwards . . . . Harry, and William. Some of the family were formerly of Bobingworth, and lately ſettled at Hertiſho-bury in Farnham. [See under thoſe reſpective pariſhes.] In 1722

Thomas White Eſq; grandſon of Sir Stephen White of Hackney, Knt. bought of William Glaſcock Eſq; this eſtate; being deſcribed, in the fine levied ſoon after, as the maner of Aldham, alias Aldham, alias Aldham-hall, and 2 meſſuages, 2 gardens, 2 orchards, 300 acres of arable, 200 of meadow, 200 of paſture, 50 of wood, 300 of furze and heath, in Aldham, Great and Little Fordham, Marks-Tey, Stanewey and Copford.—Tattingſton Place in Suffolk was his ſeat. He dyed in November 1742, leaving ——Thomas his ſon and heir, as yet unmarried; and two daughters, one married to the Revd. Mr. How, and the other to —— Michael Thirkle Eſq; [A].

In an old rental of this Maner, the demeſne lands of it are ſaid to conſiſt of 500 acres; and the rents of free and cuſtomary tenents and court-baron to amount to 53 s. per ann.

As the Glaſcock-family were a conſiderable time owners of a capital meſſuage in this pariſh, called ALDHAM-HOU, alias Hoo-place, it will be propereſt to place our account of it here. The word Hou in Saxon ſignifies Hill, which agrees with the ſituation of this Houſe, it ſtanding on the higheſt ground of the pariſh. It is an ancient brick-building, with bow-windows, and encompaſſed partly with a mote, as moſt of the ancient ſeats uſed to be for greater ſafety [B].

In the beginning of K. Edward the IIId's reign a fine paſſed between Richard atte Hoo, and Matilda his wife, plaintiffs, and William ſon of John Sayer of Bryche deforc'. of one meſſuage, 80 acres of arable, 6 acr. of meadow, 7 acr. of wood, 7*s.* rent, 1 hen, &c. in Aldham; the right of the ſaid William, who granted them to the ſame Richard and Matilda (e). Oliver at Hoo is mentioned in 1412.

It was originally taken from the demeſnes of Aldhall hall; to which were added ſeveral parcels, purchaſed at different times (f).

William Beriffs Gent. who dyed 21 Novemb. 1594, held, of Charles Cornwallys Eſq; a capital meſſuage called the Hart-place in Aldham, [which we take to be this] and ſome crofts of land called Church and Finches-crofts.—William, his ſon and heir, was then aged 48 (g). One of the daughters of W. Beriffs of Aldham-howe, Gent. was married to Henry Paine of Clees-hall in Alphamſton.

Thomas Turner, of Creppinghall Eſq; had it next, and ſold it to William Glaſcocke Gent. who dyed 30 Septemb. or Decemb. 1635, poſſeſſed of Aldham-Hoo, alias Hoo-place, which he held of Edward Glaſcocke Eſq; as of his maner of Aldham-hall: as alſo of the Old Hoo, or Adams Hoo; the Whithouſe; Church-houſe, &c.——William, his ſon and heir, was then aged 18 years and 7 months (h).

Of Glaſcock it was purchaſed by Thomas White Eſq; above-mentioned.

2. BOURCHIERS-HALL, alias LITTLE FORDHAM.

It took the name of Bourchiers, from its ancient owners, afterwards advanced to the title of Earls of Eſſex. [See under Halſtead.] And Fordham, becauſe ſituated near Ford-ſtreet, or the ſtreet at the Ford there over the river Colne. And it is ſtyled Little, in contradiſtinction to the maner and pariſh of Great Fordham, which is parted from it only by the river.

The houſe ſtands high and pleaſant, little more than a quarter of a mile weſt from Ford-ſtreet.

[Z] One of this family moſt probably married the elder brother of Dr. Thomas Mouffett, as may be inferred from the following ſtory related by the Doctor.

" Alexander with his Friends and Phyſicians wondred to " find Oiſters in the Indian Seas a foot long.

" And in Plinies time (Nat. Hiſt. l. xxxii. c. 6.) they " marvelled at an Oiſter, which might be divided into three " morſels, calling it therefore Tridacnon, by a peculiar name: " but I dare and do truly affirm, that at my eldeſt Bro- " ther's marriage at Aldham-hall in Eſſex, I did ſee a Pelden " Oiſter divided into eight good morſels, whoſe ſhell was " nothing leſs then that of Alexander's." . . . Such large oyſters are accounted by the preſent generation coarſe and ordinary.

This maner is ſuppoſed to be, what in the Domeſday-ſurvey is named Forheda, and then belonged to Richard ſon of Earl Giſlebert; but had, before that, been holden by Wiſgar and Ulmar [C]. This Richard Fitz-Giſlebert was Earl of Brion in Normandy, and Lord of the Honor of Clare in Suffolk; of which Honor was the Lordſhip of Halſted holden by the ſervice of three knights fees, extending into ſeveral adjoyning Pariſhes; and into This among the reſt. Peter, ſon of Richard de Hauſted, granted his whole maner of Halſted, with all its appertenances, to — Abel de St. Martin [D]. And — Robert, couſin and heir of —— William de St. Martin, by deed dated 5 Edw. II. about 1311, conveyed all his maner of Halſted, with its ſeveral members and appertenances to John de Bouſſer, or Bourchier.

Among other appertenances are mentioned all the ſervices and cuſtomary payments of Robert de Power in Little Fordham: For, under the chief Lords was this maner then holden by a family ſurnamed de Power, or Poor.

Robert Power, who dyed in 1328, held in Little Fordham, Aldham, and Great Teye, 1 meſſuage, 180 acres of arable, a water-mill, 16 acres of wood, 7 of meadow, 8 of paſture, and 5*s.* rent,—of Sir Robert de Bouſſer, by the ſervice of 2*s.* per ann. (i).

John Power, his ſon, was ordered, at the court of Abels in Halſtead, to be diſtrained for not paying 50*s.* for his relief (k) [E]. We hear no further of this family here: But the owners of Bourchier's-hall are recorded to be, down to the year 1483, —— Sir Robert Bourchier, who dyed in 1328. —— Sir John Bourchier in 1400. —— Sir Bartholomew Bourchier, in 1409. —— Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Bartholomew, married firſt to Sir Hugh Stafford, afterwards to Sir Lewis Robeſſart: She departed this life 1 July 1433, as did —— Henry Bourchier Earl of Eſſex, 4 April 1483 (l). [See above, under Riven-hall.] Anne, only daughter of the laſt, was married to

William Parr Eſq; advanced to the titles of Lord Parr, Earl of Eſſex, and Marquis of Northampton. She was afterwards divorced from him for her incontinency. But, before that, ſhe had ſettled upon him, by fine, in 1541, her eſtates, and this maner among the reſt. He being attainted of high-treaſon 18 Auguſt, 1553, for eſpouſing the Lady Jane's intereſt againſt Qu. Mary I. all his lands became forfeited to the Crown, and Qu. Mary granted them to

Sir Robert Rocheſter, Comptroller of her houſhold, who by will gave them, and This among the reſt, to the Nunnery of Syon, in Middleſex. But it being ſuppreſſed in 1559, and the revenues coming again to the crown, Qu. Elizabeth, 5 July 1560, regranted this, with the others, to William Marquis of Northampton. (m) Of him it was purchaſed by George Sayer Eſq; who paid ingreſs fine in the 17th of Qu. Elizabeth.—The Sayer family was of conſiderable ſtanding in this county. William, and John, Sayer, were of Birch, in the reign of K. Edward II. and III. (n). — William Sayer of Coppeford dyed in 1348 [F]; as did his ſon — John in 1350 [G], whoſe ſon was named John. And — Richard, ſon of John, in 1367, leaving —John, his ſon and heir (o). — Matthew Sayer, and Oliver at Hoo, held lands and tenements in Aldham, and Great Teye, in 1411 (p).—Afterwards we find this family ſettled in Colcheſter, where they were eminent for their wealth, and bore the higheſt offices in the corporation, [as may be ſeen in the Hiſtory of Colcheſter, Book II. p. 7.] John Sayre, Alderman, dyed in 1509, and his ſon —John in 1563. — GEORGE, ſon of this laſt, and purchaſer of this eſtate, was an Alderman, and ſeveral times one of the Bailiffs of the ſaid town. He dyed 19 May 1577, poſſeſſed of the maner of Little Fordham, alias Bourchers-hall, with a water-mill, 2 acres of arable, and half an acre of meadow; alſo of the maners of Abbots, and Motes, in Stanway, Lexden, Copford, &c. and of the maner of Odwell, in Geſtinthorp, &c. (q). By his firſt wife, Agnes, one of the daughters and coheirs of Tho. Weſden, or Weſtden, of Lincolnſhire, he had four ſons and three daughters. By his ſecond wife, Frances daughter of Thomas Sammon, he had no iſſue. William, the eldeſt ſon, left no children. Richard, the ſecond ſon, was twice married, but had only a ſon that dyed young, and a daughter that ſurvived him.—George, the youngeſt ſon, married Roſe, daughter of William Cardinal, of Great Bromley, Eſq; and had by her, George; Thomas, ſeated at Bowton in Suffolk; Mary, wife of John Pryttyman, of the ſame county; and Frances, wife of Robert Browne of Colcheſter. He dyed 3 July 1596, and —— George, his eldeſt ſon and heir, then aged 30 years, ſucceeded him (r). He was knighted 11 June 1607 (s), and by his wife, Dorothy—daughter of John Higham, of Norfolk, had theſe ſix children. John; Anne; Suſan; Higham, who was buried 1 March 1658; Francis; and Richard. During the Common-wealth, he was a very buſy Committee-man, as appears by ſeveral letters of his in my poſſeſſion. On the 19th of Auguſt 1658 he was buried here, being aged about 70 (w). He married Eſther or Heſter, daughter of Robert Honywood, of Charing in Kent Eſq; by whom he had, George; and Dorothy, wife of John Barnaby, of Colcheſter. —— George Sayer Eſq; the only ſon and heir was knighted 2 April 1640 (x), and dying 11 July 1650, in the 36th year of his age, was buried in the Chancel of this Church. By his wife named Jane ..... he had Elizabeth-Charlot, baptized 13 April, 1647, that dyed young: and Eſther, poſthumous, born 29 September, 1650, and baptized 8 Oct. who became his ſole heir [I].

Upon the failure of the male-line, Bourchier's-hall, which had hitherto been a good ſeat, became uninhabited, and fell to decay: ſo that, in proceſs of time, it was taken down, there being only a few of the offices left for a farm-houſe. A brick building hath ſince been erected for a granary.

Eſther Sayer paid ingreſs Fine for this eſtate, after the death of her grand-father, John Sayer Eſq; above-mentioned. She was married to the learned Sir John Marſham of Caxton in Kent, Bart. and a fine was levied of her eſtates in Hilary-term 1674-5, Sir Cyril Wyche plaintiff, and the ſaid Eſther deforc.' for the uſe and behoof of the ſaid Sir John and Eſther, and Their Heirs. They had an only ſon —— Sir John Marſham, Bart. who dyed without iſſue. She herſelf was buried at Aldham, 27 Octob. 1716. Upon her deceaſe, Bourchier's-hall, and her other eſtates, according to the fine and ſettlement above-mentioned, fell to

Sir Robert Marſham Bart. of Buſhy-hall in Hertfordſhire, heir at law to her late huſband and ſon; namely nephew to her huſband, and firſt couſin to her ſon. He was created Lord Romney 25 June 1716, and dyed 8 Novemb. 1724.

Of Lord Romney this Eſtate was purchaſed by Thomas White Eſq;

Adjoyning on the Weſt-north-weſt to Bourchier's-hall, is a parcel of land called the WIC; which hath uſually gone along with Bourchier's-hall; and been united with it, as it is at preſent. Part of the Houſe, and fifty-two acres of the land, are in Aldham, the reſt in Chapel.

HILL-FARM, near Ford-ſtreet, ſeems to have been taken out of the demeſnes of Bourchier's-hall, and was alſo purchaſed of Lord Romney by Thomas White Eſq;

Near the Church, CHURCH-HOUSE, otherwiſe Churchman's; and CLAYTON-HALL, once belonging to a family ſurnamed Clayton, were purchaſed of William Glaſcock, Eſq; by Tho. White Eſq; who hath alſo ſome leſſer parcels, and valuable woods: ſo that he is owner of almoſt the whole Pariſh.

Other Eſtates in this Pariſh.

Pakes, and other adjoining parcels, Mrs. Negus's.

Motts, and the Wic, only part of them: lately Boys's Counſellor, now his heirs.

Germaine's, the greateſt part of the land is in Aldham, but the Houſe in Little Tay.

Fullers and Marſcots, are partly in Aldham. See under Marks-Tay.

Bolbekke's, and Hauſpies, eight fields, 40 acres, near Fidlers-wood. The Farm-houſe is in Copford. This formerly belonged to St. John's Abbey; afterwards to the Lucas family, now to the Lord Viſcount Royſton.

Part of Archendine's, or Argentine's, near the river.

Mr. Antony Bental, John Dow, the widow Folkes, John Daymon, Richard Francis, Edward Upcher, have alſo ſmall Eſtates here.

Bourchier's-hall Wood, and Bad Wood, belong to Thomas White Eſq; Eaſt-wood to George Creſſener Eſq; and there are other cluſters of timber trees diſperſed about the pariſh.

Ford-Street, is a village or hamlet in Aldham-pariſh, at the bottom of the hill on the ſouth-ſide of the river, and about a mile and half from this Church.

A Fair is yearly here on Eaſter-Tueſday, and another Novemb. 1.

From this pariſh an ancient Family took the ſurname of Aldham.—Roger and Robert de Aldham were living about the beginning of King Henry the Third's reign: as was — Peter de Aldham in 1246. And — Gilbert, and Robert de Aldham are mentioned ſome years later (y).

Charitable Gifts.

This pariſh receives twenty ſhillings a year, part of the gift left by Thomas Love of Little Horkſley, to twelve Pariſhes in this neighbourhood. [See under Little Horkſley.]

There is an eſtate in this pariſh, near the Parſonage, conſiſting of a houſe, barn, and ſix cloſes of land, containing ſixteen acres; which hath from time immemorial been for the benefit of the Poor here. The name of it is Crapes; but it is not known when and by whom it was given.

[H] So it is in the Inquiſition, 7 Caro. Sept. 8. but it appears by the Regiſter-book of Aldham, that he was buried the 3d day of March: ſo that he dyed about the firſt of March. His Epitaph, legible in Mr. Symonds's time, is now worn out.

[I] Arms of Sayer. Gules, a chevron between 3 martlets, argent; a chief ermine. Creſt. On a torſe a naked Arm bent, proper, eſcarfioned at the wriſt, argent and gules, gripping in the hand a wolf's, or dragon's head eraſed, vert.

It is veſted in Truſtees: and the Rent is diſtributed, yearly, on Candlemas-day, or ſoon after, in the Pariſh Church, to ſixteen poor inhabitants of Aldham, not receiving weekly collection or alms, and not having his or her rent paid: And if any perſon receiving this Charity, ſhall, within one year next after, receive any weekly alms or collection of this pariſh, he or ſhe ſhall be incapable of receiving any of the ſaid Charity for one whole year then after. And no poor inhabitant is capable of being choſen into the ſaid charity, who has not been married five years at the leaſt, being his firſt marriage. When the number of feoffees is reduced to four; theſe four feoffees, and the ſurvivors or ſurvivor of them; and his or their heirs, are to chuſe others to the number of nine or ten inhabitants of this pariſh, and their heirs.

The CHURCH conſiſts of a body and ſouth-iſle; but the Chancel is only of one pace; the whole tyled. On the weſt end of the Church there is a ſmall erection of timber, rough-caſt, and tyled, containing two Bells.

The Advowſon of this Church antiently belonged to the Goldington-family, lords of the maner of Aldham-hall. In 1315, Sir William de Goldington gave it to the warden and chaplains of a Chantry founded by him at the altar of the Virgin Mary, in the Church of St. Margaret of Thele, in Hertfordſhire, and to their ſucceſſors; to ſay maſs for the ſouls of himſelf, and of Margaret his wife, and of his anceſtors and heirs; alſo for the ſouls of Robert de Vere Earl of Oxford, lord paramount of this maner, of Thomas his ſon, and their anceſtors and heirs, and the ſouls of all the faithful deceaſed, daily, for ever. Both the King and the ſaid Earl confirmed this grant, with licence to appropriate this Church of Aldham to the college of Thele. The next year, in December, Gilbert de Segrave, Biſhop of London, appropriated this Church accordingly to that College; and with the conſent of Sir William de Goldington, founder of the College and patron of this Church, appointed a Vicarage here, reſerving the Collation thereto to himſelf and his ſucceſſors, Biſhops of London, for ever. But dying before this buſineſs could be quite ſettled; his next ſucceſſor Richard de Newport, Biſhop of London, effectually finiſhed 3 Auguſt 1317, what his predeceſſor did not live fully to accompliſh: ſo that from this time here was a vicarage ordained and endowed, and the Collation to it belonged to the Biſhops of London. About 113 years after this, William Grey, Biſhop of London, by virtue of a Licence, dated 14 March 1430, annexed the College of Thele, 1 April that year, to the Hoſpital, or Priory, of Elſing Spittle in London. However, the Biſhops of London continued to preſent to this Church as a Vicarage, till 14 June 1474, when Thomas Kemp, Biſhop of London collated to it as a Rectory; and his ſucceſſors have done the ſame ever ſince.

Adjoining to the north-ſide of this Church, and opening into it, there was an old Chapel; which being ruinous hath been taken down many years. There were ſome Arms in it, as ſet down below [K].

This Church is an exempt to the Biſhop of London and his Commiſſary, and wholly free from Archidiaconal Juriſdiction.

TAY TEY

This name is derived from the Saxon ꞇeaȝh, incloſure; or from Þeȝen, an officer, a ſervant of the King; theſe having been originally, as we may ſuppoſe, ſome of the Thane-lands (z). To this day Great Tay is vulgarly called Tayn.

There are in this Hundred three Pariſhes, contiguous to each other, known by the name of Tay; and diſtinguiſhed by the ſeveral appellations of Marks-Tay, Great, and Little Tay.

15. TEY, TEYE, or TAY, MARKS,

Lies eaſt ſouth-eaſt of the two others, and ſouth ſouth-weſt from Aldham. It is called Merks, or Marks, Tay, from a family ſurnamed de Merk, by whom it was anciently holden under the Maundevilles, lords paramount; from whom it alſo received the appellation of Tay Maundeville: And ſometimes it is ſtyled Tay ad ulmos, Tay at Elms, by reaſon of ſome very large Elms formerly growing in it, eſpecially on the road to Coggeſhall. And in this ſoil Elms are obſerved particularly to thrive.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign this Pariſh belonged to Uluric; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, was one of the 40 Lordſhips, given by William the Conqueror to Geffrey de Magnavilla, or Maundeville [L]; in whoſe poſterity, Earls of Eſſex, it continued till it centered into the Bohuns Earls of Eſſex, Hereford, and [K] In the window of this Chapel were painted two eſcucheons. 1. A lion rampant, over it a bend, and at the top a mullet. 2. A lion rampant, over it a bend componé. .... On the glaſs were alſo painted the effigies of a man and a woman, with hands lifted up in form of devotion; and having on their coats the laſt mentioned eſcucheon, but that on the woman's impaled, ſable, 3 martlets, argent. The man had a ſword by his ſide. Under them was this inſcription in old letters, "Orate pro aia Jacobi .... 1ee "qui iſtam Capellam in honorem ſce Anne matris Marie "pmo fundavit." In the next pane were the effigies of a man and a woman in poſture of devotion: having on their cloaths, a ſpread eagle within a border engrailed; and the lion with a bend componé, as above.

In the eaſt window of the ſouth iſle, were theſe three eſcucheons. 1. Tey. Argent, a feſſe between 3 martlets in chief, azure: a chevron in point of the ſecond. 2. Gules, a croſs flory. 3. Argent, a croſs gules. Underneath in old letters. "Orate pro aiab' Robti Atteye & Jöhis Atteye "...nfactor'...hujus loci.' So that the foreſaid Chapel, and this iſle, ſeemed to have been built by the Tey family.

Northampton: And, Mary, coheir of the laſt Humfrey Bohun, brought it in marriage to her huſband Henry Plantagenet, Earl of Derby, Hereford, and Lancaſter; by which means it became part of the Duchy of Lancaſter.

Here is only one Maner.

Marks-Tay-hall ſtands about a quarter of a mile eaſt from the London-road. It hath been for many years converted into a farm-houſe. There was a moat round it, part of which ſtill remains.

Under the great Earls above-mentioned, it was holden by a family ſurnamed de Merk, who had large poſſeſſions at Little Berdfeild, Latton, Ardley, and other parts of this county, ſoon after the conqueſt [M]. Henry de Merk, who dyed 52 Hen. III. held the maner of Tey at Elms of the Earl of Hereford for one knight's-fee.—— Henry his ſon (a), held, in Tey de Mandevill, of Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford, 280 acres of arable, 4 acres of paſture, and 60 acres of wood in the King's foreſt, by the ſervice of four knights-fees.——Henry his ſon was eleven years old (b). Either he dyed young; unmarried; or, for reaſons unknown to us, did not ſucceed. For, in the 4th of Edw. I.

Alda, daughter of Geffrey Dynant, held this maner of Teye at Elms by the ſervice of four knights fees.——Andrew was her next heir (c) [N].

Soon after, it came by marriage into a family which from thence took the ſurname of Tey, and were a long time of conſiderable note in this county. Walter de Teye had ſummons to parliament 28 Edw. I. (d).

The firſt of the name that occurs, was Simon de Tey, whoſe ſon— Walter de Tey, married Dorothy, daughter of .... Audham, or Aldham [O], and had by her — Richard his ſon: He married Helena daughter of ..... Tendring; and their ſon and heir, — Edward, married Chriſtian Bottingham; whoſe iſſue, — Roger de Tay marrying Edith de la Haye, had by her —— Thomas, that had by Emma his wife, daughter of .... Nawton, — Martin de Tey: He married Margaret, daughter of ... Fitzwalden, and their ſon and heir, — Robert de Tey took to wife —daughter of Duckett [P]. Their ſon — Sir William Tey marrying Alicia Merks, obtained in her right this whole manner [Q]. They had their ſon and heir — Sir Robert Tey: who married Agnes Bawd [R], and by her had — Sir Robert Teye, who, at the time of his deceaſe, 5 Hen. VI. 1426, or 1427, was poſſeſs'd of a very large eſtate, as appears by the particulars below. [S]. He married Joan daughter of .... Norbury, by whom he had two ſons, John, and Thomas; which laſt ſettled at Layer de la Hay. — John Teye Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, is ſaid in the genealogy to have been ſettled at Brightwell-hall in Suffolk. He was 19 years old at the time of his father's deceaſe (e), and dying in 1440, or 1441, left by Mary, daughter of — Huſſey, — John, his ſon and heir, aged 7 years (f), who much leſſened

[P] This Robert was living in the reign of K. Edward II. In the 18th of that King, 29 January 1324, a fine paſſed at Weſtminſter between Robert ſon of Robert de Tey, plaintiff, and Ralph ſon of Tho. de Merks deforc'. of the third part of the maner of Tey Mandevill, which Elias ſon of John Colcheſter, and Julian, held under the notion of a dowry for this Julian. The ſaid Ralph acknowledged that third part to be the right of Robert de Tey aforeſaid.

Fines 18 Ed. II.

The pedigree before us does not take notice of two Roberts, father, and ſon, living about this time. One of them dyed 7 Octob. 1360, and was buried in the middle of the chancel here, under a flat ſtone fairly inlaid with braſſes, and this French epitaph. his eſtate. He dyed in 1462, and — Henry his ſon, then aged ſeven years (g), and afterwards knighted, and Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1488 and 1500 (h), ſucceeded. He deceaſed 9 Septemb. 1510 [T], and by Margaret his wife, daughter and coheir of John Grene of Goſfeild, which died 24 Septemb. 1520 (i), he had ——Thomas, born in 1483; William; and John.——Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, was knighted; and dying 31 Decemb. 1540 [V], left four daughters coheirs; namely, Margaret, wife of Sir John Jermye; Elizabeth, wife of Marmaduke Nevill Eſq; third ſon of Richard Nevill Lord Latimer; Mary, wife of Sir Thomas Nevill brother of Marmaduke; and Frances, married firſt to William Bonham Eſq; ſecondly to Edward Bocking; and laſtly to Tho. Bonham (k). He held the maner of Markes Tey, and moſt of the reſt as above [W].

Marmaduke Nevill Eſq; had the maner of Markes Tey, in right of his wife, and other eſtates in this neighbourhood; as mentioned below [X]. He dyed 28 May 1545, leaving — Chriſtopher his ſon and heir, aged upwards of 6 years (l); and a daughter named Elianore. The ſon moſt probably dyed young, for we hear no further of him.

Elianore, the daughter, was married to Tho. Tey, of Layer de la Hay, Eſq; and afterwards to — Thomas Warren Eſq; The reverſion of this maner, for want of lawful heirs, was ſecured to the right heirs of Sir Thomas Tey deceaſed, which William Tey of Layer de la Hay Eſq; had purchaſed of them for himſelf and his heirs.

About the year 1592, William Tey Eſq; [Y] conveyed this maner to Queen Elizabeth.

And ſhe granted it to

Charles Cornwallis Eſq; who held a court here in 1596. Soon after it was purchaſed of him by William Howſe, citizen and mercer of London. He dyed 9 Febr. 1601, poſſeſſed of this maner and other eſtates [Z]; and was ſucceeded by his ſon and heir — William, then aged upwards of eighteen years (m): who ſold the premiſſes to

Francis Nicholſon, citizen and mercer of London; that held his firſt court here 29 April 1625. His ſon — Francis Nicholſon Eſq; held his firſt court here 20 January 1657 [A]. Afterwards he ſold this eſtate to

Peter de la Noy Eſq; who kept his firſt court here 27 Janu. 1679. Of him, or his heirs, it was purchaſed by

Peter Braſier, of London Eſq; who kept his firſt court here in 1707, and not long after ſold it again to

John London, of London, Eſq; [B]. He kept his firſt court here 8 April 1713. And, about 20 years after, alienated it to Robert Marſh, of Baſinghall-ſtreet, in London Eſq; a Blackwell-hall factor, and ſeveral times Deputy-Governor of the Bank; who hath alſo an eſtate at Ford-ſtreet, and another at Bures. He hath very well repaired and improved the Maner-houſe. A fine field of 50 acres by the ſide of the London-road is part of this eſtate: but the eaſt end of it is in the pariſh of Aldham.

This maner hath Courts leet and baron, and about 17 copyhold tenants.

Other Eſtates in this Pariſh.

Part of the Eſtate called Fullers, belonging to George Wegg Eſq; the houſe; part of the orchard, and a field called Songers, on the ſouth ſide of the London road, are in this pariſh: as are, on the north ſide of the ſaid road, Little Sand-pit-field; part of one of the High-fields 5 acres; part of the little field over-againſt the orchard about 5 roods; part of Long field, about 2 acres and a half: and below it Marks-Tay-meadow.

John Danyell of Meſſing Eſq; who dyed 5 Sept. 1556, held 100 acres of paſture called Dolmeſhey, in Markes Tey &c. and 7*s.* 3*d.* rent, iſſuing out of lands and tenements called Sayers and Birch-crofts in Copford and Great Birch; and 4 acres of arable called Gylſley; all of John Danyell Eſq; and Elizabeth his wife, as of the maner of Markes Tey, alias Tey Mandefeld (p): [which ſhews that this maner then belonged to them, tho' it is not mentioned elſewhere.] . . . At preſent, Dolmeſhey is divided into two; Long Dolmeſhey,

And Short Dolmeſhey, part of the eſtate of C. Gray Eſq; in Eaſt-thorp.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Andrew, ſtands about a quarter of a mile from the road to Coggeſhall, and within ſight of the London road. It is ſmall, being of one pace with the chancel, all tyled. The Belfrey is built of brick and ſtone, and the upper part of thick wooden planks fixed in grooves between ſtuds; within which are two Bells. At the top there is a wooden ſpire ſhingled, Both Church and Chancel are in very good repair, through the commendable care of the late Rector Mr. Bree.

This Church was originally part of the Fee of Mandevill here, and given by ſome of that family to the Priory of St. Botolph in Colcheſter, with all its appertenances, which were confirmed to them by K. Richard I. 4 Decemb. 1189. [C] The Rectory, or great Tithes, were appropriated to their Houſe, and a Vicarage ordained, of which they continued patrons and proprietaries till their diſſolution. Then they were granted, in 1536, by K. Henry VIII. with the reſt of that Priory's poſſeſſions, to Sir Thomas Audeley, Chancellor of the Court of Augmentation (q).

The 22d of Septemb. 1546, near two years after Lord Chancellor Audeley's deceaſe, King Henry VIII. granted to John Edmonds, alias Bawldwyn, the Rectory and Church, and Advowſon of the Vicarage, of Marks Tey (r). Edmonds obtained a licenſe the 3d of November following to alienate them to Thomas Lawrence, or Lawrens (s). And John Lawrence had leave, 8 Novemb. 1555, to ſell the third part of them to Tho. and Robert Lawrence, his brothers (t). —Thomas Lawrence dyed poſſeſſed of them 14 Septemb. 1614. —— John his ſon was then aged upwards of 30 years (u). —— Thomas Lawrence, who had a third part of them, dyed 15 Octob. 1617, and — Thomas his ſon and heir, was aged upwards of fifteen years. (w) — John Lawrence, who departed this life 11 Octob. 1628, held the whole premiſſes both Rectory and Advowſon of the Vicarage, and —— John his ſon and heir was aged 30 years and upwards (x).

In 1664, they belonged to John Morris of Weſtminſter Gent. and Millicent his wife. And in 1668, Peter Otger of London, merchant, granted them to Francis Nicholſon Eſq; who had the Maner.

The Vicarage was ſo poor, that for 169 years together it had not been worth any one's acceptance, or inſtitution: and it was holden ſome time by ſequeſtration (y). But the generous Biſhop Comton purchaſed the Parſonage-houſe, with the Glebe of about 35 acres, and the Tithes of all the Eſtates in the pariſh, except ſuch as belonged to the then Lord of the Maner; and made this a very comfortable Living: which he gave with ſome others, to Balliol-college in Oxford, of which he was Viſitor. It is not rated at all in the King's books for Firſt-fruits and Tenths.

Mr. W. Bree the late Rector, built a very good Parſonage-houſe, which ſtands conveniently near the London-road, and made Gardens, and other great improvements.

16. LITTLE TAY, is weſt of Marks-Tay, and ſouth of Great Tay. It is juſtly ſtyled Little, as being one of the leaſt Pariſhes in this County. For the Rental of it, is only about 20*l.* per ann. And it contains but ſeven Houſes. In effect, it conſiſts only of ſmall parcels, or bits, of Eſtates which moſtly lye in the adjoyning Pariſhes.

In old Records it is ſometimes called Tey Godmare.

The Demeſne lands of it border on Fering; and it was undoubtedly included within that Pariſh, at the time of the ſurvey, as belonging to Weſtminſter-Abbey. For the Abbot and Convent were all along poſſeſſed of the Patronage of Little Tay till their ſuppreſſion.

In 1353, Richard de Rok gave to that Abbey, twenty-four acres of arable land in this Pariſh and Fering, &c. (z).

The Biſhop of London is Lord of the ſoil, or what may be called a Maner, in this pariſh.

The lands in this pariſh, and the owners of them, are —— Germaine's Mr. John Goodell; but by far the greateſt part of the lands is in Aldham.——Godbolts by the road ſide going to

The Church is very ſmall, and of one pace with the Chancel; all tyled. In a ſmall wooden turret, one Bell.

Upon converting the Abbey of Weſtminſter into a Biſhopric, and conferring it on Thomas Thirlby; K. Henry VIII. gave him, in 1540, among other things, the Advowſon of this Rectory, in pure alms (a). But Qu. Mary I. at her acceſſion to the Crown, diſſolving again that Biſhopric; ſhe granted March 3, 1553, this rectory to Edmund Boner, Biſhop of London, and his ſucceſſors for ever (b); in whoſe collation it hath remained from that time.

The Parſonage-houſe, barn, and ſtable have been rebuilt by Griffith Williams, the preſent Rector.

Eraſmus Laud, Rector of this pariſh in 1641, is chiefly memorable for the cruel uſage he ſuffered from the Colcheſter mob; merely, as we may ſuppoſe, on account of his bearing the ſame ſurname as Archbiſhop Laud. Otherwiſe, his preferment was not likely to render him liable either to envy, or perſecution (c).

17. GREAT TAY,

As its name implies, is the largeſt of the three pariſhes called Tay.

This Diſtrict, in the Saxon times, was in the poſſeſſion of one Freeman; but, at the making of the general ſurvey, it was in Euſtace Earl of Bologne [D].

In this Pariſh are three Maners.

1. The maner of Great Tay. 2. Uphall.
3. Bacon's with Flories.

1. The Maner of Great Tay.

The ancienteſt poſſeſſors of it upon record, after Earl Euſtace, were the noble family of Fitz-walter, of which you have an account under Woodham-Walter, which was there

Robert Fitz-walter held it, A° 1211. 13 Joh. of the Honor of Bologne, by the ſervice of one Knights-fee (d). The ſucceding Lords of it, in this family, were — Robert, who dyed in 1328. He had alſo the Advowſon of the Church (e). —— John dyed 18 Octob. 1361, holding this maner of the King in cap. as parcel of the Barony of Fitz-walter (f)——His ſon Walter, held it of the King as of the Honor of Bologne, by Knights-ſervice; and the Advowſon of the Church. He dyed in September 1386—Walter held the ſame, and dyed the 8th of Henry IV. —Walter held the ſame, and dyed in 1432, without iſſue male (g). Of his two daughters, Elizabeth; and Anne married to Tho. Ratcliffe, Eſq; Neither of them had this maner. For it was next in

Sir John Montgomery, a man famous for many military exploits (h), of whom we give a particular account under Falkbourn, where the family was ſeated. He dyed in the 27th of Henry VI. (i) having entailed this maner by will (k): and was ſucceeded in it by his ſon—Sir Thomas, created Knight of the Garter by K. Edward IV. a man of great valour and eminence (l). In his will, dated 28 July 1489, he diſpoſed of this eſtate in the following maner. 'And, as for the maner of Much Teye, which is entailed according to my father's laſt will, I will that after the deceaſe of my ſiſter Ann Mongomery, and after all ſuch yſſue ſpended as it is entayled to; the money to be diſpoſed for me, my wife, and my brother John, and Ann his wife. My Executor, upon default of yſſue, to have the nomination of the Church of Much Teye (m).' He dyed 2d January 1494 (n), without iſſue. Whereupon his ſiſter Philippa, probably by vertue of the entail juſt now mentioned, brought this maner to her huſband,

Francis Bryan, Eſq; who had licenſe (o), in 1542, to ſell it to

Thomas Lord Audeley, Lord Chancellor; of whom an account may be ſeen under Bere-Church in Colcheſter. He left it by his will dated 19 April 1544, to his executors for twelve years; and, after that, to his brother and male heir, Thomas Audeley Eſq; for life; and after his death, to his eldeſt ſon Thomas Audeley (p). Thomas the father dyed in 1557 (q). As did Thomas the ſon 11 Decemb. 1572 (r). —— Robert, ſon and heir of this latter, born 14 March 1556, enjoyed it after him: He dyed 27 Septemb. 1624 (ſ). —

His ſon Henry, then aged 19 years and upwards, and afterwards knighted, ſucceeded him, in this, and his other Eſteates. And he was ſucceeded in the ſame by his two ſons,——Thomas, who dyed in 1697, without iſſue, and inteſtate: And —Henry, who dyed 1 Septemb. 1714 (t). This laſt was a weak and wicked man, that waſted his Eſtates, and ſold this maner, to

George Creſſener of London, Eſq; deſcended from the Creſſeners of Buers-Hamlet, and Earl's Colne. He married Maria-Anna daughter of Nath. Payler, of Nun-Monckton near York, Eſq; by which he had Edward, a Hamburgh-merchant; George, Grocer, afterwards Reſident at Liege, and Envoy to the Diet at Ratiſbon; Payler, that dyed in Jerſey; Nathanael. And, Elizabeth, married to Samuel Tuffnell of Langleys, Eſq; and Anna-Maria, to Col. Petit; beſides ſeveral other children that lived but a little while: He dying Novemb. 4. 1722, was buried the 8th in the family-vault, within the ſouth iſle of the Church of Earl's-Colne. His wife was jointured in this Maner, among other Eſtates, and enjoyed it till her deceaſe, in Octob. 1759.

The Maner-houſe ſtood about half a mile N. N. W. from the Church. It was burnt down many years ago, and not re-built. But a New Barn was built near it, for the Demeſne lands, which are lett for about 80*l.* a year; upon which account they are called New-Barn-Lands. There were Moats round the houſe, which are levelled and ploughed up. It was a ſeat of the Montgomeries.

This Lordſhip was formerly of a large extent, and had the following Knights-fees belonging to, or dependent upon it.—The maners of Ramſey-hall, Wrabnaſe, and Stondon, in three parts (u).—The maner of Eaſt New Hall in Ramſey, by fealty and 5 s. rent (w).—Half a fee in Pleſhe, holden by the Maſter of the College there, by homage and fealty. — Bacons in this pariſh, by ſervice and half a knight's-fee. —Flories, alſo in this pariſh.—The maner of Parkers alias Roydon-hall.—The maner of Langenhoo.—The maner of Avenells in Gamlinghay. —The maner of Steeple-Morden, alias Beyſeſfee, in Cambridge-ſhire. — Martynage-Hall in Oxford (x).

2. The Maner of UP-HALL; antiently named Walter at Tey's.

The Houſe ſtands on the S. W. ſide of the pariſh, not far from the Coggeſhall road; and the Eſtate is about 156 acr.

This maner hath moſtly been in the ſame hands as that of Great Tay. Particularly the Fitz-Walters and Mongomerys.

For, the 16th of Rich. II. Walter Fitz-walter held, one meſſuage, 140 acr. of arable land, 15 acr. of wood, and 1 of meadow; called Uphall, of the Kiug as of the Honor of Bologne (y)—Walter held the ſame the 9th of Henry IV. it being then called 140 acr. of arable, 12 of wood, and 8 of meadow (z).—And Walter who died in 1432, was alſo poſſeſſed of it (a).

Next, Sir John Mongomery held Uphall, and 1 carucate of land [E], 6 acr. of meadow, 12 of paſture, 12 of wood, and 40s. rent in Great and Little Tay (b). And ſo did — Sir Tho. Mongomery.

Their heir Francis Bryan Eſq; (and ſometimes called a Knight) ſold Uphall, with the maner of Great Tay, to

Thomas Lord Audeley; who gave them to his brother Thomas. But this Thomas's eldeſt ſon, jointly with his wife Katharine Southwell, alienated Uphall to Thomas Stanſtede of Great Tay: He dyed poſſeſſed of it 14 Novemb. 1573, leaving two daughters, Mary then nine years of age, and Abigail (c).

Mary became the wife of —— Shawe; and ſhe dying 14 Novemb. 1592, left her ſon and heir—Henry Shawe (d), who held it in 1613.

3. BACONS with FLORIES, formerly two Maners, now one; denominated from their ancient owners.

It once belonged to Roger Fitz-Richard; and is ſuppoſed to be, partly, what Dionyſia Bacon held in 1351, of the inheritance of Margery Bacon, daughter and heireſs of Edward Bacon, at Teye, Aldham, &c. (e).

Flories lyes in the N. W. part of the pariſh towards Coggeſhall. It contains by eſtimation 240 acres.

William Calthorp held, in 1421, 9 Hen. V. two parts of the maner of Great Tay, called Flories, and the reverſion of the third part of the ſame; after the death of . . . . . wife of Bartholomew Bacon, who held it for the term of her life; of the Lord Fitz-walter.

And a certain Maner in the ſame vill called Bacons, of the ſaid Lord Fitz-walter.

William, ſon of Sir John Calthorp, and grandſon of the aforeſaid Sir William, was his couſin and next heir, of the age of eleven years (f).

The next poſſeſſors of them we hear of, were the Turners. For Chriſtiana Turner held her firſt court here 24 Octob.

It was next in the Smyths of Lammarſh. For John Smyth of that place Gent. and Andrew his ſon and heir, ſold this eſtate, 1 Nov. 1645, to

William Stebbing of Much Tay Gent. who, jointly with Roſe his wife, ſold it again, 29 April 1650, to Chriſtopher Scarlet of Nayland Gent. And this laſt, by his will dated Sept. 23, 1650, gave the whole maner to his ſon — Thomas. But, 28 November 1657, Stephen Smyth, Eſq; commenced a ſuit with this Thomas, about the Maner. The Judge and Jury thought, both had an equal right; and ſo it was determined, 12 Nov. 1664. Whereupon, they releaſed a moiety to each other; and it was equally divided between them, and their names entered jointly on the rolls. Accordingly John Smyth Eſq; and Thomas Scarlet, Gent. kept court here June 1, 1675, and again 18 June 1679.—Tho. Scarlet of Bergholt, by his will dated 11 Dec. 1705, gave this eſtate to — Thomas Scarlet, ſon of his brother John. This Thomas, juſt now mentioned, ſold it April 23, 1713, to John Littel; and he, and Tho. Smyth Eſq; kept court 31 Auguſt 1713. But, on the 23d of March following, Mr. Smyth ſold his moiety of the maner of Bacons with Flories to Mr. Littel, who kept court alone May 22, 1714.—His daughter that was married to Thomas Bridge, Gent. and afterwards to . . . . Foſter, is the preſent owner.

Other conſiderable Eſtates in this Pariſh, that are no Maners: viz. The Brook, Warrens, Trumpington's, &c.

The BROOK,

is ſo named becauſe it is ſituated near the Brook, which runs through this pariſh. The Houſe is large, and ſtands above a quarter of a mile S. from the Church.

By the antient writings, it appears, that where the capital Meſſuage, Barns, and Out-houſes now are, was a cluſter of tenements, or a little village.

And from thence it further appears, that the poſſeſſors of the Eſtate have been, the Families of Senlanant, Germayne, Biſkele, Hikkes, Cook, Mogg, Potel, Tylenoke, Swanborne, Meryld, Brewer, Waryn, Wode, Moſe, Tebawd, Smyth, Stanſted, Mootham, Lingwood, Aylward, &c.

The Moothams were longeſt in poſſeſſion, namely, till 1611, when they conveyed the eſtate to

John Eldred, of Colcheſter: And he, in 1628, ſold it to William Stebbing, Gent. who married Anne, widow of Henry Parke. He dyed in June 1645, leaving iſſue — William, his eldeſt ſon and heir; and Solomon, to whom he gave the eſtate of Wareyn's; and Hannah, and Mary. William, juſt now mentioned, had 2 wives. 1. Roſe — by which he had ſix daughters; and two ſons, who both dyed yonng. 2. By his ſecond wife, Hannah Hunt, he had — William, who died unmarried; Hannah, Elizabeth, Mary; and — Solomon, that married Mrs. Anne Creffield, widow of William Brewer of Lamberts in this pariſh, Gent. He dyed in February 1701-2, leaving iſſue — Anne; and Elizabeth, which dyed 11 Jan. 1751-2, unmarried. Anne, 6th Febr. 1739-40, became the wife of Philip Morant, the publiſher of theſe papers, and hath only one daughter — Anna-Maria.

Twelve pounds a year, part of this Eſtate, lyeth in the pariſh of Little Tay.

ſo called from a family of that ſurname, which flouriſhed in this pariſh about the reign of K. Henry V.

It was formerly in John Wareyn, or Warren; afterwards in John Bennet (g).

In the laſt century, it was part of the Brook-eſtate; and Mr. William Stebbing gave it to his ſecond ſon — Solomon, as we have ſeen a little above: He was poſſeſſed of it in 1668 (h).

Some years ago it was in Col. Trice. The late Mr. John Lay purchaſed it, and it is now in his ſon.

The Houſe ſtands in Tay-ſtreet, at the Weſt end of the Church-yard; and hath been newly repaired [F].

TRUMPINGTON'S, took its denomination from a family of that ſurname. 'Tis ſometimes called Trumpington's and Fidlers (i).

In the 13th of Edw. I. 1284, or 1285, Robert de Trumpeton held half a carucate of land in Great Tey, worth 60 ſhillings per ann. finding the King one horſe, and one ſack of canevas, and one broch, in his army in Wales, during 40 days, at his own charge (k).

Anno 1302, Robert de Trumpeton enfeoffed Laurence de Stodham, and Anne his wife, in one meſſuage, ninety acres of arable land, ſeven of meadow, twelve of paſture, and ten acres of wood, holden of the King in cap. of the Honor of Bologne; doing ſuit at the Court of Bologne at Wyham, from month to month. The tenant was obliged to find one man, and one ſack to be faſtened with —— [ſkinillo, or ſpineo] in the King's war in Wales, whenever it ſhould happen, for 40 days, at his own charge (l).—— But, in the year 1338, John Oliver, of Stanwey, was found, to hold much the ſame quantity of land, in this pariſh, and on the ſame ſervices (m).

It was ſome time after in the Dorewards of Stanway; for, in 1398, John Doreward and John Clerke had licenſe, to give to the Priory of St. Botolph's in Colcheſter, two meſſuages, one hundred and twenty-four acres of arable, one acre of meadow, twelve of paſture, five of wood, and 16*d.* rent in Great Teye, after the death of Margery Denham (n); which was this very eſtate.

It continued part of the poſſeſſions of that Houſe, till their ſuppreſſion; when it was granted, among many other things, to —— Thomas Lord Audeley. He dyed poſſeſſed of it in 1544; it being deſcribed as conſiſting then, of eight meſſuages, eighty acres of land, thirty acres of meadow, forty acres of paſture, twenty acres of wood, and 30 s. rent, known by the name of Trumpington's in Great Tey (o). To the Audeleys it belonged, till Henry Audeley ſold it, with the maner of Great Tay, to George Creſſener, Eſq; and his widow Maria-Anna enjoyed it till her deceaſe, Octob. 1759. She was buried at Earl's Colne the 21ſt of the ſame month.

The Houſe ſtands half a mile S. W. from the Church; and was anciently moated round.

ESGORE's (p).

was anciently in Sir Francis Bryan Knt. mentioned above. Of him, John Stanſted bought Ewiſgorris & Twitty-lopps; which, A°. 1533, were in Thomas Bonham (q).

They have been many years in the Harrington-family: —— who have alſo lately purchaſed a farm adjoyning, called Cookoo's.

LAMBARD's, or LAMBERT's.

ſo named from an ancient family in the pariſh. The Brewers were ſettled here, in the time of K. Henry VI. and eſpecially in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign; when they enjoyed this eſtate. The laſt of them gave it to his wife, afterwards the wife of Mr. Solomon Stebbing: She ſold it to Philip Lewgar in 1738.

Skynns and Merrilds, alias at Pricke's, belongs to Mr. John Buxton.—Baldwin's, to Tho. Grant, Gent.—Abraham's, to Mrs. Leapingwell. —— Smythies, to Samuel Carter, Gent. —— Woodhouſe, to the heirs of Samuel Saville, Eſq;

At the weſt end of the Church-yard, there is a Houſe, given to the Poore of this pariſh, by Henry Audeley of Bere-Church, Eſq; now converted into a Workhouſe. —— It is called the Gild-hall, vulgarly Yeild-hall, becauſe the Lord keeps his court there.

This Pariſh is joined in the Land-tax with Little Tay.

Here is a Fair yearly on Trinity-monday.

The CHURCH of Great Tay, dedicated to St. Barnabas, ſtands pleaſantly on an eminence; and conſiſts of a Body, and two Iſles, ſupported by maſſy Pillars of the Tuſcan order. Both Church and Chancel are tyled. The North iſle is leaded; and ſo was alſo the South one, till our unhappy civil wars, when the lead was taken off to make bullets, and ſupplied with tyles (r). A large ſquare Tower of ſtone, ſtands in the middle, between the Church and Chancel; in which are eight tuneable Bells. There uſed to ſtand a ſmall leaded ſpire, near the South-weſt corner of this Tower; but it being much decayed, and threatening ruin to the Church, was taken down about the year 1742.

This Church is a Rectory, which is a Sine-cure; and a Vicarage, formerly reputed to be in the gift of the Rector. Only, in the late vacancies other perſons have preſented to the vicarage. The Rectory was appendent to the Maner. [G].

In the 13th of K. Henry IV. John de Bohun Earl of Hereford, Sir Gerard Braybrok, Sir William Marny, John de Boys, and Clement Spice, obtained a licenſe, to found a perpetual Chantry, for two Chaplains to pray for the ſouls of themſelves, &c. in the Priory of the Church of Dunmow: And to give to the Prior and Convent there, the Advowſon of the Church of Great Teye, for their own uſe for ever (s) [H].

CHAPEL

is otherwiſe called PONTISBRIGHT; which name hath in it ſomething inconceivable, and not to be eaſily accounted for; viz. how it ſhould be formed from a Latin and a Saxon, or Engliſh, word, mixed together. What appears moſt probable, is, that it took its name from the Bridge there, over the river Colne; and that this place, and bridge, being in ſome old Deeds deſcribed under the name of Pontis, alias Brycge, or Brigge; ſome ignorant perſons might joyn the two words together, and form from them Pontiſbrycge, or Pontſbright.

In ſome old writings it is called Brightlie the bredge, and Brightlynbregge.

The Lord Chancellor Audeley in the Grant, to himſelf, of St. Botolph's Priory in Colcheſter; which had ſome Penſions and Portions of Tithes in this place [I], gives it the arbitrary name of Alba Capella, or White-Chapel (t); a name, as far as we can find, unknown before. Perhaps the Chapel was then newly whited.

This was, at the time of the ſurvey, part of the pariſh of Great Tay, and holden by Euſtace Earl of Bologne. But, at preſent, the bounds of them two are diſtinct; and ſo are the Rates.

The Street is moſtly within the maner of Creping.

For the conveniency of the Inhabitants of this Hamlet, a Chapel was built here, and conſecrated by Michael Northburgh, who continued Biſhop of London from the year 1355 till his death, Sept. 9, 1361. But, not long after this conſecration, the inhabitants of Pontiſbright gave occaſion to John Raylmers, then Vicar of Great Tay, by their neglect of the Mother-church, to apply to that very Biſhop for redreſs; as the reader may ſee more at large in Mr. Newcourt (n). Afterwards, great controverſies ariſing between the Vicars of Great Tay, and the inhabitants of Pontiſbright, about finding a perſon to officiate in the Chapel; all parties concerned, viz. the Vicar, Rector, and Patron of Tay magna, and the inhabitants of Pontiſbright, agreed to refer the matter to Robert Fitz-hugh, Biſhop of London: who awarded, March 5, 1533, That the inhabitants of Pontſbright ſhall provide and find one fit and honeſt Prieſt to celebrate or perform divine ſervice in their Chapel, whom the Vicar of Great Tey for the time being ſhall be obliged to admit; which Chaplain thus admitted, and his ſucceſſors, ſo ſettled and admitted, ſhall have and receive for their ſalary, All, and all manner of Tithes, Oblations, Obventions, and Profits, which the Vicar of Great Tay was wont to receive from the Inhabitants of the ſaid Vill. And, moreover, for the augmentation of his ſalary, ſhall receive from the Vicar of Great Tey for the time being, the yearly ſum of twenty ſhillings, by two equal portions, at the feaſts of the nativity of St. John the Baptiſt, and the birth of Chriſt. But if the Chaplain is not contented with ſuch ſalary, the inhabitants of the ſaid vill or hamlet ſhall make up to him the reſt of an entire and full ſalary at their own charges, and be obliged ſo to do. And in caſe it ſhould happen, that the ſaid Chapel, through the default of the inhabitants, is left without divine ſervice for the ſpace of two months in any one year, either all together or at different times, and the foreſaid inhabitants do ceaſe to provide a Chaplain for the ſpace of two months; that then it may be lawful for the Vicar of Tey, and his ſucceſſors, to reſume the tithes, obventions, and oblations, of the foreſaid inhabitants, and to apply them to his and their own proper uſe as before. In which caſe it was ordained, that the Vicar ſhould perform, or cauſe to be performed, divine ſervice in the Chapel three times every week, unleſs hindered by infirmity, or other juſt impediment.

The Lands in this Chapelry, that are not free, are holden of the Maners of Gr. Tey, Bacons, and Bourchier's-Hall.

An Eſtate called Pope's is the moſt conſiderable here. It hath been long poſſeſſed by the family of Creſſeild; a branch of which being tranſplanted to Colcheſter, in the laſt century, ſoon outgrew the ſtock from whence it was derived. The eſtate formerly was conſiderable; but hath been curtailed, by being divided among numerous families of children. Part of it, was what is called the Hill-houſe. They were formerly conſiderable in Fordham.

Bacons, a farm belonging to Charles Alexander Eſq; is adjoining to Pope's. And part of—— the Wic, [occupied with Bourchier's-hall] is alſo within the bounds of Chapel. Fifteen acres of this, viz. the Wic-field, 8 acres; and the four acres field; and three acres field adjoining; pay a portion of Tithes to the owner of Pope's.

Mr. Solomon Grimſton's widow hath an eſtate here.——And Iſaac-Jagges Petty——Mr. John Lay——John Morley——Wm. Walford, &c.

Broom-houſe, lyes within this Chapelry, on the North-ſide of the river Colne, and pretty near the ſame. But ſome of the lands lye in Colne-wake; and Mount-Bures. Nay, it is ſaid that the Houſe lies in thoſe three Pariſhes. [See more under Colne-Wake.]

Not far from it is another Eſtate called Vernon's, belonging to the late John Cormel, which is alſo partly in Chapel, and partly in Colne-Wake, and Fordham.

Samuel Hills, of London, long ſince deceaſed, did give a meſſuage, or farm, called Machoons, or Crowch-Houſe, containing by eſtimation fourteen acres and a half of ground, with a garden, lying in Wakes Colne and Chapel, or one of them, for the uſe of the Poor of Gr. Tay, for ever. Sir Wm. Ayloff, Sir Wm. Maxey, Sir Tho. Wiſeman, Knts. Tho. Corbet Dr. of Phyſick, Tho. Walgrave, John Stephens and Robert Sanford Eſqrs. by virtue of a Commiſſion of the King's Majeſty, directed to them out of the Chancery, for inquiry and reformation of deceits and breaches of Truſt, concerning Lands, Tenements, and other things given to charitable uſes, did decree, That the Truſtees of this Eſtate, and their ſucceſſors, ſhould yearly, and every year, for ever, imploy and beſtow the Rents and Profits of the premiſſes, to the uſe and better relief of the poor people inhabiting within the Pariſh of Much Tey, over and be-

This Eſtate lies by the road ſide, almoſt oppoſite to Bots-tye.

Upon the Waſte, on the left hand, as you go from Chapel-ſtreet to Great Tey, there is a little Alms-houſe for two families: which is repaired by the inhabitants of this Chapelry.

The Chapel conſiſts of a body and chancel, of one pace, tyled. At the weſt end on a little wooden turret, a ſpire, ſhingled: In which are two Bells.

In Chapel-ſtreet are twelve houſes; and about the ſame number more, in the reſt of the Chapelry.

There is a Fair in Chapel on the firſt Tueſday after the 11th of June.

COLNE.

In the north-weſt part of this Hundred are theſe four contiguous Pariſhes; Colne-Earl's, Colne-white, Colne-Engaine, and Colne-Wake. The reaſon of their diſtinguiſhing appellations we ſhall give, when we come to treat of them ſeverally. As for the general name of COLNE, it is taken from their ſituation upon the River, which takes its denomination from the ancient Colony of Colcheſter, that it waters in its courſe to the ſea.

18. COLNE-EARL'S, took its name from the noble owners of it, the De Veres, Earls of Oxford. It is otherwiſe called Great Colne; Colne St. Andrew, becauſe to that Saint was dedicated both the Pariſh Church, and the Priory here; from which laſt it is alſo denominated ſometimes Colne-Monachorum. In Domeſday-book, it is ſtyled Coles.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, it was holden by Uluuin, a noble Saxon [K]; whoſe whole eſtate was given by William the Conqueror to Alberic de Vere, huſband of his half-ſiſter Beatrix, that accompanied him in his expedition into England. He was founder of the noble family of the Veres Earls of Oxford.

We ſhall not enter here into a particular detail of that very noble Family; it being more proper to place it under Caſtle-Hedingham, which was their capital ſeat, and the head of their Barony.

The MANER of EARLS-COLNE

belonged to them. Alberic de Vere, the third of the name, was created Earl of Oxford by the Empreſs Maud; which title was confirmed to him by her ſon K. Henry II. And of that family there was a ſucceſſion of twenty Earls, from the year 1137 to 1703, a thing not to be paralleled in the Engliſh Peerage; viz. 4 of the name of Alberic, or Aubrey; 5 of the name of Robert; 1 Hugh; 1 Thomas; 1 Richard; 1 Edward; 1 Henry; and of the name of John no leſs than 6.

K. Henry I. conferred upon Alberic the ſecond and his heirs, the office of Lord Great Chamberlain of England: a place then of great honour, profit and power.

This maner was holden of the King in capite, as were the reſt of the Lordſhips belonging to this Barony, to which was annexed that high office of Lord Chamberlain [L].

In that manner it was holden by Hugh de Vere, Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1263, 47 Hen. III. (x) [M]——Robert de Vere held it alſo in 1296 (y). And —— John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, who dyed 10 March 1512, held the maner of Erles Colne, with thoſe of Heningham-caſtle, Heningham-ſibble, Bentle, Canfeild, Downham, and Bumſtede, and the Honor of Caſtle Heningham; by ſerjeancy, i. e. by the ſervice of being Great Chamberlain of England, with all the profits belonging to that office. This maner of Earles Colne was then valued at 18*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.* (z).

In the ſame family it continued till 2 Septemb. 1583, but with ſome little interruption, as we ſhall ſee preſently.

The Earls of Oxford had here an ancient manſion, or palace, called Hall-place [N]. It ſtood on one ſide of the Church-yard, where the gravel-pit is, by the ſide of the way leading up to Colne-park. There are ſtill ſome remains of the ponds in the fields, on one ſide of the road.

Afterwards they built a Houſe within the Priory cloſe, where they reſided as often as they came hither, till the diſſolution of the Monaſteries.

During the cruel Wars between the Houſes of Lancaſter and York, John de Vere Earl of Oxford, and Aubrey his eldeſt ſon, were attainted, and beheaded, for oppoſing K. Edward IV. and their Eſtates becoming forfeited, This was granted by K. Richard III. to Sir Thomas Montgomery [mentioned above under Falkborne] who kept his firſt court here 8 July 1483.

But John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, was reſtored by K. Henry VII. to This and all the reſt of his poſſeſſions.

In 1548, Edward Duke of Somerſet taking advantage againſt John de Vere Earl of Oxford, got from him a great part of his eſtate to ſave his life; and This among the reſt (a). But upon the Earl's application to parliament in Queen Mary's reign, his eſtate was reſtored to him. It continued in him, and in his ſon, —— Edward Earl of Oxford; till the laſt waſting his patrimony, [as hath been obſerved above more than once] his Steward, Roger Harlackenden Eſq; purchaſed of him 2 Septemb. 1583, for the ſum of 2000*l.* the maner and park of Earls-Colne, with the appertenances, and 5 meſſuages, 5 tofts, 5 gardens, 5 orchards, 1000 acres of arable, 200 of meadow, 600 of paſture, and 45*s.* rent. His ſon and ſucceſſor Henry Earl of Oxford, granted a general releaſe, 2 March 1622, to Richard, and Thomas, Harlackenden, ſons of the ſaid Roger (b).

The Harlackenden family is originally from the pariſh of Wood-Church in Kent, within the Hundred of Blackbourn; where they had for many centuries their eſtate and habitation (c). The firſt mentioned, is —— William Harlackenden Eſq; who is ſaid to have dyed 30 April 1081, the 15th of William the Conqueror, and to have been buried in the South Chancel of Wood-Church, called it ſeems, Harlackenden's Chancel; where is reported to have been an Epitaph for him [O]. His ſucceſſors were, William, Thomas, William, John, living in 1326, and Thomas in 1408. Moſes, ſon of the latter, married Petronilla daughter of Sir Henry Hardreſs, by whom he had William, and John. William the eldeſt was ſeated at Wood-church, and his poſterity there ended in Walter, who left no iſſue.

John, ſecond ſon of Moſes Harlackenden, lived at Warhorn in Kent; by Joane his wife, daughter and heir of Thomas Willis of Allington in that county, he had —— John, who married Joane daughter of . . . . Philips of Tenterden; and had three ſons, Thomas; William that dyed without iſſue; Roger: and a daughter named Elizabeth. Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, ſeated at Wood-Church, had, among other children, George of Little Yeldham in this County. Roger, the third and youngeſt ſon, of Kenardeſton in Kent, purchaſer of the manor and priory of Earls-Colne, married four wives. 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Hardres Eſq; by whom he had Roger, Richard, Thomas, and Mabell. 2. Elizabeth Blatchenden. 3. Jane Kelton, widow, daughter of Sir Tho. Joſceline. 4. Anne Dewhurſt, widow: but by the three laſt had no iſſue. He dyed 21ſt Janu. 1602 (d) [P]. In the Inquiſition after his deceaſe, it is ſaid, that Thomas Harlakenden, then aged 34, was his ſon and heir (e). Mabel was married to Clement Stonard of Stapleford-Abbot. Of Roger, the eldeſt ſon mentioned in the Epitaph, we have no account, and therefore reaſonably ſuppoſe that he dyed without iſſue. —— Richard, his next brother, of Staples-inn, took to wife Margaret, daughter of Edward Hubbert, Eſq; of Stanſtead-Montfichet, and of the Six Clerks Office, by whom he had ſeveral ſons; and no leſs than ſeven daughters, Jane the 3d and Mabell the 7th being mentioned on a monument erected in this Church, 9 May 1614. The other daughters were; Anne baptized 21 May 1610, and married 2 Sept. 1629 to John Eden of Balingdon; and Jane married 17 March 1617 to Henry Clench Gent. The ſons were, Richard; George, buried 6 June 1610; another George, baptized 15 June 1616; Roger, baptized 1 Oct. 1611, whoſe wife Emlen was buried here 18 Auguſt 1634. Their father, Richard, dyed 24 Auguſt 1631 (f). Margaret his widow was a lunatic, as it is expreſſed in the Inquiſition: and held the Lodge here, with appertenances, containing 360 acres, and another parcel; of both which the reverſion was ſettled on Roger their ſecond ſon (g) [Q]. —— Richard, the eldeſt ſon aged 21 years at the time of his father's deceaſe, was heir to the reſt of his eſtates (h) [R]. He was twice married: His firſt wife was Alice, daughter of Sir Henry Mildmay of Little Badow Knt. by whom he had a ſon named Richard. By his ſecond wife, Mary, daughter of Sir Edward Denny, of Biſhop's-Stortford in Hertfordſhire, Knt. he had, Margaret, baptized 11 June 1635, married afterwards to John Eldred Eſq; of Oliver's, counſellor at law:

[P] In his Epitaph it is ſaid, that he was 'deſcended 'of the antient family of Harlakenden in the county of 'Kent, the cheif houſe whereof was auncientlie called the 'Burrowe of Harlakenden alias the Denne of Harlakenden, 'and is now commonlie call'd Old Harlakenden.' Epitaph in this Church.

Mary, born 22 Novemb. 1653, that became the wife of Daniel Androwes of London, and of Low-Leyton in this county Eſq; [The Androwes family deduced their Pedigree from the Norman Conqueſt, but had been ſettled for many generations at Winwick, and Belſton in the county of Warwic.] —— Daniel Androwes of London, merchant, by . . . . daughter of . . . . Thorowgood had Daniel, Sharell, Henry, and Anne.— Henry was father of — Daniel, who took to wife Dorothy daughter of Sir Arthur Harris Knt. and Bart. and by her had, Daniel, William, &c. The eldeſt ſon and heir, — Daniel Androwes of London, Eſq; on the 16th of May 1672, married, as aboveſaid Mary the ſole daughter and heir of Richard Harlakenden Eſq; and in her right came into theſe conſiderable eſtates. He dyed the 26th, and was buried the 31ſt of Janu. 1680-1; but ſhe did not dye till 26 October 1729, after near 48 years widowhood. They had iſſue, Richard born after his father's deceaſe. Anne; Mary; Dorothy; and Frances. —Richard married Margaret daughter of Laurence Hatſell of Bromley in Middleſex Eſq; but dyed in October 1730 without iſſue [V]. Anne was married to John Wale of Saffron-Walden in this county Eſq; Mary, to John Pariſh of Sudbury, Clothier, and had a ſon and two daughters, who left no iſſue. Dorothy was married to Charles Wale, of London, Grocer; and Frances to George Biddulph of Poleſworth in the county of Warwick, Eſq; but theſe two laſt left no iſſue. Whereupon the eſtate centered in the heir of Anne, the eldeſt daughter.

By John Wale Eſq; ſhe had four ſons, John; Geffrey; Charles; Richard: and two daughters, Anne; and Elizabeth. — John Wale Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, married, in 1738, Anne, the only ſurviving daughter of John Eldred of Olivers in Stanway Eſq; but he dyed 22 March 1761, without iſſue. Geffrey, the ſecond ſon married Amy Martin, but they both dyed before the eldeſt ſon, and left no child. — Charles Wale Eſq; the third ſon, ſucceeded his brother John: and, with the widow, is the preſent poſſeſſor of the maners of Earl's-Colne, and Priory: but he is ſtill unmarried. Richard, the youngeſt ſon died ſingle 10 Septemb. 1761. Of the two daughters, Elizabeth is living and unmarried. Anne, the eldeſt, was married in 1719, to John Holgate of London, Druggiſt, ſon of William Holgate of Saffron-Walden Eſq; he dyed in 1738, and ſhe is ſtill living. They had three children, Charles-William; John, who dyed young: and Mary. Charles-William married Mary daughter of . . . . Kentiſh of Baldock in Hertfordſhire, Apothecary: ſhe dyed 30 June 1754, and he the 13th of July following, and left an only daughter, Anne, born 3 April 1752.

The PRIORY

was founded, not long after the year 1100, by Aubrey de Vere, the firſt of that name, ſon of Alphonſus de Vere, and Earl of Guiſnes in Normandy. He dedicated it to St. Mary and St. John the Evangeliſt, and placed therein Benedictine, or Black, Monks, which he brought hither from Abbington in Berkſhire [W], making this Priory a cell to that great Abbey. The founder became afterwards a monk in this houſe, and was buried in the Church belonging thereto. He endowed it with the Church here, dedicated to St. Andrew; and ſix ſcore acres of the demeſnes, and ſeveral lands, and tythes, in this [S] There was another branch of the Harlackenden family here, of which I find the following account. Thomas Harlakenden of Earles Colne Gent. was buried here 27 March 1648. He had two wives. 1. Dorothy, daughter of John Cheney, of Draiton in Buckinghamſhire Eſq; by whom he had three ſons, and three daughters. His 2d wife was, Jane daughter of Edward Hobart of Stanſted-Montfichet Eſq; She was buried at Earl's-Colne 24 Nov. 1626, as was Agnes, a daughter of hers the 20th of November following. The three daughters by the firſt wife, were, Dorothy wife of Samuel Symonds; Anne; and Mehetabell, wife of Edward Elliſton. The three ſons were, Thomas; Richard; and William.—Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, married Elizabeth, Daughter of —— Dove, and had two daughters; Mehetabell, wife of Daniel Nightingale; and Alice, wife of Roger Goodall of Neyland Gent. He was buried at Earl's-Colne 29 Septemb. 1652. —Richard was a Doctor of Phyſick.——William was of Newhouſe in Earl's-Colne, and a Juſtice of peace for this County. He was created Doctor of the Civil Law at Cambridge 9 Sept. 1654. By his wife Smythee, daughter of Edw. Scroggs of Hertfordſhire Eſq; he had a ſon Thomas, baptized 13 Decemb. 1636. His wife was buried here 28 June 1651, and he himſelf 19 March 1673.

Hugh de Montchenſy gave them the Church of Edwardeſton in Suffolk: Richard de Beauchamp the Church of Lamerſeia: Roger Bigot, Earl of Norfolk, the chapel of Harwich, which he had founded, together with all his intereſt in that Church of Dover-court: Jordan Camerarius the Church of Wilbraham in Cambridgeſhire: William de Mandevill, Earl of Eſſex, two parts of the tithes of all his demeſnes in [Abbeſſe] Roding: Eufemia, and Roeſia, counteſſes of Oxford, 100 s. rent in Iclinton; and a mill at Stebbing: Adeliza de Veer, 10 s. out of the mill of Aſſe: Peter de Burgate, lands in Palgrave, and Randeſton, in Suffolk (n).

This Priory, at the time of the ſuppreſſion, was valued at 156*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.* $\frac{1}{2}$ (Dugdale.) 175*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.* $\frac{1}{2}$ (Speed.) per ann.

Robert Abell, Prior; John London, Subprior; and nine other monks, ſurrendered it, 3 July 1534, to K. Henry VIII.

The Priory ſtood near the river Colne, within a brick wall incloſing about 12 acres. It was built of timber; but part of it hath been pulled down ſince the diſſolution, and it hath been ſo altered from what it was, that it may be called a new ſtructure. The late John Wale, Eſq; caſed it with brick, and made great improvements in the houſe and gardens.

The Church of the priory was a ſtately building, with north and ſouth iſles, which went alſo the whole length of the chancel: And it had a choir. There was in it a Chapel, called our Lady Chapel, wherein was the high altar, and another Chapel, dedicated to St. Peter. The Tower was of flint and free-ſtone, and contained 5 bells. This Church is now entirely demoliſhed, and ſtables erected in the place where it ſtood.

In this Church were interred the following Earls of Oxford, and other perſons of the thrice honourable family of De Vere; as J. Weever ſtyles them; by whom it was founded.—Alberic de Vere, the founder; Beatrix, his wife; their eldeſt ſon—Alberic great Chamberlain of England; and —William their youngeſt ſon. — Alberic, or Aubrey, the third of the name, and firſt Earl of Oxford, who dyed 26 Decemb. 1194. —— Alberic, the ſecond Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1214. — Earl Hugh, who dyed in 1263; and his wife Hawiſia daughter of Saer de Quincy Earl of Wincheſter.—Earl Robert, who dyed in 1295; and Alice his wife, daughter of Gilbert Lord Samford. — Earl Robert, the third of the name, who departed this life 19 April 1331.— Earl John, and Maud his wife. He dyed 24 January 1359, and ſhe 24 May 1365.—Thomas, who dyed in 1371, and appointed 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* for the charge of his funeral.—— Robert de Vere, Marquis of Dublin, and Duke of Ireland, who dying abroad in 1392, was buried here in Nov. 1395. —— Earl Aubrey, the fifth of the name, who dyed 23 April 1400. — Earl Richard, who dyed 14 Feb. 1416. —— John, the thirteenth Earl of Oxford, who dyed 10 May 1512.—John, ſurnamed Little John of Campes, who dyed 14 July 1526.—Earl John, the 6th of the name: and Mary, his ſecond Lady. He dyed in 1562, and ſhe 2 Decemb. 1568. —— George de Vere, third ſon of John the eleventh Earl of Oxford, was alſo buried here.

For ſome of theſe noble Perſons there were ſtately Monuments erected in this Priory Church: One of alabaſter, ſuppoſed to have been for Alberic the third, with his Effigies lying upon it, in armour. Another with the garter about his left leg. Three more with their Effigies upon them of wood, croſs-legg'd. . . . They have been removed into the Pariſh-church, but much broken and defaced. The Arms, and quarterings of the family, which were carved about them, and blazon'd, are moſtly obliterated.

Upon the ſuppreſſion of Monaſteries, this Priory and Eſtate were given to the deſcendent of the original Founder, and the Patron; as ought to have been in other inſtances. For K. Henry VIII. granted 22 July 1536, to John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, the whole ſite, and houſe, of the Priory of Earl's Colne; and the Church, Belfrey, and Church-yard, belonging to the ſame; &c. together with the maner of Colne Priory: And the Rectory, or impropriate Tithes, and Advowſon of the Vicarage of Earls-Colne (o).

This Priory was then, and hath been ever ſince, a diſtinct Maner.

It hath paſſed from the ſaid Earl to his heirs; and to their ſucceſſors [X]; as the other Maner in this pariſh hath done, viz. to Harlackenden, Androwes, and Wale.

Other Eſtates in this Pariſh.

Beſides the maners of the Earldom, and the Priory, here is an Eſtate, ſevered from them, which John Eldred Eſq; obtained in right of Margaret Harlakenden above-mentioned, and is now in Mrs. Suſan Eldred widow.

Spoutwell-farm, 150 l. a year and upwards, was the Eſtate of the Creſſener family ſeated here. From Edward Creſſener Eſq; it deſcended to his only daughter Elizabeth Clifford, married to William Towle of London, druggiſt, and belongs now to their only ſon, Samuel, a minor.

The Hay-houſe, and Curds, long in the Abbots, is now in the poſſeſſion of Mr. Oliver

Poſſibly it might be only in truſt: For, 7 Feb. the ſame year, Edward Earl of Oxford bargained and ſold to Richard Harlakenden, Gent. among other things, all the Rectory and Parſonage of Earls Colne, and the Advowſon of the Vicarage there, with their and every of their rights, members, &c.

Johnſon, eldeſt ſon of Oliver Johnſon of this pariſh by Abigail his wife, ſiſter of Joſeph Abbot, the laſt of the name.

Mr. John Harrington hath about 100 l. a year here.

Mrs. Howland, and Thomas Sewell Eſq; have alſo Houſes, and ſome eſtate here.

The Pariſh CHURCH, dedicated to St. Andrew, ſtands pleaſantly about the middle of the village. The Chancel is only of one pace; but the body of the Church hath a ſouth iſle: the whole tyled. At the weſt end there is a large Tower, containing ſix Bells. The top is of flint, adorned at each corner with mollets cut in free-ſtone. Underneath, on the eaſt and weſt ſides, are carved in ſtone, the quarterings of John de Vere, the 16th Earl of Oxford, within the garter, ſupported by two rain-deers: a Boar for the creſt. Below the Arms, on the eaſt ſide, are theſe figures, 1532 . . . ſhewing the time when this part was done.

This Church was at firſt a Rectory, but afterwards appropriated to the Priory here, and a Vicarage ordained and endowed, as appears by a compoſition made in the year 1355, and ſpecified by Mr. Newcourt (p). The Prior and Convent continued patrons of this Vicarage till their ſuppreſſion; after which it was in the Veres Earls of Oxford, till Edward alienated it, with the reſt of the Eſtate, to Harlackenden, as is aboveſaid.

This Vicarage was conſiderably augmented by Richard Harlakenden Eſq; owner of the impropriate Tithes. For he, by indenture dated 18 Febru. 1673, did convey to Geffrey Little of Great Ilford, and other Truſtees, All the Tythes of Corne and Grain heretofore belonging to the Impropriate Rectory of Earls Colne, and ariſing, happening, accruing and renewing out of all or any the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, ſituate, lying and being in Earls-Colne aforeſaid, and the reverſion and reverſions of the ſaid Tyths: Except out of this preſent grant all Tyths of Corn and Grain happning, ariſing, and renewing and growing, or which ſhall or may happen, ariſe, renew, or grow out of, in or upon, or for All thoſe Mills, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments of his the ſaid Richard Harlakenden herein after particularly mentioned: That is to ſay; Colne-ford-mill, and 3 acres of land, meadow or paſture, belonging to, or uſed with the ſaid mill; 2 crofts, called St. Mary Crofts, containing by eſtimation 14 acres; thoſe crofts or cloſes called Thornes, Birds-cloſe, and Church-croft; Newland-meadow, 10 acres; Great Field, 18 acres; Ruſh-croft, 4 acres; the Pightells, and Warren-fields. All thoſe lands of the ſaid Richard Harlakenden that are planted with hops: Chalkney-wood, containing 200 acres; four cloſes called Bunners, 24 acres; Pitcroft; lands and grounds called Seddcops and Bradfeild; lands called Tile-kilns, ſand hills, Woodfeild, Oxeney-fenn, and ſeggs meadow, containing 100 acres; Chalkney-mill, and all the lands and grounds belonging to or uſed with the ſame, containing 10 acres; all that farm called Mills and Coppens, and the lands, meadows, and paſtures to the ſame belonging, and Chalkney-crofts belonging to the ſame farm, containing 160 acres; the farm called Pound-farm, with three cloſes belonging thereto, and the lands called Seddcops, containing 15 acres; lands called Dagnals; 2 woods or groves called Hanſers-hedge, and Richolds grove, containing together 20 acres: And out of, or upon all and every or any other the lands and Tenements of the ſaid Richard Harlakenden in Earls-Colne aforeſaid, that at the time of this indenture were in the poſſeſſion of the ſaid Richard Harlakenden, or any of his leſſees or farmers. To have and to hold the ſaid Tyths of corne and grain, except before excepted, to the Truſtees for ever, upon truſt and confidence, that the ſaid Truſtees ſhall, upon the requeſt and at the coſts and charges in law of the Vicar of the ſaid Church for the time being, by indenture demiſe and to farme let the ſaid Tyths to the ſaid Vicar for the term of 99 years, without rendring or paying any rent for the ſame. Proviſo, That, if ſuch Vicar or Miniſter, to whom ſuch leaſe ſhall be made, ſhall at any time thereafter moleſt or ſue any of the owners of the ſaid lands, tenements, and hereditaments of the ſaid Richard Harlakenden, their or any of their leſſees or farmers, for any Tyths of the mills before-mentioned, or for tyth-hay, tyth-wood, tyth-hops, or any other tyth whatſoever, any ways happening, ariſing, growing, or renewing upon or for the ſaid mills, lands, woods, hop-grounds, or other the premiſſes before excepted, or for or by reaſon of the ſame or any part thereof; or ariſing of or growing upon any of the Orchards and Gardens belonging to the capital meſſuage called Colne Priory, or any other the premiſſes: Except ſmall Tythes due for . parcel of land purchaſed by the ſaid Richard Harlakenden of Thomas Smith: That then, from and after ſuch ſuits or moleſtation of the ſaid owners, leſſees, or farmers, or any of them, for ſuch Tythes or any of them, the ſaid Leaſe ſhall determine and be utterly void. . . . for and during ſuch time only as ſuch Vicar or Miniſter ſo ſuing or moleſting ſhall continue Vicar or Miniſter there. And in caſe any two of the ſaid Grantees or Truſtees of the ſaid Tythes ſhall happen to dye, that the ſurviving Truſtees ſhall from time to time for ever, at the coſt and charges in law of the then Vicar or Miniſter of Earls-Colne aforeſaid, make a new grant or conveyance of the ſaid Tythes unto Two or more other perſons living or inhabiting in or near Earls Colne, and their heirs, upon the like truſts and to the ſame intents and purpoſes as aforeſaid.

A branch of the ancient family of Creſſener, which ſettled here from Buers-hamlet, hath a vault here; as hath alſo the Eldred family of Oliver's in Stanway.

George Creſſener Eſq; who dyed 4 November 1722, and was buried here the 15th of the ſame month, left by his will the ſum of Forty Shillings a year for ever, to be diſtributed in bread to the Poor of Earl's-Colne by the Miniſter and Churchwardens for the time being. . . . And three pounds per annum, for keeping the Family vault here, and a Monument he ordered to be erected over it in the ſouth iſle of this Church, in repair: For the payment of which ſum of Five pounds he was founded here by ſome of the Earls of Oxford; the time unknown. They endowed it with a farm called Peckſtones, in Styſtead, of about 40 acres of land: — a farm of 30*l.* a year in Ardley, called   : — a field or meadow in Meſſing, called Laks, half a mile beyond Gore-pit, of about 20*s.* per ann. — a meſſuage and lands on Tiptre-common, juſt on the edge of the heath, going to Meſſing, called Whits and Finſhes, of 9*l.* per ann. the houſe is dilapidated: — a tenement of 4*l.* a year in Coggeſhall. The patronage of this ſchool was in the Earls of Oxford, and was purchaſed of Aubrey, the laſt of them, by John Creſſener Eſq; who by will left it to his brother Edward Creſſener, and to his ſon John, and his heirs for ever. Edward bequeathed the patronage of it by will to his ſiſters.

Here is an Almſhouſe of two tenements, adjoyning to the Church-yard: And another in the ſtreet.

The poor of this pariſh being grown very numerous, as well as idle and unruly, a Workhouſe was erected ſome years ago; which, being well managed, hath proved of great ſervice both to the Pariſh and to the Poor.

Here is a Fair on Lady-day, yearly.

19. WHITE-COLNE

having originally been a part of the Maner of Earl's-Colne, naturally comes next.

The name of it is in records Colne le Blank, Miblanc, or Miblank: and the French word Blanc ſignifying White, from thence it undoubtedly took its denomination. Though it is certain that one Blancus held it at the time of the general Survey; as we have obſerved under Earl's-Colne.

The whole, or the chief part, of this Pariſh belonged ſoon after to the Vere Family. Alberic, the firſt Earl of Oxford, gave the Half of Colne-Miblanc to the Priory of Earl's-Colne [Y], and they had alſo the Church here, of the gift of their founder.

In this pariſh were of old three Maners.

1. The maner of White-Colne, and Barwick-Hall.

2. The maner of Ingledeſthorp. 3. Berthall.

1. BARWICK-HALL

is ſaid to have taken that name from Sir John Barwick, Prior of Colne; it is ſometimes called La Berewyk. It ſtands about a quarter of a mile, north, north-eaſt from the Church.

This maner was holden of the Honor of Clare, by the ſervice of the 4th part of a knight's-fee: and extended into the neighbouring pariſhes of Alphamſton and Lammarſh. For which reaſon it is, that the Prior of Colne is recorded to have held the 4th part of a knight's-fee in thoſe pariſhes, under Gilbert de Clare Earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, 8 Edw. II. and under Roger de Mortimer Earl of March, 22 Richard II. (q).

The Prior and Monks continued poſſeſſed of this eſtate [Z] till their diſſolution, 3 July 1534. K. Henry VIII. granted it, in 1536, to John de Vere Earl of Oxford [A]. His ſon and grandſon enjoyed it after him, till the latter, Edward Earl of Oxford, waſted his Eſtates. Then this was granted by Queen Elizabeth, in 1592, to Theophilus Adams, and Tho. Butler (r). Of them it was purchaſed by Jerom Weſton Eſq; of Skrene's in this County. [See under Roxwell, p. 71.] He dyed 31 Dec. 1603, holding this maner of the King by military ſervice. His ſon —— Richard, afterwards created Earl of Portland, ſucceeded him (s): And departing this life 13 March 1634, left this eſtate to his youngeſt ſon —— Benjamin Weſton Eſq; who kept his firſt court here 25 Janu. 1643. Of that family it ſeems to have been purchaſed, with the Roxwell-eſtate, by Sir John Bramſton.

For John Bramſton Eſq; whom we take to have been his eldeſt ſon, held his firſt court here 8 April 1645.

On the 8th of April 1690, Sir William Parkins Knt. and Sir Robert Marſham Bart. held their firſt court here for William Forbes Eſq; The latter having obtained an Act of parliament, ſold this eſtate in 1712, to

Robert Kirktoune Eſq; who kept his firſt court here 16 March 1712-13. About the year 1720 it was bought by

Mr. Thomas Knapp of London, merchant, who kept his firſt court here the 24th of Nov. that year. He dying in Septemb. 1750, without iſſue, it deſcended to his ſiſter —— Mrs. Rebecca Knapp, who is unmarried.

Regiſter of Colne-Priory, fol. 15.

[Z] In Pleas 26 Edw. I. the following lands of the Prior in this pariſh, are mentioned. Foulemede, Langſteutmede, Terryeſlonde, & Myntoneſlond.

[A] Man' de Barwyke in Colne alba et Ingeſthorpe, as the words of the patent are, 28 Hen. VIII. No. 179.

As to the name it ſignifies Ingleda's village; and communicated its appellation to a Family ſurnamed from hence de Ingledeſthorp [B]. They held this eſtate of the Bigods, Earls Marſhalls of England as of their maner of Dovercourt; and, in virtue of their alliance with the family of Le Veyſe, under-tenants to thoſe Earls.

Thomas de Ingledeſthorp who dyed in 36 Henry III. [about 1252] held of the inheritance of his wife Iſabell, in Colne; viz. of the fee of the Earl Steward [Seneſcalli] 120 acres of arable land, 10 acr. of meadow and paſture, 43*s*. ½ rent of aſſiſe: And, of the inheritance of his ſaid wife, in the ſame pariſh, 120 acres of arable, purchaſed of ſeveral perſons by her father Hamo [le Veyſe] whereof 60 acres were holden, in ſocage, of the Earl Marſhall, by the ſervice of half a knight's fee. —— Thomas, his ſon and heir, was then ſixteen years old (t).

In the 35 of Edw. I. Hamo le Veyſe held this half-fee in Wyte-Colne, under Roger Bigod Earl of Norfolk, and Marſhall of England (u). And, one of the ſame name held it, in 1362, of Mary, Counteſs Marſhal as ſhe is ſtyled, of the inheritance of Margaret one of the daughters and heirs of Thomas de Brotherton Earl of Norfolk (w).

John Mowbray Duke of Norfolk, held the ſame 36 Hen. VI. (x).

But the Vere family were all along Lords Paramount of this maner; it being expreſly ſaid in an Inquiſition, Anno 1400, to be holden by Margaret Counteſs of Norfolk, and John Ingliſthorp, of Aubrey de Vere Earl of Oxford (y).

This ſeems to have been included in that part of the pariſh, which Aubrey, the firſt Earl of Oxford, gave to Colne-Priory. For, upon the ſuppreſſion, K. Henry VIII. granted to John de Vere Earl of Oxford the maner of Barwyke in White-Colne, and Ingeſthorpe (z). It continued in his poſterity till 7 Febr. 1591, when —Edward de Vere, Earl of Oxford, obtained licenſe to convey the maner or lordſhip of Ingeſthorpe, or Ingleſthorp, to

Thomas Averyſe, and John . . . Five years after, it was conveyed to

Sir Stephen Soame, and belonged afterwards to his ſon —— Sir Tho. Soame; who, in 1652, conveyed it to

Robert Davies Gent. from whom it deſcended to his ſon —— Robert, who deviſed the ſame to his wife Elizabeth: She was afterwards married again to —— Humfrey Brent, and he enjoyed it in her right. It lately belonged to

Francis Blount of London Eſq; but upon his becoming a bankrupt, the aſſignees have ſold it to Oſgood Hanbury of Coggeſhall Eſq;

'Tis vulgarly called Inſtepps.

3. The maner of BERT-HALL.

The manſion houſe ſtands about a quarter of a mile Eaſt from the Church.

Moſt probably it took its name from Berta, daughter of William Macherell, who became wife of William de Raines, and brought this eſtate into that family.

That ancient family had early an eſtate in this pariſh. For Roger and Robert de Raines gave lands in White Colne to Colne-Priory (a). Under Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk, who dyed 35 Edw. I. Robert de Reymis held in Wyte Coln half a fee, belonging to the maner of Dovercourt (b). And his heirs held the ſame in 1362 and 1433 (c).

In 1514, a Fine was levied for this maner between John Turner plaintiff, and William Draper deforc.' (d).

Thomas Wagſtaff, of Warwickſhire, bought this eſtate in the laſt century. His ſon —— Thomas, who married a niece of Dr. Walford of Finching-field, ſold it again to Edward Johnſon of Earl's-Colne.

Of late it belonged to Mr. John Moſs, who ſold it, about two years ago, to Oſgood Hanbury Eſq; that hath alſo another leſs farm here, name unknown.

Neither Ingledeſthorp, nor Berthall, keep courts; or have quit-rents, or tenents.

Ovington, a ſmall farm, near the road leading to Earl's-Colne, is called a Maner, and has quit-rents.

It belongs to Samuel London Eſq;

Other Eſtates here.

Bagrades, belongs to Tho. Baſſet, Gent.— Brook-farm, to Mrs. Hannah Newton, widow.— Bucks, to Mr. George Bull.—Cattley's to Mr. Oliver.—Counteſs-Croſs, to Thomas Sewell Eſq; —Hoblets, to Mr. Edw. Morley.—Loſſins, to Mr. Joſ. Bott.—Whites and Wills's, to Nicolas Gar. Lynne Eſq;

General Honywood; and Mr. Joſeph King have alſo two farms in this pariſh.

In the Church-yard there are two Alms-houſes: and another on the right-hand ſide of the road leading from Colne to Buers for 1 dweller, formerly for 3, part being fallen down.

A Fair on the 28th of October yearly, was granted to this place by royal charter.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel, both tyled. At the weſt end there is a ſquare Tower of ſtone, containing one Bell. Formerly there was on the top of it a leaded ſpire, but now entirely gone. This Church and Chancel have been lately well repaired, by the encouragement and munificence of the patroneſs, Mrs. Knapp.

This Church was never preſentative, either as a Rectory or Vicarage. The Prior and Convent being proprietors of it, cauſed the Cure to be ſupplied by the Monks of their own houſe. And, after the ſuppreſſion, being granted, among other things, to John Earl of Oxford; it then, and ever ſince, came to be accounted a Donative, or perpetual Curacy, in the gift of the owner of Barwick-hall.

Barwick-hall is exempt from great Tithes; The Vicar, or perpetual Curate, hath by cuſtom the Tithe of Hay and Wood in the whole pariſh.

20. COLNE-ENGAINE, vulgarly 'Gains Colne, and in Domeſday-book called Little Colne, lyes the furtheſt weſt on the edge of this Hundred.

It received the diſtinguiſhing appellation of Engaine, from its ancient Lords the Engaine family, of which there will be a particular account under Upminſter.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, Godwin held this pariſh, which at the time of the general ſurvey belonged to Robert Malet, and his under-tenant was one Walter [C].

It was included in the nine pounds, which the adjoyning lordſhip of Stanſted-hall in Halſtead was then valued at; and belonged as well as this, to the ſaid Robert Malet. He was ſon of William Malet, who attended William the Conqueror at the battle of Haſtings, and after the unhappy fall of K. Harold there, was commiſſioned to ſee him decently buried (e). For which ſervices, both this William and his ſon Robert, obtained immenſe eſtates in this kingdom; the latter having, as appears by Domeſday-book, the lordſhips of Stanſtead-hall, Colne, and Goldingham-hall in Bulmer, in this county; and 32 lordſhips in Yorkſhire; and no leſs than 221 in Suffolk, where he made Eye the head of his Barony, or place of reſidence: not to take notice of what he had in other counties. But, for taking part with Robert Curthoſe, he was diſinherited and baniſhed by K. Henry I. (f). Whereupon his high office of Great Chamberlain of England was given to Alberic de Vere; and this Eſtate became veſted in Hubert de Montchenſey of Edwardſton in Suffolk, the feudatory tenant here, and his heirs. One of them named John, ſon of Robert, ſold 40 acres of arable in this maner to Vitalis Engaine, in 1218, or 1219 (g): ſo early did the Engaine-family poſſeſs lands in this pariſh! In 1279, Walter de Coleceſter, who is ſaid to have married Joan de Montchenſy, paſſed by fine jointly with his ſaid wife, this maner of Colum Engaine, with appertenances, to —— John de Engaine [D].

This family was originally of Senelai [Shenley] in Buckinghamſhire, and Redinges in Huntingdonſhire. Richard de Engaine, lord of Blatherwick in Northamptonſhire, dyed 22 April 1208, leaving by Sarah his wife, daughter of Alberic de Vere, Earl of Oxford, Richard who dyed ſingle about 1217, and —— Vitalis (h), that held the maner of Colne, and advowſon of the Church, of Sir Hugh de Creſſy, by the ſervice of 3 quarters of a knight's fee (i): and dyed in 1244. He married Roeſe, one of the three ſiſters and coheirs that divided the inheritance of the fee of the Honor of Montgomery in Wales, by whom he had four ſons; Vitalis, who dyed young; Henry, lord of the maner of White Notley; he dyed 24 Febr. 1271 (k), unmarried; William had no iſſue; ſo that —— Sir John de Engaine, the fourth and youngeſt ſon, inherited the whole eſtate. He dyed in 1301, leaving, by Joane his wife daughter and heir of John (or Henry) Gray, two ſons, John, and Nicolas; Joyce married to Roger de Huntingfeild, and other daughters. He held this eſtate of Robert Fitz-Roger de Clavering (l) [E], —— John, his eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded him, and had ſummons to parliament from the 25th of Edward I. to the 14th of Edw. II. He married Helen, daughter of Robert Fitz-Roger; but having no iſſue, he ſettled by fine this eſtate, in 12 Edw. II. after his own and his wife's deceaſe, on John the ſon of his brother Nicolas and the heirs of the body of the ſaid John; and, on default of ſuch heirs, or iſſue, then after the death of Nicolas to go to the right heirs of the family (m). This Nicolas married Amicia, or Avicia, daughter of Walter de Fauconberg, by which he had John, and Henry. The two brothers, John, and Nicolas, dyed in the ſame year, 1322, whereupon —— Sir John de Engaine, ſon of Nicolas, came to the eſtate (n); and had ſummons to parliament in the 16, 29, 30, 31, 34, of Edward III. He was ſeated at Dyllyngton in Huntingdonſhire, where he dyed in 1358 (o). By his wife, Joane daughter of Sir Robert Peverell, he had two ſons; Thomas; John, who dyed without iſſue, or unmarried; and three daughters, Joyce, Elizabeth, and Mary. ——Sir Thomas the eldeſt ſon, held this maner of William de la Zouche, at the time of his death, which happened in 1367. He had married Catharine, daughter of Hugh Courtney Earl of Devonſhire, and ſhe enjoyed after him this eſtate, till her deceaſe (p). They had no iſſue, ſo that Sir Thomas's three Siſters became his co-heirs. [See above under White Notley, p. 121.]

Mary de Engaine, the youngeſt Siſter, had this eſtate for her purparty. She was married firſt to Sir John Barnak, or Bernack, by whom ſhe had a ſon named John. Her ſecond huſband was [E] The Claverings became lords paramount of this maner by inter-marriage with the Creſſy family.

Thomas de la Zouche: She dyed poſſeſſed of this eſtate in 1400 (q). Her ſon —— Sir John Barnak ſucceeded her. He dyed 11 Hen. IV. 1409, or 1410, having married Arma daughter of Edmund None, by whom he had two ſons, John; and Edmund: and two daughters, Mary; and Joane.——John, the eldeſt ſon, dyed young, but we cannot find when.——Edmund, the next brother and heir, departed this life in 1416, and his two ſiſters Mary, and Joane, were found his his heirs (r). Joane dying in 1420, had for her heir, her ſiſter.

Mary, then married to Robert Stonham Eſq; (s). They held this maner, and the advowſon of the Church in ca. by the ſervice of the fourth part of a knight's fee: and had an only daughter, Elizabeth, which brought this eſtate in marriage to John Broughton Eſq; and they had iſſue, a ſon named —— John, who, at the death of the ſaid Mary in 1464, was aged 22, and became her heir (t). He dyed in 1479, leaving his ſon —— John Broughton his heir (u). By Anne daughter of John Denſton he had —— Robert, afterwards knighted, who dyed 17 Auguſt 1506, leaving —— John his ſon and heir then aged 15 years (w). He was of Tuddington in Bedfordſhire, and married Anne, daughter of Sir Guy Sapcotes, by whom he had two daughters, Anne and Catharine; and a ſon named —— John, who, at the time of his father's deceaſe, which happened 24 Janu. 1517, was aged 5 years (x). This ſon dying young, the maner of Colne-Engaine, and advowſon of the Church, devolved to his two ſiſters.

Anne became the ſecond wife of Sir Thomas Cheney, Knight of the Garter, Lord Warden of the Cinque-ports, and Treaſurer of the houſhold to K. Henry VIII. Edward VI. and Qu. Mary. —— Catharine was married to William Lord Howard of Effingham, a younger ſon of Thomas Duke of Norfolk [F]; and they had an only daughter, Agnes, married to William Paulet, the third Marquis of Wincheſter. But the Lord Effingham being involved in the condemnation of his niece, Catharine Howard fifth Queen of K. Henry VIII. for her incontinence and adultery; and condemned to perpetual impriſonment, with his wife, &c. this part of their eſtate was ſeized into the King's hands; but reſtored, 10 Feb. 1547, by King Edward VI. to the ſaid W. Paulet (y).

With regard to Sir Thomas Cheney, he dyed 20 Dec. 1559, as did his wife Anne, 18 May 1562. They had an only ſon——Henry Cheney Eſq; knighted in 1563, and ſummoned to parliament in 1572 (z). But in 1563, Novemb. 3, he obtained a licenſe to ſell this maner and advowſon of the Church, to

Thomas Averye Eſq; He dyed 18 Novemb. 1577, holding this maner, and the advowſon of the Church, of the Queen, in ca. —— Joane Clarke of Kederminſter in Worceſterſhire, then aged 60, was his ſiſter and heir (a). Her ſon, ——Thomas Clarke, ſold this eſtate, 12 February 1579, to Matthew Dale Eſq; who got a licenſe, 2 September 1589, to alienate to Mary wife of Sir Thomas Ramſey, this maner of Collingaine, alias Geignes Colne with appertenances, and 10 meſſuages, one mill, 400 acres of arable, 100 of meadow, 100 of paſture, 20 of wood, 300 of heath and furze ground, and 40*s.* rent, in Gaines Colne, Earls-Colne, Wake's, Chapel, and Fordham; and the advowſon of the Church (b). This Lady Mary Ramſey was daughter of William Dale of Briſtol, merchant, and ſiſter to the ſaid Matthew. She was then the ſecond wife of Sir Thomas Ramſey, Citizen and Grocer of London, and Lord Mayor in 1577; who dying 19 May 1590, was interred in the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth (c). Surviving him, ſhe became poſſeſſed of a great eſtate, which ſhe chiefly diſpoſed of in works of Charity. For ſhe founded two Fellowſhips and Scholarſhips in Peter-houſe, Cambridge [G]; and by virtue of a licence dated 20 Novemb. 1590, gave to the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of London, Governors of the Hoſpitals of Chriſt-Church, Bridewell, and St. Thomas, this Maner and Advowſon; of which they have remained poſſeſſed ever ſince. She dyed in the year 1596, and was buried in Chriſt-Church, London, where, on a tablet is a memorial of her benefactions.

The manor-houſe ſtood cloſe to the Church-yard; but the buildings are all down, and the lands laid to the Brook-houſe, where now the Courts are kept; a quarter of a mile from the Church.

Beſides the maner of Colne-Engaine, there are in this pariſh four others; namely, 1. The maner of Bruntons. 2. Over-hall. 3. The maner of Goldington's. 4. — that of Shreves.

1. The maner of BROMPTONS, or BRUNTONS.

The manſion-houſe is ſeated in a bottom, by the brook that runs from Pedmarſh to Earl's-Colne.

It ſeems to have taken its name from a family ſo called, or to have given name to a family. Richard Brumpton was witneſs to a deed dated in 1301. The ſame is called Sir Richard de Brompton, or Brompton, in 1304. His ſon Robert was a benefactor to Colne-Priory (d). — Richard de Bruntone held a court here in January 1321 (e). Among the fees of Giles de Brewoſe, in 1325, Richard de Colne is ſaid to hold of him a quarter of a fee in Colne, of the maner of Bromton:

[F] Theſe two coheireſſes, as joint ladies of this maner, kept a court here, in 1538. Villare Eſſex, 1 a pars, fol. 85.

[G] She proffered more, if on her terms it might have been accepted. For ſhe would have ſettled on that houſe lands to the value of 500 l. per ann. and upwards, on condition that it ſhould be called the College of Peter and Mary. This Dr. Soames, then Maſter of the Houſe, refuſed, affirming, that 'Peter, who ſo long lived ſingle, was now too old 'to have a feminine partner.' A dear jeſt to loſe ſo good a benefactreſs. Fuller's Worthies, in Briſtol, p. 37.

And the heirs of Richard de Bromton held alſo a quarter of a fee of the ſame (f). Richard de Bruntone kept court here in January 1321. As did Richard Brompton in 1368 [H].

Then it came into a family ſurnamed De Bures. For Andrew, ſon of Andrew de Bures, held a court here in September 1402. As did William Burys in May 1480. And ſo did his ſon Robert in June 1501. But 1 March 1510, being then an inhabitant of Foxearth, he ſold this eſtate to

Roger Martin, of Long Melford Eſq; His ſon —— Richard Martin Eſq; kept court here 30 May 1553, and his ſon —— Roger Martin Eſq; conveyed again the premiſſes, by fine, in 1573, to

John Nicholls, and John Prentiſe. In the year 1581, it belonged to

John Potter, that had a ſon named John. We do not find who enjoyed it after that, till it came into the London family. John London Eſq; Blackwell-hall-factor, and Member of Parliament for the borough of Wilton, held his firſt court here 14 Janu. 1720-1, and it is now in his grandſon, John or Samuel London Eſq;

But that family, or a family of the ſame name, was ſeated here long before. For Roger London of this pariſh had ſeveral children baptized between the years 1629 and 1643, as appears by the Regiſter [I].

2. OVERHALL

Stands above a mile north-eaſt from the Church. This maner is ancient, and an entire lordſhip, not holding of any of the adjoyning maners of Colne-Engaine, Wakes, or Earls; but of the maner of Witneſham with Cockefelde in Suffolk, paying a pepper-corn yearly if demanded. The old Audley family (not thoſe of Walden) were formerly the chief lords of it; at which time it conſiſted of a knights-fee, and the 20th part of a fee. About the reigns of King Henry IV. and V. Richard Thurcote was the owner, and his daughter and heir —— Joane brought it in marriage to —— John Hatherle, Citizen and Alderman of London. Hatherle conveys it to —— Thomas Dunton, who, 14 Febr. 1455, releaſes the ſame to —— William Crofton, and others. And they by deed dated 24 July 1460, convey it to —— Thomas Biſhop of London, Roger Draper, and Joane his wife.——Roger Draper Gent. ſon and heir of Roger Draper of Aldham, conveys it, 16 October 1526, to Richard Potter, and others, who reconvey it to Roger Draper, and Thomazine, that was married, or to be married to the ſaid Roger, and had by him a ſon named — William Draper: She took to her ſecond huſband one Lake. On the 10th of September 1545 Thomazine Lake, and William Draper, ſettle this maner in truſtees for the following uſes; Thomazine, and William, to have it for life; remainder in fee to Roger London of Much Tey, Gent. and his heirs for ever. And a recovery was ſued 6 Nov. 1550, by John Moteham of Great Tey, Gent. who, as one of the truſtees for Thomazine Lake, grants, on the 16th of January following, all his right in this eſtate to Roger London and his heirs. This Roger dyed about the year 1571, poſſeſſed of this maner, leaving —— Samuel his ſon and ſucceſſor, father of another —— Samuel; who, in 1635, was forced to pay a fine of 10 l. to be excuſed from the honor of Knighthood. He dyed about the year 1647, having alſo an eſtate at Braintree and Bocking. —— Samuel London Gent. ſucceeded him. By his wife . . . . he had, Samuel that died before him; Richard; John; and three daughters. — Richard inherited after his father (g).—— It belongs now to John or Samuel London Eſq;

3. The maner of GOLDINGTONS.

The manſion houſe is decayed, there remaining only a ſmall tenement, and an old Oak near it, where the court is called. It took its name from the ancient family of Goldington, mentioned more particularly under Springfield, Terling, and Aldham, p. 8. 127, 197. Some of the demeſne lands of this maner belonged to that of Halſtead, about the time of K. Henry II. (h). Henry Knight is ſaid to have held it before the Goldingtons; and there are annexed to it ſome parcels called Knights and Poleyns.

William de Goldington, who dyed 12 Edw. II. held 1 meſſuage, 50 acres of arable, 4 acres of paſture, 6 of wood, 13 s. 3 d. rent, in Little-Colne, of Thomas Wake de Lydell, by the ſervice of 34 s. per ann. And 3 acres of arable, 24 s. 9 d. ob. rent in Little Colne, and Halſted, of the Earl of Oxford. And 2 granges, or barns, and 1 acre of arable in Colne of the Earl Mareſhall by the payment of one roſe. And 20 acres of arable, 1 acre of meadow, 1 acre of paſture, and 2 s. rent in Colne, of John Bouſer, by the ſervice of 3 s. 4 d. per ann. (i). His widow Catharine, re-married to John Fermer, held, till the time of her deceaſe, which happened in 1358, this meſſuage, and 100 acres of arable in Colne Engayne of the Lord de Wake, 9 acres of the Earl of Oxford, and 8 acres of the heirs of Thomas Engayne.—— John de Goldington, her ſon by her firſt huſband ſucceeded her (k). He died in 1419, as did his ſon — Thomas in 1421, both ſeized of one meſſuage, and 1 carucate of land in Colne Engayne called Goldyngtons (l). From whence it may be inferred, that 100 acres, and a carucate of land, were then reckoned the ſame.

[H] John de Bromton, Brampton, or Bampton, was Sheriff of Eſſex in 1373. MS Liſt of Sheriffs.

[I] Roger London, by Phoebe his wife, had the following children baptized here, Phoebe, 17 Febr. 1629. James 19 May 1631. John 26 Febr. 1633. Mary 11 Aug. 1636. Sarah 13 March 1639. Thomas 26 Aug. 1641. Another daughter, the name not mentioned, 15 June 1643. The ſaid Phoebe was buried 3 March 1647. Samuel London, by Mary his wife daughter of Richard Bridge of Wakes-Colne, had, Samuel, baptized 26 Febr. 1660. Richard, 6 March 1662. Elizabeth, 26 June 1666. Phoebe 28 March 1668. John 9 Janu. 1670. The foreſaid Samuel was buried here 24 Janu. 1693, and Elizabeth, married to William Baker, was buried here 30 Auguſt 1719.

John Henxtworth, ſon of Catharine aunt to the laſt, viz. to Thomas Goldington, inherited next (m). In 1483, it ſeems to have been unjuſtly occupied by one John de Tyſon, and Mary his wife [K]. Not long after it was in

John de Lodenes, clerk, who ſold it, 17 Febr. 1492, to

Sir William Capel. [See under Raine] He dyed 6 Sept. 1514, holding this maner of Sir John de Broughton, of his maner of Collingborne.— Giles his ſon ſucceeded (n). He was afterwards knighted; and he and his ſon —— Henry, ſold, 3 Auguſt 1545, this Eſtate to

William Sidey Gent. who kept his firſt court here 29 November following.—William, his ſon and heir, had by Mary . . . . his wife — Daniel, whoſe firſt court was held here 2 Octob. 1594. On the 19th of June 1597, Daniel and William Sidey ſell this eſtate to

Geffrey and John Little, or Littel. [See an account of this family under Halſtead.]

—— John Little, and Suſan his wife, held their firſt court here 11 May 1615. As did their ſon

—— John 6 Octob. 1659.

—— Thomas Little Eſq; had it lately, and it belongs now to his grandſon —— John Little Bridge Eſq;

The quit-rents of this maner are 5 l. 5 s. 1 d. But as it is holden of the Maner of Wakes-hall, it pays to that maner 1 l. 14 s. 10 d. and for a ſuit fine 8 d. To the maner of Colne-Engain 2 s. and to that of Earl's-Colne 5 s. 3 d. per ann.

4. The maner of SHREVES, or SHERWAIES, moſt probably took this appellation from a family ſo ſurnamed: For we find that Thomas Sherreve held it in 1285, the 13th of Edw. I. (o).

The manſion-houſe ſtands by the ſide of the road leading to White Colne.

In the earlieſt times, this was part of the poſſeſſions of the Prior and Convent of St. Botolph in Colcheſter; and is ſuppoſed to have been, what was confirmed to them in the charter of King Richard I. under the name of Colum [L].

They leaſed it out for a reſerved rent of 60 s. or three pounds, firſt to one Nicolas ſon of William Fitz-Reyner, and afterwards to the Tewe-family. Roger Tewe, who dyed in 1483, held this maner of Sheryves in Colne-Engayne of the Prior of St. Botolph's in Colcheſter, by fealty, and a rent of 60 s. per ann. —— Joane, the daughter of his brother William, and then married to John Rokker, was his next heir (p).

John de Vere, the great Earl of Oxford, appears poſſeſſed of it in 1506 [M]. His grandſon — Edward Earl of Oxford ſold it in June 1584, to Richard Bowſer, or Bourchier: who dyed 16 October 1586, ſeized of this maner, lying in the pariſhes, hamlets, or fields of Colne-Engayne, and the three other Colnes, Halſted, and Pedmarſh; then valued at 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. per ann.— John was his ſon and heir (q).

Humfrey Maudit held it about 1631 (r).

Daniel Caldwall Eſq; who dyed 13 Novemb. 1634, held this maner, meſſuage, farm, lands, &c. of the lords of the maners of Earl's-Colne: leaving one daughter, Mary by his firſt wife, ten years old; and three other daughters by a ſecond wife, his daughters and coheirs (s).

It lately belonged to Thomas Rookwood of Coldham-hall in Suffolk Eſq; and now to Mr. Michael Hills.

The Quit-rents amount to 2 l. 10 s. per ann.

The manſion houſe is a mile and a half from the Church.

The Saville family reſided here in the laſt century [N]; but ſettled afterwards in Colcheſter and at Styſtead. The Eſtate they had in this pariſh belonged ſince to J. Ruſſell Eſq; It was bought by the late Mr. William Harriſon, and is now in his heirs.

John Morley Eſq; hath a houſe and ſome eſtate here.

The Sexton, or Sacriſtan, had a houſe (now burnt down) near the Church, with an orchard, and an acre of meadow in Milbrook; given, as is ſuppoſed, by the Lady Ramſey.

The Poor of the Quakers have an houſe and a field on Bunting's Green, left them by William Bunting of Halſtead.

On Prior's Green, are two Almſhouſes: One for two dwellers, with a field: And another for one family only.

On Bunting's Green is an Amſhouſe for two dwellers.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel, both tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower, containing five Bells, built partly of ſtone, and the reſt of brick; with a cornice round the top; pyramids at the four corners, and a ſpire. It is pleaſantly ſituated on a riſing ground, and ſeems to be ancient.

This Rectory hath been all along appendent to the maner of Colne-Engaine, and belongs now to the Governors of the Hoſpitals above-mentioned.

The Parſonage-houſe is half a mile from the Church.

Elizabeth, born in 1648, wife of John Cardel Rector of Copford, and buried here 28 Novemb. 1720. Thomas, baptized 25 June 1650. Their father was buried 7 April 1670, and Elizabeth his wife 21 May 1674.

Thomas Savile Gent. married Sibilla, daughter of George Creſſener of Earls-Colne Gent. and had by her, Mary, baptized 9 June 1679. Elizabeth, bapt. 26 March 1680. John, bapt. 13 Octob. 1682. Their father Thomas was buried here in 1687.

21. COLNE-WAKES, lies eaſt of the other three, on the road to Halſtead. The denomination of Wake's it received from its ancient owners the Wake family, Barons of this realm; from whom it paſſed into the nobleſt families. Beſides Wake's, it is otherwiſe ſtyled in records Colne Maſkerell, or Makerel, Colun-Saer, and Colne Quincy.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, it was holden in two parcels by one Aſſorin, and Aluric Biga; at the time of the general ſurvey it belonged to Robert Malet, mentioned at large under Colne-Engaine; and to Euſtace Earl of Bologne [O].

There are two maners in this pariſh. 1. Wakes-hall. 2. Creping-hall.

1. WAKES-HALL

ſtands low, on the north ſide of the river Colne. It is a very antient building; part of which hath been burnt down.

Walter, ſurnamed Macerell was poſſeſſed of it about the reign of K. Henry I. and gave to the Priory of Earl's-Colne the Tithes of all his Eſtate in his vill of Colis here, as it is called (t).

Ermengard Maſkerell held two knights fees in this Colun, and Legre [i. e. Layer de la Hay] in 1211 (u). Herebert de Makerell was a benefactor to Colne Priory; and Berta daughter of William Macherell was wife of William de Raines. This is all the mention I find of the family in this place and neighbourhood.

In 1210 and 1211 Saer de Quincy Earl of Wincheſter, held two fees in Columb' of the Honor of Eye (w). And among the fees of Roger de Quincy Earl of Wincheſter [P], we find that his brother —— Robert held two carucates in Colne-Quency (x). This Robert married Helen, daughter to Llewelyn Prince of North-Wales, widow of John Scot Earl of Huntingdon, by whom he had three daughters. 1. Anne, a nun. 2. Joane wife of Humphrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex. 3. Margaret wife of Baldwin Wake, or de Wake, who in her right obtained this eſtate (y): And in 1280 had a charter for free warren in all his demeſne lands here in Collum. He dyed in 1282, and was ſucceeded by his ſon —— John [Q], who had ſummons to parliament from the 23d to the 28th of Edward I. incluſive (z); and departed this life in the year 1300, leaving Joane his wife ſurviving, and two ſons, John who died young, and —— Thomas his ſucceſſor. By the title of Thomas Wake, and ſometimes of Thomas Wake de Lidell, [in Cumberland] he had ſummons to parliament from the 10th to the 20th of Edward II. and from the 1ſt to the 17th of Edw. III. both incluſive, and alſo the 21ſt and 22d of this laſt king (a). Being the king's ward in 7 Edw. II. he held this maner of Alan Zouch, John ſon of John de Ferrers, and the heirs of John Comyn Earl of Buchan, coheirs of the Earl of Wincheſter (b). By Blanch, daughter of Henry Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaſter, he had no iſſue, ſo that his inheritance, and in particular this maner, and advowſon of the Church, at his death, which happened 31 May 1349, fell to his ſiſter

Margaret (c) [R]; but Blanch his widow had an aſſignation of this Eſtate, with others for her dowry, till her deceaſe in 1380 (d). The ſaid Margaret was married to Edmund of Woodſtock, Earl of Kent, youngeſt ſon of K. Edward I. who was cruelly beheaded, for deſigning to releaſe his brother K. Edward II. from impriſonment. He left two ſons, Edmund who dyed in 1332, a minor, without iſſue — John, and a daughter named Joane. John the ſecond ſon, Earl of Kent, married Elizabeth daughter of the Duke of Juliers, but dyed in 1352, without any child. His ſiſter

Joane became his heir (e). She was, on account of her great beauty, ſtyled the Fair Maid of Kent: and had three huſbands (f); firſt Sir Thomas Holand, who in her right was created Earl of Kent, and Lord Wake of Lidel. The ſecond huſband was, William Montague, Earl of Saliſbury, from whom ſhe was divorced. Whereupon ſhe had the honour of obtaining for her third huſband, in 1361, Edward Prince of Wales, ſurnamed the Black Prince, by whom ſhe became Mother to K. Richard II. She dyed 8 July 1385. By her firſt huſband, who departed this life 28 Decemb. 1360, ſhe had Thomas; John created Earl of Huntingdon, and Duke of Exeter; and Maud, or Joane, married firſt to Peter Courtney, and ſecondly to Waleran de Luxemburg, Earl of Ligny and St. Paul. The eldeſt ſon—Thomas Earl of Kent, married Alice daughter of Richard Fitz-Alan Earl of Arundel, and had by her, Thomas; Edmund; John and Richard, who both dyed without iſſue; Elianore, Joane, Margaret, Elianore junior, Elizabeth, and Bridget, a nun [S]. He dyed in 1396, or 1397, holding this eſtate of Walter Fitz Walter Lord of Woodham (g). Alice, his widow held it in dower till her deceaſe, in 1416 (h).—Thomas, his eldeſt ſon and ſucceſſor, was created by K. Richard II. in 1398, Duke of Surrey. He married Joan daughter of Hugh Earl of Stafford, by whom he had no iſſue; and in 1400 was beheaded for endeavouring to dethrone K. Henry IV. and reſtore K. Richard II. Whereupon his eſtates, and the title of Earl of Kent, devolved to his brother—Edmund Holand Knight of the Garter, &c.; and being wounded at the Siege of St. Briens in Bretagne, he dyed 5 Septemb. 1408, and tho' married he left no iſſue: So that his inheritance fell among his Siſters, named above; and Margaret, the third, having this eſtate for her purparty; dyed poſſeſſed of it 18 Hen. VI. in 1439, or 1440 (i). She was twice married, firſt to John Beaufort, Son of John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter, created Earl of Somerſet in 1396, and Marquis of Dorſet in 1397. Her ſecond Huſband was, Thomas Plantagenet, ſecond Son of K. Henry IV. created Earl of Albemarle, and Duke of Clarence, 9 July 1412, by whom ſhe had no iſſue. But by her firſt huſband ſhe had four Sons, Henry who dyed young and unmarried; John; Edmund; Thomas; and two daughters, Joan, married to James I. King of Scotland; and Margaret, wife of Thomas Courtney Earl of Devonſhire.——John, the ſecond but eldeſt ſurviving Son, was created Duke of Somerſet, and taking to wife Margaret daughter of Sir John Beauchamp of Bletſho, had by her his only daughter Margaret, married to Edmund Tudor, by whom ſhe became mother to K. Henry VII—Edmund Beaufort, the next Son, ſucceeded his brother John, thus dying without iſſue male in his honors and eſtates. He was ſlain at the firſt battle of St Albans in 1455, leaving, by Eleanor his wife, daughter and one of the coheirs of Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick, four Sons, Henry; Edmund; John; Thomas: and five daughters (k). Henry, the eldeſt Son, was taken at the battle of Hexham, and beheaded in 1463, leaving no legitimate iſſue——Edmund, the next brother, being taken at the battle of Tewkſbury, was beheaded, leaving no child.——John, the third Son, was killed in the ſame battle; and——Thomas, the youngeſt deceaſed without iſſue.

[P] This Earl dyed 25 April 1264. He was thrice married, 1. To Helen eldeſt daughter and co-heir of Alan Earl of Galway, by whom he had three daughters, co-heirs, Margaret wife of Colban Earl of Fife, and afterwards of William de Ferrers Earl of Derby; Elizabeth, wife of Alexander Comyn, Earl of Buchan; and Ela of Alan le Zouche. 2. His ſecond wife, was Maud, daughter to Humfrey de Bohun, widow of Anſelm Mareſchal Earl of Pembroke. 3. And the third Elianore daughter of William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby; but by the two laſt he had no iſſue. Dugdale, Vol. I. p. 688.

Whereupon, this eſtate became veſted in the Houſe of York. On the 13th of April 1484, K. Richard III. granted the Maners of Colne-Wakes, and Lammerſh to John de la Pole, Earl of Lincoln, Son of John de la Pole Duke of Suffolk by Elizabeth, Siſter of K. Edward IV. and of the ſaid Richard, who intended him for his ſucceſſor to the Crown: But he was ſlain at the battle of Stoke, 16 June 1487. This maner coming again to the Crown, K. Henry VII, gave it to his mother

Margaret above mentioned, only daughter of John Duke of Somerſet, and Counteſs of Richmond; and ſhe enjoyed it till her deceaſe, 2 June, 1509, when it reverted again to the King her ſon.

K. Henry VIII. beſtowed it upon his natural ſon Henry Fitz-Roy Duke of Richmond and Somerſet, a young perſon of great hopes, whom it is ſaid he had thoughts of making his ſucceſſor to the crown, if he had died without a legitimate ſon. But that young perſon departed this life 24 July 1536, at the age of 16 years (l).

The 9th of April 1545, King Henry VIII. granted to John Earl of Oxford, and Dorothy his wife, this lordſhip and maner, with Sharneford mills, and a ſmall more thereto adjoyning; and Colne-wake mill, Colne-wake park, Ruſhewood; and the advowſon of this Church (m). He dyed 3 Aug. 1562, poſſeſs'd of the premiſſes; Edward de Vere, Earl of Oxford his Son and heir being only twelve years old (n). He waſted his eſtates, as hath been often obſerved before, and in 1586, alienated this maner to Iſrael Amyes, and

William Tiffyn Eſq; and the heirs of this William [T]. He was a Counſeller of the Middle Temple, and took to wife Mary Siſter of Andrew Jenour of Great Dunmow, by whom he had no iſſue. She dyed 1 Aug. 1616; and He 13 Septemb. 1617, aged 85 (o); being ſucceeded in this eſtate by his great nephew——William Tiffyn, ſon of John, who was ſon and heir of Henry brother of the firſt named William (p). On the 1ſt of October 1633, William Tiffyn Gent. [V] John Harvy, John Keble, and Richard Kearnes, ſold this maner, and advowſon of the Church, to

Thomas Jekyll junior Gent. without the King's licenſe, for which a pardon was obtained 17 Feb. 1638-9. Soon after, it was in

Sir John Jacob Knt. who 14 Febr. 1645, alienated it to

Harbottle Grimſton Eſq; afterwards Knt. and Bart. and Maſter of the Rolls. [See an account of him and his family under Bradfeild.]

From him it deſcended, by Mary his eldeſt daughter, to

2. CREPING-HALL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands very pleaſantly upon an eminence, open to the ſouth ſouth-eaſt, and eſpecially ſouth-weſt, where it has agreeable proſpects. 'Tis moated round, and about a mile from the Church; adjoining to Fordham, on which account, in the Inquiſitions, it is ſometimes fixed to this laſt pariſh, and called at other times the Pariſh or Hamlet of Creping.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign it belonged to Aluuard, and others; but at the time of the general ſurvey, to Richard Fitz-Gilbert Lord of Clare, and to one Moduin, &c. under him [X].

Under Richard de Clare Earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, that dyed 47 Hen. III. Hugh de Creſſye held two parts of a fee in Crephinge (q). The heirs of Hugh de Crepping held the ſame under Gilbert Earl of Glouceſter, 8 Edw. II. and under Roger Earl of March 22 Ric. II. (r). By which we obſerve, that a family took their ſurname from this place; and were ſomewhat conſiderable: for Walter de Crepping had leave to hunt in Eſſex (s): a privilege not granted to mean perſons.

In the year 1348, Margaret Bacon held it of the Honor of Clare. Soon after, the Veres Earls of Oxford ſeem to have been lords paramount of it: for, in the 5th of Henry IV,

William Taſilburgh paid ingreſs fine for this maner, bought of Albrey de Vere Earl of Oxford. That noble family loſt it for their ſtrict adherence to the Houſe of Lancaſter; and K. Richard III. granted in 1483 the maner of Crepping in Fordham to

John Howard Duke of Norfolk (t). However K. Henry VII. reſtored it to

John de Vere Earl of Oxford; whoſe deſcendent——Edward Earl of Oxford, by licenſe dated 29 Octob. 1574, ſold it to

Chriſtian Turner. She was daughter of William Fiſher, and married to John, Son of Thomas, Turner, who had for ſome time lived in this houſe: at the time of this purchaſe ſhe was a widow. [See above under Blackmore, p. 57]. She departed this life 9 Janu. 1604, and was ſucceeded by her only daughter and heir

Margaret Turner, who became the ſecond wife of Thomas Smyth of Blackmore Eſq; and had by him ſix ſons and four daughters: but was remarried to Sir Stephen Powle or Powel (u). In this, and her other eſtates ſhe was ſucceeded by her eldeſt Son and heir——John Smyth Eſq; and the following poſſeſſors of it have been—John—Charles—Arthur—Stephen—Thomas, and another Thomas, as may be ſeen above under Blackmore, p. 57. The laſt Thomas Smyth Eſq; dying without iſſue 25 Janu. 1724, left this eſtate to his niece

Mary Tendring, who dying unmarried bequeathed it to her couſin

Thomas Alexander Smyth Eſq; and he departing this life without iſſue 26 Sept. 1747 left it by will to his nephew

Charles Alexander Eſq; the preſent poſſeſſor.

The quit-rents of this maner are 14 l. per ann.

Bromehouſe, is a capital meſſuage partly in this and the adjoining pariſhes, as I have ſhewn under Chapel. Robert Sandford Eſq; who dyed 26 Septemb. 1631, or 1632, held this eſtate with appertenances in Chapel, Great Tey, Colne Wake, and Mount Bures, of Edw. Alſton Eſq; as of his maner of Mt. Bures, in free ſocage, leaving three daughters coheirs; namely Mary wife of Francis Nicholſon, Anne of John Jeſſup, and Elizabeth of John Meade (w). After having continued for a while in the Nicholſon family, it became part of the conſiderable eſtate of John London Eſq;

For ſome time it was embezzled, till, upon a Commiſſion for Charitable Uſes, an Inquiſition being taken at Kelvedon, 11 Decemb. 1600, Oath was made, "That John Allyſon, and John Boteler, did by their deeds dated 29 June 1460. enfeoffe, deliver, and confirm unto John Loveney and John at Meadow of Colne-Wake in Eſſex, one Meſſuage with a garden, and three crofts of land thereunto adjoyning in Colne-Wake, called Hethes; and alſo one meadow called Fullers mead, containing one acre and one rood; and alſo the Church-houſe; all in Colne-wake, and all the profits thereof, to the Uſe of the Poore, and Reparation of the Church, as occaſion and neceſſity ſhould require, with the conſent of the parſon and of two or three of the chief note in the pariſh: Which had of long time been beſtowed accordingly; untill one John Keble did convert it to his owne uſe, and one Will. Two Almeſhouſes by the Church-yard, are part of this gift. And the Pariſhioners have built another Almſhouſe upon Wake's-Green, for two dwellers.

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel; both tyled. At the weſt end, there is a wooden Turret, with a pretty tall ſpire, ſhingled, containing 3 Bells.

This Rectory was for many centuries appendant to the maner of Wake's-hall. When Lord Grimſton ſold that maner, he reſerved the Advowſon of this Church, which is ſtill in his poſterity.

There belongs to this Rectory a Glebe of about twelve acres.

22. BURES, or BEWERS comes next in order after the Colnes. From whence the name is formed we cannot well judge, unleſs it is from the Saxon Beoꞃh, a fortification [Y]: And the mount here countenances that derivation. For, near the Church here is an artificial Mount, caſt up to a conſiderable hight. It is now about 80 feet perpendicular; but has been much higher, part of it having been cut away and thrown down. As it is at preſent, when you are on the top it ſeems level with the upper part of the Belfrey; but that ſtands on much higher ground than this when firſt rais'd, ſo that it could not be once leſs than 100 feet high from the bottom of the dry moat. To all appearance it covers an acre and a half of ground, if not more. It is not yet certain whether any buildings were on, or about it, as it is ſaid no foundations have been diſcovered.

However, from this Mount this pariſh receives its diſtinguiſhing appellation of Mount Bures, in contradiſtinction to Bures St. Mary's, which ſtands on the oppoſite ſide of the river Stour, within the county of Suffolk [Z].

The other names of this place that occur in records, are Buers parva, and Buers Sancti Johannis, Little Buers; and Buers St. John's, becauſe the Church is dedicated to that Saint; and Sackvile Mont Buers, becauſe it belonged for many ages to the noble and moſt ancient family of Sackvile now Dukes of Dorſet.

This pariſh, at the time of the grand ſurvey, was chiefly holden by Roger Pictavienſis; but in Edward the Confeſſor's reign had belonged to Ulmer. [A].

Beſides Bures, Roger held the lordſhip of W. Bergholt, and lands in Bradfeild; but in the reign of K. Henry I. they were veſted in the Sackville family.

Herbran de Salchevilla, Salcaville, Saccavilla, or Saccvill (for ſo many different ways is the little town in Normandy written, from whence they took their ſurname) came into this iſland with William the Conqueror; and returning back to his native Country was living there in 1079, having three ſons, Jordan, William, and Robert, and a daughter called Avice. The eldeſt ſon ſettled in Normandy (y); but Sir William de Sacvill, the ſecond ſon, living in England, had eſtates in Bures ad montem, Nayland, and Braxted, &c. (z). And by Albreda his wife — having three daughters, coheirs, named Hodierna, Agnes, and Beatrix, he gave the two firſt lands in this pariſh called Talbotts, and Brinſics, which were granted afterwards to St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter [B]. Hodierna was married to Matthew de Gernon, Agnes to Richard de Aneſtye, and Beatrix to William de Glanivill lord of Bromholme. None of their family inherited this eſtate

[Y] The Saxon word Buꞃe, ſignifies conclave, a chamber, but we cannot gueſs how it can be applicable to this place.

[Z] Bures St. Mary's is the place where St. Edmund the Martyr, King of the Eaſt Angles, was crowned; and not Bury, as J. Bromton ſuppoſes, nor yet Burn in Lincolnſhire, as Mr. Camden aſſerts. The point is determined by the following paſſage of Galfridus de Fontibus, who wrote before the year 1156, and remains in manuſcript in the Univerſity Library at Cambridge. "Facta autem in illum acclamatione, attollentes læti Suffolchiam de-duxerunt, & in villa Burum ad regni faſtigium promoverunt, aſſiſtente Humberto venerabili antiſtite, Eadmundum in Regem unguente & conſecrante. Eſt autem Burum villa coronae antiquitus regiæ, certus limes Eſt-Saxiæ & Suffolciæ, ſita ſuper Sturium fluvium, æſtate & hyeme rapidiſſimum." For it appears from hence, that the place of the coronation was ſituated upon the river Stour, which Bury is not. Matthew of Weſtminſter calls the place expreſsly Bures, 'villa regia.' Vide Chronic. J. Bromton, col. 745, & 754. M. Weſtmonaſt. ad ann. 855. Camden's Britannia, in Lincolnſhire. There was a family ſurnamed De Bures, who had eſtates in Colne Engaine, and elſewhere. eſtate: For Sir Robert de Sacvill, youngeſt ſon of Herbran, was living here in 1119, and held the maners of Bures ad montem, Bergholt, and Alſemanſton, with ſeveral other eſtates [C], of the Honor of Eye. This Robert gave the Abbot and Monks of St. John's in Colcheſter his maner of Wickham-Skeyth in Suffolk, and ſpending the laſt part of his life as a Monk, was buried in that Abbey (a); leaving, by Lettice his wife, daughter of Sir Henry Woodvil, four ſons, Jordan, Stephen, Nigel, and Helias. Jordan, the eldeſt ſon who was living in the time of K. Stephen and Henry II. confirmed his father's grant to St. John's Abbey, with addition of other lands of his own. He married Ela, daughter and coheir of Ralph de Den, lord of the maner of Buckhurſt, being parcel of ſix knights fees which the ſaid Ralph held in Chalvington, in Suſſex: and had by her Jordan, Richard, Geffrey, Ralph, Guy, and Warine. —— Sir Jordan de Sacvill, the eldeſt ſon, was a Baron in the time of K. Richard I. as was alſo his next brother Richard (b).—— Sir Geffrey, the third ſon, and Ralph de Merſey, had a ſafe conduct from King John, in 1207, to come into Eſſex, and find ſureties to the Sheriff for payment of 1000 marks, for procuring the favour of the King whoſe diſpleaſure they had incurred, and who had cauſed their lands to be ſeized (c) [D]. By Conſtance daughter of Sir Edmund Brooke, Sir Geffrey had two ſons, Jordan, and Guy; and Joane, married to William St. Leger.——Sir Jordan de Sackvill, the eldeſt ſon, being a Baron, had, by Maud his wife, daughter of —— Normanvil, William, and two other ſons.——William, the eldeſt ſon, married Clara daughter of Matthew de Haſtings, and by her was father of —— Sir Jordan de Sackvill, or Saukavil, who took part with the Barons againſt King Henry III. and, in the 39th of that king, was preſented at Chelmsford before the Juſtices itinerant, becauſe he held ſeveral knights fees and had not received the honor of knighthood (d). He dyed 3 Edw. I. holding of the Earl of Cornwal Little Bures and Bercholt, and the advowſon of thoſe Churches, by the ſervice of two knights fees, and ſuit at the court of Eye from three weeks to three weeks: Likewiſe holding 60 acres of arable in Great Buers, of William Gernon by the ſervice of 3 parts of a knight's fee, and payment to Geffrey Gernon of ſeven quarters of wheat, and 20*s.* yearly, during the life of the ſaid Geffrey (e). Sir Jordan, by his wife Margery, daughter and coheir of Sir Robert de Aiguillon, left two ſons, Andrew and Geffrey. ——Sir Andrew ſucceeded him, and had his ſon, ——Sir Andrew, who in the 21ſt of Edward I. obtained a grant of free warren in his maner of Bures ad montem, Bergholt, &c. (f). By Joane his wife, daughter of . . . Mortimer, he left Sir Andrew, the third of that name, born 28 Sept. 1306, who dyed in 1370. Whether he left any iſſue is doubtful: But his ſiſter Maud was married to Edmund de la Pole, brother of Michael Earl of Suffolk, who preſented in her right to this living from 1383 to 1392 (g). She departed this life 9 June 1393, holding the maners of Bures ad montem and Bergholt, and —— Sir Walter de la Pole is ſaid to have been her ſon and heir (h).

But they ſoon came again into the Sackville family. For Margaret, widow of Sir Thomas Sackville, held them in dower in 1450 (i).

Here, according to my uſual method, and for the ſake of conciſeneſs, waving a further account of this moſt ancient noble family of Sackvill, and of their intermarriages, actions, &c. I ſhall only take notice of ſuch of them as are mention'd in the Inquiſitions poſt mortem with relation to Bures and W. Bergholt; begging leave to refer for the reſt to the Peerages; eſpecially as none of them ſeem to have been ſeated in this County. Only I ſhall juſt take notice, that the firſt of this family who was ennobled by patent was Thomas Sackville Eſq; created Baron of Buckhurſt 8 June 1566.

Edward Sakeville, grandſon of Margaret mentioned a little before, held, at the time of his deceaſe, 29 Hen. VI. the maners of Bergholt and Mount Bures, with the advowſons of thoſe Churches, of John Duke of Norfolk.——Humphrey his Son and heir, born in 1436, held the ſame, till his deceaſe in 1488. This maner of Buryes ad montem being then valued at 20 l. and that of Bergholt at 20 marks (k).—Richard ſon of Humfrey, dying 28 July 1523, held theſe maners of Buries ad montem, and Sackvile Bergholt, of Charles Brandon Duke of Suffolk, as of his Honor of Eye, by the ſervice of the 5th part of a knight's-fee, and 6 s. 8 d. rent (l). ——John, his ſon and heir then aged 40 ſucceeding him. He held the maner of Bures, alias Bewres, ad montem, and 6 meſſuages, 120 acres of arable, 30 acres of paſture, 10 acres of wood, and 100 s. rent, in Bures, Fordham, and Wormingford: The whole then valued at 30 l. per ann. He dyed in September 1557 (m). And in his will bequeathed to the poor of Bergholt and Montbury in Eſſex 3 l. (n). —— Sir Richard his Son, then aged 50 years, ſucceeded him. He dyed 21 April 1566, poſſeſſed of the maners of Bures ad montem, and Bergholt Sackvill; the former valued at 16 l. and the latter at 24 l. per ann. (o).—Thomas his Son, and ſucceſſor was created Baron Buckhurſt the ſame year.

He ſold it, not long after, to John Diſter Gent.

There is about 1000 acres of land in this pariſh:

And it partakes of Tho. Love's gift.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. John, is of one pace with the Chancel; both tyled. In the middle between the church and the chancel, ſtands a ſquare Tower of ſtone, with a ſpire ſhingled, containing 4 Bells.

This Rectory was appendent to the maner; and when the noble owners parted with the maner, they reſerved to themſelves the Advowſon of the Living, which is in the gift of his Grace the Duke of Dorſet.

Here formerly was a Chantry, by whom founded is unknown. In the church-yard, remains a little Chapel, on the north ſide of the Church, ſuppoſed to have been deſigned for the Chantry prieſt; but now converted into two tenements, which are in the diſpoſal of the incumbent.

On the right hand ſide of the Porch, going in are the Sackville's Arms; and on the left theſe three Letters ihs i. e. Johannes, or John, the Saint to whom the Church is dedicated. At the top of the Porch on the outſide, there formerly was a ſtone about 8 inches ſquare, with the date MLIX. Suppoſed to have been the time of the foundation of this church (r); but that ſtone is now miſſing.

23 FORDHAM

is parted from Aldham by the river Colne, and took its name from the Ford over that river at Ford-ſtreet. It is called Great Fordham, in oppoſition to the maner of Little Fordham, or Bourchiers-hall in Aldham, as may be ſeen under that pariſh. And is otherwiſe ſtyled in records Fordyngham, Forham, and Forheda.

In the Saxon times the owners of it were Eſber, Aluric, Wiſgar and Ulmar, and one Touillda: Under William the Conqueror it was holden by Hugh de Gurnai, William of Warren, and Richard Fitz. Gilbert [F].

In this pariſh were anciently four Maners, now united into two; namely 1. The Maners of Fordham-hall, and Argentines. 2. The maners of Great Fordham, and the Frith.

1. FORDHAM-HALL

ſtands near the Church. 'Tis the part that belonged to Hugh de Gurnai, but we cannot find how long it continued in his poſterity.

The demeſnes of the other maner of Argentine's, or as vulgarly called Archendine's, are ſuppoſed to have been what is now a Farm of that name in the Weſtern part of this pariſh, belonging to the heirs of Richard Sparrow, late of Colcheſter. There belongs to it a meadow in Aldham pariſh, by the ſide of Fidler's wood, reaching up to Fordham-bridge.

The next after H. de Gurnai's heirs, who is recorded to have enjoyed Fordham-hall, was Adomar de Valence, Earl of Pembroke: and, under him; Mabilia Cole held here the 6th part of a knight's-fee. That Earl was found, after his deceaſe 23 Janu. 1323 [G], to have holden in ca.

[G] He was one of the retainers to Iſabell, the cruel Queen of K. Edward II. and having been one of thoſe who paſſed ſentence of death upon Thomas Plantagenet Earl of the maner of Fordham, charged with the payment of 5*s. per ann.* to the Prior of Okebourne; and 4*s.* 4*d.* to the Abbot of St. John's Colcheſter (p). His widow, Mary daughter of Guy de Chaſtillon Earl of St. Paul in Artois, had this eſtate as part of her dower, till her deceaſe in 1376 (q). And ſhe was ſucceeded by John de Haſtings, Son of John, and grandſon of Laurence de Haſtings; which Laurence, in right of his grand-mother Elizabeth eldeſt ſiſter of Audomare de Valence had ſucceeded him in honour and eſtate (r). This John de Haſtings Earl of Pembroke was killed at a tournament 13 Ric. II. He married Philippa, daughter of Edmund Mortimer Earl of March, by whom leaving no iſſue, ſhe took to her ſecond huſband Richard Fitz-Alan Earl of Arundel; who dying 21 Ric. II. She had for her third huſband Tho. Poynings lord St. John of Baſing. She enjoyed this eſtate in dower, till her deceaſe 2 Hen. IV. Then, in purſuance of the ſettlement made by John de Haſtings Earl of Pembroke, [as mentioned above, p. 35. and 138.] This and other eſtates came to his mother's Siſter's Son

William de Beauchamp, Baron of Bergavenny. He dyed 8 May 1411, and his widow, Joane daughter of Richard Earl of Arundel, held this eſtate in dowry till her deceaſe 14 Hen. VI. Richard de Beauchamp, her ſon, was dead before her, leaving an only daughter aged 18, and named

Elizabeth, married at that time to Sir Edward Nevill, fourth ſon of Ralph the great Earl of Weſtmoreland (s). He held this maner and the part formerly belonging to Mab Cole, by the courteſy of England, and dyed 18 Octob. 1476, after his wife. Their ſon——George Nevill Lord Bergavenny (t) ſucceeded; and married, firſt, Joane daughter of Thomas Earl of Arundel by whom he had only one daughter. His ſecond wife was Mary daughter of Edward Stafford Duke of Buckingham, and by her he had five daughters and two ſons, Henry and Edward (u). He ſeems to have given this eſtate in his lifetime to the latter. For—Sir Edward Nevill held the manner of Fordham in 1524 (w). Moſt probably he was involved in the ruin of his grandfather the Duke of Buckingham. For K. Henry VIII. in 1539 granted to

Thomas Colepepper Eſq; one of the gentlemen of his privy chamber and his heirs male the maners of Fordham-hall, alias Fordingham, and Archentine, with appertenances, and a paſture called Fordham-frith, late part of the poſſeſſions of Sir Edward . . . . attainted, to hold by the 4th part of a knights fee (x). Two years after, thoſe eſtates, with the advowſon of the Church, were granred to

Sir Antony Wingfeild, and his heirs, to hold in capite (y). And, the following year, the maners of Fordham, alias Fordyngham hall, and Archentyne, with appertenances, and 30 meſſuages, 5 tofts, 2 mills, 3 dovehouſes, 5 gardens, 600 acres of arable, 200 acres of meadow, 500 of paſture, 300 of wood, 200 of furze and buſhy ground, 60 of marſh, 20 of alder, and 30 l. rent, in Fordham, alias Fordingham, Weſtbergholt, Lexden, Great Stanway, Copford, Aldham, Marks Tey, Great Tey, Mount Bures, Wethermonford, Little Horkeſley, and Peldon; and the advowſon of Fordham Church; were ſold by the ſaid Sir Antony and others, to John Lucas Eſq; and John Abell Gent, the licenſe being dated 9 Octob. 1543 (z).

Hitherto, the ſeveral maners in this pariſh ſeem to have been in one hand; but, upon this purchaſe, they were divided: John Lucas Eſq; having for his part the Maners of Fordham-hall, and Archendine's; and John Abell Gent. the maners of Great Fordham, and the Frith. And of them ſo ſevered we ſhall treat for the future accordingly; after we have juſt taken notice of what hath occurred to us concerning Argentines in particular.

John Argentine, who dyed 12 Edw. II. 1319, held this maner of Fordham of the Priors of Colne, and St. Botolph, Thomas de la Mote, the Prioreſs of Wykes, John de Sutton, Henry Bakin, Gundreu de Sakevile, Hugh de Feringh, William de Horkeſley, William Gernon, Ric. de Ewell, John Chaus, Henry at Ponde, Matthew Cook, John Durwy, Adomar de Valence, and John Seburgh, by knight's ſervice, and 49 s. 1*d.* yearly rent. By a firſt wife he had Johanna, Dioniſia, and Elizabeth; and by his ſecond wife Agnes, and John his ſon and heir (a).

In 1537, K. Henry VIII. granted the maner of Argentines with the appertenances in Fordham, and lands called there Pondhouſe, to Edward Nevill and his heirs male to be holden in fealty (b).

Fordham-hall

maner and demeſns being thus veſted in John Lucas Eſq; he held them till the time of his death 13 Septemb. 1556 [H]; and then was ſucceeded by his ſon——Sir Thomas Lucas, who dying 29 Auguſt 1611, had for ſucceſſor his ſon——Sir Thomas, that dyed 25 Sept. 1625 (c).——Sir John Lucas Kt. eldeſt ſon and heir of the latter, was created Baron Lucas of Shenfeild 3 Janu. 1644-5; and dyed 2 July 1671. He left an only daughter and heir

Mary wife of Antony de Grey Earl of Kent. She was created Baroneſs Lucas of Crudwell, 7 May 1663; and dyed 1 Novemb. 1700, as did

He was advanced, 14 Decemb. 1706, to the titles of Viſcount Goodrich, Earl of Harold, and Marquis of Kent: and, 28 April 1710, to the further title of Duke of Kent. His ſons dying before him without iſſue, his Grace ſettled his real eſtates upon Jemima, the only daughter and heir of his eldeſt daughter Annabella, who had married John Campbel Lord Viſcount Glenorchy. This lady Jemima Campbel was married in May 1740 to the Honorable Philip Yorke, now Lord Viſcount Royſton, eldeſt ſon of the Right Hon. Philip Earl of Hardwicke; and created Marchioneſs de Grey. Upon her grand-father the Duke of Kent's deceaſe, 5 June 1740, ſhe and the Lord Viſcount Royſton became poſſeſſed of theſe and many other noble eſtates. They have as yet only two Daughters. [See Hiſtory of Colcheſter, book II. p. 20, 27].

2. The maner of GREAT or MUCH FORDHAM, and the Frith [l].

The Frith-eſtate lyes beyond the parſonage, upon the confines of Wormingford pariſh.

John Abell Gent. had this maner for his ſhare, as we have ſeen above. He obtained licenſe, 9 May 1544, to alienate a part, or purparty, of the maner of Fordham, alias Fordingham Hall, and Archentyne; and the half of the advowſon of the Church, to William Nevard (d). But, notwithſtanding, at the time of his deceaſe, 7 April, 1558, he held the maner of Fordham, with appertenances, and 40 meſſuages, 40 acres of arable, 100 acres of meadow, 100 acres of paſture, 40 acres of wood, and 20 s. rent, in Bergholt and Fordham (e). ——John Abell his ſon who dyed 26 June 1575, held alſo this maner, with the advowſon of the Church, and a capital meſſuage called Fordham-frith, of the Queen in ca. ——Waldegrave Abell Eſq; his ſon (f), at the time of his deceaſe, 24 Aug. 1613, held the maner of Fordham, with its rights, members, &c. and 50 acres of arable, and other lands called Poles (g). ——William his ſon dyed 12 Febr. 1628, and held the premiſſes, with the advowſon of the Church. His ſon——William, then aged five years (h), was poſſeſſed of this eſtate in 1634. But in 1645 it was in

Sir Henry Herbert, and then ſequeſtred (i). For a more particular account of the Abell family, ſee under Weſt-Bergholt, where they had their capital ſeat at Cooks-hall.—William Abell, the laſt mentioned, was living in this pariſh of Fordham in 1664, and by his wife Suſan, daughter of Samuel Big, had iſſue, William, Suſan, and Margaret (k).

Not long after, this maner, and the moiety of the advowſon, were purchaſed by John Saville Eſq; and he and Francis Wheeler Eſq; jointly preſented to the living in 1689 (l).

Upon the death of J. Saville Gent. his ſon—John Saville Eſq; became poſſeſs'd of them. And from him they paſs'd to his ſon ——Samuel Saville Eſq; who dyed 2 April 1763. They are now in his youngeſt daughter Sarah.

This maner hath more Tenents than Fordham-hall.

Other Eſtates in this pariſh.

The Waſh, belonging to Mr. Benjamin Porter;—Porters, to the Rev. J. Hall's—Pools, (part in Fordham) to Mr. Michael Hills;—Late Mr. Wheeler's, now to Tho. Doiley Gent.

Mr. John Damyon; Mr. J. Deane; Mr. William Sturgeon; Shaw King Eſq; Mr. John Bailey; the heirs of the late Mr. Benj. Dyer, have alſo Eſtates here.

Suttons, belongeth to the heirs of the late J. Cormel. In Trinity term, 1296, a fine paſſed between William de Sutton and Margery his wife plaintiffs, and Benedict Wade, and Robert Sutton deforc'. for 2 meſſuages 184 acres of arable, 4 acres of meadow, 6 of paſture, 10 of wood, and 40*s*. rent in Great Fordham, Withermundeford, Bures, Colne, Great Tye, and Aldham; the right of the ſaid Benedict; who ſettled them on William de Sutton, and Margery his wife, and their heirs.

A meſſuage called Rippingales with appertenances, in this pariſh, belonged to St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter; and was granted, 13 Auguſt 1557, by Qu. Mary and K. Philip, to James Lambert, and others; To be holden of the maner of Greenwich by fealty only, in free ſocage (m).

The Priory of Little Horkeſley, and the Priory of Okebourne in Wiltſhire, had alſo ſome revenues here (n).

This pariſh partakes of the Gift of Thomas Love.

There are two Almshouſes here, but without endowment.

The CHURCH, dedicated to All-Saints, ſtands high and pleaſant. It conſiſts of a body and two iſles; but the Chancel is only of one pace: The whole is tyled. Before our unhappy civil wars, the roof of Church and Chancel was leaded, but then the lead was converted into inſtruments of deſtruction. At the weſt-end, there is a ſquare Tower, containing three Bells; and on the top of it, a lofty Spire, ſhingled, which is ſeen at a great diſtance.

This Rectory hath been always appendent to the Maner, or Maners, here. So long as they continued in the poſſeſſion of One, ſo did alſo the advowſon. But after John Lucas Eſq; and John Abell Gent. had purchaſed them, they preſented jointly to the Living in 1544 (o). Ever ſince the partition of the Maners, their heirs and repreſentatives have preſented alternately: And the right is now in the Hon. Marchioneſs de Grey, wife of the Hon. Philip Viſcount Royſton, is ſo named, in contradiſtinction to Eaſt Bergholt within the county of Suffolk, about ten or twelve miles from this.

The name of Bergholt is formed from the two Saxon words Beꞃᵹ a hill, and Holꞇ a wood; qu. Hill-wood [L] or a wood upon a hill. In records it is otherwiſe written, Bercolt, Bercholt, Barfold, Baringholte, Barkolt-Sackville, and ſome time Sackville without any other addition. Vulgarly, and moſt commonly it is ſtyled Barfeild; probably from the hamlet of Bradefelde here.

There are two Maners in this Pariſh.

1. The maner of Weſt-Bergholt. 2. Nether-hall, or Cooks-hall; with which is blended the maner of Beaumont, that was formerly diſtinct.

1. The maner of WEST-BERGHOLT.

In the reign of Edward the Confeſſor, this Lordſhip belonged to Leuuin Croc; and there was in it a Berewite [rather Berewic,] or hamlet, called Bradefelde. At the time of the general ſurvey, it was holden by Roger Pictavienſis, mentioned above under Bures [M].

About the reign of King Henry I. this maner, and that of Bures, became veſted in the noble family of Sackville. And having treated of it, under Mount Bures, as far as the nature of this work, and our preſent deſign require, we ſhall beg leave to refer the Reader to that pariſh, p. 224, where we have ſelected all that occurred in the Inquiſitions, relating to the Sackville family, owners jointly of theſe two eſtates. They remained poſſeſſed of them about 450 years: At length Sir Richard Sackville parted with this maner [N] to John Garroway Eſq; who kept his firſt court here 1 Auguſt 1559. Not long after it appears to be in the Diſters, more particularly mentioned under Belchamp-Oton.

Alice Diſter held it in the year 1581 (q). She gave it in marriage with her daughter to

Richard Weſton Eſq; Of him, or his executors, it was purchaſed by Sir John Denham, conſtituted one of the Barons of the Exchequer 2 May 1617, and knighted the 28th of the ſame month (r): He had alſo the maner of Little Horkſley. His ſon, —Sir John Denham, the famous Poet, ſold this maner to

Sir Harbottle Grimſton Kt. and Bart. Maſter of the Rolls. From whom it paſſed to his ſon

——Sir Samuel Grimſton: and from him to

William Luckyn Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir William Luckyn of Meſſing-hall Bart. who was adopted by his uncle, the ſaid Sir Samuel, that dyed in October 1700; whereupon he changed his name from Luckyn to Grimſton, and was created 3 June 1719, Viſcount Grimſton and Baron of Dunboyne in Ireland. His Lordſhip dyed 15 Octob. 1756, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſurviving ſon—James Lord Viſcount Grimſton.

The Lady Dowager Grimſton is at preſent jointured in this eſtate: As ſhe is alſo in another farm here, called High-trees.

Weſt-Bergholt-hall ſtands very near the church. There were formerly in the windows the Arms of Sackville, impaling others.

2 NETHER-HALL, or COOK'S-HALL; with the maner of BEAUMONT.

The manſion houſe is about half a mile from the Church. 'Tis called Nether, as being in the loweſt part of the pariſh; and Cook's-hall, and Beaumont from ancient owners.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, theſe lands belonged to one Goding, and Aluuine, or Aluuius, the Hunter; but, at the time of the ge-

In the reign of K. John, or K. Henry III, Ralph de Gernon releaſed to John de Beaumond, for life, all that he owed to the Hundred of Lexden for the lands he had in Berkolt (s).

Adam Cook was poſſeſſed of this eſtate about the time of K. Edward II. or III. We hear no more of its poſſeſſors till the year 1472, when William Bury held of the Ducheſs of York, the maner of Cookes, alias Nether-hall, lying in Weſt-Bergholt, Fordham, and Colcheſter: and a fulling mill [P].——Robert was his ſon and heir (t). But here the family ſtopp'd. For.

Sir Thomas Mountgomery [mentioned above under Falkburne] who dyed 2 Janu. 1493, held, among other things, the maner of Netherhall of Richard Sackville Eſq; as of his maner of Bergholt. His next heir was his ſiſter —Alice, wife of Robert Langley Eſq; aged 60 years (u).

It continued longeſt in the Abell family, who were originally conſiderable Clothiers; and had Eſtates alſo at Fordham, Neyland, &c. John Abell Eſq; departing this life 10 Janu. 1523, was found to hold of John Sackville Eſq; as of his maner of Sackville, the maner of Cookes Netherhall and Beamondes, with appertenances, and other lands and hereditaments in Barfold and Sackvill Fordham and Lexden [Q]. His ſon and heir — Thomas Abell, clerk, was then aged 30 years (w).

John Abell, who dyed 7 April 1558 held this maner of Cookes-hall of the Queen, as of her Honor of Clare. His ſon and ſucceſſor—John being then 23 years old (x). He departed this life 26 June 1575, being ſucceeded by his ſon— Waldegrave Abell Eſq; born 14 June 1561 (y); who married Alice daughter of Sir William Poole of Boxted in Suffolk, and left by her, at the time of his deceaſe 24 Auguſt 1613, his ſon and heir——William Abell, born in 1592 (z). He held this maner of Cokes, alias Netherhall, alias Beamonds of the king as of his Honor of Clare, and dyed 12 Febru. 1628 (a). By his wife, Margaret, daughter of William Lynne of Little Horkeſley Gent. he left an only ſon William, then aged five years; who was living at Fordham, in 1664 (b) [R]. But his grandfather William Lynne Gent. executor to his father, ſold this eſtate, very probably for payment of debts, to his own ſon

John Lynne, Gent. who, about 1649, ſold it again to William Brand Eſq; of Polſtead-hall in Suffolk. His ſon and grandſon, both of the name of Jacob, inherited it after him: And it is now in his great-grandſon—William-Beale Brand Eſq; of Polſtead-hall aforeſaid.

Cooks-hall has been a handſom large Houſe, and there remain ſtill many brick walls about it.

Almery-lands, and Almery ground, corruptly called the Armoury; and 3 woods, named Grovefeild copice, Writland copice, and Penſland copice, were part of the endowment of St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter (c). K. Henry VIII. granted them, in 1544, to Richard Duke; who alienated them 4 Decemb. the ſame year to John Sackville Eſq; (d). They belonged to Sir Richard Sackvill in 1566 (e), and now to the four daughters of Jeremiah Daniell Eſq;

Mr. Robert Smith of Colcheſter;—Mr. John Harvey; Mr. George Sadler; Mr. John Robinſon have alſo Eſtates here.

There are computed to be about 2000 acres of land in this pariſh, part of which is Heath.

On the Green, are three Almſhouſes for poor people, but no endowment.

The Sac'ſtan, or Sexton, hath a houſe and half an acre of land.

Out of a tenement and ſix acres of land in this pariſh, Robert Franckham left, by his will dated 20 July 1577, a yearly rent charge of thirteen ſhillings and four-pence, for the uſe and relief of the Poor inhabitants of the pariſh of St. Nicolas in Colcheſter (f).

This Pariſh is one of the Twelve that partake of Mr. Love's Gift. See under Little Horkſley.

25. WORMINGFORD.

The moſt ancient name of this pariſh was Withermundeford, or Wethermundeford, the laſt ſyllable of which was viſibly taken from a Ford here over the river Stour; as the firſt part might be from Withermund, an original owner of this lordſhip. It occurrs in records under theſe other various denominations. Widermundeford, Wytheremundeford, Widemondefort, Whithermundefeld, Wedermundefeld, Wyremundeford, Wormington, Wormton, &c.

This Pariſh, in Edward the Confeſſor's reign, was holden by Godwin; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, by Robert Greno, or Gernon; and, under him, by Ilger [S].

Robert Gernon ſo often mentioned already, had many eſtates in this County, the chief of which was Stanſtead Montfichet, the head of his Barony, and the ſeat of his poſterity: ſome of which became better known by the names of Montfichet, and De Plaiz, or Plays.

The maners in this Pariſh, are, 1. Wormingford-hall. 2. Church-hall. 3. The maner of Gerners 4. . . . that of Woodhall.

1. The maner of WORMINGFORD.

Wormingford-hall ſtands about a mile Weſt from the Church. This maner was part of the Barony of Stanſtead Montfichet, and continued in that family till the death of Richard de Plaiz, under age and without iſſue; whereupon his great eſtate was divided between his three ſiſters and co-heirs, [as may be ſeen under Stanſtead Montfichet]. Philippa, the youngeſt being married to

Hugh de Plaiz brought him this eſtate; and it was enjoyed by his deſcendents—Richard—Ralph—Giles—Richard—John, whoſe only daughter Margaret, brought it to her huſband Sir John Howard. He had two Children by her; John who dyed before him; and Elizabeth, who becoming his ſole heireſs was married to John de Vere, ſon and heir of Richard Earl of Oxford. And in this family it continued a conſiderable time.

But under de Plaiz family, and the Veres, as lords paramount, it was holden by the Poyninges, Bauds, and other tenents. For of Giles de Plaiz, who dyed 31 Edw. 1. Nicolas de Polinges and Andrew de Sakevile held half a knight's-fee, in Wythermundesford (i). And, in 1339,——Thomas de Poynings held this maner of the heirs of Sir Richard de Playz, then under age (k)—Michael was his ſon (l).

In 1376, Sir William Baude Senr. held the maner of Withermondesford in ca. of Sir John de Playce, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee (m).

The Waldegrave family [particularly mentioned under Borley, and whoſe reſidence was at Smalbridge, within the pariſh of Bures St. Marys in Suffolk] were for a long time poſſeſſors of this eſtate.—Sir Richard Waldegrave, who dyed in 1434, held it of Grace Baynard, as of her Hundred of Lexden, by the ſervice of 10 d. ward-penny yearly.—— Sir Richard, his ſon and heir, held it alſo (n). His grandſon—Sir William Waldegrave, who departed this life 30 Janu. 1526, held the maner of Withermonford of John Earl of Oxford, as of his maner of Creppinghale.—George his ſon then aged upwards of 44 years (o), dyed in 1528, and by will bequeathed this, among other maners, to Anne his wife, during the minority of William his eldeſt ſon and heir (p). He was knighted, but dying in 1553, left his ſon——William, knighted in 1570, father of Sir William Waldegrave, who kept his firſt court here 29 April 1584. He held this maner of Wormingford-hall, and Wormingford Park, and other lands, tenements &c. in this pariſh, the two Bures, Lammarſhe, Colne-Wake, Fordham, Horkeſley, Boxted, and Colcheſter; and departing this life 25 Auguſt 1610, was ſucceeded by his ſon——Sir William Waldegrave, then aged upwards of 40 years (q), who dyed 26 November, 1612: He held part of the maner of Wormingford-hall, alias Wethermondford, conveyed to Geffrey Little; and the reſidue of the ſaid maner, and Wormingford-Park, and all the other lands &c. belonging to the ſaid maner; — of Sir Francis Hobart Kt. as of his maner of Stanſted Munfitchet—William his ſon was then aged 10 years (r). Being knighted he had for his ſecond lady Jemima Bacon [T], who held this eſtate in dower in 1635, the reverſion being in her eldeſt ſon ——William Waldegrave Eſq; (s). His widow Frances kept a court here 18 Decemb. 1650 [V]: and her ſon — Thomas Waldegrave Eſq; held his firſt court 28 Septemb. His widow [W] enjoyed this eſtate till 1695. Their ſon and heir—— Thomas Waldegrave Eſq; ſold Wormingford-hall, and Church-hall, to

John Currants or Currance Eſq; who held his firſt court 9 March 1702, as did his ſon—Clement Currants Eſq; 21 Septemb. 1704. The laſt heir dyed ſomewhere in America [X]; And Richard Androews Eſq; of Earls Colne, having purchaſed this eſtate, with Church-hall, and the Rectory; his heir John Wale Eſq; ſold them to Samuel Tufnell of Langley's Eſq; and they are now in his family, mentioned above under Great Waltham.

Wormingford-hall had a Park, mention'd in the Inquiſitions. There is ſtill a farm called the Lodge; to which belongs a Mere of about 12 acres, formed by the river Stour, oppoſite to Smalbridge.

2. The maner of CHURCH-HALL.

The houſe ſtands near the Church, which is the reaſon of the name. 'Tis otherwiſe ſtyled the maner of Wormingford only, alias Withermonford, alias Church-hall.

This maner, with the Church, was given, about the reign of K. Henry II, by Walter del Windleſores and Chriſtian his mother, to the Nuns of Wikes.

Under them it was holden by ſeveral tenents; of whom we find mention only of Geffrey Rokell; and John Poley, the latter of whom held it in Octob. 1487,——Richard, his ſon and heir, being aged 20 years (t).

K. Henry VIII. granted this maner, in 1528, with Wikes Nunnery, and many other eſtates, to Cardinal Wolſey (u). Upon whoſe premunire they falling to the Crown, the ſame King, in 1531, granted this maner, and the Advowſon of the Church; &c. to the Abbey of Waltham-Holy-croſs; in lieu of the maner of Stanſtead-Abbots in Hertfordſhire, which they had yielded to him (w). They reverting to him upon the general ſuppreſſion of Monaſteries, his Majeſty, in 1544, gave this maner of Wormington, and Advowſon of the Vicarage, to Thomas Mannok, and Dioniſia his wife, and their heirs (x).

In 1572, Qu. Elizabeth granted this maner of Wormyngford, alias Church-hall, and advowſon of the Vicarage, to Richard Hill, and William James (y). Sir William Walgrave held the ſame, and the Rectory, at the time of his deceaſe, 26 Novemb. 1612 (z); and from him they paſſed, as Wormingford-hall, to

Samuel Tufnell Eſq;

3. The maner of GERNERS.

This name is a corruption of Gernons, ancient owners of this eſtate; a younger branch of the noble family of Montfichet; of which we have already ſpoken under Eaſtthorp page 179.

The houſe which is moated round, ſtands at the lower end of the pariſh, towards the river Stour, but at ſome diſtance from it, oppoſite to Wiſton.

William Gernon, who dyed in 1259, held of Sir Imbert de Pugeys and Joane his wife [Y], one knight's fee in Wyremundford, worth 10*l.* per ann. His ſon and heir——Ralph was aged 30 years (a). He held, about 1273, theſe lands, by the name of la Gernere, of Robert de Agillun, guardian to Ralph de Plaiz, lord of Stanſtead Montfichet (b). — William Gernon, his ſon, at the time of his deceaſe in 1327, was poſſeſs'd of this maner of Wythermondeford, with a meſſuage, 120 acres of arable, 8 acres of meadow, 12 acres of paſture, and 7*s.* 6*d.* rent of aſſize: part of the premiſſes being holden of Thomas de Ponyngs, who had the wardſhip of . . . . de Plaiz; and the reſt of Richard de Ruly.—John Gernon, his ſon, ſucceeded (c). And his ſon—Sir John Gernon, dying 7 Richard II, left two daughters coheirs; Joane married to John Lord Botetourt and Margaret to Sir John Peyton (d). [See above under Eaſtthorp, p. 179] Sir Robert Swynborne married Joane daughter and heir of Botetourt, from whence iſſued the Helions, Fyndernes, and Wentworths; ſome of which lived in the adjoying pariſh of Little Horkeſley where they had the chief eſtate.

Sir John Wentworth, in the reign of K. James I. conveyed this eſtate to undoubtedly had its name from being near, or in, a wood: though it is now otherwiſe. The manſion-houſe ſtands above a mile ſouth-eaſt from the Church, on the right hand ſide of the road leading from Wormingford-Church to Little Horkſley. It carries ſigns of antiquity, and is moated round.

4. The maner of WOOD-HALL,

Originally, it was part of what Godebold held of Suein of Eſſex, and was a member of the Honor of Raley. [See under that pariſh.]

Afterwards it belonged to a family ſeated in the adjoining pariſh of Little Horſkley, and who from it took their ſurname. William de Horkſleigh, and Emma his wife, held of the king in ca. as of the honor of Reyleigh, among other things, a tenement in Wermedford, conſiſting of one meſſuage, 90 acres of arable, 1 acre of meadow 6 acres of paſture, 24 acr. of wood, and 40*s.* rent, called le Woodhall. He dyed in 1332, and his wife Emma in 1333, without iſſue: and were ſucceeded by John de Roos, nephew of the ſaid William (e). The next poſſeſſors were the Poleys, mentioned above under Church-hall.—William Poley, or Pooley; had it in the reign of K. Hen. VIII. &c.—Alice, his widow, dyed 7 March 1559, poſſeſs'd not only of this maner, but alſo of ſeveral other eſtates [Z].—John Poley Eſq; her ſon ſucceeded (f): and dyed 6 Auguſt 1580, leaving his ſon and heir—William, aged 50 years (g). He departed this life 17 Decem. 1587.—John his ſon and heir was 30 years old (h).

It is now in the Lord Viſcount Grimſton. Hotts is a capital meſſuage. partly in this pariſh, and partly in that of Little Horkſley.

Mr. John and Mr. Robert Everard; and Mr. Kingſbury have eſtates here.

Both St. John's Abbey, and St. Botolph's Priory, in Colcheſter, had lands in Wormingford (i).

There are 1700 acres of land in this pariſh: And it partakes of Tho. Love's Gift.

The CHURCH, and a South iſle belonging to it, are leaded: The Chancel is tyled. At the weſt end ſtands a ſquare Tower, containing 4 Bells.

This Church, and Rectory, were given by Walter de Windleſores, and Chriſtian his mother, to the Nunnery of Wica, or Wikes, in this county: and the grant was confirm'd by the charter of K. Henry II (k).

The Rectory and great Tithes were appropriated to that Nunnery; and a Vicarage ordain'd which continued in the gift of the Convent till 1528, when they were obtain'd by Cardinal Wolſey, and made part of the endowment of his College at Oxford (l). Upon his fall they reverting to the Crown, K. VIII. exchang'd them, in 1531, with Waltham-abbey, as is related under Church-hall. After the diſſolution of the Abbies they became veſted in the King, and were granted to Thomas Mannok, or Manock, and Dioniſia his wife, who preſented to the Vicarage from 1562 to 1579 (m). And from them they paſſed to the Waldegrave family, &c. and to the preſent patron John-Jolliff Tufnel Eſq; [A].

and this maner lay in both counties. So low as the year 1455, we find theſe two Pariſhes ſaid to be ‘ parcel of the maner of Neylond, which ‘ maner is in the confines of Eſſex and Suffolk.’ (n).

At the time of the general Survey, they belonged to the great Suein of Eſſex [C], whoſe chief ſeat was at Raleigh.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, this diſtrict belonged to Robert Godebold, afterwards under-tenant to Suein; This Godebold, had free-warren here, and at Aſſeldeham, as it is ſet forth in a perambulation of the Foreſt of Eſſex. By Raginild his wife he was father of——Robert founder of the Priory here; Richard; and Hawiſia. Robert, the eldeſt ſon, by Beatrix his wife, had Robert, William, Turold, Richard, and Gunnora.—Robert had iſſue—Philip, father of Robert.

When theſe two pariſhes were firſt ſevered from the maner of Neyland [D], and diſtinguiſhed by the name of Horkeſley, doth not exactly appear: but it ſeems to have been before the reign of K, John. For then there was a family ſubſiſting, that had from thence taken their ſurname. As they were ſeated in Little Horkeſley, that leads us to treat of it firſt.

26. LITTLE-HORKSLEY.

In the 12th and 13th of K. John, Robert ſon of Philip Horkeley held this maner; and alſo Rivers-hall in Boxſtead, and ſome land in Fordham, of the Honor of Hagenet (o).

In the 50th year of Henry III. Walter de Horkeſleigh held the maner of Horkeſleigh of the king, on account of the Barony of Reyley, by the ſervice of two knights fees and a half. His ſon and heir——Sir Robert de Horkeſleigh ſucceeded him then (p): He dyed 24 Edw. I, poſſeſſed of one knight's-fee here, as above, conſiſting of one meſſuage, 293 acres of arable, 13 acres of meadow, 30 acres of wood, and 25 s. 2*d.* rent of the free tenants—William his ſon (q), at the time of his deceaſe in 1332, held, jointly with his wife Emma, the maner of Horkeſley, with the advowſon of the Priory there, of the king in ca. as of the Honor of Raley, for 1 knight's fee. His nephew John de Roos was his heir (r). He dyed in 1373 (s). As did Alice his widow in 1375. But the ſaid William and Emma had, in the 17th of Edw. II. about 1324, paſſed, by fine, after their joint lives, the maner of Horkeſleye to Robert de Swinborne, and his heirs [E].

In the 13th of Henry IV, the maner of Little Horkeſle-hall was in the hands of John Doreward, John Boys, Ralph Camberleyn, and Clement Spice (t), as truſtees, we imagine; for, before that time, this eſtate was in the family of Swynborne; who made this the place of their reſidence, and diſtinguiſhed themſelves by their military exploits during the wars in France. The firſt of the name we meet with, after Robert the purchaſer, is—William Swynborne, founder of this Church [F].

He married Philippa, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Gernon, by whom he had—Robert, afterwards knighted, who much increaſed his eſtate by marrying Joane, daughter and heir of Sir John Boutetort by Joane his wife daughter and coheir of Sir John Gernon. As heireſs to her father, ſhe had not only the pariſhes of Geſtingthorp, Oton, and Walter, Belchamp; but, in right of her mother, a moiety of the Gernon eſtate. By her he had 5 ſons, Thomas; Richard; John; Geffrey; and Andrew: and 2 daughters, Alice, and Margery. He dyed 19 Octob. 1391, and was buried in the chancel of this church [G]: as were two of his ſons, John who dyed 22 April 1430, and Andrew 11 March 1418 [H]. Alice, the eldeſt daughter, was married to John Helion of Bumſtead-Helion; and Margery to Nicolas Berners of Codham-hall in Finchingfield (u). [See under that pariſh.]—Sir Thomas Swynborne, the eldeſt ſon, much employed in the wars in France, was Maior of Bourdeaux, and captain and conſtable of the caſtle of Fronſac in Guienne. He dyed 9 Auguſt 1412, and lies interr'd by the ſide of his father. It doth not appear that either he, or his brothers, left any iſſue [I]: whereupon, their great inheritance being divided, this fell to the ſhare of Margery wife of Nicholas Berners Eſq; He was of Amberden-hall in Depden, within this county, deſcended from the ancient family of Berners of Tharfield in Hertfordſhire. He dyed in 1441, and was buried in Depden church where his wife was interred. They left an only daughter and heir,

Catharine, married to Sir William Fynderne, who in her right came into great eſtates. He dyed 15 May 1462, and was alſo buried in the chancel of this church, with his lady (w). Their ſon and heir, — Sir William Fynderne, departed this life 18 Decemb. 1515, poſſeſſed of this and other eſtates [K]. By Agnes . . . . his wife he had a ſon named William, who dyed in his father's life-time, leaving iſſue—Thomas, who was aged 9 years at the time of his grand-father Sir William's deceaſe, and became his heir (x). He married Brigitta daughter of Sir William Waldegrave, by whom he had no iſſue [L], and departing this life 10 March 1523, was ſucceeded by Anne wife of Sir Roger Wentworth of Goſfield, and Codham--hall in Wethersfield. She was daughter and heir of Humfrey Tyrell of Warley Eſq; by Iſabell daughter and coheir, and at length ſole heir, of John Helion Eſq; whoſe mother Alice was one of the ſiſters and coheirs of Sir Thomas Swynborne, as above-mentioned : and brought an immenſe eſtate to the Wentworth family. She dyed 28 Auguſt 1534, leaving

John Wentworth Eſq; her ſon and heir aged forty years (y). He was knighted, and departed this life 15 Septemb. 1567, leaving by Anne his wife daughter of John Bettenham of Pluckley in Kent Eſq; his only daughter and heir.—Anne lady Maltravers, aged upwards of 30 years (z). She dyed 5 Decemb. 1580, and her next heir was her couſin ——John Wentworth Eſq; ſon of Henry, and grandſon of Sir Roger Wentworth above named (a). He lived for ſome time at Little Horkſley, afterwards at Goſfeild, and departed this life 13 April 1588. By Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Chriſtopher St. Laurence Baron of Houth in Ireland, he had —John his ſon and heir, then aged 24 years (b). In 1601 he jointured Dorothy his ſecond wife in this maner; remainder after her deceaſe to Sir John Wentworth whom he had by his firſt wife Cecily, daughter of Edmund Umpton Eſq; He dyed 10 Febr. 1613, and after the death of the ſaid Dorothy, this eſtate deſcended to the ſon — Sir John Wentworth; who, 23 May 1617, conveyed by indenture the maner of Little Horkeſey, with appertenances to

Sir Humfrey Winch, [mentioned above under Wormingford] and to his ſon—Onſlow Winch Eſq; and their heirs for ever. The latter, jointly with Judith his wife, levied a fine of this maner in 1630, for the uſe of

Sir John Denham, mentioned above under Weſt Bergholt. His ſon — John Denham Eſq; the famous Poet, afterwards knighted, loſt it on account of his adherence to K. Charles II. and on the 24th of March 1651, the commiſſioners appointed by act of parliament, as it was then called, to ſell traytors eſtates, ſold this to George Wither Eſq; for 3230 l. 9*s.* 7*d.* the yearly value then being reckoned 261*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.* However, on the 6th of July 1653, the ſaid John Denham Eſq; by bargain and ſale inrolled conveyed the premiſſes to

John Feilder Eſq; and his heirs and levied a fine. Afterwards John Feilder and John Denham Eſqres by deed inrolled conveyed to

. . . Beddingfeild, and . . . Carter and their heirs, and covenanted to levy a fine, which was accordingly done 2 Novemb. 1660. Theſe two laſt, in 1661, by deed conveyed this eſtate to Azariah Huſbands Eſq; and his heirs for-ever. This gentleman was ſon of James Huſbands of Wormbridge in Herefordſhire Eſq; whoſe eldeſt ſon was Sir Samuel Huſbands of Shalford-hall in Eſſex Kt. He married Elizabeth daughter of John Feilder of Barrow court in the county of Southampton Eſq; widow of Richard Knight of Chawton in that county. He dyed 5 April 1662, and ſhe 24 Octob. 1684, leaving 3 children; Edward, Mary, and Anne (c).—Edward, the ſon inherited this eſtate; and was firſt of Queen's, then of Corpus-Chriſti college in Oxford. He was twice married. His firſt wife was Elizabeth daughter of Edmund Coleman of Ipſwich Gent. by whom he had 3 ſons, and one daughter of her name. She dyed 25 July 1687, and is interred in this chancel. All her children dyed young. To his ſecond wife he took Anne daughter of Thomas Burroughs of Ipſwich Gent. by whom he had 7 Children. Edward, James, Thomas, and Roger: Anne, Mary, and Sarah. Edward and Thomas dyed young; and Roger ſingle. Anne, the eldeſt daughter was married to Richard-Gideon Glanville of Elmeſet, Gent. by whom ſhe had one ſon, and two daughters. Mary dyed unmarried. Sarah was the wife of Samuel Saville of Colcheſter Eſq; by whom ſhe had two daughters, Anne married to the Rev. Charles Onley, Rector of Fordham; and Sarah. [See under Styſtead.] —— James Huſbands, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, was Fellow of Cay's college in Cambridge; L L. D. Rector of Aſhdon, and Fordham; and Vicar or perpetual Curate, of this pariſh. He married Mary Sindrey of Cambridge; but departed this life in 1750, without iſſue. By will he entailed his eſtate upon the ſon, and two daughters, of his eldeſt ſiſter Anne Glanville. The ſon is dead unmarried: and the eldeſt daughter Anne-Gideon is married to William Blair, M. D. and hath iſſue.

The manſion houſe ſtands near the Church, and was handſomely rebuilt with brick by Edw. Huſbands Eſq;

Upon Weſtrop, or Weſtwood, Green, in this pariſh, Nicolas Garrard Lynne Eſq; hath a good ſeat and an eſtate about it. William Lynne Gent. was buried in this church 12 Novemb. 1616.

Other Eſtates here.

The ſite of the Priory [of which we ſhall preſently give an account,] with ſome lands, belong to the widow Joſcelyn. Rated at 35 l. per ann.

Thomas Joſcelyn; William Sadler; Thomas Sadler; and William Creake, have alſo eſtates here; beſides other ſmaller parcels, belonging to different perſons.

Hooth, or Hotts, is a capital meſſuage partly in this pariſh, and partly in Wormingford. Henry Riddeſdale had licenſe, 12 April 1565, to alienate it to Andrew Preſtney, and others (d). Andrew Preſtney dyed poſſeſs'd of it, 26 Septemb. 1636, leaving his ſon and heir Andrew, aged 30 years, and upwards (e). It was lately in . . . . Quare, and is ſold to Mr. G. Sadler.

The PRIORY

was founded in the reign of K. Henry I. to the honor of St. Peter, for Cluniac Monks, by Robert ſon of Godebold. He, and Beatrix his wife, gave to the Monaſtery of Tefford [i. e. Thetford in Norfolk] all their Churches; upon condition, that the Prior of Thetford, with the conſent of his whole Priory, ſhould ſend as many Monks to ſerve God, in the Church of St. Peter of Horcheſley as the place could conveniently maintain. And for their better ſubſiſtance they aſſigned all their other Churches to this Priory; namely, the church of Wiſeton in Suffolk, the church of Aſſildeham in Eſſex, with 60 acres thereto belonging, and the Tythes of the ſaid Robert's demeſnes in that pariſh; and of the marſh of Foulneſs, and Lingned &c. together with ſome Tythes in Fordham: and the Tythes of Foleton. Beſides which Beatrix gave them the tythes of her maritage [her own eſtate, or portion] and of the land which her uncle Turold had given her in Boxted (f). It was made a cell to Thetford Priory; but ſo, that upon payment of half a mark yearly to thoſe of Thetford, the Monks here ſhould be free and exempt from the Priory of Thetford.

Henry and Alan de Creffeld were benefactors to this houſe before the reign of K. Edward III. See under Fordham.

In the 13th of K. Henry IV. Ralph Chamberleyn, Matthew Sayer, Oliver at Hoo, and Tho. Hauſepe, had licenſe to give 1 meſſuage, 1 toft, 120 acres of arable, 5 acres and a half of meadow, 10 acr. of paſture, 5 acr. of wood, and 16*s.* 8 d. rent, in Little Horkeſle and Whythermondeford, to the Priory of Little Horkeſle (g).

At the ſuppreſſion the revenues of it were, in ſpiritualities 11 l. 6 s. 8*d.* per ann. and in temporalities 16*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.* —— together 27*l.* 7*s.* 11 d. yearly.

This was one of the ſmall Monaſteries, which Cardinal Wolſey got leave from the Pope 25 March 1525, and of K. Henry VIII, 10 May 1526, to make part of the endowment of his College at Oxford (h). Upon the Cardinal's premunire it eſcheated to the Crown.

Sir John Huddilſton had it in 1554, when he got a licenſe from Qu. Mary to alienate the maner of Little Horkeſleigh called le Priory, to Roger Parkes (i). And the latter had leave, 18 May 1555, to ſell to—Robert Ball, a great meſſuage with appertenances called le Priory of Little Horkeſleigh, and lands called Sowfeild, Pagefeild, Brodfeild Fycotts, Brodfeild Smythfeild, 6 acres of meadow in Tunmow meadow, otherwiſe le common meadow, with the tithes of the premiſſes (k). Robert obtained leave in 1577, to alienate this eſtate and the Tithes to—John Ball; which John dyed 4 Octob. 1621, poſſeſs'd of a capital meſſuage and 60 acres of meadow and paſture thereto belonging; alſo of 2 acres of meadow, 80 acres of arable, called Fokes; and others named Hubbards, Urreys, and Normans, in Great and Little Horkeſley.—William was his ſon (l). From him it came to . . . Waldegrave; and he ſold it to . . . Enos, whoſe ſiſter married . . . Whitchcot of London, tobacconiſt. His ſon ſold it to James Joſcelyn of this pariſh, whoſe great grand-father was an eminent lawyer: and it is now in his family.

The Priory ſtood on the north ſide of the Church, where Mr. Joſcelyn's houſe now is.

There are about 600 acres of land in this pariſh.

Thomas Love of this pariſh, by his will dated 23 July 1564, gave to Thomas Rich of Lexden ſix-ſcore pounds in truſt, for which he was to pay ſix pounds per ann. unto the Poor, until he ſhould buy a parcel of land to beſtow the ſaid Moneys on; and then the yearly rent of that land to be diſtributed by his executors, always at ſhrove-tide, to Twelve Pariſhes, viz. Little Horſleigh, Much Horſleigh, Boxſtead, Langham, Wormingford, Fordham, Aldham, Lexden, Weſt-Bergholt, Nayland, Mount-Buers, and Ardley: And alſo when that land ſhould be bought, his executors ſhould chuſe out of each of thoſe pariſhes one Feoffee of truſt, to be feoffees in truſt of that land, and to the ſame to remain from time to time for ever. The ſaid Thomas Rich by his will did leave the lands called Foul-ſlough, containing ſix acres; and Newfield, containing eight acres; both on the north ſide of the London road; and a field called Ten acres, on the South ſide of the ſame road; all lying between Colcheſter and Lexden: To be ſettled by his executors, in execution of the ſaid Charity. They are now lett for Twelve pounds a year, clear of all deductions.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, ſtands high and pleaſant, is a neat building, and well lighted with windows. It conſiſts of a body and a ſouth iſle, which alſo runs the whole length of the chancel. The Church and iſle are leaded. At the weſt end there is a Tower containing 3 Bells. This Church was given to the Priory here by the founder, and appropriated thereto, being ſerved by one of the Monks. Upon the ſuppreſſion becoming veſted in the Crown, K. Edward VI. granted 8 July 1550, the Rectory and Church of Little Horkeſley, to William Morrice, and Edward Iſaack (m). In 1623, K. James I. granted it to Sir Humfrey Winch and his heirs; and it having paſs'd with the maner, is now in the heirs of the late Dr. Huſbands. We do not find that any ſtipend was reſerved for ſerving the cure of this Vicarage, Donative, or perpetual Curacy. Edward Huſbands Eſq; gave 200 l. to which were joined 200 l. of Qu. Annes Bounty in 1720; and with that an eſtate was purchaſed at S. Haningfeild. The late Dr. Huſbands left to it by will what he thought to be the amount of the ſmall Tithes of this pariſh; about 41 l. a year: But that bequeſt is not yet effectually ſecured.

27. GREAT HORKSLEY

a fine pariſh, about five miles in length from ſouth to north; that is from Black-brook to Neyland river; but part of it is Heath.

When it was firſt ſevered from the great maner of Neyland, we have no certain account: (for our memoirs of this are not ſo early as thoſe of Little Horkeſley). But it was granted, with the maner of Neyland, about the year 1256, in fee to John de Burgh Senior, who had alſo free warren here (n).

It occurs next in the noble family of Scrope of Maſham. For Geffrey le Scrope, who dyed in 1340, held the maner of le Neylond in the confines of Eſſex and Suffolk, of the lady of Clavering of her maner of Canſton near Norwich, in ſocage.——Henry was his ſon and heir (o). He dyed poſſeſs'd of this eſtate 31 July 1391 (p). In which he doth not appear to have been ſucceeded by his Son Stephen, nor his grandſon Henry (q); but by Henry's brother Sir John. This Sir John le Scrope of Maſham, held at the time of his deceaſe 15 Novemb. 1455, of Alice Ducheſs of Suffolk, by the ſervice of one roſe per ann. 30 cottages, 200 acres of arable, 60 acres of meadow, 400 acr. [M] of paſture, 60 acr. of wood, in Great and Little Horkeſley, parcel of the maner of Neyland in the confines of Eſſex and Suffolk [N]. Elizabeth his widow was poſſeſs'd of the ſame in Great and Little Horſley, at the time of her death in 1466.——Thomas le Scrope their ſon and heir, born in 1431, ſucceeded her (r). He departed this life in 1475, holding this eſtate as above in Great and Little Horſley &c. (s) —— Thomas his ſon and ſucceſſor, dyed 23 April 1494, holding this eſtate, then deſcribed as containing 500 acres of arable, 300 acr. of meadow, 500 of paſture, and 200 of wood in Great Horkeſley and Boxtedd, leaving his only daughter and heir

Alice Scrope, aged 12 years (t). His widow Elizabeth, daughter of John Neville Marquis Montacute, enjoyed this maner of Hockley, or Horkley, as it is called in the record (u), till her deceaſe 30 Sept. 1515, having been married again to Sir Henry Wentworth. Her heirs were then ſaid to be, Margaret Mortimer, Lucy, Browne, widows, her Siſters: and Anne Forteſcue, wife, of Adrian Forteſcue; and John Huddleſton, were alſo her couſins and heirs (m). So that her daughter Alice, which had been married to Henry Lord Scrope of Bolton, doth not appear to have inherited [O]; or at leaſt to have enjoyed this eſtate only during her life.

The foreſaid Lords Scrope had ſummons to parliament for many years (z). As none of them were ſettled in this pariſh, but in Yorkſhire, we ſhall wave any further account of them here, and refer to Dugdale's Baronage.

In the 32 of Henry VIII, 1540 this eſtate appears to have been in the Crown; at which time the maners of Great Horſley and Boxted were granted to William Shelley, deſcended from a branch of the Scropes as we ſhall ſee preſently, and and to his heirs (y)—John Shelley Eſq; who dyed 16 Decemb. 1550, held the manners of Boxſteed and Great Horſley with appertenances, and 100 meſſuages, 1000 acres of arable, 500 acr. of meadow, 1000 acr. of paſture, 1000 acr. of furze and buſhes, and 20 l. rent, in Boxſtede, Great and Little Horſeley, Colcheſter, Wormingforde, and Barfold; and in Edwardſton in Suffolk; the whole then valued at 70 l. 12 s. per ann. —— William, his ſon and heir, was then aged upwards of 12 years (z).

But, 2 July 1604, K. James I. granted the maners of Horkeſley, Boxted, and Stondon, to John Carill (a).

Not long after, they came by purchaſe into the Bayning or Banning family [P], mentioned p. 32. under Woodham-Ferrers, and again under Butſbury, Stock, Little Waltham, and Great Lees, p. 49, 51, 93, 95; and more particularly under Little Bentley. Being originally derived from the adjoyning pariſh of Neyland, Sir Paul Bayning honour'd this place by taking from it the title of his Barony: For he was created 27 Febru. 1627-8, Baron Bayning of Horkeſley, and the 8th of March following Viſcount Sudbury. He dyed 29 July 1629, holding the maner of Horſley, Horkeſley, alias Much Horſley. His ſon—Paul, Viſcount Bayning ſucceeded him (b); and departing this life 11 June 1638, left two daughters, Anne and Penelope. Anne, the eldeſt having this eſtate in purparty, brought it in marriage to her huſband

Aubrey de Vere, the 20th. and laſt Earl of Oxford. He dyed in 1703 without iſſue. And his heirs, or aſſigns, ſold this maner, and Rivers hall in Boxtead, in 1712, to

Mr. Nicolas Freeman, a rich clothier of Dedham; who entailed them upon his heirs male. He dying in 1744, was ſucceeded by his nephew —— Nicolas Freeman: He by his brother —— Robert; and Robert by his brother —— John; who is dead, and ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon — John, a minor.

Some of the lands within this maner are called ware lands, others ſervage-lands, and others purpreſtures.

The maner houſe ſtands eaſt of the cauſey, towards the Southern extremities of this pariſh, near ſome fiſh ponds belonging to the ſame.

The Quit-rents amount to 12 l-3 s-7 d.

Horseley Park

is an eſtate in the northern part of this pariſh, adjoyining to Neyland. In old writings it is otherwiſe called Neyland-park.

Originally it was part of the demeſnes here, belonging to the noble family of Scrope.

Thomas Lord Scrope, who dyed about 1492, had three brothers, Henry, and Ralph, both ſummoned to parliament, but who dyed without iſſue; and Geffrey, in holy orders. Alſo three Siſters, Alice married to Thomas Strangways Eſq; Mary or Margery, to Sir Chriſtopher Danby; and Elizabeth to Thomas Fitz-Randolph. The latter had iſſue, John, who left no children; and Elizabeth, wife of Nicholas Shelley; Dorothy, wife of Lancelot Eſhe Eſq; Agnes of Marmaduke Wyvill Eſq; and Alice of Ralph Dransfield (c). Upon the partition of the eſtates,

Sir Thomas Danby, in right of his grandmother Mary, had the maner of Neyland and Horſley-park. He enfeoffed with the ſame Edward Rookwood Eſq; who ſold it to Jerom Weſton Eſq; and his grandſon, Jerom Earl of Portland, ſold it in 1639 to

William Gibbs Eſq; then of London, but originally of Worceſterſhire. His ſon —— Samuel Gibbs Eſq; dyed 8 Octob. 1692 (d), whoſe ſon ——Samuel, was father of—Samuel, that married Elizabeth Banier, by whom he had his only ſon, ——Samuel, Captain in the 18th regiment of dragoons [Q]

Braywood or Brewood-hall belonged to the famous Sir Charles Lucas; upon whoſe cruel death it deſcended to his brother John Lord Lucas, then to the Earls and the Duke of Kent; and is now in the Hon. Marchioneſs de Grey, wife of the Lord Viſcount Royſton. There are ſeveral coats of Arms in the windows.

Jordan Harris hath an eſtate in the north part of this pariſh, conſiſting partly of very valuable meadows.

Woodhouſe belongs to Henry Sadler Gent.

Nicolas-Garrard Lynne Eſq; Mr. James Jocelyn, Mr. Geo. Sadler, Mr. Joſeph Sadler, and William Goſlin, &c. have alſo eſtates here.

This Pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 1103 l.

William Gernon held, in the 39th. of Henry III, 40 s. worth of land in Horkeſley, by the ſerjeancy of finding one horſe, ſack, and broch, for the army in Wales. But which of the Horkeſleys it lay in, we cannot determine.

A little way north of Wood-houſe, there is a trench and other works, which ſome call an antient camp (e). But they appear rather to be the remains of a Britiſh oppidum, as deſcribed by Julius Cæſar [R].

Charitable gifts.

John Guyon of this pariſh, by his will dated 5 April 1509, gave a meſſuage and lands called Engliſh, in Elmſtead, to and for the reliefe and maintenance of the honeſt Poor, borne, or hereafter to be borne, in this pariſh, or that dwelt or hereafter ſhall have dwelt by the ſpace of three years within the ſaid pariſh; To be diſpoſed of by the conſent of the Rector and Churchwardens and four of the chief Inhabitants of the ſaid pariſh for the time being, and no otheewiſe.

John Falcon Gent. gave a croft called Baylies croft, to keep a drinking for the Poor. He alſo gave Katherins pightell for the ſcowring of the Candleſticks.

John Whither gave one houſe to be an Almſhouſe for the Poor. There is now an Almſhouſe for two dwellers

John Falcon put lands and tenements in feoffment, to find a prieſt to ſing in our Lady Chapel, diſtant from the Church three quarters of a mile or more. This chapel is ſuppoſed to have been the little brick houſe on the weſt ſide of the Cauſeway, having a window on the eaſt like a Church-window. At the ſuppreſſion this Chantry was valued at 5*l*-13*s*-0. And in the certificate it is ſaid, that 'the Towne of Much 'Horkeſley ys a very great and populous towne, 'and the moſt parte thereof ys upland, having 'in yt the number of 200 houſeling people (f).' ——Thomas Puplot, and John Fayer, founded alſo Obits here.

In this pariſh are lands called Chamberleynes and Sprotts; and alſo Pageſcroft; and Sprunts garden; of which the Vicar of St. Peter's hath for many years paſt received the rents. See under that pariſh in the Hiſtory of Colcheſter.

The Church and Chancel conſiſt of a body and ſouth iſle, leaded; but the Chancel is tyled. At the weſt end there is a handſom Tower, containing 6 Bells.

This Rectory originally belonged to Suein, and was given by his ſon to the Priory of Prittlewell which he founded. In that Convent the patronage of it continued till their diſſolution. Then K. Henry VIII. granted it, 9 April 1545, to John de Vere Earl of Oxford and Dorothy his wife (g). Soon after they conveyed it to John Criſtmas and others, for the uſe of John Lucas who preſented to it in 1559 (h). In his poſterity it hath continued ever ſince, and is now in the Lady Marchioneſs de Grey, and her huſband the Lord Viſcount Royſton.

28. BOXSTED, or BOCSTED.

The name of this pariſh ſeems to be derived from Box, or Boc, a box, or beech tree, and ſtede, place; it being moſt probably a place full of thoſe trees, when it was ſettled by our Saxon anceſtors. It is otherwiſe written Boccheſteda, Buccheſteda [S], Borſtad, Borſtede.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign it was holden by Aluric, and at the time of the general Survey by Euſtace Earl of Bologne, and Eudo Dapifer [T]. From hence aroſe the two Maners in this pariſh: 1. That of Boxſted-hall; and 2. Rivers-hall.

1. The maner of Boxsted-hall, lies about a quarter of a mile north-weſt from the Church. Early after the conqueſt, this maner became veſted in a family ſurnamed De Boxted, or Borſtede. . . . Everard de Boxted held it in the reigns of K. Henry I. and Stephen, of the Honor of Bologne; and was ſucceeded by his ſon——Hugh de Borſtede, as he is called; who lived in the reigns of K. Henry II. and Richard I.; and alſo paid ſcutage for it from the 2d to the 13th of K. John (i), it being rated as a knight's fee (k)—John de Boxted, ſon of Hugh, held in Boxted 120 acres of arable, 7 acr. of meadow, 5 of wood, and 7 marks rent of aſſize, in the 43d year of K. Henry III. when he dyed. —— Ralph, his ſon (l), was a knight banneret, and held this maner of the King in ca. of the Honor of Bologne, by the ſervice of one knight's fee, and ſuit from three weeks to three weeks at the Court of the ſaid Honor in Witham [V]. He departed this life in 1302, or 1303, leaving his ſon —— Peter (m), who dyed in 19 Edw. II. and left a ſon —— Peter (n); we have no account of the time of this latter's death. But his widow Iſabella deceaſed in Febr. 1384, holding this maner, and 120 acres of land in Alphameſtone, &c. —— Peter her ſon was then 20 years old (o). He dyed in 1415; and —— Thomas his ſon and ſucceſſor dyed 10 March 1426, poſſeſſed of this eſtate, then ſaid to contain 360 acres of arable, each worth 2 d. per ann. 44 acr. of paſture, each worth 6 d. 24 acr. of meadow, each worth 16 d. 80 acres of underwood, worth 3 s. 4 d. an acre, and 10 marks rent of aſſize. —— Richard his ſon (p) was the laſt of this family [W].

In the 24th of K. Henry VI. Robert de Naunton of Alderton, held this maner in fee-tail of the King in ca. as of his Honor of Bologne, which Honor was then in the King's hands as an eſcheat, and not as a member of his crown (q).

John Lord Scrope of Maſham, mentioned above under Great Horkeſley, held, at the time of his deceaſe, this maner, then deſcribed as comprehending 200 acres of arable, each worth 1 d. 40 acr. of meadow, worth 12 d. an acre, 100 acres of paſture, each acre worth $\frac{1}{4}$. 20 acres of wood, worth 4 d. an acre, and 7 l. yearly rent (r). His grandſon, —— Sir Thomas, held the ſame at the time of his decaſe, in 1494, as deſcribed above under Great Horſley (s).

About the year 1524, Sir Edward Nevill held Boxted-hall, and the maner of Neylond, in right of his wife (t).

In 1531, it was in Sir James Strangways one of the couſins and coheirs of the Lord Scrope (u), as may be ſeen under Horſley-park.

Two years after, it was bought by William Malivery, or Maleverer, without the king's licence, for which a pardon was forced to be obtained (w). And leave being procured 28 Janu. 1533, Maliverer alienated the fourth part of the maners of Boxted and Great Horſeley to

William Strangways (x): whoſe ſon or heir —— Sir James Strangways, by virtue of a licence, dated 23 January 1539, ſold it again to

Thomas Lord Cromwell (y). Upon his unhappy fall this maner eſcheating to the crown, K. Henry VIII. granted it, the ſame year, to

William Shelley, and his heirs (z). His ſon —— John Shelley Eſq; dyed 16 Decemb. 1550, poſſeſſed of it, &c. leaving —— William his ſon (a). [See under Great Horkſley.]

John Pooley Eſq; who dyed 6 Auguſt 1579, held this maner, of the Queen as of her Duchy of Lancaſter by the ſervice of the 12th part of a knight's fee: —— William his ſon and heir being then aged fifty years (b).

King James I. granted it in 1604 to John Carill (c). Soon after it came by purchaſe into the Bayning family: and

Paul Bayning Viſcount Sudbury dyed poſſeſſed of it 29 July 1629 (d). Anne his eldeſt daughter brought it in marriage to

Aubrey de Vere Earl of Oxford: as may be ſeen under Great Horkſley; and Little Bentley [X]. After the Earl of Oxford's deceaſe in 1703, the Bayning's Eſtates being ſold in purſuance of two Acts of Parliament 5 and 6 of Qu. Anne, the heirs of Anne Bayning wife of Henry Murray Eſq; alienated Boxted-hall to Samuel Ruſh of Southwark Eſq; who kept court here 29 Decemb. 1713, and it is now in his ſon —— John Ruſh Eſq; of Benhall-lodge near Saxmundham.

2. RIVERS-HALL is about three quarters of a mile north-eaſt from the Church. It ſtands high, and is a large and convenient houſe.

Grim held this eſtate before the Conqueſt, and after it Eudo Dapifer, whoſe under-tenant was one Artur [Y].

Robert Godebold, mentioned above under Little Horkeſley, held it not long after. And in the 12th and 13th of K. John, it was in Philip de Horkeley (e).

Robert de Haſtinges was owner of it in the reign of K. Henry III (f). Under him it was holden by a family ſurnamed le Breton, or de Bretton. William de Bretton who dyed in the 45th of K. Henry III. held of Robert de Haſtinges a capital meſſuage, 1 carucate of land, and 40 s. yearly rent in Boxted for a pair of gilt ſpurs every year, and by the 5th part of a knight's-fee: And of Walter de Horkeley a water mill, and 2 parts of one carucate, and 20 s. per ann. by the 4th part of a fee: And of Hugh de Nevyll 7 acres of land, for the yearly rent of 18 d. —— John de Breton was his ſon (g). —John, ſon of this latter, dyed 4 Edw. II. 1310 or 1311, and held then of the heir of Roger de Tany a capital meſſuage, with a cloſe and a fiſhery, and 49 acres of arable, a paſture, and 10 acres of wood: And of William de Horkeſley, by the ſame ſervice as above, a water-mill, 90 acres of arable, 42 acres of mowable meadow, 2 acr. of paſture, 13 acr. of wood, 16 acr. of alder, and 52 s. rent of aſſize. And of Hugh de Nevill 3 acres of arable (h) [Z]. —— Maud his daughter, then aged 21 years and a half [A], was the wife of Sir Richard de la Rivere (i), a family of note in this county, that were lords of Stamford-Rivers, and other conſiderable eſtates. He had by her, —— Thomas, who dyed without iſſue; and Margaret, married to

Sir Roger Bellers; who had by her Margaret, that became the wife of Robert Swillington. He dyed 11 July 1391, holding in right of the ſaid Margaret then ſurviving him, the maner of Boxted called Ryverſhall, of the King as of the Hundred of Lexden. —— Roger his ſon was aged upwards of 22 years. (k). —— John Swillington Eſq; ſucceeded. Elizabeth, wife of Richard Dawtrey; Johanna, wife of John Exham; and Margaret Wode (l). But Margery, relict of the ſaid Sir John Wode, and married again to one Garth, held Rivers-hall till her deceaſe 20 Nov. 1526 (m).

Sir John Dawtrey, ſon of Richard, had iſſue —— William, and Nicolas. The former by Margaret . . . his wife had —— William, who about 7 September 1576 ſold this eſtate to

John Ive, and Frances his wife. She dyed 6 Aug. 1597, and lies buried in the Chancel of this Church (n). Their ſon —— Sir Mark Ive alienated this maner, with appertenances to Sir Richard Bayning; from whom it paſſed to the Lord Viſcounts Bayning (o), and their heirs, as Boxted-hall. And of their heirs or aſſigns it was purchaſed by Mr. Nicolas Freeman, who kept his firſt court here 23 April 1713. It hath deſcended to his heirs as Great Horkſley.

Jacob Hinde Eſq; of Langham; and Mr. Lionel Atkinſon, have alſo eſtates here.

Pond-houſe was, in the laſt century, the habitation of the Maidſtone family.

Charitable Gift.

Robert Gilder of this pariſh, huſbandman, by deed dated 9 September 1633, veſted in ſeven truſtees and their heirs, all that parcel of land with appertenances lying in Boxtead, called Lynefield, containing by eſtimation two acres more or leſs, together with two cottages or tenements, and all other houſes, edifices, and buildings thereupon; with half an acre of Grove, called Ruſſell's Grove, joining to the aforeſaid Lynefield; to the uſe, benefit, and profit of ſuch Poor people of the Pariſh of Boxtead, being widows, or ſuch poor, if there be no widows, as the ſaid feoffees ſhall think fit, allow or approve of.

There are two Almſhouſes by the Churchyard for two dwellers.

This pariſh is rated to the Land-tax 1047 l. 10 s. And it partakes of Tho. Love's gift.

The Church, dedicated to St. Peter, conſiſts of a body and north and ſouth iſles; but the Chancel is only of one pace: all tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower containing three, Bells.

This Church was originally appendent to the two Maners in this pariſh; and the Tithes and Profits divided into two parts, one of which belonged to Earl Euſtace, and the other to Eudo Dapifer.

Robert ſon of Godebold gave his part to Horkſley Priory, as hath been ſhewn above: and Hugh de Boxſted, or Borſtad, gave his moiety to St. John's Abbey in Colcheſter. —— Theſe two donations were confirmed by Gilbert Foliot, biſhop of London (p). And in 1237 Adam de Campes Abbot of St. John's in Colcheſter, gave the patronage of their moiety to the Church of St. Paul, and to Roger Niger Biſhop of London. The ſame year the Dean and Canons of St. Paul granted all their right in the ſaid patronage to the Biſhop of London and his ſucceſſors for ever [B]. A Vicarage was here ordained, and the advowſon of it ſettled wholly in the Biſhop of London and his ſucceſſors, who have preſented to it ever ſince. This Vicarage was augmented in 1720 by Biſhop Robinſon and Qu. Anne's Bounty.

As to the Rectory, or impropriate Tithes, it fell to the Crown upon the diſſolution of Monaſteries. And, in 1544, K. Henry VIII. granted, among other things the Rectory of Boxted to Henry Audeley and John Maynard; i. e. Audeley had one moiety and Maynard another (q). Audeley's moiety came, in 1546, to Henry Auſteyne, and was afterwards in John Harvy, who had licence 30 May 1565, to alienate it to Edmund Markant Gent. Richard Achworth, and Edward Walgrave. The latter by licence, dated 6 April 1566, ſold his ſhare to Arthur Harris, and George Heigham Eſq; (r). ——John Maynard and Margery his wife obtained a licence 22 May 1544 to ſell their moiety to Edw. Roſe, Gent. and Elizabeth his wife: And, by licence 15 May 1546, Edw. Roſe alienated it to Robert Flyngant ſenior (s). Both parts were afterwards in the Maidſtone family of Pond-houſe: and lately in three ſiſters coheirs. The third part of them belongs now to Mr. Felton Williams.

This was the famous Walter Tirel, that came over with William the Conqueror (t): and the ſame, as ſome ſuppoſe, who afterwards ſhot K. William Rufus by miſtake in the New Foreſt, at a place called Charingham. However, it is more certain that the Walter mentioned in the record, was the common anceſtor of the very ancient Family of Tyrell, long ſeated in this county at Eaſt-Thorndon, and other Parts.

The lands in this pariſh are holden of the Honor of Clare, and within the Dutchy of Lancaſter. And here are two Maners. 1. The maner of Langham. 2. The Parſonage.

1. The maner of LANGHAM.

Langham-hall ſtands a little way north-weſt from the Church, high and pleaſant, with a moſt beautiful proſpect down the river Stour, and the Channel towards Harwich. It hath been greatly improved by the preſent owner Mr. Hinde.

The next lord of this maner after Tirel, was Henry de Cornhill, whoſe daughter and heir was married to

Hugh de Nevill. ——John de Nevyll, who dyed in 1282, held the maner of Lengham, and advowſon of the Church, of the Earl of Glouceſter, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee (u). He had a Park here. By his wife Margery he left a ſon ——Hugh under age (w). A deſcendent of his —— John Nevill of Eſſex dyed 25 July 1358, poſſeſſed of this maner, and advowſon of the Church, with ſeveral other eſtates [E]. His couſin and next heir was —— William, ſon of John Nevill ſenior of Sylam. But the reverſion of all the ſaid eſtates, after the death of Alice widow of the above-mentioned John Nevill of Eſſex, was in William de Bohun, Earl of Northampton (x). His ſon —— Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford Eſſex and Northampton dying in 1371, veſted the reverſion of this and other his great eſtates in the Biſhop of London, and other feoffees, for the payment of his debts (y).

It was next in the noble family of De la Pole: Namely in Michael de la Pole, created Earl of Suffolk, 6 Aug. 1385. Being one of K. Richard the Second's favorites, he was, through the prevalence of the Lancaſtrian faction, forced to quit the realm, and dyed at Paris 5 Septemb 1388. By his proſecution in parliament, and ſubſequent outlawry, his eſtates became forfeited to the King (z). But his ſon —— Sir Michael de la Pole, and Catharine his wife daughter of Hugh late Earl of Stafford, petitioned in 1389, for the recovery or reſtitution of the maners of Langham and Peldon (a).

In the 2d of K. Henry IV. Sir Ed. De la Pole, and others, obtained licence to give 20 l. rent out of this maner to the Priory of Carthuſians near Kingſton upon Hull (b).

William de la Pole Duke of Suffolk, who was murdered in May 1450, held jointly with Alice his wife, daughter and heir of Thomas Chaucer, the maner of Langham. —— John, Duke of Suffolk, their ſon and heir, was then but 8 years old (c). He married Elizabeth, Siſter of King Edward IV. by whom he had five ſons and four daughters: and dyed in 1491. His widow preſented to this living in 1498 (d). John, the eldeſt ſon, was created Earl of Lincoln, 13 March 1467, by King Edward IV. and proclaimed by his Uncle King Richard III. heir apparent to the Crown; but was ſlain at the battle of Stoke 16 June 1487, fighting with Lambert Simnel. —— Edmund de la Pole, the ſecond ſon, became Duke of Suffolk upon his father's death. But was beheaded 30 April 1513, the true reaſon of that tragical death being his too near relation to the Crown of England (e). And in him ceaſed this family.

Next, the Lordſhip of this place was given by K. Henry VIII. to his firſt Queen, Catharine of Arragon, to whom he was married 3 June 1509; and ſhe preſented to the Rectory from 1509 to 1528 incluſive. After her divorce, the King gave it to his third Queen Jane Seymour, who preſented to the Rectory 10 Novemb. 1536 (f). Upon her deceaſe,

Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, who had to his third wife Margaret ſiſter of King Henry VIII. and widow of Lewis XII. King of France, procured a grant in general tail of all the Eſtates formerly belonging to Edmund de la Pole Earl of Suffolk, and of this among the reſt. But by his death without iſſue in 1545 they eſcheated again to the crown, where they continued till about the year 1629; only we find that in part of that time it was holden by Sir John and Sir George Manners.

In the ſaid year 1629, K. Charles I. being in want of money, which he could not readily obtain from his parliament, alienated this, with many other lordſhips, to the city of London, in conſideration of the ſum of 350,000 l. lent by that city to his Majeſty.

This maner was then valued, in old rents, at 62 l. 9 s. ob. clear per annum; which, together

1. The Maner of DEDHAM-HALL.

The houſe ſtood in the ſtreet, at the end of the Church, but hath been long ſince demoliſh'd. In the room of it there are one or two ſmall tenements.

In the reign of K. Henry I. Robert de Raines held here the 4th part of a knight's-fee, of the new feoffment (k). It was very early in a family ſurnamed De Stuteville, whoſe anceſtor . . . Stotevyle, or Stutevile, came in with William the Conqueror (l). About the reign of K. Henry II, and K. John, Leonia de Stuteuill held half a knight's-fee in Byham, of the honor of Raines (m). It was ſome of thoſe eſtates that were called the Lands of the Normans, [concerning which ſee above p. 179, col. 1.] and holden in the 39th. of K. Henry III, by—Robert de Stutevill, and the Prioreſs of Campes, by the name of the maner of Dyham, valued then at 30*l.* per ann. (n) Either this Robert, or his grandſon, Robert ſon of John de Stuteville, dyed in 1306. His wife was Elianore Genoure, or de Genovere, widow of Alexander Baillol, who had been enfeoffed by the King jointly with her huſband in the demeſnes of this maner of Dyham, holden by one knight's-fee (o). But it was ſeized into the King's hands, on account of the ſaid Robert's being an alien and a ſubject of the king of France; (p) ſo that Elianore could not obtain it without applying to chancery, and producing the king's charter or grant (q). Their ſon——John de Stutevill, born in 1283 (r), held the maner of Dedham of the king, in ca. of the Honor of Reynes by military ſervice: and departing this life 16 Edw. II. was ſucceeded by his ſon——Robert (s). He granted an eſtate for life in this maner to Henry de Staunton, who dyed in 1329 (t).

Upon the failure of the Stuteville family this maner eſcheating to the Crown, K. Edward III. granted it in 1338, in ſpecial tail to Robert de Ufford, Earl of Suffolk, and his heir male (u). He was much employed in the wars under K. Edward III. both in France and Scotland; particularly at the ſiege of Cambray, and at the famous battle of Poictiers, and in ſeveral other remarkable actions; and alſo in many Embaſſies, and other affairs of the greateſt conſequence (w). He dyed in November 1369, poſſeſs'd of the maners of Dedham and Geſtingthorp in this county, and of the Honor of Eye &c. in Suffolk (x).——William his ſon, born in 1339, ſucceeded him; and ſerved in the wars againſt France, by ſea where he was Admiral, and alſo upon many occaſions by land. He dyed ſuddenly, as he was going up ſtairs to the Houſe of Lords, 15 Febr. 1381. and leaving no male iſſue, this eſtate lapſed to the Crown. But his other eſtates deſcended to the heirs of his three ſiſters; Cecily married to William Lord Willoughby of Ereſby; Catharine to Robert Lord Scales; and Margaret to William Lord Ferrers of Groby (y).

In 1382, K. Richard II. granted the maner of Dedham to Michael De la Pole, Earl of Suffolk, mentioned under Langham. It ſoon reverting to the Crown, the ſame king gave it to Nicholas Exton (z). In the year 1417 John Walden dyed poſſeſs'd of it: and—Idonea his widow enjoyed it till her deceaſe 5 Hen. VI. (a). But his heirs were, Roger Greneford ſon of his ſiſter Joanna, and Nicolas Danyell ſon of his ſiſter Alice (b).

After that it appears to have been in the Crown. For K. Henry VIII. 10 April 1540, made a grant of it to Thomas Lord Cromwell (c), whoſe ſhort enjoyment of his riches and honors is well known. Henry's 5th Queen Anne of Cleves enjoyed it next, as part of her jointure or appanage [K].

In the 4th and 5th of Philip and Mary, it was annexed to the Dutchy of Lancaſter, as it now remains. See above, p. 163. In the reigns of Qu. Elizabeth and K. James I. it was in the Crown: and in 1635, belonged partly to K. Charles I. and to Sir Antony Cage of Cambridgeſhire.

K. Charles I. raiſing money, in 1629, upon the lands belonging to the Dutchy of Lancaſter, part of what he had here was then diſpos'd of; eſpecially the fee-farm rent of 7*l*-6*s*.-8*d*. upon the Rectory.

It was ſome time ago in . . . Ambroſe of London, Gent, who left three daughters coheirs. At preſent it belongs to—Mrs. Walmſley, but Charles Collyer Eſq; is to have it in three years.

[K] This appears from a Court-roll of this maner, 37 Hen. VIII. beginning thus, Cur' Sereniſſime Dne. . . Anne de Cleve. And we may obſerve, that the Steward's not venturing to call her Queen after her being divorced, or not knowing what to call her properly, was the reaſon of his leaving a blank before Anne.

decayed, ſtood in a field near the road towards Langham, leading into the highway from Colcheſter to Ipſwich.

Nether-hall is only a cottage on Princely-green, where the Court is opened, and thence adjourned to an ale-houſe in the town.

Theſe ſeem to have been the Eſtates in this pariſh, that formerly belonged to a family ſurnamed de Dedham, and to the Nunnery of Campeſſe, or Campſey in Suffolk.

Robert de Dedham, who dyed 16 Ed. I. 1288, held in Dedham one meſſuage called the Eſthouſe, and 40 acres of arable, 5 acr. of meadow, 3 of paſture, and 2*s.* rent, of William de Montchenſy of Edwardſtone, by ſocage, and payment of 10*s.* per ann. He held alſo there of the Prioreſs of Campes, another meſſuage called Overhouſe, and 60 acres of arable, 8 of meadow, 3 of wood, and 13*s.* rent of aſſize.—— Gilbert was his ſon (d); In 1349, he and Alice his wife held here, and in the adjoyning pariſhes of Miſtleigh, Ardleigh, Halford [Lawford] Bradfeild, and Stratford, for their lives; 110 acres of arable, 9 acr. of meadow, 20 of paſture, 8 of wood, 10 of alder, and 20*s.* rent; which John Bond, and John Seaman, had licence to grant to the Prioreſs and Nuns of Campeſſe. They were holden of the ſaid Prioreſs by the ſervice of 24*s.* per ann. (e). Gilbert and Alice in all probability had no children, and were then pretty much advanced in age, which made room for this grant.

About 1410, John Walden, with Idonea his wife, and Henry Dalby, John Teynton, and John Drayton, clerks, obtained leave to give to the ſaid Prioreſs and Convent of St. Mary's Church in Campeſſe, the half of a fulling mill, and one rood and a half and eight perches of meadow in Dedham; holden of the ſaid Prioreſs and nunnery, as of their maner in Dedham by the ſervice of 4*d.* And the grantors had remaining the maner of Dedham in Dedham (f). Thus, firſt and laſt, theſe two maners came to belong to Campſey nunnery.

Upon the diſſolution of religious houſes, K. Henry VIII, in whom they were veſted by parliament, granted the maners of Netherhall and Overhall with appertenances in Dedham, to Humfrey Wingfeild and the heirs of his body in 1537 (g).

And 20 March 1562, Qu. Elizabeth granted the ſame to Tho. Seckford (h), who dyed poſſeſs'd of them 19 Decemb. 1587, leaving——Charles his ſon and heir (i). He dyed 14 Febr. 1591, ſeized of the premiſſes.——Thomas Seckford was his ſon and heir (k).

Some years ago this eſtate was in Mr. Samuel Watkinſon, and is now in Mr. Thomas Watkinſon.

Mr. Palmer Firmin hath an eſtate here, and there are ſome others of leſs conſequence.

This was antiently a famous cloathing Town, even as early as K. Richard the ſecond's reign [L], and the Bay trade extended into it afterwards, but is now greatly upon the decline: So that the rents of the Houſes being much fallen, it is not without difficulty that they raiſe the ſums aſſeſs'd for the Land-tax, which is 107 l. 10 s. 10 ¼ d. at one ſhilling in the pound; it being rated 2050*l*-16*s*-0.

There are about 2000 acres of land in the pariſh.

And a Fair is held here on Eaſter-Tueſday.

The Schools.

The Houſe where the Maſter of the Grammar-School lives, was given for that purpoſe by Mrs. Joan Clark; But in what year is not exactly known [M]. For the endowment of the School, William Littlebury of Dedham Gent. in his will bearing date 20 July 1571, bequeathed a Farm called Ragmarſh lying in Bradfeild and Wrabneſs, rented at 20 l. a year, for the maintenance of the ſaid School-maſter; whom he obliged, in conſideration thereof to teach Twenty Scholars ſuch as the Governors approv'd of, according to the directions and limitations in his will. This donation was confirm'd, and the Governors incorporated by Qu. Elizabeth's Charter, dated 14 May, 1574, and the title of the School there, is Queen Elizabeth's Free Grammer School [N]. The Governors, conſtituted and appointed by this Charter, had power to nominate and appoint others to the number of 24, as occaſion ſhould require, to be Truſtees of the School houſe and Farm aforeſaid; to keep all things in good order and repair; and to give an account of the Revenues and Improvements, at a general meeting of them on Whitſun-monday every year.—The Maſter of the Free-ſchool muſt be a graduate in one of our Univerſities.

William Cardinal, of Egmonton in the County of Nottingham Eſq; but a native of this Town, a brother in law by marriage to Dr. Chapman Miniſter of Dedham, in the year 1593, gave a Farm in Great Bromley; the rent whereof to be divided between Two poor Scholars, natives of Dedham or Much Bromley, and ſent from this School to Cambridge. The rent was formerly Ten pounds a year, but now Thirty.

About the year 1610, Edmund Sherman of this Town, clothier, gave a School-houſe over againſt the Church, with a yard and Garden adjoyning to it; to be a dwelling houſe for a Writing-Maſter, which hath been all along employed for that uſe, and ſome Children inſtructed on that Charity.

Here was a LECTURER ever ſince Queen Elizabeth's reign, if not before, to preach Sundays afternoon, and on every Tueſday-morning, the [L] Michael de la Pole Earl of Suffolk had here a Fulling-mill about the year 1382. The words of the record are, '. . . tenuit 1 cottag' in villa de Dedham pro Fullonibus 'ſuis qui pro tempore habuerunt molendinum fulleretícum 'prdce ville de Dedham pro pannis ſuis ſuperponendis.' . . . Inquiſ. 12 Ric. II.

[M] Mr. Littlebury, in his will, has theſe words. 'Whereas the Town of Dedham has a fair School builded, 'with an Houſe joining to the ſame, meet for a School-'maſter to dwell in, by one Dame Joan Clark.' . . . From which paſſage it appears, that the School-houſe, and the Maſter's were built before that time; but how long cannot be determined.

[N] We may in one inſtance obſerve, how much a military Spirit was encouraged by our martial and manly Queen Elizabeth; I mean, her injunctions to the Parents of Boys at Free-ſchools, and this of Dedham in particular, That they ſhould furniſh their Sons there with bows, ſhafts, bracers, and gloves, in order to train them to arms, market-day; who was ſupported by quarterly Collections amongſt the pariſhoners: But upon the decay of Trade, and increaſe of the Poor, this fell to little. Therefore William Burkitt M. A. Vicar of this pariſh, and choſen Lecturer in 1692, endeavoured to get a certain, fixed, and ſettled ſalary. For that purpoſe he uſed his intereſt with Archbiſhop Teniſon, Biſhop Compton, Dr. Eades late Prebendary of Chicheſter, and ſeveral other Gentlemen that had good reſpect for the town of Dedham, or were educated there: And at the ſame time the chief pariſhioners procured Subſcriptions for purchaſing an Eſtate to ſupport this Lecture. Mr. Burkitt dying 24 Octob. 1703, before the Money was gathered, his ſucceſſor Mr. Robert Rogers collected in all the Subſcriptions. And with them were purchaſed the great or impropriate Tithes, Parſonage-houſe, and Glebe of this Pariſh; then valued at about 40 l. a year, but now above 100 l. They belonged then to Mary Bokenham; and the conveyance of them, dated 13 March 1704, is between the ſaid Mary Bokenham of Norwich, widow and relict of Antony Bokenham, clerk, deceaſed, and the Rev. Humphry Prideaux D. D. Dean of the cathedral Church of Norwich on one part [O], and Edward Firmin &c. of the other. But out of them there is a fee-farm of 7*l*-6*s*-8*d*. paid to the Crown. The choice and appointment of the Lecturer is in 24 feoffees. Mr. Burkitt purchaſed with his own money the Houſe where he, and the Miniſters before him lived, with five acres of land belonging to it, and ſettled them upon the Lecturer of Dedham.

The CHURCH, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, is handſom, and ſpacious; being 100 feet long, 25 broad, 36 high. The two iſles are each 12 feet wide, and 24 high. The Chancel is 44 feet long, 20 wide, and 30 high. Both church and chancel are leaded. The Tower or Steeple, is 21 feet one way, 12 the other, 131 feet high: It ſeems to have been erected on the foundations of a former ſteeple; for ſome remains of the firſt building are viſible. The roof of the arch underneath is finely adorned with the Arms of the two Families of York and Lancaſter, and red and white Roſes; from whence it may be concluded, that this Steeple was rebuilt after the Union of thoſe Houſes. At the eaſt ſide of the battlements there is a ſtatue of Margaret [Counteſs of] Richmond, and her Coronets all round. In this ſteeple there are 8 large tunable Bells.

This Church was originally a Rectory, appendent to the maner of Dedham. William de Stuteville married Berta niece of Ranulph de Glanville, chief Juſtice of England, founder of the Priory of Butley in Suffolk, anno 1171; So that it is probable he, or one of the Stuteville family, gave this Church of Dedham with all its appertenances to that Priory: Upon which grant a Vicarage was here ordain'd and endowed, and continued in the gift of Butley Priory till their ſuppreſſion (l).

They coming then to the Crown, the Vicarage remain'd from thenceforth in the gift of the King and Queen, and Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter. This Vicarage being ſmall was augmented with part of the Benefaction left by Dr. William Clarke Dean of Wincheſter, to ten ſmall Vicarages or Livings out of an eſtate at Tillingham in this County.

As for the Rectory and Great Tithes, they ſeem to have reſted in the Crown, till K. James I. 9 Febr. 1603-4, granted them to Robert Stratford (m). They were afterwards in the Rev. Antony Bokenham, and his widow; from whom they were purchaſed, and made the Endowment of the Lecture here [P].

[P] About the year 1250, John de Stutevill was patron of the Vicarage here; and, at the ſame time, Johanna daughter of Iſabella de Launey received all Tyths from the aſſart lands of the ſaid John de Stutevill: And the nuns of Campeſſe did retain the tyths both great and ſmall ariſing from their aſſart lands in this pariſh. THE HUNDRED OF HINCKFORD.

THIS Hundred is bounded on the North and North-eaſt by the river Stour; on the Eaſt by the Hundred of Lexden; on the South by thoſe of Witham and Chelmſford; and on the Weſt by the Hundreds of Dunmow and Freſhwell. In its greateſt extent from South-weſt to North-eaſt it is about eighteen miles over, and from eaſt to weſt twelve miles. It is the largeſt in this county, being reckoned an eighth part of it; ſo that it has three Conſtables, whereas in the reſt there are generally but two. The King is ſeized in fee of the Liberty of this Hundred, and the Bailywick of it hath been uſually granted by patent for 31 years.

With regard to the Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, this Hundred is in the Archdeaconry of Middleſex.

Beſides the name of Hinckford, it is written otherwiſe in records, Hidingeforda, Hidingfort, and Hulingheforda; but where the Hiding Ford was from whence it took that appellation, I cannot learn.

There are in this Hundred forty-ſix Pariſhes, of which I deſign to treat in the following order.

1. HALSTED.

This town ſtands in the Eaſt ſide of this Hundred, diſtant 45 miles from London.

The name is formed either from the Saxon Hal, ſound, healthy, or Heah, high; and Stede, place: both which agree with its ſituation, it being on the ſide of a fine gravelly hill. . . . . 'Tis otherwiſe written in records Halſed, Halſtide, Hauſted, Howlſtede, Howſted. And ſometimes ſtyled South Halſted, to diſtinguiſh it from Halſted in Suffolk, that lies north of it, near St. Edmund's-Bury.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign this extenſive Pariſh was holden by ſeveral Sochmen, and Freemen, and Godwin; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, belonged to three eminent Norman chiefs, who had aſſiſted K. William in his conqueſt: Namely; Richard Fitz Gilbert, Earl of Brion in Normandy [Q], Lord of Clare in Suffolk, and anceſtor of the Earls of Glouceſter and Hertford; William de Waren, Earl of Waren in Normandy, afterwards Earl of Surrey; and Robert Malet, who had the Barony of Aye in Suffolk.

The capital Lordſhips in this pariſh at preſent are, 1. Abel's, or Bois-hall. 2. Stanſted-hall, 3. Hipworth-hall, with appertenances, [Q] He is improperly called Earl of that place, which was no Earldom, but only a family ſeat.

1. ABEL'S; OR BOIS-HALL.

This is the part that was holden originally by ſome Sochmen and Freemen, and then by Richard ſon of Giſlebert [R]. This Richard was the eldeſt ſon of Giſlebert, [whoſe ſeat, not Earldom, was at Brion in Normandy] and grandſon of Geffrey natural ſon of Richard the firſt of the name Duke of Normandy: ſo that he had ſome relation to the Conqueror (n). At the time of the ſurvey, he poſſeſſed thirty-five Lordſhips in this county, Halſted for one; thirty-eight in Surrey; ninety-five in Suffolk, and amongſt them Clare, which in a few years became the chief ſeat of the family. He obtained alſo Tunbridge in Kent, from whence he is ſometimes denominated Richard de Tonebruge (o).-

The maner of Halſted anciently comprized within its juriſdiction moſt of the demeſne lands of this pariſh: and extended alſo into Hedingham-Sible, Toppesfield, Gosfield, Belchamp-Oton, Foxearth, Colne Engaine (p), and Wake's, Wormingford, Fordham, and Stiſted.. This lordſhip, when entire, was holden of the Earls of Clare by the ſervice of four knights fees; and what remains of it is holden to this day of the Honor of Clare.

Not long after the Conqueſt it was poſſeſſed by a family of note ſurnamed De Hauſted. Here lived Richard de Hauſted about the reigns of K. Stephen, and K. Henry II. His ſon——Peter ſold this eſtate to Abel de St. Martin [S]; whoſe heirs held two knights fees in Halſted and Belchamp, of Richard de Clare Earl of Glouceſter and Hertford that dyed 47 Hen. III. (q). From this Abel, came the capital maner of Halſted to be called Abel's, which name is yet retained in the Court-rolls. His habitation was on the left hand ſide of Hen-ingham-lane, in a houſe ſtill retaining the appellation of Abel's, but now very much decayed and mean. The Court was formerly kept here, which cuſtom is obſerved ſome time.

From whence this family of St. Martin came I am not certain, unleſs it was out of Hamſhire, where Sir Renaud de Sein Martin was a Knight-banneret in the reigns of Henry III. and Edward I. (r).

Abel's ſon and heir was——Thomas; who had iſſue——William, that enjoyed this maner in 1302. His couſin and heir——Robert de St. Martin, by deed dated 5 Edw. II. conveyed this whole eſtate [T] to John de Bouſſer; with the ſervices of the ſeveral tenants, who releaſed all their right and claim to this eſtate or any part of it for themſelves and their heirs (s). A more particular account will preſently be given of the Bouſſer, or Bourchier, family at Stanſted-hall, which became their capital ſeat. Under them, as lords paramount did the maner of Abel's continue to be holden by the families of Maldon, Bois, &c.

——William de Maldon, ſo ſurnamed from the town of Maldon in this county, had a grant of this maner from John de Bouſſer. Of it was holden another maner called Dynes-hall, and Bois or Boys-hall. It was named Dynes-hall from a conſiderable family that enjoyed it in the reigns of K. John, Henry III. Edward I. and II. And Bois-hall, from John de Boſco, alias de Bois, who held it for his life of William de Maldon. The ancient ſeat of the De Bois was at Tolleſhunt Tregoz, or Darcy; [See under that pariſh] and they were ſo conſiderable, that Guido de Boys was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1363 (t).

There is involved with this lordſhip another maner called Brend-hall, Brent-hall, and Brend-hayte, on account undoubtedly of its having been conſumed by fire; and ſometimes the maner of Morefields, becauſe the houſe ſtood near the mores. It is alſo ſtyled Maldon's Place, becauſe formerly the ſeat of that family. But it is now quite ſunk and blended with the others; and Boys-hall is become the chief manſion-houſe of this lordſhip, ſtanding at the upper end of the town on the right hand ſide of the road leading to Sudbury.

William de Maldon who granted a life eſtate in this maner to John De Boys, dyed in 1368, poſſeſſed of large eſtates beſides, in Pakleſham, Prittlewell, Leigh, and Canvey iſland.——John his ſon, who dyed about 1429, over and above what he had elſewhere, held 1 toft called Brend-hall in Halſted, and 14 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, and 13*s*. 4*d*. rent of aſſize of the king. And 1 meſſuage called Dynes, with 100 acres of arable, 1 acr. and half of meadow, 20 acr. of paſture, 20 of wood, and 10*s*. rent of aſſize, of the Lord Bourgcher, and the Prioreſs of Hethingham. His couſin and next heir, was his ſiſter Joane's ſon, viz.

this life in 1473, held alſo the maners or tenements of Brendhall, and Dynes alias Boyes; with the other eſtates above-mentioned that had belonged to Maldon (y).—Henry Warner dyed 21 March 1504 [V], poſſeſſed of the ſame.—John his ſon and heir was then 19 years old (z). He dyed 21 Septemb. 1552; and was ſucceeded by his next brother —— Henry, aged upwards of 60 years (a). On the 1ſt of June 1554, he and William Emerſon ſold all thoſe lands and tenements called the maner of Boyes alias Dynes; and the maner lands and tenements called Brendhall, alias Morefield, with appertenances, in Halſted, to William Hunwick, Honywick, or Hunwich, of Dunmow, Gent. or Eſq; to hold to him and his heirs for ever. A fine paſſed the ſame month for the premiſſes: And Hunwick came and lived at Boys-hall.

The reader may obſerve, that in all theſe alienations to Maldon and Hunwick, mention is made only of Boys, and Brend-hall: for indeed the maner of Abel's appears to have been retained by the noble family of Bourchier, with the maner of Stanſted, till 28 October 1566, when William Parr Marquis of Northampton ſold them to Sir William Waldgrave, as we ſhall ſhew more particularly under Stanſted-hall.

To return to William Hunwick, he dyed 9 December 1569, holding the maner of Boyſe alias Dynes, a tenement called Brand-hall, and other lands in Halſted, of William Waldgrave Eſq; as of his maner of Abel's, by knight's ſervice, and yearly rent of 8*s*. By Joane his wife, daughter of John Barley of Stapleford-Abbot Eſq; he had —— William, then aged 12 years and 8 months (b), and two daughters. Their mother was married again to Richard Harding of Ingatſtone Gent. William the ſon dyed 23 Decemb. 1576. under age and unmarried, and was ſucceeded by his two ſiſters and coheirs; Margaret, 15 years old; and Pernell 13 years and 11 months (c).——Margaret had two huſbands, 1. Edward Golding, Gent. and to him and her Qu. Elizabeth granted livery of half of theſe maners, 24 May 1577. Her 2d huſband was Giles James, Gent.——Pernell, the youngeſt daughter, was married to Thomas Young of Roxwell in this county. All theſe parties joined in conveying, on the 12th of February 1582, Boys-hall and Brent-hall, with appertenances, to Arthur Breame Eſq; who had bought before, on the 16th of December 1576, of Sir William Waldgrave, for the ſum of 1250*l*. the maner of Abel's, with all and ſingular its appertenances; and Fines were duly paſſed for the ſaid reſpective premiſſes. This Arthur was brother and heir of Edw. Breame of Weſtbury-hall in Berking, who dyed in 1560 [See under Berking;] and he had ſold, 11 June 1574, that valuable eſtate to Thomas Fanſhaw Eſq; He had two wives, 1. Judith Bettenham, to whom he was married at Goſfeild, 5 May 1575, but ſhe lived a very little while, being interred there 30 March following, His ſecond wife was Elizabeth daughter and coheir of John Oſborne of Tiledhall in Lachingdon, widow of Richard Betenſon Eſq; By her he had Joane his only daughter and heir, baptized 1 Novemb. 1586, on whom he and his wife ſettled 2 Novemb. 1592, the maners of Boys alias Dynes, and Brend-hall, and on her heirs for ever. He dyed 6 April 1602, and was buried the 12th in this Church. Beſides the maner of Abel's otherwiſe called Halſted, and thoſe of Boys or Dynes, and Brenthall, he is recorded to have holden the maner or ſite of the maner of Stanſteed, and the meſſuage called Gladesfen.

Joane, or Jane, his only daughter, then wife of Thomas Gardiner Eſq; ſucceeded him (d). He happened to be involved in what was called Sir Walter Raleigh's plot, but which was more truly R. Cecil's Eſq; for which he obtained a pardon from K. James I. (e) and received afterwards the honor of knighthood. By virtue of his marriage becoming maſter of Boys-hall, he rebuilt it in a very handſome manner, about the year 1605, as appears by ſome part of it ſtill in being. But he was unhappy in this match, being divorced from his wife, by whom he doth not appear to have had any iſſue. On the 12th of June 1620, he ſold for 9000*l*. the maners of Abel's Boys or Dynes-hall, Brent-hall, with their appertenances, &c. to

Sir Samuel Tryon of Layer Marney Knt. The firſt of this family that came into England was Peter Tryon, who quitted the Netherlands on account of the troubles raiſed in that country by the Duke of Alva. His anceſtors had flouriſhed there a long while in wealth and honor; ſo that he did not come over in an indigent manner to ſeek his fortune, but brought with him, as it is reported, above 60,000 l. He and his wife were buried in the Church of St. Chriſtopher's, Thread-needle-ſtreet, London (f). They left two ſons and two daughters; which laſt were well diſpoſed of in marriage; Mary, the eldeſt, being wife of Sir Sebaſtian Harvey, Lord Mayor of London in 1618; and Eſther, the youngeſt, of Sir William Courteen Bart. Of the ſons, Moſes, the eldeſt left only a daughter married to . . . . Huckſley Eſq; ſo that —— Samuel, the ſecond ſon, ſucceeded to his father's inheritance. He was born in England, and knighted by K. James I. 25 April 1613 (g). The firſt eſtate he had in this county was the maner of Layer-Marney, which he purchaſed of Peter Tuke Eſq; Departing this life 8 March 1626, aged 46, he was buried the next day in the north ſide of the Chancel of this Church (h). His wife was Elizabeth daughter of John Eldred, citizen of London; which was remarried to Sir Edward Wortley, Knt. brother of Sir Francis Wortley, of Yorkſhire. This ſecond match proved unfortunate to her only ſon —— Samuel

Tryon Eſq; for the father-in-law obtaining the wardſhip of him, made waſte of his eſtate, and married him young to a niece of his own, for whom he had no liking, which rendered him careleſs and waſteful of his fine patrimony. Beſides the honor of knighthood conferred on him 1615 25 April 1615, he was created a Baronet 28 March 1620. He chiefly reſided at Boys-hall, and was very charitable to the Poor. ——Sir Samuel Tryon Bart. ſucceeded his father; and was High-Sheriff of this county in 1650. His firſt wife was Eleanor, daughter of Sir Henry Lee of Quarendon in Buckinghamſhire, by Eleanor ſiſter to Sir Francis and Sir Edward Wortley juſt now mentioned; by whom he had Samuel his ſucceſſor, and Eleanor married to Sir Richard Franklyn. By his ſecond wife, Suſan daughter of John Harvey of Newton in Suffolk Gent. he had Samuel-John, who dyed an infant; another Samuel-John; John; alſo two of the name of Moſes; and a daughter called Anne, which three laſt dyed very young. Their father departed this life about 1670, and his eldeſt ſon and heir——Sir Samuel Tryon Bart. ſurviving him but a little while, and being unmarried, the dignity and ſome part of the eſtate, deſcended to his brother by the ſecond wife Sir Samuel-John above-named [W]. But the bulk of the eſtate, and This in particular, fell to his ſiſter of the whole blood Eleanor, wife of

Sir Richard Franklyn of More-Park in Hertfordſhire, Knt. and Bart. juſt mentioned a little before. They held their firſt court at Boys-hall in 1673, and afterwards ſold their whole eſtate here to Sir Joſiah Child, Knt. and Bart. and it is now in his grandſon .... the Right Honorable Earl Tilney, whoſe reſidence is at his noble and magnificent ſeat of Wanſtead-houſe. He hath alſo in this pariſh other Eſtates, as mentioned below.

To this Lordſhip of Abel's were ſubordinate the following maners, or reputed maners; Blomſter, or Blampſters; Baddleſmeres; Priors; and Simnells; (which four took their denominations from ancient owners of them ſo ſurnamed:) and Gladſen-hall.

Blomſters belonged in the reign of K. Edw. II. to William Blomeſter (i) or Blamſter, it comprehending then 120 acres of arable, 7 of meadow, 5 of paſture, 70 of wood, and 12 s. rent in Halſted. Sometimes they are called 235 acres. It was purchaſed about 1410 by Richard Nicholls; and by marriage came into the family of Worthie, and into that of Golding [particularly mentioned under Belchamp St. Paul;] then of Martin of Melford; and now belongs to Earl Tilney.... The manſion houſe is pleaſantly ſituated at the upper end of Windmill-field, near the road leading to Braintree, and the foot-way to Gosfield.

Baddleſmeres. The manſion houſe ſtands by the ſide of the road leading from Stanſted-hall to Colne-park. About the 12th of Henry II. it belonged to Bartholomew de Baddleſmere, and continued long in that noble family (k). From one of their undertenants it took the name of Dungeons; which it ſtill retains. The Bourchiers had it afterwards, and now Sir Hild. Jacob.

Priors. The houſe is on the right hand of the road leading from Halſted to Earl's-Colne. Henry Earl of Eſſex had it in 1483, and George Sewell in 1627. It now is the widow Brage's.

Simnells ſtands on the ſouth ſide of this pariſh bordering upon Stiſted. It was holden, down to the reign of K. Henry VIII. by a family ſurnamed Simnell. Some years ago it was purchaſed of ... Ponder of Witham by the Widow Bunting.

Gladſen-hall, in the South part of this pariſh, is pleaſantly ſituated upon an aſcent, having Boone brook running below it, near the road leading to Stiſted. Here anciently lived a younger branch of the noble family of Gernon, one of which took from thence the ſurname de Gladſen. Upon Sir Ralph Gernon's founding Lees-Priory, about the year 1230; Richard de Gladſen gave thereto this eſtate. It continued in their poſſeſſion till the diſſolution, when this was given, with the reſt of the Priory's revenues, to Sir Richard Riche. He ſold it, 16 Octob. 1543, to William Marquis of Northampton: And from him it paſſed, as Bois-hall, to Waldegrave, Breame, Gardiner, Tryon, and Mrs. Brage.

It contains by eſtimation about 200 acres.

2. Stansted-hall,

So called from its ſtony, or gravelly, ſituation, is about a mile and a half from the Church.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign it was holden by a freeman named Godwin; and at the time of the general ſurvey by Robert Malet, and his under-tenant Hubert [X]. It is entered in Domeſday-book as if it was then a diſtinct entire village; which it moſt probably was. For in the old court-rolls it is ſtyled the Hamlet of Stanſted; was taxed by itſelf to the poor; and had a conſtable choſen for that leet; and ſo it continued, till of late it was united to the reſt of the pariſh of Halſted [Y].

Robert Malet, the owner of it at the time of the general ſurvey, hath been already ſufficiently mentioned under Colne-Engaine, p. 217. He was Great Chamberlain of England; but either He, or his ſon William, was diveſted of that high office, and baniſhed the realm, for taking part with Robert Curthoſe againſt K. Henry I. The feudatory tenant here was — Hubert de Montchenſy of Edwardſton in Suffolk, who, upon Malet's forfeiture, obtained this lordſhip, and became founder of a long flouriſhing family that were Barons of Swaineſcamp in Kent. By the marriage of Dionyſia, the heir female of the chief branch of Montchenſy, that Barony was brought to Hugh de Vere, ſecond ſon of Robert Earl of Oxford, in Edward the Firſt's reign. [See under Haningfield, and Brackſtead, p. 35, 138.] Joane de Montchenſy, heireſs of a younger brother who had Edwardſton given him by his parents, became wife to Sir Richard Waldegrave, about King Richard the Second's reign, and brought a very great eſtate, and Smalbridge among the reſt, to that family (l).

This eſtate of Stanſted was given by Hubert de Montchenſy, ſon of Warine, to a ſon of his, who had iſſue——Roger. This latter being, in the 25th of K. Henry III. a minor and the King's ward, impleaded Richard St. John, Chaplain, his guardian, for burning his houſes and waſting his woods in Stanſted (m). At the time of his death, 33 Hen. III. he had in the vill of Stanſted 220 acres of arable, 8 acr. of meadow, and paſture, worth yearly 26*s*. 8*d*. of rent of aſſize. No mention is made of his children. But he had two ſiſters; one, whoſe name is not mentioned, wife of David Baltoratrigh, moſt probably Welſh or Iriſh; and Joane married to Walter de Colcheſter. Between theſe two coheirs was this eſtate divided, and their huſbands did homage for it to King Henry III. in 1270 (n). Walter, in right of his wife, had one half of this maner. Their only daughter and heir Helen brought it in marriage to

John de Burſer, or Bourchier [Z], who by means of this match firſt came to ſettle in this place, where his poſterity grew in time ſo eminent. He was ſon of Robert de Burſer and Emma his wife; and a knight. About the 5th of King Edw. II. he purchaſed the maner of Abel's, as hath been ſhewn above. The 13th of the ſame king, he and Thomas de Vere were made conſervators of the peace for this county (o). Octob. 16, 1321, he was appointed one of the Juſtices of the King's Bench: and was alſo continued in the ſame office 24 March 1328 by K. Edw. III. (p). He dyed ſoon after, and lies buried in an arch within the wall of the ſouth iſle of this Church. Of his two Sons, Robert, and John, —— Robert, the eldeſt, ſucceeded him: and K. Edward III. granted him, in 1330, a court leet for all his tenements in this pariſh: and alſo free-warren in all his demeſne lands in Halſted Stanſted, Markeſhall, Stiſted, Coggeſhall, and 17 Lordſhips more in Eſſex. He had licenſe, in 1336, to impark his woods in this town; and, in 1341, to make his houſe at Stanſted, a caſtle. (q). In 1337, he was at the battle of Cadſant. And having been Chief Juſtice of Ireland; he was conſtituted 14 December 1340, Lord High Chancellor of England, with a grant of 500*l*. a year, above the cuſtomary fees, for his ſuitable maintenance (r). In 1346 he was with Edward the Black-Prince in the heat of the battle of Creſſy: And, the next year, one of the Embaſſadors to treat with the French about a peace. He had ſummons to Parliament 16, 22, 23, of K. Edward III. (s), but being cut off with a plague, which almoſt univerſally raged in 1349, he was interred in this Church, where his monument ſtill remains. His wife was Margaret daughter and ſole heir of Sir Thomas Prayers of Prayers in Sible-Hedingham, by Anne daughter and heir of Hugh de Eſſex deſcended from a younger ſon of Henry de Eſſex Baron of Raleigh. By her he had John, and William.——John Lord Bourchier, the eldeſt ſon, born in 1329, was one of the Lieutenants appointed by King Edward III. to proſecute his right and title to the Crown of France; and ſpent a conſiderable part of his life in the wars in that kingdom, where he acquired great reputation (t). In 8 Ric. II. he was appointed Governor of Flanders; and the next year, employed to fortify Calais. In all which, and many other publick employments, he behaved with that faithfulneſs and gallantry, that he was made a Knight of the Garter. He had alſo ſummons to parliament from 5 Ric. II. to 1 Henry IV. (u), and dying 21 May 1400, was buried in this Church; with his Lady, who was Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Coggeſhall. By her he had his only ſon——Sir Bartholomew Bourchier born in 1374, who had ſummons to parliament from the 1ſt to the 10th of K. Henry IV. and dyed 18 May 1409 (w). He had two wives; 1. Margaret widow of Sir John de Sutton. 2. Idonea Lovey, widow firſt of Edmund ſon of Sir John de Brookſburne, afterwards of John Glevant. By this laſt he had Elizabeth his only daughter and heir, born in 1399. Idonea his widow having his whole eſtate in dower, ſurvived him till 12 Septemb, 1410. He lies buried with his two wives in this Church.——Elizabeth, his only daughter and heir, had two huſbands, 1. Sir Hugh Stafford ſon of Hugh Earl of Stafford; who dyed in 1421. 2. Sir Lewis Robeſſart, a native of Henault, Standard-bearer to K. Henry V. Knight of the Garter, &c. They kept their firſt court at Stanſted-hall 13 Janu, 1430 (x), but he died the ſame year. She had no iſſue by either of them. They were both ſummoned to parliament by the title of Lord Bourchier. Their widow, the Lady Elizabeth departing this life 1 July 1433 [y], was ſucceeded by —— Henry Bourchier Earl of Eu in Normandy, ſon of Sir William, and grandſon of Sir William, brother to Sir John the aboveſaid Bartholomew's father [A]. He was born in the year 1404; employed in ſeveral warlike expeditions; created Knight of the Garter in 1452; conſtituted Lord Treaſurer of England in 1454; advanced to the dignity of Viſcount Bourchier in 1447; and, 30 June 1461, to that of Earl of Eſſex in right of his grand-mother Eleanore de Bohun, wife of Thomas of Woodſtock, and eldeſt daughter of Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Eſſex, &c. He dyed 4 April 1483, and was buried in Bileigh-Abbey near Maldon; as was alſo his Lady, . . . Iſabell, Siſter of Richard Plantagenet Duke of York, father of K. Edward IV. By her he had ſeven ſons [B]. . . . William the eldeſt who dyed before his father, was twice married. His firſt wife was, Iſabell, daughter of John de Vere Earl of Oxford, by whom he had no iſſue. The ſecond was, Anne, ſiſter and one of the heirs of Richard Woodville Earl Rivers, and by her he had his only ſon——Henry, who ſucceeded his grandfather in honour and eſtates; and a daughter, Cecily, married to John Devereux Lord Ferrers of Chartley: He was a very warlike perſon; attended King Henry VII. and K. Henry VIII. in moſt of their expeditions: and was reckoned a man of great underſtanding. But 13 March 1540, at the age of 77, venturing to ride a young unruly horſe, he was thrown off, and his neck broken by the fall. He lies buried in Bourchier's Chapel, adjoyning to Little Eaſton Church. In 1520 he married Mary, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir William Say, to whom he granted a jointure of 400 marks yearly, clear of all charges; and her father ſettled 300 marks of yearly rent, on her and the Earl her huſband; and their heirs for ever [C].

Anne, their only child and heir, was married in 1541, to Sir William Parr, Baron of Kendal [D]. May the 4th the ſame year, they jointly levied a fine for the maners of Stanſted and Halſted, &c. to William Earl of Southampton, and others, and to the heirs of the ſaid Earl; and by the ſame fine the Earl of Southampton and others granted the premiſſes to the Lord Parr and Lady Anne for life, and to their heirs. This proved a very unhappy match; for that Lady lived in adultery with one Hunt, alias Huntley, by whom ſhe had ſeveral children; which afterwards were declared illegitimate by Act of Parliament [E]. And, in 1551, another act paſſed,

By Eleanore daughter and coheir of Sir John de Louvaine of Little Eaſton, he had —— Sir William his ſon, a conſiderable warrior; much in favour with King Henry V. conſtable of the Tower of London for life, &c. He departed this life in 1420, having had by Anne his Wife, eldeſt daughter of Thomas of Woodſtock Duke of Glouceſter ſixth ſon of Edward III. and widow of Edmund Earl of Stafford, four Sons and two daughters; viz. 1. Henry aboveſaid. 2. Thomas, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, a Cardinal, and Lord High-Chancellor. 3. William, who marrying Thomaſine, or Iſabell, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Hankford, or Lanckford, by Elizabeth his wife, ſiſter and heir of Fulk Lord Fitz warine, was ſummoned to parliament by the title of Lord Fitz-warine: His poſterity were Earls of Bath and Bridgewater. 4. John a Knight of the Garter. He married Margery daughter and heir of Richard Lord Berners, and had ſummons to parliament by the title of Lord Berners. The two daughters were Eleanore wife of John Mowbray Duke of Norfolk; and Anne married firſt to Edmund Mortimer Earl of March, ſecondly to John Duke of Exeter.

[B] Sir Henry, the 2d ſon, married Elizabeth daughter and heir of Thomas Lord Scales, and was in her right Lord Scales. Sir Humfrey, the 3d ſon, married Joane, daughter of Richard Stanhope, niece and coheir of Ralph Lord Cromwell of Taterſhall, and in her right bore the title of Lord Cromwell. He fell at Barnet-field in 1471. Sir John, the 4th ſon, married Elizabeth niece and heir of William Lord Ferrers of Groby, and in her right became Lord Ferrers. Sir Thomas, the 5th ſon, married Iſabel daughter and heir of Sir John Barre, but dyed in 1491, without iſſue. Sir Edward, the 6th ſon, was ſlain at the battle of Wakefield. Fulk, the 7th ſon, dyed young; as did alſo a daughter named Iſabel. Vincent, p. 184.

[E] The Bourchier family were, firſt and laſt, poſſeſſed of very large eſtates in this County. For Robert Lord Burghcher held in 1349, the maner of Tolleſhunts; the moiety of a meſſuage, 40 acr. of arable, 5 of meadow, 10 of paſture, 4 of wood, and 7s. rent in Hatfield Peverell, Langeford, and Ultyng; jointly with his ſon John, a moiety of the maner or Morton; the manor of Stanſted in Halſted, of Thomas de Monchenſy as of his maner of Edwardſton, and the tenements of Claverynges, John Fitz-Andrews, and of Abels, in Halſted; the maner of Langford, and advowſon of the Church; a tenement in Greenſted, and advowſon of the Church; the maner of Ravenhale [i. e. Bourchiers] of Robert Lord Scales; the maner of Manhale in Little Cheſterford; the tenement of Brenyng in Berklowe; a tenement in Stanley; a water-mill, and 80 acr. of land in Litelbery; Woodhall in Bromfeild; a tenement late James Naylingherſt's in Stiſted and Halſted: in Stiſted 1 meſſ. and 30 acr. of arable late J. King's; and 28 acres; and a tement called Nywehall. In Maldon 6 cottages; in Retyngdon, 1 meſſ. 100 acr. of arable, 5 acres of meadow, and a marſh.

Alianor, the wife of Sir William Bourchier held beſides, 24 Rich. II. the maner of Eyſtanes ad turrim, and advowſon of the Church; the maner of Broxhed; 60 acr. of arable in great Dunmowe; the maner of Rothinge Aytrop, and advowſon of the Church.

John Lord Bourchier had, beſides, in 1400, in Halſted, 20 acr. of arable, and 40s. rent; and view of Frankpledge; a meſſ. and 100 acr. of land called Hipworthes; 40 acr. in Halſted, and Great Mapletreſted, called Fitz-Johns; the maner of Little Fordham; 100s. rent in Hengham Sible; 40 acr. of arable in Woodham-Ferrers; 1 meſſ. and 30 acr. in Great Reynes; 18s. rent of aſſize in Colcheſter; the maner of Great Totham; 1 meſſ. and 40 acr. in Tolleſhunt Tregos; 1 meſſ, and 100 acr. in Lachindon.

Idonea, widow of Bartholomew Lord Burghcher held, beſides the above, in 1409, the maner of Oveſeye; the maner of Aſheldham; 140 acr. of arable, 20 acr. of marſh, and 12s. rent called Mottes in St. Laurence; 160 acr. of arable, and 40 acres of marſh in Tillingham; 160 acr. of arable, and 40 acres of marſh called Knipſon in Mayland; lands and tenements in Markeſhall; lands and tenements in Wethersfield; 60 acr. of arable, 3 acr. of paſture, and 3 acr. of meadow, and rents in Branktrie; 58 acr. of arable, and 16s. rent in Goſfeild; Barantyne fee; the maner of Patching-hall in Bromfeild; the maner of Little Laufare, [i. e. Lavre]; 100 acres of arable, 3 acr. of wood in Great Cheſterford; 102 acr. of arable, 3 acr. of paſture, and 7 acres of meadow in Aſhedon; 10 acres of land in Bocking; the maner of Little Bentley, with the advowſon of the Church and Chantry; lands in Walden, and partly in Litelbury; Humſtalls in Wikes, being 40 acres of arable, 30 of wood, 10 of meadow, 20 of paſture, and 30 s. rent; 100 acr. of arable, 10 of meadow, 20 of paſture, and 20s. rent in Tendringe; 80 acr. of arable, 5 of paſture, 2 of for diſannulling his marriage with the Lady Anne Bourchier, and ratifying a marrriage he had newly contracted with Elizabeth daughter of George Brook Lord Cobham, and legitimating the children that ſhould be begotten betwixt them. Notwithſtanding which, the Honor of the ſaid Anne's father was conferred upon him; he being created Earl of Eſſex 23 Decemb. 1543, with the ſame place and precedency as Henry Bourchier Earl of Eſſex had: and afterwards advanced to the further title of Marquis of Northampton, 6 Febru. 1546. On the 18th of August 1553, he was condemned as a traitor for eſpouſing the Lady Jane Gray's intereſt: However, before the end of that year he was reſtored in blood by act of parliament; but not to his Honors, nor to his Eſtate. For Queen Mary, 9 Novemb. 1555, for the Sum of 1604l. 9s. 2d. granted the lordſhips and maners of Halſted, Stanſted, Abell's, Hunningham, Clavering, Lucas, Prichards, and the capital houſe, or manſion, and park of the maner of Stanſted to

Sir Robert Rocheſter, Comptroller of her Houſhold. [See an account of him under Terling, p. 127.] By his will, dated 7 May 1557, he gave the maners of Stanſted and Abels to the Poor of the houſe of Jeſus at Shene in Surrey. But it being ſuppreſſed in 1558, and the revenues of it veſted in Qu. Elizabeth, ſhe reſtored the Lord Parr not only to his honours, 13 Janu. 1558, but alſo to the Lordſhips of this Town; and he kept court here and at Boyshall in Septemb. 1561. On the 24th of October 1566, in conſideration of 1000l. ſhe confirmed to him and his heirs for ever the reverſion of theſe maners. Four days after, the ſaid William Marquis of Northampton, for the ſum of 3600l. did convey by indenture the Lordſhips of Stanſted and Abels to

III. 22 Ric. II. 1 and 11 Hen. IV. 1 Ric. III. and 13 Eliz. N° 49.

Sir William Waldgrave of Smalbridge in Suffolk. And he, 21 Octob. 1578, ſold all the maner of Stanſted in Halſted to Arthur Breame, abovementioned. But before, namely 12 Octob. 1576, the ſaid Sir William had ſold for the ſum of 1120 l. to

John Olmeſted, or Holmeſted, Gent. the ſite and manſion-houſe of the maner called Stanſted-hall, with the houſes, edifices, gate-houſe and buildings thereto belonging [F]. And alſo 136 acres, parcel of Stanſted Park; Bullock wood, 24 acres; Loſſeway meadow adjoining to the ſame, 4 acres; Scaldemoores meadow, 8 acres; to him and his heirs for ever. This John Olmeſted was of an antient family of Olmeſted-hall in the pariſh of Bumpſted-Helion. He was Maſter of the Horſe to the Earl of Oxford at Caſtle-Hedingham. His daughter and heir Agnes brought this eſtate in marriage to

Thomas French of Halſted, who lived at Stanſted-hall. His ſon —— Thomas, by indenture dated 1 Novemb. 1620, for the ſum of 3500 l. ſold the premiſſes to Sir Oliver Luke, Sir Robert Cooke, Sir Henry Maxey, and Nicolas Spencer, and their heirs. On the 12th of May 1626, they alienated this eſtate for the ſum of 5840 l. to Abraham Jacob. This family is originally of Horſe-heath in Cambridgeſhire, where part of the pariſh is called Jacob's Maner to this day (z). William Jacob of that place dyed in 1531. His ſon Richard, of the ſame pariſh, and of Gamlinghay, Eſq; was father of Robert, who by his wife Catharine daughter and heir of William Abraham of London, had——Abraham, his ſon and heir, the purchaſer of this eſtate, to whom he left 400 l. a year. He was concerned in farming the Cuſtoms under K. Charles I. in the firſt four years of that King's reign: and departed this life 6 May 1629, having had, by Mary his Wife daughter of Francis Rogers of Dartford in Kent, ſeven ſons; Francis, John, Robert, Richard, Henry, Abraham, and Darcy; and alſo ſix daughters, Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Wilmer of Stifford; Mary, of George Berrey, or Bury, of Bedfordſhire; Barbara, of Robert Sulyard of Kent; Ellen, of Thomas or Henry, Rolte; Anne, of John Lynne of Horkeſley, Eſquires; and Frances. —— John Jacob Eſq; born at Gamlinghay, became heir to his father, upon his elder brother Francis's deceaſe. He was concerned in farming the cuſtoms with Sir Paul Pindar, Sir John Wolſtenholm, Sir Abraham Dawes, Sir John Harvey, Sir Nicolas Criſp, &c. and was alſo Cuſtomer of London, and Collector of the pretermitted cuſtoms and the impoſt on tobacco. But was a great ſufferer during the national troubles. He had been knighted in 1633, was created a Baronet 11 Janu. 1664, and dyed about the beginning of the year 1666. His eldeſt ſon and heir —— Sir John Jacob Bart. married Catharine, Siſter to Hildebrand Lord Allington of Horſe-heath in Cambridgeſhire, and dyed in 1675. —— Sir John Jacob his ſon and ſucceſſor, went early into the army, almoſt all his father's eſtate being ſeized upon by the creditors of his grandfather, for money he had taken up to lend King Charles I. in the beginning of his troubles, and not repaid by the Crown. He dyed 31 May 1740 [G], and his only ſon . . . . Hildebrand being dead before him, viz. on June 3, 1739, he was ſucceeded by the ſaid Hildebrand's ſon —— Sir Hildebrand Jacob Bart.

To Stanſted Lordſhip did belong ſeveral Maners whoſe Names are almoſt forgotten, and the Courts loſt, or become obſolete. They are reaſonably ſuppoſed to have been part of the demeſne lands of Stanſted-hall, holden either by the Lords men or Sochmen. The names of them are Claveringes, Lucas, Pritchards, and Perces; which names were taken from ſome of their ancient owners.

Claveringes is the moſt conſiderable; the houſe was moted round, and had a park. 'Tis ſituated on the left hand ſide of the road leading from Greenſtreet to Stiſted. It belongs now to Mrs. Humfreys.

Lucas's is for the moſt part in Stiſted pariſh: being the property of Mr. William Smythies.

Pritchards is a farm on the back of Marks-hall woods, belonging to Mr. Antony Bental.

Perces, or Perſies, or Piers, ſtands at the bottom of Greenſtreet-green, on the left hand ſide of the road leading to Stiſted. It belonged to Moone, Pilgrim, Alliſton, Sir John Jacob; and now to Mrs. Salway of Woodford.

COCKSHOTE, is a hamlet in Stanſted leet: The name is as ancient as K. John's reign.

The chief Houſe in this hamlet, ſtanding on the right hand ſide of the road from Halſted to Earls-Colne, is called Parlebiens, from an ancient family of that name. Richard de Parlebien purchaſed it of Sir John de Bourgchier in 1351, and ſold it again in 1368 to . . . . John Randolfe, John Squier, and John Aſheford.

Of William Parr Earl of Eſſex, it was purchaſed, 24 May 1545, by John Littel, or Little, Gent. who was buried 12 June 1570. His father Geffrey was of Colne-Engaine in 1521.

(z) Viſitation of Cambridgeſhire, p. 123.

[F] By a ſurvey taken of this noble old ſeat 26 April 1553, it appears, That it was a large brick building with an area, or court, in the middle; ſurrounded with a mote partly filled with water, which was 44 poles in compaſs. On the ſouth ſide there was a large Gate-houſe, two ſtories high, embattled, with a turret at each corner. On one ſide of the gate-houſe was the Porter's lodge; and on the other ſide a houſe below, proper for a priſon, or ſuch other purpoſes as the Lord ſhould appoint. In the eaſt ſide of the Court, there were five Chambers below, and ſix above: And in the weſt ſide four Chambers below, and five above. 'Tis remarkable, that thoſe Chambers had each two chimnies, and a houſe of office; which conveniency was it ſeems in every apartment. A large Chapel, as far as we can judge by the deſcription, formed the north ſide of the area. —— The whole ſtood within a Park, about four miles in circumference, reaching down to Parſonage-bridge; and containing 787 acres. It had then 1000 deer in it, and could well keep 500 deer, 40 horſes, and 20 milch kine. Several large ponds were in it, and a pool, the fiſhery of which was valued at 10 l. a year. It had alſo a warren. In this park there were then 3620 oaks of a hundred years growth, and 170 aſhes all timber. But now the greateſt part of this Houſe is demoliſhed, and nothing remaining of the antient ſtructure, but ſome part of the kitchen and offices which ſerve for a farm houſe.

[G] Dorothy his youngeſt daughter was married to John Morley of Halſted Eſq; For the reſt ſee Baronettage, Vol. III. Part II. p. 449. edit. 1741.

The ſucceſſors to John Littel in this Eſtate have been—Richard.—Geffrey, who dyed in 1626.—John, who was joint-purchaſer with his father Geffrey, of the manner of Goldington's [See above p. 220.] He dyed in 1641, as did his ſon——John 24 Dec. 1688.——John Littel, his ſucceſſor, married Sarah Pannell, and had two ſons, Thomas, and John, which laſt married Suſan Bryan the elder widow. ——Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, by his . . . . wife had John and Sarah.—John, married Suſan Bryan the younger, re-married to Edw. Foſter. Sarah Littel was married to Robert Bridge, and had —John-Little-Bridge, heir to the Eſtates [H].

MUNCHENSIES

is a capital meſſuage ſituated near Coggeſhall-bridge, on the left-hand ſide of the road leading from Halſted to Colcheſter. It is ſo called from the noble family of Montcheſy, ancient owners of Stanſted-hall as above. Walter Montcheſy, a younger branch of that family, held this eſtate in the reign of K. Edward III. John Coggeſhall had it in the reigns of K. Edw. VI. Philip and Mary, and Elizabeth; he made great additions to the houſe in 1563; and dyed 1 Jan. 1600. About the beginning of this century it came into the poſſeſſion of the induſtrious John Morley, born in this town 8 Feb. 1655, who in the room of the old houſe, built a handſome brick one, with good gardens, &c. From him it paſſed to his ſon; and is now in his grandſon ——John Morley Eſq; who by his wife Dorothy, daughter of Sir John Jacob hath 3 ſons and 1 daughter. He is married to a ſecond wife [I].

This houſe and eſtate is otherwiſe called Collups, or Blue-Bridge.

Aſhfordes is a capital meſſuage and eſtate near this laſt. It belongs to Mrs. Laurences.

3. HIPWORTH-HALL, with appertenances.

The Houſe ſtands about a mile north from the Church, on the declivity of a riſing ground, a little way off the road leading from this town to Sible Hedingham. 'Tis corruptly called Hipwell-hall.

This maner is of great antiquity, and extends into Goſfield, Hedingham-Sible, Mapleſted Great and Little, Pedmarſh, and into the heart of this town. It either received its name from, or gave name to, a family ſurnamed de Hipworth. And it is the part that was holden by William de Waren at the time of the general ſurvey [K]. The account given of it below from Domeſday-book comprehends not only Hipworth-hall, but alſo Brook-ſtreet, Bradleys to the cut maple and tile-kiln, and Fitz-John's. The two mills, are Hulls-mill, and another that lay above Hipworth-hall, the dam of which is ſtill viſible. The 46 acres of meadow take in all the tract of meadows from Hulls-mill to Box-mill.

Of Richard Hipworth John de Bouſſer bought this eſtate in 1365 (a). His grandſon ——John Lord Bourchier dyed in 1400, poſſeſſed, among other things, of one meſſuage and 100 acres of arable land in Halſted called Hipworths, holden of the Earl of March (b).

Bartholomew Lord Bourchier, ſon of this laſt, made it part of his endowment of Bourchier's College, or Chantry in this town, of which we give an account a little lower [L].

Upon the diſſolution of Chantries, K. Edw. VI. granted this, with all its revenues, to William Parr Marquis of Northampton. And he obtained a licenſe 18 March 1553, to ſell this maner to

Thomas Gutter; who, the 2d of January following, ſold it again to —— John Holmeſted: and this laſt ſold it, in 1567, to —— Richard Greene, by whom it was alienated, 7 Octob. 1575, to —— William Fuller, and John his ſon. Frances, 2d daughter of John, brought it in marriage to—— Tho. Plumbe; and it continued in his poſterity till 1624. when it was purchaſed by—— John Fokes; and then by —— Nicolas Aylett Gent. in 1649. In 1704 it was alienated, and belongs now to Oſgood Gee Eſq;

Two capital meſſuages called Brook-ſtreet and Bradleys, were appendages to this maner.

Brook-ſtreet Houſe ſtands pleaſantly near a brook, on the left-hand ſide of the road leading from Halſted to Sible Hedingham. It was ſometimes called Wood-ſtreet. 'Tis Mr. Sparrow's.

Bradleys is on the right hand ſide of the road leading from Hipford-hall-bridge to White-horſe-green, and ſo to Goſfield. They both belonged in the laſt century to Thomas Digby, then to James Aylett, afterwards to John Sparrow, Gent. who gave for it 680 l. and is now in his heirs.

Fitz-John's ſtands on the right hand ſide of the road, leading to Dynes-hall. It once belonged to Sir John Bourgchier, being then called only 40 acres of arable; and now to the Right Hon. Earl Tilney, as well as Stubleys, and the Waſh.

SLOW-HOUSE, ſometimes called a maner, ſtands a little way out of the town.

(a) Dutchy-rolls.

Tunc & poſt valuit X libras, modo XIII libras & XVII ſolidos & IV denarios. De hac terra tenet Ricardus XXIV acras, et valent X ſolidos in eodem pretio. Lib. Domeſd.

[L] Here was a Court-leet kept time out of mind, belonging to the Honor of Clare. Its original, is from thoſe lands which Richard Fitz Gilbert held at the time of the general ſurvey under William of Waren. The Mortimers Earls of March were ſeized of it in the reign of K. Richard II. and afterwards. It was called Horamites-leet, or Halſted Horold, or Hurraunts, from a family of that name. This Court is now loſt. See Inquiſ. 5 & 22 Ric. II. and 3 Hen. VI.

In the Saxons time it was holden by a great man called Uluuine [M]: but was given by William the Conqueror to Albrey de Vere anceſtor to the Earls of Oxford; in which noble family it continued long; but the demeſne lands were in poſſeſſion of the Fitz-Andrew family as early as K. John's reign. Of William Fitz-Andrew it was purchaſed, about the year 1316, by John de Bouſſer; it being deſcribed as 1 meſſuage, 160 acres of arable, 8 acr. of meadow, 6 of paſture, 24 of wood, and 54 s. rent in Halſted. His great grandſon — Sir Bartholomew Bourchier made it part of the endowment of the college or chantry in this town. After the ſuppreſſion of which, it being granted to William Marquis of Northampton, he ſold it, 18 March 1565, to Philip Hunwick of Stebbing in this county. It continued in the Hunwick family [N], till 19 July 1642, when —— Thomas Hunwick ſold it to

Robert Poole of Belchamp-Walter: And he ſold it again, 2 Febru. 1651, for 448 l. [O] to

Thomas Guyon of Great Coggeſhall, clothier: whoſe ſon —— William Guyon, on 17 Janu. 1698, did ſell it to James Sparrow of Bradleys.

Other Eſtates in this pariſh.

The two following took their names from ſome ancient owners.

Partriches, or Calches. The Houſe ſtands on the ſkirts of this pariſh towards Gosfeild, by the road ſide. It is moſtly, or altogether in Goſfield.

Conſtantines, now Stair-ſtile, by the high way leading from Halſted to Pedmarſh. About K. Edward the fourth's reign it became the inheritance of John Cooke, being called a meſſuage and 40 acres of land. It belongs to Abr. Dehorne.

The Hoo, or How, from the Saxon Hou, a hill, ſtands partly high, with a fine proſpect. The reſt of the land is on each ſide of the road leading from Halſted to Hipworth-hall. It belonged lately to Robert Tweed Eſq; now to his daughter married to John-Blatch Whalley Eſq;

The Cangle, is ſometimes called Le Cangle Hatch; being the boundary or encloſure of this pariſh (like Kelvedon-Hatch) on the noth-eaſt part of it towards Pedmarſh. It is Earl Tilney's.

Playſtow-houſe ſtands upon Playſtow-green, in the Southern part of this pariſh toward Stiſted. It belongs to Mr. Antony Bental. But Playſtow-farm is diſtinct, and belongs to the Truſtees of Mrs. Granſden's charity to a ſchool at Deptford. In 1503 it belonged to Sir John Shaa (c): In 1526 to William Compton Eſq; in 1540 to Richard Ratcliff Eſq; afterwards to Paul Dewes, and Richard Symonds Gent. at which time it was called a tenement, and 60 acres of arable. —— Green-ſtreet-hall belongs to Mr. William Smythies. Rebels, to Mr. John Chaplyn. Halſted-lodge, to Mr. Thomſon. Blackmore-hall, to Tho. Kent, Eſq; Frogs-hall, to Mr. Maniſtre.

The MARKET

is very ancient, and formerly belonged to the king. It continued in the Crown till about the year 1251, when K. Henry III. granted to Abel de St. Martin and his heirs for ever, That he ſhould have a Market on Saturdays at his maner of Halſted, and a Fair yearly, to laſt two days, viz. the eve and day of St. Denis, Octob. 8 and 9. But Hugh de Vere Earl of Oxford, indicted and ſued Abel for ſetting up a Market at Halſted to his prejudice, as being too near the Earl's markets at Caſtle-Hedingham and Earl's-Colne. Abel alledged in his own defence, That there had been of old a Market here, and produced the King's charter or grant to him. Whereupon the diſpute was adjuſted; and it was agreed, that Abel ſhould continue his market, paying half a mark yearly to the Earl out of certain tenements in this town, and a fine was paſs'd accordingly (d). The Market was then removed from its old place in the King's high way, to Cheping-hill, at the upper end of the town above the Church.

K. Edward III. in 1330. granted to Robert Lord Bourchier a Court leet, and alſo a Market every week upon Tueſdays, and a fair yearly upon the eve and day of St. Luke, October 17, 18.

K. Ed. IV. 20 July 1467, granted to Henry Earl of Eſſex a Market on Fridays weekly, and two Fairs, one 23 April, to laſt three days, and the other 18 March to continue three days; with a pie-powder-court; and all tolls, amerciaments, profits, &c. ariſing from ſuch fairs and markets. This laſt grant was confirmed by King Henry VIII, 8 May 1531. . . . The preſent Fairs are May 6, and October 29.

About the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth's reign, the Market was removed from Cheping-hill to its preſent ſtation in the heart of the town. The Market-place was paved 1 Septemb. 1705, at the charge of Mr. Samuel Friſke, and Mr. John Morley.

Ever ſince Qu. Elizabeth's days the Bay-trade hath been carried on in this Town.

The GRAMMAR SCHOOL

was founded by Dame Mary Ramſey [mentioned above under Colne-Engaine] in the year 1594, for forty free Scholars within the Towns of Halſted and Colne-Engaine; and, for want of a ſupply of that number out of the ſaid two towns, the ſons of poor men, inhabitants within eight miles of the ſaid Town of Halſted, ſhall be received into the ſaid School free ſcholars, to make the number forty. The care and truſt of the ſaid School was committed by the Foundreſs to the Governors of Chriſt's-Hoſpital, London.

[O] It is then deſcribed, as one meſſuage, 2 barns, 2 ſtables, 1 dove-houſe and garden, 1 orchard, 40 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, and 20 of paſture in Halſted.

—— The endowment is 20*l.* a year and a houſe.

This School was firſt deſigned to be erected at Clavering in this county.

Charitable Donations.

[To the Poor.]

William Wood of this pariſh, on the 22d of January 1593, ſettled a houſe and lands called Hubberds, in Truſtees, charging it with an annuity of Twelve ſhillings per ann. to the Poor of Halſted.

William Bendloes Eſq; Serjeant at law, by his will dated 4 July 1571, gave to the uſe of the poor inhabitants of Halſted for ever, the yearly ſum of Twenty ſhillings; for the payment of which he tied lands and tenements in Much and Little Bardfield called Wingfords, and Hawes Mellfield, and Mellfield ten acres, and Pooles and Pooles Broomes.

Edmund King of this pariſh, Gent, who dyed 11 Janu. 1624, gave by will One hundred pounds to buy lands, the rents of which to be employed weekly for buying of bread for the Poor of this town, and the other part for the Poor of the hamlet: but if any of the poor abſent themſelves from the Church any one Sunday without juſt cauſe, to be diſmiſſed from that relief one whole year, except the hamlet for two days, becauſe they dwell further off. With the intereſt of that ſum, eighty-two penny loaves are given by the Church-wardens every Sunday to the poor of the town, and four loaves to the poor of the hamlet or leet.

William Thurſton of this pariſh, citizen of London, did by his will dated 7 July 1636, give out of a farm called Aſhfords near Blue bridge, to the then Vicars of Halſted and Eaſton in Huntingdonſhire, and their ſucceſſors yearly for ever, the ſums of Twenty ſhillings a piece, and to the Poor of each pariſh the like ſums for ever. He conſtituted the Miniſters of Halſted and Eaſton, and their ſucceſſors, truſtees of this gift; and towards their great pains in diſcharge of this truſt gave the ſaid Vicars and their ſucceſſors for ever the growth of the underwood of Aſhfords. There having been a diſpute about this underwood, William Thurſton of Eaſton aforeſaid did, by feoffment 17 Aug. 1638, in performance of a decree in Chancery made in June the ſame year, for the ſure payment of ſix pounds per ann. for ever to the ſaid Vicars and their ſucceſſors, ſettle in truſtees a piece of Fenn-ground divided into three cloſes with an hop-ground thereto adjoyning, containing ten acres more or leſs; being parcel of a farm called Great Lea.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Andrew, conſiſts of a body and two iſles, leaded; the Chancel is only of one pace, and tyled. At the weſt end there is a ſquare Tower, containing ſix Bells; on the Top of which is a neat ſpire. The 25th of April 1701, the then ſpire was fired by lightning; and, in order to prevent the ſpreading of the flames, the ſupporters being ſawn aſunder, it fell down into the Church-yard. But in 1717, Mr. Samuel Fiſke, an Apothecary in this town, erected a new one at his own charge [P].

This Church was at firſt a Rectory, of which there were two Rectors, and two Patrons. The patron of the firſt moiety was Hugh, ſon of Walter de Creping, who for 30 marks gave it to Hervey de Boreham, afterwards Dean of St. Paul's. [See under Boreham, p. 12.] Of the other moiety the Prior and Convent of Lees were patrons, having obtained it of Walter, or Robert, de Bracy, and Maud his wife: They gave it to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, at the inſtance of the ſaid Hervey.

John de Chiſhull, Biſhop of London, about 1276, for the increaſe of the portion of the Minor Canons and Vicars of his Cathedral, granted out of the profits of this Church eight pounds yearly to the Minor Canons, and thirteen pounds to the Vicars choral, and ordained and endowed a perpetual Vicarage here, reſerving the collation thereof to himſelf and his Succeſſors Biſhops of this See. Notwithſtanding which, the Prior and Convent of Lees preſented for ſome years a Vicar; but it was at the nomination of the Biſhop, which was in effect the ſame as if he had collated. However, in 1427, the Biſhop of London collated in full right, and ſo have his ſucceſſors ever ſince (e). The vicarage houſe hath been greatly improved by Al. Vievar, and Dr. Wilſon.

Robert Bourchier, Lord Chancellor of England, obtained a licence in 1340 of K. Edward III. to found a College, or Chantry, in this Church, for a Maſter and eight Prieſts: and procured leave from the Pope to appropriate thereto the Church of Sible Hedingham (f).

[P] Upon this occaſion, the ingenious Mr. Prior, a friend and frequent viſitor of Mr. Morley, wrote the following copy of Verſes.

View not this Spire by meaſure giv'n
  To Buildings rais'd by common hands:
That Fabric riſes high as Heav'n,
  Whoſe Baſis on Devotion ſtands.
While yet we draw this vital breath,
  We can our Faith and Hope declare:
But Charity beyond our death,
  Will ever in our works appear.
Bleſt be he call'd among good men,
  Who to his God this column rais'd:
Tho' lightning ſtrike the Dome again,
  The Man who built it ſhall be prais'd.
Yet Spires and Towers in duſt ſhall lye,
  The weak efforts of human pains:
And Faith and Hope themſelves ſhall dye;
  While deathleſs Charity remains,

He doth not ſeem to have compleated his deſign, but it was effected by his grandſon Bartholomew Lord Bourchier, who left proper directions for it at his deceaſe. In purſuance of which, it was endowed in 1411, with 6 meſſuages, 702 acres of land, 29 acres of meadow, 71 of paſture, 57 of wood, and 5*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* rent in Halſted, Hengham Sibill, Pebemerſhe, Twynſted, and Middilton; and with the advowſon of Hedingham-Sibill Church; for a Maſter and five Prieſts; to perform divine Service in the Church of Halſted for the Souls of Robert Lord Bourchier and Margaret his wife, John Lord Bourchier and Maud his wife, Bartholomew Lord Bourchier and Margaret and Idonea his wives, their parents, benefactors, and all the faithful deceaſed. At the ſuppreſſion, the yearly revenues of this college, valued at 34*l.* 4*s.* 3*d.* were granted to William Parr Marquis of Northampton. Some of them were Hipworths, Slowhouſe, &c. In the certificate, it is ſaid, ‘ That the ſaid Town ‘ of Halſted ys a very great and populous towne, ‘ having in yt by eſtimation 500 of howſellng ‘ people.’ The College, or Chantry-houſe, is ſtill remaining in the heart of the town, on the right hand as you go from the Market-place to Townford-bridge.

In the high-hay, where the roads from Braintree and Goſfield meet, formerly ſtood a Chapel, dedicated to the H. Trinity. The foundations of it were lately viſible, and formed a triangle, of which the ſides were 65 feet long, and the baſe 56. There belonged to it a houſe and garden, and ſome lands. The place is called Chapel-hill to this day.

2. PEBMARSH.

This pariſh comes next in courſe in our ſurvey of this Hundred, which we begin at the eaſtern part, and end at the weſtern with Felſted.

Bebenhers, Pebenhers, Pebenhurſt, Pebeners, Pedmarſh, Pedmerſh, Pevermerſh, are the ſeveral other names given to it in records.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, the lands here were holden by ſome Freemen and eighteen Sochmen; and at the time of the general ſurvey by Roger Bigot, whoſe under-tenant was one Garengey; and ſome lands were holden alſo by Richard Son of Earl Giſlebert, Lord of Clare. [Q].

Theſe Eſtates were divided afterwards into the following maners. 1. The maner of Pebmerſh. 2. . . . that of Dagworth. 3. . . . Polhey, or Pooley-hall. 4. The maner of Stanley-hall.

1. The maner of PEBMARSH, alias Fitz-Rafe [R].

The manſion-houſe ſtands near a brook in Pebmarſh-ſtreet. At one end of it there is an ancient Chapel, and not far from it was a Caſtle, of which the remains are ſcarce viſible. However, the meadow wherein it ſtood is to this day called Caſtle-meadow.

This lordſhip continued a great while in the Bigot family. Roger's ſon —— Hugh Bigot, Steward of the Houſhold to K. Henry I. was by K. Stephen created Earl of the Eaſt Angles, or Norfolk, and dyed in 1177. —— Roger his ſon dyed in 1220. —— As did his ſucceſſors —— Hugh in 1225. —— Roger in 1270. He had obtained the office of Marſhall of England, upon the death of William Marſhall Earl of Pembroke in 1246. —— Roger, the laſt of this family, was one of thoſe that were called great patriots. He joined with the Earl of Hereford and others, in oppoſing a levy demanded by K. Edward I. for an expedition into Flanders; inhibited the payment of a tax which had been granted that king: and obtained the confirmation of the Great Charter, and that of Foreſts, as alſo the articles called Articuli ſuper chartas. Having no iſſue, he conſtituted King Edward his heir, 12 April 1302, ſurrendring to him all his right to the Earldom of Norfolk, and Marſhalſhip of England: and dyed in 1306 or 1307 (g).

Under him Peter Nerford held one fee and a half in Pebemerſh (h). He was of the famous family of the Neirfords of Norfolk (i).

Upon the death of Roger Bigot, K. Edward II. 16 Dec. 1312, conferred the Earldom of Norfolk, and 10 Feb. 1315, the Marſhalſhip of England, upon his brother Thomas de Brotherton, 5th ſon of K. Edward I. who dyed in 1338. And this eſtate ſeems to have been parcel of the Earldom of Norfolk and inſeparable from it, for 'tis obſerved to have gone along with it as the Honor paſſed from one family to another. Mary, ſecond wife of Tho. de Brotherton, daughter of William Lord Roos, and widow of William Lord Braoeſe, of Brember and Gower; held in dower one fee and a half in Pebemarſhe which had been holden by Peter de Nerford, and half a fee holden by Roger Aſpole (k). —— Margaret, eldeſt daughter of the ſaid Thomas de Brotherton, by Alice his firſt wife, and created 29 Sept. 1368, Ducheſs of Norforlk for her life, married to her firſt huſband John Lord Segrave, and to her ſecond Sir Walter Manny. By the firſt ſhe had Elizabeth, which brought theſe eſtates in marriage to John Lord Mowbray, created Earl of Nottingham, and conſtituted Marſhal of England. His grandſon —— John Lord Mowbray, became Duke of Norfolk, and dyed in 1432, poſſeſſed among other large eſtates, of half a fee in Pebmarſh, formerly holden by Peter de Nerforth (l). His ſiſter Margaret being married to Sir Robert Howard, the title of Duke of Norfolk was thence derived to the Howard family.

The demeſne lands of this maner were anciently holden by a family ſurnamed de Pebeners, and afterwards Fitz-Rafe. — William, ſon of Ralph, or Fitz-Ralph de Pebeners, and Agnes his wife, lived in the reign of K. Henry III. They had iſſue —— Sir Ralph de Pebeners, who had two Sons, William, and Ralph a Prieſt; and two daughters. — William the eldeſt ſon, had a grant, in 1338, of free-warren in Pebemerſhe, Alſameſton, Great and Little Henny, Lamerſh, Bures, Bulmer, Saling, Finchingfield, Paſſefeld, Chevre, and Little Wendon; for in all thoſe places they had eſtates. He held, particularly in this pariſh, half a Knight's fee of Roger de Mortimer Earl of March, who dyed in 1398 (m). His children were, Ralph; Laurence; Lora wife of Thomas ſon and heir of Sir Richard Corneth, and Catharine of Robert ſon of Sir Robet Belet. ——Ralph, the eldeſt ſon, and the laſt of this family that had the ſurname de Pebeners, by Cecily . . . had his ſon and heir——John Fitz-Ralf. He married Mariona daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Mortimer, deſcended from the Mortimers of Attilborough in Norfolk, an ancient and noble family that had ſummons to parliament 22, 25 Edw. I. (n) whoſe inheritance came by marriage into the families of Fitz-Ralf; . . . . Ratcliff, from whence ſprung the Earls of Suſſex; and Sir Ralph Bigot. By Mariona John Fitz-Ralf had his ſon and heir——John; who lived at Skilton in Norfolk, a ſeat that came by his mother. He married Alice Waliſborough; and had by her, William, who dyed without iſſue; John; and Elizabeth. Departing this life 19 Hen. VI. he was ſucceeded by his ſon —— John, the laſt male of the direct line of this family [S]. Upon his deceaſe, a very conſiderable eſtate deſcended to his ſiſter

Elizabeth, who became the wife of Sir Robert Chamberlayn. The Chamberlayn family was originally of Stoke by Neyland, where they long poſſeſſed a lordſhip of the ſame name.——Roger Chamberlayne of that place, by his wife Catharine . . . . had four ſons, Ralph, Richard, William, and Roger.—Ralph, the eldeſt, lived at Gedding in Suffolk — about the reign of K. Henry IV. He left his ſon and heir —— Sir Roger, Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk 19 Hen. VI. who by Margaret, daughter of John Martin Juſtice of the Common Pleas (o), had Robert; Joane married to William Bury; and Elizabeth to William Cannyngs.——Sir Robert Chamberlayn, the only ſon, married, as aboveſaid, Elizabeth daughter and heir of John Fitz-Ralf, and had by her Ralph, and Edward. Surviving her huſband Chamberlayn, ſhe was married again to Sir Roger Urſton, and dyed 23 March 1516, being ſucceeded by her eldeſt ſon—Sir Ralph Chamberlayn, then aged 50 years (p). He was taken off by a violent death, 23 June 1521, and left no iſſue though he had married Elizabeth daughter of Henry Wentworth; whereupon he was ſucceeded by his brother —— Sir Edward, aged 46 years (q). By his Wife, Anne, daughter of . . . . Storkey, he left 4 ſons, Ralph; George; Leonard; and Francis. He dyed 15 July 1541, and —— Sir Ralph his eldeſt ſon, then 28 years old, came to his inheritance. He married Elizabeth ſole daughter and heir of Robert Fenys, brother of Richard Lord Fenys, and had three ſons, Fitz-Rauf, Charles, and Robert; and three daughters, Mary, Elizabeth, and Anne.—Fitz-Rauf Chamberlain Eſq; the eldeſt ſon ſucceeded his father, and married Dorothy daughter of Robert Dacres of Hertford, Eſq; by whom he had a ſon, Thomas. But he ſold this maner [T] to

Thomas Bedingfeild Eſq; of the ancient family of the Bedingfeilds of Oxborough in Norfolk. He dyed poſſeſſed of it 9 April 1590.——His ſon——Sir Henry Bedingfeild (r) ſold it to

Charles Cornwallis Eſq; mentioned above under Aldham and Marks-Tay, p. 198, 203, who parted with it to

Roger Gwyn of London, Apothecary, whoſe ſon—George preſented to the living in 1604 (s). The latter alienated it to

Nicolas Manning, of Oatelands in Surrey Eſq; He dyed 4 July 1633, leaving his ſon —— Nicolas aged 30 years (t): who was ſucceeded by ——Randal Manning Eſq;

Sir Harbottle Grimſton Bart. Maſter of the Rolls, bought this, with ſeveral other eſtates; [ſee under Colne-Wake, Henny, &c.] and it is now in his deſcendent —— the Lord Viſcount Grimſton.

The Quit-rents of this maner amount to 37 l. 5 s. 6 d.

2. The maner of DAGWORTH, took its name from a family, ſufficiently mentioned under Bradwell near Coggeſhall.

The ſite of it is on the left hand ſide of Panimers-ſtreet, in the road from Pebmarſh to Sudbury, hy Cardeley Croſs.

Anciently it belonged to Robert Corpeyl, whoſe wife Catharine, in 39 Henry III. ſold it to . . . . Roger de Scaccario, or of the Exchequer, [mentioned more particularly under Twinſted] but ſhe granted all the homage and ſervice due to her from the ſaid Roger for the premiſſes, to Hugh de Vere Earl of Oxford, and his heirs (u).

[T] Arms of Chamberlain. Argent, frette, on a chief ſable 3 plates or torteaux. Creſt. On a torſe or and gules, a horſe's head eraſed, gorged with a crown.

Laurence de Scaccario, ſon of Roger, dyed 12 Edw. I. as did his ſon —— Simon the 20th of the ſame reign. Maud, one of the ſiſters and coheirs of the latter, brought this eſtate in marriage to John Dagworth (t), ſon of Oſbert, mentioned above under Bradwell near Coggeſhall, p. 155. Their ſon——John de Daggeworth dyed in 1332, as did Alice his wife in 1333, and their ſon——Nicolas in 1351. The latter held 60 acres of land in Pebeners of Sir John Fitz-Rauf——John his ſon ſucceeded (u).

From the Dagworths it paſſed to the Fitz-Ralphs, and from them by marriage to the Chamberlains, as Pebmarſh hall. —— Elizabeth Chamberlain dyed poſſeſſed of it 23 March 1517, and ſo did ——Sir Ralph, —— and Sir Edward Chamberlain (w) [V].

It came afterwards by purchaſe to Bedingfeild, and Manning, as the foregoing: And then to Henry Bingham. Of Adam Bingham, it was purchaſed by Thomas Carter of Sudbury Gent. who by his will dated 11 May 1706, ſettled the maner of Dagworth's, and Walſhes alias Waſhes, and other lands in Pedmarſh, which he had purchaſed of the ſaid Adam, Antony Stowe, and Robert Thompſon, in truſtees; To and for the uſe of the poor Inhabitants of Sudbury for ever, for Fifty of the pooreſt men, and Fifty of the pooreſt women inhabitants of the ſaid town; to buy for the men coats of the value of 14*s.* and manteaus for the women of the value of 10*s.* to be delivered to them on St. Thomas's Day by nine o'clock in the forenoon; and be immediately put on, that the ſaid poor perſons may attend at Church to hear a Sermon, for which the truſtees are to pay the preacher 10*s.* He alſo ordered 10*s.* out of the rent of his eſtate, for a Sermon for ever to be preached at St. Gregory's, on December 20, and a dinner, upon which the feoffees are to expend 20*s.*

3. The Maner of POLHEY, or Pooley, lies towards Colne-Engaine, and was anciently called the hamlet of Polley.

William de Waren, the great Earl of Surrey, had lands here at the time of the general Survey [W]. This place gave the ſurname of Polley, or Polhey, to a family of note, which flouriſhed from the reign of K. Henry III. to that of Richard II. (x) — About the year 1334, it belonged to Ralph le Hunt, from whom it took the appellation of Hunts-hall, which it retains to this day.

In 1336 Nigel Thebaud of Sudbury, granted to John his ſon and heir, all his lands and tenements in the hamlet of Polley in Pebmarſh. And in 1358, Joan Thebaud granted her lands and tenements called Hunts in Pebmarſh, Colne-Engain, and Great and Little Mapleſted, to . . . Richard Preſton.

It was next in the Fitz-Ralph family: and 30 September 1445, Ralph Chamblerlain held Poleyſhall. The 23d of June 1523, Sir Ralph Chamberlain dyed poſſeſſed of the maner of Polly Ponts; as did Sir Edward Chamberlain in 1541 (y). Roger Gwyn had it in 1599 —— the Manning family from 1616 to 1656 ——John Johnſton in 1657, in right of his wife, daughter of Nicolas and Mary Manning; —— and Leonard Hamond Eſq; in 1660, in right of his wife daughter of the ſaid Mary, widow.

In 1663 Sir Harbottle Grimſton was poſſeſſed of it; and it belongs now to the Rev. Thomas Bernard.

4. STANLEY-HALL

ſtands on the borders of Halſted pariſh, and is ſurrounded by a large moat. Whether it came to be ſo called from any of the Stanley family formerly owners of it, I am not able to determine.

This maner extended anciently into Halſted, Twinſted, Bulmer, and Aſhen; and was holden of the maner of Stanſted.

A family ſurnamed de Haningfeild was poſſeſſed of it in the reign of K. Edward II. and a long time after; they had alſo the maner of Stanleys, or Giffords in Great Samford. 'Tis probable that Sir William Hanningfeild lived, and was buried, here; for his arms were in the windows of this Church.

John Brockdiſh had it afterwards. And in 1411 poſſeſſion of it was given to

Robert Darcy, Richard Ayleward, Robert Tay Eſquires, and others. We find it in K. Henry the Sixth's reign in the Hende family mentioned above under Bradwell, p. 155. For, 20 May 1438, John Hende of Bradwell-hall Eſq; and others, by virtue of a power granted them by Robert Darcy of Maldon, did grant this maner in Pebmarſh to Elizabeth wife of John Baſſet; Catharine; and Agnes, daughters and heirs of William Hanningfeild Eſq; J. Baſſet had this maner for his ſhare. He had been returned for one of the Gentry of this county in 1433 (z), and was ſeated at Great Chiſhall. [See under that pariſh, p. 125, and Bradwell near Coggeſhall, p. 156.] His eldeſt ſon —— Gregory ſucceeding him, dyed poſſeſſed of this eſtate 30 Novemb. 1528, and left an only daughter ——

Dorothy (a), that had two huſbands; Thomas Bonham; and Antony Maxey. On the 9th of December 1579, this Antony, and Dorothy, and

Edmund Church, of Pebmarſh, or Quendon in this county; who kept his firſt court here 20 March 1587. But on the 15th of February 1588 he ſold it again to

Henry, and Robert, Meriton, or Meritoune, of Wimbiſh in Eſſex. Henry dyed 15 Auguſt 1601, poſſeſſed of the maner of Stanley-hall, and 80 acres of land in Pebmarſh, Little Mapleſted, Halſted, Geſtingthorpe, Alphamſton, Bulmer, and Colne-Engaine; alſo of two cloſes of land in Pebmarſh: and of the maner of Ancells and 60 acres of land in Alphamſton. —— William Meritown was his couſin and next heir, aged upwards of 30 years (b). —— Robert Meriton Gent. kept a court here 9 Octob. 1604, and — Thomas Meriton Gent. kept his firſt court 1 Aug. 1609. By Elizabeth .... his wife he had his ſon —— Henry, who kept his firſt court 8 Octob. 1623. He married Elizabeth daughter of John Park, of Geſtingthorp Gent. in November 1622, and left an only ſon named John. His will bore date 3d of Febr. 1658. — John ſucceeded his father, and had iſſue Thomas who dyed young; John; Anne wife of John Sewell of Pedmarſh; and Martha. He had a ſecond wife named Joyce ——— John Meriton, the ſon and heir, kept his firſt court here 9 June 1659, and made his will 22 March 1689, which was proved 30 Decemb. 1695. By his wiſe, Mary daughter of William Brand of Earl's-Colne, he had John, Henry, Thomas, William; and Elizabeth wife of James Clark of this pariſh. In his will he gave this eſtate to his ſecond ſon — Henry; and the reſt of the children releaſed their title to it 16 Janu. 1695. The 23d of the ſame month, Henry mortgaged it to Mr. John Morley; and 10 Sept. 1696, he, and his wife Elizabeth, gave a releaſe and levied a fine; and the 10th of December conveyed it abſolutely to J. Morley; who, jointly with Nicolas Marret and Antony Bental, did, on the 17th of March 1697, make a conveyance of it to Joane Glover; and 13 Septemb. 1699, ſhe kept her firſt court here. It belongs now to the Right Honourable the Earl Tilney.

is a capital meſſuage in this pariſh; which from the earlieſt times upon record was in the family of Ford of Great Horkeſly, or Hadley. — William Ford had it in 1501 — Robert in 1504. — William in 1522, and another — William in 1543. —— John had a daughter Elionora married to Thomas Bendiſh, who in her right had a moiety of Spoons-hall.

In 1545, it was holden by Roger Warren alias Baker Gent. .... Of Thomas Warren it was purchaſed by Roger Gwyn before 1597. And from the year 1611 to 1667, it continued in the Manning family above-mentioned.

The 14th of January 1667 it appears to be in Sir Harbottle Grimſton Bart. and hath continued ever ſince in his poſterity; now in Lord Viſcount Grimſton.

BONETTS, alias POULTS, is a maner of which moſt of the lands lye in this pariſh. But the ſite of the Maner-houſe is within the pariſh of Bulmer.

HUNT'S Tenement, better known by the name of the Great Houſe; It belonged anciently to John at the Cangell, then to the Polheys, and afterwards to Hunt, from whence it took its name: and was holden of the maner of Goldingtons in Colne-Engaine.

From the year 1427 to 1652 it belonged to a family ſurnamed Sewall, or Sewell. On the 1ſt of May 1652 Edmund Sewell ſold it to Thomas Cooke of this pariſh; whoſe anceſtors, (particularly one John Cooke) ſeem to have had ſome little eſtate here in 1520. This Thomas was Colonel of the Militia for this county during the civil wars, a buſy and vexatious Sequeſtrator; "a great Oliverian, as Mr. Holman expreſſes "it, who made all far and near tremble in the "days of his greatneſs, and lived to ſee himſelf "as much ſlighted. He had Wickham St. "Paul's-hall, belonging to the Dean and "Chapter, which he ſtripped of all the wood "and timber." September 9, 1651, he with Sir Thomas Honywood, William Herlakinden, and others, was created Doctor of the Civil Law at Oxford (c): and in 1654 one of the Knights of the Shire for Eſſex in Cromwell's parliament. (d). He married, 1. Elizabeth daughter and coheir of John Duke of Colcheſter M. D. by whom he had ſeven ſons and four daughters. His 2d wife was Judith daughter of Oliver St. John of Keyſhoe in Bedfordſhire Eſq; He dyed about 1684. It hath ſince belonged to Antony Parſons his ſon-in-law, and heir; then to Henry Sykes of London, Apothecary; and now to Samuel Ruggles Eſq; .... There are, or lately were, ſeveral coats of arms in the windows of this houſe.

Old-Hall is another eſtate in this pariſh, of which Mr. Fenton is owner.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 735 l.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. John Baptiſt, conſiſts of a body and a ſouth and north iſle, tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower embattled, containing 5 Bells.

This Rectory was always appendent to the maner of Pebmarſh-hall; and the advowſon of of it is in the Lord Viſcount Grimſton.

It originally belonged to the Priory of St. John Baptiſt of Clare in Suffolk, in which were ſeven Prebends, founded by Eluric ſon of Wighgar, in Edward the Confeſſor's reign. This was the endowment of the 5th Prebend, called Sawin's, which contained the Church of Pebenerſc, and the land of Polhey, and Suberey, and Buliley. Gilbert de Clare, ſon of Richard Fitz-Gilbert Earl of Brion, gave this Priory, with all the Prebends, to the Abbey of Bec in Normandy, about the year 1090 (e). The revenues of it were undoubtedly ſeized by K. Edward III. among the reſt of the lands of the Priories Alien; and Lionel Duke of Clarence

3. ALPHAMSTON.

The name of this Pariſh is moſt variouſly written in records; namely, Alfamſton, Alfomſtoune, Alfemanſton, Alfelmeſton, Alphamſton, Alphameſton, Alphemeſton, Alpheton, Alpheſton, Alphelineſton, Alpherſton, Alphinſtone, Halhampſton; and vulgarly called Alverſton .... Its appellation was undoubtedly taken from a Saxon owner named Alpham, or Alfeme, qu. Alpham's-town.

The lands here, at the time of the general ſurvey belonged to St. Edmunds-bury-Abbey, and Richard Fitz-Giſlebert [Y]. They were divided afterwards into theſe ſeveral Maners. 1. The maner of Clees, with Normandies. 2. The maner of Boxted-hall, otherwiſe Le Mote. 3. The maner of Ferrers. 4. . . . that of Peyton-hall.

Buers Hamlet is reckoned part of this pariſh, but is rated diſtinctly to the land-tax.

1. The maner of CLEES.

The manſion-houſe ſtands near the Church. This maner is called the Maner of Alphamſton by way of eminence, as being the chief in this pariſh. It is alſo called Clees from ſome of its ancient tenants: And Fitz-Jefferys upon the ſame account [Z].

The chief lords of it were the Abbot and Convent of St. Edmundſbury, as appears above from Domeſday-book: They held it of the Honor of Clare. And under them it was holden not only by the Fitz-Jefferies, and Clees; but alſo by the Creſſener family. For William Creſſen' who dyed about 1453, held 119 acres of arable, 12 acres of paſture, 8 acr. of meadow, and 12 of wood, called Fitz-Jeffreys in Alphamſton, Great Henye, and Lammarſhe (g) His ſon —— Alexander, who dyed 18 June 1498, held this maner of Fitz-Jefferyes, with appertenances, of the Abbot of St. Edmunds-Bury, in right of his monaſtery. And —— Sir John Creſſener, ſon of Alexander, who departed this life 2 Auguſt 1536, held the maner of Halhampſton, alias Alverſton (h). See more concerning the Creſſener-family under the maner of Ferrers in this pariſh. St. Edmundsbury Abbey being diſſolved 4 Novemb. 1540; this eſtate came by grant or purchaſe to the Payne family.

Sir Thomas Payne of Market-Boſworth had iſſue —— William, who had five daughters, and ſeven ſons —— Edward Payne Eſq; the eldeſt ſon and heir, was the firſt of this family who enjoyed the maner of Alphamſton. His ſon —— Henry had two ſons, Henry; and Thomas of Little Heny.——Henry, the eldeſt ſon, had not only Clees-hall, but alſo the maner of Normandies, alias Ould-fields, and ſeveral parcels of land in this and adjoyning pariſhes [A]. He dyed 22 Janu. 1606, and was buried the ſame day in this Church (i). By Suſan his wife, daughter of Willliam Beriffs of Aldham-hou, he had a ſon Henry, who was buried here 7 Dec. 1603, and two daughters, Tabitha and Suſan. The latter dyed 28 May 1615, under age: And the elder being then about 15 years old [B], was afterwards married to

Samuel Bigg Gent, deſcended from John Bigg who lived at Ridgwell, about the reign of K. Henry VI. and whoſe grandſon was owner of Barwick-hall in Toppesfield, [where an account is given of the family.] The ſaid Samuel was buried in this Church 9 Decemb. 1639, leaving an only ſon, Samuel, by his wife Tabitha, who taking to her ſecond huſhand Edward Peyton Eſq; had by him Samuel, Elizabeth, Suſan, William and John. —— Samuel Bigg Eſq; came to this eſtate upon his mother's deceaſe. He married Barbara daughter of George Watts of Norwich, by whom he had Samuel, Jemimah, Anne, Thomas, William, John, Elizabeth, and Henry. Elizabeth was buried in this Church 22 Febr. 1674, and the reſt were all dead in 1698, except William, who was a lawyer, and ſettled at Lammarſh, where he dyed 12 Janu. 1716-17; and Jemima who was married to John

Philip Hammond of Stanſted in Suffolk Eſq; And it belongs now to —— Mrs. Hammond of Melford in Suffolk.

Here formerly was a Park.

As for the maner of Normandies, it took that name from ſome of its ancient owners. John Normandy held it: and Iſabell Normandy was living in the reign of K. Richard II (k).

In records it is called Normandies, alias Old-fields.

2. The Maner of BOXTED-HALL, otherwiſe Le Mote.

The manſion houſe ſtands below Alphamſton Church, in a bottom by a ſmall ſtream, on the left hand of the road leading from that Church to Heny and Lammarſh.

It took the name of Boxted-hall from the family of Boxted, who had it as early as K. Henry the Third's reign; [and are ſufficiently mentioned above under the pariſh of Boxted] and le Mote, from its being moted round, of which ſome remains are ſtill viſible.

Sir Ralph de Boxted, who dyed 31 Edw. I. [D] held in Alſemeſton, of Nicolas de Noers, 60 acres of arable; and there were 2 acr. of meadow, a water-mill, and 12 s. rent of aſſize. — Peter, his ſon and ſucceſſor, dyed 19 Edw. II. poſſeſſed of the ſame, with 2 acres more of meadow, and 13 acres and a half of paſture. — Peter his ſon left a widow named Iſabell, that enjoyed for her life, in the pariſhes of Alphamſton, Lammarſh, Pebmarſh, and Twynſted, a meſſuage, 120 acres of land, and 18 s. rent, of the heirs of Sir Tho. de Grey. — Peter de Boxted was their ſon and heir (l). But we hear no further of the family in this place.

John Baker, who dyed 16 November 1540, held of Henry Payne Gent. as of his maner of Cleys, this meſſuage called Le Mote, in Alphamſton; and another meſſuage, with 20 acres of arable, and 10 of paſture, called Sewalls; and 8 acres beſides; and 3 meſſuages, 40 acres of arable, and 10 acres of paſture, in this pariſh, and Lammarſh: with other ſmall parcels in ſeveral of the adjoining pariſhes. —— Roger his ſon was aged 22 years (m).

Thomas Strutt, of Wickham St. Paul's, appears the next poſſeſſor upon record. He dyed 24 Octob. 1626, holding the maner or capital meſſuage called Le Mott, alias Boxſted-hall, with appertenances, and Sparrows croft, and a meſſuage and other premiſſes mamed Phimbles, Ballances, Imbells, and Wilkens. His only daughter and heir —— Heſter was 13 years old (n). She became the wife of lies in Bures Hamlet. The manſion houſe is on the left hand of the road leading from Earl's Colne to Bures. It derived its appellation from the noble family of Ferrers, Earls of Derby, mentioned above under Woodham-Ferrers, and Butſbury, p. 31, and 48, and alſo under Stebbing, Tiltey, and Steple —— John de Ferrers, a branch of this noble Family held it about the reign of K. Edw. II. Afterwards it belonged to John Mortimer. And then came to the ancient family of Creſſener, by marriage it ſeems, on which account they bore in their Coat-armour, ſix horſeſhoes, the original arms of the Ferrers [E].

William Parke of Geſtingthorpe Gent. and had by him, William; John; Robert; Heſter; Elizabeth; and Sarah.

3. The Maner of FERRERS,

The Creſſener family was originally of Norman extraction. Soon after the conqueſt, they fixed themſelves at Haukedon and Reed in Suffolk, and gave name to the chief places of their reſidence there, called Creſſeners to this day. From thence, about the reign of Henry IVth, they branched themſelves into Eſſex and Norfolk, and held divers conſiderable Lordſhips in the ſeveral Counties aforeſaid. They ennobled their blood by marrying into the illuſtrious Houſes of Mortimer Lords of Attilburgh and Ferrers Earls of Derby and Nottingham, whoſe arms they bear quarterly, and by which means they became poſſeſſed of the Maners of Mortimers and Ferrers: as alſo by the alliance of William Creſſener of Creſſeners, in the pariſh of Haukedon aforeſaid Eſq; who married Margaret, relict of Richard Lord Scrope of Bolton, daughter of Ralph Nevill firſt Earl of Weſtmoreland, from which match, the Creſſeners of Morley in Norfolk, and the Family at Earl's-Colne, are lineally deſcended. Their antient place of Sepulture was the Black Fryers in Sudbury; but for ſeveral generations they have been buried in the Church of Earl's Colne (o).

Ralph Creſſener, who dyed 12 Hen. IV. 1411, held the ſite of the maner of Ferrers, of the heirs of the Earl of March, and of the King; and 100 acres of land of the heirs of the Earl of Kent, as of his maner of Lammarſh. —— William his ſon was then aged 18 years (p). But Robert, whom we ſuppoſe to have been brother to Ralph, had this eſtate at the time of his deceaſe in 1414 [F] (q). William, ſon and heir of the ſaid [D] He was a Knight banneret: and Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire 16; 17, and 18 Edward I. as was his grandſon Peter, 24 Edw. III, Liſts of Knights and Sheriffs.

[E] The name is written in records theſe various ways. Creſſimere, Creſener, Creſenor, Creſſen, Creſſener, Creſſenor, Creſſiner, Creſſenour, Creſſine, Chreſſenor, Creſſinger, Creſhal, Creſnore, Creſnure, Creſſour, Creſvenor, Geſſenor.

[F] About this time lived Walter Creſſener, whom we take to have been William's brother. He was meſſenger to the King's Council, and had a purſuivant attending him. He was alſo governor of the caſtle of Crotoy in France, for which he had 2000 marks paid him in 16 Hen. VI. Anſtis's Collect. Exit. pellis de termino Mich. 16 Hen. VI. 3 Decemb. . . & Paſch. de eod. anno.

Ralph, ſucceeding to this Eſtate, married Margaret Nevill, as aboveſaid, half ſiſter to Cecily mother to K. Edward IV. and by her he had Alexander, John, and Ralph. He dyed in 1454, and his Lady not till 1461.——Alexander being 23 years old at the time of his father's deceaſe, (r) was Sheriff of Suffolk and Norfolk in the 5th and 21ſt of K. Edward IV. (s). He was one of the Gentlemen ſummoned in 1483, by the name of Alexander Creſſenger, to be created one of the Knights of the Bath at the intended Coronation of K. Edward V. [G]. for this family was very much attached to the Houſe of York. By his wife Cecily, daughter of Sir John Ratcliff, anceſtor of the Earls of Suſſex, he had four ſons; John; Thomas who married Elianore daughter of Sir Edward Woodhouſe of Kymberley; Edward, and William, which two laſt dyed without iſſue: And three daughters, Joane wife of Sir Robert Dymock, the champion; Elizabeth Prioreſs of Dartford; and Editha. Beſides the maners of Fitz-Jefferys and Ferrers, and other lands in this pariſh, he held in Norfolk and Suffolk, the maner of Haukedon with 200 acres of land, and the maners of Mortimers, Netherhall, Creſſeners, and Moores (t). He dyed 18 June 1498.——John his eldeſt ſon departed this life 24 Auguſt 1497, as did his widow Anne Knevett 20 Octob. the ſame year, having Ferrers in jointure. Their ſon——John Creſſener, born in 1484, ſucceeded his grandfather (u). He was a military man, and attended K. Henry VIII. to the ſiege of Tournay, in 1513, where for a reward of his valour he received the honor of Knighthood with ſeveral other brave men (w). He departed this life 2 Auguſt 1536, poſſeſſed of the maners of Ferrers, and Halhampſton. By Elizabeth his wife daughter of Sir Thomas Leſtrange, he had John his ſon and heir, born in 1511 (x), and Elizabeth married to Robert Balam of Walſoken in Norfolk, Eſq; The ſon ——John Creſſener Eſq; of Morley in Norfolk, had livery of the maners of Clees, Ferrers, Netherhall, and Mortimers in Eſſex and Suffolk, 18 Febr. 1540 (y). But in 1546, he alienated this maner in particular to

Henry Payne Eſq; (z), mentioned above under Cleeſ-hall. Thus the capital line of the Creſſener family ended or ceaſed here in this County. But a younger Branch of them remained at Earl's-Colne, of which we ſhall give an account, after having obſerved, That the maner and eſtate of Ferrers paſſed from the Payne family to Waldgrave, Pelham, Moore of Shalford; [ſee a little lower] and was lately purchaſed by Oſgood Hanbury Eſq;

Edward Creſſener Eſq; (eldeſt ſon and heir of George Creſſener of Blatherwic in Northamptonſhire Gent. who was buried under a marble ſtone in the ſouth iſle of the Church of Earl's Colne 29 May 1610) married Elizabeth daughter of Richard Halſall of Meriden in Warwickſhire, and had iſſue, 1. Grace, bapt. 23 Feb. 1612, and buried 15 Aug. 1616. 2. . . . ſon, buried 9 Feb. 1615. 3. George, bapt. 14 May 1618. 4. Elizabeth, buried 12 Janu. 1635. 5. Edward, who dyed young, and was buried at St. Peter's Apoſtle's, London. 6. Humfrey dyed 1 Octob. 1648, and was interred in the weſt iſle of Cripplegate Church, London. 7. John. . . . . The ſaid Edward dyed 13 Febr. 1648, and was buried under the ſame ſtone with his father. Elizabeth his widow was buried 26 July 1649.—— George Creſſener of Earl's Colne Eſq; eldeſt ſurviving ſon of Edward, was bred to the ſtudy of the civil Law. He married at St. Bride's, 1 Janu. 1643, Mary daughter of John Haling of St. Giles's Cripplegate, Brewer, and had by her 5 ſons and 5 daughters. The ſons were, 1. Edward, bapt. 12 Dec. 1644, who dying 24 Octob. 1656, was buried in the ſouth iſle of the Church at Earl's-Colne, with an epitaph. 2. George, born at Earl's-Colne 19 Octob. 1651, was of . . . . College in Cambridge, and of the Inner Temple, London. He dyed 9 Sept. 1676, and was buried near his brother, under a black ſtone, with an inſcription. 3. John, born at Colne, 3 Novemb. 1653, of whom more preſently. 4. Humfrey, born at Colne, 8 Janu. 1655, dyed 7 June 1668, and lies buried near his brothers, under a marble ſtone, with an inſcription. 5. Edward was born 28 Aug. 1665. . . . The five daughters of the ſaid George were, 1. Mary, born 22 Aug. 1647, and married 15 April 1672 to Nathanial Sibley of London. She dyed 26 June 1677, and was buried in the middle pace of Earle's-Colne Church, with an inſcription. 2. Elizabeth, born at Earl's-Colne 26 Aug. 1649, was wife of Nathanael Heckford, of Halſted, Draper. 3. Sibilla, born at Colne, 1 May 1658, was wife of Tho. Saville, of Colne-Engaine, Gent. 4. Some of this family were ſtrongly attached, as I obſerve above, to the Houſe of York, inſomuch that Thomas, whom I ſuppoſe to have been Alexander's next brother, was taken in 1494, for favouring Perkin Warbeck againſt K. Henry VII. and narrowly eſcaped with his life.

JOHN CRESSENER Eſq; 4th and youngeſt ſon of Edward Creſſener and Elizabeth Halſall aforeſaid, was of Watling-ſtreet, London: He married Anne daughter of Alexander Welde, of Witbury-hall in Hertfordſhire, Eſq; and had two ſons, Edward; and George: and three daughters, Anne wife of James Dayrell of London, Gent. Elizabeth, wife of Sir Thomas Halton, of London, Bart. ſon of Sir William Halton, of Little Samford, Bart. and Mary, wife of Samuel Poynter of London, Gent. He was buried at Earl's Colne, 5 Janu. 1696.——Edward his eldeſt ſon, commonly called Colonel Creſſener, married two wives. The firſt was Mary daughter of Sir Samuel Thomſon, of London, Knt. buried at St. Auſtins, London. The ſecond was Macrina, daughter of Sir Antony Keck, of London, Knt. one of the Commiſſioners of the great Seal. She was buried at Hamſtead in Middleſex. He had no iſſue by either of them. He dyed 13 Sept. 1700, and was buried in the family vault at Earls-Colne-—— George Creſſener, Eſq; ſecond ſon of the ſaid John, was of Watling-ſtreet in London. He married Maria-Anna, daughter of Nathanael Payler, of Nun-Monckton in Yorkſhire, Eſq; by Elizabeth daughter of Richard Hutchinſon, of Waltham-ſtow, Eſq; Treaſurer of the Navy in the time of the Commonwealth and in the reign of K. Charles II. which ſaid Nathanael was ſon of George Payler, of the ſame place, Eſq; by Maria his wife, daughter and heir of Sir Robert Jackſon of Berwick, Knt. and Bart. relict of Sir Pelham Cary, one of the ſons of the Lord Hunſdon. He had by her a numerous iſſue; viz. 1. John, who dyed an infant. 2. Edward an Hamborough merchant. 3. George, Reſident at Liege. 4. Nathanael, who dyed at the age of two years. 5. Payler, deceaſed. 6. John, dyed an infant. 7. Richard dyed at five years old. 8. Nathanael. He had alſo five daughters. 1. Elizabeth, married to Samuel Tuffnell, of Great Waltham, Eſq; [See under that pariſh]. 2. Anonyma. 3. Anna-Maria, who was the wife of Col. Petit. 4. Mary, buried at Colne 11 Janu. 1720-1. 5. Bethya dyed an infant. . . . Their father was Juſtice of the Peace for Eſſex, Deputy-Lieutenant for London, and one of the Governors of St. Thomas's Hoſpital. He dyed 4 Novemb. 1722, and was interred in the vault at Colne the 15th of the ſame month [H].

4. PEYTON-HALL

was formerly conſiderable, but by the alienation of ſeveral of the demeſne lands is now reduced to a ſmall eſtate. It took its name from the Peytons, an ancient and wealthy family that had a ſeat at Boxford in Suffolk, and lye buried in Peyton's Chapel, adjoining to Stoke-Neyland Church.

Peyton-hall ſtands by the ſide of the road leading from Pedmarſh to Bures and Lammarſh. It is a very mean edifice, built partly on the remains of the old, whoſe foundations are ſtill viſible.

In the reign of K. Edward II. it belonged to Geffrey Baldwyne (a): In 1516 to Sir Robert Lovell; and in 1544 to Margaret Muriell, widow (b).

Afterwards the maners of Ferrers and Peyton-hall came to a branch of the noble family of Waldgrave. Sir William Waldgrave, that lived at Smalbridge in Suffolk, by Mary, daughter of Henry Wentworth of Codham-hall, Eſq; had ſix ſons, George, Antony, William, Thomas, Julian, and Barnabas. —— Thomas the 4th ſon had the maners of Ferrers otherwiſe Ferriers, and of Peyton-hall, and two meſſuages called Carters and Geddings, with divers other lands in Bures Hamlet, Alphamſton, and Lammarſh; and alſo the maner of Leaden Roding. He married Elizabeth daughter of Robert Gurdon of Aſſington Eſq; by whom he had Thomas, baptized 28 Septemb. 1572. William; another Thomas; and a third Thomas baptized 15 April 1599; John: Mary, or Jemima, baptized 10 July 1582; and Elizabeth. Their father dying 27 March 1612, he was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon ——Thomas (c): who married Margaret daughter and heir of John Holinſhed of Hempſted in this county, Gent. and had by her a daughter, Margaret, buried at Twynſted 27 November 1637. Having no other iſſue, nor any brother ſurviving, his two ſiſters became his coheirs. Mary was married to Iſaac Wyncoll of Twynſted-hall, Eſq; [under which pariſh ſee an account of him.] In her right he had Peyton-hall, and Ravensfeild. The former continued for a while in his poſterity, and belongs now to

Henry Adams. The latter belongs to

Nicolas-Garrard Lynne Eſq;

Elizabeth Waldgrave, the youngeſt daughter, was married to Herbert Pelham of Lincolnſhire, Eſq; who obtained the maner of Ferrers in her right; and had by her two ſons, Waldgrave, baptized 26 Septemb. 1627, and Nathanael 5 Feb. 1631. He was a member of Ol. Cromwell's parliament in 1654 (d), and taking to his ſecond wife Elizabeth daughter of Colonel Boſvile of New-England, widow of George Harlakenden, had theſe ſons by her, Edward, Henry, and William. He went to New-England, and purchaſed a fine eſtate near Boſton. The time of his death was in June 1674——Waldgrave Pelham Eſq; his eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded him in his eſtates here. By his wife, Abigail daughter of Tho. Glaſcock of Sible-Hedingham, Gent. he had, Waldgrave, bapt. 6 June 1670; Herbert; Jemima; Abigail; Penelope; Elizabeth, Margaret, and Mary. He was buried 12 Novemb. 1699.——Waldgrave his eldeſt ſon and heir, ſucceeded him. He was buried 5 March 1703. But, before his deceaſe, he ſold this eſtate to

John Moore of Shalford-hall Eſq; [ſee under that pariſh.] He dyed in Janu. 1713-14, and by will left this eſtate to his Kinſman —— John Moore, Gent. It belongs now to

Oſgood Hanbury Eſq;

The maner of Ancells, and 60 acres of land, are alſo mentioned as being in this pariſh (e). [See under Stanley-hall in Pedmarſh.]

The King is lord of the Court-leet belonging to Alphamſton, with Bures Hamlet, and of Twynſted; though there be ſeveral Lords of theſe maners.

Alphamſton is rated to the land-tax at 613 l. 12 s. and Bures Hamlet at 589 l. 10 s.

Mrs. Siday gave a Noble, yearly, to be paid to the poor of this pariſh.

Colne Priory had a tenement and lands in this pariſh, given them by Robert Fitz-Robert (f).

The CHURCH is ſmall; and in the Belfrey there is only one Bell.

This Rectory was originally appendent to the maner of Clees-hall; and about the beginning of K. Henry the Third's reign, Richard Fitz-Robert gave it to the Abbey and Canons of Waltham Holy-Croſs. In their gift it continued till their ſurrender 23 March 1539, when it came to the Crown; and the Advowſon of it hath remained there ever ſince.

4. LAMMARSH.

The river Stour watering the ſkirts of this Hundred, ſome Marſhes near its banks occaſioned, as we imagine, the name of this place [I], which was formed from the two Saxon words Lam, dirt, and Meꞃꞅc, a marſh. It is otherwiſe written in records, Lamarſh, Lambmerſhe, Lamers, Lamerſhe, Lammerſhe, Laumerſhe.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, Algar, and Aluuard, were owners of the lands here; which at the time of the general ſurvey belonged to Ranulph Peverel; and Turold was his undertenent [K].

This Ranulph Peverell was a Norman Lord of great note, mentioned above under Hatfield Peverell, p. 130, and in other places.

Formerly the maner of Lammarſh belonged to the Honor of Peverell of London, part of which lay in the counties of Eſſex and Hertford; and ſo continued for ſeveral ages, till it was annexed to the Honor of Clare, which it hath ever ſince appertained to. About the reign of K. Henry II. this Honor was held by David Earl of Galway and Huntingdon, third ſon of David King of Scotland. . . . Iſabel, one of his daughters and coheirs, was married to Robert Bruce, Lord of Anandale, who had in her right the maner of Writtle, &c. [See above, p. 61.] In K. Edward the Third's reign, when the poſterity of Robert Bruce forſook their dependance on the Crown of England, Edward beſtowed this Honor upon Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex; and by the marriage of Mary, daughter and coheir of the latter, to K. Henry IV. this Honor became veſted in the crown, and part of the Dutchy of Lancaſter.

The demeſne lands of this maner were holden in the earlieſt times, under David Earl of Huntingdon, by the family of Beauchamp of Eſſex. And moſt probably, —— STEPHEN DE BEAUCHAMP had this maner in marriage with his wife Iſolda, daughter of Robert Ferrers Earl of Nottingham and Derby by Margaret, his wife, daughter and heir of William Peverell Lord of Nottingham (g). He was High-ſheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 15 Henry II. for half the year, and alſo for the half of the next year (h): and dyed in 1185, leaving his ſon —— Stephen, who dyed without iſſue; and four daughters; Iſolda, wife of Richard de Suburie, or Fitz-John; Maud, wife of William de Waſtail; Alice, of Ralph de Ardern; and Idonea, of Henry D'auney. (i). Their father was poſſeſſed of this maner, [L] and lands in Heny, Twinſted, and Alfemeſton. William de Waſtail was a knight; and ſome of that family accompanied K. Richard I. in his expedition to the Holy Land (k).

The next poſſeſſor of this eſtate was Philip Baſſet (l) deſcended from Ralph Baſſet Chief Juſtice of England in the reign of K. Henry I. from whom proceeded ſeveral noble families. This Philip was Baron of Wycombe in Buckinghamſhire, a very conſiderable man, a brave ſoldier, and a wiſe ſenator; chief Juſtice of England, with a ſalary of 1000 marks; and ſent Embaſſador to the Pope at the Council of Lions. He held the maner of Lamers in ca. of Sir Robert de Brus, for half a knight's fee: and departed this life in 1271 (m); having had two wives. 1. Helewiſe. 2. Ela, daughter of William Longeſpée Earl of Saliſbury, widow of Thomas Beauchamp Earl of Warwick. By the firſt he had his daughter and heir Aliva, born in

Her ſecond huſband was, Hugh le Deſpenſer, ſlain at the battle of Eveſham, 6 Auguſt 1265; by whom ſhe had a ſon, Hugh, created Earl of Wincheſter. This Lady Aliva le Deſpenſer dyed 9 Edw. I. [M] holding this maner of Robert De Brus ſen. by the ſervice of 3 knights fees, &c. with ſome other eſtates. [N] (m). It was afterwards given up to the Crown by Roger Bigot Earl of Norfolk, [as mentioned above, p. 260.] and K. Edward II. gave it to his own brother

Edmund Plantagenet, afterwards Earl of Kent; who, for endeavouring to releaſe the ſaid King from impriſonment, being beheaded (n); it then eſcheated to the Crown. And K. Edward III. granted it in 1330 to Oliver de Ingham, a brave warrior, for life: He dyed in 1344 (o). The Earl of Kent's attainder being reverſed, his two ſons —— Edmund, and —— John inherited afterwards. And the latter dyed in 1352 (p), but both without iſſue; ſo that their eſtates [O] deſcended to their ſiſter

Joane, the Fair Maid of Kent. She brought them in marriage to her firſt huſband, Thomas Holand Earl of Kent. And from him they paſſed, as Colne-Wake, [See above, p. 221] to —— Thomas Holand Earl of Kent: —— Thomas Holand Duke of Surrey: —— Edmund Holand Earl of Kent, who dyed 5 Sept. 1408, without iſſue. Then they came to his third ſiſter

Margaret wife of John Beaufort Earl of Somerſet, and Marquis of Dorſet: and to —— —— Edmund his ſon (q). By forfeiture to

The Houſe of York, and to —— John de la Pole Earl of Lincoln (r) Afterwards to Margaret, grand-daughter of John Beaufort, Earl of Somerſet, Counteſs of Richmond, mother to King Henry VII. She departed this life in 1509.

King Henry VIII. granted it to Henry Fitz-Roy his natural ſon. He dyed in 1536, and in 1545, the ſame King gave to

John de Vere Earl of Oxford, the maner of Lammerſh; and 13 acres of meadow; the park and wood called Lammerſh park, containing 28 acres; weſt-wood 60 acres; Wigboroſ-were, or pool, and the ſeveral waters, liberties, and fiſheries, within the lordſhip of Lammerſh, &c. (s). He dyed 3 Auguſt 1562, poſſeſſed of the premiſſes (t). —— Edward his ſon waſting his eſtates, as I have often obſerved before, ſuffered a fine and recovery of this in 1586 to John Lord Darcy and others; and 29 Octob. 1587 by licenſe alienated this maner, &c. to

Chriſtian Turner, of Creping-hall in Colne-Wake, widow. [See under that pariſh, p. 223.] Her only daughter and heir —— Margaret, became the ſecond wife of

Thomas Smyth of Blackmore Eſq; [For an account of their iſſue ſee Blackmore, p. 57.] —— John their eldeſt ſon held his firſt court here in 1605, and dyed 31 May 1621. His ſon, or grandſon, of whoſe name I cannot find a certain account, married Griſogona, daughter of William Tiffyn of Colne-Wake Eſq; and had by her 5 ſons and 8 daughters. The ſons were, John, born in March 1642, and buried 19 Novemb. 1652. Andrew; Stephen; Thomas, that was butler to the Biſhop of London, and dyed unmarried; John. The daughters were, 1. Griſogona, that had three huſbands; Solomon Clerke of Lammarſh; Peter Johnſon of Colcheſter; and Arthur Barnardiſton of Ketton Eſq; but no iſſue by them. 2. Etheldred, dyed young. 3. Mary, wife of Henry Crampe of Blackmore, Gent. 4. Margaret, of Thomas Lund of Hackney, Brewer. 5. Elizabeth of Paul Daniell of Braintree, Clothier. 6. Suſan dyed ſingle. 7. Hannah, married to John Lilly, M. A. Rector of Lammarſh, formerly of King's College in Cambridge. 8. Wibrow, to Jeremiah Fiſh, Rector of Alphamſton. We do not find when the father of theſe children dyed, nor where he was buried. —— Andrew his eldeſt ſurviving ſon, held his firſt court here 15 Octob. 1657. He married Frances daughter of Ambroſe Kerington of Acton in Suffolk, Gent. . . . Stephen married Annne daughter of . . . Leake of Wetherſfield. . . . John married Mary Coppin, and left no child. All theſe are buried at Lammarſh. Andrew, Stephen, and John, were ſucceſſively Lords of this maner; and, after the deceaſe of the laſt of them, this noble lordſhip of great extent, with all its royalties, and the advowſon of the Rectory, came among the ſurviving ſiſters and coheirs, who ſold it 2 July 1701 to Samuel Fiſke of Halſted, Apothecary or Phyſician, fifth ſon of Robert Fiſke of Norton in Suffolk, Gent. where he was born. At Halſted he lived above 30 years, and by his induſtry, acquired a conſiderable eſtate in the counties of Eſſex and Suffolk. He dyed 21 April 1718, and lies buried in the chancel. This eſtate hath ever ſince been in his family, and belongs now to —— Samuel Fiſke, Gent. [P].

John Clarke of Lammarſh did, by his will, dated 19 Janu. 1575, give eight pounds of lawful money of England, to be employed in a ſtock to remain for ever for the benefit of the Poor of this pariſh. This ſum is improved to 15 l. the intereſt whereof is diſtributed at Eaſter yearly.

John Smyth Lord of this maner gave forty ſhillings per annum to be diſtributed amongſt the Poor of this town for ever at Chriſtmas.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 655 l. 10 s.

The CHURCH is ſmall, of one pace with the chancel, and tyled. At the weſt end there is a round tower, [which we have obſerved, p. 78, to have been the Daniſh way of building:] and in it only one Bell. It is dedicated to the Holy Innocents.

This Rectory appears to have been all along appendent to, and in the gift of the lords of, this maner (u). 5. TWINSTED.

The name of this pariſh ſeems to be formed from the Saxon words Tƿin, linnen, or Tƿẏn, doubtful, and Ꞅꞇeꝺe, place. It is otherwiſe written in records Tumſted, Tunſted.

At the time of the general ſurvey it belonged to Richard Fitz-Giſlebert [Q], often mentioned before.

Here is only one maner, that of Twinſted-hall, but there are alſo within this pariſh two capital meſſuages, called Pelhams and Sparrow-hall alias Deyes.

Twinſted-hall ſtands near the Church, and is a large edifice built by Iſaac Wincol Eſq; in Qu. Elizabeth's reign, as appears by his arms in the windows.

Stephen de Beauchamp, mentioned above under Lammarſh, p. 268. held this maner at the time of his deceaſe, 31 Henry II.——Stephen his ſon dying without iſſue, his four ſiſters, Iſolda, Maud, Alice, and Idonea became his coheirs. Maud, the ſecond, was married to

William de Waſtail, and brought this eſtate to him, in whom, and his poſterity, it continued for ſome time. Peter de Boxted had it in farm, in K. Richard the firſt's reign. And in the reign of K. Henry III. it belonged to a conſiderable family ſurnamed De Scaccario, or of the Exchequer [R]. For in 1252,

Roger de Scaccario ſued out a writ againſt Nicolas de Winton and Petronilla his wife, for one meſſuage and 120 acres of land in Twynſtede, with ſeveral ſervices thereunto belonging, upon the yielding of one lance yearly of the price of 6 d. (x). His ſon,——Laurence de Scaccario was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire, from the 4th to the 7th of K. Edward I. (y). He dyed in the 12th of that king's reign, poſſeſſed of the maner of Twynſted, conſiſting of a capital meſſuage and 3 roods of land there, holden of Hugh le Deſpencer by the ſervice of 1*d.* a year;—67 acres, of John Manduyt, of Pentelawe, by homage, and ſcutage when it happens;—20 acres of William Barentyn, as one of the heirs of Blauch moſter, by the ſervice of 7*s.* 3*d.*—12 acres of Ralph de Montchenſy, by the ſervice of 6 pence per annum;—and 18 acres of Nicolas de Reſley, by the ſervice of 15*d.* a year (z). His ſon ——Simon de Scaccario, poſſeſſed the ſame at the time of his deceaſe 20 Edw. I. with a little variation in the payments to Manduyt, and to Montchenſy, [S]; and it is added, that of thoſe lands and tenements there was 1 meſſuage, 160 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, 24 of paſture, 6 of wood, and 35 s. rent of aſſize, with pleas of court. In caſe his widow Petronilla did not prove with child, his coheirs were his three ſiſters; Maud, wife of John Dagworthe; Lora, wife of William Pafrer; and Beatrix of John Peverell. (a). The reaſon why this maner makes ſo ſmall a figure in this record, is, becauſe the demeſnes of it were parcels of ſeveral of the adjoyning maners, as appears by the ſequel.

[R] They were ſo ſurnamed, becauſe they held of the King by Serjeanty the conſiderable office of Uſher of the Exchequer, and Cryer in the King's-Bench. This chief, or hereditary Uſher, had ſeveral perſons that acted under him, in the great Exchequer, in the Exchequer of the Jews, and in the common Bank. His buſineſs was, to take care of the Doors and Avenues belonging to the Exchequer, ſo that the King's Records laid up there might be in ſafety. It was alſo his duty, to tranſmit the Writs of Summonces iſſued out of the Exchequer for the King's Debts; that is, to cauſe them to be delivered to the reſpective Sheriffs whom they were directed to. They held this office in right of an Eſtate at Eſton, or Enſton, in Oxfordſhire. King Henry II. granted the miniſtry of the chief Uſhery of the Exchequer to Roger de Warengue ort, or Wallingford, and his heirs; which are juſtly ſuppoſed to be the family De Scaccario now before us. ——See the learned T. Madox's Hiſtory of the Exchequer, p. 718, 719.

Lora, wife of William Paſrer [T]. She dyed after her huſband, 19 Edw. II. without iſſue. So that John Dagworth, grandſon of her eldeſt ſiſter Maud, inherited. This Maud enjoyed during her life the third part of the office of Uſher of the Exchequer. The other two parts were alienated by the reſt of the coheirs to Reginald de Herlizoun, and Hawiſe daughter of the ſaid Maud. (b).

On the 27th of April 1374, Simon biſhop of London, and John his brother, held a court here. This was the famous Simon Sudbury, alias Tebold, or Theobald, made Biſhop of London in 1361, and Archbiſhop of Canterbury in 1375. He was barbarouſly murdered on Tower-hill in Wat Tyler's rebellion 14 June 1381. His head is kept in St. Gregory's church at Sudbury, [in which town he was born] and ſhewn to this day.

In 1378, John de Reveſhale, and John de Wiſbich, of Sudbury, were owners of Twinſted-hall (c).

And Sir John Groos, and Sarah his wife, held a court as Lords of this maner 2 Sept. 1393.

Sir Gerard Braybroke junior, Edmund Hampden, and John Boys, Eſquires, and Roger Albrighton, clerk, held their firſt court at Twynſted-hall, 5 June 1398, it being then holden of the Honor of Clare. They afterwards founded Braybroke's chantry in St. Paul's Cathedral (d). In January Sir Gerard Braybroke held his firſt court here, and lived tlll 1418. or after.

About the year 1480, this maner came into the Goldingham family of Bulmer, [where a more particular account is given of them.] For, in November 1480, John Goldingham, of Goldingham-hall in that pariſh, held his firſt court here. And he and his joint feoffees kept another court here in July 1495.——John Goldingham Eſq; who dyed 26 July 1516, held the ſite of the maner of Twinſted-hall, 2 acres of arable, and all the quit-rents, parcel of that maner, of Catharine Queen of England, as of her Honor of Clare: And 100 acres of arable, meadow, paſture, alder, and wood, other parcel of the ſaid maner, of Henry Bourchier Earl of Eſſex, at the rent of 15*s.* per ann. And one tenement, and 5 acres of land, of the King, as of the maner of Lammarſh-hall, at the rent of 2*s.* 11*d.* yearly: And 80 acres of arable, meadow, &c. of Sir Ralph Chamberlain, in ſocage: Moreover 80 acres of arable, meadow, &c. of the ſame, of his maner of Henny-hall, by fealty, and rent of 6*s.* per ann. And 30 acres of land, the reſidue of this maner, of Sir Robert Lovell, as of his maner of Peyton-hall. His heir was ——Chriſtopher his grandſon, aged 14 years; viz. the ſon of his ſon John Goldingham (e). This Chriſtopher ſold the maner and eſtate of Twinſted-hall to Roger Wincole of Waldingfeilde Gent. who had alſo lands in Halſted (f). He married Thomaſine, daughter and ſole heir of . . . Page, by whom he had —— Iſaac his ſon and heir, of Netherhall in Waldingfeild, who held his firſt court here 18 Janu. 1562. By his wife, Margery daughter of Edward Roſs of Neyland in Suffolk, he had two ſons, Iſaac and John; and 5 daughters. He dyed 24 Decemb. 1576 [V], and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon —— Iſaac; who held his firſt court here 18 Auguſt 1580. He married Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Gaudy, one of the Judges of the Queen's Bench. She dyed 4 Janu. 1610, and He himſelf, in Auguſt 1638, and were both buried in this Church. They had one ſon, Iſaac, baptized 1 Janu. 1594, and 5 daughters.——Iſaac, the only ſon and heir, married Mary daughter of Thomas Waldgrave of Ferrers in Bures-hamlet, Eſq; and had by her Thomas, baptized 5 Feb. 1621; and Iſaac, and Waldgrave, both which dyed infants: alſo ſeveral daughters, whereof Hannah, the youngeſt, who deceaſed 26 Feb. 1680, lies buried in the chancel of this church. Their father Iſaac was buried in Bures Church, 6 Auguſt 1650, amongſt his wife's relations.——Thomas, his only ſurviving ſon, ſucceeded him, and kept a court here 17 Janu. 1654. He had two wives, 1. Mary eldeſt daughter of Sir William Cook of Broome in Norfolk, Bart. who dyed 27 Decemb. 1658, leaving one ſon, Iſaac, born 24 Janu. 1654, and two daughters, Mary, born 27 Novemb. 1653, married to Edward Golding of Great Henny; Penelope, born 27 Aug. 1656. His 2d wife was Mary daughter of William Spring of Shalford, and by her he had, Thomas, born 16 June 1663. John; and Catharine. He dyed 16 Janu. 1675, and is buried in this chancel, near his firſt wife. Thomas, the eldeſt ſon by the ſecond wife, called Spring Wincol, had Peyton-hall, and Ravenſfield: He married Dorothy daughter of . . . . Umphrevill of Langham Valley, by whom he had his ſon Thomas. —— Iſaac Wincol Eſq; the eldeſt ſon and heir by the firſt wife, dyed 14 March 1681, in the 27th year of his age, without iſſue, and is alſo interred in this Chancel. Upon his death [W], this eſtate deſcended to his ſiſter

Mary, wife of Edward Golding aforeſaid. He held a Court here 19 Octob. 1697, and on the 2d of June 1700, conveyed the maner of Twinſted-hall to Richard Nicholls of London, goldſmith, in truſt for . . . . Chambers of the ſame city, goldſmith. It belongs now to James Marriot, LL. D. of Doctors Commons.

Walter ſon of William de Pelham held, in 1293, of Hugh Deſpenſer, 1 meſſuage and 40 acres of arable in Twinſted; of John Waſtoyl 4 acres and a half; of Tho. de Fabre 4 acres; and of Thomas Twinſted 6 acres of land.—— William was his ſon and heir (g). William Aſtele, and John Cole, had it afterwards.

A family ſurnamed Roſhey, or Ruſhey, held it as low as 1494. And then — Barker from 1543 to 1619. The Smyths from 1620 to 1671 (h).

It hath ſince belonged to . . . . Alſton, and now to Mr. Shaen.

SPARROW-HALL, alias Deyes, is deſcribed, in 1568, as one meſſuage, 1 toft, 1 garden, 1 orchard, 20 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, 20 of wood, and 20*s.* rent in Twynſted, and Great Henny (i). The Houſe ſtands upon Twinſted-green.

This capital meſſuage is of great antiquity. It had that name in the reign of K. Edward I. and from it a family took the ſurname of Sparrow-hall. Afterwards it belonged to Wm. Deye, in King Richard the Second's reign. Thomas Turner, alias Colyer, and Alice his wife, held it in 1568. And, in 1596, William Strutt in right of his wife; and Hugh Barker.——Mr. Tyler is the preſent owner and occupier.

We have mention of the maner of Gandene in this pariſh, in 1360, but cannot find where it is.

This Pariſh is rated to the Land-tax at 379*l.*

Iſaac Wincol Eſq; in his will, dated 1 March 1681, left the following bequeſt. "Item, my will is, that ſuch perſon or perſons for the time being as ſhall enjoy [Twinſtead-hall] or receive and take the rent and profits thereof, ſhall yearly and every year for ever cauſe to be killed upon the premiſſes, at Chriſtmas-time, one good Bull in good plight, and give out All thereof except the hide, with the aſſiſtance and direction of the Church-wardens and Overſeers of the Poor for the time being of Twinſtead, unto and among the poor people of Twinſtead aforeſaid, and the poor people of the ſeveral pariſhes of Great Henny, Pebemarſh, and Alphamſton in the county of Eſſex."

The CHURCH is of one pace with the Chancel, both tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower of brick, with a little wooden turret, containing one Bell.

This Rectory was originally appendent to the Maner. In the beginning of King Henry the Third's reign, Richard Fitz-Simon, and Ivetta his wife, paſſed by fine, ſome lands in Lammes and Twynſted, and the advowſon of the Churches of thoſe two pariſhes to Philip Baſſet (k). Very ſoon after, this Church was given to the Priory and Convent of Merton in Surrey, founded by K. Henry I. for Canons of St. Auſtin (l). Upon the diſſolution of Monaſteries the Advowſon of this Rectory came to the Crown, and hath continued in it ever ſince.

This Rectory hath a Glebe of about 15 acres.

HENY.

Here are two contiguous Pariſhes of the name, diſtinguiſhed by the appellations of Great and Little. The name ſeems to be formed from the Saxon word Hean, high; the Church of Great Heny ſtanding high. In Domeſday-book it is written Heni, Hanies, and Heines; but with little or no obſervable variety in other records.

Theſe two Pariſhes are not properly diſtinguiſhed in Domeſday-book; for which reaſon we are forced to place the ſeveral Entries relating to them together [X]. At the time of the general ſurvey they were holden by Ranulf Peverell; John ſon of Waleram; and Roger Bigot: But had belonged in Edward the Confeſſor's reign to Uluuin, and ſeveral Freemen.

Of Ralph Peverell there is a ſufficient account under Hatfeild Peverell, p. 130. Of Roger Bi-

6. GREAT HENY.

Heny-hall, the manſion-houſe of this maner, ſtood in a field near the Church, called Hall-field to this day. Scarce any remains of this ancient ſtructure are left, except a pit where it is ſaid the cellars and vaults were. Here was formerly a Park.

This maner of Great Heny was the chief lordſhip of theſe two pariſhes, though it was holden of the maner of Lammerſh. The ancienteſt owners of it were the Manduits, mentioned above under Terling, p. 125. —— Gilbert Mandut, who dyed on or about 1260, held, of the heirs of Simon de Cantelupe, a hundred ſhillings worth of land in Hennye, with the advowſon of the Church, by the ſervice of one knight's-fee.— John was his ſon and heir (m). —— Robert Mandut held one knight's fee here, and in parts adjoining, in 1314 (n).

It was afterwards in the ancient knightly Family of Fitz-Ralph, ſufficiently mentioned above under Pebmarſh-hall, and Dagworths, p. For Maud widow of William Fitz-Ralph held half of the maner of Henye of Edmund Earl of Kent. who dyed in 1329 (o). —John Fitz-Ralph held one knight's-fee here, afterwards, of John Plantagenet Earl of Kent (p). As did —— Sir John Fitz-Ralph, in 1396, of Thomas de Holand alſo Earl of Kent (q).—John Fitz-Ralph held this maner in 1440 (r). He dying that year without iſſue; his ſiſter Elizabeth brought it in marriage to her huſband

Sir Robert Chamberlaine. She dyed poſſeſſed of it 23 March 1517 (s). As did her ſon —— Sir Ralph Chamberlaine 23 June 1521 (t). And his brother and heir —— Sir Edward 15 July 1541 (u). He was ſucceeded by his ſon——Sir Ralph; and he by his ſon——Fitz-Ralph Chamberlaine.

Then it came by purchaſe ſucceſſively into the families of Bedingfeild, Cornwallis, Gwyn, and Manning, as Pebmarſh-hall. [See above, p. 261.]

Sometime after the year 1660, Sir Harbottle Grimſton Bart. bought it with ſeveral other eſtates in this neighbourhood: He preſented to this Church in 1666 (w). From him it deſcended to his ſon —— Sir Samuel Grimſton Bart. who dying without iſſue gave it his nephew

William Luckyn of Meſſing-hall Eſq; that took the name of Grimſton, and was created Viſcount Grimſton. [See above, p. 177, 222, &c.] He ſold this maner to Thomas Sewell of this pariſh, Gent. Attorney at law. He had the demeſnes before, as we ſhall ſhew preſently.

For many years paſt, the ſite of this maner of Great Heny was in a family of note ſurnamed Gebelon, otherwiſe Gubelon, Gybelon and Gibelow; which flouriſhed here in good circumſtances [Y].

Margery, ſole daughter and heireſs of Thomas Gibelon, about the reign of K. Edward IV. brought in marriage the ſite of this maner to her huſband.

John Sewell. A deſcendent of his, —— John Sewell of Henney, in 1583, had lands in Halſted called Painters, and purchaſed of Nicolas Starling a meſſuage and eſtate there named Partriches. He dyed in 1590, having had by . . . his wife daughter of . . . Ellis, Thomas, and Robert. The latter was a draper in London, and marrying . . . daughter of Bruno Ryves Dean of Windſor, had iſſue Jonathan Sewell Eſq; a Colonel. The eldeſt ſon —— Thomas Sewell of Great Henny, Gent. married Rachel daughter of Edward Alſton of Newton in Suffolk, Gent. and had by her, Thomas, John; Edmund, and Robert, which two laſt dyed batchelors. John, the ſecond ſon, married Anne daughter of Walter Staneway of Broomhall in Shropſhire, by which he had John, who dyed ſingle; and 5 daughters; Anne, wife of Francis Hare of Cornwall, Gent. Mary, wife of Walter Price of Wales, Gent. Mary, wife of John Maſon of Dedham, Gent. Rachel, of Bernard Carter of Sudbury, merchant; and Elizabeth, of John King of Melford, clothier. ——Thomas Sewell of Great Henny, Gent. the eldeſt ſon and heir, departed this life in 1707, aged 61 (x). He had taken to wife Alice, daughter of Joſeph Beaumont of Hadley, Gent. by which he had iſſue, Thomas; Joſeph; Beaumont; and two daughters, Mary, married to John Tyrell of Preſton in Suffolk, Gent. Alice to Tho. Carr of Holbeach in the county of Lincoln, Gent. Joſeph, the ſecond ſon, married . . . . daughter of . . . Scarling of Sudbury, by whom he had Joſeph, and Margaret. —— Thomas Sewell Gent. the eldeſt ſon and heir, educated at the Inner Temple, London, had two wives, 1. Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Richard Hardwick of Spalding in Lincolnſhire, Gent. She dyed 9 Auguſt 1715, aged 36. His eldeſt ſon by her, named Thomas, was of Magdalen College in Cambridge, but dyed in November 1721, aged 19 (y). He had another ſon named Hardwick; and a daughter, Alice, married to Richard Maltyward of Thurſton-hall in Hawkedon, Eſq; His 2d wife was Rebekah daughter of the Rev. George Carter, Rector of Pentlow. He dyed 21 Septemb. 1727.

Hardwick-Sewell Richardſon, ſon of the late Mr. Sewell's ſiſter, is the preſent poſſeſſor of this eſtate, which commonly goes by the name of Guyblons [Z].

Church-houſe,

This capital meſſuage belonged anciently to the Fitz-Ralphs, and Chamberlains. Fitz-Ralph Chamberlain ſold it to

Richard Golding, Gent. who lived in it many years, and dying 18 June 1585, aged 74 years, was buried in Allhallows Church in Sudbury, of which town he had been Mayor. —— George Golding, Gent. whom we take to be his ſon, dyed 4 Auguſt 1617, aged 64. He was ſeized of lands not only in this pariſh, but alſo in Middleton, Bulmer, Balingdon, and Sudbury (z). He ſold Church-houſe to John Elliſton of Overhall in Geſtingthorp [A]. And it now belongs to Mr. Thomas Walker.

However the Golding family, after the ſale of Church-houſe, continued to have lands in this pariſh. For Edward Golding dyed 13 Auguſt 1632, poſſeſſed of a meſſuage with appertenances called Napelltrowes, in Great Henny and Middleton, and held two pieces of meadow in Dagſen meadow, of the maner of Lammarſh: And two pieces of meadow of the King of his Honor of Clare (a).

The following Eſtates are alſo in this pariſh.

Fiſhers, belonging to Hardwick S. Richardſon, Eſq; Fenn, ... to John-Littel Bridge Eſq; — Loſſins, . . . to Samuel Fiſke, Gent. —— Hagbuſh, . . . to Mr. John Simſon. — Browns, . . . to Mr. Tho. Gibbon. —— Thorncroft, . . . to Mr. William Sadler. —— Sheep-cote, ... to Mr. Hugh Conſtable. —Dovehouſe, . . . to Mr. James Jackſon. —— Applecroft, ... to Mrs. Hannah Patrick, of Marks-Tay-hall.

Adam Fitz-warin gave ſome lands in theſe Pariſhes to Clare Priory (b),

Charitable Gifts.

Thomas Sewell of this pariſh, Gent. did, by his will, dated 22 Septemb. 1705, ſettle ſeven roods of meadow lying in Henny meadow, to buy three penny-loaves to be given to three of the pooreſt people that come to Henny-Church every Lord's-day as long as the world endures.

Martin Cole ſome time of Sudby, draper, charged, by his will, Shernford mills in Great Henny, and two meadows in Lammarſh, called Great and Little Holmes, 13 acres, with the payment of Fourteen pounds, on the firſt day of May for ever at the town-hall in Sudbury, to certain feoffees in whom he veſted an eſtate of inheritance in thoſe mills and meadows for the purpoſes following: To buy 200 yards of French canvas for 50 ſhirts and 50 ſmocks to be given to the Poor of Sudbury on Aſcenſion-day, 10 l. For making them 1*l.* To the Miniſter of St. Peters for preaching there that morning 6*s.* 8*d.* To the Miniſter of All Saints for preaching at St. Gregory's in the afternoon 6 s. 8 d. To the Town-clerk for entering the Poors names in a book, 6*s.* 8*d.* To be ſpent in a Love-feaſt and meeting of the Corporation in remembrance of the donor on the ſame day 2*l.* The donor dyed 9 Dec. 1620 [B].

The Church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, and the Chancel, are of one pace, and both tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower with a Spire ſhingled, containing 5 Bells. This Church ſtands pleaſantly on a hill, which yields a fine proſpect for ſeveral miles into Suffolk a-croſs the river Stour.

This Rectory was always appendent to the maner; the Lords whereof preſented. For when they alienated the ſite of the maner, they retained the court, and the advowſon of the Church. It is now in the Lord Viſcount Grimſton. There belongs to it a Glebe of 52 acres.

A Chantry was founded in this Church by Thomas Giblon; and ſome Obits, and grants for Lamps; of which the endowments mentioned, were, Parringtons, and Toomes croft, 4 acres and a half in Middleton; Fidlers; Hebdall, 3 acr. and a half; and Whitlands, in Great and Little Heny: which, after the ſuppreſſion, were granted to Tho. Golding, and others (c).

7. LITTLE HENY

is literally Little, being reputed to be conſiderably under 200 l. a year.

There is in it only one capital maner called Rye, or Ryes-hall: The manſion-houſe lyes in a bottom near the river, from whence it ſeems to have taken that name [C], and from it a family, [of whom John de Rye was living in K. Henry the Third's reign], took the ſurname De Rye.

It belonged in the time of K. Edward II. to Thomas de Heriech, who alienated it, and the advowſon of the Church to Thomas de Grey, and Alice his wife (d). They held this maner and advowſon, 15 Ed. II. 1321, of the heirs of Peter de Redley by knight's ſervice. —— Thomas was their ſon (e). John Parker was poſſeſſed of this maner in the reign of K. Henry VI. After that it came to be divided. For John Archer did homage to the Earl of Oxford at Hedingham-caſtle, 2 Febru. 1497, for a moiety of this maner called Le Ry: And the 13th of the ſame month and year Robert Crackbone yielded homage for the other moiety; and preſented to this Church 16 July 1512.—— Nicholas Archer ſucceeding his father John, paid a relief in 1500, and preſented to this Church in May 1505. He dyed either 3 January 1501, or 11 June 1502 (i), holding this maner of the Earl of Oxford as of his Caſtle of Heningham: and Elizabeth his daughter and heir was aged 18 years.

Thomas Eden Eſq; Clerk of the Star-chamber, held it about the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign. He married Griſild daughter of Edward Waldgrave, of Sudbury, Eſq; who as his widow preſented to this Church in Octob. 1568. By her he had ſeveral children. —— Thomas, the eldeſt ſon and heir, preſented to this Church in 1577. He was afterwards knighted; and married Mary daughter of Bryan Darcy Eſq; by whom he had St. Clere; John; William; and 7 daughters.——St. Clere ſucceeding his father, held the maner of Ryes, and advowſon of this Church thereunto belonging, of Henry Earl of Oxford, as of his maner of Heningham-Caſtle, by the ſervice of one knight's fee. He dyed 20 May 1624, moſt probably unmarried: and was ſucceeded by his brother —— John Eden, then aged 16 years, 9 months, and 15 days (k). He married Anne, daughter of Richard Harlakenden, of Earl's-Colne, Eſq; and had by her his only daughter Anne, that became the wife of Geffrey Littel of Halſted, Gent. and had by him ſeveral children: of whom the eldeſt —— John Littel of London Eſq; married Rebecca daughter of George Sawbridge, and had, John-Eden Littel; George; Sawbridge; and Hannah; and Rebecca.

Of the Eden family there is a more particular account under Ballingdon.

A farm in this pariſh called Gentrys, or Chantry's, belongs to William Jennens of Acton in Suffolk Eſq;

The CHURCH was of one pace with the Chancel, about 30 feet in length, and 18 in breadth within the walls. The ruins and ſite of it are about half a mile north-weſt from Great Heny Church, in a field ſouth of Ryes-hall. As it is ruinous, the inhabitants reſort to Great Heny Church, and pay the Miniſter and Church-wardens of that pariſh 3 l. a year for the uſe of their Church. Yet this Rectory ſtill continues diſtinct from the other, and preſentative, being a kind of ſine cure. It is, and hath been all along, appendent to the maner.

Great and Little Heny are rated together to the land-tax at 814 l. 8 s.

8. MIDDLETON.

In reſpect of which two adjoyning places this was called the Middle-Town, for that is the origin of the name, cannot be diſcovered at preſent. It is about a mile ſouth-eaſt from Sudbury.

This pariſh, in Edward the Confeſſor's reign, was holden by nine Sochmen of Earl Algar: and other Sochmen. At the time of the general ſurvey it belonged to Giſlebert the Prieſt; and to Richard Fitz-Giſlebert; and Robert Malet had wrongfully taken 15 acres [D].

Here is only one conſiderable eſtate, called Middleton-hall.

About the end of the reign of K. Edward III. it was holden by a rich and ancient family called Theobald, or Tebauld, and afterwards ſurnamed De Sudbury; the place of their reſidence, Simon de Sudbury, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, upon his founding St. Gregory's College in his native place, anno 1375, obtained licence to endow it, among other things, with the maner of Midleton, and 50 acres of land in this pariſh; then holden of the Abbey of St. Albans, by the ſervice of 60*s.* per ann. and with two meſſuages, 50 acres of arable, 21 of meadow, 35 acr. of paſture, 34 of wood, and 60*s.* rent in Balidon, Midleton, Great and Little Hennye, Pebemarſhe, and Bulmere (l) [E]. It continued in that College till the fall of the Religious houſes, and then came to the Crown.

In 1544, K. Henry VIII. granted the revenues of that College, and the maners of Brandon and Midelton to Sir Thomas Paſton of Paſton in Norfolk, and his heirs (m). He dyed 4 Sept. 1550, leaving —— Henry his ſon and heir, aged upwards of five years (n). He dyed 10 March 1564, poſſeſſed of two parts of this maner, and his brother ——Edward, then aged 19, was his heir (o).—— Edward Paſton, moſt probably ſon of this latter, dyed 8 March 1630, ſeized of the maners of Middleton and Brondon [F]; and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon —— Clement (p).

We ſee that in Domeſday-book this place is called Mildeltun, and Mildetun.

[E] John de Sudbury, the Archbiſhop's brother, had alſo a quarter of a knight's fee in this pariſh, holden afterwards by William de Ufford Earl of Suffolk, in 1381. Inquiſ. 5 Ric. II.

[F] He had alſo the maners of Paſton, Binham, Berney, Thorpe, Blofeild. and Beighton, in Norfolk. Inquiſ. 6 Caro.

This eſtate hath been for ſome time in the Windham-family of Felbridge in Norfolk.

The Gate-houſe is a farm in this pariſh belonging to the Rev. Henry Croſſman.

Mr. J. Robinſon hath alſo an Eſtate here.

Edmund Barnewell, who dyed 15 May 1627, held three parcels of land, containing 8 acres, in Awton field in Middleton, of Mary Eden as of her maner of Barrington-fee; and a capital meſſuage called Porteroſe, in Midleton, Great and Little Henny, and Bulmer, of Edw. Paſton Eſq; as of his maner of Midleton-hall. Baſil, and Elizabeth, Barnewell were his heirs (q).

There was a family of good note ſurnamed De Middleton, from this pariſh.——Matthew of Middleton was living 11 Edw. I. and about 1283.——In 12 Hen. IV. Robert Midleton gave an acre and a half of land in Balydon to St. Gregory's College in Sudbury. He had remaining divers lands and tenements in Midleton, Balydon, and Hennye, of the yearly value of 100*s.* holden of the Prior of Colne, &c. (r).

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 386*l.*

The Church is ſmall, of one pace with the Chancel; both tyled. A little wooden turret, at the weſt end, contains one bell. The Door of the Church ſeems to be very ancient: On each ſide there are Gothic pillars, and the arch or top of it is wreathed and indented.

This Rectory never belonged to St. Gregory's College, as appendent to the maner: but hath been all along in the gift of ſeveral lay-patrons; and longeſt in the Bacon-family.

9. WICKHAM ST. PAUL's.

This pariſh having ever ſince the tenth century belonged to the Church of St. Paul's in London; 'tis upon that account denominated Wickham St. Paul's; in oppoſition to the other Wickham in this county, near Witham, which, as belonging to the Biſhop of London, is therefore called Wickham-Biſhop's.

An account of the various ſignifications of the Saxon word ƿic, or wic, is given above, p. 173. Here, in regard to the ſituation of the place, it muſt mean a farm, or dairy. Ham ſignifies houſe, or habitation.

At the time of the general ſurvey, this pariſh was reckoned as one maner, and three hides wanting one virgate [G]. In the reign of K. Henry I. it was taxed or rated at the ſame quantity of land. It was an entire demeſne except 2 acres; and there were in demeſne 200 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, about 200 of wood, well grown, and round the wood 60 acres, without any crop. There were then 2 carucates in demeſne, paſture for 4 cows and 120 ſheep, and 32 goats (s).

The Dean and Chapter had here a Park of about 300 acres of land.

This maner hath ever ſince continued in the poſſeſſion of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, except in the times of Uſurpation, when Cooke of Pebmarſh laid hold of it, and ſtripped it of all the timber, &c.

Of the Dean and Chapter it hath been holden by leaſe; partly by the family of Coe, and partly by the Strutt family. John Coe of Geſtingthorp was tenant of a parcel of theſe demeſnes in the reign of K. Henry IV. And as low as Novemb. 1625, George Coe, of that pariſh, and of Byham-hall in Great Mapleſted, held 105 acres of land here of the Dean of St. Paul's (t).

John Strutt was alſo a tenant of ſome part of theſe demeſnes about the year 1471, and William Strutt in Qu. Elizabeth's reign.

The preſent leſſee of this conſiderable eſtate under the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, is the Right honourable John [Hobart] Earl of Buckinghamſhire.

The following Eſtates are alſo in this pariſh.

A Farm given by the late Mr. William Naggs to the Charity-ſchool in Colcheſter.

Copy-houſe . . . Tho. Fenn's of Sudbury.

The Oak-farm . . . Mr. Harrington's of Totham-mill.

Bullock's-hole . . . Robert Key's of Geſtingthorp.

Waters . . . James Waters owner and occupier.

Chandler's.

Several parcels about 40*l.* a year, belonging to Mr. Geffrey Ruffle, tenant of Wickham-hall.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 453*l.* 10*s.*

Two women of the name of White, ſettled three acres of land in this pariſh in feoffees, to pay 33*s.* per annum to the Poor half yearly for ever, at Lady-day and Michaelmaſs.

The intereſt of 5*l.* is alſo diſtributed to the Poor in money.

There is an Almſhouſe for one dweller on Wickham-green.

The Church, dedicated to All-Saints. is of one pace with the Chancel, both tyled. At the weſt end there is a tower of brick, imbattled, containing 4 bells.

This Rectory being appendent to the maner, is in the gift and collation of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's: who are Ordinaries of the place, it being exempt from the Archdeacon's and any other juriſdiction.

This living hath a Glebe of 20 acres.

MAPLESTED, GREAT and LITTLE.

Theſe two Pariſhes lie contiguous to one another, between Pebmarſh, Twinſted, Wickham St. Paul's, Sible, and Caſtle Hedingham. The name of them is obvious, being formed from the two words, Maple, and Sted, i. e. Maple-place: this ſpot moſt probably being a wood full of thoſe trees when it received that appellation. In records it is otherwiſe written, Mapſtede, Mapeldoreſted, Mapelderſtede, Maplehurſt, Mapleſted, Mapeltreſtede, and Mapelterſtede.

10. GREAT MAPLESTED, in Edward the Confeſſor's reign, belonged to Uluuin, a freeman: at the time of the general ſurvey it was holden by Robert Gernon, lord of Stanſted; afterwards named Montfichet; [ſee there an account of him, and his family] and his under-tenant was Ilger [H].

Robert's poſſeſſions here comprehended almoſt all the demeſne lands of the pariſh. They were annexed afterwards to Stanſted Montfichet, upon its being erected into a Barony, or Honor, and ſo continue to this time.

There are reckoned four maners in this pariſh. 1. The maner of Hoſedenes. 2. . . . that of Caxtons. 3. The maner of Dynes. 4. Byham-hall, Beſides the capital meſſuages of Waleis, or Wallace, and Chelmeſhou-houſe.

1. 2. 3. The maners of HOSEDENES, CAXTON, and DYNES.

The firſt name is a corruption of Hodenge, the ancienteſt owners upon record of this maner in particular; as Caxton's is alſo from ſome former poſſeſſors; and Dynes, from William Dyn, and his ſon Sir John Dyne, mentioned under Halſted.

The ſite of the firſt and third of theſe maners is well known, but the ſecond's is buried in oblivion. Indeed Dynes-hall, the off-ſpring of the two others, hath ſwallowed them up.

The maner of Hoſedens is in the part of this pariſh that borders on Caſtle Hedingham. The houſe is but mean, and removed from the place where the former ſtood, which is known only by the calling of the court there.

As to Caxton's, Cakeſtones, or Kakeſtones, there are no traces remaining of the maner houſe. All that hath been learned from ancient tenants, is, that Caxton's is the Leet; and is a piece of land adjoyning to the north ſide of the Churchyard, belonging to Lucking houſe late the eſtate of . . . . Coleman of Burnt-Ely, Eſq;

The maner of Hoſedenes, in the earlieſt times after Gernon, was in the conſiderable family of Hodeng, [mentioned under Wanſted and Goſſeild] which flouriſhed here from about the reign of K. Henry II. to that of K. Henry III. and had all theſe three maners.

Philip de Hoding married a daughter and coheir of Walter de Windſor, living in the reign of K. Henry II. and had part of his Barony (u), for which —— Ralph de Hoſdenge, or Hodeing, moſt probably his ſon, gave the King a fine of 240 marks (w). About the year 1247, he had in Mapletreſted 319 acres of arable, 12 acr. and half of meadow, 20 of paſture, 66 of wood, and 65*s*. 2*d*. rent of aſſize (x). —— Sir Hugh de Hodinge his ſon and heir, held here one knight's fee of Aubrey de Vere firſt Earl of Oxford (y). He had alſo eſtates at Hengeham in Norfolk, Burnham, Wanſted, and Weſt Hamme (z). —— Alice was his daughter and heir [I]. Her huſband, William de Huntercombe, or Undercombe, was a perſon of note in K. Henry the Third's reign. He took for his firſt wife Iſabell, one of the daughters and coheirs of Robert de Muſcamp, by whom he had Sir Walter de Huntercombe his eldeſt ſon and heir (a). By Alice de Hodeng, his ſecond wife, he had —— Thomas his ſon, born in 1258, who ſucceeded to his mother's inheritance. He held this knight's-fee in Great Mapleſted under Richard de Plaiz, a deſcendent of Gernon by Philippa one of the daughters of Richard de Montfichet Baron of Stanſted (b). —— John de Undercombe, who dyed in 1349, held of the Earl of Oxford in Hythingham, by half a fee, a tenement called Hoſedenes, comprehending 1 meſſuage, 40 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, 2 of paſture, 6 of wood, and 5*s*. rent. —— John Huntercombe his ſon ſucceeded him (c). And, at the time of his deceaſe, in 1368, beſides the maners of Kakeſtones and Hoſedenes in Great Mapleſted and Heningham-caſtle, he held 1200 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, and 5 of wood, in great Mapleſted, Heningham Caſtle and Sible, and Halſted. By Margaret his wife he had —— John his ſon (d), who, beſides the above, is recorded in 1383 to have held a tenement called Dynes, of the Earl of Oxford, the Prior of St. John of Jeruſalem, and John Fitz-Ralph, by the ſervice of 6*s*. 8*d*. per ann. —— John was his ſon (e).

We hear no further of this family here [K].

It appears afterwards to have been in Margaret Popham. And in the reign of K. Henry VI. . . . . Lovel, and . . . . Skidmore, or Scudamore, held the ſame knight's fee here, called Hoſedens (f). In the 1ſt of Henry VII. William Skid- more and George Rotheram held theſe lands called Huntercombs alias Hoſdens. Philip Skidmore, who dyed 26 Decemb. 1487, held of John Earl of Oxford, half of the maners of Hoſdene and Dignes, in Great Mapleſted, Hengham Caſtle and Sible, Goſfeild, and Halſted. —— Anne Skydmore his daughter and next heir was aged 30 years (g). In 1496,—William Skidmore of Home-Lacy in Herefordſhire, did homage for theſe lands. As did George Rotheram, in 1501 or 1502, for a moiety of Hoſedenes and Caxtons.

It ſeems to have come afterwards into the noble family of Vere Earls of Oxford. For Edward Earl of Oxford held theſe maners of the Honor of Stanſted Montfichet: And Edward Lord Wyndſor had, in right of Catherine his wife daughter of John de Vere Earl of Oxford, by Dorothy his firſt wife, a moiety or purparty of the maners of Dynes, Hoſdens, and Caxtons, which he ſold 17 Novemb. 1564, for the ſum of 500*l.* to . . . Edmund Felton of Pentlow-hall Eſq; The latter, on the firſt of June 1565, ſold again his moiety of the maners of Dynes, Hoſdens, and Caxtons, to . . . . John Holmeſted of Bumpſted-Helion, Gent. who alſo purchaſed, either 28 Novemb. or 10 Decemb. 1571, the other moiety of John Scudamore Eſq; (h). On the 4th of April 1575, John Holmeſted, or Olmſted, Gent. ſold the maner of Dynes to

William Deane Eſq; (i) and the maners of Hoſdens and Caxtons to . . . William Alliſton: and Peter Palmer, by deed dated 10 December, 1583, confirmed all knights-fees, wards, &c. to Edward ſon of William Alliſton (k). Soon after, this whole eſtate centered in William Deane Eſq; of whom, and his family, we proceed to give a particular account.——They were originally of Lancaſhire. Henry Deane, of Tunnworth in that county, married . . . . daughter of Sir Richard Greeneikers, and had by her his ſon —— John Deane, who took to wife . . . daughter of Roger Nowell of Read in Lancaſhire, and had by her two ſons; John Deane of Tamworth Eſq; that dyed without iſſue; and

William Deane Eſq; the purchaſer of this eſtate. He was at firſt ſervant to Anne Lady Maltravers, who thought fit take him to her bed, and make him her huſband. This rendered him rich, and very conſiderable. For that Lady had an immenſe fortune, being the ſole daughter and heir of Sir John Wentworth of Goſfeild. She had had two huſbands before him; namely, 1. Sir Hugh Rich, ſecond ſon to Lord Chancellor Rich. 2. Henry Fitz-Alan Lord Maltravers, ſon and heir apparent of the great Earl of Arundel. She had no iſſue by any of her huſbands, and dying 5 December 1580, was buried in Goſfeild church under a ſtately monument. After her deceaſe, William Deane took to his ſecond wife Anne daughter of Thomas Egerton of the ancient family of the Egertons of Ryne hill in Staffordire Eſq; widow of . . . Blythe Eſq; clerk of the Council of York, by whom he had three children; John his ſon and heir; Rachel; and Anne. He built here a fine brick houſe, part of which is ſtill ſtanding, and planted a handſome avenue of Elms, moſt of which was blown down in the great Storm in Novemb. 1703. At the time of his deceaſe, 4 Octob. 1585, he was poſſeſſed of this maner and capital meſſuage of Dines, and of Hengewood, holden of the Queen as of her Honor of Clare; and of the maners of Hoſedens and Caxtons holden of Peter Palmer Eſq; (l) [L].——John Deane Eſq; his ſon and heir ſucceeded him. In his youth he was committed to the care of his great Uncle Alexander Nowell Dean of St. Paul's, who uſed to ſpend part of the ſummer at Dynes-hall. He was knighted 11 May 1603 (m), and in 1610 executed the office of High Sheriff of this county (n). He was alſo a Juſtice of Peace, Deputy-Lieutenant, &c. The 27th of Auguſt 1600, he married Anne daughter of Sir Drue Drury of Suffolk, by whom he had, Drue, born 31 Janu. 1606. John 2 Auguſt 1610. Catharine, born 14 Febr. 1601; Anne, 10 Decemb. 1607 [M]; Elizabeth, in 1608; Dorcas, in 1615; Frances; and Mildred. He dyed 17 February 1625 [N], as did his lady 25 May 1633, and were both buried in a Chapel adjoining to the Chancel of this Church, with ſtately monuments. —Drue Deane Eſq; knighted 17 July 1627, ſucceeded his father. He married Lucy [O] ſecond daughter of George Goring Earl of Norwich, by whom he had John, who dyed young; Antony, baptized 1 June 1630; Anne, bapt. 30 Auguſt 1631; Elizabeth, 9 Febr. 1632; Drogo, 9 June 1634; and Robert 6 Auguſt 1635. The lady Lucy their mother was buried in this Church 3 Sept. 1637. And Sir Drue's will was dated 14 Sept. 1638.——Antony, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, became the imprudent poſſeſſor of this eſtate: "Being very much "addicted to the Parliament's cauſe, and pre- "ſuming the ſtructure then raiſed would have "ſtood for ever, he exchanged his fair eſtate "here with Colonel Sparrow, for Hide Park, "which that Colonel had obtained in conſider- "ation of his zeal for the ſame prevailing in- "tereſt. Thus he loſt the ſubſtance for the "ſhadow (o)." This Sparrow was John, ſon of John Sparrow of Geſtingthorp Parſonage Eſq; In truſt for him, Antony Deane paſſed this eſtate, 8 July 1652, to James and Thomas Huxely. And, on the 21ſt of January 1653, Antony Deane [P] and Tho. Huxely, conveyed the premiſſes to the ſaid

Mark Guyon Eſq; ſon of that rich clothier Thomas Guyon of Great Coggeſhall, mentioned above, p. 165. Mark made this the place of his reſidence, and taking down great part of the old houſe rebuilt it in a very handſome manner; but did not live to ſee it finiſhed. He was High Sheriff of this county in 1676, and knighted. By his firſt wife, Elizabeth daughter of . . . . Fancourt, he had his ſon and heir William, baptized 26 July 1670, and Elizabeth baptized 23 Auguſt 1671; of whom the mother dyed in childbed, and was buried in this Church. By his ſecond wife, Hannah daughter of Sir Thomas Abdy Bart. he had a daughter named Rachel.

Sir Mark made his will 10 March 1689, wherein he gives his maners of Dynes, Hoſdens, Caxtons, Mapleſted-hall, Brent-hall, and Juſtices in Finchingfeild, Radwinter-hall, Great Wigborough, Salcot, and Abbeſs-hall, to his ſon William; and, after his deceaſe, to his daughters Elizabeth and Rachel.——William Guyon the ſon paid ingreſs fine in 1690, but dyed without iſſue.

Of the two daughters, Elizabeth, the eldeſt became the firſt wife of Edward Bullock of Falkborne-hall Eſq; but ſhe dyed in child-bed, as well as her child within the month.

Rachel, the other daughter and coheir, was married to Thomas Guyon Eſq; and afterwards became the firſt wife of John Bullock Eſq; younger brother to Edward juſt now mentioned. By her he had Rachel; and John, educated in King's-College in Cambridge, a promiſing young man, who dyed in the 23d year of his age. On the 20th of October 1705, the elder brother Edward conveyed all his intereſt in this eſtate in behalf of his brother John Bullock Eſq; who came and lived at Dynes-hall [Q]. He departed this life in 1740, in the 69th year of his age, and was buried in the Chancel of Falkborn Church. Whereupon his only daughter Rachel became poſſeſſed of this and other great eſtates.

Dynes-hall is about a mile ſouth from the Church.

The maner or meſſuage of BYHAM-HALL.

This name is very ancient, and as early as the reign of K. Henry III. called Bayham, Beyham, and Beytham [R].

One Sewale held it, about 1381, under William de Ufford Earl of Suffolk, as half a knight's-fee, and it was then placed under the pariſh of Geſtingthorp (p).

Robert Sexton of Lavenham had part of it in 1418 (q), and ——Thomas Sexten paid ingreſs fine for Byam-hall maner in 1576. His widow Jane did the ſame, the year following, and was married to George Goulding Gent. —— Mary, and Suſan, daughters and coheirs of Thomas Sexten, paid ingreſs fine by their guardian in 1580. Mary was married to John Hilton of Burton in Weſtmoreland Gent. and Suſan to George Alingeby. Suſan dying without iſſue about 1594, her ſhare fell to Hilton and his wife.——This eſtate was then 240 acres, more or leſs.

It came next into the Coo, or Coe family of Geſtingthorp, [ſee an account of it under that pariſh] being purchaſed of John Hilton by George Coe. He dyed 23 Novemb. 1625, poſſeſſed of this capital meſſuage and farm called Byam-hall, holden of the maner of Overhall in Geſtingthorp;—lands and tenements called Buckmongers, . . . of the maner of Ballingdon-fee; a wood called Lepingwell . . . of Little Mapleſted maner: He held alſo the maner of Shardlowes in Goſfeild, . . . of the maner of Abell's; and other lands in Halſted (r). — Iſaac Coo his ſon and heir was then aged 14 years. He was buried in this Church 30 November 1649. —— George Coe his ſon ſucceded.

From the Coes it paſſed to the Robinſon family, in which it ſtill continues.

WALASSES, or WALEIS's, a farm of ſome note here, above a mile ſouth-weſt from the Church, took that ancient name from the family of Le Waleis, owners of it about the reign of K. Henry III.

Richard le Waleys was poſſeſſed of it, but dyed in a voyage to the Holy Land, and —— John his brother ſucceeded (s).

In the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth's reign it belonged to William Harvie: who ſold it to Edmund Harrington of Great Yeldham, about the year 1578. This perſon was deſcended from a younger branch of the noble family of Harrington Barons of Exton in the county of Rutland. He gave this eſtate 27 June 1579 to his ſon——William, who paid ingreſs fine the ſame year (t). And fixing here, had ſeveral children; namely James; Agnes, baptized 8 July 1580; William, 8 July 1582; Elizabeth, 31 May 1583. ——James, the eldeſt ſon, married Margery — daughter and heir of John Smith of Bocking, Clerk, 19 Decemb. 1625. He dyed 25 Auguſt 1679 aged 85; and ſhe 17 March 1683 aged 82, after they had lived 54 years in happy wedlock; and are interred under marble ſtones in the Chancel of this Church (u). —— William, the ſecond ſon, purchaſed this eſtate of his father, [Q] This John Bullock Eſq; of Dynes hall, was educated at Peter-houſe in Cambridge, and the Inner-Temple, London; choſen one of the Burgeſſes in Parliament for Malden in 1700, which Honor he always afterwards avoided. He ſerved long his country as a Juſtice of Peace, and was Deputy to two ſucceſſive Lord Lieutenants. He married to his ſecond wife Hannah-Maria one of the daughters and coheireſſes of Samuel Keck Eſq; one of the Maſters in Chancery, who ſurvived him. In the latter part of his life, he went and lived at Clapham in Surrey, where he dyed. From his Epitaph.

and paid ingreſs fine in 1625 (w). He married, 4 Janu. 1614, Elizabeth Tillot of Rougham in Suffolk, and had by her, Elizabeth born 2 Feb. 1620; William, 25 Decemb. 1623; Mary and James, twins, 16 Novemb. 1627; Anne 8 Sept. 1629; Jeremiah, 28 Octob. 1631; Andrew, 15 Aug. 1633; Dorcas, 6 Janu. 1635 (x). Andrew was ſteward to the Lord William Grey at Goſfeild, and raiſed a conſiderable eſtate, which he left to his ſon and heir Andrew.——William, the eldeſt ſon, outlived the reſt of the family. He made his will 11 May 1699, wherein he bequeathed this eſtate to his nephew —— Andrew Harrington of Biggs in Goſfeild Eſq; who ſold it 23 Aug. 1712, to about half a mile north from the Church. Here are two meſſuages of this name; Old Chelmeſhoo-houſe, belonging to the late Mr. Trott of Great Saling; and New Chelmeſhoo-houſe, long the ſeat of the Tindals. It either gave name to, or derived that name from, a family living here in Edward the Third's reign [T].

Henry Summers of Sible-Hedingham Eſq; [ſee under that pariſh.] [S] It belongs now to one of Mr. Summers's daughters, widow of the Rev. Tho. Smythies.

CHELMESHOO-HOUSE,

The ancient family of Tindale was originally of Northumberland, where Adam de Tyndale, Baron of Langely caſtle, and Lord of the Maner of South Tyndale, lived under K. John and Henry III. (y). By Philippa his daughter and heir the Barony deſcended to Sir Nicolas Bolteby. . . . A younger branch of this family ſettled at Tanſover in Northamptonſhire, where— Robert Tyndal lived in the reign of K. Edward I. and had his ſon —— Robert, living in 1293, father of —— William, who married Elizabeth couſin and heir of Sir Henry Dene of Dene in Northamptonſhire; and had by her his ſon and heir— John Tyndale lord of Tanſover, and Dene in right of his mother. He was High-ſheriff of Northamptonſhire in 1391, and by his wife Catharine Zouch had —— Sir William Tyndale of Dene, who married Helen or Alan daughter of Sir Simon Bigod, alias Felbrig, of Norfolk, a younger branch of the great Bigod family Earls of Norfolk, heireſs to her brother Sir Thomas Felbrig, who dyed without iſſue. This Lady's mother was Margaret, daughter and heir of Semonitius Duke of Sileſia, and Techinia adjoining to Bohemia, by Elizabeth ſiſter to Charles IV. Emperor of Germany and King of Bohemia, deſcended from the houſe of Luxemburg. Margaret came into England, with Anne daughter of Wenceſlaus Emperor of Germany wife of K. Richard II. as one of her maids of honor; and being her near kinſwoman, was by her means married to Sir Simon Bigod. —— Thomas Tyndal Eſq; ſon and heir of Sir William, married Margaret daughter of Sir William Yelverton one of the Juſtices of the King's-Bench, and had by her William; and two daughters, Anne married to Henry St. Germain; and Jane to John Bleverhaſſet. —— Sir William, the ſon, married Mary daughter and heir of Oſbert Mundeford, or Montford, of Hockwold in Norfolk Eſq; and in her right became coheir with John Earl of Oxford unto the Lord Scales: The ſaid Lord Scales, and Mundeford, and Poynings, having been heirs to Fulk de Beaufen lord of Hockwold and Milton. Sir William Tyndal, upon his marriage, removed to Hockwold; and kept his firſt court there in 1466. He dyed 22 Febru. 1496, and was ſucceeded by his ſon —— John, created Knight of the Bath, at the coronation of Queen Anne Boleyn, 30 May 1533 (z). He dyed in 1539. By his wife Amphillis, or Amphelicia, daughter of Sir Humfrey Conyngſby, one of the Juſtices of the King's-Bench, he had Thomas; William; and 5 daughters.—Sir Thomas Tyndal, the eldeſt ſon, of Hockwold and Great Mapleſted, was High-ſheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk in 1561 (a). By his firſt wife, Anne daughter of Sir William Paſton, he had William his eldeſt ſon and heir ſeated at Hockwold. By his ſecond wife, Anne daughter of Sir Henry Fermer of Baſham in Norfolk [V], he had, John; Francis, who died in 1633 a batchelor; Henry; and Humfrey: and four daughters, Suſan, married to James Whitall, and then to Thomas Fiſher of London; Urſula to . . . . Cory of Soame; Elizabeth to . . . . Page; and Anne, or Winefred, to William Calthorp of Ingham Eſq; Humfrey, the 4th ſon, was Doctor in Divinity, Maſter of Queen's-college in Cambridge, and Dean of Ely. He married into the Ruſſel family of Chippenham, and had ſeveral ſons that dyed without iſſue. Dr. T. Fuller relates an improbable tradition concerning him, viz. "That in the reign "of Queen Elizabeth he was proffered by a Pro-"teſtant party in Bohemia to be made King "thereof, which he refuſed, alledging, That he "had rather be Queen Elizabeth's ſubject than "a foreign Prince (b) [W]." —John, the eldeſt ſon by the ſecond wife, had Mapleſted. Being bred up to the civil law he took the Degree of Doctor in that faculty, and was alſo of Lincoln's-Inn, and became one of the Maſters in Chancery. On the 23d of July 1603 he received the honor of Knighthood (c). He married Anne daughter of Thomas Egerton, widow of William Deane Eſq; as above mentioned. That marriage was the occaſion of his coming into this county: for,

On the 12th of Novemb. 1616, he was barbarouſly murdered by John Bertram Gent. for giving judgment in a cauſe againſt the ſaid Bertram; who ſhot him in the back juſt as he was entering his chamber in Lincoln's-inn; ſo that he dyed on the ſpot. But the aſſaſſin became ſhortly after his own executioner, to prevent the hand of juſtice [X]. This honeſt gentleman dyed univerſally lamented, being a perſon of ſingular ſkill in his profeſſion, of great ſagacity, integrity, and honor. He had theſe ſeveral children, Deane; Arthur, buried in this Church 3 Octob. 1633. Roger: Sarah, that dyed an infant; and Margaret, wife of John Winthrop of Groton, in Suffolk, Eſq; [Y]——Deane, the eldeſt ſon, ſucceeded his father; and was buried in this Church 25 April 1678, aged 92. He married Anne, daughter and heir of Robert Weſton of Preſted-hall Eſq; [See above, p. 171.] By her he had, Deane, buried 23 March 1633; Francis that dyed young; John; Drue, a Hamborough merchant: Anne, married, 26 Sept. 1639, to Thomas Bowater, of Whitley in Warwickſhire, and of the Middle Temple, London; and Elizabeth, that dyed 28 March 1710, without iſſue.——John, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, ſucceeded his father. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Antony Deane of Dynes-hall Eſq; by whom he had —— Elizabeth his only daughter, [Z], that brought this eſtate in marriage to her huſband Jaſper Blythman of the Middle Temple Eſq; Of this family there is an exact Pedigree printed in Mr. Thoreſby's Topography of the town and pariſh of Leedes, pag. 7.

The Blythman family has flouriſhed in Yorkſhire for ſeveral generations. The firſt of the name was Bernard Blythman, living about the year 1175. His ſucceſſors were, Thomas; Richard; Henry; Robert; four of the name of Thomas, one after another; William, who purchaſed 23 April 1540, of K. Henry VIII. for the Sum of 892*l* the maner of Burton, alias Monks Bretton in Yorkſhire; and New Lathes—which became the family ſeat; alſo the ſite of the Preachers Friers in York. He dyed in 1543. His ſucceſſors were, William; Jaſper, who had five children, viz. Jaſper, John, William, Mary, and Elizabeth. The two firſt ſons were married, but both dying without iſſue, the eſtate came to the third, viz. —— William: He dyed in 1659. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Stanhope Knt. By her her he had five ſons; and four daughters; Foliamb; William, who both married but left no children; Jaſper; Ferdinando, that dyed young; and Michael. The daughters were, Mary wife of Matthew Biggs Gent. Elizabeth of Philip Lutton, Gent. Rachel; and Evereld. —Jaſper, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, was Recorder of Leeds, and dyed 11 Decemb. 1707. He married Catharine daughter of Richard Mountney Eſq; by whom he had Jaſper; William, killed at ſea in 1696; Richard, Fellow of King's College in Cambridge, who dyed in 1710; Catharine, married to Francis ſon of Francis . . . Tancred of Arden Eſq; and Elizabeth, wife of Henry Adam, Town-clerk of Leeds. —Jaſper Blythman Eſq; the eldeſt ſon and heir married, as is above ſaid, Elizabeth Tindal. He dyed 20 March 1737-8, leaving his only daughter and heir [A].

Lucy, who in 1737 became the wife of Charles King, Eſq; ſon to the ingenious William King LL. D. Principal of St. Mary-hall in Oxford. He entered afterwards into Holy Orders: but both He and She are dead, and have left two Daughters coheirs.

Hoppoles is another eſtate in this pariſh, belonging to Thomas Sewell jun. Eſq;

Here was of old an Almſhouſe of two tenements. William Bendloes Eſq; Serjeant at law, gave, in 1574, to the poor dwelling therein ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly for ever, payable out of certain lands and tenements in Bocking.

William Deane Eſq; gave another houſe of two tenements to this pariſh, for the uſe of the poor.

The Lady Mary Sanders, widow of Colonel Sparrow, bequeathed by her will, dated 18 Feb. 1668, Twenty pounds to this pariſh, the profits or improvements of which were to be yearly paid to the Vicar, upon condition that he ſhould read divine ſervice and preach a ſermon upon mortality on Aſhwedneſday every year; for which ſix acres of meadow were ſettled by deed, 19 April 1706, in the hands of truſtees for the payment of Twenty ſhillings yearly for ever.

This Pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 936*l*.

The Church, dedicated to St. Giles, conſiſts of a body with a ſouth iſle, and a Chancel of one pace, the Eaſt end of which is round. Both Church and Chancel are tyled. A ſquare Tower at the weſt end contains 3 Bells.

This Church was of old a Rectory, and appendent to the maner. About the reign of K. Henry III. or before, it was given to the Abbey of Stratford Langthorn in this county; to whom the Rectory or great Tithes, were appropriated, and a Vicarage here ordained. As that Abbey was founded by William Montfichet, a deſcendent of Robert Gernon, in 1135, whoſe poſterity

Hugh de Hodding demiſed the Advowſon of this Church, with the maner, to Robert Becke and Ida his wife, for the term of the ſaid Ida's life; remainder to the ſaid Hugh or his heirs. Robert and Ida his wife accordingly preſented Walter Hoding, and after him Hugh de Hoding. (d). Then the Abbey and Convent came into poſſeſſion, which they kept [notwithſtanding a claim put in by Thomas de Huntercomb in 1285] and preſented to the Church till their diſſolution. It then came into the hands of their leſſees, the Cokerells; of W. Harrington of Wallaſſes; and at laſt of the owners of Chelmeſhoo-houſe, in whom it continues to this time (e).

The Abbot and Convent had granted, 3 Feb. 1537, a ſixty years leaſe of this Rectory, and Advowſon of the Vicarage; under the rent of 3*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.* to Clement Cokerell, and the family preſented to the latter till 1574 (f).

Upon the general Suppreſſion of Monaſteries, K. Henry VIII. granted, 23 Novemb. 1546, the reverſion of the premiſſes; for it could be nothing more; to Auguſtine Porter, and others: who obtained licenſe, 4 Decem. following, to alienate them to Thomas Golding: And, 19 April 1567, Sir Thomas Golding had leave to ſell them to Richard Grene; by whom they were preſently conveyed to John Holmeſted, and others (g).— —— Edmund Felton, who dyed 16 Septemb. 1570, held this Rectory and Advowſon of the Vicarage. is North-eaſt of the other.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign this belonged to Orim, a freeman; and, at the time of the general ſurvey, was holden by John ſon of Waleram, mentioned under Fyfield, and Oſmund was his under-tenant [B].

About the reign of K. Henry I. or Stephen, this place was veſted in Robert Doiſnel. His daughter ——Juliana, a very great heireſs [C], was married to William ſon of Audelin, Aldelin, or Fitz-Aldelm de Burgo, Sewer, Steward, or Mareſchal to K. Henry II. one of the great Offices in the King's court, which was hereditary (i). Under that King he was conſtituted Governor of Ireland in 1177 [D], and was alſo Governor of Wexford (k). Hubert de Burgh the great Earl of Kent, and Chief Juſtice of England, was deſcended from him (l).

The ſaid Juliana, with her huſband's conſent, gave this whole pariſh, and all its appertenances, to the Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem [E]. Her huſband confirmed this donation in 1186, and ſo did K. John, among other Benefactions to that houſe. K. Henry III. granted them free warren in this lordſhip by the name of Mapelderſtede, with ſeveral others (m).

Upon receiving this gift, the Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem erected a Houſe here called the maner of Le Hoſpital, becauſe belonging to thoſe Knights called Hoſpitallers, or of the Hoſpital of St. John: but now Mapleſted-hall, which is a very ancient edifice, as appears from the chimney belonging to the parlor, and the ſtair-caſe.

This Houſe became a Præceptory, or nurſery, to the Knights Templars; for an explanation of which word ſee above, p. 113 [F].

A Preceptory being here eſtabliſhed, ſoon increaſed in wealth, and, according to the miſtaken devotion of thoſe times, had within the ſpace of two centuries or more, above ſeven hundred benefactors of both ſexes, and of all degrees and conditions, not only in this but other counties. Among whom were Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, Sir John Dyn and Margaret his wife of Dynes-hall, Hugh Hoding, William Joye a very munificent benefactor, and Sir Simon de Odewell, who gave them a conſiderable eſtate in Odewell and Geſtingthorp (n).

Thus the Knights Templars and Hoſpitallers continued poſſeſſed of Little Mapleſted, till by act of parliament in 1540, all their Revenues were veſted in the Crown. The 28th of April 1541 K. Hen. VIII. granted this Præceptory, and the maners of Temple-Sutton and Chawreth, to

George Harper Eſq; and his heirs, to hold in ca. by Knight's ſervice (o). But the ſame year this George, by licenſe, alienated Little Mapleſted maner, with appertenances, to

John Wiſeman Eſq; one of the Auditors of the King's revenue; ſeated at Great Canfeild, where a more particular account is given of the family. He married Agnes daughter of Philip Joſcelyn of that pariſh, Gent. to whom by his will dated 12 Auguſt 1558, he left this eſtate for life, remainder to his right heirs. By his ſaid wife he had four ſons and ſix daughters, [as may be ſeen under Great Canfeild] and dying 17 Auguſt 1558, was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon ——John Wiſeman Eſq; He married Margery daughter of Sir William Waldgrave of Smallbridge, by whom he had 6 ſons and two daughters. By indenture dated 2 Janu. 1598, between him and his fourth ſon and then heir apparent Thomas, of the one part, and Henry Maynard and Walter Mildmay Eſquires of the other part, the uſes of a fine are declared as follows: To the ſaid John Wiſeman for life, remainder to Edmund his fifth ſon and heirs male; remainder to Thomas and his heirs male; remainder to the heirs of the body of the ſaid Edmund; remainder to John's right heirs. This John the father dyed 17 October 1602 (p).——Edmund, his then youngeſt living ſon, who ſucceeded him in this eſtate was a ſoldier in the Low Countries, and a follower of the fortunes of Robert Devereux Earl of Eſſex; who for preſuming too much upon his miſtreſs Qu. Elizabeth's favour, and his imprudent inſurrection in London, was beheaded 25 Feb. 1601. His untimely death, occaſioned partly by a prevalent faction at court, and partly by our Edmund's negligence in not delivering in time a letter from Him to the Queen (q), ſo grievouſly affected him; that he [Ed. Wiſeman] ſolemnly vowed never to go into a bed any more as long as he lived. And he was as good as his word: for he cauſed a large tree to be cut out ſomething in the ſhape of a bed and bolſter, on which he lay. He kept a court here 21 Octob. 1616, and another court 29 July 1627, and departing this life about 1646, was interred at Great Canfield. On the 11th day of January 1613, he had ſettled by fine and recovery the maner of Mapleſted, and one meſſuage and 60 acres of land, on himſelf for life, remainder to his next elder brother Thomas. But this Thomas dyed 22 May 1624, having had by his wife Alice Myles 6 ſons and 3 daughters. Robert, the eldeſt, dyed 21 April, 1628, holding, as the Inquiſition ſays (r), this maner of Little Mapleſted. But it could be only the reverſion. His next brother and heir—William Wiſeman Eſq; was created a Baronet 29 Auguſt 1628. By indenture dated 24 Novemb. 1635, his uncle Edmund releaſes to him ſeveral proviſoes, &c. and grants and conveys to him, and his heirs, the reverſion of this maner. Sir William being engaged in the ſervice of K. Charles I. dyed at Oxford in July 1643. By his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Henry Capel Knt. ſon and heir of Sir Arthur Capel, he left his only ſon ——Sir William Wiſeman, born in 1630, who had two wives, 1. Anne youngeſt daughter of Sir John Preſcot of Hoxne in Suffolk, that left no iſſue. 2. Arabella daughter of Sir Thomas Hewitt of Piſhobury in Hertfordſhire, Knt. that brought him a numerous off-ſpring of 13 children. He dyed 14 January 1684; but before his deceaſe, viz. 26 April 1682, he had ſold this eſtate for the ſum of 4000 l. to

Sir Mark Guyon Knt. mentioned above under Great Coggeſhall, p. 165, and Great Mapleſted, p. 280. By will he ſettles this eſtate, with others, on his only ſon——William, and his heirs male; and for want of ſuch, remainder to his two daughters, Elizabeth and Rachel. William dying without iſſue,

Elizabeth, the eldeſt daughter, brought this eſtate in marriage to Edward Bullock Eſq; of Falkborne-hall, who kept his firſt court here 3 Janu. 1695. He dyed 6 Decemb. 1705. But before that, namely on the 24th of October 1705, he had ſold this eſtate to

Mr. Joſeph Davis of London, mercer; ſon of John Davis, a long time Burgeſs and chief Magiſtrate of Chipping-Norton in Oxfordſhire, where Joſeph the ſon was born in Auguſt 1627. He married firſt, about 1655, Elizabeth, ſiſter to Stephen Wright of Daventry in Northamptonſhire, Gent. by whom he had Joſeph, and three other children that dyed young. His ſecond wife was Anne Saunders, and by her he had a ſon and a daughter that lived but a very little while. He himſelf dyed 16 Febr. 1706-7, in the 79th year of his age, and was interred in his own burying place, known by the name of the Seventh-day burying ground, in Mill-yard, Goodman'sfields, London; where an altar-tomb is erected over his grave.——Joſeph his ſon ſucceeded him. And it is now in —— Davis Eſq; [G].

[F] The governors of this Præceptory were promiſcuouſly ſtyled Præceptores, & Magiſtri. For inſtance, Walterus Manlonell, Præceptor domus Hoſpitalis S. Johannis Jeruſalem in Anglia apud Mapeltreſted . . . Adam de Harcham, Magiſter . . . Willielm' de Cheleſham, preceptor 1275. . . Robertus de Leiceſter, Magiſter. . . . Ricardus Wheſthale, preceptor 1283 and 1285. . . . MS. relating to Mapleſted-hall.

To this preceptory belonged a Farrye Clark, whoſe buſineſs it was to officiate in divine things. He had a penſion payable out of ſeveral lands and tenements in divers pariſhes, particularly out of the Vicarage of Burnham, as appears by this odd memorandum. "The Vicar of Bornam "payeth by yere to the Farrye Clarke 40s. or elſe the "Farrye Clark may goe to Down-mow Priory and take the "challys, or the maſſe book, or any other ornament for his "dewtie." Old Rental of the maner of Little Mapleſted.

Starch-houſe belongs to Mr. John Morley.

Thomas Springe, who dyed 13 June 1523, held of the Prior of St. John's of Jeruſalem, 4 meſſuages, 100 acres of arable, 40 acres of paſture, and 10 of wood, in Great and Little Mapleſted, Geſthorpe, Wickham St. Paul, and Hennye, as of the maner of Little Mapleſted (s). But we cannot fix whoſe eſtate it is now.

Walſhes, a farm of about 30 l. a year, of which the houſe and moſt of the land lyeth in Little Mapleſted, belongs to a free ſchool at Sudbury.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 408 l. 10*s.*

Here was a Church at the time of Juliana's donation of this Pariſh to the Poor of the Hoſpital of St. John of Jeruſalem: which was part of her grant, and confirmed to them by her huſband 1 April 1186 (t). But it was not the ſame edifice as is now ſtanding; for the preſent Church is built after the model of the Temple Church in London, and of the Holy Sepulchre at Jeruſalem, and therefore moſt probably was built by the Knights Templars, after the eſtate came into their hands. It is remarkable, that the Porch at the weſt end of the Church has three doors in it, and there is no entrance into the body of the Church but this way. Tradition ſays, that this Church had the privilege of Sanctuary. 'Tis dedicated to St. John the Baptiſt.

As the Knights Templars invaded all the Tithes wherever they had to do, ſo they did here, and made this a Donative, or perpetual Curacy; as it ſtill continues, with a ſmall ſtipend [H].

HEDINGHAM.

The two contiguous Pariſhes of Hedingham-Sibil, and Caſtle-Hedingham, ſtand in one of the beſt parts of this Hundred; not flat, but varied with little eminences and dales, well watered with refreſhing rills and purling ſtreams, which make the paſtures here excellent; and undoubtedly occaſioned their denomination of Hedingham: which in Saxon ſignifies, the Habitation, or Village, at the Head meadow or paſture.

In records the name is written theſe other different ways, Haingheham, Heham, Hengham, Heinkeham, Heningeham, Hythingham, Ithingham: It is vulgarly ſtyled Henningham.

There appears no diſtinction of theſe two Pariſhes in Domeſday-book; nor in the account of the knights fees and ſcutages of this county in the reigns of K. Henry II. Richard I. or K. John. But about the beginning of the reign of K. Henry III. it frequently occurs both in publick records and private evidences.

The chief lordſhips of theſe two Pariſhes were in different hands before, and at the time of, the general ſurvey. And the yearly value of Caſtle Hedingham by far exceeded the other: tho' Sibil Hedingham as now bounded exceeds the other in number of acres near two thirds, and in the yearly value about half.

12. HEDINGHAM-SIBIL.

From what woman named Sibil this pariſh had its diſtinguiſhing appellation, is unknown. 'Tis otherwiſe written Sibille, Sybile, Sihill, Sively, Sevil.——A conſiderable part of it hath from time immemorial belonged to the Honor of Caſtle Hedingham, as appears from the Inquiſitions poſt mortem, and other authorities.

In this pariſh are the following ſeveral Maners, or Lordſhips. 1. Prayers, alias Boure-hall. 2. Grays, or Greys. 3. Graſſalls. 4 Blois. 5. Priors, or Prayours, Glaſcocks. 6. Hawkwoods.

1. Prayers, Preyers, alias Boure-hall.

The manſion-houſe ſtands a little way northweſt from the Church.

This is the chief maner in this pariſh, and frequently called by way of eminence the maner of Hengham-Sible: to which was appendent the Advowſon of the Church. It was one of the ſix lordſhips holden in this county, at the time of the general ſurvey, by Roger Bigot, mentioned particularly under Pebmarſh, p. 260. Before that, it had been the property of ſeventeen Freemen [I].

Adeliza, ſecond daughter of Roger Bigot Earl of Norfolk, brought this lordſhip in marriage, in or about the reign of K. John, to Alberic de Vere, the ſecond Earl of Oxford (u); and it continued part of the poſſeſſions of that family here; which in 1360 were deſcribed, to be one knight's fee, two parts of a knight's fee, a quarter of another, and the third part of another (w). It remained in that family till the laſt century (x).

Under them it was holden, or the ſite of it at leaſt, as early as the reign of K. Henry III. by the ancient knightly family de Prieres, Preyers, or Prayers: from whom it took the name of Prayers [K]. —— Robert de Preyers [L] had a ſon — Sir Thomas de Preyers, who married Anne daughter and heir of Hugh de Eſſex junior, deſcended from Suein de Eſſex baron of Raleigh; and had by her his only daughter,

Margaret, wife of Robert de Bourchier Lord Chancellor of England in K. Edward the Third's reign. In which noble family of Bourchier Earls of Eſſex, it continued till their expiration in the reign of K. Henry VIII. [M]. [See above under Stanſted-hall in Halſted, p. 253.]

Edward de Vere, Earl of Oxford, upon his marriage with his ſecond wife Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Trentham of Roueeſter in Staffordſhire Eſq; ſettled this eſtate upon her, and her iſſue in tail male; remainder to her brother Francis Trentham Eſq; and his heirs for ever. Henry her ſon dying without iſſue in 1625, and his widow, who was jointur'd in it, after 1654, the maner of Prayers, &c. in purſuance of the intail aforeſaid deſcended to

Francis Trentham Eſq;—Elizabeth his daughter, or grandaughter, brought this eſtate in marriage to

Bryan Cockaine, Viſcount Cullen of Ireland. On the 2d of April 1713, being his widow and dowager, ſhe ſold Prayers, Boure-hall, Grays, and Peppers, to

Robert, William and Samuel Aſhurſt, [Prayers and Boure-hall belong now to Joſeph Kirk, Eſq;

BOURE-HALL is an appendix to this maner. Sometimes 'tis called in ancient records a maner, as if it was diſtinct and independent; at other times 'tis ſaid to be a member of Preyers, and was holden by the Earls of Oxford as part of that Earldom (y). The houſe ſtood at ſome diſtance from Preyers, but there are no traces of it remaining; ſome fields that retain the name ſeem to point at the place where it ſtood.

As Preyers & Boure-hall were holden, at the time of the general ſurvey, by the Bigot family, from whom ſprung the Earls of Norfolk and the Earls Marſhall: ſo, in after ages, they depended upon the Office of Earl Marſhall. For Thomas de Vere Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1371, is ſaid to hold the maner of Hengham Sible of the Earl Marſhall by knight's ſervice. And in the ſame manner, but only in ſocage, were Preyers and Greys afterwards holden by Richard Earl of Oxford (z).

2. GRAYS, or Greys took that name from its owner Sir Thomas Grey, whom we ſhall preſently mention.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign it belonged to Godwin a freeman, but at the time of the general ſurvey was holden by Roger de Ramis, and his under-tenant Garenger [N].

Of this Roger de Ramis, there is ſome account under Meſſing, p. 175. but a fuller one will be given of him and his family under Raine, the place of his reſidence, and the head of his Barony.——Robert de Raines, a deſcendent of Roger, held this lordſhip among others as part of his barony; but complain'd, that one Simon de Cantilupe detain'd it from him (a). In this family it continued till the reign of K. Henry III. when——Richard de Reines dying left three daughters coheirs; Alice; Amice; and Joane (b). From ſome of them this maner deſcended to Sir Thomas Grey, who dyed in 1321 or 1322, and held with his wife Alice, as of her inheritance, one meſſuage, 80 acres of arable, 1 acre of meadow, 2 acres of paſture, 20 of wood, and 5*s*. yearly rent in this pariſh, of the Earl of Oxford, as of his maner of Hengham Sible, by the ſervice of half a knight's fee (c). This deſcription exactly agrees with the preſent contents of this maner. It was much larger formerly, as appears from the ſurvey in Domeſday-book; and from this circumſtance, that Peppers, a conſiderable farm on Fory-green towards Wetherſfield now alienated from it, was part of its demeſne lands. Sir Thomas Grey had alſo the maner of Little Heny (d). How long theſe eſtates continued in his family I cannot find.

Grays centered afterwards in the neighbouring Earls of Oxford; but was taken from them, with the reſt of their great eſtates, for their adherence to the Houſe of Lancaſter, and given to Richard Duke of York. He granted this maner 26 March 1484, to Alexander Quadring for life (e); who had but a ſhort enjoyment of it: For after the defeat and death of that Uſurper, the noble family of Veres recovered their eſtates again; and this continued in them till Edward Earl of Oxford ſold it, and Peppers, 10 February 1586, to George Finch of this pariſh, yeoman. It belongs now to Mrs. Eliz. Coppin, widow.

3. GRASSALS, alias Graveſhalles took that appellation from its ancient owners ſurnamed de Graveſhall, who appear to have been poſſeſſed of it from the reign of K. Henry II. to the 8th of K. Henry IV. 1407 (f) [O]. It was holden of the Honor of Caſtle Hedingham. Godfrey Groſvaſſal held it ſo under Aubrey de Vere the firſt Earl of Oxford (g). And ſo did Sir Adam de Graveſhall 35 Henry III. (h). And John Graveſale, the laſt of that name in 8 Hen. IV. (i).

Thomas Rolfe of Goſfeild, had it about the reign of Henry V. And the next owner,

William Greene, Eſq; got it by his marriage with Margaret daughter and heir of William Bateman of Little Samford Eſq; who moſt probably was heireſs of the Graveſhall family. William Greene ſettled at Little Samford, [where a particular account is given of him and his poſterity.] He dyed 11 Janu. 1488 (k), and his wife Margaret 31 May 1494; poſſeſſed of the maner of Blois (l), and undoubtedly of Graſſalls, though not expreſsly mentioned, for they went together.—Sir John Greene ſucceeded his father; and departed this life in 1530. His ſon——Sir Edward, who dyed 13 June 1554, held the maners of Graſſals and Bloys of the Earl of Oxford as of his caſtle of Henningham (m).—Rooke Greene, his ſon and ſucceſſor, held a court here, and dyed 9 April 1602, poſſeſſed of the ſaid two maners (n).——William his ſon kept his firſt court here the ſame year: and dying 11 July 1621, was ſucceeded by his grandſon —— Edward, [ſon of his ſon John], aged 17 years (o). He was created a Baronet 26 July 1660. But fooliſhly ſpending his eſtates, Graſſals and Blois came afterwards into the hands of

Captain Wilmer of York: and his daughter was married to William Gorſup, who in 1747, ſold them to

Richard Salway of Woodford Eſq;

4. BLOIS, or BLOYS.

This manner belonged of old to the Veres Earls of Oxford, and was part of their Honor of Hedingham-caſtle. For Aubrey Earl of Oxford, ſon of Aubrey the founder of Colne Priory, confirmed to the Monks there, among the reſt of his father's donations; in Haingham the third part of the Tithe of the land of William Groſvaſſal, and of the land of Robert Balcus: (p) which laſt name was changed afterwards into Bloys. And from that family the maner of Bloyes in Bumſted Steeple took alſo its name.—Ernald le Bloy, one of Aubrey de Vere's knights, held three knights fees of the Honor of Caſtle Hedingham in the reign of K. Henry II.——William le Bloy, held ſome of them in the 35, and 39 of Henry III. and 17 of Edw. I. (q), and Adam Bloy [P] and William Baud were Sheriffs of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1334 (r).

Bartholomew Lord Burgherſh ſenior, obtained, in 1342, free-warren in all his demeſne lands in this pariſh (s). And he held here, at the time of his deceaſe in 1355, a tenement called Bloys, containing a capital meſſuage, 200 acres of arable, 6 acres of meadow, 12 of paſture, 20 of wood, a wind-mill, and 60*s*. rent of aſſiſe, of John Earl of Oxford, ——Bartholomew was his ſon (t). But it is a queſtion whether he ſucceeded him in this eſtate. For it is ſuppoſed to be the three quarters of a fee, which John de Gildeſburgh held, anno 1371, in Hengham-Sible, and Toppesfeild (u).

It paſſed afterwards, as the laſt, from the Greene family to Richard Salway, Eſq;

The manſion houſe is about a mile from the Church.

5. PRYORS, or PRAYOURS, alias Glaſcocks.

This maner was part of the Lordſhip of Prayers, from whence it borrowed the name: and that of Glaſcocks from Edward Glaſcock, of this pariſh, Gent. to whom Edward de Vere Earl of Oxford ſold it 20 May 1582. After that purchaſe a long ſuit in Chancery commenced between the ſaid Glaſcock and ſeveral cuſtomary tenants of this maner, about the right, title, and intereſt of the meſſuages and lands holden of it; which was at length determined by the arbitration of Sir John Petre, Antony Maxey, Richard Riche Eſquires, and others, 4 Febr. 1583. And it was agreed by thoſe arbitrators, That Edward Glaſcock ſhould, the 14th of March next enſuing, keep a Court-Baron; that the name and title of the ſaid Court ſhould from thenceforth for ever be called Pryors Glaſcock; and the houſe where this court was to be kept to have the ſame name. He married Mary, daughter and ſole heireſs of Sir Robert Catlyn, widow of Sir John Spencer, by whom he had his ſon and heir—— John, then aged 28 years.

In 1634, this eſtate belonged to Robert Harrington. From him, or his ſon, it came to

Thomas Jegon of this pariſh, Gent, who dyed 10 March 1669-70, and by his will, dated the 19th of October before, gave it to his ſon——

John Jegon, who was a Clergyman.

The preſent owner of it is Mr. John Tweed, Apothecary.

6. Hawkwoods.

The manſion houſe ſtands on the weſt ſide of Sible Heningham-ſtreet.

This lordſhip takes its name from the famous Sir John Hawkwood, who held it about the reign of K. Edward III. of the Earl of Oxford as of his Honor of Caſtle-Hedingham [Q]. We ſhall preſently give a particular account of that extraordinary perſon: and ſhall only obſerve here—that he dyed in 1394. His ſon——Sir John Hawkwood, held it after him.

The next poſſeſſor was Thomas Rolf of Goſfeild Eſq; Serjeant at Law to K. Henry VI. (y). He dyed in June 1440. [See under Goſfeild.] By Anne his ſecond wife, whom I take to have deſcended from Sir John Hawkwood junior, he had his daughter

Editha, a great heireſs. She was twice married; firſt to John Helion of Bumſted-Helion, who had by her two daughters; Iſabell wife of Humfrey Tyrell of Warley Eſq; [R] and Philippa. He dyed in 1449 or 1450, poſſeſſed in Editha's right of this maner, called Hawkewode in Potterestret in Hengham Sible, and ſeveral other adjoining pariſhes, holden of Henry Viſcount Bourgcher; and deſcribed as a meſſuage, 3 toſts, 100 acres of arable, 28 of meadow, 80 of paſture, 2 of wood, 26*s.* 8*d.* rent, and the advowſon of Hawkewodes Chauntry, and Horuntes mill, or New mill (z). Editha took to her ſecond huſband John Greene of Wydington, an eminent lawyer, anceſtor of the Greenes of Graſſalls and Blois; who dyed 1 May 1473, leaving two daughters and coheirs; Margery, married afterwards to Sir Henry Tey; and Agnes to Sir William Finderne. Their mother Editha dyed 1 June 1498 (a). Upon the diviſion of the eſtate between the two daughters and coheirs, this maner fell to the ſhare of

Sir Henry Tey in right of his wife, to whom the reſt of the claimants releaſed their right 25 Feb. 1499. His wife, the lady Margaret, ſurvived him, and dyed 24 Septemb. 1520, poſſeſſed of the maner of Hawkewoodes, and Goddards croft, Makensfeild, Snokis-mead, Barnolds-tenement, and 60 acres of wood.——Thomas Tey, her ſon, afterwards knighted, ſucceeded her (b). He lived at Old Holt. [See above, p. 185.]

George Baldry Eſq; ſon of Sir Thomas Baldry, Lord Mayor of London in 1524, appears the next poſſeſſor, but whether by marriage, purchaſe, or otherwiſe, is not clear. He kept his firſt court here in 1534, and dyed 14 Febr. 1539, leaving by Mary his wife [S], daughter of Sir Edward Chamberlain of Pebmarſh,

Elizabeth his only daughter and heir, aged 2 years (c). She brought this eſtate in marriage to Sir Robert Riche, third ſon and at length heir to Sir Richard firſt Lord Riche. They held their firſt court here 8 Decemb. 1560. But, 24 Nov. 1562, they ſold this maner to

By Winefred daughter of Robert Barrington Eſq; he had John; Peter; and Oliver, amongſt whom he divided his eſtates. This fell to Oliver's ſhare, who was a Doctor of Phyſick. He dyed in December, 1665, and by will left this maner to his ſon in law

William Sparrow, Gent. attorney at law: And he, jointly with his ſon and heir William Sparrow, did, 25 March 1710, ſell it to Henry Summers Eſq; [V], of whom and his family we ſhall preſently give an account under his ſeat of Sparrows.

In the mean time we muſt, according to our promiſe, give an account of Sir John Hawkwood. His anceſtors were of ſome note, and held lands in this pariſh about the reign of K. John, and K. Henry III. He was born in this village in the reign of K. Edward II. of honeſt parents, his father Gilbert Hawkwood being by occupation a tanner. When arrived to a competent age he was bound apprentice to a taylor in London; from whence he went into the ſervice of King Edward III. for his wars in France; wherein he behaved himſelf ſo valiantly, that from a common ſoldier he was made a Captain; and for ſome further good ſervice K. Edward III. conferred upon him the honor of Knighthood, he being accounted the pooreſt knight in the army. His General, Edward the Black Prince, highly eſteemed him for his valour and conduct, of which he gave extraordinary proofs at the famous battle of Poictiers. Upon the concluſion of the peace between England and France, Sir John finding his eſtate too ſmall to ſupport his title and dignity, and being loth to return to his trade, he aſſociated himſelf with companies called The late Comers, which committed great ravages in Champagne, Burgundy, Dauphine, and other eaſtern parts of France; and having defeated all that pretended to oppoſe them, ſpread terror even to the very gates of Avignon, at that time the reſidence of the Pope and his Cardinals; ſo that to get rid of ſuch unwelcome gueſts, the Pope was obliged not only to forgive what was paſt, but to give them a good ſum of money into the bargain. From thence he led into Lombardy part of the Companions called The White Band, conſiſting of about 5000 horſe, and 1500 foot, for the moſt part Engliſh, with whom he moſt effectually aſſiſted John Marquis of Montferrat in his wars againſt the Dukes of Milan. But he forſook the Marquis's ſervice when Lionel Duke of Clarence third ſon to King Edward III. came to conſummate his marriage with Violante daughter of Galeaccio Duke of Milan, and attended him at that ſolemnity as Captain of his guard. Afterwards, by the Duke of Clarence's permiſſion, he aſſiſted the Duke of Milan againſt the States of Montferrat and Mantua, ſo ſucceſsfully, that he made himſelf and the Engliſh valour the renown and terror of Italy. So pleaſed with his conduct and ſervices was Barnabas the Duke of Milan's brother, that he gave him in marriage his natural daughter, the Lady Domitia, with a yearly revenue of 10,000 florens for her portion. Yet notwithſtanding all this, he revolted from Barnabas, and joined his enemy: ſome ſay, becauſe he ſuſpected that the Duke of Clarence, who dyed within five months after his marriage, had been poiſoned; others attribute his change to a proſpect of making his fortune better elſewhere. However, he plundered many towns in Lombardy, and took two, one of which he ſold to the Marquis of Eſte for 20,000 crowns, and the other he kept a long time. His fortune and forces being increaſed, and hating an unactive life, he ſought new adventures, and was entertained by Pope Gregory XII. whoſe towns in Provence had revolted from him; which our General ſoon recovered, and was rewarded with the dominion of five towns. Having ended theſe wars, his aſſiſtance was courted by ſeveral free cities and ſtates of Italy, particularly by the two rival commonwealths of Florence and Piſa that were contending for the ſovereignty. Florence offering moſt, he ſerved them for a while, and then went over to their mortal enemies the Piſans; and from them to the Florentines again, upon what occaſion is unknown, unleſs it were the proſpect of further advantages [W]. However, he continued to the laſt General of the Florentines, whom he ſerved with ſuch happy ſucceſs, that he may well be ſtyled the founder or eſtabliſher of their Republic. At length this valiant Knight, loaden with honor and riches, dyed in a very advanced age at Florence, in 1394 [X]. The Senate, out of gratitude for the ſervices he had done to their State, and to perpetuate the memory of his famous exploits, depoſited his body in the Cathedral of Santa Maria Florida, under a ſumptuous monument, over which there is his picture on horſe-back armed at all points, with hawks flying through a wood in his ſhield, being the rebus of his name. A great part of his wealth being conveyed to England, his friends and executors erected for him an honorary cenotaph in the Church of this pariſh, and founded a Chantry. From the effigies on this monument it ſhould ſeem that he had two wives. By one of them, the Lady Domitia above-mentioned, he had one ſon of both his names, who was a Knight, and naturalized in 1406 or 1407 [Y]. The only act of Charity I find he was concerned in, was his joyning with ſeveral perſons of quality in this kingdom in founding the Engliſh Hoſpital at Rome, for the entertainment of indigent travellers (e). Contemporary and ſucceeding hiſtorians are very laviſh in his praiſe; but his name is ſtrangely disfigured by foreign writers [Z].

Before we conclude the account of the Maners in this pariſh, we ſhall juſt mention one, named Wateburſt; which is at preſent ſo entirely loſt, that upon the moſt diligent enquiry no traces of it are to be found, it being ſwallowed up by, or a capital meſſuage late a ſeat of the Sparrow family, took from them its name. The manſion houſe is about two miles from the Church, by the eaſt ſide of the road leading to Cambridge.

The Sparrow family were originally of Weſt Harling in Norfolk, where lived William Sparwe, alias Sparrow, a perſon of note, in K. Edward the Third's reign. From him deſcended —— Robert Sparrow of Long Melford in Suffolk, Gent. a conſiderable benefactor to that Church, as appears from his epitaph there. By his wife Marion . . . . he had Robert and William.—— Robert Sparrow Eſq; the eldeſt ſon ſucceeded him, and was the firſt of the family that held lands in this pariſh called Combewells, which have continued in his poſterity. He married Agnes ſiſter of Roger Martin of Long Melford Eſq; by whom he had his ſon Thomas. About the end of April 1466, he and his ſaid ſon purchaſed of Thomas Aldres Eſq; [B] the manſion houſe here, with the lands thereunto belonging in the pariſhes of Hengham, Halſted, and Goſfield (f). Departing this life about the latter end of the reign of King Edward IV. he was ſucceeded by his only ſon——Thomas, who lived at Bocking, where he arrived to a very great age, and was buried; according to his deſire expreſſed in his will, dated 8 Novemb. 1595. By Joane . . . . his wife he had two ſons, John, and Clement, and two daughters. —John, the eldeſt ſon lived at Earl's-Colne, and was ſteward to John de Vere the great Earl of Oxford. He married Agnes, one of the daughters and coheirs of John Worthie of Blomſters Eſq; by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of John Warner of Boys-hall in Halſted Eſq; [ſee above, p. 250, 252.] By her he had Agnes; and five ſons, John, Antony, Edward, Thomas, and William. Antony, the ſecond ſon, was of Maldon, where, and at Cowledge in Suffolk, he had a good eſtate, and dyed in 1567.——John, the eldeſt ſon ſucceeded his father here; being deſcended by his mother's ſide from the Worthies, Warners, Helions, Swynbornes, Boutetorts, and Gernons, all ancient families, of which the two laſt were of the old nobility. He was twice married; and by his firſt wife he had Richard; Catharine, Anne, and Suſan. His ſecond Wife was Joane, daughter of——Jackſon of this county, Gent. by whom he had William, John, and Rachel. Richard, the eldeſt ſon, dyed before his father, and had three daughters that dyed unmarried. John, the ſecond ſon by the ſecond wife, was of Geſtingthorp parſonage. He married Anne daughter of Robert Buckminſter of Poynton in Lincolnſhire Eſq; and from him deſcended the late Sir John Sparrow, of Geſtingthorp. —— William Sparrow of Sible Hedingham Gent. eldeſt ſurviving ſon, ſucceeded his father who dyed in 1589. He rebuilt the manſion houſe of Sparrows in 1607: and by his wife Joane daughter of John Finch of Geſtingthorp Gent. he had 3 ſons, John; William; Joſeph, which laſt dyed in 1633, and two daughters, Jane; and Barbara married to Thomas Ady of Wethersfield M. D. William, the ſecond ſon, was a Clothier, father of William late of this place Attorney at law, and dyed in 1648. Their father departed this life 23 July 1611.——John his eldeſt ſon ſucceeded him, and dyed in May 1648. His wife was Margaret daughter of Stephen Cooke of St. Edmundſbury; by whom he had Margaret married to John Wade of Halſted Gent. John; William; both which dyed infants; another John; born in Auguſt 1636; Joſeph and Benjamin, twins, born in April 1639, whereof the eldeſt dyed the ſame year, and the other in 1645; Samuel born in May 1642, married to Elizabeth Newman 19 Febr. 1662, and dyed in 1696 without ſurviving iſſue.——John, the third but eldeſt ſon living, ſucceeded his father; and married two wives, 1. Anne daughter of William Harrington of Wallaſſes in Great Mapleſted Gent. by whom he had John, born in July 1662; James, born in July 1665; and Margaret married to Jerom Richardſon of Halſted Gent. His ſecond wife was Frances Harrington widow, by whom he had no iſſue. He dyed 27 Auguſt 1686, and lies buried in this Church. His eldeſt ſon and ſucceſſor —— John Sparrow Eſq; was entered into Chriſt's College, Cambridge, in 1679, and much about the ſame time admitted a member of Gray's-inn, and called to the bar in Michaelmas-term 1686. He married Elizabeth daughter of Samuel Clarkſon of Langham-lodge in this County Eſq; [C] and ſome time of Gray's-Inn, ſon of Samuel Clarkſon Eſq; one of the Maſters in Chancery, by Dorothy daughter of James Cardinal of Langham Valley, ſon and heir of William Cardinal of Great Bromley Eſq; [under which pariſh ſee an account of the Cardinal family.] J. Sparrow, Eſq; dyed 27 March 1720, leaving by his wife Elizabeth aboveſaid, an only daughter

Elizabeth, born 10 May 1688, and married 8 January 1705 to Henry Summers of Colcheſter Eſq; kinſman and heir to Henry Summers Gent. mentioned under Braintree: which derive their deſcent from a younger branch of the ancient family of Summers of Newland in Kent. They Sparrow, a Clergyman; beſides others that dyed young: and ſix daughters, whereof Anne, who has the receipt for curing the King's Evil, was married to the Rev. Tho. Smythies; and is now his widow. Henry Summers Eſq; dying 22 April 1738, aged 51, was ſucceeded in this eſtate by his eldeſt ſon——Henry Summers, M. D. who at the age of 36 years departed this life, leaving by Elizabeth his wife daughter of Mr. John Bakewell, Apothecary in Cheapſide,—— Henry his eldeſt ſon and heir; and three other ſons and one daughter. William de Huntercombe, mentioned above under Great Mapleſted, held in 55 Hen. III. the maner of Hengeham in ca. of the Earl . . . (g). But it is not ſpecified what maner it was. And in 1368, John Huntercombe held 1200 acres of land in this and adjoining pariſhes (h).

Hugh de Hodeing held here, in ſome part of the reign of K. Henry III. 160 acres of arable, 9 acres of meadow, and 63*s.* ob. rent (i). But we cannot fix what theſe parcels now are.

The Davenant family flouriſhed a long time in this place. The firſt that occurs, is Sir John Davenant, living in the reign of K. Henry III. One of his deſcendants, William Davenant, and Agnes his wife, rebuilt the houſe in 1571, as appears by an inſcription carved on the outſide girder of the roof. Mrs. Bunting bought the eſtate in the laſt century. Of this family was Dr. John Davenant, biſhop of Saliſbury, who dyed in 1641 [G].

This Pariſh, and that of Caſtle-Hedingham, with ſome other adjoining ones, have been greatly improved by Plantations of excellent Hops, reckoned the beſt in this County at leaſt.

Charitable Gifts.

Thomas Awbrey, alias Brome-Smith, by his will dated 6 Octob. 1516, gave one Almſhouſe, with a garden belonging to a tenement once called Terintons, or Whites, and a piece of land near Pevers farm, for the uſe of one poor man.

The 7th of February 1524, Sir John Greene of Little Samford, gave all thoſe lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, rents, and ſervices in this pariſh, called Bernards, which deſcended to him from his father, for this uſe: to excuſe the poor of this pariſh from the King's Taſke [Tax] reſerving always ſome ſufficient ſum for two or three Taſkes in a Box; or if there be a ſurpluſage, the ſurpluſage to be beſtowed on needful Reparations of the Church, or to the Poor of the Town in any miſcaſualty, at the mind of the Feoffees and the Curate. This is called Bernard's Box.

About half an acre of land, with a tenement, called Wrightes, near a farm called Tredſalles, purchaſed 5 Decemb. 1579, by Edward Rich; and ſettled for the uſe of the poor.

William Bendloes Eſq; 4 July 1571, did give to the Almſhouſe in Alderford-ſtreet within this pariſh, twenty ſhillings yearly for ever; payable out of the ſame parcels of land as above-mentioned, p. 259, to be expended in wood or money on the poor dwelling in that Almſhouſe, which are of the age of 40 years, and have no child or children abiding with them.

April 12, 1598, John Adcock gave a rood of land, parcel of Buryfield, for the uſe of the poor inhabitants of this pariſh.

Joſeph Alliſton of King's Holm in Suffolk, by his will dated 25 May 1628, gave out of his lands here called Lamb-pitts, ten ſhillings yearly for ever, to be diſtributed on Eaſter-monday to the poor of this pariſh, at the diſcretion of the miniſter, church-wardens and overſeers for the time being, and with the conſent of the chief inhabitants of the ſaid town.

Thomas Jegon of this place, Gent. in his will, dated 19 Octob. 1669, bequeathed, out of the rents and profits of his maner of Priors Glaſcocks, two ſhillings and eight pence weekly for ever to eight poor people in bread every Lord's-day, after prayer ended.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 2437*l.* 7*s.*

From ſeveral Hawks carved in ſtone in divers parts of the Church and tower, it is concluded, that this Church was built in the time, or at the charge, of the Hawkwood family; about the reign of K. Edward III. The old Church that ſtood there before, was much leſs, as hath appeared by the foundations that have been diſcovered.

The advowſon of this Rectory was originally appendant to the maner of Preyers or Bourehall, and in the gift of the Vere family, who granted it to Sir Robert de Bourchier, mentioned above, p. 253, &c. and in whoſe poſterity Earls of Eſſex, and in William Parr Marquis of Northampton, it continued till after 1551.

Indeed Sir Robert de Bourchier obtained leave, about 1340, to appropriate it to his College in Halſted; but it was never actually appropriated thereto. In the latter part of K. Henry the Fourth's reign, when Richard Clifford, Biſhop of London, and others, founded Bourchier's Chantry, as mentioned above, p. 259, 260, they made the advowſon of this Church part of the endowment. But William Gray, next ſucceſſor but one to Richard Clifford in the ſee of London, prevented the appropriation of this Church to that Chantry, to the end divine ſervice, and the uſual hoſpitality, might not be leſſened here (k).

From Edward Earl of Oxford, in whoſe right a preſentation was made in 1566, this advowſon paſſed, before 1568, to . . . William Waldegrave of Smallbridge Eſq; and He, 1 June 1582, ſells it to . . . John Sparrow, George Nicholſon, and others of this pariſh; who, 21ſt October following, convey it to . . . . Edward de Vere Earl of Oxford, &c. He, 6 May 1585, ſells it to . . . . John Jegon, B. D. Vice-Preſident of Queen's College, Cambr. On the 20th of Decemb. 1596, the ſaid John Jegon D. D. conveys it to his brother . . . . Thomas Jegon, and his heirs . . . . Barbara, widow of the latter, grants this advowſon to . . . . John Jegon junior, and the heirs male of his body, with remainders over. The 30th of October 1639, they grant the next preſentation to Francis Copinger and Robert Plumb, who ſell their turn to . . . Robert Clark: and he, 18 May, 1672, preſented . . . . Peter Temple. On the 18th of May 1678, John Temple grants this advowſon to the ſaid Peter, who mortgages it to . . . . George Richards for 618 l. and a fine was levied. The 9th of April 1690, George Richards and Peter Temple grant the advowſon of this Church to . . . John Miller of Sabridgeworth; who, 29 May the ſame year ſells it to . . . . Moſes Cooke of Little Hadham Gent. and to his heirs. And the latter, 28 Sept. 1691, grants and ſells this advowſon to his ſon . . . . Moſes Cooke, Rector of this pariſh, and his heirs (l).

There were ſix Obits founded, and money for two Lights in this Church, given; which King Edward VI. granted 12 November 1548, to Thomas Golding, Eſq; afterwards knighted, one of the commiſſioners for inſpecting the chantry lands.

The friends and executors of Sir John Hawkwood founded a famous Chantry, for one Chaplain in this Church, and another Chaplain in the Church of Caſtle Hedingham, to pray for the ſouls of Sir John Hawkwood, Thomas Oliver, and John Newenton Eſquires, his military Companions, ſuppoſed to be born in this county. The licenſe for this foundation was in 1412, and the endowment conſiſted of 4 meſſuages, 4 tofts, 420 acres of arable, 13 acres of meadow, 20 of paſture, 4 of wood, 22 of alder, and 12*s.* rent, in Sible and Caſtle Hengham, Goſfeild, Mapiltreſted, Great and Little Gelham, and Toppeſfeild (m). The Houſe where the Chantry-prieſt lived ſtands at ſome diſtance from the Church, and bore then and ſtill bears the name of the Hoſtage, having originally been a charitable foundation for the entertainment of devout pilgrims. The patronage of this Chantry belonged to the Lord of the maner of Hawkwoods. Upon the diſſolution of Chantries this coming to the Crown, K. Edward VI. granted it to John Lucas of Colcheſter and his heirs, by the name of the Chantry of Hedingham-Sible; and a meſſuage called le Oſtage, the Tile-kill, Barns-end, the Storehouſe, and Horronds, belonging thereto, all in this pariſh (n). They have been for ſome time in other hands, as appears above.

Mr. Moſes Cooke, the late worthy Rector here, built a very good Parſonage-houſe of brick; laid out a handſome garden; and in all reſpects greatly adorned and improved this Pariſh.

This Alberic is moſt reaſonably ſuppoſed to have taken the ſurname De Vere, from Vere, a town in Zealand (o), whence he was derived; or where his family had eſtates. His wife was Beatrix, daughter of Henry, Caſtellan of Bourbourg, by Sibille daughter and heir of Manaſſes Count of Ghiſnes (p) [I]. Being one of thoſe chiefs that attended William Duke of Normandy in his conqueſt of England, he was rewarded by him with fourteen Lordſhips in this county, whereof this was one [K]; beſides what he had in other places. He founded Colne-Priory, [ſee above, p. 212.] where he afterwards took the habit of a Monk, and was buried in the Church. By his wife Beatrix, he had Roeſia, married firſt to Pagan de Beauchamp, afterwards to Geffrey de Mandeville the firſt Earl of Eſſex of that name; and five ſons, Alberic junior, Geffrey, Roger, Robert, William. He was the Founder of the noble Family of De Vere, Earls of Oxford, juſtly reputed one of the moſt ancient, and illuſtrious in the world; and that continued longeſt crowned with honour and riches, it having produced a ſucceſſion of Twenty Earls of the ſame ſurname and family, from the year 1137 to 1703, a circumſtance attending, as far as we can remember, no other Britiſh noble family whatſoever. Beſides the great office of Lord High Chamberlain, and the Earldom of Oxford, hereditary dignities in this family; ſome of them diſcharged the offices of Port-reve of London, of Chief Juſtice, Chancellor, High-Admiral, Lord High-Steward, and Conſtable of England. William de Vere, ſon of the firſt Earl, was Biſhop of Hereford in 1186. And this family hath produced ſeveral renowned Warriors and Generals, and four Knights of the Order of the Garter. Robert, the ninth Earl, was by King Richard II. created Marquis of Dublin (being the firſt who was honoured with the title of Marquis in this Kingdom) and Duke of Ireland. Immenſe, for a long time, have their Riches and Poſſeſſions been, as we ſhall ſhew preſently. Nor has this family been leſs famous for works of Piety: for they founded and endowed the Priories of Earl's Colne, Hedingham-caſtle, Hatfield-broad-oak, in this county; Horton in Kent; and Iclington in Cambridgeſhire: beſides their benefactions to other religious Houſes in the kingdom.

Alberic junior, eldeſt ſon of Alberic ſenior, was ſo much in favour with King Henry I. that he made him Great Chamberlain of England, in the room of Robert Malet [mentioned above, p. 217.] [L] who was depriv'd of that office for ſiding with the King's competitor to the crown, Robert Curthoſe, Duke of Normandy. He was alſo one of the Chief Juſtices in the ſaid King's reign. In 1140, with Richard Baſſet then Juſtice of England, he executed the office of Sheriff for the Counties of Surrey, Cambridge, Huntingdon, Eſſex, Hertford, Northampton, Leiceſter, Norfolk, Suffolk, Buckingham, and Bedford (q). The ſame year he was killed in a popular tumult at London (r), leaving by Adeliza his wife, daughter of Gilbert de Clare, 3 ſons; Alberic; . . . Canon of St. Oſith; Robert: and 2 daughters, Adeliza, wife of Henry de Eſſex; and Juliana, wife of Hugh Bigot Earl of Norfolk [M].

1. Alberic, the third of the name, and ſucceſſor to his father, was ſo conſiderable a perſon, that Qu. Maud, in order to engage him to her intereſt, confirmed to him the office of Chamberlain, and all his father's eſtates; with the addition of the lands of William de Abrincis; the ſervice of William de Helion conſiſting of ten Knights; Diham, [or Dedham;] the land of William Peverell, of Nottingham at Turrock; of Solomon the Prieſts at Tylbery; and of Geffrey Callilot [or Talebot;] and to his brother Robert one Barony. Moreover, ſhe granted to Alberic the Tower and Caſtle of Coleceſter: and the Chancellorſhip of England: likewiſe the Earldom of Cambridge, if the King of Scots had it not: and if he had, then that Alberic might have his choice of the Earldoms of OXFORDSHIRE, Berkſhire, Wiltſhire, or Dorſetſhire (s). Maud's ſon, K. Henry II. confirmed all thoſe grants to Alberic, and conſtituted him Earl of Oxford, granting him the third penny of that county [N], a perquiſite then beit and Baylie-ſtreet; ſince called the Lord's Orchard; where lately grew wild vines bearing red grapes.

[I] We think this account more probable, and conſiſtent, than a Pedigree inſerted by J. Leland in his Itinerary; which goes up as high as Noah: and takes in Meleager that ſlew the Caledonian boar, Diomedes that was at the ſiege of Troy, &c. Then follows a ſucceſſion of Dukes till our Saviour's paſſion. Soon after which, Verus, ſo named from his true dealing, and baptized by Marcellus, A. C. 41. was anceſtor by his eldeſt ſon to the Emperor M. A. Verus, and by a younger ſon to Miles de Vere, Duke of Angiers and Mentz, General to the Emperor Charles the Great, anno 778, whoſe ſiſter Bertha, Miles had married. Miles had iſſue Baldwin Duke of Mentz, and a younger ſon, Miles created Earl of Guiſnes in Normandy by Charles his Uncle. But this Pedigree ſeems to be founded upon Fancy more than Truth. Let it ſuffice, that Alberic de Vere, then a conſiderable Man, and ſprung undoubtedly from a long ſucceſſion of brave and worthy perſons, was one of the Chiefs or Generals that came over with William the Conqueror; and, what can be ſaid of no other, his Poſterity flouriſhed here after that for above 630 years, in great Riches, Honour, and Power.

[K] Thoſe Lordſhips were, Hedingham-caſtle, Earl's-Colne, Bumpſted-ſteple, Thunderſley, Ugley, Manuden, Aſhdon, Radwinter, Canfeild parva & magna, Roding-Eythorp; Willingale-Spain, Bentley magna, Dovercourt.

longing to the Earls of this Kingdom. This firſt Earl Alberic, or Aubrey, had for ſucceoſſrs Nineteen Earls of Oxford, of the ſurname of De Vere, whoſe actions, intermarriages, and iſſues, to relate duly at length would ſwell to a Volume. We ſhall therefore only give here a Liſt of them, and of the reſpective times of their deaths; begging leave to refer the reader to Sir William Dugdale's Baronage; Milles's and Vincent's Catalogues, and eſpecially to Arthur Collins's Hiſtorical Collections of the noble Families of Cavendiſh, Holles, and Vere, fol. Lond. 1743.

This Alberic, the firſt Earl of Oxford, dyed in 1194.

2. Alberic, his ſon dyed without iſſue in 1214.

3. Robert his brother ſucceeding him, dyed in 1221. In right of his wife Iſabel de Bolebec he had the Barony of Bolebec, which paſſed to his poſterity.

4. Hugh, ſon of Robert, dyed 16 Decemb. 1263.

5. Robert, ſon of Hugh, dyed in 1295. In right of Alice his wife he became Baron Samford.

6. Robert, ſon of the laſt, and ſurnamed the Good, third of the name, dyed 19 April 1331.

7. John, nephew of Robert, ſon of his brother Alphonſus, was next. His wife Maud, ſiſter and co-heir of Giles Lord Badleſmere, brought him the title of Lord Badleſmere. He dyed 24 January 1358.

8. Thomas, eldeſt ſon of John, dyed 18 Sept. 1370.

9. Robert, fourth of the name, created 9 Richard II. Marquis of Dublin, and 10 of the ſame King, Duke of Ireland, dyed at Louvain, without iſſue, 22 Novemb. 1392.

10. Alberic, or Aubrey, fifth of the name, brother to Thomas, and Uncle of Robert, dyed 23 April 1400. He ſurrendered to K. Richard II. the office of Lord High Chamberlain, which his two next ſucceſſors did not enjoy.

11. Richard, Knight of the Garter, dyed 14 February 1415.

12. John, ſon of Richard, for his adherence to the Houſe of Lancaſter, was beheaded by order of King Edward IV. 26 February 1461, with his eldeſt ſon Aubrey.

13. John, ſecond ſon of the laſt, reſtored to the office of Lord High Chamberlain, and in right of his mother Elizabeth, Lord Scales, dyed without iſſue 10 March 1512.

14. John, fourth of the name, ſon of Sir George, brother of the laſt John, was knight of the Garter; and dyed 14 July 1526, without iſſue. His ſiſters became his heirs to all the eſtate which was not entailed upon the heir male. [Q]. He was named Little John of Campes, i. e. Caſtle Campes, where the family had a ſeat and Caſtle.

15. John, grandſon of Sir George juſt now mentioned by his ſon John, dyed 19 or 21 March 1539; and was buried in the Church here.

16. John, the ſixth of the name, and ſon of the laſt, dyed in 1562; and was buried here. The Duke of Somerſet took his eſtates from him in a very cruel manner; which however were reſtored.(P)

17. Edward, his ſon and ſucceſſor, almoſt ruined his noble inheritance. For having a very intimate acquaintance and friendſhip with Thomas Howard Duke of Norfolk, condemned for his indiſcrete adherence to the Queen of Scots, he moſt earneſtly interceeded with his father-in-law William Lord Burghley, to ſave that Duke's life: which not being gratified in, he declared he would do all he could to ruin his own wife, Ann daughter of William Cecil Lord Burghley [which was his firſt wife, and dyed 6 June 1588;] accordingly, he not only forſook her bed, but ſold and waſted the beſt part of his inheritance. Among the reſt, he ſold his Caſtle and eſtate here at Hedingham, to the amount of 700 l. a year; but it was repurchaſed by his wife, or rather widow, Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Trentham Eſq; who got a private act in 1609, to ſell the maner of Bretts, and farm at Plaſtow in Weſt-Ham, about 200 l. a year, for that purpoſe (t). Edward Earl of Oxford dyed 24 June 1604.

18. Henry, his ſon by his ſecond wife, born in 1592, being employed in the wars in the Netherlands, dyed in 1625, without iſſue.

19. Robert, ſon of Hugh, and grandſon of Aubrey one of the ſons of John, the 15th Earl of Oxford, had that Earldom adjudg'd to him by Parliament: but the great Office of Lord Chamberlain was voted to belong to Robert Bartu then Lord Willoughby, anceſtor to the Dukes of Ancaſter, in whom it remains hereditary; in right of Mary daughter of John de Vere the 16th Earl. Robert Earl of Oxford was ſlain at Maeſtricht in 1632.

20. Aubrey, his only ſon, ſucceeded him. But he dying 12 March 1702-3, aged 78 years, without iſſue male, the Title of Earl of Oxford in this moſt ancient, and truly noble, Family expired and ended with him. By his firſt Lady Anne, daughter and coheir of Paul Viſcount Bayning he had a very large fortune, but no iſſue. By his ſecond Lady, Diana daughter of George Kirk Eſq; he had a ſon who dyed young, and three daughters unmarried; beſides —— Diana

(t) From ſome of the writings and other Papers belonging to the family.

[O] The eſtates entailed upon the heirs male, were, Hedingham-caſtle, the maners of Grayes, Prayers, and Bowerhall in Hedingham Sible; the maners of Little Yeldham, Earl's-Colne, Beaumont, Old-hall, Crypinghall, Downham, Tendryng-hall, Mowldar, Flaxlond, Bunches, Flonderſwick in Purley; Warehilles, Jacklens, Fanbridge-lande, and Stanſted Montfichet. Overhall and Netherhall in Lavenham; the maner of Aldham in Suffolk. Cheſhambury and Cheſſamhigham in Buckinghamſhire.

[P] The account we have of it, is as follows. Edward Seymour Duke of Somerſet, Protector of the realm, out of his extreme avarice and greedy appetite, did, under colour of juſtice, convent before himſelf for certain criminal cauſes John Earl of Oxenford, and did ſo terrifie him, that to ſave his life he was obliged to alienate to the ſaid Duke by deed, 1 Febr. 1547; all his eſtate, and lordſhips, caſtles, maners, &c. (and to levy a fine in Hilary term) except certain maners, lands, and tenements given by K. Henry VIII. to the Earl's father, that were entailed on his male heirs. After the Duke had loſt his head, the whole caſe was ſet forth in the parliament, which met at Weſtminſter 23 Jan. 7 Ed. VI. 1551. when the Eſtates were declared by his attainder forfeited to the crown. And by an Act then paſſed, the maners of Tendring-hall, Earl's fee in Buers-Gifford, Battails-hall in Stapleford-Abbot, Hayes in Stow, Jacklets in Fambridge, and Backhouſe, were ſettled on Aubrey de Vere, Eſq; this Earl's brother: and on Geffrey, another brother, the maners of Creppyng-hall and Cruſtwicke.

his eldeſt daughter, who, 13 April 1694, was married to —— Charles Beauclerk Duke of St. Albans.

Their third ſon being named Vere, in honour and remembrance of the moſt ancient and illuſtrious Family from whence he is derived, was created, 28 March 1750, Baron Vere of Hanworth in Middleſex; having married Mary eldeſt daughter and coheir of Thomas Chambers of that place Eſq; by whom he hath a ſon named Aubrey, and a daughter.

Before we proceed, let us take notice of ſome particulars relating to this family, which we do not remember to have ſeen in print. —— John, the 13th Earl, was made Admiral of all England, Ireland, and Dutchy of Aquitaine for life: Alſo Conſtable of the Tower of London for life. He ſurrendering the letters patent for the laſt, had a freſh grant, 29 June 1487, with a ſalary of 100 l. a year. And a grant for the keeping of the lions, lioneſſes, and leopards in the Tower, with a ſalary of one ſhilling a day for himſelf, and 6*d.* a day for each lion, &c. to be paid out of the King's revenues in the city of London (u). He had alſo other grants from that King, in reward of his ſervices to him, and ſufferings of himſelf and family for the Houſe of Lancaſter [Q].

Immenſe, as we have juſt hinted above, were the Riches of this Family; for a Specimen of which we ſhall give an abſtract of the Inqueſt taken after the death of John the 7th Earl (w): That Lord had to the amount of Fifty knights fees in Eſſex; eighteen in Suffolk; nineteen in Cambridgeſhire; and ſeven in Huntingdonſhire [R]. Each of which Knights fees was then valued at 100 s. and conſidering the difference between the value of money then and now, every underſtanding perſon may judge what a very great eſtate they were poſſeſſed of. Firſt and laſt they had about ſeventy knights-fees in the county of Eſſex alone; beſides their very large perſonal eſtate. John, the fourteenth Earl, when he came to the Earldom, in 1512, was offered twelve thouſand pounds a year for his eſtates; leaving in his occupation all maners, houſes, caſtles, parks, woods, foreſts, and all the demeſne lands thereto belonging; the yearly value of which laſt might be worth more than many preſent Earldoms. They had alſo the advowſons of ſeveral Churches; and of the Priories of Blackmore, Colne, Hatfield Broad-oak, Heningham, Trenhalle, and Swaffham.

The unreaſonable and extreme violence of Edward, the 17th Earl, mentioned above, brought this long flouriſhing Family to a low ebb [S]. But the waſte he had made was finely repaired by the great fortune which Aubrey, the 20th Earl, had with his wife Anne, eldeſt daughter and one of the co-heireſſes of Paul Viſcount Bayning. For this Lord Bayning appears, by the authentic account of one of his ſtewards, to have been poſſeſſed of One hundred and ſeven thouſand ſeven hundred and ſeventy ſeven pounds, clear, all his debts paid; without reckoning the jewels, plate, houſhold-ſtuff, and a very large real eſtate. And this was in 1637, the year before that Lord's deceaſe. [See more under Little Bentley.]

Proportionable to this noble Family's uncommon wealth was their Grandeur and State. John the 13th Earl, entertained K. Henry VII. nobly and ſumptuouſly at his caſtle of Heningham; with a very great attendance of Retainers (x) [T].

Edward, the 17th Earl, rid into the city, and to his houſe by London-ſtone, with 80 Gentlemen, in a livery of Reading tawny, and chains of gold about their necks, before him; and 100 tall yeomen in the like livery to follow him without chains, but all having his cognizance of the blue boar, embroidered on their left ſhoulder (y). — He was alſo the firſt that brought perfumed gloves, and ſuch fineries out of Italy into this kingdom (z).

Steward of the honour of Reyleigh, and keeper of the park there, with the panage, agiſtment, and herbage of that park, with 4*d.* a day. . . . Alſo keeper of Thunderſley park, with the ſame perquiſites, and 3*d.* a day. Pat. 9 Hen. VII. Decemb. 4.

Folkeſworth, Hemyngford Ovey and Gilling, Papworth Anneys.

[S] Robert, the 19th Earl, had only, the Earldom of Oxford and Honor, by the ſervice of 2 knights fees and a half; with ſeveral knights fees; a meſſuage in Mocking; ſeveral woods and lands in Sible Heningham, Gosfeild, Little Yeldham, Geſtingthorp, Walter Belchamp, Mapleſted and Hedingham-caſtle; and the maner and park of Netherwood in Herefordſhire, and advowſon of Thornebury Church. Inquiſ. 8 Caro.

[T] The reſt of this ſtory is well known, and thus related by Lord Verulam. At the King's going away, the Earl's ſervants ſtood in their Livery coats, with cogniſances, ranged on both ſides, and made the King a lane. The King called the Earl unto him and ſaid, 'My Lord, I have heard 'much of your Hoſpitality, but I ſee it is greater than the 'ſpeech. Theſe handſome gentlemen and yeomen, which 'I ſee on both ſides of me, are ſure your menial ſervants.' The Earl ſmiled, and ſaid, 'It may pleaſe your Grace 'that were not for mine eaſe. They are moſt of them my 'Retainers, that are come to do me ſervice at ſuch a time 'as this, and chiefly to ſee your Grace.' The King ſtarted a little, and ſaid, 'By my faith, my Lord, I thank you for 'your good cheer, but I may not endure to have my laws 'broken in my ſight. My Atturney muſt ſpeak with you.' . . . And it is ſaid, that the Earl compounded for no leſs than 15000 marks for this offence againſt the ſtatute of Retainers. Statute 3 Hen. VII. c. 1.

To come now to a particular Account of the Pariſh of Caſtle-Hedingham.

Of all the Eſtates belonging to the noble Family of De Vere, this was the chief. It was holden of the King in capite, by the ſervice of two knights-fees and a half; and at firſt belonged to the office of Great Chamberlain. For by that tenure it was holden by Hugh de Vere, the 4th Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1263 (a) [V]. The ſucceeding Earls held it as parcel of the Earldom of Oxford (b).

This noble Lordſhip was erected into an Honor by K. Henry II. and ſo it is ſtyled in the antient Rentals, and the Inquiſitions poſt mortem, &c. Dependent upon it were twenty-eight knights-fees, and an eighth part; amongſt which were Graſſalls and Bloys in Sible Hedingham; others in Goſfeild, and Great Mapleſted; others in Burgate, Aldham, and Cockfeild in Suffolk; Abington in Cambridgſhire; Emmingford in Huntingdonſhire, &c.

The demeſne lands belonging to it here, were divided into three Maners. 1. Hedingham Borough. 2. Hedingham Uplands. The courts of theſe two are called at the ſame time in the Market-houſe of this town, and have diſtinct juries, rentals, and quit-rents. 3. The Nunnery is the third maner; to which, lands in Haverhill inSuffolk; Caſtle-Camps inCambridgeſhire; Finchingfield, and ſeveral other places in this county, paid quit-rents. 4. Kirby-hall is another maner in this pariſh.

The three firſt are not diſtinguiſhed in the Inquiſitions poſt mortem, but comprehended under the name of the Maner of Caſtle-Hedingham; and when the preſent diſtinction aroſe, is hard to determine.

This maner of Caſtle-Heningham is independent of all other Lordſhips, and holden immediately of the Crown, and entire of itſelf; no lands here helonging to any other perſons but the noble owners of the Caſtle; nor any being holden of them; except half a knight's fee by Nicolas Picard and Nicolas Haukwood, and another half fee by Walter Baron and Nicolas Davenant, of John the 7th Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1360 (c). Theſe two Moieties were holden in 1399 of Aubrey the 10th Earl, by Edward Pychard and Thomas Baret (d). And the part which belonged to Picard was afterwards called Kirby-hall, as I ſhall ſhew preſently.

Thus this noble Lordſhip continued in the Houſe of Vere from the Conqueſt to the year 1625, for about 558 years; being the longeſt ſpace of time that any family of our Engliſh nobility kept ſo conſiderable an eſtate [W].

Henry de Vere, the 18th Earl, and the laſt that poſſeſſed this Lordſhip, dyed at the ſiege of Breda in 1625. His wife Diana, ſecond daughter and coheir of William Cecil Earl of Exeter, whom he married in January 1623, held it in jointure; and taking to her ſecond Huſband Thomas Lord Bruce, Earl of Elgin in Scotland, and Baron of Whorlton in the county of York, a court was held here in both their Names in 1630, and another in 1654, which was their laſt court. Upon her deceaſe, this eſtate came to the Trentham family of Rouceſter in Staffordſhire.

For, Edward, the 17th Earl of Oxford, having taken to his ſecond wife Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Trentham of that place Eſq; her brother Francis Trentham Eſq; advanced ten thouſand pounds to clear incumbrances on the Oxford Eſtates. In conſideration whereof, 8 July 1609, by deed inrolled, and recovery ſuffered purſuant thereto, the three daughters of the ſaid Earl Edward, by his firſt wife, with their huſbands, William Earl of Derby, Francis Lord Norris, and Philip Earl of Montgomery, by the appointment of the forementioned Elizabeth Vere Counteſs dowager of Oxford, conveyed the Honor of Caſtle Hedingham to her for life, remainder to her ſon Henry Earl of Oxford for his life, and to his ſons in taile male; remainder to Truſtees to perform contingent eſtates, remainder to Francis Trentham Eſq; brother of the ſaid Counteſs, and his heirs for ever. His ſon ——Sir Francis Trentham had a daughter, Elizabeth, born in 1637. She brought this Lordſhip in marriage to her huſband

Bryan Cockaine, Viſcount Cullen (e); who was reckoned to have an eſtate of about 8000 l. per annum. She was a beautiful woman, and long-lived, not dying till Decemb. 1713, aged 81 years, A few Months before her deceaſe, namely 2 April 1713, ſhe ſold this eſtate to

Robert, William, and Samuel Aſhurſt Eſquires. —The Aſhurſt family is of long ſtanding in the County Palatine of Lancaſter, at Aſhurſt, whence they took their ſurname. Adam de Aſheburſt is ſaid to have been living there ſoon after the Conqueſt: whoſe ſucceſſors are reckoned in this order. — Roger — Hugh — Thomas — William — Ralph — Simon — Robert — Richard. This laſt lived in part of the reigns of K. Edw. I. and II. His ſon——Sir Adam ſerved K. Edward III. in his French wars, and was father of —— Sir John de Aſhurſt [X], who married Margaret de Orrell, [Y] and had by her Roger, Geffrey, and John.— Roger, by Matilda Ince, had —— Robert, who flouriſhed in 1420, and by Ellen his wife daughter of Ralph de Anderton had —— John; whoſe wife was Catharine daughter and coheir of Roger Dalton Eſq; and from this marriage proceeded ——Robert, living in 1459, that married Margaret daughter of Richard Byram Eſq; and had iſſue ——John, mentioned in 1516, whoſe firſt wife was Martha daughter of Sir William Leyland. His ſecond wife was Alice, daughter and heir of John Orrele Eſq; by her he had —— William, who by Elizabeth daughter of John Ogle Eſq; had William, living in 1547. He married Cecily daughter of Nicolas Taylor, [X] He was the firſt who had for his ſeal, a croſs between four flower de luces: the family bear ſtill the ſame arms.

[Y] She brought to him conſiderable eſtates in Latham, Skelmerſdale, Aughton, Pemberton, Whrighthingdon, &c.

Gent. and had by her —— William, that by his wife Margaret daughter of Thomas Welton Eſq; had —— Henry, who married Caſſandra daughter of John Bradſhaw of Bradſhaw, Eſq; and had by her 5 daughters, Jane, Anne, Margaret, Mary, and Rachel; and four ſons, William; John from whom deſcended a family ſettled in Ireland; Henry, of whom more hereafter; and Robert that dyed without iſſue. —— William, the eldeſt ſon ſucceeded his father in the eſtate at Aſhurſt, wherein he was ſucceeded by his ſon and grandſon, both of the name of Thomas.

Henry, the ſecond ſon by Caſſandra Bradſhaw abovementioned, and founder of the family at Caſtle-Hedingham, ſettling in London, acquired great riches, and fined for Alderman. Very eminent he became for piety, charity, integrity, and other Virtues. He had the chief hand in ſettling the Corporation for the propagation of the Goſpel in America, of which he was Treaſurer; and alſo zealouſly promoted the tranſlation of the Bible into the Indian language. He dyed in 1680. By his wife Judith, daughter of . . . . Rereſby Eſq; he had 4 ſons, and two daughters. Henry; William; Joſeph, who had to wife the daughter of Henry Corniſh Eſq; Benjamin that dyed unmarried. Of the two daughters, Mary was married to Sir Thomas Lane, and Judith to Robert Booth of London, merchant, by whom he had Judith his ſole daughter and heir, firſt wife to William Lord Cowper Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. Henry, the eldeſt ſon, created a Baronet 21 July 1688, was one of the Executors to the Hon. Robert Boyle Eſq; and one of the Truſtees of his Lecture. He purchaſed the maner of Waterſtoke in Oxfordſhire, where he built a handſome ſeat, and married Diana daughter of William Lord Paget. —— William, the ſecond ſon, knighted by K. William and Qu. Mary, was Lord Mayor of London in 1693, which city he repreſented in Parliament many years. By Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Robert Thompſon Eſq; he had 7 ſons, and 6 daughters. He deceaſed 12 January 1719, and his Lady 22 March 1723. — Robert the eldeſt ſon, of this place, dyed 25 Febru. 1725-6, as did his firſt wife, Elizabeth daughter of Mr. John Gunſton, 17 June 1721, and were buried in this Church, with the remains of the family. —— William, the next brother dyed 10 Janu. 1734-5 —— Thomas, another brother, is the preſent owner of this eſtate [Z].

The CASTLE.

This Caſtle, which was built by the noble family of De Vere, and their ſeat and reſidence, deſerves next our notice. Such ſtrong places were uſed by our ancient Nobility, for their habitations, by way of grandeur as well as ſafety and defence. No remains either Britiſh or Roman, ſuch as Coins, large Bricks, and the like, have been found here, denoting that any conſiderable Edifice ſtood in this place before the Norman conqueſt: ſo that undoubtedly this Caſtle was built by Alberic de Vere, ſecond of the name: and about the beginning of K. Stephen's reign. For, that Prince, to oblige his great men, gave them leave to build caſtles upon their own lands, though many of them abus'd this indulgence in holding out their caſtles againſt him, which provoked him to raſe all that he took (f).

In its perfect ſtate this Caſtle was very lofty and magnificent. The remaining Tower is 110 feet, from the ground to the top of the four ſquare large Turrets at the corners; and there were three other Towers, if we are rightly informed. This caſtle was brought to the ruinous condition it is now in, during the firſt Dutch war, in 1666, to prevent the keeping here of the priſoners taken in the ſea-engagements, and the town being troubled with ſuch unwelcome gueſts as they, and the ſoldiers that guarded them, would have been; and proved in other places; witneſs All-Hallows in Sudbury.

To this caſtle belonged a Governor or Officer, called a Conſtable [A]; who over and above his ſalary had a meadow in this town ſtill called Conſtable-meadow. And to this caſtle alſo belonged three Parks. 1. The Caſtle-park, in which the Caſtle ſtands; this came down to the town. 2. The great Park, containing about 600 acres, extended towards Geſtingthorp. 3. The little Park, or new Park, for red deer, came down to the pound. Creſſals farm was the lodge.

Queen Maud, wife of K. Stephen, deceaſed in this caſtle, and was buried in Feverſham-Abbey, in 1152 (g).

It was in thoſe early times, before the invention of gunpowder and canons, reckoned a place of good ſtrength. It held out ſome time againſt K. John in 1215; and againſt Lewis the Dauphin, who had been invited over by the rebellious Barons; and was not taken without Difficulty by him, in 1217 (h).

The NUNNERY

is what we have mentioned as the third maner in this pariſh. This religious houſe was founded, for Black veiled Nuns of the Benedictine order, before the year 1190, by Alberic de Vere, the firſt Earl of Oxford; who indeed built the houſe, but his wife Lucia was ſtyled foundreſs, not only upon account of her relation to him, but becauſe ſhe aſſiſted him very much in ſettling the foundation (i): And ſhe became the firſt Prioreſs of this Houſe. At her death ſhe was wonderfully lamented by her ſucceſſor Agnes [B], and prayers offered for her ſoul, not only in Weſtminſter-abbey, but alſo in above 50 other churches (k). This Nunnery was dedicated to God, St. Mary, St. James, and the Holy-Croſs: and endowed with four acres, and other lands, a mill, &c. in this pariſh; a wood in Gosfeild called Ruthebrake; the Rectories of Gosfeild, and of Hedingham-caſtle, which were appropriated to it; and the advowſons of the Vicarages (l) [C]. Beſides which, it had Rents of Aſſiſe in ſeveral Pariſhes. The Vere family were patrons of the Nunnery (m), and continued ſo, as far as we find, till its diſſolution; when it was valued at 29*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.* per ann. [D]. And, as the founder's family had the beſt right to it, K. Henry VIII. granted, in 1535, to John Earl of Oxford, the whole ſite of this Priory, the Rectories of the pariſhes of Hedingham-Caſtle and Gosfeild, and advowſons of thoſe Vicarages, with all their appertenances in Hedingham-caſtle and Syble, Gosfeild, Great and Little Yeldham, and elſewhere (n). The Nunnery-houſe is ſtill in being, but converted into a farm-houſe; and moſt of the Church, or Chapel, belonging to it yet ſtanding, only ſomewhat ruinous. There were in it two Bells.

The Arms of this Nunnery were, Argent, two billets in croſs, the one azure, and the other gules.

4. The manor of KIRBY-HALL took its name from the Kirkby family, its ancient owners. The manſion-houſe is about a mile, north from the Church.

Richard Kirkbie had it in 1256.——Robert his ſon in 1263,——Gilbert in 1289.

Nicolas Haukwood, and Nicolas Picard, held it under John Earl of Oxford in 1360, and from the latter it derived the name of Picard's (o). Afterwards it was in Elizabeth Pickard; and in 1400 in Edward Pychard (p).

Giles, and Margaret, Lucas appear poſſeſſed of it in the reign of K. Henry VI. Then, a few years after, the Kirkby family again, namely William.——John Kirkby lived here about the year 1468, and dyed towards the end of K. Edward the Fourth's reign, leaving —— John, father of—Thomas, alive in 1495. This latter had to wife Lettice daughter of Edmund Weſt of Cornard in Suffolk [remarried to John Faſtolph Eſq;] and had by her two ſons, John, and Gilbert; and four daughters.——John, the eldeſt ſon, dyed in July 1588. By Elizabeth his wife, daughter of John Aldham of Suffolk, Gent. he had one ſon, and 4 daughters: whereof Jane, the ſecond, was married to Laurence Gent, 3 Decem. 1584.——Henry the only ſon, by his wife Elizabeth Kitteridge, had two ſons, William baptized 6 Sept. 1593, Henry who dyed young; and 4 daughters. We have no further account of this family [E].

The next poſſeſſor of this eſtate was, John de Vere, eldeſt ſon of Geffrey de Vere Eſq; who was the third ſon of John the 15th Earl of Oxford. He married Thomaſine daughter of William Carew of Stone-caſtle in Kent, Eſq; (q) but dyed 10 March 1624, as far as we can find, without iſſue. His ſucceſſor was his brother [F] —— Horace, then aged 50 years (r). He was born here in 1565, and made this ſometimes the place of his reſidence. The 25th of July 1625, he was created Baron Vere, of the neighbouring pariſh of Tilbury [under which we propoſe to give a more particular account of him.] His wife, Mary, daughter of Sir John Tracy of Tuddington in Glouceſterſhire, attended him in all his dangerous expeditions abroad, and was accounted a perſon of exemplary piety and charity. After 36 years widowhood, ſhe dyed at Kirby hall 25 Decemb. 1671, in the 90th year of her age. Her huſband's heirs ſold this maner, and capital meſſuage, in 1675, to

Robert Sheffield Eſq; who in 1702 ſold it again to

Richard Springet Eſq; [G] He left it to his brother —— William, that bequeathed, or ſold it, in 1736 to

John Page Gent. Attorney at Law in George-yard, London, who had been clerk to his eldeſt brother Herbert Springett, Gent. — Evan Patterſon, Gent. heir to Mr. Page, ſold it, in 1762, to

Peter Muilman Eſq; And he purchaſed about the ſame time another eſtate adjoyning, of William-Tuffnell Jolliff, of Nun-Monkton in Yorkſhire, Eſq;

This pariſh is rated to the Land-tax at 128*l.* 4*s.*

A Market, on Mondays weekly, was procured for this place by the Earls of Oxford, on or before the reign of K. John: and renewed by K. Henry VII. (s) but now out of uſe.

Here are three Fairs, in commemoration of the tutelar Saints to whom the Nunnery and Church were dedicated. The firſt on the 3d of May, the Invention of the Holy Croſs. The ſecond 25 July, St. James, to whom the old Church was dedicated. The third 6 December, St. Nicolas, to whom the preſent Pariſh Church is dedicated.

Charitable Foundations and Charities.

An Hoſpital was founded here in the reign of K. Henry III. by Hugh de Vere, the 4th Earl of Oxford, with an endowment, [tho' we cannot find the particulars;] to pray for his own ſoul, and the ſouls of his wife, anceſtors, and heirs; and to exerciſe hoſpitality, and relieve poor and impotent people (t).

It ſtood on the ſouth-eaſt ſide of the Caſtle, at the right hand ſide of the entrance into the Caſtle-yard. And there were poor perſons dwelling in it in the laſt century, though it was then much defaced, and now totally deſtroyed. To this Hoſpital belonged a Chapel that had two Bells, and 2 or 3 chaplains, for the celebration of divine ſervice. They had a burying-place peculiar to themſelves. Sometimes this Hoſpital occurs by the name of the New Abbey: for John the 7th Earl of Oxford gave in his will, in the year 1359, 100 marks for rebuilding the Chapel called New Abbey in Caſtle Hengham (u). And here is a meadow formerly belonging to this Hoſpital, called New-Abbey-meadow to this day.

A Chantry was founded here, as well as at Hedingham-Sible, and by the ſame perſons, to pray for the ſoul of Sir John Hawkwood and his two military companions; and the endowment mentioned in that pariſh was for both Chantries: Therefore we ſhall refer to Hedingham-Sible. The Chantry-houſe was ſtanding at the end of the town, by the right hand ſide of the road leading to Sudbury till 1676, when it was pulled down, and ſet up again for a farm-houſe upon ſome lands belonging to the late diſſolved Nunnery.

William Martin of Halſted, clothier, by his will, dated 20 May 1573, gave an Houſe and lands at Ruſley-green in this pariſh; two thirds of the profits to be received by the feoffees of Bocking, and the other third by the feoffees of this pariſh. To be diſtributed among ſuch aged ſick and impotent Poor as the feoffees ſhall judge to ſtand in moſt need. The whole is now let for about 6*l.* a year.

Dunſtan Baldwin, brewer and baker of this pariſh, by his will dated 30 May 1586, gave a piece of ground out of his land called Winkfeild, to build upon it two Almſhouſes, for the dwelling of two aged and godly diſpoſed perſons: which houſes were accordingly built by Anne his widow.

Edward Brewer of Wethersfield, Clothier, by deed, dated 20 May 1612, gave two houſes by the land called Bowmans, in this pariſh, for two diſtinct dwellers, and endowed them with a rent charge of 40*s.* per annum, to be paid half yearly out of the Dye-houſe near Alderford-mill in Sible Hedingham, and out of other lands in the ſame pariſh and Great Mapleſted, with intent to keep the ſaid Almſhouſes in repair, the overplus to be diſtributed by the feoffees to the poor dwellers. This Charity with the annuity, is worth about 5 l. a year.

The Hon. John Vere of Kirby-hall Eſq; by his will, dated in 1623, deviſed a tenement with a barn and piece of ground in Nunnery-ſtreet, for the habitation of four aged impotent poor and honeſt perſons of this pariſh, and endowed it with an annuity of five pounds a year, to be paid to the Miniſter, Churchwardens, and Overſeers, and ſix other inhabitants, who are equally to diſtribute the charity to the poor dwellers, the charge of reparation being firſt deducted. For the ſurer performance of this pious intention, his brother and heir Horace Lord Vere of Tilbury, by deed 10 May 1625, tied Ovington-hall and all his lands in that pariſh, to pay the ſaid annuity quarterly for ever. This charity, with the annuity, is worth 12*l.* a year.

Joſeph Alliſton, clerk, by his will, dated 29 May 1629, did, out of his lands called Wytheſfield, or Mannings Croft, lying by Dragon-lane, give to the poor of this pariſh an annuity of ten ſhillings, to be diſtributed on Eaſter-Monday for ever, at the diſcretion of the Miniſter, Churchwarden, Overſeers, and ſome other of the chief inhabitants.

Elizabeth, Counteſs dowager of Oxford, gave 20*l.* in her will, 1630, for the uſe of the poor of this pariſh, with which money there was bought a houſe and yard for poor dwellers.

Mrs. Thomaſine Vere, widow of the abovesaid John Vere Eſq; by her will, dated in May 1639, gave 20*l.* to be improved by the diſcretion of certain feoffees to the uſe of the poor of this pariſh for ever. But the money having been divers times in danger of being loſt, the overſeers purchaſed with it two houſes in this pariſh, in the road leading towards Sudbury.

There belong alſo to this pariſh Almſhouſes adjoyning to the Church-yard, anciently called the Church-houſe. And a houſe at the town's end, called Pye-corner, formerly ſtyled part of the Still-yard.

The Church, dedicated to St. Nicolas, is not of a Gothic and heavy architecture, as too many old Churches are. The Boar and Mollet being carved over the north and ſouth windows on the outſide of the Church, and amongſt the ornaments of the timber-work of the ſtately high roof on the inſide, ſhew that it was built by the Veres Earls of Oxford. From which tokens, and the faſhion of the eaſt window of the chancel, it is juſtly ſuppoſed to have been built about the reign of K. John, by Aubrey de Vere, the ſecond Earl of Oxford; who then endowed it, as appears by the Monaſticon Anglic. (w). As for the preſent Tower, which contains only one Bell, it was rebuilt about the year 1616 (x). In the Chancel were ſeveral ſtalls, which are now removed to the lower part of the Church.

Here was an old Church before this was rebuilt; and leſs than the preſent one, as appears by the foundations which are diſcovered juſt beneath the floor of the Chancel. It was dedicated to St. James, whoſe anniverſary [by one of the Fairs] is kept in the ſame ſtreet near the Church, 25 July; and to whom was conſecrated a curious Spring of water at the town's end, fam'd undoubtedly for Miracles. Oppoſite to this Spring, in a field of about an acre, now a hop-ground, ſtood St. James's free-chapel (y).

The Church of Hedingham-caſtle is a perpetual Curacy, or Donative, of about 50 l. a year, in the gift of Thomas Aſhurſt Eſq;

YELDHAM.

Here are two contiguous Pariſhes of this name, north of the Hedinghams, diſtinguiſhed from each other by the additional appellations of Great and Little, or Nether and Upper, i. e. Lower and Higher.

They are otherwiſe called Eldham, and Geldam, Geldham, or Geldeham, Gelham and Zeldham.

The Saxon words Ælꝺ, or Elꝺe, ſignify old, and Ᵹelꝺ, payment or tax. As for Ham, the meaning of it hath been frequently mentioned; but how any of theſe words are applicable here, I leave to the reader's judgment.

14. GREAT YELDHAM

is the largeſt of the two, as the name imports. In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, the capital maner was holden by a Freeman, and at the time of the general Survey by Ralph the brother of Ilger; and his under-tenant Walter: and Richard ſon of Earl Giſlebert had then other lands here, which had belonged to Wiſgar and eight Sochemen [H]. Griſmer was the under-tenant.

Moſt of the lands in this pariſh are Dutchy-lands, holden of the Honor of Clare.

At preſent here are five Maners, or reputed Maners. 1. Yeldham-hall. 2. Gunces. 3. Spains-hall. 4. Butlers. 5. Grapnells, and Old-hall. There is alſo a capital Meſſuage in this pariſh, called The Pole, or Pool.

1. YELDHAM-HALL,

ſtands near the Church.

In the reign of King John it belonged to a Family ſurnamed Fitz-Geffrey, or Jeffery.—— Jeffery Fitz-Jeffery paſſed by fine, in 1203, this maner of Gelham, with others in Eſſex and Suffolk, to

Walter Fitz-Humfrey (z). And K. Henry III in the 37th of his reign, granted unto——Humfrey, ſon of this Walter, free-warren in this maner, and in Pentlow (a). It remained in this family till about the year 1329, when either—— Sir Walter or his ſon —— Humfrey, ſold this eſtate to

Henry Darcy Eſq; who ſettled it by fine (b). And the ſaid Humfrey releaſed to him all his right in this maner, in 1337 (c). This Henry Darcy, deſcended from Norman Darcie of Nocton in Lincolnſhire (d), was a Citizen and Draper of London; Sheriff of that city in 1327; and Major in 1337 (e). By Catharine his wife [I] he had his ſon——Thomas Darcy Eſq; who paid a relief for this maner in 1365 (f) but being a ſpend-thrift, he ſold it to John Sleford Rector of Ralſham, who levied a fine for divers uſes.——Thomas Fryth of Melford had it for life about 1392. Next —— Geffrey Michell (g).

John, ſon of William Durward, or Doreward, of Bocking, [where ſee an account of that family] had it afterwards, and preſented to the Rectory 8 May 1408 (h)——Sir John Doreward paid a relief in 1470, for this maner, holden of the Honor of Clare, by the Service of three knights-fees (i). His ſon —— John Doreward Eſq; who dyed in 1476. held this maner, lying in Great and Little Yeldham, Mapiltreſted, Haverill, Hethingham-Sible, &c. of Cecily Ducheſs of York, as of the Honor of Clare (k). ——John Doreward Eſq; his ſon, held the ſame at the time of his deceaſe, in 1480, deſcribed as the maner of Great Geldham, otherwiſe Yeldham, with the advowſon of the Church; and

By will he gave the maners of Great Geldham, and Barwick-hall in Toppesfield, to his ſecond ſon —— William Doreward Eſq; who, upon his nephew John's death, became heir to the whole Doreward eſtate (m). He married Margery, eldeſt daughter and co-heir of Sir Roger Arſick of South-acre in Norfolk, and had by her, John: and Elizabeth who became the wife of Thomas Fotheringhay of Woodriſing in Norfolk, Eſq; The time of his death is not known.——John, his only ſon, ſucceeded him; and held this maner, and 300 acres of arable, 200 acr. of paſture, 40 of meadow, 60 of wood, in this and other adjoyning pariſhes (n). He lived at Spains-hall in this pariſh: and dyed the laſt day of February 1495. By his wife Margery, daughter of John Nanton Eſq; he had no iſſue ſurviving him [K]; whereupon his three neices, daughters of his ſiſter Elizabeth Fotheringhay, became his coheirs; viz. Margaret, wife of Nicolas Beaupre; Elena wife of Henry Thurſbie; and Chriſtian wife of John de Vere Eſq; ſon of Sir George de Vere brother to John the 13th Earl of Oxford; and who, upon this his uncle's deceaſe, became the 14th Earl of Oxford. Their marriage ſettlement bears date 2 Janu. 1493; by virtue of which ſettlement the maners of Great Yeldham, Berwicks and Scotenys in Toppesfeild, were ſettled on this

John, and his ſpouſe, and on their heirs; and for want of heirs, then on the heirs of the ſaid John. He dyed 10 March 1512, without iſſue: and was ſucceeded in this lordſhip, among many others (o), by —— John, the 15th Earl of Oxford —— John, the 16th Earl, and Edward the 17th Earl. The latter ſquandering away his eſtates, as I have often obſerved, this lordſhip was purchaſed of him for

Thomas, and Edmund, Plumb; in whoſe deſcendents it continued till 1718. The Plumme family extended itſelf into ſeveral places of this and other counties, and was for a while conſiderable. The firſt of this family I meet with, is Robert Plumme of Great Yeldham Gent. who was tenant of this maner and eſtate under John de Vere the great Earl of Oxford in the reign of K. Henry VIII.——Robert, his ſon and heir, bought this maner of Edward Earl of Oxford, for his two youngeſt ſons, Thomas, and Edmund. By his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of . . . . . Purcas of this pariſh, which was buried here 25 June 1596, he had 3 ſons, Robert, Thomas, and Edmund. Robert, the eldeſt ſon, was ſeated at Spains-hall, where we ſhall take proper notice of him. Edmund, the third ſon, was of Hawkdon-hall in Suffolk [L]. — Thomas Plumme, or Plume, the ſecond ſon, was ſeated at Yeldham-hall: and dyed 23 Febr. 1615, poſſeſſed of this maner, with 200 acres of arable, 20 acr. of meadow, 20 of paſture, and 20 of wood; holden of the King as of his Honour of Clare (p). By Mary, daughter of . . . Hamond of Ellingham in Norfolk, he had three ſons; Samuel; Thomas, of Maldon; father of Thomas, D. D. a great benefactor to that Town, [where he will be particularly mentioned] and founder of the Plumian Profeſſorſhip in Cambridge; and Robert. —— Samuel, the eldeſt ſon, of Yeldham-hall, married firſt, Dorothy, daughter of William Higham of Eaſt-Ham, and Lincoln's-inn, Eſq; by whom he had 1. Samuel, educated at Oxford and Lincoln's-inn, but who dyed before his father, and was buried here 18 July 1635. 2. Thomas, of London, Linnen-draper, who by his wife, Elizabeth daughter of Giles Barnardiſton of Clare-Priory Eſq; had ſeveral children, that dyed young, or without iſſue. His ſecond wife was, Catharine Bolton of Surrey, gentlewoman to the renowned Lady Vere of Kirby-hall, and by her he had, 3. —— Nathanael, baptiſed 2 March 1651. He became an Attorney at law of very good reputation: and married Elizabeth daughter of John Butcher of Spains-hall, Gent. [M]. But 28 March 1718-19, he ſold this eſtate to

Samuel Ruſh Eſq; The Ruſh family is originally of Sudborne in Suffolk.——Thomas Ruſh of that place had three ſons,——Arthur Ruſh of Sudborne Eſq; Thomas, who ſettled at Boreham in this county; and Antony, made Canon of Windſor in 1567; who was alſo Prebendary of Canterbury; and inſtalled Dean of Chicheſter 10 June 1570; He dyed and was buried at Windſor in 1577 (q).

William Ruſh of Colcheſter, married Anne daughter of Mr. Smart, Alderman of that town, and had three ſons, Samuel; William; and George. William, the ſecond ſon, was of London, diſtiller, and left no iſſue. George, the youngeſt ſon, married Anne, daughter of . . . . Collard of Braintree, M. D. and had by her Bridget, wife of Elias Brown of Lincolns-inn-fields. The eldeſt ſon, —— Samuel Ruſh, Eſq; of Clapham, where he lies buried with a monument, married Hannah daughter of Ralph Creſſeild of Colcheſter, ſiſter of Sir Ralph's father, and had Samuel, William, Hannah, and Elizabeth, which laſt dyed unmarried. William, the ſecond ſon was a Vinegar merchant, and dyed 27 Octob. 1738, aged 67. He married 1. Margaret daughter of William Lorkin. 2. Mary daughter of William Boys Eſq; Alderman of Colcheſter, which dyed 9 July 1742, aged 68: They had iſſue Samuel; and George who dyed unmarried. — The eldeſt ſon Samuel Ruſh of the Park in Southwark Eſq; diſtiller, had two wives. 1. Elizabeth daughter of William Brown of

He departed this life 9 Janu. 1710, aged 67 years. —— Samuel, the eldeſt ſon, had ſeveral children.

Three of his ſons, Samuel aged 14 years, William 13 years, Charles 10 months, and Martha aged 5 years; all dyed in the year 1713, and within the ſpace of two months. So ſudden was his loſs of ſo hopefull an iſſue!

John Ruſh Eſq; is the preſent poſſeſſor of this eſtate; who hath alſo a farm called the Change, behind the Church, once belonging to John Hatcher, Eſq; [N].

2. GUNCES, alias BUNCES, took that name from a family called Gounſe, or Guncelin, its ancient owners. Guncelin, ſon of Richard, was witneſs to a deed dated 24 Edw. I. and held half a fee in Gelham, and Toppeſfeild (r). . . . . John Gounſe had a meſſuage, 8 acres and 3 roods of paſture, in 1370, in the laſt named pariſh (s), and —— Thomas Gounce was witneſs to a deed of Richard Rector of Gelham, dated 9 Hen. IV.

The maner houſe is ſituated both in Toppeſfield and Yeldham, though moſt of it ſtands in the latter; for which reaſon it is reckoned to belong to this pariſh, as a great part of the land doth. This maner was holden of the Honor of Clare by the ſervice of half a knight's-fee. And part of it ſeems alſo to have been holden of the Honor of Stambourn, by the name of Daunces in Gelham (t).

In Queen Elizabeth's reign it was in William Bigge, who dyed 5 Janu. 1585, holding this by the name of Gounces: likewiſe Barwicks-hall in Toppesfield, and other eſtates near (u).

Richard Symonds dyed poſſeſſed of it in 1627, by the name of Gunges (w). And it continued in that family [more particularly mentioned under the Pool] till John the laſt of the family left it in 1692 to his nephew

John Pepys Eſq; whoſe ſiſter Suſanna, and her huſband Dr. Jonas Redman, ſold it, and alſo Spains-hall, in 1749, to Peter Muilman Eſq; a very eminent Merchant in London [O]. He, and his brother Henry Muilman Eſq; were the firſt of the family that came out of the United Provinces, where their anceſtors flouriſhed for above 300 years. Their brothers, now in the Magiſtracy at Amſterdam, are ſome of the moſt conſiderable merchants in Europe.

3. SPAINS-HALL

ſtands on the Eaſt ſide of the river Colne, about three quarters of a mile from the Church: and derived its name from the ancienteſt owners upon record, the family De Iſpania or Hiſpania, which were originally of Spain, and gave name to Spains-hall in Finchingfeild, where they were ſeated, and alſo to Willingale-Spain.

William de Muſchet held this, in 1253, under the Earl of Oxford: for it hath been all along holden of the Honor of Caſtle Hedingham.

William, and Richard, de Hiſpania, were poſſeſſed of it in the reign of K. Henry III. And in 1286, Cecily and Iſabell daughters of Michael de Iſpania.

Under John de Vere Earl of Oxford, who dyed in 1360, it was holden by John Weld, as half a fee (x): and continned a while in his family, at leaſt till 1426.

Then it appears to have been in John Doreward (y). And, in 1498, in William Wallpole.

In 1572, 1573, Robert Plumb, John Crochrood, and Richard, and Thomas, Purcas, ſeverally held this maner of the Honor of Caſtle-Hedingham.

From the Plumme family it paſſed, as the foregoing, to Symonds, Pepys, and Peter Muilman Eſq;

4. The Maner of BUTLERS.

The manſion-houſe ſtood behind Spains-hall, in the fields, where the foundations are ſtill viſible, from which it appears to have been a large edifice.

'Tis probable that it had its name from a family ſurnamed Butler [P]: And ſuch a one there was, which held the Lordſhip of Great Bardfeild in this county. In grants and deeds of the Earls of Clare, I frequently met with witneſſes ſurnamed Pincerna, or Boteler: which office of Butler under thoſe Earls was then a conſiderable Place. [See under Bulmer.]

This maner hath been long incorporated into Spains-hall, and brought moſt probably into the Spain family by a female heir of the Butlers. For ſome time it belonged to the De Veres Earls of Oxford [Q], and of Edward the 17th Earl was purchaſed, as Yeldham-hall, by Robert Plumme. His ſon —— Robert Plumme Eſq; married two wives, and by the firſt, had only a daughter. By the ſecond, Grace [daughter and coheir of Robert Crackbone of Takeleygrange] that dyed 21 July 1615 (z), he had two ſons Robert, and John. The latter was ſeated at Ridgewell-hall [where ſee an account of him.] Robert, the father dyed 13 Aug. 1625, ſeized in fee of the maner of Spains and Botelers (a). ——Robert his eldeſt ſon was living at Spains-hall in 1634. By his ſecond wife, Honora daughter of . . . . Woolrich, he had a daughter. And by his firſt wife, Frances daughter of . . . Gawſell, he had 2 ſons and 4 daughters. From this family Botelers paſſed, with Spains-hall, to Symonds, Pepys, and Peter Muilman Eſq;

5. The manner of GRAPNELLS and Old-Hall.

Time hath ſo entirely ſwallowed this up, that no traces of it remain. But that here was ſuch a maner, is plain from an ancient deed, wherein Nicolas Hales Rector of Great Staneway, John Barcamſted, Chaplain, and John Somer, did, in 1395, convey to William Doreward and Catharine his wife all their Maners of Grapnells and Old-Hall, with appertenances, in Great and Little Gelham, Stambourne, and Toppesfeild. This deed is witneſſed by Thomas Coggeſhale, Clement Spice, Robert Rikedon, Tho. Toppesfeild, and Thomas Mackwilliam.

In the Inquiſition taken after the death of John Doreward, in 1480, I find 4 acres of arable called Grapenell, Old-Hall, Levendon, and Le Pole, joyned together, and ſaid to be holden of the Honor of Clare (b).

From the Dorewards it paſſed to the Oxford family; and is now incorporated into ſome of the adjoyning eſtates.

It took its name from an ancient family. For I find John Grapynell, Thomas Grapnyll, and others, witneſſes to a deed dated 24 Edw. I.

THE POOL,

a capital meſſuage in this pariſh, ſituated on the eaſtern bank of the river Colne, by the road ſide, is above a mile from the Church.

It took its name from the ancienteſt poſſeſſors of it upon record, the noble family of De la Pole, ſome of whom were Dukes of Suffolk, and had eſtates at Geſtingthorp, and Hatfeild-Peverell. Hugh de la Pole, of this place, was witneſs to a Deed dated 24 Edw. I. 1296. In that family it continued till John de la Pole, ſometimes written John att Poole, paſſed it away in K. Edward the third's reign, to

John Weld, mentioned under Spains-Hall. In 1373 John Weld, and Roger de Wolverſton, granted to Geffrey Michell of Great Gelham, all thoſe lands and tenements called Le Pole, which they had by feoffment from Sir Thomas Nanton, and belonged before to Thomas Saleman. By ſome intermediate conveyances it came to

Sir Thomas Staunton [R]; then to . . . Doreward (c).—John Doreward Eſq; ſold it to

John de Vere Earl of Oxford. And his grandſon —— Edward Earl of Oxford alienated it, with the other eſtates in this pariſh to

Robert Plumb: from whom it came by marriage to

Richard Symonds Eſq; And as his poſterity was ſeated and flouriſhed [illegible] about 100 years, it will be proper to give ſome account of them. The family is originally of Croft in Lancaſhire, where they continued in a direct line for about 20 generations, and at length terminated in females. —— From Richard, in the third generation, ſprung the Symonds's of Norfolk; and from John, in the eighth generation, ſprung the Symonds's of Cambridgeſhire. —— Thomas Symonds, in the eleventh generation, married . . . daughter of Mr. Tolleſhunt, of Tolleſhunt Darey. —Thomas, in the fourteenth deſcent, married . . . daughter of Robert Oſbaldeſton. —— John, in the ſeventeenth deſcent, by . . . . daughter of William Lerding, had two ſons, William of Croft; and Robert who marrying . . . . daughter and heir of . . . . . Congreve of Stratton in Staffordſhire, ſettled in that county; and from his deſcendents iſſued the Symonds's of Oxfordſhire . . . . John, in the twentieth generation, was of Newport; and, by Margaret his wife, daughter of Thomas Maynard, was father of . . , John: who, by Anne daughter of Thomas Bendbow of Shropſhire, had his ſon and heir

RICHARD SYMONDS above-mentioned. He was a Curſitor in Chancery; and marrying, 9 Janu. 1580, Elizabeth daughter of Robert Plumb of Yeldham-Hall above-mentioned, had in frank marriage with her the Poole, where he ſettled. His wife was interred in this Church 24 Janu. 1611, and he himſelf dyed 8 July 1627, and was alſo buried here [S]. ——Richard, then aged 40 years, is ſet down in the Inquiſition as his ſon and heir (d). But, according to the pedigree, he had alſo 4 other ſons; viz. John; Thomas, who dyed without iſſue 5 June 1625; Samuel; and Edmund; and Richard is ſet down as the fifth. Of John, who is placed as the eldeſt in the pedigree, we ſhall give a particular account, after taking proper notice of the others. 3. Samuel, the 3d ſon, married Dorothy daughter of Thomas Harlakenden of Earl's-Colne. He was a Curſitor in Chancery; and had Olivers in Toppesfeild; but retired to New England with his family. . . . 4. Edmund the 4th ſon, was alſo a Curſitor in Chancery. In right of his wife, Anne only daughter of Joſhua Draper of Braintree, to whom he was married 2 February 1614, he had an eſtate at Black-Notley, where he dwelt, and dying 9 Decemb. 1627; was buried in that Church. He had 3 ſons, and 1 daughter. Richard, the eldeſt ſon, was a Curſitor in Chancery, and Collector of the Three Volumes in folio, preſerved in the Heralds Office, containing the Arms, Epitaphs, and other Antiquities in this county, to which we ſo often refer in the courſe of this work. On the 25th of March 1643, he was committed to priſon by John, the eldeſt ſon abovementioned, of Richard Symonds, who firſt ſettled at the Pool, and Elizabeth Plumb, married Anne daughter of Tho. Elyott of Godalming in Surrey, Eſq; by whom he had 4 ſons, Richard, John, Samuel, and Fitz-Symonds: and 4 daughters, Agnes wife of Tho. Bacon of London, merchant; Elizabeth, of Antony Wolmer of Lincoln's-Inn Eſq; Thomaſine and Dorothy, twins, born 16 Auguſt 1627. Thomaſine was married to . . . Pepys Eſq; . . . . Richard, the eldeſt ſon, born 13 Octob. 1616, being of Lincoln's-Inn, was in ſeveral battles with the Earl of Eſſex againſt the King; and ſlain at Naſeby 1645, fighting under the command of Sir Thomas Fairfax. . . . . John, the ſecond ſon, born at Yeldham, 4 Sept. 1618, became one of the Curſitors in Chancery upon his father's reſignation in 1641. He was of Lincoln's-Inn, and near 40 years a Juſtice of Peace for this county. He had two wives, but iſſue by neither. The firſt was Elizabeth daughter of Sir Robert Quarles of Rumford Knt. She was buried in this Church 18 Decemb. 1666. His ſecond wife was Jane daughter of Sir Robert Burgoyne, of Sutton in Bedfordſhire, Knt. This worthy perſon dyed 19 Febr. 1692-3, in the 74th year of his age, and was buried in the South Chapel of this Church [V]. By will he left this and other his eſtates to his nephew, John Pepys Eſq; of whoſe heirs it was purchaſed, in 1749, with the reſt by . . . . Peter Muilman Eſq; The houſe is moſtly pulled down.

A Houſe, near the Church, was anciently uſed and appropriated for dreſſing a Dinner for poor folks when married: and had all utenſils and furniture convenient for that purpoſe. It hath ſince been converted into a School. John Symonds Eſq; had ordered in his will 200 l. to be laid out in lands for the maintenance of a School-maſter here. But he himſelf, before his deceaſe, bought a farm in Halſted, of about 16 l. a year, called Kettles, and made it the endowment of this School.

A Houſe, in the lane leading to Tilbury, was given for the habitation of the Church-clerk.

Here are Almſhouſes for Six aged poor men and women, maintained by the pariſh.

Out of a pightle of about five roods, called Cracknells, near Mans-croſs-houſe, purchaſed by William Fitche of Edward Earl of Oxford, is to be paid the ſum of three ſhillings yearly at Eaſter for ever to the Church-wardens for the relief of the poor. And there is to be provided a ſufficient quantity of peaſe-ſtraw for the winter ſeaſon, and ruſhes for the ſummer, to be ſtrewed in the ſeats and ſtools in the Church, as was uſed aforetime. The like cuſtom is, or lately was, kept up at Great Waltham, and other places in this county.

The Church, dedicated to St. Andrew, conſiſts of a body and a ſouth iſle; which are tyled, as is alſo the Chancel. On the ſouth ſide near the Chancel there is a Chapel leaded belonging to the Poole, wherein ſeveral of the Symonds family lie interred with monuments. The Church is a handſome ſtone building; when and by whom erected, is unknown; 'tis ſuppoſed to have been by contribution of the neighbouring nobility and gentry, becauſe of the coats of arms ſtill viſible on the rail or partition between the Church and Chancel, particularly of the De Veres Earls of Oxford. At the weſt end there is a ſtately Tower, embattled, containing 5 Bells. Peter Muilman Eſq; hath adorned this Church with a handſome altar-piece, painted glaſs, and velvet pulpit and communion cloth.

The Advowſon of this Rectory hath been all along appendent to the maner of Yeldham-hall. In right of that it was in the Dorewards; and is now in John Ruſh Eſq;

15. LITTLE, or UPPER YELDHAM lies north-eaſt of the laſt. When theſe two Pariſhes were divided, cannot be exactly determined. It muſt have been ſoon after the Conqueſt: for here was a Church in the year 1090, which Gilbert de Clare granted, among other donations, to the Collegiate Church of St. John Baptiſt of Clare [W].

At the time of the general ſurvey, this pariſh was reckoned only as a Berewic, or Hamlet, to Clare, or Claret-hall, which was then holden by Euſtace Earl of Bologne [X].

It doth not appear from the Inquiſitions poſt mortem, that the denomination of Great and Little Yeldham prevailed till the reign of King Edward III. But in the 45th of that King, Thomas de Vere Earl of Oxford is recorded to have held the maner of parva Gelham (e) i. e. Little Yeldham. In the 34th of the ſame King (f) it was called only by the general name of Geldham [Y].

The maner of OVER YELDHAM is ſuppoſed to have been the two knights fees and a quarter which Alberic de Vere, ſecond Earl of Oxford, held of the Honor of Bologne in the reign of K. Henry II. (g). His brother —— Robert, the third Earl of Oxford, paid 10 l. into the Exchequer for the farm of Geldham, in K. John's reign. And his ſon —— Hugh, the fourth Earl, paid the ſame fee-farm of 10*l.* for this maner, which he held of the king in ca. (h). It conſiſted then of 308 acres of arable, 4 of freſh ground, 7 of meadow, 6 of paſture, 13 of wood; a windmill, view of frank-pledge, &c. His ſucceſſors held it under the ſame fee-farm till 1336, when K. Edward III. releaſed the fee-farm to John the ſeventh Earl of Oxford, in lieu of 20 marks yearly rent which he uſed to receive out of the Exchequer for the third peuny of the county of Oxon [Z]. And then it was holden in capite, and as parcel of the Earldom of Oxford (i) —— Edward, the ſeventeenth Earl, ſold, by licenſe dated 2 April 1584, this maner [A], with the advowſon of the Church, to John Mabbe, or Webbes, and his heirs: it being then called 20 meſſuages, 10 tofts, 20 cottages, 1 mill, 30 gardens, 500 acres of arable, 150 acres of meadow, 500 acres of paſture, 300 of wood, 100 of furze and heath, 40 of more, 40 of marſh, and 10 l. rent, with appertenances: (k) and a recovery was ſuffered in Trinity term.

From Mabbe it paſſed, in 1592, to Lewis Prowde, and Edward Smith: and, in 1594, to William Drywood (l).

Elizabeth Bedwell, widow, kept her firſt court here 30 Octob. 1596; and her laſt court 24 Aug. 1606. She dyed 20 Febr. 1608, and Anne her daughter and heir was aged fourteen years (m).

Next, William Dod, and Elizabeth his wife, were poſſeſſed of this maner in 1608. And — Richard Dod of London, Gent. in right of Anne his wife, kept a court-baron here 3 Octob. 1609, likewiſe in 1611, and 18 April 1642, and 14 October 1647, which was his laſt court. He had this maner for life: reverſion, after his deceaſe, to William Bedwell, Clerk, and his heirs. Bedwell was dead in 1647, and had left it to his three daughters and coheirs. They were, Catharine, wife of . . . Veſey; Anne, wife of . . . Luſhington; and Margaret, wife of John Clarke, Miniſter of St. Botolph's-Biſhopſgate. They held their firſt court here 22 May 1651, [B] and another court jointly 18 Octob. 1661.

The ſaid Margaret, and John Clarke, had iſſue, John, bred a merchant, who dyed unmarried; and Sarah that became the wife of Waldgrave Siday of Alphamſton Eſq; who had by her, Waldgrave born 9 March 1661; and John, Fellow of Emanuel-College in Cambridge, where he dyed in 1712. The father dyed young; for, Sarah his widow, Waldgrave her ſon, and John Clarke her father, kept a court here 18 July 1664. As the ſaid Sarah and her ſon did 8 Octob. 1666, 13 Octob. 1668; ſhe alone 24 Sept. 1669. As guardian during the minority of her ſon 6 Octob. 1673, and ſo on to 11 May 1682 [C]. Then her ſon —— Waldgrave Siday Gent. kept his firſt court here 12 April 1683, and afterwards to 1696, in which year he dyed on the 9th of October. He had married Anne, daughter of John Morden of Bradeley in Suffolk Gent. by whom he had, Anne, baptized 9 Auguſt 1692, Sarah, baptized 18 December 1693, and Waldgrave, poſthumous, baptized 9 Febr. 1696, who lived but a ſhort time. Of the two daughters, Anne was married to John Batteley of Trorſton, Clerk, and Sarah to Robert Plampin of Cheracre-hall in Shimpling, Suffolk. Theſe two coheirs, in 1749, ſold this maner and eſtate to Peter Muilman Eſq; who by the purchaſe of ſeveral other adjoining parcels, is become poſſeſſed of the greateſt part of this pariſh.

Abberton-maner, and Michaelſtow in Ramſey, were anciently holden of this maner (n).

was once a reputed maner in this pariſh ; and had its name from the Goodinge family, who were poſſeſſed of it in the Reign of K. Richard II. and after. In old writings it is ſometimes called hall a knights-fee, and at other times only a quarter of a fee. The houſe is now gone, but there are woods in the pariſh ſtill called Gooding's woods ; being part of the eſtate named Staffords, from a family of that ſurname, who had it in the reigns of K. Henry IV. and V. It belonged in the ſixteenth century to Fryer, or Frere, of Clare ;—and to Richard Eden, of Great Cornard, who conveyed it, 20 Octob. 1578, to . . . . Richard Unwin, of Steple Bumſted ; being deſcribed in the fine, as one meſſuage and a garden, 120 acres of arable, 15 acres of meadow, 50 of paſture, and 30 of wood (n). Robert Unwin conveyed it, 14 Auguſt 1621, to . . . Roger Harlakenden. It was afterwards in . . . . Thomas Cratherode Gent. of the ancient family of that ſurname in Toppesfeild : and is better known by the name of The Red Houſe, lying about a mile ſouth from the Church. It belongs now to . . . Samuel Ruggles of Bocking Eſq;

Sewals makes a figure in the Map : but in an old Deed I find it deſcribed only, as a meſſuage and one croft of land ; and a parcel containing by eſtimation 20 acres, in a field called Longland, adjoyning to Nicolas Stafford's eſtate. In 1354, John Earl of Oxford granted the cuſtody of all the lands in this pariſh, then in his hands by reaſon of the minority of William ſon and heir of John Reyner, unto Robert Sewale of Coggeſhall (o) ; which gave occaſion to this name.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 474 l. 10 s. The Bridges of Culford and Goſmandeſford are to be repaired by Great and Little Gelham (p).

John Cook of Revys in Oton Belchamp, by his will dated 6 January 1555, did give to the Poor of this pariſh Two ſhillings yearly ; one ſhilling to be paid fourteen days after Michaelmas, and the other at Lady-day.

The Church is ſmall, of one pace with the Chancel ; and both tyled. In a little Tower at the weſt end, embattled, there are two Bells. Belonging to it is a handſome ſet of Plate for the Communion, given by Peter Muilman Eſq;

This Church originally belonged to Richard Fitz-Giſlebert, mentioned under the foregoing Pariſh ; whoſe ſon, Gilbert de Clare, gave it to the Priory of Clare (q) ; converted afterwards into a College at Stoke. And in their gift did the Advowſon of this Rectory continue, till the general diſſolution of religious houſes, when it came to the Crown ; and hath remained in it ever ſince : though it hath been conveyed with the Maner to the ſeveral Lords thereof, as it was to the preſent Lord of Over-Yeldham-hall, Peter Muilman Eſq; is the next pariſh in our courſe. The name ſeems to be derived from the three Saxon words ᵹeꞅꞇ, a ſtranger, a gueſt ; inᵹ, a meadow or paſture ; and þoꞃpe, a village. It is written in records theſe various ways, Gedlingthorp, Geſting-horp, Geſtnynthorp, Geſtmynthorpe, Gheſtingetorp, Gleſtingethorp, Gleſtingetorp.

In this pariſh are four maners ; namely, 1. 2. The maner of Overhall, with Gardiners, or Gernons. 3. . . . That of Netherhall. 4. The maner of Odewell. The two firſt are the ancienteſt and moſt conſiderable, and were diſtinct even in the reign of Edward the Confeſſor, tho' not known by their preſent names till a good while after. The two laſt are of a more recent and uncertain original.

1. 2. The maner of Overhall is ſo called from its higher ſituation. This is properly the maner of Geſtingthorp ; and the manſion-houſe ſtands a little way weſtward from the Church [D]. It was holden of the Honor of Clare.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign, this was one of the lordſhips in this County belonging to Algar the noble Earl of Mercia, [concerning whom ſee more under Finchingfeild] And, at the time of the general ſurvey, it was holden by Otto, a goldſmith, or banker [E], who alſo farmed of the King the maner of Finchingfeild, and had ſeveral houſes in Colcheſter ; and whoſe poſterity communicated their ſurname to the pariſh of Belchamp-Oton. Otto was ſucceeded by his ſon ——William ; whoſe ſon —— Otto Fitz-William was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire, the ſeven laſt years of K. Henry II. and the firſt two years of Richard I. He married Beatrix, one of the daughters and coheirs of William de Beauchamp Baron of Bedford, by whom he had his ſon Otto, who dyed in 1282, without iſſue: and three daughters, Joanna, Maud, and Beatrix (t) [G]. The eldeſt and youngeſt dyed unmarried, or without iſſue; and Maud, brought this and other eſtates [H] in marriage to her Huſband

Sir John de Boutetort, a man of great note in his time, [for a more particular account of whom ſee under Belchamp-Otton.] They had 4 ſons, Thomas; John; Otto; and Robert: and a daughter married to William Latimer. He dyed 18 Edw. II. 1324, or 1325, holding jointly with his wife Maud, for term of their lives, this maner and other eſtates of the gift of Hugh Perpoint; as a truſtee, I ſuppoſe, by whom they were ſettled on John the ſecond ſon, and his heirs (u). This ——John Boutetort Knt. ſucceeded his father in the Eſſex eſtate; particularly in the maner of Geſtingthorp, with the advowſon of the Church: and 30 acres in Gosfeild Park, as parcel of the maner of Overhall in Geſtingthorp; which is the firſt time we find this maner ſo called in records. He dyed in 1339, and by Margaret . . . . . his wife, which dyed in 1376, left his ſon and heir ——John (w); that married Joane daughter and coheir of John Gernon of this county, whoſe anceſtors were Barons of Stanſted-Montfichet. By her he had an only daughter, of her mother's name; a very rich heireſs. She was married to

Sir Robert Swynborne of Little Horkſley, [where ſee an account of him] who dyed 19 Octob. 1391. After his death ſhe lived at Overhall. They had 5 ſons, who dyed unmarried, or without iſſue; and two daughters, Alice; and Margery, which laſt was married to Nicolas Berners of Amberden-hall and Codham-hall, in Finchingfield. [See there an account of the family.]

Alice, the eldeſt, became the wife of John Helion of Bumſted-Helion Eſq; They had a daughter, Elizabeth, married to John Warner of Boys-hall in Halſted Eſq; and a ſon —— John Helion Eſq; who dyed 28 Hen. VI. 1450. He married Editha daughter and coheir of Thomas Rolfe of Gosfeild Eſq; and had by her two daughters, Philippa, and Iſabell (x). Philippa became the firſt wife of Sir Thomas Montgomery of Falkborn-hall Eſq; [See above p. 117.] and left no iſſue: and Iſabell was married to

Humfrey Tyrell of Little Warley, who had by her an only daughter, Anne. [See under L. Warley.]

In the mean time, Sir William Fynderne grandſon of Margery Swynborne and her Huſband Nicolas Berners, dyed poſſeſſed of this eſtate 18 Decemb. 1515 (y). Upon whoſe grandſon —Thomas Fynderne's death, it deſcended to the ſaid Anne Tyrell. [See above, p. 234, 235.] She brought this, and other great eſtates, in marriage to Sir Roger Wentworth, of Codham-hall, of a younger branch of the Wentworths of Nettleſted in Suffolk. She dyed 28 Auguſt 1534.—— John Wentworth Eſq; her ſon, then aged forty years (z) ſucceeded her. He was afterwards knighted, and dying 15 Septemb. 1567 [I], was buried in the Chancel of Gosfeild Church, with his wife. [See under that pariſh.]

Anne, their only daughter, aged 30 years, was their ſole heir, and then widow of Henry Fitz-Alan Lord Maltravers (a). Her firſt huſband was Sir Hugh Rich; and her third William Deane Eſq; [See under Dynes-hall in Great Mapleſted.] Having no iſſue by any of them, upon her deceaſe 5 Decemb. 1580, her eſtates fell to

John Wentworth Eſq; her uncle Henry's eldeſt ſon (b). He dyed 13 April 1588, poſſeſſed of this among other fine eſtates, particularly of Gosfeild-hall [under which pariſh a full account is given of the Wentworth family.] (c) He married, 1. Elizabeth daughter of Chriſtopher St. Lawrence, Baron of Howth in Ireland [K] by whom he had —— John, his eldeſt ſon and ſucceſſor, born in 1564. He married Cecily daughter of Edward, and ſiſter and co-heir of Sir Henry Unton, and had by her two ſons and four daughters. John the eldeſt ſon was created a Baronet 22 May 1611, and Anne the eldeſt became wife of Sir Edward Goſtwick of Wellington in Bedfordſhire. Their father and mother, and the ſaid John and Anne, with her huſband and his father, joined together in ſelling this eſtate 4 Octob. 1608, unto

John Sparrow of this pariſh Eſq; ſecond ſon of John Sparrow of Hedingham-Sible Gent. [where ſee an account of the family.] They kept this maner but a little while. For, 26 April 1622, John Sparrow Eſq; the elder, and John Sparrow the younger with Marian his wife, did alienate it for the ſum of 3600 l. to

John Elliſton the elder, and John Elliſton the younger of Sible Hedingham, Clothier. The firſt of this family that occurs to us, is, John Elliſton, Mercer, who flouriſhed at Sudbury in the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth's reign, and was poſſeſſed of a capital houſe in Caſtle-Hedingham, and an eſtate in Great Henny called Nicolls; which laſt he gave by will 26 Decemb. 1586, to his eldeſt ſon William. Beſides him he had 3 daughters, Elizabeth wife of William Kidgell; Joane; and Dorothy; and a ſecond ſon named John, who became the moſt conſiderable perſon of the family. Being an eminent Clothier, he acquired by his honeſt induſtry, a good eſtate, which he dyed poſſeſſed of 16 June 1630 [L]. He had a ſon named John, and a daughter, Anne, which was married to Thomas ſecond ſon of ſo called from its ſituation, ſtands about half a mile north from the Church.

3. NETHER-HALL,

This eſtate in Edward the Confeſſor's reign belonged to Ledmar, a prieſt; and at the time of the general ſurvey, to Richard Fitz Giſlebert, whoſe under-tenant was one William Peccatum, or Peche [N], a very wicked fellow ſurely; the name ſignifying Sin, in the abſtract. That appellation now converted into Peachy, or Pechey, is the name of ſeveral conſiderable families.

Sir Gilbert Peche gave this maner to King Edward I. and his Queen Eleanor, in 1284 (e). And that King, five years after, granted it in ſpecial tail to Guy de Ferre, and his heirs male; (f) [See under Roding Eythorp.] He dyed 16 Edw. II. (g) and had a ſon of both his names [O].

Some time after, it became part of the poſſeſſions of the noble family of Ufford, or Hufford; two parts of this maner being granted to Robert de Hufford, with other things, for his boldneſs in ſeizing Roger Mortimer Earl of March, Queen Iſabell's favourite, at Nottingham, in 1330 (h). This Robert de Ufford was a famous warrior, [ſee above, p. 246.] created Earl of Suffolk in 1337, and afterwards one of the firſt Knights of the Garter. He dyed in November 1369, poſſeſſed of this whole maner. — William his ſon and ſucceſſor dyed 15 Febr. 1381, without male iſſue, holding this maner as parcel of his Earldom (i). And as the entail was only upon the males, on failure of them it reverted to the Crown.

It was then ſettled in dower upon Anne Queen of Richard II. and ſhe enjoyed it till her deceaſe in 1394 (k). After which that King beſtowed it upon his favorite

Michael de la Pole, and his heirs male (l); Earls of Suffolk ——William de la Pole Duke of Suffolk, held it in fee tail [P] at the time of his death, in May 1450 (n). But his grandſon —— John de la Pole, Earl of Lincoln, appearing in arms at the battle of Stoke, wherein he was ſlain, fighting againſt K. Henry VII, This, with his other eſtates, became forfeited to the Crown, in 1487 (n). In 1496, the ſaid King granted the maner of Netherhall, with appertenances, to

John de Vere Earl of Oxford (o); whoſe ſucceſſors enjoyed it, till Edward, the 17th Earl, ſold it, by licenſe dated 1 March 1579, to

George Goulding Eſq; and Mary his wife. And they, 7 March 1580, alienated it to —— Arthur Goulding Eſq; The latter, by licence, dated 2 March 1585, ſells it again to John Coo, or Coe, and William Coo. This family was ſettled in this pariſh as early as the reign of K. Henry IV. John Coo being one of the joint-founders of Hawkwood's Chantry in Hedingham-Sible (p)] [Q]: His ſon —— John Coe of Geſtingthorp lived in the beginning of K. Henry the Sixth's reign; and had four ſons, Thomas; William of Wickham St. Paul; and two of the name of John.——Thomas, the eldeſt ſon, of this pariſh, by . . . . daughter of . . . . Wincoll, had, Edward; Thomas of London, that took to wife . . . . daughter of Wentworth of Bumpſted ; and Roger, of Newton in the Iſle of Ely.——Edward Coo, the eldeſt ſon, was of Pateſwic, and by his wife Jane, daughter of George Chauncy of Gildeſton in Hertfordſhire, had Abner; Jane, and Deborah.

From Thomas Coe of London deſcended George Coe of Byham-hall in Great Mapleſted, where ſee an account of him.

4. The maner of ODEWELL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands in an obſcure part of this pariſh, near Byham-hall, on the confines of Great Mapleſted.

From ſeveral charters and records it appears, that the ſite of this manner with its appertenances, which took in the Mott farm, were formerly a hamlet, diſtinct pariſh or chapelry, tho' now within the bounds of the pariſh of Geſtingthorp. For it is not only ſet down by itſelf, or in contradiſtinction to Geſtingthorp; but is often expreſsly ſtyled, The pariſh of Odwell.

Sir Simon de Odewell, an ancient owner in Henry the Second's reign, and who from it took his ſurname, gave a great quantity of land, and ſeveral tenements, rents, paſtures, &c. in Odewell and Geſtingthorp, to the Knights-Templars [R], and this among the reſt. A portion of it, being a quarter of a knight's fee, was holden of William de Ufford Earl of Suffolk in 1381 (q) [S]. Being veſted in the Knights Hoſpitallers, it continued part of their poſſeſſions till their ſuppreſſion by act of parliament in April 1540 (r). It was ſoon paſſed away from the crown; for K. Henry VIII. 26 Auguſt 1543, granted to

Thomas Godwyn Gent. and his heirs for ever, his maner of Odwell, with a very long bead roll of rights, members, appertenances, &c. ſituate, lying, and being in Odwell in the county aforeſaid, to the ſaid maner belonging or appertaining; and alſo a wood called Ram acre coppice, containing nine acres, growing and being in the pariſh of Odwell: holden of the King in ca. by the 40th part of a knight's fee (s). The 23d of January following Godwyn obtained a licenſe to ſell the premiſſes, with a free warren, to

Richard Hardekyn Gent. He dyed 13 Auguſt 1558, poſſeſſed of this eſtate, and another ſuppoſed to have been Wottons; and of which we ſhall preſently give an account. His ſon —John Hardekyn, aged upwards of 21 years, ſucceeded him (t). He was of Seene in Wiltſhire. The 8th of May 1566, by licenſe, he alienated his maner of Odwell [T], lying in the pariſhes of Geſtingthorp, Hedingham Caſtle, Great Mapleſted, and Odwell to

George Sayer the elder, Gent. and his ſon George, both of Colcheſter. [Of this family ſee an account under Aldham, p. 199, and St. Peter's Colcheſter.] George, the father, dyed 19 May 1577, poſſeſſed of the maner of Odwell, and other eſtates. —— George his ſon, then aged 39, ſucceeded him (u). He departed this life 3 July 1596, and had for ſucceſſor his ſon —— George, then 30 years old (w). He was knighted 11 June 1607, and married Dorothy daughter of John Higham Eſq; They two, with John their elder ſon, 13 September 1620, conveyed this eſtate to Peter Alſton of Bramford in Suffolk, and other feoffees, in truſt for the uſe and behoof of Frances Alſton, widow and ſole executrix of Thomas Alſton of Polſted in Suffolk, Gent. and of the children he left by her, viz. William, Thomas, Edward, John, and a daughter named Frances [V]. At the requeſt of the mother, the truſtees, by their deed, dated 6 July 1634, aſſigned over all their truſt, right, and title to the maner of Odwell, unto —— John Alſton Gent. the youngeſt ſon, and his heirs. Moſt probably he dyed without iſſue. For his ſiſter Frances brought this eſtate in marriage to her huſband.

George Gooday of Bower-hall in Pentlow Eſq; And John Alſton, the remaining truſtee, by deed, 30 Octob. 1646, ſold and conveyed this maner to the ſaid George Gooday; and a fine was levied. He had a ſon Samuel, baptized at Pentlow 28 June 1652, who dyed young. For, at the time of his deceaſe, he left an only daughter and heir

Elizabeth. She brought this maner in dowry to her huſband, Sir Thomas Samwell of Upton in Northamptonſhire, created a Baronet 22 Dec. 1675; and had by him two daughters co-heirs, Elizabeth, and Frances. The firſt was married in 1691, to John Langham Eſq; ſon and heir apparent of Sir William Langham of Waldgrave in the county of Northampton, Knt. The other daughter became wife of Sir Richard Newman of Fifehead Magdalen in Dorſetſhire, advanced to the title of a Baronet 19 Decemb. 1699. Between theſe two coheireſſes was the mother's inheritance divided, by the will of their father Sir Tho. Samwell, 24 Febr. 1696. But both they and their huſbands being under age at the time of marriage, the premiſſes were ſettled in truſtees, to be ſold within ſix months after they came to the age of 21 years, and the money thence ariſing to be equally divided between them. In purſuance of which ſettlement, the daughters and their huſbands, by deed, 6 May 1699, ſold this eſtate to Sarah Groom of London, widow: and a fine was levied. She had two ſons, Samuel, and John; and three daughters, Sarah, wife of Tho. Perrin of London; Conſtant; and Elizabeth. By her will, dated 4 Janu. 1704, ſhe gave this eſtate to her eldeſt ſon Samuel and his heirs; and, for want of lawful iſſue, to her ſecond ſon John and his heirs for ever. But — Samuel Groom Gent.

WOTTONS, otherwiſe NOTTONS, is a capital meſſuage in this pariſh, formerly part of Odwell, and ſometimes called a Maner. It is otherwiſe ſtyled Hardekyns, from the Hardekyn family mentioned under the laſt article, to whom it once belonged.

The manſion houſe ſtands by the ſide of the road leading from Hedingham-caſtle to Sudbury; and is moted round,

On the 20th of April 1486, Henry Turner Eſq; and Thomas Cornwale, enfeoffed Thomas Hardekyn of Caſtle-Hedingham, Gent. and William Park of Sudbury, &c. in all that capital meſſuage called Wottons, alias Hardekyns, in this pariſh; and the latter granted it to Richard, ſon and heir of the ſaid Thomas Hardekyn, 5 Octob. 1509. This——Richard dyed 13 Aug. 1558, holding a meſſuage, 100 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, 120 of paſture, and 6 of wood, in Geſtingthorp, Heningham-caſtle, and Great Mapleſted (x): which was this eſtate. From John Hardekyn it paſſed, as Odwell, to Sayer (y), Alſton, Gooday, Samwell, and Groom. On the 12th of May 1712, Samuel Groom conveyed it to John Elliſton of Overhall, Gent.

is another eſtate in this pariſh, which derived its name from a family exiſting here from the time of K. Edward III. to that of K. Charles I.

In 1381, Julian att Parke, and Walter de Geldeford, held here, of William de Ufford Earl of Suffolk, the fourth part of a knight's fee called Morhall (z): which is ſuppoſed to be this eſtate. ——Robert Parke dyed in 1400. Margaret his wife having outlived him 57 years, dyed 21 Auguſt 1457, and both lye buried in this Church, with an epitaph. ——John his ſon was returned for a Gentleman of Eſſex in 1433.——William ſeems to have been his ſon; whoſe ſon——John dyed in 1574, leaving, by Alice his wife daughter of Richard Strutt of Mapleſted,——John, living in 1634. He was ſo conſiderable a perſon, that he was ſummoned according to ancient cuſtom, to receive the honor of Knighthood, and on his refuſal paid a compoſition fine, for which he had a tally from the exchequer [W]. By Margaret, daughter of Nicolas Morton, he had William; and two daughters, Anne, married to William Edwards of Toppesfeild, and Elizabeth to Henry Meriton of Stanley-hall in Pebmarſh. He died 10 March 1636, poſſeſſed of a conſiderable eſtate [X].——William, his ſon, married Heſter daughter of William Strutt of Wickham St. Pauls, and had by her, William; John; Robert: Heſter; Elizabeth; and Sarah.——John, the ſecond ſon, educated at Catharine-hall, Cambridge, was an attorney at law. He incumbred this eſtate with debts, and being violently bruiſed by a fall from his horſe, dyed, leaving an only daughter [Y]

Elizabeth, married to Michael Drew, Eſq; counſellor at law. He further ſunk this eſtate into debt: and it being mortgaged to

Thomas Morein of London, brewer, he got into poſſeſſion, and left it in January 1706, to his daughter Mercy Morein. In March 1713, ſhe ſold it to Joſhua Morrice, Attorney, clerk of the Ironmongers company. He dyed 23 Novem. 1727.

The Park and Parkgate belong now to Thomas Aſhurſt Eſq;

The CHURCH hath a ſouth iſle; but the Chancel is only of one pace; and the whole tyled. At the weſt end there is a Tower of brick, embattled, containing 6 Bells.

Here has been from time immemorial in this Church, a Rectory a Sine-cure, and a Vicarage. The patronage of the Rectory was in the families of Boutetort, Swynborne, Wentworth, and Sparrow. When J. Sparrow bought the maner of Over-hall of Sir John Wentworth, he had with it the Rectory; which laſt his deſcendents reſerved when they alienated that maner to J. Elliſton. The 20th of September 1693 it was purchaſed of Sir John Sparrow by John Morley Eſq; who much beautified the Chancel.

The Vicarage, which is endowed, was all along in the gift of the Rectors, till after the Reſtoration; ſince which the Sparrows, patrons of the Rectory, took upon them to preſent to the Vicarage. This Vicarage was augmented, in 1723, with Queen Anne's bounty, added to 200 l. given by John Morley Eſq; and the Rev. Moſes Cooke.

17. BULMER,

lies north-eaſt of the laſt. The name ſeems to be form'd from the two words Bull and Mere. In Domeſday-book it is written Bulenemera.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign the lands in this pariſh belonged to Wiſgar, and Godwin, with ſeveral free perſons; but, at the time of the general ſurvey, were holden by Richard Fitz-Giſlebert, Robert Malet, and Euſtace Earl of Bologne.

There are in this pariſh the following Maners, or reputed Maners. 1. The maner of Butlers-hall. 2. Goldingham-hall. 3. Smeeton-hall. 4. Gronden-hall. 5. Kitchens. 6. Cornetts and Marſhalls. 7. Porters. And the ſite of the maner-houſe of Bonetts, or Poults. [See above p. 263.]

1. The maner of BUTLERS-HALL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about a mile from the Church; being called Butlers from its ancient owners. This is the maner of Bulmer by way of eminence, and is held of the Honor of Clare by the ſervice of one knight's fee. It belonged, in William the Conqueror's time, to Richard ſon of Earl Giſlebert [Z]. And in 1361 Thomas de Butler held it of the Honor of Clare by the ſervice of one knight's fee (*) [A] —— Thomas was his ſon and ſucceſſor. — Sir Andrew Boteler, in his will dated 12 Decemb. 1429, enfeoffed John Howard, Richard Waldegrave, and others, in his manor of Bulmere ycleped Botillers, &c. (a). Theſe Botelers were a branch of the very ancient and noble family of Boteler, or Butler; who had that ſurname from their anceſtor Theobald I. on whom K. Henry II. conferred in the year 1177, the office of Butler of Ireland. whereby he and his ſucceſſors were to attend the Kings of England at their coronation, and that day preſent them with the firſt cup of wine; for which they were to have certain pieces of the King's plate. James Butler, the ſixth in deſcent from the ſaid Theobald, was created Earl of Ormond, 2 Novemb. 1328. as was James Butler, Duke of Ormond, 9 Nov. 1682. Of this family further notice will be taken, under Smeeton-hall in this pariſh.

William Hunte, who dyed 9 Septemb. 1551, held this maner of Butlers with appertenances, and 200 acres of arable, 50 acr. of wood, and 20ſ. rent thereto belonging in the Pariſh of Bolmer, of the King in ca. —— John his grandſon, viz. the ſon of his ſon Richard, was his heir, and 14 years old (b). About ſixteen years after, he ſold this eſtate to

Thomas Milkſoppe Eſq; who paid ingreſs fine 10 Elizab. and had been ſome time reſident in this pariſh [B]. He dyed 25 Auguſt 1588, poſſeſſed of the maner of Bulmer, called Botilers, otherwiſe Butlers, &c. holden of the Queen as of her Honor of Clare, by the ſervice of one knight's fee. —— Henry Milkſoppe his ſon ſold this lordſhip to

John Daniel Eſq; [ſee ſome account of that family under Meſſing, p. 176. It was ſeated at Acton in Suffolk; where a more particular account properly belongs.] He dyed 15 Decemb. 1596. —— Francis, his ſon, was poſſeſſed of it, and of Grendon-hall (c). He married . . . daughter of Richard Martin of Long Melford Eſq; and had John; and —— Nicolas, who held this eſtate about 1635 (d). —— John, his ſon, married Elizabeth daughter of Sir Edward Waldgrave, Knt. of Stanſgate in Norfolk, by whom he had, Charles, and 3 daughters; Frances, married to Laurence Thril of Suſſex; Margaret to James Sturgeon of Wickham St. Paul; Urſula to Thomas Short, M. D. of St. Edmunds-bury. He dyed about 1690. —— Charles Daniel Eſq; the ſon and heir, married Mary daughter of —— Standiſh of Standiſh in Lancaſhire, and had by her, Francis, and Anne, that both dyed young; John, and Elizabeth. —— John, the ſon and heir had no iſſue [C]: but, before his deceaſe, he ſold this eſtate to

Robert Jennens Eſq; and it now belongs to —

William Jennens of Acton Place, Eſq;

2. GOLDINGHAM-HALL

lies about half a mile north-weſt from the Church. Godwin, a freeman, was poſſeſſed of it in Edward the Confeſſor's reign: Rober Malet, Lord of Eye, and Great Chamberlain of England, [ſufficiently mentioned above, p. 217, 253.] held it at the time of the general ſurvey; as did under him Hubert de Montchenſy, Lord of Edwardſton in Suffolk [ſee p. 253.] [D].

Robert Malet beſtowed this lordſhip, or the demeſnes of it at leaſt, upon a Knight of his named Hugh de Goldingham [E]; and it continued in that family till the beginning of the ſixteenth century.

In the 39th of Henry III. William de Goldingham was preſented, for not taking upon him the order of knighthood, when he was of full age, and held a whole knights-fee in Bolomere (e). —— Alan de Goldingham, a knight banneret in the time of K. Edward I. was High-ſheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1308, and 1309 (f). —— Sir William Goldingham is returned among the Gentry of this county in 1433 (g). They were ſeated at Chigwell.

This family had alſo an eſtate at Belſted, near Ipſwich in Suffolk, and were interred in that Church, from the year 1413, &c. (h). They came likewiſe, about 1480, in poſſeſſion of Twinſted-hall. [ſee p. 271.] And it was holden in 1516, by —— John Goldingham Eſq; with the maner of Bulmer, alias Goldingham-hall, which latter he held of Sir William Walgrave Knt. by military ſervice. He had two wives, 1. Jane daughter of . . . . Lowth, by which he had, John, Allen, and Thomas. His 2d wife was Thomaſine, daughter and heir of . . . . . Bodingham in Suffolk; who brought him no iſſue. And he dying 26 July 1516, was ſucceded by his grandſon —— Chriſtopher (i), born in 1502. He married, 1. Anne daughter of . . . . Trenham, by which he had Thomas, and Francis. 2. His other wife was, Anne, daughter of Sir William Rous of Suffolk, and by her he had Antony, Henry, William, Jonas, Francis: Elizabeth, wife of Robert Forſter of Copdock; Mary, of . . . . Hanſard. He dyed in September 1559. —— Thomas, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married Dorothy, daughter of Henry Chetting of Warham in Suffolk, and had by her Chriſtopher, Thomas, and Mary. —— Chriſtopher Goldingham Eſq; the eldeſt ſon and heir [F], ſold this eſtate to

Sir Stephen Soame, Lord Mayor of London in 1599. —— John Soame Eſq; had it next, and by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Spilman Eſq; was father of —— John Soame Eſq; who dying without iſſue had for ſucceſſor his brother —— Thomas, that paid ingreſs fine in 1671.

A ſiſter of his was married to Sir Hugh Middleton, a younger ſon of Sir Hugh Middleton that brought the New River to London; and he and his brother Thomas had this eſtate, as heirs to Thomas Stane Eſq; which, upon Thomas's deceaſe, became veſted in his brother Sir Hugh Middleton alone. His ſon —— Sir Hugh was created a Baronet 6 Decemb. 1681. He had an only daughter, Dorothy, which became the wife of Henry Berkeley Eſq; a younger branch of the Berkeleys of Shropſhire.

3. The maner of SMEETON-HALL.

The manſion-houſe ſtands about a mile north from the Church.

In ſome old writings it is called the Hamlet of Smethon.

A free woman was poſſeſſed in the Saxons time of this Lordſhip; which, at the making of the general ſurvey, belonged to Euſtace Earl of Bologne, by the name of Smedetuna [G]. And on that account it came to be holden of the Honor of Bologne, the head of which was at Witham in this county. [ſee above, p. 106.] Euſtace's under-tenant was one Raner.

In the 12th or 13th of K. John, when an eſtimate was taken of all the Knights fees in England, Hugh de Cantelupe held one fee in Smetheton; and Emma de Cantelupe two knights fees in Smetindon (k). In Henry the third's reign, Ingelram de Cantelupe held the manner of Smitheton: as did afterwards Hugh de Cantelupe (l). The Cantelupe family was very conſiderable in thoſe times (m): and the name of Cantelupe hath been lately revived in that additional title conferred on John Weſt Earl Delawarr.

Ralph Fitz-Nicolas, an eminent man in the reigns of K. John and K. Henry III. and who dyed Steward of the Houſhold to the latter, about 1257, had this eſtate; wherein he was ſucceeded by his ſon —— Robert Fitz-Ralph. But, on account of his adherence to Simon de Montfort, and the rebellious Barons, it appears to have been ſeized by an extent into the king's hands, about the year 1264 (n). Robert had it at the time of his deceaſe in 1273. And his next heir was

Ralph Pipard, ſon of Sir Ralph, ſon of Nicolas junior (o) of Thurveſton in Derbiſhire. Being a warrior, he was employed in ſeveral expeditions: conſtituted governor of Boleſover and Hareſton caſtles in Derbyſhire for life. And having had ſummons to parliament from the 25th to the 30th of Edward I. incluſive, he departed this life, in or about 1309, poſſeſſed of this maner of Smetheton (p), and other eſtates in Warwickſhire, and in the counties of Bucks, and Oxon, particularly of Rotherfield Pipard. —— John his ſon ſucceeded him. In 1329 [H] he granted this and other eſtates to

Edmund Butteler, who is reaſonably ſuppoſed to have married either his ſiſter or daughter: otherwiſe 'tis not eaſy to conceive that he would have made him ſo ample a grant. He dyed 13 Septemb. 1321, and was ſucceeded by his ſon —— James Butler, created Earl of Ormond, 2

Novemb. 1328. He dyed 6 January 1337, poſſeſſed of the maner of Smytheton (q); as did, in 1363, his Counteſs Alianore, daughter of Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex (r). It continued for ſeveral deſcents in that moſt ancient and noble Family, whom the long ſucceſſion of it, and the limits of this work do not permit me to trace out at length [I], and therefore I ſhall only take notice of ſuch of them as are mentioned in the Inquiſitions poſt mortem. — James Butler, the ſecond Earl of Ormond, who dyed 18 Octob. 1382, held the maner of Smeton-hall of the king in ca. by the ſervice of half a knight's fee (s). ——— James, the next Earl, held the ſame (t). And ——— James the fourth Earl, 31 Hen. VI. (u) ——— James Butler, the fifth Earl of Ormond, and alſo Earl of Wiltſhire, beheaded 1 May 1461, and attainted by the Parliament which met 4 Novemb. 1461, had this maner of Smeton-hall; which upon his attainder fell to the Crown (w). Then K. Edward IV. granted it in ſpecial taile to

Sir John Howard, ſon of Sir Robert Howard by his wife Margaret, daughter and coheir to Thomas de Moubray Duke of Norfolk (x).

Thomas, the younger brother of James Earl of Wiltſhire thus attainted, being reſtored by K. Henry the Seventh's firſt parliament, recovered all his eſtate, which conſiſted in England of 72 maners, with other lands; beſides the large demeſnes in Ireland (y) [K]. By Anne, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Hankford, he had two daughters coheirs, Anne married to Sir James St. Leger: and Margaret to Sir William Bullen knight of the Bath, which laſt had this eſtate in her right; and by her he had

Sir Thomas Bullen, created 18 June 1525, Baron and Viſcount Rochford, and 29 November or 8 Decemb. 1527, Earl of Wiltſhire and Ormond. Dying in 1538, he left, by Elizabeth his wife daughter of Thomas Duke of Norfolk, George; Anne, ſecond Queen of K. Henry VIII. and Mary wife of William Carey, father of Henry Lord Hunſdon. — George Bullen Viſcount Rochford was beheaded 17 May 1536.

About the ſame time, or rather before, it appears in the family of Fermor, [anciently ſeated at Foxearth.] For, 4 March 1536, Richard Fermor obtained a licenſe to alienate the maner of Smeton-hall, with appertenances, in Bulmer, Lammerſh, and Pedmarſhe, conſiſting of 19 meſſuages, 200 acres of arable, 100 acres of meadow, 100 acres of paſture, 60 of wood, and 100 s. rent to

Henry Everard Eſq; (z) ſon of Ralph, and great grandſon of John, Everard of Linſted in Suffolk (a); who held his firſt court here in 1537. He married Catharine daughter of Thomas Gawdy. About 1549, he ſold this eſtate to

Thomas Willett of Sudbury Gent. and a fine paſſed for the ſame. But, by licenſe 28 July 1566, Willett alienated again the maner of Smeton-hall, and 5 acres of meadow in Beauchamp-William, holden of the Queen in capite, to

William Cordell Eſq; afterwards knighted, and Maſter of the Rolls (b): And he, 1 May 1567, ſold it to

Richard Martin of Long Melford Eſq; (c). Of this family we have a particular account, but it more properly belongs to the County of Suffolk, of which a Hiſtory is preparing for the preſs. They have flouriſhed at Long Melford for ſeveral generations, poſſeſſed of fair eſtates and royalties. The firſt that occurs to us, is Laurence Martin of that place, Eſq; He built one of the iſles of this Church, about 1484, and it hath ever ſince borne the name of Martin's iſle, in which he and his poſterity lie buried. His ſucceſſors were — Richard — Richard, — Richard — Roger [L] — Richard the purchaſer of this eſtate, as above-mentioned. He dyed in 1572. His firſt wife was Anne daughter of . . . . . Eden of London: and his ſecond, Elizabeth daughter of John Crane of Chilton. By the former he had his eldeſt ſon and heir ——— Roger, who dyed 3 Aug. 1615, in the 89th year of his age, and lies interred in the family burial-place in Melford Church, with his two wives, ſix ſons, and three daughters. The firſt wife was Urſula, daughter of Sir Thomas Jermyn of Ruſhbroke: the ſecond, Margaret daughter to Walter Bowles of Pembrokeſhire — Richard the eldeſt ſon and heir, dyed 8th March 1624. He had three wives. 1. Eleanor daughter of Francis Mannock of Gifford's-hall. 2. Barbara daughter of Thomas Daniel of Acton. 3. Alice daughter of Edmund Smith Eſq; Roger, his eldeſt ſon and ſucceſſor was knighted 27 June 1625, and departed this life in 1657, having had by his wife, Anne daughter of Samuel-Laurence Lone, 7 ſons and 3 daughters.——Richard, the eldeſt ſon, by Jane daughter of Sir Henry Bedingfeild of Oxborough-hall in Norfolk, had 9 ſons and one daughter. He dyed in 1673.——Roger, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, born in 1639, was created a Baronet 28 March 1667. He married Tamworth, daughter of Captain Horner, by whom he had 8 ſons and 10 daughters: and departed this life 8 July 1712.—— Sir Roger, born in 1667, the eldeſt ſurviving ſon, married 1. Anna-Maria Harvey. 2. Martha . . . : and dyed in —— Sir Roger, the eldeſt ſon by the firſt Lady, married one of the daughters of brigadier general Lewis Mordaunt, brother to the late Earl of Peterborough, and dying 23 June 1762, was ſucceeded by his ſon —— Sir Mordaunt Martin [M]. [K] He had as much land in England as at this day would yield 30,000 l. a year; and he left 40,000 l. in money, beſides jewels. Lodge, ibid.

[L] This Gentleman is ſuppoſed to have built the Chapel, dedicated to St. James the Apoſtle, againſt his manſion-houſe on the Green now called Chapel green. It was a great conveniency to that part of the pariſh, it being ſo far diſtant from the Mother Church. He was eminently remarkable for his charity and generous ſpirit. Once a year, and commonly oftner, he uſed to give on ſet days a ſufficient quantity of bread, meat, and money, to 200 poor people of the town of Melford; beſides the daily charities which he delighted often to diſpenſe with his own hands. To that intent, in his declining age, when not able to go further than the next meadow, or ſtreet-door, he made uſe of a whiſtle at the end of his cane, to call the poor people to him. Theſe good qualities ſo ingratiated him with his neighbours, that when for a conſiderable time in K. Edward the Sixth's reign he was forced to abſcond under a hay-ſtack all day, and return home at nights, they gave him all the aſſiſtance in their power. He was a perſon of exquiſite parts, and good literature. Qu. Mary I. offered him the high poſt of Secretary of State; but he anſwered her Majeſty, that, as to himſelf, he was highly ſatisfied with the ſufficiency God had beſtowed upon him, and with a private life. 'And as for my ſon, continued he, he will inherit a 'competency ſufficient if he proves an honeſt man, and if 'he becomes otherwiſe, it will be far too much for him.' He lived to above a hundred years, and dyed 31 Octob. without the leaſt pain, taking leave of his friends whilſt with them at dinner. He left ſome charities to the poor of this pariſh.

4. The maner of GRANDON-HALL is now only a nominal maner. By the old large oaks growing near the manſion houſe, it ſeems to have formerly been a place of note.

Anciently it belonged to the Silveſters, owners of Smalbrige on the other ſide of the river. . . . In the latter end of K. Henry the Seventh's reign it belonged to Sir Andrew Butler. Afterwards it was in the family of Daniell, of Acton abovementioned. Thomas Daniell, who dyed 8 Jan. 1565, held the maner of Grindell-hall (as it is there called) in Bulmer; and the Rectory of Bulmer. —Edmund was his ſon and heir (c).——John Daniell, who dyed 15 Decemb. 1596, held this maner of Grendenhall; —Francis being his ſon (d), paid ingreſs fine for the ſame the year following.

The next poſſeſſors of it upon record were the Brages, who originally came from the weſt of England —John Brage had —John his eldeſt ſon, father of —— Rachel, or Rebeccah, that brought with her in marriage to . . . . . Dieſter about 400 l. a year in Pentlow, Foxearth, and Liſton, which was ſold by them or their iſſue.

Robert Brage, the third brother of —John laſt named, had Bulmer-Parſonage, the Black houſe there, and what elſe the Brages have in Bulmer, Belchamp, and Twinſted, except Kitchins and Porters. He married . . . widow of . . . Roberts of Crix, or Cricks, in Hatfeild-Peverell, who tho' ſhe had no iſſue by him left him that eſtate. His ſecond wife was . . . widow of . . . Mutton, by which he had his ſon and heir —William, that married 1. Anne daughter of . . . Aylet of Hovels in Coggeſhall, and had by her Robert, and William, who both dyed unmarried, and Anne wife of Giles Allen, miniſter of Kettering in Northamptonſhire. 2. Elizabeth, widow of Henry Reeve of Bradwell in Suffolk, was his ſecond wife, by whom he had — Francis Brage, of Bulmer Gent. He married two wives, 1. Elizabeth daughter of John Burnett, D. D. and had by her only a ſon that dyed an infant. 2. His ſecond wife was Suſan, daughter of John Trendle of Yarmouth, widow of John Copeman Eſq; by which he had William; Suſan and Elizabeth, married to Tho. Brown of Norfolk Eſq; and, after his deceaſe, to Sir Nathan Wright of Cranham Bart.—William, the only ſurviving ſon, of Hatfeild Peverell, ſucceeded his father; and by his firſt wife, Mary daughter of Bernard Carter of Sudbury, Clothier, had two daughters that lived but a little while, and Robert and Mary. She herſelf was buried in this Church 16 May 1700, aged 33. He took to his ſecond wife Elizabeth, daughter of William Player of Somerſetſhire, and had by her William, Lucy, Francis, &c.——Robert, his eldeſt ſon and ſucceſſor, married . . . daughter of Thomas Davy, and grand-daughter of Sir Samuel Tryon Bart. but he dyed in 1759, without iſſue. [See above, p. 133, 252.] [N].

5. The maner of KETCHINS, with that of Brundon, formerly belonged to St. Gregory's college in Sudbury. For I find that K. Richard II. in 1380, granted licenſe to the keeper and chaplains of the College of St. Gregory's, to purchaſe lands to the value of 40 l. per ann. by virtue whereof they purchaſed the maner of Brunden, as I ſhall ſhew preſently under that pariſh; and lands and tenements in Bulmer to the value of 20 l. which laſt I take to be the maner of Ketchins. It is certain that they were poſſeſſed of it about the year 1476. Upon the ſuppreſſion of religious houſes, K. Henry VIII. granted, in 1544, the maners of Brondon-hall, Midleton, and Kechin, to Thomas Paſton, and his heirs (e). [O] On the 23d of April 1547, Sir Thomas Paſton had licenſe to alienate the maner of Ketchin, with appertenances in Bulmer to —— Richard Haſilwood (f).

Seint-Clere Eden Eſq; who dyed 20 May 1624, held the maner of Kitchin of the King in ca. by the 40th part of a knight's-fee (g). It paſſed as Brundon and Ballington, of which we are preſently to treat.

CORNETTS, and MARSHALLS, are ſuppoſed to be part of the twelve knights-fees and a quarter in Bolemere, Bumſted, Finchingfeild, and Dunmowe; and Penethorp in Norfolk; holden of the Earl of Clare by Simon Fitz-Richard about 1262 (h).

In 1314, Richard Cornerth held one knight's-fee in Cavendiſh in Suffolk, and Bulmere in

The demeſne lands of this lie chiefly in Bulmer, but the manſion houſe is in Ballingdon-ſtreet on the right hand as you go from Bulmer-Tye to Sudbury.

It was formerly in the Daniels of Acton. Robert Jennens purchaſed it in 1708, and it now belongs to —— William Jennens Eſq; mentioned above under Butlers.

Bonets and Poultes, otherwiſe Pontes, was holden in 1440 by John Fitz-Rauſe (l); of the Maſter of St. Gregory's in Sudbury; and deſcended, as the maner of Pebmarſh, to the Chamberlayns, &c. (m).

Richard Hovell Eſq; held it of the Honor of Clare, in 1611; having been lately Charles Chamberlayne's (n).

The waſte called Armſey in this Pariſh was given for the uſe and benefit of the Corporation of Sudbury, by Thomas Weſt Eſq; who purchaſed it of St. Gregory's College in that town.

Richard Martin Eſq; the purchaſer of Smeeton-hall, gave a Houſe for the better maintenance of the Miniſter of Bulmer.

In 1444, Thomas Shyrborne Vicar of this Church, gave 20 s. yearly for the repair of the Vicarage-houſe. He alſo granted ſeveral acres of land to the Abbeſs of Bruſyard, patroneſs of this Church; to find the candles burning upon the high Altar, and to pay 2 s. to be diſtributed to the poor.

John Guyn, Clerk, and John Reveſhale, obtained a licenſe, in 1390, to give 1 meſſuage, 140 acres of arable, 6 acres of meadow, and 20 of wood in Bulmere, to the warden and brethren of St. Gregory's College in Sudbury (o). And, in 1411, John Brom, Clerk, gave to the ſame 14 acres of arable, and 1 acre and 3 roods of meadow, in Bulmere and Balydon (p).

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 1267 l.

The Church, dedicated to St. Andrew, hath a north iſle; but the Chancel is only of one pace; and the whole is tyled. The Tower contains 4 or 5 bells.

This Church was of old a Rectory, appendent to the maner of Butlers, and in the gift of private patrons lords of that maner, and ſo continued till the year 1425 [P], when it was appropriated to the Abbeſs and Convent of Bruſyard in Suffolk; who thenceforth became proprietaries of the Rectory and patrons of the Vicarage. And the latter was then endowed by a compoſition, of which the ſubſtance may be ſeen in Mr. Newcourt (q).

That Abbey being ſuppreſſed 17 Febr. 1538, K. Henry VIII. granted, in the ſame year, the Rectory, or maner, of Bulmer, and the advowſon of the Vicarage of Bulmer, and all lands, tenements, &c. in Bulmer and elſewhere, belonging to that Abbey, to Nicolas Hare, and his heirs, paying yearly 6 l. 4 s. 8 d. (r). However, the Hare family never preſented to this Church: but it continued for a great while in the Daniel family, and now belongs to Robert Andrews Eſq; who preſented the laſt Vicar.

There was a Chantry in this Church, the lands of which belong to William Jennens Eſq;

18. BALINGDON, otherwiſe BALIDON, hath had the credit of being ſet down in the Maps as a diſtinct pariſh; whereas Brundon, that is really one, hath been generally forgotten: and ſo it hath in the Land-tax Rates; Balingdon alone being ſet down there and rated at 705 l. 00 s. 10 d.

According to the accounts we have, there are two Maners here, viz. 1. Ballingdon above Bridge, that hath only a Court Baron; for the King is Lord of the Lete, that extends into part of Bulmer, Brundon, and Middleton. 2. Ballingdon below Bridge, having both a Court Lete and a Court Baron.

There is reaſon to believe, that this diſtrict was part of the Maner of Brondon, which in the earlieſt times belonged to the family of Limeſi, more particularly mentioned under Brundon.

About the reign of K. Edward I. it belonged to Edmund Comyns. — Giles de Mompinzoun, who dyed about 1320, held the maner of Balidene of the maner of Fackenham Aſpes which had been Edmund Comyns's, by the ſervice of one knight's fee (s). The ſaid Giles was one of the Knights Bannerets created by K. Edward I.; High Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk the 35th of the ſame King; Lord of Markeſhale, and owner of three knights fees in Riburgh, Narings, and Ingoldeſthorp, in Norfolk (t). Euſemia, daughter and coheir of Edmund Comyns, was married, firſt, to Edmund de la Beche of Beches in Rawreth, ſecondly to

John de Walkefare, who jointly with her, held two parts of this maner, at the time of his deceaſe in 1345 (u).

In 1377 K. Richard II. gave licenſe to Simon de Sudbury, archbiſhop of Canterbury, to give the maners of Balidon and Midleton, 3 meſſuages, 623 acres of arable, 27 acres and a half of meadow, 64 of paſture, 46 of wood, and 100 s. rent in Balidon, Midleton, Bulmere, Great and Little Hennye; to the Warden and Chaplains of St. Gregory's College in Sudbury: the maner of Balidon being holden of Sir John Cavendiſh by Knight's ſervice (w). Accordingly, the Archbiſhop, and John Charteſeye, ſettled moſt of thoſe lands upon that College (x): And they continued poſſeſſed of them till their diſſolution, when they came to the Crown.

In 1544; King Henry VIII. granted the revenues of that college to Sir Thomas Paſton [Q]. And he, by licenſe dated 14 March the ſame year, conveyed the ſite of the Maner, and capital farm of Balidon, with ſeveral parcels of land, [R] to Thomas Eden, in whoſe poſterity it continued, for ſeveral generations. And is now, or lately was, in the Littel family.

Thomas Eden Eſq; the purchaſer of this eſtate, was Clerk of the Star-chamber. He married Greſild eldeſt daughter of Edward Waldgrave of Sudbury, Eſq; and had by her 4 ſons, Thomas, Richard, William, and Philip; and 3 daughters, Elizabeth, Alice, and Greſild. Richard was Doctor of Laws, and Maſter in Chancery, and bought Doreward's-hall in Bocking of Chriſtopher Thurſby Eſq; —— Sir Thomas Eden, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married firſt Elizabeth, niece to Sir John St. Clere, of St. Cleres-hall in St. Oſith, by whom he had Sir Thomas [S]. His ſecond wife was Mary daughter of Bryan Darcy of Tiptre, Eſq; by whom he had St. Clere, John, William, and 5 daughters, Elizabeth wife of Roger Wentworth of Bocking-hall Eſq; Mary, of . . . . Thornton of Cambridgeſhire Eſq; Dorothy, of . . . . Barrett, and afterwards of Robert Barrington of Lachleys Eſq; Bridget, another Bridget, Greſild wife of Adrian Moor of Cambridgeſhire Eſq; —— St. Clere Eden Eſq; dyed 22 May, poſſeſſed of the maner of Ballidon, and other eſtates [T], particularly the advowſon of the Rectory and Vicarage of All Saints Church in Sudbury, and ſeveral houſes and lands in Balingdon, Bulmer, and Middleton (y). ——John ſucceeded his brother, and 2 September 1629 married Anne daughter of Richard Harlakenden of Earl's-Colne Eſq; by whom he had John, William, and Anne. ——John, the eldeſt ſon, married Anne daughter of Oliver Raymond of Belchamp Walter, but ſhe dyed 16 April 1675, and he having no iſſue the eſtates deſcended to his next brother —— William of Lincoln's-inn, Eſq; and he alſo having no iſſue, the eſtates centered in their ſiſter

Anne, who was the wife of Geffrey Littel of Halſted, Gent. ſecond ſon of John Littel of Parlebiens in that pariſh. [See above, p. 257.] They had the following children. John; Geffrey, that married Elizabeth daughter of John Forſter Alderman of London, but left no iſſue; Thomas D. D. Prebendary of Norwich, Miniſter of Lynne, &c. Elizabeth, wife of George Pulford; Suſanna, of Elliſton Barrington of Chelmsford Eſq; Anne, of Edward Crane of Stow-market in Suffolk. ——John Littel Eſq; the eldeſt ſon, was High Sheriff of this county in 1694, he married Rebekah daughter of George Sawbridge of London Eſq; and had by her, John-Eden; George-Sawbridge; and Hannah, and Rebekah. He was buried in the pariſh church of All-Saints in Sudbury 13 Octob. 1720, and was ſucceeded by his next heir.

BARENTINES, alias Barrington's, FEE, in this place, is very ancient; but its original cannot be eaſily traced out. It formerly belonged to a family ſurnamed Blamſter, or Blaunchmoſter. [ſee under Halſted, p. 252.]—William de Blamſter, who lived in the reign of K. Henry III. had four daughters, coheirs. Elianore Le Eſtrange; Joane wife of Sir William de Barentine; Maud, wife of William de Bracy; and Beatrix who dyed ſingle in 1281 (z). From Sir William de Barentine it came to be called Barentines Fee.

It appears next in the Coggeſhall family, mentioned above, p. 162, and more particularly under Codham-hall in Wethersfield. Thomas Coggeſhall ſold, in 21 Ric. II. about 1397, to Sir John de Bourgchier all that lordſhip called Barentynes Fee, with the appertenances in Eſſex, Norfolk, and Suffolk; and ten pounds yearly rent out of divers tenements in Halſted, Great and Little Mapleſted, Tilbury near Horndon, Packenhoo, Pebmerſh, Bulmer, Middleton, Alphamſton, Twinſted, Great and Little Henny, Hengham Sebill, Goſfeild, Geſtingthorp, White-Colne, Finchingfeild, &c. It continued for ſeveral deſcents in the noble family of Bourchier; and was in 1421 in Sir Hugh Stafford, Lord Bourchier, in right of his wife, Elizabeth only daughter of Sir Bartholomew Bourgchier (a).

St. Clere Eden Eſq; who dyed 20 May 1624, held among other things, of the Earl of Arundel, as of his Honor of Caſtle-Acre in Norfolk, a meſſuage called Stowers in Ballingdon, and the lordſhip, or fee called Barringtons Fee, with appertenances (b).]

Sometimes it is called the maner of Barrington's, alias Balydon's, Fee. The quit-rents belonging to it amounted to 10 l. a year, and part of it was 14 s. paid out of Spoons-hall: but moſt of the rents are loſt for want of collecting. In 1624 it was valued only at 30 s. (c).

Richard de Clare, Earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, by his charter without date, granted to his Burgeſſes and community, or commonalty, of Sudbury, his whole paſture of Portman's-croft and of Kingſmers, in the ſuburbs of Sudbury towards the north. . . I mention it here, becauſe in my collections it is ſaid to be in, or to extend into, Balingdon.

The inhabitants of this village reſort for divine ſervice to the Church of All-Saints in Sudbury. That Church, with the Chapel of Berindune, or as it is ſometimes called Beledon, was appropriated to the Abbey of St. Albans, for the uſe of their kitchin (d): which ſhews, that here was then a Chapel.

Balingdon-bridge formerly was of ſtone, and demoliſhed by a great flood that happened in the year 1519.

19. BRUNDON.

The two Saxon words, Bꞃun ꝺon, ſignify the Brown-Hill. Branden, and Brondon, are the other names of this place.

This pariſh belonged, in Edward the Confeſſor's reign, to one Freeman; and at the time of the general ſurvey, to Ralph de Limeſei [V]. This Ralph was ſiſter's ſon to William the Conqueror, and obtained of him two lordſhips in this county, namely Brondon and Chigwell; eleven in Suffolk, &c. and Ulverlei in Warwickſhire, where he and his poſterity had their capital ſeat, and thence took the title of Barons (e). — A grandſon of this Ralph, of the ſame name, founder of Hertford-Priory, by his wife Hadewiſa, had —— Alan, father of —— Gerard [W], who had ſix children; viz. Alianore; John; Alan, Gerard, Amabilla, which three dyed without iſſue; and Baſilia. —— John, by his wife Alice daughter of Robert de Harecourt had — Hugh, who dying without iſſue, in 1213, his two aunts, Alianore, and Baſilia, became his coheirs.

The latter was married to Hugh de Odingſells, and had with her the Warwickſhire and other eſtates (f) [X].

Alianore, the eldeſt, was wife of David de Lindſey, a native of Scotland, and had in her right the Eſſex eſtate, &c. Their ſon —— David ſeems to have been under age at the time of their deceaſe: For, in 1222 Alexander king of Scotland gave 200 l. for the wardſhip and marriage of him, and the cuſtody of all the lands of his inheritance in Eſſex, and other counties (g). He had four ſons, David, Gerard, Walter, and William, all which dyed without iſſue: and one daughter Alice married to Henry de Pinkeney, who, in 1250, had livery of a moiety of the Barony of Limeſey, for which he paid a relief of 50 l. (h).

In 1345, Thomas ſon of William de Botevileyn paſſed by fine this maner, and advowſon of the Church, with the maner of Newton-hall in Suffolk, to William de Bohun Earl of Northampton, and Elizabeth his wife (i).—Henry de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, who dyed 16 June 1372, had the reverſion of this maner (k).

K. Kichard II. in 1382, gave licenſe to John Charteſey and John Revyſhale, to grant to the Warden and Chaplains of St. Gregory's College in Sudbury, the maner of Braundon near that town; which was holden of the heirs of Sir Tho. Mounpynſon by knight's ſervice (l). That College continued poſſeſſed of it till the diſſolution of religious houſes, when it coming to the Crown, K. Henry VIII. in 1544, granted the maners of Bronden, alias Brondon-hall, Midelton, and Kechins, &c. with the advowſon of Brondon-Church, to

Thomas Paſton and his heirs, to be holden in capite (m). He is the ſame that is mentioned above under Middleton, p. 275. As the Paſton family was not ſeated in this county, but at Paſton in Norfolk, from whence they took their ſurname (n), I ſhall not give their full pedigree here, only an abſtract of it in the note [Y]. The ſaid Thomas Paſton was the fourth ſon of Sir

He departed this life 8 March 1629, holding the maners of Brondon-hall, and Midleton-hall, and ſeveral other eſtates [Z].—— Clement was his ſon and heir, aged upwards of 19 years (q).

This eſtate belongs now to the heirs of William Windham Eſq;

The CHURCH of Brundon was ſmall, of one pace with the Chancel, but now lies in ruins. The remains of it are in a little incloſure, about a mile on the left hand of Ballingdon-ſtreet, directly oppoſite to Borley Church. This Rectory was appendent to the maner.

20. BORLEY

is otherwiſe written in records Barlea, and Barley, which name is form'd from the two Saxon words Baꞃ, and leẏ, i. e. Boar's paſture.

Lewin, a freeman, was poſſeſſed of it in Edward the Confeſſor's reign, and, at the time of the ſurvey, it belonged to Adeliza Counteſs of Albemarle, half ſiſter to William the Conqueror. [A] She was wife of Odo, or Eudo, Earl of Champagne, to whom the Archbiſhop of Roan gave the city of Albemarle in Normandy, upon condition that he ſhould attend the Archbiſhop in all expeditions where he went in perſon, as his ſtandard-bearer, with 10 knights. William the Conqueror beſtowed on him the Earldom of Holderneſſe in Yorkſhire (r). They had a daughter, Judith, married to Waltheof Earl of Northumberland and Huntingdon, and their ſon and heir —— Stephen, Earl of Albemarle. He attended Robert Courthoſe Duke of Normandy into the Holy Land, and commanded the rear of the Chriſtian army at the battle near Antioch againſt the Saracens, where he behaved with great bravery. By his wife, Hawiſe daughter of Ralph de Mortimer, he had two ſons, William, and Ingelram; and 4 daughters. —— William, the eldeſt ſon, ſurnamed Le Gros, was a perſon of great valour, and eminently diſtinguiſhed himſelf at the battle of the Standard, in 1138, on which account he was advanced to the title of Earl of Yorkſhire (s). He departed this life in 1179 (t), having maried Cecily, daughter of William ſon of Duncan, brother to Malcolm III. King of Scotland, by Alice daughter of Robert de Romney, Lord of the Honor of Skipton in Craven, by which marriage he enjoyed in her right all that part of Yorkſhire called Craven (u). And by her he had only two daughters, Hawiſe; and Cecily, or Amicia, which laſt was the wife of . . . Eſton, of the family that took their name from the maner of Eaſton in Walter-Belchamp. [See under that pariſh.] —— Hawiſe, the eldeſt daughter and co-heir, had three huſbands. 1. William de Mandeville, Earl of Eſſex, who died in November 1189, leaving no iſſue by her. 2. William de Fortibus, who departed this life in 1194, leaving by her his ſon William. 3. Her third huſband was Baldwin de Betun, Earl of the Iſle of Wight: He dyed in 1212. She ſurvived him.

William de Fortibus, her ſon by her ſecond huſband, ſucceeded her in Honor and eſtates; and made a conſiderable figure in the Barons wars. He married Aveline, daughter and at length coheir to Richard Baron of Stanſted Montfichet in this county, and dyed in 1241, leaving by his ſaid Wife — William de Fortibus, the third Earl of Albemarle of the name (w); and he took for his firſt wife Chriſtian daughter and coheir of Alan of Galoway, but doth not appear to have had any iſſue by her. His ſecond wife was Iſabel daughter to Baldwin Earl of Devonſhire; and by her he had three ſons, John, Thomas, and William, who all dyed young; and two daughters, Avice, who alſo dyed young, and Aveline. He departed this life in 1260 [B], and Iſabel his widow, upon the death of her brother Baldwin de Rivers, the fifth Earl of Devon without iſſue, took the ſtyle of Counteſs of Albemarle and Devon, and Lady of the Iſle of Wight. She dyed in November 1293.

Aveline, her only ſurviving daughter and heir, being too great a match for a common ſubject, K. Henry III. got her to be married to his ſecond ſon, Edmund Crouchback, Earl of Lancaſter, &c. on the 8th of April 1269; the King, Queen, and almoſt all the nobility of England being at the wedding (x).

When this great Lady came to be of age, K. Edward I. never left ſolliciting her, till ſhe had reſigned up to him the ſovereignty of her caſtles, and her lands, in exchange for an equivalent, and the ſum of 20,000 marks paid to her. She had no iſſue, and departed this life 10 Nov. 1293 (y).

This lordſhip, and advowſon of the Church, becoming thus veſted in the Crown, continued there till 1364, when K. Edward III. gave it to the Prior and Convent of Chriſt's-Church in Canterbury, in exchange for the town and port of Sandwich in Kent, with appertenances, and all the revenues in the iſle of Shepey, which belonged to that Prior and Convent (z). And granted them at the ſame time free warren in Borley, and all their other demeſnes (a). They continued poſſeſſed of it till their diſſolution, 20 March 1539 (b). On the 23d of May 1541, K. Henry VIII. granted this, with other eſtates in divers parts of England, to the Dean and Chapter of Chriſt's-Church in Canterbury (c). But they having been charged with the payment of a yearly ſum of 200*l.* for the finding and maintenance of Scholars in the univerſities of Oxford and Cambridge; in order to be diſcharged from it, they aſſigned to his Majeſty ſeveral eſtates, and this among the reſt, then valued at 33 l. on the 23d November 1545 (d). It was ſoon after granted by the Crown to Edward Waldegrave Eſq; afterwards knighted. This noble family had been ſeated a conſiderable time before on the other ſide of the river at Smalbridge within the pariſh of Buers St. Mary's; and ſoon after ſeated themſelves at Naveſtocke, where we deſign to give a particular account of them. . . . Sir Edward, juſt now mentioned, was Maſter of the great Wardrobe to K. Philip and Qu. Mary (e); alſo Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, and one of the repreſentatives of this county in the parliament which met 20 Jan. 1557 (f). By his wife Frances, daughter of Sir Edward Nevill, he had two ſons, Charles, and Nicolas; and three daughters, Mary, wife of John Lord Petre of Writtle; Catharine, of John Gawen of Devonſhire, Eſq; and Magdalene of John Southcote Eſq; ſon and heir of Sir John Southcote of Witham. He married Catharine daughter of Winſtan Browne of Roding-Abbeſſe Eſq; who brought him the maner of Langenhoe, and a moiety of the advowſon of that Church. He departed this life 19 June 1621, poſſeſſed of the premiſſes, and of 10 acres of land in Bulmer. — Philip his only ſon and heir, then aged upwards of 28 years, ſucceeded him (k); and reſided at Borley-hall. By his wife, Mary daughter of Richard White of Hutton in this county Eſq; he had his ſon —— John Waldegrave Eſq; who married Catharine . . . of Wigmore in Herefordſhire, and had by her —— Philip. He dyed 24 Febr. 1720-1, and was buried at St. Pancras near London. Before his deceaſe he gave by deed this, and other his eſtates, to his kinſman.

James Lord Waldegrave, created Viſcount Chewton and Earl Waldegrave 13 Sept. 1729. His Lordſhip departed this life at his ſeat at Naveſtocke 11 April 1741, leaving, by Mary his wife ſecond daughter of Sir John Webb of Hatherop in Glouceſterſhire, two ſons, James, and John.—James, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married 15 May 1759, Maria ſecond daughter of Sir Edward Walpole, Knight of the Bath; but this worthy Nobleman dyed of the ſmall-pox 8 April 1763, in the 50th year of his age, leaving only two daughters; and was ſucceeded in honor and eſtate by his brother — John, Earl Waldegrave [See under Naveſtoke.] [D]

Cecill, by licenſe dated 10 November, 1552 (l).

Mrs. Burrough, the Rev. Mr. Pemberton — and John Snell, have alſo eſtates here.

Easton-hall, belonging to Edw. Pemberton Cl. ſtands on the ſide of a hill not far from Borley Church, and formerly was reckoned part of that pariſh; but is now in Belchamp-Walter. The lands appertaining to it lie chiefly in Borley, Belchamp Oton, and Belchamp-Walter. [See an account of it under Belchamp-Walter.] Theſe lands are ſuppoſed to be, what is entered in Domeſday-book amongſt the Invaſiones, or Encroachments on the King's demeſnes: and had belonged to Grima and Godeva, two freemen, and then to Anſchetill [E].

Borley-hall ſtands at ſome diſtance from the Church, near the river Stour, and Borley-place is a little way north-weſt from the Church.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 422 l.

The Church is of one pace with the chancel; all tyled. A ſquare tower of ſtone at the weſt end contains 3 Bells.

The Advowſon of this Rectory was many years in the crown, but hath belonged to the Waldegrave family ever ſince the reign of King Henry VIII.

This living has a Glebe of about ten acres.

21. LISTON,

otherwiſe written in records Lyſton, Leyſton, and Liſſon. Ton, the latter part of the name, is a contraction of town; but from whence the former part is derived, we cannot ſo eaſily find out; unleſs it is from the Saxon word liſt, a border.

Some freemen were poſſeſſed of this place in Edward the Confeſſor's reign; but at the time of the general ſurvey it belonged to Hugh de Gurnai, Ilbodo, and Roger Bigot. Geffrey Talibot was Gurnai's under-tenant [F].

In this pariſh are three Maners, or reputed maners. 1. Liſton Overhall. 2. Liſton Netherhall; ſo named from their higher and lower ſituation. 3. Liſton Weſton. The two former are ſuppoſed to have been what belonged to Hugh de Gurnai, and Ilbodo, and the latter to Roger Bigot.

I cannot well treat diſtinctly of theſe ſeveral Maners, becauſe they became ſoon united in the poſſeſſion of the family of Liſton, under the title of the maner of Liſton in general, and have moſtly continued ever ſince in one hand: But I ſhall take proper notice wherever they appear under different owners.

Liston-hall

ſtands near the Church. Hugh de Gurnai, or Gornay, the ancient owner of it, was a military man; had aſſiſted William, before the conqueſt, in a battle againſt Henry I. King of France (m); and attended him in his expedition here. At length he became a Monk in the Abbey of Bec, in Normandy, to which he had been a benefactor; and dying there, left by Baſilia his wife, daughter of Girald Fleitell (n) two ſons, Girald, and Hugh.——Girald or Girard, the eldeſt, was likewiſe a military man. But he, and his wife Editha, ſiſter of William Earl of Warenn, accompanying Robert Curthoſe to the Holy Land, he dyed there (o).——Hugh, his ſon and ſucceſſor, had care taken of his education by K. Henry I. as if he had been his own ſon, and trained up by him in military exerciſes (p): but he proved rebellious, and ungrateful to his benefactor. He married Maud, ſiſter of Ralph de Peronne, Count of Vermandois, and dying in 1185, left —— Hugh, his ſon and heir, who attended K. Richard I. at the ſiege of Acon in the Holy Land; and, when taken, was made governor of the part which belonged to the King of England (q). He was diſloyal to K. John, and ſided with the diſcontented Barons, for which his lands were ſeized. But he departing this life in 1221, or 1222, his lands were reſtored by K. Henry III. to his ſon —— Hugh, who being likewiſe guilty of ſeveral acts of diſloyalty, and of contempt of the royal authority, all his lands, goods, and chattles were ſeized. He dyed in 1237, and left, by Lucy his wife, daughter of Robert de Berkley, —— Julian his only daughter and heir, that was married to William Bardulf (r) [G].

This eſtate appears next in the family ſurnamed De Liſton, who were ſettled here in the reign of K. Henry II. [H] or K. John; and held lands by grand ſerjeancy, of making, and placing five wafers before the King, as he ſits at dinner on the day of his coronation. Geffrey, or Godfrey, de Liſton held certain lands here by the ſaid ſerjeancy, in 1226 (s), and alſo lands in Witham, of 40 s. value, by the ſerjeancy of carrying flour to make the King's wafers, at Chriſtmas, wherever he ſhall be at that time in England (t). He dyed 51 Hen. III. 1267, holding the maner of Liſton of the King, in ca. by the ſervice of making wafers when our Lord the King wears his crown, according to cuſtom. Alſo 30 acres in Borle of the Earl of Albemarle, by the payment of a pair of gilt ſpurs and 6 d. And other lands in Gorsfeild, and Lenton. —— John de Liſton was his ſon (u). He dyed in 1303, holding the maner of Liſton of the King in ca. by grand ſerjeancy, viz. by the ſervice of making wafers for the king's uſe on the day of his coronation; and likewiſe lands in Goſfeild. He alſo held 10 l. worth of land in Felſted by the ſame ſervice. —— Sir John his ſon and ſucceſſor (w), dyed in 1332, and held this maner and advowſon of the Church, of the King in ca. by a certain ſerjeancy of making and ſerving to our Lord the King on the day of his coronation five wafers. He had alſo lands in Foxherd, Goſfend, Ramſden-Cray, and Malden. Ramſden was of the inheritance of his mother Alianore. His wife's name was Maud, by whom he had his ſon —John (x), who dyed in 1349, leaving by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Sir William Carbonell, his ſon and heir ——John, aged about 15 years. He dyed 26 Janu. 1359, and was ſucceeded by his uncle —— William, then above 30 years old (y). Joane widow of this William had for her life this maner of Liſton, and advowſon of the Church, by the ſervice of finding one wafer on the King's coronation-day. She dyed 20 June 1367, and —— Thomas was her ſon (z) [I]. Before her deceaſe he granted, by fine, the reverſion of this eſtate to

Richard Lyons and his heirs. This Richard was a famous wine-merchant, and lapidary, in London, and one of the Sheriffs in 1374. He had the misfortune of being beheaded in 1381, by that inſolent rebel Wat Tiler, whoſe maſter he had been; and buried in the Church of St. James Garlickhyth, with an epitaph (a). He then held the maner of Overhall in Liſton of the King in ca. by the ſervice of making wafers on the King's coronation-day, and ſerving with them the King at dinner on that day. But long before his deceaſe he had enfeoffed Alice Lady Nevill in the maners of Netherhall in Liſton, and in lands and tenements called Weſtones and Carbonells, with appertenances, in Liſton, Borle, Foxherd, and Pentlowe. Netherhall, with the advowſon of the Church, was holden of the Earl of March by the ſervice of 12 s. a year; and Weſtons of Tho. Monchenſy, for one pound of pepper. He had alſo the maner of Goſfeild (b). Upon his violent death theſe maners eſcheating to the Crown, K. Richard II. in 1383, granted to

Sir Hugh de Segrave the maner of Lyſton Overhall, in fee, by the ſervice of the Wafers as above (c).

About the year 1400, the ſeveral maners in this pariſh were paſſed away by fine to William Venour, and Elizabeth and Mabile Venour, and John Stapulforde (d). William Venour dyed in 1461, holding the maner of Liſton Overhall of the King by the tenure above-mentioned; and the maners of Liſton Weſton, and Liſton Netherhall with the advowſon of the Church of Liſton Netherhall, of Ralph Bokby, by fealty; and 1 meſſuage, 3 carucates of land; and 20 acres of wood in Pentelowe. His next heirs were, John Bluet ſon of Agnes ſiſter of Elizabeth mother of the ſaid William Venour; John Wroughton ſon of John, ſon of Margaret another ſiſter; and William Harwell, ſon of Roger, ſon of a third ſiſter of the ſaid Elizabeth (e).

It was next in Sir John Say, of an ancient family, ſeated in Hertfordſhire. He had two wives. 1. Elizabeth daughter of Laurence Cheney of Cambridgeſhire Eſq; [K], and by her he had two ſons, William, ſeated in Hertfordſhire, and Thomas (f). 2. His ſecond wife was Agnes . . . that dyed 16 April 1496. He himſelf departed this life in 1478, poſſeſſed of theſe three maners (g).——Thomas the ſecond ſon, had the Eſſex eſtate. He obtained a licenſe, 20 Febr. 1483; to alienate the maner of Liſton-Overhall to Thomas Bultell (h). However, he died poſſeſſed of that, by the uſual ſervice of the wafers; and of the maner of Lyſton Netherhall; 26 June 1497. —— William, his ſon and heir, was then but ſix years old (i). He dyed 1 Auguſt 1508, holding the maner of Lyſton-Overhall by the uſual ſervice of the wafers; and the maners of Lyſton Weſton, and Lyſton Netherhall, with the advowſon of the Church of Lyſton Netherhall; and a meſſuage and land in Pentlowe, as above. As he dyed under age, and without iſſue, his two ſiſters, Anne wife of Robert Huſey, Eſq; and Elizabeth wife of William Clopton Eſq; ſecond ſon of Sir William Clopton of Melford and Lutons in Suffolk, became his coheirs (k).

Margaret wife of Edmund Clere. 5. Iſabella wife of Leonard Hyde, who had a ſon named George. 6. Thomaſina wife of John Goldingham.

[K] This firſt wife Elizabeth dyed 25 Septemb. 1473 She was widow of Frederick Tilney Eſq; and had by him a daughter, Elizabeth, married to Thomas Duke of Norfolk. . . . . William her eldeſt ſon by Sir John Say was Sheriff of Eſſex and Hertfordſhire in 1483, created a Knight of the Bath in 1484. He left two daughters, Elizabeth married to William Lord Montjoy, and Mary to Henry Bourchier Earl of Eſſex . . . . Sir Henry Chancy's Hiſt. of Hertfordſhire, p. 174, 341, 344. Weever's Funeral Monuments, p. 551.

The Clopton family was very ancient; and derived their ſurname from the town or pariſh of Clopton in Carleford Hundred in Suffolk. The firſt of the family that occurs, is William de Cloptune, who lived in the reign of K. Henry I. . . Sir William de Cloptune, about the 20th of King Edward III. 1346, bought Newnham-hall, in Aſhdon within this county, where he and his poſterity ſettled. [See under that pariſh]. His brother . . . . Sir Thomas de Clopton had for his third wife, Catharine, daughter and coheir of William Mylde of Clare, Eſq; which brought him in marriage the noble lordſhip of Kentwell-hall in Melford in Suffolk, where he and his deſcendents reſided, and were buried in Clopton's iſle in Melford Church. His ſon William de Clopton had alſo Newnham hall of the gift of his couſin Edward de Clopton Eſq; . . . . William Clopton Eſq; another of this family, was ſeated at Caſtelyns in the pariſh of Groton in Suffolk, [L].

But to return to William Clopton, Eſq; the huſband of Elizabeth Say. He was the ſecond ſon of Sir William Clopton of Kentwell-hall in Melford aboveſaid, by his firſt wife Joane daughter of Sir William Marrow of Stepney. By the ſaid Elizabeth he had two ſons, William, and Francis [M]. He departed this life 26 October 1537, holding the manner of Liſton Overhall of the King in ca. by the ſervice of making wafers, and ſerving them at the King's table, on the day of his coronation; and poſſeſſed alſo of half of the maners of Liſton Weſton, and Liſton Netherhall, with half of the advowſon of Liſton Church; and half of the maner of Carbonells in Foxearth, and of divers lands and tenements in Pentlowe.——William his eldeſt ſon, then aged 28 years (l), ſucceeded him. He held the whole of the eſtates juſt now mentioned; viz. the maners of Liſton Over-hall, Weſton, Netherhall, and advowſon of the Church of Liſton-Netherhall; a meſſuage called Bradfeilds, one carucate of arable land, forty acres of paſture, ten of meadow, and ſix of wood in Pentlowe; and a meſſuage or tenement called Carbonells, and forty acres of arable, and 20 acres of paſture in Foxyerth. He dyed 6 Octob. 1568, —— William, his ſon and heir, was then 28 years old (m). He departed this life 25 Octob. 1612, in the 73d year of his age, being recorded to be poſſeſſed only of the maner of Liſton Overhall, with appertenances in Liſton, Foxyarth, and Pentlowe, holden by the uſual ſervice of the wafers; and of the advowſon of the Church of Lyſton Netherhall (n). He married Anne daughter of Sir Thomas Barnardiſton Knt. by whom he had, William, and Francis; [N] and two daughters, Anne, wife of George Parys of Dublynton Eſq; and Mary, of William Smyth of Thorndon in Suffolk Eſq; The eldeſt ſon —— William Clopton of Liſton-hall Eſq; married Anne, ſole daughter and heir of John Wiſeman of Stiſted-hall Eſquire, by his firſt wife Elizabeth daughter of John Glaſcock of Roxwell Gent. and had with the ſaid Anne a conſiderable eſtate in Stiſted, called Rayne hatch and Boltwoods, which his poſterity enjoyed for a great while. By her he had Thomas, William, and John [O]. —— Thomas, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married Elizabeth, heir apparent of Martin Sparrow of Finchingfield, by hom he had —William Clopton of Liſton-hall Eſq; He took to wife Elizabeth daughter of Sir William Poley of Boxted in Suffolk, and had by her —— William, who married Anne daughter of Edward Criſp of St. Edmunds-Bury, Gent. [P].

Dr. Clopton ſold theſe eſtates to . . . Rieuſſett, of whom they were purchaſed by William Campbell Eſq; brother to the Duke of Argyll, and a fine was paſſed in Eaſter-term 1745, for the maners of Lyſton Overhall, Lyſton Netherhall, and Lyſton Weſton. He hath built a good houſe here, and made a Park.

[L] The further account of theſe branches of the Clopton family belongs to the Hiſtory of Suffolk. We have an accurate genealogy of them drawn up by that eminent antiquary and hiſtorian Sir Simonds D'ewes, who married into the family, continued down to 1696 by Tho. Clopton Rector of Chriſelton in Cheſhire, and perfected and improved by Mr. Holman.

[M] Francis was of Kedington in Suffolk, and though he had four wives, left no iſſue by any of them.

[N] This Francis married Anne daughter and coheir of . . . Short of Wetherſet in Suffolk, Gent. and had two ſons . . . and Richard Clopton of Ipſwich, that married Sarah daughter of John Thorne of Harkſtead, and by her had Francis, Sarah, and Elizabeth.

[O] This John married Frances daughter of Mark Mott, D. D Rector of Rayne in this county, and had by her theſe ſeveral children, Tichburne; John of Jeſus College, Cambridge, who dyed unmarried, William of St. John's College, Cambr. Curate of Tiltey, &c that married Phoenix daughter of John Owen of Little Bardfeild, Eſq; Frances, wife of Alleyn Blower, Rector of Little Waltham; Mercy, wife of Sir George Alleyn of Little Lees, Bart. and Anne, Jane, Elizabeth, which died ſingle.

[P] Arms of Clopton. Sable, a bend argent, cotized dancette, or, Creſt. On a torſe argent and ſable, a wolf's head coupée, parti per pale or and azure, a creſcent for difference. Theſe arms are on a ſeal appendent to a deed of Thomas de Clopton, dated 23 Edw. III. with this circumſcription. S. Thome de Clopton.

The Wafers were ſerved by the lords of the maner of Liſton, at the two laſt Coronations. But the names of Overhall and Netherhall have been ſo long diſuſed, as not to be remembred by any perſons here.

Sir Mordaunt Martin hath two farms in this pariſh, called Harts, and Buckles; beſides another good large parcel of land, without a houſe. . . . Ezekiel Sparks Eſq; hath alſo an eſtate here.

This pariſh is rated to the land-tax at 529*l.* 10*s.*

The Church is of one pace with the Chancel; and the whole tyled. At the weſt end there is a ſquare tower, in which are three Bells. In the windows of this Church and Chancel are, or lately were, painted ſeveral coats of Arms [Q].

In 1332 John de Liſton who held this whole pariſh under the name of the maner of Liſton, had with it the advowſon of the Rectory (o). But ever ſince the year 1370, or thereabouts, it hath been appendent to the maner of Liſton Netherhall.

22. PENTLOW.

The meaning of the word Pent is well known, and as for the Saxon lope, it ſignifies an eminence; ſo that the name denotes a hill or eminence pent here at the twining of the river Stour.

In Edward the Confeſſor's reign this pariſh belonged to one Free-woman, but, at the time of the general ſurvey, was one of the 25 lordſhips in this county, holden by Ralph Baignard [R], being then an appendage to the Lordſhip of Simplingham, otherwiſe called Shimpling and Shimpling-Thorne, in Suffolk, which belonged to the ſaid Ralph. He is ſufficiently mentioned under Little Dunmow, Little Badow, p. 21. Eaſt-Haningfield, p. 36, and Ulting, p. 135. Juga, his widow founded the Priory of Little Dunmow. —— Geffrey, their ſon, had for ſucceſſor his ſon — William, who, for ſiding with Robert Courthoſe Duke of Normandy, in his endeavours to get the Crown of England from K. Henry I. was deprived of his eſtates, that were given to Robert a younger ſon of Richard Fitz-Giſlebert, anceſtor of the Earls of Clare and Fitz-Walter (p).

There are three Maners in this pariſh. 1. Pentlow-hall. 2. The maner of Bowes, otherwiſe, Bowers-hall. 3. The maner of Paines.

1. The maner of PENTLOW-HALL.

This is the capital lordſhip in this pariſh. The manſion-houſe ſtands near the Church, on the river Stour, by a branch of which it is ſurrounded.

The noble families of Baynard, Fitz-walter, and Ratcliff, Barons Fitz-walter and Earls of Suſſex, continued chief lords of it for a conſiderable time. Under them it was holden by the families of Fitz-Humfrey, Norman, Kempe, &c.
